THE PSYCHOTRONIC®

VIDEO GUIDE

"An amazingly knowledgeable Encyclopedia Britannica for film fanatics with a great sense of humor." —JOHN WATERS

MICHAEL J. WELDON

the psycho
tronic® video guide

Also by Michael J. Weldon

The Psychotronic® Encyclopedia of Film

Michael J. Weldon

The Psychotronic® Video Guide

ST. MARTIN'S GRIFFIN ≈ NEW YORK

Dedicated to:

42nd Street

THE PSYCHOTRONIC® VIDEO GUIDE. Copyright © 1996 by Michael J. Weldon. All rights reserved. Printed in the United States of America. No part of this book may be used or reproduced in any manner whatsoever without written permission except in the case of brief quotations embodied in critical articles or reviews. For information, address St. Martin's Press, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10010.
Photo permissions appear on page 638, which constitutes an extension of this copyright page.

Design by Junie Lee
Edited by Gordon Van Gelder

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Weldon, Michael.
The psychotronic video guide / Michael J. Weldon.
p. cm.
ISBN 0-312-13149-6 (pbk.)
1. Sensationalism in motion pictures. 2. Low budget motion pictures. 3. Motion picures—Catalogs. 4. Video recordings—Catalogs. I. Title.
PN1995.9.S284W46 1995
791.43'6353—dc20 95-17151
CIP

First St. Martin's Griffin Edition: September 1996
10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

SELWYN
Sorry
We Can Not Accept Bills
Larger Than $20.00
No Packaged Food Nor
Cans or Bottles will be Allowed in This Theatre.
We Reserve The Rights to Examine All Packages.
The Management

Acknowledgments

Special thanks to Suh Mi Hwa (aka Mia Weldon), Akira Fitton, and Fred Brockman. This book and Psychotronic® Video magazine wouldn't exist without them. Same goes for Mathew Bialer, Gordon Van Gelder, Mary Louise Mooney, Michael J. Ford, Andrew J. Klyde, and Eileen Schlesinger Cotton.

Thanks to Dale Ashmun, Sean Axmaker, Lucas Balbo, Keith Bearden, Art Black, Richard Bojarski, Eric Caiden, Ken Carpenter, Paula Catarino, Dan Clowes, Larry Cohn, Nancy Coleman, Shane M. Dallman, Dennis Daniel, David Del Valle, John Donaldson, Gary Dumm, Craig Edwards, Joyce Faust, David F. Friedman, Drew Friedman, Lowell Goldman, Greg Goodsell, Rickard Gramfors, Rudolph Grey, Alan Handelman, Richard Henderson, Frank Henenlotter, Gary Hertz, John Holmstrom, Fred Hopkins, Peter Hughes, Justin Humphries, Mark Isted, Ian Johnston, Ed Kelleher, Charles Kilgore, J. D. King, Jim Knush, David Konow, Steve Latshaw, Johnny Legend, Kurt Loder, Jay Lorenz, Greg Luce, Mark Madenwald, Brett McCormick, Maitland McDonagh, Kevin McDonough, Brian McMahon, Harry Medved, Donald Metz, Vincent J. Mizzi, Barry Monush, Michael Murphy, Peter Orr, Louis Paul, Anthony Petkovich, Michael Price, Char Rao, Thomas C. Rainone, Johnny Ramone, Jim Ridenour, Cynthia Rose, Todd Rutt, Al Ryan, Gordon K. Smith, Audrey Sparkes, Frank Uhle, Tom Unterburger, Mike Vraney, Steve Voce, Mark Voger, Kevin Walsh, Bill Warren, Ken Weiner, Tom Weiser, Michael Will, and everyone else who worked on or contributed to Psychotronic® magazines, calendars, books, or our store, plus all you Psychotronic® readers throughout the world.

Thanks to Sally Eckhoff, Charlie Beesley, Christopher Cerf, Bob Martin, and everybody who helped get Psychotronic® started back in the East Village in the early eighties and Jim Ellis, John Morton, John Thompson, David Thomas, and everybody who first encouraged me to write about this stuff back in the seventies in Cleveland. And I wish Tom Allen, Mike Antel, Lester Bangs, Stiv Bators, Patti Dow, Bradly Fields, Berni Goodrich, Brian Hudson, Jim Hurley, Peter Laughner, Norman Petrie, George Scott, Alfred Sturdevant, and too many others were still around.

Foreword

What the Psychotronic® Video Guide Reviews

There are alphabetical reviews here of more than 3000 features (and select TV shows on video) that are considered Psychotronic®. That means horror, science fiction, fantasy, and exploitation movies. These are the releases that used to be called "B" features and were later popular in inner-city grindhouses, at drive-ins, and on local late-night TV. These days, you can see many of them at any time of the day on cable TV or whenever you want to on video. It doesn't matter when or where they were made, whether they're "good" or not, whether they cost a few thousand dollars or over $100 million. They can be barely released obscurities, acknowledged cult items, or over-hyped and over-merchandised household names. And unlike other movie guides, nothing is omitted because it's in bad taste. All of this stuff is out there. You should know about it.

I've included silent features now available on tape, serials that were previously only available in condensed TV release versions, and features from any time period that have been rediscovered thanks to video. I've included most seventies black action movies, many Italian westerns, women-in-prison movies, jd (juvenile delinquent) and rock and roll movies, select Asian and martial arts titles, mondo documentaries, biblical and historical epics, some WWII propaganda movies, various "underground" features, and many old (pre-porno) "adults only" movies. Roadshow movies covering once-forbidden themes like drugs, prostitution, and even childbirth are here along with nudist-colony features and vintage adult dramas and comedies that featured nudity as the main attraction.

Most movies are reviewed here for obvious reasons. Others are reviewed because of the companies that made or released them, the director, or the casts. You'll find releases by top quality directors of the past (Hitchcock, Lang, Buñuel . . .), the most Psychotronic® directors of the past (Corman, Castle, Browning . . .) and the most prolific of recent years (Franco, Ray, Santiago . . .). Anything that Roger Corman had anything to do with fits, as well as nearly anything from the companies he was involved with (AIP, New World, and Concorde). Other companies that have turned out appropriate stuff nonstop are Cannon, Charles Band's Full Moon (and before that Empire and Wizard), Troma, P.M., and the (unrelated) AIP video company. Name-brand video companies (RCA, Warner, Republic, MCA . . .) usually have little or nothing to do with the old companies of the same names and in no way guarantee any kind of high quality viewing.

Information Included

D: director	A: actor
S: screenwriter	C: cinematographer
P: producer	M: music
E: editor

I provide director, screenwriter, and producer credits whenever possible. I only include running times when a title is especially long (say, over 2 hours) or short (under 70 minutes) or when it's worth noting that it is (or was) available in versions with different running times. Running times in guide books are notoriously inacurate and debatable. I'm not about to compete with time-obsessed fans who sit around with stop watches. Years are also debatable. I try and list the year of release, but if a movie was completed in 1985 and released in 1989, it's a 1985 movie. It doesn't matter when it was first screened in America, reviewed, or released on tape. Soundtrack information is included but whether or not a particular soundtrack is in print at this time or has been released on CD is information that changes monthly and is up to you to find out. And just what is the difference these days between a theatrical release, a made-for-cable or network TV movie, or a direct-to-video movie? Nobody really knows, most don't care, and don't believe what video boxes say.

Ratings

Movies released before November 1969 were not rated, although some of them were later rated for video release. With some exceptions, these movies were either considered all right for the general public or were denied a seal of approval and were considered "adults only." Most of the post-November 1969 movies in this book are rated R. I'll note if they were rated X (or later, NC-17), PG-13, PG, or in rare cases, G. The rating system becomes more meaningless every year. Some video releases are rated, many are not. Many older "adults only" movies would be rated R, PG, or even G (!) today. One movie rated PG in 1972 would get an R today, but so would another movie that was rated X in 1972.

Video Releases

Most, but not all, of the titles covered in this book have been or will be released on video. Titles already on tape include the most current release company name before the year. Just because your nearest video store doesn't stock them doesn't mean they're not out there, and there's a growing business in out-of-print tapes and mail-order sales and rentals (see page 637). The price of video tapes is unpredictable and senseless. One new hit is a "sell through" title at $20 while another new title is closer to $100. The price of one title will go up and down over the years as it goes in and out of print and is acquired by different companies. Also, beware of sell through tapes recorded at the LP (middle speed) or, even worse, at the EP speed. The viewing future will probably bring a major media push to convince you that you're old fashioned and out of it if you still use a VCR and watch tapes. Remember Beta!

Title Changes

Alternate American titles are cross referenced within the book. If you look up Ator the Invincible and it says See Blade Master, then that movie in reviewed in this book under Blade Master. If you see Assault of the Rebel Girls = Cuban Rebel Girls, that means that if you rent the video Assault of the Rebel Girls you'll really be seeing Cuban Rebel Girls, which was already reviewed in my earlier book (The Psychotronic® Encyclopedia of Film). Alternate or original foreign titles are only listed before the review. More features have been given more misleading new titles then ever before. There are movies available under three or four different titles at the same time! Have you even rented (or even bought) the same movie more than once because of deceptive titles? Thought so. The world of Psychotronic® video is a world of ripoffs and deceptions. Think P. T. Barnum at all times. There should be a law. There isn't.

Alternate Versions

Many features are available in different versions. Some movies have existed in various versions with different footage in theatres, on tape, on cable, and on commercial TV. That doesn't even include alternate versions for various countries and tapes available in versions with different ratings. Some things have improved, though. It wasn't long ago when you could see a movie in a theatre, then if was a safe enough title, it would show up on TV censored in many ways and cut to make room for commercials. Unless it was a major hit, it would air a few times then disappear, seemingly forever. Thousands of other features never played TV at all. Movies are still cut and censored on TV (and on some cable channels), but if you bother to look you might have choices on tapes. In some cases you can choose R or unrated versions, dubbed or subtitled versions, widescreen or panned-and-scanned versions, original or "director's cut" versions. Of course this is all just a huge scam to get more of your money and has nothing to do with artistic freedom.

Trends

Some types of features come and go in cycles. The eighties saw a revival of 3-D movies, anti-Communist movies, and end-of-the-world/post-nuke movies (a modern equivalent of westerns). These all originally flourished in the fifties. Anti-drug movies even made a comeback in the "just say no" Reagan years and Alien (and its first sequel) ushered in a deluge of fifties-inspired outer space monsters menacing small crews in closed quarters (spaceships, building, labs, or subs). By the late eighties, there were more martial arts or kickboxer movies than there were in early seventies and black-cast movies (of all types) made a major comeback. Since the seventies when expensive "blockbuster" hits recycled ideas and plots from old B movies and serials, many (most) of the biggest hits have been 100% Psychotronic®. Arnold Schwarzenegger is just Steve "Hercules" Reeves with bigger budgets and better agents. The Batman and Raiders movies are big-budget versions of old Saturday matinee serials with better special effects.

It took a while, but critics and media personalities were forced to adapt to covering and appreciating Psychotronic® movies, or lose their jobs. The types of movies that used to be ignored, condemned, and considered just for kids are now important major money makers and even award-winners. Who could have predicted a day when an actress (Kathy Bates) would win an Oscar for starring in a Stephen King adaptation (Misery, 1990), or that a serial-killer hit (The Silence of the Lambs, 1991) by a director who used to make drive-in movies for Roger Corman could sweep the Oscars (best film, director, actor, and actress)? And what about movies based on video games?

No More Underground

Every technique, theme, and idea formerly used in "underground" movies is now in rock videos, TV commercials, major productions, and on TV shows. I sometimes wonder how older viewers (especially ones who remember the days before TV) can stand to watch today's movies, TV shows, and commercials with all the hand-held "shakycam" work and fast editing. These techniques were used for many years to suggest intoxication, madness, and drug trips. Now they're used to sell products and to try to make the most ordinary feature or program seem "hip." Like it or not (and I know many who hated it), in some ways Natural Born Killers, directed by Oliver Stone (from a script by Quentin Tarentino) is the ultimate in-your-face nineties movie, throwing in our current obsession with serial killers, corrupt and inept officials, commercialism and media overkill, sex, drugs, and rock and roll, and horror and violence, using every existing underground movie and rock video cliché.

How We Watch Movies

Everybody used to say that movies were being killed off by TV, then it was by video, cable TV, or high ticket prices. Movies are still a national pastime in most countries, the industry still makes tons of money, and more people are interested in the behind-the-scenes details than ever. I miss inner-city grindhouses (a lot), drive-ins, and revival or "art" theatres, but there are more screens out there than there used to be. When I was a kid, I could ride my bike to several theatres, which was great, but as an adult, I can drive to several multiplexes and have a choice of over 20 movies. Of course most of them suck, but that's another matter. Cable TV and video releases help movies make even more money. Countless stations show new and old Psychotronic® movies. The only thing cable TV is killing off is network TV. We'll see even more specialized cable stations (and pay-per-view movies) until more people will start to watch TV like David Bowie did in The Man Who Fell to Earth. Lucky us.

Budgets

Some viewers used to think that making movies with budgets over $40 million was some kind of sin. Features are now going over $100 million. I'm glad that someone took the time and money to make Blade Runner, Brazil, and Robocop. I'm amazed that we've had the most expensive Dracula, Wolfman, Frankenstein, and Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde movies of all time in recent years (although none of them touched the respective thirties versions). I like to see that money on the screen, and I'll go out of my way to see an expensive feature on the largest screen available (admittedly, a serious problem for viewers in most areas these days). On the other hand, video and cable has helped low-budget releases flourish and young independent filmmakers, who at one time could show their features in a few specialized theatres, can reach a much larger audience and maybe even make a profit (!) by selling their efforts on tape. Even a terrible, amateur, shot-on-video horror movie has the potential to make profits. Some directors have made a decent living making and selling their extremely cheap (and often awful) homemade features. Except for the truly amateur homemade releases, most of today's low-budget movies at least look good . . . even if the acting, direction, and scripts are terrible. The days of visible boom mikes, flimsy sets, and laughable day-for-night shots are pretty much in the past. Today's lowest-budgeted features look slick and professional and can include special effects (FX) barely dreamed of a decade ago.

Where They're From

Outside of America, Italy has been the number one country for quantity of Psychotronic® movies since the sixties. Germany was very important in the silent days (and in the sixties for fun B movies), and England was important from the fifties through the seventies, but Italy is consistant.

Most American movies aren't made in Hollywood anymore, and that's a good thing. I'd much rather see anything made in New York, Chicago, or Pittsburgh, or better yet, somewhere in Texas, Florida, or Louisiana. We need more accents and fewer boring sunny L.A. streets. It's also useful to visit Canada and get used to Canadian accents, because sometimes it's the only way to tell which movies set in big American cities were really shot in Toronto or Vancouver.

Complaints

Some people (as usual) have been complaining about the amount of sex and violence on the screen. They should go back and check out some early seventies movies made shortly after the rating system went into effect or see what people accept in other countries. Others have complained about the rampant cynicism in recent features. They should check out some post-WWII "film noir" or simply take a look around at real life, which for most people on this planet is more horrifying than anything shown in movies. Still others worry about possible new censorship because certain people like to blame everything that's wrong with their country, their family, and their lives on movies and TV. Movie censorship has been abolished for the most part in this country for decades, and everyone with enough money has access to videos, cable TV, and computers, so it's too late to return now. Unless some future administration manages to turn back the entertainment clock to around the time of the early fifties (not an unthinkable possibility), everything is out there and you have to deal with it, like it or not. Meanwhile, you might as well stop complaining and enjoy what you like to watch. Go to your local middle-of-the-road video store and demand that they stock more of what you want to see, whether its thirties comedies, sixties biker movies, or seventies lesbian vampire movies. It doesn't matter if they won't stock X or NC-17 tapes and consider themselves a family store, your family deserves better than just the top-renting new releases.

Not Just Nostalgia

As much as I love golden-age horror, fifties juvenile delinquent, and science fiction movies from various "more innocent" times, I still look forward to what's new and what's next. I think it's important to see where Psychotronic® movies came from and where they're going. Unwatchable and boring junk has always been around along with classics, undiscovered gems, and just satisfying time-wasters. I am tired of too many horror comedies, too many sequels (even though many are sequels in name only), too many kickboxer movies, and too many lame "erotic thrillers," though. And why is it that in countless horror and action movies, the sole black character is always the first to die? It's interesting to watch the way stock WWII Axis villains were quickly replaced with years of Communist villains. By the early nineties, cliché villains were most likely to be Arabs, industrialists, lawyers, or ponytailed guys named Wolf. The same characters move through the same plots, year after year. Only the actors, settings, fashions, vehicles, and quality of special effects change. Watching the same plot remodeled to appeal to different tastes, political climates, or countries is part of what being a movie fan is all about. It's all part of history and before you know it, everything in this book will be twentieth-century history. Pretty scary, isn't it?

Psychotronic® History

The first movie reviews I wrote were at high school (in Lakewood, Ohio). This was during the time of the Vietnam War, assassinations, demonstrations, rock festivals, lots of drugs in the suburbs for the first time, and general chaos, fear, and confusion (like now . . . but the music was better). An assignment would be to review a book. I'd review a movie (any movie) and of course get a failing or the dreaded "incomplete" grade. I had been making "monster" scrapbooks since I was about ten and I continued to file away pictures, clippings, and information on the movies I cared about. My first published reviews were years later when I was working for an import and "punk rock" store in Cleveland Heights called the Drome (formally Hideo's Discodrome). I wrote a hand lettered, illustrated, movies-on-TV review column for CLE magazine, in between articles on Devo, The Dead Boys, and Destroy All Monsters (not the movie).

In New York, that column somehow mutated into the Psychotronic® TV guide, a crude, xeroxed, hand-lettered publication that came out every week for one exhaustive year (1980–81). That led to The Psychotronic® Encyclopedia of Film (Ballantine, 1983), written and researched with the help of several friends, long before I owned a VCR or had cable TV (or knew about AIDS or crack). The first book was followed by freelance writing and I hosted Psychotronic® film festivals around Northern Europe, America, and in Brazil.

Psychotronic® Video Magazine

is currently a 92-page quarterly consisting of reviews, career interviews with actors and directors, columns, articles, and rare illustrations. A 6-issue subscription is $25. A sample copy is $5. (Cash, check, Mastercard, Visa, or Amex accepted). Write for overseas rates. Send all orders, correspondence, and VHS feature review tapes to 3309 Rt. 97, Narrowsburg, NY, 12764.

ABBY

(Cinefear, 1974) D/P: William Girdler
S: G. Cornell Layne P: Mike Henry

Warner sued AIP, claiming that this movie (from Louisville, Kentucky) copied The Exorcist too closely (it doesn't), and it was withdrawn. A happy marriage counselor (Carol Speed) lives in a new house with her preacher husband (Terry Carter). Her father-in-law (William Marshall) studies the Yoruba religion in Nigeria, and Abby somehow becomes possessed. She has a deep, echoing voice, freaks out in the church choir, and gives a white lady a heart attack. She kicks her husband in the crotch and starts picking up men in a bar and killing them. In the final confrontation, she floats, but a cross and some foreign words from Marshall stop her. With Juanita Moore, Austin Stoker, and Charles Kissinger. It's hard to take most of it seriously, but Marshall is good and it's good to finally see this rare feature.

ABCs OF LOVE

(SW, 1950s) D: "Lillian Hunt"

One of many dated b/w burlesque features, for those who want to experience what was once an adults-only show. Strippers who keep their tassels on alternate with comedians, and it ends with a singer named Gilda. William S. Thompson of Ed Wood Jr. movie fame shot it, and the narration is in rhyme.

THE ABDUCTION

(Media, 1975) D: Joseph Zito S/P: Kent E. Carroll

This exploitation curiosity item received some advance publicity as the first X-rated feature with name Hollywood stars, but it was released (years later) with an R rating, and nobody cared. Leif Erickson, Dorothy Malone, and Lawrence Tierney are the names. Some people figured The Abduction was about the Patty Hearst case, but it was based on a novel written before the kidnapping, although it wasn't released until 1981. Judith-Marie Bergan stars. Like many of the directors in this book, Zito started out directing porno movies.

THE ABDUCTORS

(Monterey, 1971) D/S: Don Schaim
P: Ralph T. Desiderio

Three cheerleaders (a blonde, brunette, and a redhead) are kidnapped by slavers who tie them up and sell them to businessmen. Some models are nabbed too, and blonde Cheri Chafaro (in her second film as the heroine, Ginger) is sent to rescue them, but they decide they like the slave life (!). The redheaded cheerleader is played by Jeramie Rain (also in Last House on the Left) who was Mrs. Richard Dreyfuss in real life. With Richard Smedley, Jennifer Brooks, and Patrick Wright. Girls Are for Loving was next in the violent and cheesy Ginger series.

THE ABOMINATION

(Donna Michelle, 1985) D/P: "Max Raven"/ Bret McCormick S: Bando Glutz

The Abomination is an ambitious, bloody, hungry-monster-in-a-kitchen movie from Texas. Young Cody keeps waking up and screaming. Scenes are repeated over and over. His narration is pretty relentless as he walks around in dark sunglasses killing people to feed his laughable monsters: "It's the abomination! I must get him food! Demon from Hell! You are the horror from Babylon, Mother!" His sick mom watches a TV evangelist, puts her hands on the TV, and coughs up a tumor. There's a chainsaw decapitation, slit throats, hands bit off, an exorcism, a cat in a toilet, and good ole fart humor. With Blue Thompson (the director's wife). "Raven" returned with more direct-to-tape horrors.

ABOVE SUSPICION

(MGM, 1943) D: Richard Thorpe S: Keith Winter, Melville Baker, Patricia Coleman P: Victor Saville

An American couple's honeymoon in London just before WWII turns into a spy mission. Joan Crawford and Fred MacMurray travel throughout Europe, especially in Germany. If Joan and Fred aren't enough of a draw, how about Conrad Veidt (who died before this was released) as a helpful count and Basil Rathbone as a Gestapo chief? The script was based on a novel by Helen MacInnes.

ABOVE THE LAW

(Warner, 1988) D/S/P: Andrew Davis S: Steven Pressfield, Ronald Shusett P/A: Steven Seagal

Nico, a brooding hero Nam vet and ex–CIA man, is now a Chicago cop. Pam Grier is his partner, who spends most of the movie in a coma, and Henry Silva is perfect as Zagon, a slimy CIA operative (also seen in Nam flashbacks) who uses heroin when torturing people. This was the acting debut for 6'4" Steven Seagal and is still his best feature to date. It was based on his (supposed) experiences as a CIA agent in Nam and is very much against the intelligence agency. Seagal was also an aikido martial-arts instructor and (supposedly) the first non-Asian to open a martial-arts school in Japan. It also helped that he taught studio head Mike Ovitz. Seagal went on to star in more violent action features (most with snappy three-word titles). With Sharon Stone, Thalmus Rasulala, and a brief barroom appearance by Henry star Michael Rooker.

ABRAXAS

(Prism, 1991) D/S/P/A: Damien Lee
P: David Mitchell, Curtis Peterson Canada

An alien (Sven-Ole Thorsen) with a laser gun asks a woman, "Are you a birthing member of the human race?" Before she can answer, he impregnates her by touching her and she instantly has a baby. Five years later, a good alien (Jesse "the Body" Ventura) with a laser gun (and ponytail) falls for the woman and tries to protect her mute 5-year-old boy, who has mysterious powers. It all takes place in and around a small, snowy New York State town just before Christmas. Jim Belushi shows up as the school principal in this Terminator ripoff by the director of Ski School.

ABSOLUTE BEGINNERS

(HBO, 1986) D: Julian Temple S: Christopher Wicking, Richard Burridge, Don McPherson
P: Stephen Wooley, Chris Brown UK

Based on Colin MacInnes' novel set in 1958 London, Absolute Beginners is a unique, PG-13 musical look at the record-making biz by the director of The Great Rock and Roll Swindle. It also attempts to deal with the racial problems in England at the time. Eddie O'Connell stars as a photographer, and the cast includes Patsy Kensit, David Bowie as an ad man, James Fox, Terence Stamp, Steven Berkoff, Anita Morris, Ray Davies (as Arthur), Mandy Rice-Davies, Sade, Robbie Coltrane, Jess Conrad, Sandie Shaw, and the late Slim Gaillard. Gil Evans wrote the score, available on EMI. And look for Expresso Bongo (1960), which tells a similar story and was actually made at the time.

ABSOLUTION

(Bingo, 1978) D/P: Anthony Page
S: Anthony Shaffer P: Danny O'Donovan UK

Richard Burton stars as Father Goddard, a strict Catholic priest teaching at a boys' school. Dominic Guard is the pet student who plays too many practical jokes on him. (Christopher Lee was once considered for the lead.) Shaffer had also written The Wicker Man and Frenzy. With Billy Connolly and Andrew Keir. It wasn't released in the US until 1988, four years after Burton died.

THE ABYSS

(Fox, 1989) D/S: James Cameron P: Gale Ann Hurd

The Abyss was a big PG-13 disappointment after Cameron's blockbuster hit Aliens. An oil-rig crew has to rescue a sunken American nuclear submarine. Ed Harris and Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio star with Cameron regular Michael Biehn as the navy lieutenant who loses it and plans to nuke the Russians. Also with Leo Burmester, Todd Graff, and Chris Elliott. The great, innovative (but sparingly used) ILM FX received an Oscar, but the same techniques were put to better use in Terminator II. The underwater sequences were filmed at Earl Owensby's North Carolina studios, in an abandoned nuclear reactor tank. There's also a happy E.T. ending with heavenly voices that was a bit much for me. Cameron delivered a nearly 3-hour movie but the theatrical release was trimmed to 145 minutes. A long (very expensive) segment showing cities threatened by tidal waves was totally cut. This footage and more were put back for the 1993 "special edition" laserdisc release, running 171 minutes, available letterboxed or scanned, and including an additional one-hour (!) director interview/"making of" documentary disc. The roughly $50 million feature was a box-office washout, but before it was even released it had "inspired" many much cheaper underwater science-fiction adventures, including DeepStar Six, Leviathan, Endless Descent, and Lords of the Deep.

ACCESS CODE

(Prism, 1983) D/P/E: Mark Sobel S: Stanley Richards

A CIA agent (Michael Durrell), and then his sister try to save the US from nuclear destruction after villains infiltrate the nation's computer system. In a nearly senseless film pieced together from footage shot at various times, "guest stars" Martin Landau, Michael Ansara, and Macdonald Carey sit around talking for long stretches and whole scenes were obviously never even shot or completed.

ACCIDENTS

(1989) D: Gideon Amir S: John T. Eubank P: Elmo De Witt Australia

A small, remote-controlled saucer called "the Scout" kills scientists. A research scientist (Edward Albert) teams up with a researcher (Leigh Taylor-Young) to investigate. With Jon Cypher.

ACCIÓN MUTANTE

(VSOM, 1992) D/S: Alex de la Iglesia S: Jorge Guerricaechevarria P: Agustín and Pedro Almodovar Spain

Members of a terrorist group led by Antonio Resines end up on another planet in this violent action/horror/sci-fi comedy set in Spain in 2013. The group includes Siamese twins, a legless man on a flying disc, and a giant. There are shootouts, gore, a space monster, and heavy-metal music. Frédérique Feder is the kidnapped rich girl. The same French FX people did Delicatessen.

THE ACCURSED

(1957) D: Gilbert Gunn D/S: Michael McCarthy P: E. J. Fancey UK (The Traitor)

Allied Artists released this mystery in 1960, capitalizing on the new horror fame of Christopher Lee. He plays a German-Jewish doctor, a former member of a WWII resistance group attending an annual reunion held at the home of a British colonel (Donald Wolfit). One of the men is a former Nazi who has been killing off the others. With Anton Diffring, Robert Bray, and Karel Stepanek. The plot is the same as The Unholy Night (1929).

ACE DRUMMOND

(Video Dimensions, Sinister, 1936) D: Ford Beebe, Cliff Smith S: Wyndham Gittens, Norman S. Hall, Ray Trame

Ace (John King), a pilot hero with atomic ray guns, battles "the Dragon" in Mongolia. It's a Universal 13-chapter serial based on the comic strip created by Eddie Rickenbacker. With Jean Rogers (from the same year's Flash Gordon), Noah Berry Jr., C. Montague Shaw, and Lon Chaney Jr. as Ivan. A mixture of Caucasian and Asian actors play the grand lama, Chang-Ho, and Kai-Chek. Beebe co-directed 25 serials in about 10 years.

ACE HIGH

(Paramount, 1967) D/S: Giuseppe Colizzi S/P: Bino Cicogna Italy/Spain (I Quattro dell'Ave Maria)

The popular team of Terence Hill and Bud Spencer star as two con men out to rob a casino owned by Kevin McCarthy. They're joined by Eli Wallach, playing pretty much the same character as in The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly, and Brock Peters as a former slave turned acrobat. The long (137-minute) comic western was released at 122 minutes and rated M.

ACES: IRON EAGLE III

(New Line, 1991) D: John Glen S: Kevin Elders P: Ron Samuels

This time Chappy (Louis Gosset Jr.) gets together a group of flying war vets (and one comic relief ghetto kid) in Brownsville, Texas. They fly WWII planes to destroy a cocaine factory in Peru run by a former Nazi (Paul Freeman) and corrupt American soldiers. The cast includes Horst Buchholz from Germany, Sonny Chiba from Japan, and bodybuilder Rachel McLish, who is tied up several times. Also with future U. S. Senator Fred Thompson, Christopher Cazenove, Mitchell Ryan, and Ray Mancini. Glen also directed five James Bond movies.

ACE VENTURA, PET DETECTIVE

(Warner, 1993) D/S: Tom Shadyac S: Jack Bernstein P: James G. Robinson

Jim Carrey is a bumbling detective hired to find the kidnapped Miami Dolphins' dolphin mascot. Incredibly, this PG-13 comedy was a #1 box-office hit and made Carrey a big-bucks star, compared (by the critics who hated him) with Jerry Lewis. With Courtney Cox, Sean Young as a cop, Udu Kier as a mysterious millionaire, rapper Tone Loc, football star Dan Marino, and Rebecca Ferratti. Carrey's next was The Mask. Ace Ventura: When Nature Calls (1995) is the sequel.

THE ACID EATERS

(SW, 1968) D/P: B. Ron Elliot/Byron Mabe S: Carlos Monsoya/Monson

Four middle-class office-worker couples become weekend "bikers" in all-red clothes. They go for a (topless) swim, play strip poker, and "freak out" on (and in) "the White Pyramid." In fantasy segments, a guy has sex with his neighbor and a blonde dances topless while a black guy plays bongos. Comic actor Buck Kartalian dominates things as Arty and also shows up with a pitchfork as the devil, who shows the others how to smoke pot and gives them huge cubes of LSD. The dubbing of this silly adult sex-and-drug comedy is awful, and the motorcycle scenes seem endless, but the flash-forward editing is effective, and the women look fine. David F. Friedman was the cinematographer for this 65-minute feature from his FPS Ventures. The tape is a very good color print.

ACROSS 110th STREET

(Key, 1972) D: Barry Shear S: Luthor Davis P: Fouad Said, Ralph Serpe

Anthony Quinn and Yaphet Kotto are cops after amateurs trying to rip off the Italian mob. Considered bloody, violent, and too depressing at the time it was released, this influential action hit from United Artists is a classic of its kind. Real locations were used for the story, based on a novel by Wally Ferris. Anthony Franciosa is a gangster's son who castrates a man, Richard Ward, Paul Benjamin, Antonio Fargas, and Burt Young costar, and Gloria Hendry made her film debut. The Bobby Womack songs are on the J. J. Johnson soundtrack from UA. Quinn was also an executive producer.

THE ACT

(Vestron, 1982) D/P: Sig Shore S: Robert Lipsy P: David Greene (Bless 'Em All)

Action star Robert Ginty is a lawyer hired by a crooked union leader. With Sarah Langenfield, Eddie Albert, Pat Hingle, Jill St. John, and David Huddleston. Shore is known for producing the Superfly movies. From Film Ventures.

ACTING ON IMPULSE

(Academy, 1993) D: Sam Irvin S: Mark Pittman, Allan Moskowitz P: David Peters

A manic movie scream queen (Linda Fiorentino) wanted for the murder of a producer goes to a hotel during a sales convention where a psycho fan lurks. She seduces a married salesman (C. Thomas Howell) and takes him and a shoe saleswoman (Nancy Allen) bar-hopping. This PG safe-sex comedy is pretty mild and is barely saved by the many guest stars in small roles. With Mary Woronov as a slow-burn desk clerk, Isaac Hayes (also in the director's Guilty as Charged) as a detective, Paul Bartel as a director, Don Most (pretty lame) as a house detective, Adam Ant, Zelda Rubenstein, Judith Hoag, Tom Wright, Cassandra Peterson (Elvira), and plugs for Femme Fatales magazine. They say Peter Lupus, Kim McGuire, Miles O'Keeffe, Dick Sargent, and Brinke Stevens are in there somewhere too. It premiered on Showtime.

ACTION HEROES OF THE CLIFFHANGER SERIALS

(Goodtimes, 1992)

This is an entertaining introduction to the wonderful world of 30s through 50s serials. After a brief intro, nearly 60 fun (and funny) serial trailers (many from Universal and Columbia) make up this almost 2-hour compilation tape. Some of my favorites here are King of the Rocketmen, The Phantom Empire, The Mysterious Dr. Satan, The Green Hornet, Captain Marvel, The Undersea Kingdom, Flash Gordon, Superman, The Perils of Nyoka, and the Batman serial (as rereleased in the pop-art 60s). Many of the trailers are for lesser-known (and less worthy) serials or for reissues, but I don't care. I wouldn't sit through the complete chapters of some of these unless a death ray were pointed at my head. My only complaint is a few too many lookalike western-serial trailers, but I'm glad I now know what John Wayne and Little Billy looked like in Shadow of the Eagle. It's worth it just to see the trailer for the obscure Scouts to the Rescue, with Indians talking backwards! Recommended.

ACTION JACKSON

(Warner, 1988) D: Craig R. Baxley
S: Robert Reneau P: Joel Silver

After too many Rocky movies, former Oakland Raiders star Carl Weathers enjoyed his first starring role as Action Jackson, a Detroit supercop with a law degree. It's similar to early 70s Jim Brown and Fred Williamson movies. Action's demoted for tearing the arm off the sexual-deviant son of Craig T. Nelson (a gangster industrialist, drug dealer, and wife killer). Vanity, as the drug addict girlfriend, sings "Undress Me." With Sharon Stone (she dies), Robert Davi, Nicholas Worth, Bill Duke, Ed O'Ross, Sonny Landham, and Melissa Prophet. Baxley had been the second unit/stunt director for TV shows like The A Team. Herbie Hancock and Michael Kamen provided the score, and there's a Lorimar soundtrack.

ACTION USA

(Imperial, 1988) D/P: John Stewart
S: David Reskin P: Susan Stewart

Mobsters murder a guy in Texas then go after his girlfriend (Barri Murphy). William Smith is an FBI chief and Ross Hagen (also the associate producer) is Drago, the guest villain. With Cameron Mitchell and Hoke Howell. The ending features comic outtakes.

ACT OF PIRACY

(Warner, 1987) D: John "Bud" Cardos
S: Hal Reed P: Igo Kantner S. Africa

A Nam vet (Gary Busey) and his family battle mercenaries on a yacht. Ray Sharkey overacts again as the gun-runner villain who hijacks them. With Belinda Bauer, Nancy Mulford, and Ken Gampu. The score by Morton Stevens, and his music for The Great White, were released on One World.

ACT OF VENGEANCE

(HBO, 1974) D: Bob Kelljan S: Betty Conklin P: Buzz Feitsham (Rape Squad)

The director of Count Yorga made this AIP exploitation release. Five women team up and learn karate to avenge themselves against rapists, pimps, and abusive men in general. Peter Brown (Foxy Brown) wears an orange leisure suit and a hockey mask and forces his victims to sing "Jingle Bells." With Jo An Harris, Jennifer Lee (one-time wife of Richard Pryor), Lisa Moore, Connie Strickland, Anneka di Lorenzo, Patricia Estrin, Joan McCall, Cheryl Waters, and Ross Elliot. Lada Edmunds Jr. (formerly a frantic dancer on the Hullabaloo show) stars as a karate instructor. Most of the women have nude or topless scenes.

ADAM AND EVE

(SW, 1956) D/S/P: Alberto Gout
Mexico (Adan y Eva)

While other films of the time were banned and condemned by the Catholic Church because of nudity, this Eastmancolor movie was given an "A-3" rating because it was "based on the Bible"! We see lots of real scenes of Earth's beauty while a narrator quotes the Old Testament, then settle into an Eden set for the familiar story, ending with an earthquake. Eve (French one-time Miss Universe Christiane Martel) has long hair (covering vital parts) and Adam (Carlos Baena) wears an easy-to-see flesh-colored G-string. Adam has to teach her to walk, eat, and swim. David F. Friedman (who presents this tape) was one of the distributors. An all-naked premiere was held at a nudist colony, and miniature Bibles were sold at some showings. This was still being screened in the 60s. The Sin of Adam and Eve (Video Dimension, 1967), by Miguel Zacharias, was a remake that Dimension released in the early 70s.

ADAM AND SIX EVES

(1960) D: John Wallis S: Lawrence Donner P: Robert Rico

An hour-long comic color nudie feature about an everyman type named Adam (Randy Brent) prospecting for gold with a donkey in the desert. Six nearly naked Eves are in his oasis mirage. It was filmed in 3-D but released flat in 1962. The names in the credits are pseudonyms.

ADAM LOST HIS APPLE

(SW, 1965) D: Earl Wainright
P: Harry Kerwin

A photographer discovers two shipwrecked women and a man living as nudists. This color release was filmed in Florida and the Bahamas. Gene Berk stars, with Mal Arnold and Bill Rogers.

THE ADDAMS FAMILY

(Worldvision series, 1964–66)

The best thing about the movie The Addams Family is that it prompted the video release of the original TV episodes (2 per tape). There's even a special Voyager laser disc with two episodes plus interviews and a history of the whole program. I was amazed by the outrageous and subversive situation comedy when I was a kid, and it's still great today. Who wouldn't want an eccentric, lovable, understanding, and extremely rich family like this? The entire cast was exceptional, with John Astin and Carolyn Jones as Gomez and Morticia, the only 60s TV couple who seemed to have sex on their minds (24 hours a day). Jackie Coogan as Uncle Fester, Blossom Rock as Grandmama, and Ted Cassidy as Lurch (look for his rare "Do the Lurch" single) were all perfect. Lisa Loring as little Wednesday was a role model for some pretty interesting, now grown-up women, and even the enthusiastic Pugsley (Ken Weatherwax) was pretty cool. Unfortunately, out of the adult cast, only Astin is still alive. Episodes of the TV cartoon series (1973–75) are also on tape from Hanna Barbera.

THE ADDAMS FAMILY

(Paramount, 1991) D: Barry Sonnenfeld S: Larry Wilson, Caroline Thompson P: Scott Rudin

Making the first Addams Family movie turned out to be a capital idea, judging by the box-office receipts, but it couldn't touch the 60s TV series. Angelica Huston is disappointing as a dreamy Morticia, but Raul Julia is pretty good as a swashbuckling Gomez. The makers wanted everybody to know that it was based on Charles Addams' New Yorker cartoons and not the TV series. That was mostly a lie, of course, and also a problem, because the familiar elements from the series that they left out are missed. The plot has Christopher Lloyd as a fake, bungling Uncle Fester, set up to infiltrate and rob the rich family. Christina Ricci is great as little Wednesday. She and Pugsley (Jimmy Workman) put on a school Hamlet production with lots of blood, in a standout scene. Dan Hedeya and Elizabeth Wilson are the villains, and Carel Struycken (the giant from Twin Peaks) is Lurch. Thanks to modern FX, Thing now scurries around wherever it wants (and it's played by magician Christopher Hart). The first-time director was the innovative cinematographer for the Coen brothers' movies, but The Addams Family suffers from some very cheap-looking sets and an out-of-place fantasy-sculpture graveyard that seems left over from Edward Scissorhands. Also with Judith Malina as Granny, Dana Ivey, and Sally Jessy Raphael (as herself). The heavy promotion and tie-ins were inevitable, but M. C. Hammer's irritating end rap theme and tie-in rock video were both too much for me. The Addams Family (rated PG) made $55 million in US/Canada rentals, so a new TV cartoon series appeared, followed by a sequel. David Levey, the creator and executive producer of the TV series (who received no credit or payment for the feature), sued Paramount (with good reason).

The real Addams Family.

ADDAMS FAMILY VALUES

(Paramount 1993) D: Barry Sonnenfeld
S: Paul Rudnick P: Scott Rudin

The same leads return, plus Joan Cusack as a cheerful but evil nanny for the new baby, Pubert. The baby (with a mustache) is there just to start off two plots that could have been two TV episodes. Fester marries the gold-digging nanny, and the kids are sent to summer camp. In comic scenes most unlike anything in the original cartoons, Wednesday ruins a camp play by being "politically correct." With Carol Kane as Grandmama, Peter MacNicol and Christine Baranski as camp counselors, and Peter Graves in a bit part. The set design is by Ken Adam (from the James Bond movies). Rudnick, who wrote the screenplay for this PG-13 release, is also the columnist "Libby Gelman-Waxner" in Premiere magazine. The Atlas soundtrack features remakes of 70s soul hits.

ADDICT: See BORN TO WIN

ADIOS AMIGO

(Vidmark, 1975) D/S/P/A: Fred Williamson

Fred Williamson (directing himself for the first of many times) and Richard Pryor play Big Ben and Sam Spade in a PG-rated comedy/western. They're arrested and put on a chain gang, then team up for adventures. With Thalmus Rasulala and former Tarzan Mike Henry. Pryor's lines were mostly ad-libbed. Pryor hated the results and publicly apologized for being in it, saying he had done it just for the money. Williamson's other westerns (The Legend of Nigger Charley and The Soul of Nigger Charley) were more violent. The music by the Blue Infernal Machine is on a London soundtrack LP. It was made in New Mexico.

ADIOS, SABATA

(United Artists, 1970) D/S: "Frank Kramer"/ Gianfranco Parolini S: Reanato Izzo P: Alberto Grimaldi Italy (Indio Black Sai Chi Ti Dico)

Yul Brynner, dressed in black fringe, is hired to steal some gold from an Austrian commandant in Mexico for the revolution. His thief sidekick is played by Dean Reed (the late American folk singer famous for defecting to the USSR). An Indian acrobat and a guy with a gun in his banjo also help. Released as a sequel to Sabata (by the same director), it's really an unrelated western that has been retitled, with the leading character renamed in the dubbing.

THE ADULT VERSION OF JEKYLL AND HYDE

(SW, 1972) D: Lee Raymond D/P: Byron Mabe, L. Ron Elliot S: Robert Birch P: David F. Friedman

A modern-day doctor, who already cheats on his fiancé and has killed a man, reads the handwritten diary of Dr. Jekyll. He drinks a potion and all of a sudden has a cape, cane, top hat, and limp as he ties up, rapes, and kills women. This color movie combines lots of full nudity and sex with brainless violence. There's an (offscreen) castration and a woman being beaten likes it. The only fun part is borrowed from Dr. Jekyll and Sister Hyde (1971). When the potion is too strong the doc becomes a blond woman, so he can seduce his nurse and fiancée. Rene Bond as the nurse is in several sex scenes. The music is bar-band rock and jazz fusion. It was advertised as being "Excruciating!" Mabe also directed She Freak, Space Thing, and many others. Bond was also in The Jekyll and Hyde Portfolio (1972).

ADVENTURE AT THE CENTER OF THE EARTH

(SW, 1963) D: Alfredo Crevana
S: J. M. Fernando Unsain P: Jesús Sotomayor
Mexico (Aventura al Centro de la Tierra)

Dinosaurs, a cyclops, a winged reptile, a bat creature, and rat-faced monsters are all in this Mexican wonder. It was filmed in real caverns. In Spanish only.

ADVENTURE ISLAND

(Sinister, 1947) D: Peter Stewart S: Maxwell Shane P: William Pine, William Thomas

Rory Calhoun and Rhonda Fleming (with her much-publicized red hair) star in a Cinecolor version of Robert Louis Stevenson's story "Ebb Tide" from Paramount. It's about shipwrecked sailors

ADULTS ONLY

Because of video, thousands of old (mostly pre-porno) "adults-only" movies have been rediscovered by fans and collectors. Nudist-colony movies go back to the 30s, but they became common in the fifties, because as "documentaries" they could legally feature nudity. Eventually, laughable plots were added, and as restrictions changed, a whole industry of adult "nudie" movies flourished (from the late 50s to the early 70s). There were nudie dramas, comedies, musicals, horror movies, westerns, and fairy tales. Many were extemely cheap, were badly acted and directed, and fit into the "so bad it's good" category, but others (especially some of Russ Meyer's) are as good as any major studio features. Some are light in tone and inoffensive and others are as nasty and sick as they could get away with at the time. By the early 90s the first fanzines about these features were published, and more people were watching and even enjoying them. The various pseudonyms used in some credits are still being figured out. Here are the top 10 Adults-Only filmmakers. These people (all American) are worth looking into and have developed cult followings:

1. Russ Meyer
2. Radley Metzger (later aka Henry Paris)
3. Michael and Roberta Findlay
4. Doris Wishman
5. Herschell Gordon Lewis
6. Barry Mahon
7. David F. Friedman (producer)
8. Lee Frost
9. Harry Novak (producer)
10. A. C. Stevens

and a madman (Alan Napier) who rules an island by making the local natives think he's a god. Anybody who disagrees ends up in his snake pit. With Paul Kelly and John Abbott. Only 66 minutes.

ADVENTURE OF THE ACTION HUNTERS

(Vestron, 1982) D/S: Lee Bonner
S: Leif Elsmo P: Mary Holland

In the 50s, Ronald Hunter and Sean Murphy search for hidden money and fight off gangsters (including John Waters regular George Stover). It was filmed in Baltimore and released in 1987 by Troma.

ADVENTURES IN DINOSAUR CITY

(Republic, 1992) D: Brett Thompson S: Willie Baronet, Lisa Morton P: Luigi Cingolani

The kids of a scientist are sucked into a TV screen and land in the Stone Age. They encounter comic cave people and dinos (puppets and people in masks). The John Criswell FX in this PG-rated bore are supposed to be "Animatronics." With Omri Katz, Shawn Hoffman, Irwin Keys, and Tiffanie Poston as the cute, blond teen daughter.

THE ADVENTURES OF BARON MUNCHAUSEN

(RCA/Columbia, 1988) D: Terry Gilliam S: Charles McKeown P: Thomas Shuhly UK/W. Germany

After making the wonderful Time Bandits and the fascinating Brazil, former Monty Python member Gilliam made this epic, PG-rated $52-million, 126-minute fantasy. It ended up losing a lot of money. It's incredible to look at and made with impressive detail, but the endless raging battle with the Turks wore me out, and the best parts will suffer on the small screen. John Neville (Sherlock Holmes in the 1965 A Study in Terror) is the fabled 18th-century adventurer and liar who goes back and forth in time with a ten-year-old girl (Sarah Polley) and has a select group of followers with superpowers. Oliver Reed is great as Vulcan, king of the underworld,with a new ICBM missile. With Eric Idle, Brazil star Jonathan Pryce, Uma Thurman as Venus, Sting, unbilled Robin Williams as the king of the moon, and Jack Purvis (from Time Bandits). The production design is by Dante Ferretti, the 2nd-unit director was horror specialist Michele Soavi, and the music by Michael Kamen is on a Warner soundtrack. It was the second production of Python's Prominent Features (after A Fish Called Wanda). An illustrated screenplay was published. Clips from two earlier versions—Baron Munchausen (Germany, 1943) and The Fabulous Baron Munchausen (Czechoslovakia, 1962)—are included on the Criterion laserdisc version, along with commentary by the director.

THE ADVENTURES OF BRISCO COUNTY JR.

(Fox, 1993) D: Bryan Spencer
S/P: Jeffrey Boam, Carlton Cuse

This was a pilot for a western/fantasy TV series that was like the series The Wild Wild West meets Indiana Jones. Bruce Campbell (star of all the Evil Dead movies) is a university-educated adventurer who becomes involved with a mysterious floating orb. With Billy Drago as the villain, Anne Trenko, John Piper-Fergusen, Julius Carry, Stuart Whitman, John Astin as a scientist, and F. Lee Ermy as the sheriff father who is killed.

THE ADVENTURES OF BUCKAROO BANZAI ACROSS THE EIGHTH DIMENSION

(Vestron, 1984) D/P: W. D. Richter
S: Earl Mac Rauch P: Neil Canton

This PG-rated would-be cult film, intended as the first in a series, has become popular over the years on videotape and deserves a look. At least the filmmakers tried something original instead of the usual rehash of old serials and comic books. Peter Weller stars as a half-Japanese martial artist, neurosurgeon, nuclear physicist, and jet car driver with a New Jersey rock band and groupies. He's world famous and has a group of expert helpers called "the Hong Kong Cavaliers." A complicated plot about preventing WWIII and Lectroids who landed on earth on Halloween in 1939 involves John Lithgow as Dr. Lizardo, a mad scientist possessed by aliens. The cast includes Ellen Barkin, Jeff Goldblum, Lewis Smith, Rosalind Cash, Matt Clark, Clancy Brown, Robert Ito, Dan Hedaya and Vincent Schiavelli. The 103-minute feature was rated PG. Richter had written the remakes of Invasion of the Body Snatchers (1978) and Dracula (1979).

Vincent Schiavelli, John Lithgow, and Christopher Lloyd in The Adventures of Buckaroo Banzai Across the Eighth Dimension

ADVENTURES OF CAPTAIN AFRICA

(Stokey, 1955) D: Spencer Gordon Bennet
S: George H. Plympton P: Sam Katzman

One of the last (and cheapest) serials produced, this 15-chapter Columbia serial featured extensive stock footage from The Phantom (1943), so star John Hart was dressed to resemble Tom Tyler (and his stunt man) from the earlier serial. With June Howard, Rick Vallin, Ben Welden, and a man in a gorilla suit. Good for some laughs.

ADVENTURES OF CAPTAIN MARVEL

(Republic, 1941) D: William Witney, John English
S: Ronald Davidson, Norman S. Hall, Arch B. Heath, Joseph Poland, Sol Shore P: Hiram S. Brown

Most fans consider this 12-chapter serial one of the best ever made. My personal fave is Flash Gordon, but the captain comes close. He had made his Fawcett comic-book debut only a year before this serial was released. In Thailand's "Lost Valley of the Kings," the ancient Shazam shows teen newsboy Billy Batson (Frank Coughlin Jr.) how to become the flying superhero (just say, "Shazam!"). Tom Tyler, who looked just right for the part, stars as the superman with a cape and a lightning bolt on his chest but stunt man Dave Sharpe has more screen time. He fights "the Scorpion" (the voice of Gerard Mohr) back in the LA area. The flying scenes are advanced for the time and unlike some other crime-fighters, Captain Marvel often killed villains by throwing them off cliffs or with machine guns. With Louise Currie and Billy Benedict. A feature version was called The Return of Captain Marvel. The serial was rereleased in 1953 and again in 1966 because of the popularity of the Batman TV series and all the camp hype. Also on laserdisc.

THE ADVENTURES OF CHARLIE CHAN

(IVE, 1956–57)

3 volumes from the syndicated half-hour TV series were released on tape. The show was filmed on location in Europe with the great character actor J. Carroll Naish as Charlie Chan and James Hong as his number 1 son. Many well-known British actors had guest-star roles (Honor Blackman is in Volume 3).

ADVENTURES OF EL FRENETICO AND GO GIRL

(1993) D/S: Pat Bishow S: Jon Sanborne P: Owen Cooper

El Frenerico (Charles Pellegrino), a drunken masked Santo type and the kung-fu fighting Go Girl (Francis Lee) battle the local Krazy Kakes snack food king (Jon Sanborne) when he kidnaps a lady reporter. He has a wax museum hideout, a henchwoman named Hilda, an assistant Gomar, and snacks that turn consumers into zombies. This fun, short film with (on-purpose) bad dubbing reminds me of Shock! Shock! Shock! and has 60s-style instrumental music. Lance Lurie was the art director and created the monster-head bugs. Bishow also made Soul Tangler.

THE ADVENTURES OF FORD FAIRLANE

(Fox, 1990) D: Renny Harlin S: Daniel Waters, James Cappe, David Arnott P: Joel Silver, Steve Perry

Controversial standup insult comic Andrew Dice Clay made his star debut as a rock detective in LA in this awkward comedy adventure. Clay's overhyped career stalled the year this was released to mass indifference. Priscilla Presley and Wayne Newton (as an evil rock manager) make fun of their old images again, but Lauren Holly and Maddie Corman are the real costars. With Robert (Freddy Krueger) Englund as a killer with a terrible British accent, Ed O'Neill, former Prince associates Sheila E. and Morris Day, Gilbert Gottfried, Vince Neil, Tone Loc, Delia Sheppard, MTV's Kurt Loder (as himself), and a cliffhanger ending on the top and sides of the Capitol Records building. The music is by Yello. Harlin made Die Hard II the same year and Clay returned in Dice Rules.

ADVENTURES OF FU MANCHU

(1956)

Two episodes of the syndicated series starring Glen Gordon as Sax Rohmer's villain and Lester Stevens as Sir Nayland Smith are available. With sexy Laurette Luez (from Prehistoric Women) as Lia. The directors were William Witney and Franklin Adreon, both veterans of many serials.

THE ADVENTURES OF HERCULES

(MGM, 1983) D/S: "Lewis Coates"/Luigi Cozzi
P: Alfred Pecoriello Italy (Hercules II)

Lou Ferrigno returns as the musclebound hero and tries to stop the moon from crashing into earth. This bizarre, PG-rated kids' film uses lots of footage from the first Cozzi/Ferrigno Hercules (also from Cannon) and includes scenes copied from Forbidden Planet, Clash of the Titans, the original King Kong, and others. Cartoon special effects look like they were lifted from a video game. Ferrigno (whose voice was dubbed this time) made a better "Incredible Hulk." With Milly Carlucci and William Berger. The score is by Pino Donaggio.

THE ADVENTURES OF LUCKY PIERRE

(World's Sleaziest, 1961) D/C: Herschell Gordon Lewis P: David F. Friedman

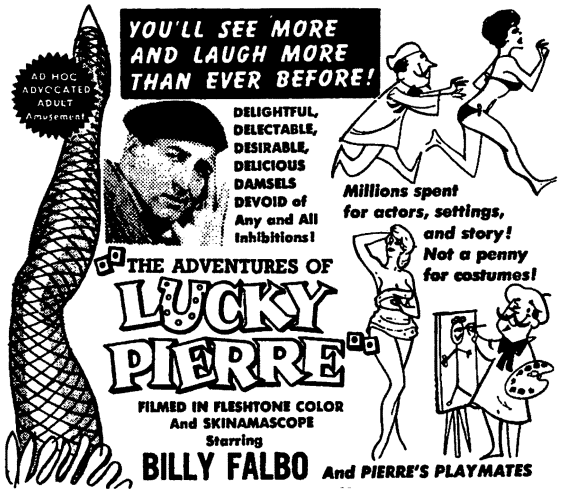
Although it was released two years after Russ Meyer's The Immoral Mr. Teas, this similar, hour-long, shot-in-Chicago, (!) full-color comic nudie hit is more fun. The announcer is dragged away by hospital attendants after he announces that the film we're about to see has "a cast of thousands" and is "a pinnacle of achievement." Billy Falbo (a burlesque comic) sees naked women everywhere, in a series of short, silent skits. His shrink is naked; then an artist paints three naked models in the woods. A woman bathes while plumbers (Falbo and William Kerwin) try to work, a "bird-watcher" looks at sunbathers, and women pose in a photo studio. The best and longest part takes place at a drive-in showing "I Was a Teenage Nudist and 65 cartoons!" In a (partially b/w) short, Picnic at the Playground, happy naked women in high heels climb on the jungle gym, go down the slide, swing on the swings, and spin on a merry-go-round. The all-female drive-in staff is naked too in this surreal, sexy segment. The color is excellent. Sound by producer Friedman. Released on tape with a Joe Bob Briggs intro.



THE ADVENTURES OF ROBINSON CRUSOE

(1952) D/S: Luis Buñuel S: Philip Roll
P: Oscar Dancigers, Henry Ehrlich Mexico

This Pathécolor version of the Daniel Defoe novel stars Dan O'Herlihy, who is alone on screen for two-thirds of the 90-minute running time. In this version he doubts his Christian faith and encounters cannibals. It was a surprising hit for Buñuel during his long Mexican period. O'Herlihy was nominated for an Oscar after the film's release in America by U. A. in 1954. Jaime Fernández is Friday.

ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: See SHERLOCK HOLMES

ADVENTURES OF SIR GALAHAD

(Stokey, 1949) D: Spencer G. Bennet S: George Plympton, Lewis Clay, David Mathews P: Sam Katzman

Characters can disappear in this 15-chapter Columbia serial starring George Reeves as the knight in armor busy looking for the sword of Excalibur. Charles King is a comic villain, and William Fawcett plays Merlin. In one scene "the Black Knight" is tripled. Reeves became Superman for the first time two years later.

ADVENTURES OF SMILIN' JACK

(VCI, 1943) D: Ray Taylor, Lewis D. Collins S: Morgan B. Cox

This 13-chapter Universal serial is based on a comic strip about an American flyer (Tom Brown) working for the Chinese army. The post–Pearl Harbor plot deals with Axis spies and takes place in Hawaii, Shanghai, and Hong Kong. With Marjorie Lord, Rose Hobart as the evil Fräulein von Treufel, Turhan Bey as the leader of "the Black Samurai," Keye Luke, Philip Ahn, and Sidney Toler.

ADVENTURES OF SUPERMAN

(Warner, 1948) D: Spencer Gordon Bennet, Thomas Carr S: Arthur Hoerl, Lewis Clay, Royal Cole P: Sam Katzman (Superman; Superman: The Serial)

Kirk Alyn stars in the first 15-chapter Columbia Superman serial. Noel Neill (who later was in the TV series) is Lois Lane, Tommy Bond is Jimmy Olsen, and Pierre Watkin is Perry White. The whole story is told, from the beginning on Krypton, and "the Man of Steel" eventually grows up and fights the blond "Spider Lady" (Carol Foreman), who is after "the reducer ray" and has an electric web. The strangest and most fun parts of this serial are the animated flying sequences. Alyn jumps up and becomes a cartoon streaking through the air. For some reason, Warner removed the opening chapter credits for the 2-volume video release, ruining it for collectors. Atom Man vs. Superman was the serial sequel. Also look for the earlier and better Dave Fleischer/Paramount Superman cartoons on tape compilations.

ADVENTURES OF SUPERMAN (TV series): See TV'S GREATEST ADVENTURES OF SUPERMAN

ADVENTURES OF TARZAN

(Video Yesteryear, 1921) D/S: Robert F. Hill S: Lillian Valentine

This 15-chapter silent serial (with a musical score) stars big Elmo Lincoln (real name Otto Elmo Linkenhelt, from Arkansas) with a long-hair wig. He had been the first screen Tarzan in Tarzan and the Apes (1917) and The Romance of Tarzan (1918) and had already starred in three other serials. The story was partially based on Edgar Rice Burroughs' "Tarzan and the Jewels of Opar" and featured the jealous queen of Opar and an evil Bolshevik. With 16-year-old Louise Lorraine as Jane, Numa the lion, Tantor the elephant, and a man in a bizarre chimp suit. The first Tarzan serial, a big hit in 1921 (ten years before Johnny Weissmuller), was rereleased in a shorter version with sound effects in 1928 and found a new life playing "underground" midnight shows in the late 60s. Now over 70 years old, it's a bit of history on video.

ADVENTURES OF THE FLYING CADETS

(Stokey, 1942) D: Ray Taylor, Lewis D. Collins S: Morgan B. Cox, George Plympton, Paul Huston P: Henry Macrae

A 12-chapter Universal serial with Johnny Downs, Bobby Jordan, and Billy Halop (from the East Side Kids movie series) as young flying cadets. They have to clear their names of a murder charge and fight "the Black Hangman," who plans to sell helium to the Nazis, and assorted WWII spies. With Jennifer Holt.

THE ADVENTURES OF TOPPER

(USA, 1953–55)

3 episodes of the CBS-TV series are on tape. Leo G. Carroll played the befuddled Cosmo Topper haunted by Marian and George Kirby, a friendly ghost couple (Anne Jeffreys and Robert Sterling), and their Saint Bernard, Neil. The show was based on the same Thorne Smith novel as the 1937, 1939, and 1941 movies produced by Hal Roach. The features are much better, of course, but Topper was pretty good for early-50s TV.

AELITA, QUEEN OF MARS

(Kino, 1924) D: Yakov Protazanov S: Fyodor Otsep, Alexei Faiko USSR (Revolt of the Robots; Aelita)

This historic silent film, a science-fiction comedy based on a novel by Alexei Tolstoy, features a futuristic, "constructivist" version of Mars. A scientist shoots his wife and flees to Mars with a soldier and a detective. He become involved with Queen Aelita, and the soldier leads a revolution. Aelita played at international film festivals in 1993. The 113-minute video has a piano score and is a beautiful print. The original version ran two hours.

AENIGMA

(VSOM, 1986) D/S: Lucio Fulci S: Glorio Mariuzzo P: Ettore Spagnolo Italy/Yugoslavia

In a plot similar to Patrick, a vengeful spirit enters a girl in coma (Lara Naszinski), and students at a Boston school for girls begin to die. With Jared Martin, Sabrina Siani, and a hard-to-believe death-by-snail scene.

AERODROME

(1983) D: Giles Foster S: Robin Chapman P: Kenith Trodd UK

In a futuristic England, the fascist leaders build a mysterious aerodrome. This BBC TV production, based on Rex Warner's 1941 novel, is similar in some ways to the film Things to Come (1936). With Peter Firth, Richard Johnson, and Jill Bennett.

AFRAID OF THE DARK

(New Line, 1991) D/S: Mark Peploe S: Frederick Seidel P: Simon Bosanquet UK/France

A kid (Ben Keyworth) in West London whose best friend is a dog wanders around, listens, peers, and spies with his telescope. He comes to suspect several local men (including a nudie photographer) of being the psycho who kills blind women. This was the first feature directed by Bertolucci's screenwriter (and brother-in-law) and has surprising reality shifts that might fascinate or infuriate you. It also shows the strong influence of Hitchcock and Michael Powell. With James Fox as the boy's cop dad and Fanny Ardant as his blind mom.

AFRICA BLOOD AND GUTS

(Shockwave, 1966) D/S/E: Gualtiero Jacopetti, Franco Prosperi P: Angelo Rizzoli Italy (Africa Addio)

The original 138-minute (120 in the US) documentary by the makers of Mondo Cane is a very stark and serious look at revolution in Africa in the 60s and the results of colonialism. In 1970 it was rereleased by Jerry Gross' Cinemation with a new, stronger title and cut down to only 83 minutes. Most of the social commentary and historical background was removed, along with some of the stronger scenes. It's this version that became a notorious exploitation-circuit grossout hit and has been available on tape. Most viewers remember the circumcision rite. There was even an Africa Addio soundtrack on UA.

AFRICA EXPRESS

(1975) D: Michelle Lupo S: Mario Amendola, Bruno Corbucci Italy/W. Germany

In the first of several films featuring Ursula Andress and Jack Palance, she's a secret agent and he's an American businessman. With Biba the chimp and Giulino Gemma. They all returned in Safari Express (1976). Americans know Ursula better from Slave of the Cannibal God (1977). She was taking her clothes off in all her films around that time.

AFRICAN RAGE

(MPI, 1976) D: Peter Collinson P: Alan Girney (Fatal Assassin; The Long Shot; Portrait of an Assassin)

Simon Sabela is a tribal leader under the care of a hospital where Anthony Quinn works. With John Phillip Law as a hit man and Ken Gampu.

AFRICAN SAFARI

(1962) D/S/P: Ronald E. Shanin

This G-rated documentary was released in 1969. It features jungle animals, an erupting volcano, and "the Mountains of the Moon." From Crown International.

AFRICA SPEAKS

(Sinister, 1930) D: Walter Futter

The adventures of real-life explorer Paul Hoefler among the Wassara and Ubangi tribes of the Congo are narrated by Lowell Thomas. Thomas also narrated The Blonde Captive (1932) and Mussolini Speaks (1933) for Columbia. If this documentary looks at all familiar, it's because the Monogram studios later used extensive footage from it for all of their cheap Bomba the Jungle Boy movies, made from 1949 to 1955.

AFTER DARK, MY SWEET

(IVE, 1990) D/S: James Foley S/P: Robert Redlin P: Ric Kidney

Jason Patric is Kid Collie, an unshaven punch-drunk ex-boxer (recently escaped from a mental hospital) who knows a lot more than people think. He becomes the handyman and sometime lover of a conniving widow (Rachel Ward) in a desert town and also narrates this kidnapping-gone-wrong tale. Bruce Dern is perfect as the weasel ex-cop con man Uncle Bud. With George Dickerson and Jeanie Moore. It's based on a Jim Thompson novel and uses much of the original dialogue. Released the same year as two other Thompson adaptations, The Grifters and The Kill-Off.

AFTER HOURS

(Warner, 1985) D: Martin Scorsese S: Joseph Minion P: Amy Robinson, Griffin Dunne

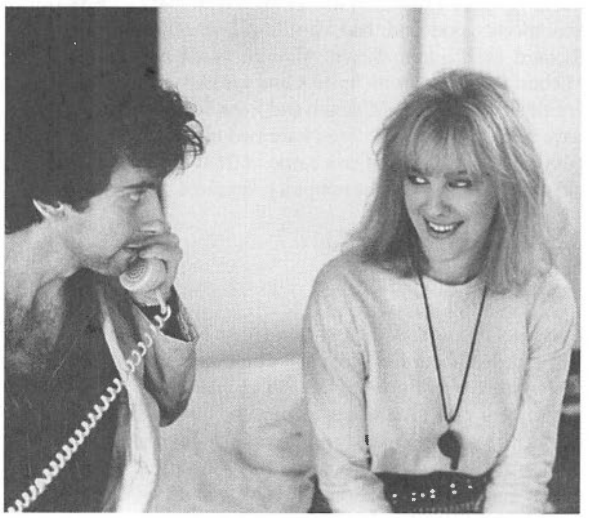
This was Scorsese's "little" project after the commercial failure of The King of Comedy (1983). Griffin Dunne (who coproduced) stars as a Manhattan computer operator trapped without any money in Soho at night. The comic nightmare features a lot of interesting, troubled women and a surprising look at homophobia. It looks great, thanks to the cinematography by Michael Ballhaus (a Fassbinder regular) and includes several nods to Roger Corman's films (especially A Bucket of Blood). After Hours was voted best film at Cannes in 1986, but a lot of people seem to hate it, for some reason. I like it a lot. With Rosanna Arquette, Verna Bloom, Linda Fiorentino, Teri Garr, Catherine O'Hara, John Heard, Cheech and Chong, Dick Miller, Will Patton, Bronson Pinchot, and Rockets Redglare. Watch for the director in a punk-club scene.



Griffin Dunne and Catherine O'Hara in Martin Scorsese's After Hours.

AFTERMATH

(Prism, 1978) D/S/P/A: Steve Barkett

Post-nuke gang leader Sid Haig fights the director/star and his real-life son as astronauts. With appearances by Forrest J. Ackerman as the curator of the last museum on Earth, Eric Caidin (as a corpse), Jim Danforth, and the voice of Dick Miller. The castle home of coproducer Ted V. Mikels was used as a location. This very low-budget movie took a long time to get released. The Barketts returned with Empire of the Dark (1991).

AFTER MIDNIGHT

(CBS/Fox, 1989) D/S/P: Jim and Ken Wheat P: Richard Arlook, Peter Green

Three supposedly true horror tales are told by students of a crazed professor (Ramy Zada) who teaches a "Psychology of Fear" course. It's all inspired by the classic Dead of Night and includes a similar dream/reality cycle ending. The last and best story is about a mysterious phone caller, and there are a few excellent and surprising FX like an animated skeleton and a very convincing decapitated head. With Julian McWhirter, Marge Helgenberger, Pamela Segall, and Marc McClure. An unexpected MGM release by the makers of Ewoks: The Battle for Endor.

AFTER SCHOOL

(1989) D/P: William Olson S/P: Hugh Parks S: John Linde, Rod McBrien, Joe Tankersley (Before God; Return to Eden)

A young priest (Sam Bottoms) debates an ex-priest (Robert Lansing) about the existence of God on The Dick Cavett Show and falls in love with Renee Coleman as September Lane. Coleman has a nude scene, and other women (including Page Hannah and Sherrie Rose) are topless in flashbacks showing the primitive world.

AFTERSHOCK

(Paramount, 1989) D: Frank Harris S: Michael Standing P: Roy McAree

An alien (Elizabeth Kaitan) visits during WWIII, learns to speak English by absorbing a dictionary, and meets good and bad earthlings. One-eyed Richard Lynch, John Saxon, Mathias Hues, and Michael Berryman (with lipstick and eye makeup) are villains, and Chris Mitchum and Russ Tamblyn have roles, but the real costars are two unknown guys who have a martial arts battle in front of the old mill where most of the nonplot takes place.

AFTER THE BALL WAS OVER

(SW, 1969)

A paranoid New York City woman (Alice Noland) tells a shrink about her "dreams." Their conversation is heard over the silent footage. In what turns out to be a plot to take her money, the husband sets her up to swap mates and takes nude photos of her after injecting her with drugs. Monster masks and makeup are seen during the drug sequence, and a dead body emerges from a tub as in Diabolique. The obscure b/w feature is just over an hour long and features nudity, some sex, and interesting music that sounds like Devo. It has no production credits.

AFTER THE FALL OF NEW YORK

(Vestron, 1984) D/S: "Martin Dolman"/ Sergio Martino S: Julian Berry, Gabriel Rossini P: Luciano Martino Italy/France (2019: Dopo la Caduta di New York)

In one of the more violent Italian Mad Max–inspired movies, Michael Sopkiw as Parsifal is sent to Manhattan to rescue the only fertile woman left on earth so that the rat infested post-WWIII world can be repopulated (in New Jersey!). With Edmund Purdom as the president, George Eastman as Big Ape, rebels in the subway, midgets, torture, mutilation, and rape. It was originally rated X, then was cut for an R.

L'AGE D'OR

(Scorched Earth, 1930) D/S/P/E: Louis Buñuel S: Salvadore Dali P: The Vicomte de Noailles France

A man throws a giraffe and a cardinal out of the window, the hero kicks a dog and knocks down blind people, a woman sucks the toe of a statue, and bishops turn into skeletons. Made two years after Buñuel and Dali's Un Chien Andalu, this unique, controversial feature ridicules the state, the church, and the military, and uses anarchy, subversion, and nudity. The producer later became a devout Catholic and had the film withdrawn from circulation for years. It was banned for decades in many countries anyway. Only 63 minutes long, it has a classical music score.

AGENCY

(Vestron, 1979) D: George Kaczender S: Noel Hynde P: Robert Lantos, Stephen J. Roth Canada (Mind Games)

Robert Mitchum runs a major ad agency. He puts subliminal messages into TV commercials to brainwash the population so that he can easily enter politics. With Lee Majors and Valerie Perrine.

THE AGE OF INSECTS

(CD, 1990) D/P: Eric Maranno S: Andy Rees

A wealthy lingerie manufacturer pays to have his wayward punk son rehabilitated by a New York City (mad) doctor conducting hormone experiments. The doctor's East Indian assistant (Lisa Zane) falls for the young man while helping with his "rebirth," caused by rubbing on insect enzymes. Age features lots of impressive closeups of real insects, experimental video techniques, good hypnotic original music, and some good laughs. When Lance awakes after the experiments a wonderful special effect makes his every move subject to LSD-type trails while everything else appears normal. If only this independent 8mm feature didn't have the endless irritating narration and so much overbearing dialogue it could almost pass as a classic comic/science-fiction/drug movie. Zane went on to costar in Bad Influence, Freddy's Dead and others. With Jack Ramey and Dallas Munroe.

AGUIRRE, THE WRATH OF GOD

(New Yorker, 1972) D/S/P: Werner Herzog W. Germany/Mexico/Peru (Aguirre, der Zorn Gottes)

Herzog's magnificent, hypnotic look at the 16th-century conquistadors was shot on location in the Amazon jungle. It was the international hit that made him and his star, the late Klaus Kinski, famous. Pizarro's men are after the fabled "Seven Cities of Gold," but Kinski, as Don Lope de Aguirre, doesn't even appear until near the end. Characters argue, fight, and kill each other, then starve and hallucinate, while Indians pick them off with arrows. The image of the defeated, mad Aguirre, with his dead daughter on an out-of-control raft covered with monkeys is unforgettable. With Helena Rojo and Ruy Guerra. Herzog also directed Kinski in Nosferatu and three other features. Aguirre was shot in German- and American International Pictures was the most important company in the world of Psychotronic movies. It lasted from 1954, when it was founded as American Releasing Company (by Sam Arkoff and the late James Nicholson) until 1980, when it became Filmways (later Orion). Nearly every feature that AIP and Filmways produced and/or released theatrically is included in this and the previous Psychotronic book. AIP also purchased many foreign features and released them directly to American television. Over the years, some of them have become as well known as the theatrical releases. Fast And Furious (McFarland, 1984), was the first book about the studio. Arkoff later formed a new AIP (the A is for Arkoff), but nothing much came of it. The video company called AIP (the A is for Action) was formed in the 80s and has nothing to do with the original company.

AIP

English-language versions (as Nosferatu was). The excellent soundtrack is by Popul Voh. Burden of Dreams (1982) is about the making of the film (see entry).

A HAUNTING WE WILL GO

(1942) D: Alfred L. Werker S: Lou Breslow P: Sol M. Wurtzel

Nobody likes Laurel and Hardy's 40s features much, and with good reason, but this one features encounters with magicians, gangsters, coffins, and (fake) ghosts. With magicians Blackstone and Dante, plus Sheila Ryan, Willie Best and Elisha Cook Jr .The Fox feature is 69 minutes long.

AIP: FAST AND FURIOUS

(Trailers On Tape, 1985)

AIP was known for knowing how to sell a picture, so naturally their coming-attractions trailers were pretty great. This tape offers 33 trailers in 59 minutes. They range from the ultracheap Phantom from 20,000 Leagues (1955) to the big budget Meteor (1979), one of the movies that sank the company. They all are fun but unfortunately aren't programmed in any sensible way. You do get 5 Beach Party trailers and 6 for Roger Corman's movies. Some of my favorites are for Corman's A Bucket of Blood (1959), Blood Bath (1966), The Brain That Wouldn't Die (1959), Edgar G. Ulmer's The Amazing Transparent Man (1960), and Squirm (1976), with an Ernie (Ghoulardi) Anderson voice-over. And look for AIP: The Cool and the Crazy (1986).

AIRHAWK

(Video City, 1984) D/S/P: Don Bellisario

This is the pilot for Airwolf, a TV series that copied the movie Blue Thunder and was trash/action TV at its dumbest. Jan-Michael Vincent is the Nam-vet hero, a helicopter pilot. He and Ernest Borgnine work for Alex Cord and use the world's most sophisticated helicopter. An evil doctor (David Hemmings) steals another helicopter, and an agent (Belinda Bauer) poses as a belly dancer to infiltrate his operation. While making the series Vincent was going through a serious coke and alcohol binge. He emerged the burned-out direct-to-video exploitation star he is today.

AIRHEADS

(Fox, 1994) D: Michael Lehmann S: Rich Wilkes P: Robert Simmonds, Mark Burg, Michael Richards

A struggling heavy-metal band, the Lone Rangers, take over a radio station and take hostages in an attempt to get airplay. Steve Buscemi, Brendan Fraser, and Adam Sandler are the inept band members. With Joe Mantegna as a DJ, Michael McKean as a program director, Chris Farley and Ernie Hudson as cops, Amy Locane, Michael Richards, Judd Nelson, Nina Siemaszko, Harold Ramis and Kurt Loder. Rated PG-13. Lehmann also directed Heathers. With songs by the Ramones, Motorhead (Lemmy also appears), and Skid Row.

AIRPLANE II: THE SEQUEL

(Paramount, 1982) D/S: Ken Finkleman P: Howard W. Koch

*Airplane! (*1980) was a hilarious hit spoofing the Airport series (and the 1957 Dana Andrews movie Zero Hour). This really bad sequel about a space shuttle is not by the makers of the original. It even used old music from Battlestar: Galactica. The only possible reason to see it is for the guest stars: William Shatner, Sonny Bono, Raymond Burr, Chuck Connors, Rip Torn, John Vernon, Laurene Landon, Jack Jones, Richard Jaeckel, Sandahl Bergman, Hervé Villechaize, Kitten Natividad, and Chad Everett. Robert Hays, Julie Hagerty, Lloyd Bridges, Peter Graves, and the late Stephen Stucker all returned from the original.

AKIRA

(Orion, 1989) D/S/P: Katsuhiro Otomo S: Izo Hashimoto Japan

This was the best known Japanese animated feature in America at the time of its release. The impressive science fiction adventure takes place in the post-nuke 21st century and is based on Otomo's graphic novel. It features biker gangs and futuristic fascists. Otomo also directed the live action World Apartment Horror. Orion also released other popular Japanese animated movies including Vampire Hunter D. Voyager released the laserdisc version (with audiotracks in Japanese and English).

AKIRA KUROSAWA'S DREAMS

(Warner, 1989) D/S/E: Akira Kurosawa P: Hisao Kurosawa, Mike Y. Inoue Japan

Dreams was the 28th feature by the 79-year-old director Akira Kurosawa. After the classic epics Kagemusha (1980), and Ran (1985), it was a very personal project that disappointed some viewers. Eight segments (in 119 minutes) include Akira Terao as "I," an observer. Some segments are beautiful and haunting, and several are based on familiar Asian ghost stories. The effects of war are seen when zombie warriors return, and a post-nuke segment has mutant plants and people. All of the master director's films after the 60s had foreign backing. This was "a Steven Spielberg presentation" and included some ILM FX (from George Lucas' company). Martin Scorsese even plays Van Gogh, painting frantically in a field. A note to Godzilla fans: the creative consultant was Ishiro Honda. Many thought this would be Kurosawa's swan song, but he returned with Rhapsody in August only a year later.

"I" (Akira Terao) meets a demon after a nuclear apocalypse in Akira Kurosawa's Dreams.

ALABAMA'S GHOST

(IVE, 1972) D/S/P: Frederic Hobbs

A black man (Christopher Brooks) discovers the belongings of magician "Carter The Great" in a secret catacomb under the club where he sweeps up. He tries on the costumes and soon becomes "Alabama, King of the Cosmos," a master magician who tours with a rock group. The very theatrical Brooks (who was "Jesus" in The Mack) plays Alabama with a deep, hearty laugh, looking like Screamin' Jay Hawkins. The movie is filled with actual, historical stage-magic props (especially a spirit cabinet) and old magic-show posters. It also features hash smoking, hippie dancing girls, a man playing a woman, voodoo ceremonies, a vampire woman, and a ghost with his heart on the outside. The theme is by the Turk Murphy (Dixieland) Jazz Band, who appear, as do the Loading Zone (also in Roseland). The tape has the unnecessary Elvira hosting. Who is Hobbs, and how could he have escaped attention for so long?!

ALADDIN

(Media, 1985) D: Sergio Corbucci S: Mario Amendola P: Ugo Yucci Italy (Super Fantagenio)

A teen named Al Hadden finds a magic lamp. Bud Spencer is the genie. The Cannon feature was filmed in Miami and costars Janet Agren as the boy's mother. Spencer (real name Carlo Pedersoli), a big, bearded actor, is a major star in Europe and was a frequent costar with Terence Hill in comedy westerns.

ALADDIN AND HIS LAMP

(1952) D: Lew Landers S: Howard Dimsdale, Millard Kaufman P: Walter Wanger

A genie (Charles Horvath) can change his shape. John Sands stars, with Patricia Medina as Jasmine, Noreen Nash, and John Dehner. The film is only about an hour long. Landers directed at least seven features released in 1952.

ALADDIN AND HIS MAGIC LAMP

(United, 1967) D: B. Rytsarev S: V. Vitkovich, G. Yagdfeld USSR

This live-action color and widescreen Arabian fantasy movie was filmed in "Storybook Color!" Some of the American video copies include new wraparound scenes produced by Jeffrey C. Hogue. Also look for Aladdin and his Wonderful Lamp (Fox, 1985), a 52-minute Faerie Tale Theatre presentation directed by Tim Burton.

ALAKAZAM THE GREAT

(1960) D: Lee Kresel, Teiji Yabushita, Daisaku Shirakawa D/S: Osamu Tezuka, Lou Rusoff Japan (Saiyu-ki)

AIP released this Toei Studios feature-length cartoon fantasy about a magical singing monkey and Merlin the magician. It's based on a Chinese legend and was directed by the creator of Astroboy. They used Frankie Avalon, singer Dodie Stevens ("Pink Shoe Laces"), Jonathan Winters, Arnold Stang, and Sterling Holloway for the voices and added new Les Baxter music (released on Veejay). A marketing bonanza of licensed dolls, puzzles, puppets, and rings was planned. The fact that Alakazam was not a hit put a stop to plans for a series of AIP animated coproductions.

ALBINO

(Media, 1975) D/P: Jurgen Goslar S: Scot Finch Rhodesia/W. Germany/UK/S. Africa (Whispering Death; Night of the Askari)

An ex-cop (James Faulkner) trails an albino terrorist, in a bloody movie about race problems. Christopher Lee is a police commissioner who pronounces the word "albeeno" and Trevor Howard (who was also in Slavers, by the same director) plays a corrupt plantation owner whose daughter (Sybil Danning with a wig) is raped and scalped by the albino and his followers. With Horst Frank (star of tbe 1959 film The Head).

AL CAPONE

(Fox, 1959) D: Richard Wilson S: Marvin Wald, Harry Greenberg P: John H. Burroughs

Rod Steiger is Capone in one of the best of the late-50s and early-60s gangster bios. Fay Spain costars with Martin Balsam, James Gregory, and Nehemiah Persoff. The director had started his career working with Orson Welles.

THE ALCHEMIST

(Ace, 1980) D: "James Amante"/Charles Band S: Alan J. Adler P: Lawrence Applebaum

A 19th-century magician puts a curse on a man (Robert Ginty) making him ageless. In 1955 North Carolina (it was filmed in California) he's still young, with a 90-year-old daughter, and a waitress (Lucinda Dooling) is the reincarnation of his wife. The Alchemist was over five years old before it was released. Watch the rubber demons from Hell and see why. The Richard Band soundtrack was released by Varese Sarabande and included his music for Zone Troopers.

ALEXANDER: THE OTHER SIDE OF DAWN

(American, 1977) D: John Erman S: Walter Dallenbach P: Wilford Lloyd Baumes

The NBC-TV sequel to the famous Dawn: Portrait of a Teenage Runaway (1976) stars Leigh J. McCloskey as a Hollywood street hustler. He wants to marry a teen hooker (Eve Plumb) but becomes involved with a gay football pro. With Earl Holliman, Juliet Mills, Jean Hagen, and Francis Faye. McCloskey, who also appeared in the earlier highly rated, then-controversial teen-exploitation TV movie, later showed up in Argento's Inferno and nonsense like Fraternity Vacation and Hamburger: The Motion Picture.

ALEX IN WONDERLAND

(1970) D/S/A: Paul Mazursky S/P: Larry Tucker

Mazursky had been an actor who helped develop the TV series The Monkees. After he directed his first feature, the hit Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice, MGM let him make this self-indulgent drug fantasy about a director (Donald Sutherland) who agonizes about what his next film should be, has fantasies about Fellini and his films, and takes LSD for inspiration. Fellini himself appears, and some Nino Rota music is used. With Ellen Burstyn, Michael Lerner, Jeanne Moreau (as herself), Richard Geary, and dwarf Angelo Rossitto (!) as Fellini number one. Laszlo Kovacs was the cinematographer. From MGM. Mazursky returned to the autobiographical theme with The Pickle (1993).

ALFRED HITCHCOCK TRAILERS

(Trailers on Tape, 1985)

Twenty Hitchcock movie trailers from Rebecca (1940) to Topaz (1969) are on this tape in chronological order. The best are the ones featuring Hitchcock himself: Psycho (the famous long tour of the set), The Birds (a great lecture about the history of the way people treat birds), and Marnie (where Hitch introduces each character in his new "sex mystery"). Some earlier ones are narrated by the stars like Joan Fontaine (Suspicion), Robert Cummings (Saboteur), and, best of all, James Stewart (Rope). This tape includes Hitchcock's cameo appearance in Spellbound, Ingrid Bergman finding a shrunken head in the seldom-screened Under Capricorn, and Jerry Mathers in a space suit discovering a body in The Trouble with Harry. Sometimes the rerelease trailers are better than the originals, but the one for Rear Window (rereleased after Psycho) is disappointing and silly.

ALFRED HITCHCOCK PRESENTS

(MCA series) D: Alfred Hitchcock

Volume 1 (78 minutes long) from the long-running TV program was released in 1986, just after the revived Hitchcock TV series and consists of 3 episodes directed by the host: "The Case of Mr. Pelham" (1955) with Tom Ewell, the famous "Lamb to the Slaughter" (1958) with Barbara Bel Geddes, and "Banquo's Chair" (1959) with John Williams, made around the same time as Psycho. This tape is a valuable compilation and a great way to see what the master of suspense was doing on the small screen during one of his most creative periods.

ALFRED HITCHCOCK PRESENTS

(NBC, 1985) D/S: Joel Oliansky, Steve De Jarnatt, Randa Haines, Fred Walton

Four stories remade from the original series comprised the pilot for a new NBC series, introduced by a long dead and colorized (!) Alfred Hitchcock. I think it was sacrilege too, but it is interesting to see how these tales were modernized and the casting was good. In De Jarnatt's segment, "Man from the South," John Huston (who also narrates the whole film) stars with Steven Bauer, Kim Novak, and Melanie Griffith (plus her mother, Tippi Hedren, as a waitress). Ned Beatty, Lee Ving, Annette O'Toole, and Bruce Davidson are in the other stories. The series began in 1985 and these four were later shown separately in the revised series when it moved to the USA network (1987–89).

ALIAS THE CHAMP

(1949) D: George Blair S: Albert Demond P: Steven Auer

Gorgeous George, a wrestler who was famous at the time, thanks to TV, stars in this 60-minute feature. The mob frames him for a murder in the ring. Robert Rockwell is a cop, and Barbara Fuller sings. The other real wrestlers in the cast include Tor Johnson ("the Super Swedish Angel"), Sammy Menacker, and Bomber Kulkovitch, later known as actor Henry Kulky.

ALI BABA AND THE FORTY THIEVES

(MCA, 1944) D: Arthur Lubin S: Edmund L. Hartman P: Paul Mavern

Jon Hall (as ousted hero prince Ali) and Maria Montez, "the Queen of Technicolor," star in a Technicolor Universal fantasy/adventure. Turhan Bey costars as the knife-throwing Jamiel, Kurt Katch is the evil Mongolian Hulagu Khan, and Andy Devine is the comic Abdullah. This is a movie where the thieves are singing good guys and they actually say, "Open, sesame" at the magic cavern. Also with Frank Puglia as Cassim, Ramsey Ames, Angelo Rossitto and Scotty Beckett. Sword of Ali Baba (1965) is a very cheap remake using much of the same footage.

Tor Johnson ("The Super Swedish Angel") in Alias the Champ.

ALI BABA GOES TO TOWN

(1937) D: David Butler S: Harry Tugend, Jack Yellen P: Darryl F. Zanuck

Eddie Cantor goes back in time and rides a flying carpet in this musical comedy. With Tony Martin, Roland Young, June Lang, John Carradine as Ashak and Louise Hovick (Gypsy Rose Lee.)

ALICE

(First Run, 1988) D/S: Jan Svankmajer Switzerland/UK/W. Germany (Neco z Alenky)

Alice in Wonderland is told in a modern setting with horror, surrealistic, and erotic touches by a master Czech animator. A real actress (Kristyna Kohoutova) stars with animated scary creatures, skeleton birds and fish, and raw meat that moves. Also look for the compilation tape Jan Svankmajer: Alchemist of the Surreal (Kino, 1989).

ALICE

(Orion, 1990) D/S: Woody Allen P: Robert Greenhut

This unhappy Alice (Mia Farrow) visits a Chinese herbalist (Keye Luke in his last role), who sends her on a voyage to find herself. She meets the ghost of her first love (Alec Baldwin), has an affair, and becomes invisible, in a PG-13 movie that resembles Fellini's Juliet of the Spirits. Joe Mantegna costars with William Hurt, Judy Davis, Blythe Danner, Cybill Shepherd, Gwen Verdon, Julie Kavner, Bernadette Peters. Also with Patrick O'Neal, James Toback, Bob Babalan and Elle McPherson. Allen's next was Shadows and Fog, also with fantasy elements.

ALICE COOPER: PRIME CUTS

(Polydor, 1991) D: Neal Preston P: Charles Murdock

Here's where 70s punk and heavy-metal rockers and David Bowie got a lot of ideas. Cooper, the king of horror rock (whose real name is Vincent Furnier) talks about being from Detroit, running track with the rest of his great trashy-sounding band, meeting Frank Zappa, the chicken incident, and doing a hologram with Salvador Dali. He says "Dead Babies" was an anti-child-abuse song. Most of the tape, though, is one great live or TV clip after another, including classic early stuff like "Ballad of Dwight Frye" and "Eighteen" and even parts of "Levity Ball," and "Black Ju Ju." Cooper enjoyed 10 top-40 hits during the 70s. He had parts in movies (see index) and tapes of concerts and other videos are available. Look for Alice Cooper: Welcome to My Nightmare (Rhino, 1975). Vincent Price was the host, and it was cowritten by Alan Rudolph and choreographed by David Winters (who later formed AIP video). Lester Bangs once wrote that these guys would be the next Rolling Stones. He was almost right.

ALICE IN ACIDLAND

(SW, 1969) D/P: "John Donne" S: "Gertrude Steen"

A psychiatrist begins narrating the sad tale of Alice Trenton, a nice college student who gets in with the wrong crowd. Alice starts narrating too, and after a while they alternate, explaining the silent b/w footage on the screen. Alice goes to a pool party given by her beautiful, smiling French teacher, Freda. Wearing a polka-dot bikini, Alice smokes her first cigarette ("I felt like a real kid!") and drinks. All of a sudden she and Freda are naked in a bathtub kissing and fondling each other. Later, they hop into a Volkswagen and go to the bathroom of a service station so they can change into hip clothes and smoke a joint. They walk on the Sunset Strip ("She'd now become a wild twilight hippie!") until they find another party. Animal fondles Alice on the floor ("Animal had pushed the right button!") while a sappy song about soft lips plays. The men have normal conservative haircuts and wear black slacks with combs in their back pockets. During sex scenes, they leave their boxer shorts on. The sex scenes are pretty much adults-only. Most of the music is by a jazz trio.

At yet another party, where lots of pot is smoked, an "acid test" is announced and Alice swallows a sugar cube. ("I began to float, my temples were pounding!") The offscreen shrink informs us that Animal has driven Alice's best friend to suicide. The rest of the movie is completely unrelated, full-color, psychedelic footage showing Alice's trip. The music gets wilder, somebody recites some poetry and there's a frantic light-and-strobe show. ("Let me eat the flowers!") Women with painted eyes and paper flowers dance, strip, lie around naked, and pose. ("Take me! Love me!") The dead friend shows up. The last shot is Alice in a straitjacket in a padded cell. ("She's a mental vegetable!") The End.

Alice Cooper on stage in Alice Cooper: Prime Cuts.

ALICE IN WONDERLAND

(MGM, 1933) D: Norman McLeod S: Joseph L. Mankiewicz, William Cameron Menzies P: Louis D. Lighton

Charlotte Henry (from Babes in Toyland) is Alice in an all-star Paramount film that's worth seeing for some bizarre casting. With W. C. Fields as Humpty Dumpty, Cary Grant as the Mock Turtle, Edward Everett Horton as the Mad Hatter, Richard Arlen, Gary Cooper, Jack Oakie, Charlie Ruggles, Sterling Holloway, Edna May Oliver, Lucien Littlefield, Mae Marsh, Louise Fazenda, Leon Erro, and Roscoe Ates. The next two versions of the story were released in 1948 (a British version with puppets) and 1951 (Disney animation).

ALICE IN WONDERLAND

(Edde, 1976) D: Bud Townsend S: B.A. Fredericks P: Bill Osco

The musical/fantasy/sex comedy from the makers of Flesh Gordon (1972) stars Kristine DeBell as a virginal singing librarian who discovers a sexual wonderland with the usual Lewis Carroll characters. The costumes and makeup are terrible and the singing and dancing are irritating, but this was popular in theaters in a cut version. Later it was rereleased with hard-core scenes (some featuring DeBell, also in mainstream movies) restored. The X version (from Caballero) features lesbian, 69, and masturbation scenes. With Larry Gelman, Jason Williams, and porn stars Teri Hall and Bree Anthony. Producer Osco made Mona (1970), "the first porno feature." Alice is by the director of Nightmare in Wax and the father of actress Patrice Townsend (Sitting Ducks).

ALICE IN WONDERLAND

(1985) D: Harry Harris S: Paul Zindel P: Irwin Allen

Little Alice goes to show-biz hell for 4 hours with ridiculous guest stars trashing a classic book. The CBS-TV movie by the late "master of disaster" cost a record $14 million. The appalling cast includes Steve Allen and Jayne Meadows, Scott Baio, Ernest Borgnine, Lloyd and Beau Bridges, Red Buttons, Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca, Carol Channing, Sammy Davis Jr., Patrick Duffy, George Gobel, Eydie Gorme, Merv Griffin, Sherman Hemsley, Ann Jillian, Arte Johnson, Harvey Korman, Steve Lawrence, Karl Malden, Roddy McDowall, Donna Mills, Pat Morita, Robert Morley, Anthony Newley, Louis Nye, Donald O'Connor, Martha Raye. Telly Savalas, John Stamos, Ringo Starr, Sally Struthers, Jack Warden, Jonathan Winters and Shelley Winters.

ALICE'S ADVENTURES IN WONDERLAND

(1972) D/S: William Sterling P: Derek Horne UK

Fiona Fullerton (later in A View to a Kill) stars in a musical version of the famous story, with Michael Crawford as the White Rabbit, Peter Sellers as the March Hare, Ralph Richardson as the caterpillar, Michael Hordern, Spike Milligan, Flora Robson, Dudley Moore, and other famous guest stars. The John Barry soundtrack was released by Warner.

ALICE THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

(1966) D: Alan Hadley

This curiosity item is another example of how a classic children's tale is turned into a celebrity employment project. The NBC-TV special features Ricardo Montalban, Nanette Fabray, Agnes Moorehead, Jack Palance, Robert Coote, Jimmy Durante, Richard Denning, and the Smothers Brothers. RCA even released a soundtrack.

ALIENATOR

(Prism, 1989) D: Fred Olen Ray
S: Paul Garson P/A: Jeffrey C. Hogue

A female terminator (bodybuilder Teagan) is sent by a space warden (Jan-Michael Vincent) to go after an alien killer (Ross Hagen) who has escaped from a prison ship. Teagan looks real silly with her teased blond hair and scrap-metal bra. With John Phillip Law, P.J. Soles, Leo V. Gordon, Robert Clarke, Fox Harris, Robert Quarry, Donna Wildsmith, Jay Richardson, and Hoke Howell. Ray says it's his version of The Astounding She Monster (1958) which starred Clarke.

ALIEN ATTACK: See SPACE 1999

ALIEN FACTOR

(Media, 1978) D/S/E: Don Dohler

This 16mm made-in-Baltimore wonder shot in "Qualitycolor" was released to TV stations by Gold Key, and it still shows up at the oddest times. Three escaped alien monsters land in a small town during wintertime, followed by a good, human-appearing alien. The coverup plotline is from Jaws. The acting and the synth score are laughable, and the monsters are pretty pathetic but interesting considering the nonexistent budget. There's even a (transparent) animated dinosaur. Everything stops while a 60s-style long-haired band plays in a bar. Near the end, a girl says, "Wait! Wait! It doesn't make any sense!" With Don Leifert, Dick Dyszel (Washington, DC TV horror host Count Gore DeVol) as the mayor, Johnny Walker (a local DJ) and George Stover. Ernest D. Farino is credited with FX.

ALIEN FROM LA

(Media, 1988) D: Albert Pyun S: Debra Ricci, Regina Davis P: Golan/Globus S.Africa

Sports Illustrated model Kathy Ireland stars as a valley-girl cocktail waitress looking for her missing father in Africa. At one point she falls down a hole and ends up in Atlantis, where she's considered an alien. This PG-rated Cannon nonsense was made with footage from their Journey to the Center of the Earth. It was considered bad enough for Mystery Science Theater 3000. With Linda Kerridge (Fade to Black) in two roles, Thom Mathews, and Don Michael Paul.

ALIEN INTRUDER

(PM, 1992) D: Richard Jacques Gale
S: Nick Stone P: Merhi, Pepin

It's sad to see Billy Dee Williams in this cheap, stupid science-fiction tape (and his acting is pretty sad too). He picks prisoners (including Maxwell Caulfield) to go with him to a ship where a virtual-reality program helps create fantasies (copied from Westworld). Tracy Scoggins is the alien woman who invades the lame fantasy segments (which make up most of the movie) and turns the men against each other. There are biker, surfer, western, and detective sequences (the last two in b/w) and a nude shower scene. With Jeff Conaway in a very small part and Kevin Lowe.

ALIEN MASSACRE = WIZARD OF MARS

ALIEN NATION

(CBS/Fox, 1988) D: Graham Baker S: Rockne S. O'Bannon P: Gale Anne Hurd, Richard Kobritz

In this clever but flawed mismatched-cop science-fiction movie, James Caan stars as a clichéd divorced, alcoholic, racist LA cop in 1991. His black partner is killed and replaced by Mandy Patinkin as Sam Francisco, an alien "newcomer." He can get drunk on sour milk and has a head that looks like a piece of Sugar Pops cereal. The aliens are newly arrived victims of American racism, called "slags," and many live in a slum. Terence Stamp is an alien drug dealer who becomes a monster. The Stan Winston studio provided the FX. Several sequences were cut (when it was known as Outer Heat), and James Cameron did an uncredited rewrite before the film's release. It also became a short-lived TV series.

ALIEN NATION

(Fox, 1989) D/S: Kenneth Johnson
P: Tom Chehank, Arthur Seidel

Gary Graham and Eric Pierpoint (as detective George Francisco) are the mismatched human and alien cops who end up dealing with racism and AIDS. The alien even becomes pregnant. This was the pilot for the Fox-TV series (1989–90) Many people thought that the series was more successful than the theatrical feature. With Terry Treas and Michelle Scarabelli. The Fox TV movie Alien Nation: Dark Horizon (1994) revived the characters.

ALIEN OUTLAW

(1985) D/S/P: Phil Smoot P: George B. Walker

This science-fiction movie shot in North Carolina with old-time B-western stars Lash La Rue, Sunset Carson, and Wild Bill Cody is a must-see in my book. At this time nobody has dared to release it. Things have a way of sneaking out on videotape though. Smoot (great name) also directed Dark Power (1984).

ALIEN PREDATOR

(TWE, 1984) D/S/P: Deran Sarafian P: Carlos Aured US/Spain (Cosmos Mortal; The Falling)

A piece of Skylab with a briefly seen Alien-copy life form falls on young US tourists in dune buggies in Spain. Dennis Christopher, Martin Hewitt, and Lynn-Holly Johnson star. A mutilated cow and dog eat each other, and there are chest-burster scenes. The Helen Sarlui production (called Mutant II in England) was to be released theatrically by Film Ventures, which went out of business.

ALIEN PREY

(Comet, 1977) D: Norman J. Warren S: Max Duff
P: Terence Marcel, David Wimbury UK (Prey)

This bad science-fiction/sex movie is (incredibly) a virtual remake of The Fox (1968) which was based on a D. H. Lawrence novella. A young man (Barry Stokes), really an alien on Earth for the first time, joins a lesbian couple in a secluded cottage. Animals (and policemen) are found mutilated and a lot of time is used up with soft-core sex scenes featuring Sally Faulkner (from Vampyres) and Glory Annan.

ALIEN PRIVATE EYE

(Raedon, 1987) D/S/P/E: Nik Rubenfeld

Nikki Fastinetti stars as alien hero Lemro in this laughable mess that has some similarities to I Come in Peace (made later). Lemro has a 30s-style private eye office, dances like Michael Jackson, fights like Bruce Lee, and has Mr. Spock ears. Aliens on earth battle over an addictive designer drug. The sound is so bad you can hear the creaking of leather jackets and traffic noise over the dialogue. With a cold-turkey scene, a Keith Richards reference, a terrible Peter Lorre imitation, topless sex, and a disco.

ALIENS

(CBS/Fox, 1986) D/S: James Cameron S: Walter Hill, David Giler P: Gale Anne Hurd

Aliens made $43,700,000 in North American box-office receipts (more than the original) and the bigger (and, most agree, even better) non-stop sequel to one of the most copied hits of the 70s is a must see. Sigourney Weaver (who received an Oscar nomination!) returns as Ripley and battles a hive of huge, horrible aliens at a terraforming colony on the planet Acheron while protecting a little girl named Newt. With Cameron regular Michael Biehn as the leader of the Marine group, Paul Reiser (corporate scum), Lance Henriksen (great android), Bill Paxton, Jenette Goldstein as the muscular female marine, and William Hope. The Stan Winston studio FX received an Oscar. The letterboxed laserdisc version restores 17 minutes and includes an interview with the director. The cassette and theatrical version is 137 minutes. The James Horner soundtrack was released on Varese Sarabande. An unrelated 1980 Italian movie was called Alien #2 (or Alien Terror).

Ripley (Sigourney Weaver) and Newt (Carrie Henn) in Aliens.

ALIENS ARE COMING

(Worldvision, 1980) D: Harvey Hart
S: Robert W. Lenski P: Phillip Saltzman

Tom Mason starred in this failed NBC-TV pilot film from Quinn-Martin that recycled Larry Cohen's original concept from the old Invaders program. It's set at Hoover Dam. With Eric Braedon, Max Gail, Ed Harris, and Gerald McRaney.

ALIENS, DRAGONS, MONSTERS, AND ME

(Cerebus, 1986) D: Richard Jones

The career of stop-motion-animation genius Ray Harryhausen was given a London museum retrospective at the time that this one-hour documentary (originally on the Disney Channel) was shot. Clips from just about everything he worked on are included. Ray Bradbury is interviewed, Bradbury and Kerwin Mathews add commentary, and Gary Owens narrates. The Lumivision disc version is longer. Harryhausen received a special Oscar in 1993.

ALIEN SEED

(AIP, 1989) D/S: Bob James
S: Douglas K. Grimm P: Mark Paglia

A science-fiction movie with a bad script, terrible action scenes, cheap special effects, too many chase scenes, and irritating slow-motion dreams might not sound very enticing, but Eric Estrada (!) is in it. The former CHIPS star, who was also an associate producer, was in at least 20 direct-to-video projects in the late 80s, so if you like this one, knock yourself out. The plot is about a close encounter and a government cover-up. Steven Blade and Heidi Payne star, and there are topless-bar scenes. It was filmed in Colorado.

ALIENS FROM SPACESHIP EARTH

(Video Gems, 1977) D/P: Don Como

Another dull pseudodocumentary from Gold Key about religious cults and "inner peace" groups. Dramatic reenactments try to prove that great men from the past were aliens. Lynda Day George and Leigh Taylor-Young are in it, and the music is by Donovan!

ALIENS RETURN = THE RETURN

ALIEN SPACE AVENGER

(AIP, 1988) D/S: Richard Haines
S: Lynwood Sawyer P: Ray Sundlin, Robert W. Harris (Space Avenger)

Four aliens take over the bodies of two couples during the 30s, hide out in a space sphere, and emerge 50 years later in New York City, still wearing 30s clothes. A comic-book artist (Robert Prichard) bases a hit Space Avenger comic on their exploits and they go after him while trying to find plutonium so that they can return home and fight some human emotions. What might at first sound like a silly science-fiction comedy is really a very clever and well made, violent, action-packed movie with sex, gore, laughs, and good acting. In both time periods the aliens acquire guns and blast nearly everybody they encounter. When an alien's arm is shot off, it grows back. The stars includes Charity Staley and Angela Nicholas as aliens and Gina Mastrogiacomo as the cartoonist's girlfriend who is taken over by a puppet alien (and has the major nude scene). Porn star Jamie Gillis has a funny role, and clips from the original Flash Gordon are put to good use. The locations include Central Park, the Tunnel club, a Times Square video arcade, Washington Square Park, an elevated subway, and 42nd St., where Vampire Hookers and Dolemite are playing! Parts were filmed in Peekskill, New York. With Billy Rae McQuade (from Mother's Day) and Char Rao. The director previously made Troma movies.

ALIEN TERROR

(MPI, Sony, 1968) D/S: Jack Hill D: Juan Ibanez P: Luis Enriquez Vergara US/Mexico (Sinister Invasion; Invasion Siniestra)

This wacky period science-fiction story (set in Europe) was the last of the four Boris Karloff movies made back-to-back in LA shortly before he died. In fact, it is the great horror star's last movie. Most of the scenes were filmed in Mexico, and the footage was later (badly) edited together. Some scenes have abrupt jumpy edits, and the illusion of Karloff acting with people filmed at another time in another country fails pretty often. Boris plays a kindly professor with a female assistant who has a badly scarred face. He creates a molecular ray that can blow up rocks. When the ray blasts a hole in the roof, it's seen by aliens who decide to kill everybody to save themselves. A curly-haired blond guy arrives in an antique flying saucer wearing a silver suit and takes over the mind of a local sex-crazed, psychotic killer in a top hat (the strange-looking Yerye Beirute). The alien life forces are passed in what resembles a transparent heart. The professor's mind is also taken over, so during the rest of the movie the alien/killer tries (in vain) to suppress his voyeuristic and killing tendencies, and the alien/professor tries to suppress his concern for his sexy, blond niece, played by Christa Linder (Night of a Thousand Cats). After more women in low-cut gowns are killed, angry villagers arrive, just like in old Universal horror movies. Boris destroys the alien force and his machine "so humanity can't commit suicide," and his house burns.

ALIEN^3

(Fox, 1992) D: David Fincher S/P: David Giler, Walter Hill S: John Fasano P: Gordon Carroll

This grim, murky mess by a 29-year-old first-time-director known for Madonna videos cost over $50 million and made about half that much. It's up there with the third Exorcist and Godfather movies for being overall wrong. Sigourney Weaver returns (with shaved head) and encounters celibate, monklike prisoners. With Charles Dutton (a real-life ex-con) as the inmate leader, Charles Dance as the doctor, Paul McGann, Brian Glover, and Lance Henriksen (briefly). Some called it a daring AIDS allegory, but you could say that about dozens of cheaper science-fiction and horror movies. Before it was released, an Aliens video "triple pack" was released with the first two features and a 23-minute "making of" Alien^3 tape (also released separately). If it had told the full, true story of the troubled production (how much all the uncredited screenwriters were paid and how entire parts were reshot) it would have been more interesting than the feature itself. The last-minute suicide ending was filmed just before the release. The Elliot Goldenthal soundtrack is on MCA.

ALIEN WARRIOR

(Vestron, 1985) D/S: Ed Hunt S: Rueben Gordon, Steve Schonenberg P: Yakov Bentsvi Canada (King of the Streets)

An alien vigilante (Brett Clarke) has to prove his bravery in this Terminator ripoff, so he fights drug dealers and pimps on Earth. With Talley Chanel (from the pages of Penthouse) and Pamela Saunders (from Playboy).

THE ALIEN WITHIN

(MNTEX, 1990) D/S: Ted Newsom, Kenneth Hall P: Peter Stewart

This is Hall's Evil Spawn (1986) with new scenes added by producer Fred Olen Ray (who had a feud with original director Hall). With most of the original cast plus Richard Harrison, Gordon Mitchell, Melissa Moore, Jay Richardson, and Suzanne Ager. Now you can experience a wonderfully awful movie in two different versions!

ALIEN WOMEN

(SW, 1969) D/S: Michael Cort S: Alastair McKenzie UK (Zeta One:The Love Factor)

A spy (Robin Hawden) narrates this story after a game of strip poker (with Yutte Stensgaard) in his playboy pad. The plot is something about alien women wearing white boots and wigs who kidnap Earth women. Dawn Addams (in her last known feature) is Zeta, their leader. The spy convinces a stripper to infiltrate the aliens. With Brigitte Skay, Anna Gael, Valerie Leon, and James Robertson-Justice. With cheap psychedelic FX, compact picture phones, torture scenes, and lots of female warriors wearing pasties while they zap men in the woods. It's slow going, but some of you might want to check out the naked Hammer starlets. The Tygon film was based on a British comic strip.

ALISON'S BIRTHDAY

(Vestron, 1979) D/S/A: Ian Coughan P: David Hannay Australia

During a seance, a dead father warns his daughter, Alison (Joanne Samuel), that she'll be possessed at 19. A cult that worships a female sorceress tries to make the prediction come true. This Filmways release copies ideas from Rosemary's Baby and The Exorcist. It's a David Hemmings production. The British actor produced a number of features in Australia and New Zealand in the 80s.

ALIVE

(Touchstone, 1992) D: Frank Marshall S: John Patrick Shanley P: Robert Watts, Kathleen Kennedy

Buena Vista/Touchstone released this long (123-minute) R-rated remake of Rene Cardona's Survive! (1976). A plane carrying a team of Uruguayan rugby players crashes in the snowy Andes (curtesy of ILM FX). Eventually survivors resort to eating their dead companions. Ethan Hawke stars, with Josh Hamilton and Vincent Spano. John Malkovitch introduces the story as a passenger who remembers it all 20 years later. Alive: 20 Years Later (Touchstone, 1993) is a documentary about the real survivors (it's based on a real incident) and the making of this movie.

ALL AMERICAN MURDER

(Prism, 1991) D: Anson Williams S: Barry Sandler P: Bill Novoor

Christopher Walken is Detective Decker in this dumb but entertaining direct-to-video Twin Peaks–inspired feature. It was made in Tulsa, Oklahoma, by the guy who played Potsie on Happy Days. Arty (Charlie Schatter), a fast-talking, trouble-making, pyromaniac son of a judge, is enrolled at a fine college and told to straighten out or else. He immediately has sex with the dean's wife (Joanna Cassidy), falls for the perfect blond cheerleader, and is blamed when she goes up in slow-motion flames. Many more people die while the tough but intelligent and sympathetic maverick Decker and the frantic Artie try to discover who the killer might be. Incriminating sex photos appear, and a deaf handyman with a power drill adds some gore effects. The absurd end of this red-herring-filled mystery will leave you astounded (or angry as hell). With Josie Bissett (from Melrose Place). Sandler wrote Crimes of Passion.

ALLAN QUATERMAIN AND THE LOST CITY OF GOLD

(Media, 1986) D: Gary Nelson, Newt Arnold S: Gene Quintano P: Golan/Globus

Richard Chamberlain and Sharon Stone find a lost city of gold (and a lost race of Phoenicians) in this useless Cannon PG comedy/adventure sequel to its King Solomon's Mines remake from 1985. They were filmed at the same time to save $. James Earl Jones is the warrior Umslopogaas. Henry Silva as Agon and Cassandra Peterson (better known as Elvira) as an evil queen rule the lost city. It was filmed in Zimbabwe and includes Cleveland jokes and a spear-proof tunic. This feature is also a remake of Alvin Rakoff and Harry Alan Towers' 1977 King Solomon's Treasure.

ALLEY CAT

(Vestron, 1982) D: "Edward Victor"/Eduardo Palmos S/P: Robert E. Waters P: Victor Ordóñez (Dragon Fly)

Karin Mani's grandparents are killed by a gang, but the sexy part-Asian star is sent to prison. When she's released, she fights back with martial arts. Like Tura Satana, Mani is supposed to be a mixture of Asian and Native American (and she takes her clothes off). The Film Ventures release also features Britt Helfer. By the director of Fighting Back.

ALLEY TRAMP

(SW, 1966) D/C: Herschell Gordon Lewis S: Allison Louise Down P: Tom Dowd

The credits of this b/w exploitation movie from Chicago were all fake. It's about a teenage girl who has sex with her cousin, then her mother's lover. While in the hospital for an abortion she tries to rape an intern, and she ends up in an insane asylum. Down, the first lady of exploitation screenwriters, also wrote Blood Feast and many others directed by Lewis.

ALLIGATOR ALLEY = THE HOOKED GENERATION

ALLIGATOR EYES

(Academy, 1990) D/S/P: John Feldman P: Ken Schwenker

Annabell Larson stars as a mysterious blind hitchhiker with a talking computer. After three people on the way to Virginia Beach pick her up, she seduces both men (off screen) and they all argue and fight about her. They end up on Okrakoke Island on Halloween. This well-made film has interesting, believable characters and features flashbacks, narration by two different characters, some nudity, a shooting, and frequent Jim Jarmusch–inspired blackouts.

ALLIGATOR II: THE MUTATION

(RCA, 1991) D: Jon Hess S: Curtis Allen P: Brandon Chase

Joseph Bologna stars as a night shift cop in what's basically a PG-13 remake of the original John Sayles–scripted movie (1980). Bologna is good, and so are Richard Lynch as a knife-throwing Cajun gator hunter and Steve Railsback as a killer real-estate developer. The giant-gator attack carnival is OK, but too much time is spent on a rookie cop and his new love interest. Also with Brock Peters as a police chief, Dee Wallace-Stone as the lab technician wife, Bill Daily from I Dream of Jeannie as the corrupt mayor, Holly Gagnier, Professor Tanaga, Woody Brown, and Kane Holder. It was made for ABC-TV (where we saw it) but was picked up for distribution by New Line.

THE ALLNIGHTER

(MCA, 1987) D/S/P: Tamar Simon Hoffs P: Nancy Israel

Susanna Hoffs (from the Bangles) stars in a PG-13 teen movie made by her mom. Three high-school girls want sex on the eve of their graduation. With Dedee Pfeiffer, Joan Cusack, Michael Ontkean, John Terlesky, and Pam Grier as a cop. The Bangles were a great group (for a very short time).

ALL'S FAIR

(1989) D: Rocky Lane S: Randee Russell, John Finegan, Tom Rondinella, William Pace P: Jon Gordon

Here's yet another movie about weekend war games. Jennifer Edwards works for candy-bar manufacturer George Segal. Left out of the all-male company games, she forms an all-female team. With Sally Kellerman, Robert Carradine, and Lou Ferrigno.

ALL THAT JAZZ

(Fox, 1979) D/S: Bob Fosse S/P: Robert Alan Arthur

This dark, disturbing autobiographical musical with fantasy segments stars Roy Scheider as the pill-popping, womanizing, egomaniacal choreographer and director Joe Gideon (Fosse). People from Fosse's real life appear as "themselves," and he goes through graphic open-heart surgery. With Jessica Lange, Ann Reinking, Sandahl Bergman, Vicki Frederick, Ben Vereen, and John Lithgow. Fosse also choreographed (of course). The 123 minute feature was released by Columbia with 20th Century. A soundtrack was on Casablanca.

ALL THE KIND STRANGERS

(Fox, 1974) D: Burt Kennedy
S: Clyde Ware P: Roger Lewis

Stacy Keach and Samantha Eggar are held prisoner by seven backwoods orphans with vicious dogs in this TV movie. The kids kills people who refuse to stay and become their parents. With John Savage and Robby Benson (who sings the title song). It was filmed in Tennessee.

ALL THE LOVIN' KINFOLK

(SW, 1970) D/S/P: John Hayes P: Daniel Cady

Mady Maguire (from Norma) stars in a pretty senseless soft-X period backwoods-sex movie. With a square dance, barnyard sex, an old car to make you think its the 30s, and Uschi Digart. The original video box had porn star Taja Rae on the cover.

. . . ALL THE MARBLES

(MGM/UA, 1981) D: Robert Aldrich S: Mel Frohman
P: William Aldrich (The California Dolls)

This ahead of its time women's-wrestling movie didn't really find an audience until it started playing on cable TV. It was the last film by Aldrich. A small-time hustler (Peter Falk) travels though the Midwest managing a female tag team and encounters gangsters and other troubles. Laurene Landon and Vicki Frederick are both perfect as the tall, beautiful fighters. With Burt Young, Richard Jaeckel, Mike Mazurki, Tracy Reed, Angela Aames, and Susan Mechsner. Brinke Stevens is an extra.

ALL THIS AND WORLD WAR II

(1976) D: Susan Winslow P: Sandy Lieberson, Martin J. Machat

Some people still don't believe that this film was made and think it's just a two-record boxed set with a booklet and ads for T-shirts. The film is all old newsreel footage set to Beatles cover songs. The songs are by many artists, including Bryan Ferry, Tina Turner, Frankie Valli, Keith Moon, Peter Gabriel, and Roy Wood. Hear Helen Reddy and the Bee Gees sing while Hitler plans and Nazis march and kill. Amazing.

ALMOST AN ANGEL

(Paramount, 1990) D/P: John Cornell S/A: Paul Hogan

Paul Hogan is a minor LA thief who disguises himself as Willie Nelson, then Rod Stewart. He gets hit by a car, meets God (Charlton Heston), and becomes a good guy. After two Crocodile Dundee hits, nobody went to this PG feel-good fantasy. With Linda Kozlowski (Hogan's wife), Elias Koteas, Joe Dallesandro, and David Alan Grier.

ALMOST HUMAN

(Prism, 1974) D: Umberto Lenzi
S: Ernesto Gastaldi P: Luciano Martino
Italy (Milano Odia: La Polizia Non Puo Sparare; The Kidnap of Mary Lou)

Giulio (Tomas Milian), a demented criminal, kidnaps a rich man's daughter (Anita Strindberg). In the US, this violent, mean-spirited feature (complete with nudity, children murdered and forced male/male oral sex) was promoted (by Joseph Brenner) as if it were a horror movie. With Henry Silva as a cop, Ray Lovelock, and Laura Belli. Milian (from Cuba) returned in Assault with a Deadly Weapon.

ALMOST SUMMER

(1978) D/S: Martin Davidson S: Judith Berg, Marc Eric Rubel P: Rob Cohen

Bruno Kirby, Lee Purcell, Tim Matheson, and Didi Conn are in this light, PG-rated tale of high-school elections that turns serious. Some then-new Beach Boys (and Brian Wilson) songs are on the MCA soundtrack and Mike Love is in the movie.

aloha, bobby and rose

(Media, 1975) D/S: Floyd Mutrux P: Fouad Said

An auto mechanic (Paul Le Mat from the American Graffiti movies) and his girl (Dianne Hull) hold up a liquor store and turn to a life of crime in this PG chase movie. With Robert Carradine, Edward James Olmos, and Tim McIntire.

ALOHA SUMMER

(Warner, 1988) D: Tommy Lee Wallace
S/P: Mike Greco S: Bob Benedetto

Six guys of different nationalities become surfing friends in Hawaii in 1959. With Chris Makepeace, Don Michael Paul, Tia Carrere, Yuji Okumoto, and Sho Koshugi. This PG feature is by the director of Halloween III.

ALONE AGAINST ROME

(Sinister, 1962) D: "Herbert Wise"/Luciano Ricci
S: Ennio Mancini, Gianni Astolfi, Gastad Green
P: Marco Vicario Italy (Solo Contra Roma)

Rossanna Podesta (whose husband produced) is Fabiola, a self-sacrificing Christian, in a tale of gladiators. Lang Jeffries is the mighty Brenno. Riccardo Freda staged the gladiator-arena fight climax. With Philippe LeRoy and Gabrielle Tinti.

ALONE IN THE DARK

(RCA/Columbia, 1982) D/S: Jack Sholder P: Bob Shaye

Alone in the Dark is a classic horror movie with humor, a punk sensibility and a great overacting cast. It starts with a shocking nightmare scene in a diner. Some psychotic killers escape from a mental hospital during a power failure and go after a New Jersey family, but there's much more. Jack Palance is the scary war vet Frank Hawkes,

New York's the Sick Fucks on stage in Alone in the Dark.

Martin Landau is Preacher, and big Erland van Lidth de Jeude (from The Wanderers) joins them. Donald Pleasence is the weird, pot-smoking doctor who says the killers are just confused. Dwight Schultz *(*from The A-Team) is the doctor dad of the fractured family under siege and the Sick Fucks play "Chop up Your Mother." Sholder had been an editor of New Line trailers and also made the underrated The Hidden.

ALPHABET CITY

(CBS/Fox, 1984) D/S: Amos Poe
S: Gregory Heller P: Andrew Braunsberg

Vincent Spano is a Lower East Side drug dealer with a heavy New York accent who plans to retire and has to go on the run from mobsters. With Kate Vernon, Michael Winslow, Zohra Lampert, Jamie Gertz, and Raymond Serra. The music is by Nile Rogers. This was the first and last real movie by Poe, who had directed New York underground films like Subway Riders (1981).

THE ALPHA INCIDENT

(Media, 1976) D/P: Bill Rebane

The government tries to cover up a deadly organism from Mars in this PG-rated science fiction movie. People at a remote railroad depot managed by Ralph Meeker are terrorized. With John Alderman and George "Buck" Flower. It was made in Gleason, Wisconsin, where Rebane usually works. He was the director of Monster a Go Go and The Giant Spider Invasion, so you might known what to expect. Confused viewers in some cities saw it on a double bill with Star Wars!

ALWAYS

(MCA, 1989) D/P: Steven Spielberg S: Jerry Belson, Ron Bass P: Frank Marshall, Kathleen Kennedy

This is a remake of the Spencer Tracy film, A Guy Named Joe (1943) with Yellowstone Park firefighters replacing the WWII pilots. Richard Dreyfuss dies and returns as a guardian angel who helps Holly Hunter. With John Goodman, Brad Johnson, Audrey Hepburn, Roberts Blossom, Marge Helgenberger, Keith David, and some ILM FX. The PG-rated film made money but was a flop in the big-bucks Spielberg world. The tape is letterboxed and runs 123 minutes. The John Williams soundtrack is on MCA.

THE AMATEUR

(Fox, 1982) D: Charles Jarrott S: Robert Littell, Diana Maddox P: Joel B. Michaels, Garth H. Drabinsky Canada

John Savage stars as a computer expert out for revenge in East Berlin in this cold war spy thriller. With Christopher Plummer, Marthe Keller, Ed Lauter, John Marley, Arthur Hill, Graham Jarvis, Jan Rubes, and Nicholas Campbell. Producer Drabinsky started Cineplex Odeon and is responsible for raising ticket prices in North America, among other offenses.

THE AMAZING DR. G

(1965) D: G. Simonelli Italy
(Due Mafiosi Contra Goldfinger)

This AIP TV release, a parody of the 1964 James Bond film Goldfinger, stars Franco Franchi and Ciccio Ingrassia, known as Francio and Chechio. AIP released another of the comedy team's movies, Dr. Goldfoot and the Girl Bombs, to theatres. Maybe they were funny in Italian, but their humor, based on dialects and puns, doesn't translate at all. Many Americans consider them the least funny comedians they've ever seen.

AMAZING GRACE

(1973) D: Stan Latham S/P: Matt Robinson

Jackie "Moms" Mabley stars as an old lady who involves herself in Baltimore politics in this G-rated comedy. Slappy White helps her try to get Moses Gunn elected mayor. With Rosalind Cash, Butterfly McQueen, and Stepin Fetchit. It was filmed in Philadelphia. Mabley also starred in Boarding House Blues.

AMAZING GRACE AND CHUCK

(HBO, 1987) D: Mike Newell
S/P: David Field (Silent Voice)

Athletes save the world in a PG-rated Capraesque tale that has been called "embarrassing, inept, and simple." A kid (Joshua Zuehlke) convinces major sports figures on both sides of the Iron Curtain to refuse to play in order to protest nuclear weapons. The kids of the world join the protest. With Jamie Lee Curtis, Gregory Peck as the president, Alex English (a real Boston Celtics star), William L. Peterson, Dennis Lipscomb, and Lee Richardson. The year this came out, Peck attended a USSR peace conference and appeared in an anti–Bork for Supreme Court TV ad, angering President Reagan. This film was backed by "executive consultant" Ted Turner and CNN. Varèse Sarbande released the Elmer Bernstein soundtrack.

THE AMAZING MR. BLUNDEN

(1972) D/S/A: Lionel Jeffries P: Barry Levinson UK

In a supernatural fairy tale set after WWI, a ghost (Jeffries) helps kids solve a 100-year-old mystery. Based on Antonia Barber's novel The Ghost. With Laurence Naismith, Lynne Frederick and Diana Dors. This G-rated feature was released by Hemisphere in 1974.

AMAZING STORIES, BOOK ONE

(MCA, 1985–86) D: Steven Spielberg, Danny DeVito P: David E. Vogel

Executive producer Spielberg made a deal with NBC-TV that they couldn't cancel his expensive anthology series (1985–87) even if the ratings were bad (which they were), so 44 episodes were filmed. In Europe one compilation was a theatrical release and the rest went straight to tape. The other producers for the series were Kathleen Kennedy and Frank Marshall. The first US tape release features two stories. "The Mission," a one-hour-long war story directed by Spielberg features Keifer Sutherland and Casey Siemaszko. "Wedding Ring," directed by and starring Danny DeVito, features Rhea Perlman (his wife) and Tracy Walter. The tapes are all in stereo.

AMAZING STORIES, BOOK TWO

(MCA, 1986–87) D: Robert Zemeckis, Brad Bird P: David E. Vogel

"Go to the Head of the Class" is a one-hour-long witchcraft story, directed by Zemeckis with heavy-metal rock. Mary Stuart Masterson and Christopher Lloyd star, and Stan Winston provided FX. "The Family Dog," by Bird (and designer Tim Burton) is an animated cartoon tale with the voices of Stan Freberg, Mercedes McCambridge and Annie Potts. It became an animated CBS series in 1993.

AMAZING STORIES, BOOK THREE

(MCA, 1985–86) D: Mick Garris, Lesli Linka Glatter, Peter Hyams P: David E. Vogel

"Life on Death Row," directed by Garris stars Patrick Swayze and Hector Elizondo. "The Amazing Falworth," directed by Hyams, features Gregory Hines and Richard Masur. The cast of "No Day at the Beach," directed by Glatter, includes Charlie Sheen and Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini.

AMAZING STORIES, BOOK FOUR

(MCA, 1985–87) D: Martin Scorsese, Paul Michael Glaser, Daniel Petrie P: David E. Vogel

Scorsese fans, this is the tape to look for. He directed Mirror Mirror, (written by Joseph Minion) which stars Sam Waterston as a horror movie director, Helen Shaver, Tim Robbins as the phantom, and Dick Cavett as himself. Blue Man Down, directed by Glaser, stars Max Gail. Mr. Magic, directed by Petrie, stars Sid Caesar and Leo Rossi.

AMAZING STORIES, BOOK FIVE

(MCA, 1985–86) D: Bob Balaban, Leslie Linka Glatter, Norman Reynolds P: David E. Vogel

The Pumpkin Competition, directed by Balaban, stars Polly Holliday and June Lockhart. Without Diana, directed by Glatter, features Billy Green Bush and Dianne Hull. Fine Tuning, directed by Reynolds, includes Mathew Laborteaux, Milton Berle, and Angelo Rossitto. Episodes directed by Joe Dante, Paul Bartel, Bob Clark, Clint Eastwood, and Tobe Hooper will eventually be released on tape too.

THE AMAZING TRANSPLANT

(SW, 1969) D/S/P: "Louis Silverman, Dawn Whitman" (Doris Wishman)

Wishman is known to some for directing the notorious Chesty Morgan movies Double Agent 73 and Deadly Weapons. If you've seen either, you'll have an idea what to expect here. A naked woman plays a (badly dubbed) zither. Her boyfriend, Arthur (Juan Fernadez), arrives and says "Let's get married!" She agrees, but after an unsuccessful attempt at sex, says "Poor, sick Arthur," so he strangles her. He acts like a zombie when he sees gold earrings. He visits a doctor, who introduces him to the sexually active but dying Felix. Arthur becomes Felix's buddy, then blackmails the doctor into transplanting his now-dead friend's penis onto him. ("O, how I wanted to be like Felix!") Arthur talks during the operation. He kills more women. News-paper headlines (the kind anybody can order in Times Square) are constantly shown: ARTHUR BARON STILL MISSING! A radio newscaster says, "Campus Riots— and ARTHUR BARON STILL MISSING!" Arthur's uncle, a cop, searches for him, but only encounters other people's flashbacks of lesbian sex, throwing up, and rape. (One flashback star is early porn star Kim Pope.) This badly lit, shot-in-Brooklyn (?) nonsense has some scenes reversed, so that a box of crackers reads ZTIR (!). The Amazing Transplant is usually in the horror-movie section of video stores.

AMAZING WORLD OF PSYCHIC PHENOMENA

(Vid America, 1976) D/S: Robert Guenette

In between TV series, Raymond Burr narrated this G-rated semidocumentary look at psychic healers, scientists, and quacks, Edgar Cayce, and acupuncturists. With Uri Geller and Jeanne Dixon. It was a Sunn Classics release.

AMAZON

(Live, 1992) D/S/P: Mika Kaurismaki
S: Richard Reitinger

Kari Vaananen stars as a Finnish businessman in the Brazilian rain forest with his two daughters. He's being unjustly pursued by police and becomes involved in a search for diamonds and gold. The ecological-adventure features Robert Davi (who narrates and sings "The Lion Sleeps Tonight"!) as a drunken bush pilot and Rae Dawn Chong as a teacher. It's all narrated by a dead man.

AMAZONIA: See WHITE SLAVE

AMAZON JAIL

(Continental, 1985) D/S: Osualdo de Oliveira
S: Larry Dolgin, Alfredo Palacios Spain/Italy

Satanists in Brazil capture women who have escaped from a jungle prison and make them slaves. With lots of nudity, lesbian sex, and dance numbers. Elisabeth Hartman stars.

AMAZONS

(Westworld, 1984) D: Paul Michael Glaser
S: David Solomon P: Stuart Cohen

A doctor (Madeleine Stowe) discovers a secret organization of women plotting to take over the country and kill men. Tamara Dobson co-stars, with Stella Stevens, Jennifer Warren, Jack Scalia, Nicholas Pryor, and William Schallert, in this ABC-TV movie.

AMAZONS

(MGM/UA, 1986) D: Alex Sessa
S: Charles Saunders P: Hector Olivera

Female warriors battle each other, and a villainous leader has lightning bolt fingertips. Windsor Taylor Randolph (aka porno actress Lisa Berenger) stars, with Penelope Reed and Danitza Kingsley. A lion is transformed into a naked woman. There's nude swimming and sex. This Roger Corman/Concorde movie was filmed in Argentina.

AMAZON WOMEN = GOLD OF THE AMAZON WOMEN

AMAZON WOMEN ON THE MOON

(MCA, 1985) D/P: John Landis D: Joe Dante, Carl Gottlieb, Peter Horton, Robert K. Weiss

This underrated Kentucky Fried Movie "sequel" wasn't released until it was two years old. It includes many hilarious segments (some in b/w) spoofing old horror, science-fiction, and exploitation movies and is full of in-jokes for fans. Ed Begley Jr. is the (naked) "Invisible Man." Henry Silva impersonates Jack Palance hosting Bullshit or Not and proves that Jack the Ripper was the Loch Ness Monster. Sybil Danning is an outer-space queen, and William Marshall is captain of "the video pirates." With Russ Meyer, Arsenio Hall, Monique Gabrielle (walking around naked on the street), Lou Jacobi, Michelle Pfeiffer, Griffin Dunne, Steve Forrest, Lana Clarkson, Steve Guttenberg, Rosanna Arquette, Belinda Belaski, Kelly Preston, Angel Tompkins, Corinne Wahl, Ralph Bellamy, Howard Hesseman, Andrew Dice Clay, Joey Travolta, Keenan Ivory Wayans, B. B. King and Forrest J. Ackerman (as the US president). Steve Allen hosts a celebrity funeral roast with Henny Youngman, Jackie Vernon, Rip Taylor, Slappy White, and Charlie Callas. It's all crammed into 85 minutes and you can see whole different segments (like "The French Ventriloquist's Dummy," starring Dick Miller and Jenny Agutter) not on the tape or shown theatrically, in the TV version. Don't miss Carrie Fisher, Paul Bartel, and Mike Mazurki in the post-credits Sex Madness spoof.

Lou Jacobi is transported into a 50s science fiction movie in Amazon Women on the Moon.

THE AMBASSADOR

(MGM, 1984) D: J. Lee Thompson
S: Ronald M. Cohen P: Golan/Globus

Elmore Leonard's 52 Pick Up (filmed under that title in 1986) was the basis for this story set against the Israeli-Palestinian crisis. Robert Mitchum stars, with Ellen Burstyn as his wife, Rock Hudson (in his last theatrical release), as a security officer), Donald Pleasence and Fabio Testi. The 50-something Burstyn has a topless scene.

AMBITION

(Media, 1991) D/P: Scott Goldstein
S/A: Lou Diamond Phillips

Phillips is an unlikable, long-haired LA book store owner researching "the Valentine's Day Massacre killer" (Clancy Brown). In order to be able to write a book about the newly paroled, well-known psycho, he hires him to work in the store, drugs him with speed, and generally messes with his mind. The absurd movie features Cecilia Peck, Grace Zabriskie, Chris Mulkey, and disco flashbacks.

THE AMBULANCE

(Columbia, 1989) D/S: Larry Cohen
P: Moctezuma Esparza, Robert Katz

The Ambulance has an effective but simple premise, good acting, lots of mean, sarcastic, and eccentric characters, great NYC location work, and some excellent action sequences. A mysterious old ambulance picks up people suffering from diabetes and takes them to a secret hospital that sells their bodies. A Marvel cartoonist (Eric Roberts) who witnessed the kidnapping of Janine Turner tries to convince some cops (James Earl Jones and Megan Gallagher) that he's not crazy. A feisty old New York Post reporter (Red Buttons, who is perfect in the role) helps. With Eric Braeden as the main villain doctor, Laureen Landon, Jill Gatsby (Cohen's daughter), Stan Lee (as himself), and stirring music by Jay Chattaway. The tape was finally released in 1993.

AMBUSH: See THE SCAVENGERS

AMBUSH AT CIMARRON PASS

(Fox, 1958) D: Jodie Copeland
S: Richard G. Tayor, John K. Butler
P: Herbert E. Mendelson

This low-budget, post–Civil War western with an Apache attack features Clint Eastwood in his biggest film role prior to the Italian westerns. He plays an ex–Confederate Army soldier. The star is Scott Brady as a Union Army sergeant. With Margia Dean. 20th Century–Fox rereleased it in the 60s and gave Eastwood top billing in the ads.

AMERICA

(Sony, 1982) D/S: Robert Downey
P: Paul A. Leeman (Moonbeam)

The signal of a New York cable TV station is accidentally bounced off the moon and broadcast throughout the world. With Zack Norman, Tammy Grimes, Michael J. Pollard, and Richard Belzer. It wasn't released until 1986 and nobody had much that was good to say about it then.

AMERICANA

(Vestron 1973) D/P/A/E: David Carradine
S: Richard Carr P: Skip Sherwood

In 1972, David Carradine was the star of the popular Kung Fu series and had just been in Boxcar Bertha with his common-law wife, Barbara Seagull (later Hershey). He directed one movie and starred in another with Hershey, but they were never finished or released. He also made this PG feature, which was finally released (by Crown) in 1981 after years of editing work. Carradine even made some personal appearances to introduce his film, in which he also sings. He shows up on foot wearing a cap and beard in the small town of Drury, Kansas (the real citizens play themselves), and simply says "I need a place to crash." He takes odd jobs, is harassed by the locals and the sheriff, and begins the slow, difficult restoration of an abandoned merry-go-round. We learn after a while that he's a Nam vet captain who reports for his disability payments only when everything else goes wrong. Americana is a well-made, nonexploitative movie that takes its time and manages to say a lot about unfortunate changes in the country. The quiet hero has troubled relationships with an ex-biker/vet (Michael Greene) who sponsors cockfights in the shell of a church, and Barbara Hershey, who wanders around barefoot in a white dress. Americana was a family affair. Hershey's father, Arnold Hertstein, plays the general-store owner. David's brother Bruce is the sheriff, and brother Robert was an assistant cameraman. Dan (Grizzly Adams) Haggerty was the set dresser and animal handler, and John Barrymore III (Drew's half brother) has a role.

AMERICAN ANGELS: BAPTISM IN BLOOD

(Paramount, 1989) D/S/P: Ferd and Beverly Sebastian

The couple who brought us Gator Bait and Rocktober Blood return with a ridiculous "behind the scenes" look at female wrestlers. It's the Magnificent Mimi vs. the Black Venus, and more. See whipped cream wrestling, comical dwarf-wrestling, the Luscious Lisa, (Jan Mackenzie from Gator Bait II) take a shower, and sex in the ring. You can buy this on laserdisc and hear lines like, "I'll poke out your eyes and piss in your brains!"

AMERICAN BEAUTY HOSTAGES: See EBONY, IVORY, AND JADE

AMERICAN BORN

(PM, 1991) D/S: Raymond Martino S: Addison Randall P: Richard Pepin, Joseph Merhi

Andrew Zeller is a New York City kid obsessed with gangster videos who thinks he's become a real-life gangster after his father is killed. Joey Travolta plays his uncle, and vintage film clips are used.

AMERICAN COMMANDOS

(Vestron, 1984) D/S: Bobby A. Suarez S/A: Ken Metcalf (Hitman)

Nam vets in California, led by a former Green Beret (Chris Mitchum), are sent on an antidrug mission in Southeast Asia. They discover other American vets running drug factories in the Golden Triangle. With John Phillip Law, Franco Guerrero and Metcalf. It was filmed in the Philippines.

AMERICAN CYBORG: STEEL WARRIOR

(Warner, 1994) D: Boaz Davidson S: Brent Friedman, Bill Crounse, Don Pequingnot

In another post-nuke movie, Joe Lara (a TV Tarzan) is the long-haired hunk hero who protects Mary (Nicole Hansen) a blonde trying to save a rare live fetus. John Ryan is the indestructible Blade Runner–look bad-guy cyborg with black leather and short white hair. This one includes mutant face cannibals, a gang in drag, and scientist rebels. Much of the Cannon release, which was made in Israel, takes place in an old factory. The music copies the score from The Last of the Mohicans.

AN AMERICAN DREAM

(1966) D: Robert Gist S: Mann Rubin

Stuart Whitman stars as a TV talk-show host who may have killed his wife, in a movie based on Norman Mailer's novel. The police and gangsters are after him. With Janet Leigh (who sings), Eleanor Parker, Susan Denberg (from Frankenstein Created Woman), Barry Sullivan, Lloyd Nolan, Murray Hamilton, Les Crane, Paul Mantee, and George Takei. It includes some (at the time, daring) nudity and nightmare sequences. William Conrad was the executive producer.

Wolfman Jack in American Grafitti.

AMERICAN DREAMER

(1971) D/S/P: Laurence Schiller D/S: L. M. Kit Carson S/A: Dennis Hopper

An ego-trip movie from Dennis Hopper, who is seen (with his brother) working on the at-the-time unreleased The Last Movie, at home in Taos, shooting guns, taking drugs, receiving visitors, and having a good time in a bathtub full of naked women. For Hopper completists only. There's a soundtrack LP too, on Mediart, featuring Gene Clark, the Hello People, and others.

AMERICAN DRIVE-IN

(Vestron, 1985) D/S/P: Krishna Shaw S: David Ball

A night at a drive-in, with a comedy/revenge plot. Scenes from Hard Rock Zombies, by the same people, are economically used.

THE AMERICAN FRIEND

(Pacific Arts, 1976) D/S: Wim Wenders US/France/Germany (Der Amerikanische Freund)

Dennis Hopper, as crooked art dealer Tom Ripley, travels around Europe trying to double-cross (and help) Bruno Ganz, who has been set up by international mobsters. They convince Ganz that he's terminally ill and should commit two murders. It's based on Patricia Highsmith's novel Ripley's Game and makes a fascinating, classic movie. Ganz sings the Kinks "Too Much on My Mind." With directors Nicholas Ray as an artist and Sam Fuller as a gangster, and singer David Blue. The film is 123 minutes and subtitled. Wenders also codirected Lightning Over Water (1980) with Ray, about his last days before dying.

AMERICAN GOTHIC

(Vidmark, 1987) D: John Hough S: Terry Lens P: John Quested UK/Canada

Three young couples take a private plane to a Pacific Northwestern island to camp out and find themselves stranded. They're typical slasher-movie jerks who deserve to die. Only Sarah Torgov, as Cynthia, has a personality, because she was in an asylum after her baby drowned. They discover a family who live like it was still the 20s (sort of) and act very strict. Ma is Yvonne De Carlo and stern Pa is Rod Steiger: "No Devil's play in this house!" They have accents that don't seem to fit the region and three middle-aged "children" who kill people and store bodies in the basement. The daughter has a mummified baby. With the offscreen violence and attempts at humor, this movie could have been made in the early 70s. Michael J. Pollard, who was in America and The American Way (Riders of the Storm) around the same time, is fun in American Gothic as Woody. He has the same baby face and funny puzzled smile as he did in the 60s. Pa whips the other brother "in the name of God" after he has sex with a dead female visitor (also offscreen, of course). With Mark Lindsay Chapman and Fiona Hutchison. British director Hough had done movies for Hammer and Disney.

AMERICAN GRAFFITI

(MCA, 1973) D/S: George Lucas S: Willard Huyuck, Gloria Katz P: Francis Ford Coppola

A brilliant nostalgia movie about one summer day and night in 1962 before the 50s had really ended for good. The cast of (then new) stars is excellent. With Richard Dreyfuss, Ronny Howard, Paul LeMat, Charles Martin Smith, Cindy Williams, Candy Clark, 12-year-old Mackenzie Phillips, Harrison Ford, Bo Hopkins, Wolfman Jack, Kathy Quinlan, Joe Spano, Debralee Scott, Kay Lenz, Suzanne Somers, and Flash Cadillac and the Continental Kids, who do "Louie Louie" and other songs. The cinematography is by Haskel Wexler and the choreography is by Toni Basil. The hit double-LP MCA soundtrack with the famous carhop cover was a great original oldies compilation (but Kenneth Anger and Martin Scorsese used the oldies idea first in the 60s). Some scenes were restored when American Graffiti was rereleased in 1979. The full version runs 112 minutes. The PG hit was nominated for five Oscars, made over $55 million, and taught mooning to new generations. It also spawned the popular but awful Happy Days TV series and the much-hated More American Graffiti.

AMERICAN HOT WAX

(Paramount, 1976) D: Floyd Mutrix S: John Kaye P: Art Linson

Alan Freed (Tim McIntire) arranges an anniversary show (his last) at the Brooklyn Paramount while being harassed by the authorities. It's a simple plot but a great recreation of what might have gone on at an all-star rock show before most of the major talent got busted or died. Real, still-great rockers (Chuck Berry, Jerry Lee Lewis) play themselves 20 years earlier, and typical but not "real" doo-wop and rock groups appear. With Laraine Newman as a Carole King character, Jay Leno, Fran Drescher, Jeff Altman, Cameron Crowe, Hamilton Camp, and Screamin' Jay Hawkins. The double soundtrack on A&M features good oldies and one LP of new live material from the film.

AMERICAN KICKBOXER

(Warner, 1992) D: Frans Nel S: Emil Kolbe P: Anant Singh

John Barrett stars as a wrongly imprisioned world champ who fights his way back to the top. With Keith Vitale and Brad Morris. The film was made in South Africa. American Kickboxer II (Vidmark, 1993) starred Dale "Apollo" Cook.

Screamin' Jay Hawkins in American Hot Wax.

AMERICAN NIGHTMARE

(Media, 1981) D: Don McBreart
S: John Sheppard P: Ray Sager

A man (Lawrence S. Day) searches for his runaway sister (as in Hardcore) in the red-light district, and there's a psycho killing strippers. Michael Ironside is a Toronto cop. There are lots of topless stripper scenes. With Lora Stanley, Claudia Udy, Alexandra Paul (Christine), and Leonore Zann.

AMERICAN NINJA

(MGM/UA, 1985) D: Sam Firstenberg
S: James R. Silke P: Golan/Globus

In the first of a series of movies about soldiers who use martial arts from Cannon, Michael Dudikoff (in his first starring role) is Joe Armstrong. He has amnesia but uncovers military-base corruption. Curtis Jackson (Steve James) is his fighting buddy. Black Star (Tadashi Yamashita/ Bronson Lee) works for an arms dealer and uses a laser ray. With Judie Aaronson. Filmed in and set in the Philippines.

AMERICAN NINJA II: THE CONFRONTATION

(Media, 1987) D: Sam Firstenberg S: Gary Conway, James Booth P: Golan/Globus

Dudikoff and James return to beat up more bad guys. The heroin-dealer villain (and co-scriptwriter) is I Was A Teenage Frankenstein star Gary Conway. He makes scientists create "super-killer ninjas" on a Caribbean island. There's lots of action.

AMERICAN NINJA III: BLOOD HUNT

(Warner, 1989) D/S: Cedric Sundstrom
P: Harry Alan Towers

David Bradley (who at least can fight) replaces series star Michael Dudikoff and is teamed with Steve James, back again as Curtis Jackson. Good old Marjoe Gortner, as Cobra, creates a germ weapon, and there's yet another Enter the Dragon style martial-arts tournament on an island. With Michele Chan. The Cannon release was filmed in South Africa.

AMERICAN NINJA IV: THE ANNIHILATION

(Warner, 1991) D: Cedric Sundstrom
S: David Geeves P: Christopher Pearce

An Arab sheik with a compact nuclear weapon hires ninjas to fight for him in a small African country (it was filmed in South Africa). The heroes try to rescue commandos being held for ransom. Dudikoff (from the first two movies) returns with David Bradley. James Booth is the main villain, and also featured is South African Ken Gampu (from The Gods Must Be Crazy).

AMERICAN POP

(1981) D: Ralph Bakshi S: Ronni Kern P: Martin Ransohoff

Bakshi's animated story of the history of American pop music, from the turn of the century up to new wave and punk rock, is interesting and has some great rotoscope animation, but it's pretty one-sided. It centers on Jewish immigrants from Russia and their descendants, from the days of vaudeville and burlesque to beatniks, folk musicians, and hippies and drugs (a Janis Joplin type singer ODs), and ends with a Springsteen/Seeger/Presley combination superstar. I don't see how a history of American pop music could totally leave out black and country artists! Most of the songs are remakes, but Lou Reed is one of the various artists on the soundtrack released by MCA. With the voices of Ron Thompson, Roz Kelly, and Frank DeKova. From Columbia.

AMERICAN SAMURAI

(Warner, 1992) D: Sam Firstenberg
S: John Corcoran P: Allan Greenblatt

David Bradley (from the American Ninja movies) is an American reporter and martial arts expert with a yakuza drug-dealer half brother (Mark Dascascos). He ends up participating in "live blade" death battles against swordsmen from around the world in an arena in Turkey. With Valerie Trapp. The Cannon release was scripted by the editor of Inside Kung-Fu magazine.

THE AMERICAN SCREAM

(Innovid, 1988) D/S/P: Mitchell Linden

In this horror comedy, some kids kill adults during Christmas vacation in the Sierra Nevada mounains. With Kevin Kaye, Pons Maar, Jennifer Darling, and Edy Williams as a stripper.

AMERICAN SHAOLIN: KING OF THE KICKBOXERS II

(Academy, 1992) D: Lucas Lowe
S/P: Keith W. Strandberg

A guy from Ashbury Park New Jersey (Reese Madigan) studies martial arts in China, then returns to America to fight Trent Bushy. Most of the time is devoted to monks teaching martial arts. The Asian-backed feature is not a sequel.

AMERICAN TIGER

(Academy, 1989) D/S: "Martin Doleman" Sergio Martino S: Roberto Leoni, Sauro Scandlini Italy (American Rickshaw; Riscio)

A college student in Miami (Olympic gymnast Mitch Gaylord) is framed for the murder of an evangelist's son in this convoluted martial-arts fantasy. He befriends an ageless Asian witch (Michi Kobi) and teams up with a stripper (redhead Victoria Prouty) to find the real killer. With Donald Pleasence, as an evil reverend after a magical statue, and Sherrie Rose.

AMERICA'S DEADLIEST HOME VIDEOS

(Randum, 1992) D/S: Jack Perez P/A: Mick Wynhoff

Danny Bonaduce, a former Partridge Family child star, was a staple of scandal magazines when this video production shot on High 8 was made. He plays a guy recording his road trip with a camcorder, who is forced by a trio of criminals to document their robbery and killing spree. Most of the tape is seen from the camera's point of view. It was made in Wisconsin, and the FX are by Jeffrey Lyle Segal, who also worked on Henry.

AMERICA 3000

(MGM/UA, 1986) D/S: David Engelbach
P: Golan/Globus

Laurene Landon as a post-nuke barbarian warrior is the only reason to watch this Road Warrior–inspired movie. One guy makes himself president because he's found clothes and a ghetto blaster in a time capsule. Chuck Wagner leads a rebellion against the female characters, and there's a big ape-man monster and martial-arts battles. With Carmilla Sparv. The PG-13 Cannon feature was filmed in Israel.

AMERIKA

(1987) D/S: Donald Wrye P: Richard L. O'Connor

In the ultimate Reagan-era-fear-of-the-Evil Empire project, the USSR takes over the US without a war, declares martial law and puts citizens in labor camps! Kris Kristofferson stars as a presidential candidate who's sent to a political prison in this ABC-TV miniseries, first shown in seven parts. Most of it takes place in Nebraska. With Robert Urich, Sam Neill, Cindy Pickett, Mariel Hemingway, Christine Lahti, Wendy Hughes, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Ivan Dixon, and Lara Flynn Boyle. The series cost roughly $40 million to produce. The USSR protested vociferously.

AMIN: THE RISE AND FALL

(Thorn EMI, 1981) D/P: Sharad Patel
S: Wade Huie P: Christopher Sutton
UK/Kenya (The Rise and Fall of Idi Amin)

This Times Square classic stars Amin look-alike Joseph Olita as the notorious dictator who ruled Uganda from 1971 to 1978. It's bloody and exploitative, sure, but what do you expect in a movie about a mass killer who ate his enemies? The director is from India. And look for Barbet Schroeder's documentary General Idi Amin Dada (Warner, 1974) for the real thing.

THE AMITYVILLE CURSE

(Vidmark, 1989) D: Tom Berry S/P: Michael Kreuger P: Franco Battista Canada

Yuppies buy a house where a priest has been murdered. They start fixing it up and die one by one. This has nothing to do with any other Amityville movies and is based on a novel by Hans Holzer. With Kim Coates, Jan Rubes, Helen Hughes, Damna Wightman and Cassandra Gava (Conan).

AMITYVILLE III

(Vestron, 1983) D: Richard Fleischer S: "William Wales"/David E. Ambrose P: Stephen F. Keston (Amityville 3-D; Amityville: The Demon)

This is not a sequel, the producers claimed. Whatever it is, it was rated PG (the first two films received R ratings), was from DEG, and has nothing new except for the good 3-D effects which you can't experience on tape anyway. Journalist Tony Roberts moves into the famous house and strange stuff happens. With Tess Harper, Candy Clark, Robert Joy as a parapsychologist, and John Beal. Lori Loughlin and Meg Ryan (who wants to have sex with a ghost) are the teens in the cast. The original Amityville Horror was an AIP release. Orion (which became AIP after several takeovers) released II and III, which were followed by even worse Amityville movies.

THE AMITYVILLE HORROR: THE EVIL ESCAPES, PART IV

(Vidmark, 1989) D/S: Sandor Stern P: Barry Bernardi (Amityville IV: The Evil Escapes)

Originally made for NBC-TV, here's a sequel that seems determined to induce sleep. An ugly, possessed lamp purchased at an Amityville yard sale is sent to the California home of grandma Jane Wyman. Her widowed daughter (Patty Duke) and three kids move in and the trouble starts. A parakeet dies in a toaster oven, a hand is ground up in a garbage disposal, and a chainsaw goes out of control. An exorcist priest arrives from New York City to help. For some reason the video release of this TV movie is rated R. Stern wrote the original Amityville Horror (1979).

AMITYVILLE 92: IT'S ABOUT TIME

(Republic., 1992) D: Tony Randell S/P: Christopher DeFaria S: Antonio Toro

A haunted clock turns a sunny suburban house into a place where weird things happen. The architect dad (Stephen Macht) suffers from a bite from a rabid (phantom) dog. The nice daughter (Megan Ward) becomes a sex tease and helps her boyfriend sink into a pool of goo. The confused teen son is accused of painting swastikas on a neighbor's home. Only Nita Talbot understands what's going on and she's impaled by a giant penguin (!). Dick Miller has a bit part, and there's one good (but out of place) sex scene with one-time Miss Universe Shawn Weatherly. It's the 6th Amityville movie and there's no real reason to watch it.

AMITYVILLE: A NEW GENERATION

(Republic, 1993) D: John Murlowski S/P: Chris DeFaria S: Antonio M. Toro

Blond Lala Sloatman (formally billed as just Lala) stars as an artist who moves into a loft building. People see their deaths in a haunted mirror, and lengthy flashbacks to an asylum "explain" it all. With Ross Partridge, Terry O'Quinn as a police detective, Julia Nickson-Soul as an artist named Suki, David Naughton as the landlord, and Richard Roundtree as a bald artist. Lala and Julia have topless scenes.

AMONG THE LIVING DEAD: See ZOMBIE 4

THE AMOROUS SEX: See SWEET BEAT

AMSTERDAM KILL

(Columbia, 1977) D/S: Robert Clouse S: Gregory Tiefer P: Andre Morgan US/Hong Kong

Robert Mitchum is a retired narc lured to Hong Kong to help bust a drug ring. Bradford Dillman, Richard Egan, Leslie Nielsen, and Key Luke all show up in this adventure by the director of Enter the Dragon. Raymond Chow was the executive producer. Clouse next made the obscure Omega Connection and Game of Death, using footage of the late Bruce Lee.

AMSTERDAMNED

(Vestron, 1988) D/S/P/M: Dick Mass P: Laurens Geels Netherlands

A cop (Huub Stapel) is after a killer scuba diver scarred by toxic chemicals who hides in canals. There's an impressive speedboat chase (very similar to one in Puppet on a Chain, also filmed in Amsterdam), some intentional humor, and the Jaws-inspired theme of trying to keep the murders from hurting tourism. With Monique van de Ven (also in The Lift by the same director).

THE AMY FISHER STORY

(Capitol Cities, 1992) D: Andy Tennant S: Janet Brownell

This was just one of three (!) "Long Island Lolita" movies, part of a media phenomenon. Drew Barrymore stars as the real-life Amy who tries to kill the wife of her lover, mechanic Joey Buttafuoco (Anthony John Denison). Harley Jane Kozak costars as a (real) NYC newspaper reporter. The tape of the ABC-TV movie includes extra sex scenes featuring a body double. Other versions of the same overhyped story were CBS-TV's Casualties of Love with Alyssa Milano (and Lawrence Tierney) and NBC-TV's Lethal Lolita: Amy Fisher—My Story with Noelle Parker.

THE ANATOMIST

(Sinister, 1961) D/S: Leonard William P: Vincent Johnson UK

This is one of many features based on the story of the Edinburgh grave-robbers Burke and Hare (among them is the 1945 Karloff film The Body Snatcher). It was made just after the better-known Mania (The Flesh and the Fiends). Alastair Sim stars as Dr. Knox, with Jill Bennett, Adrienne Corri, George Cole, and Michael Ripper. Harry Alan Towers and Richard Gordon were involved with the production.

ANATOMY OF A PSYCHO

(SW, 1961) D/P: "Brooke L. Peters"/ Boris Petroff S: Jane Mann, Larry Lee

The Ohio Gazette announces, MARCO DIES TONIGHT! The killer's obsessed brother, Chet (Darrell Howell), gets together a small "gang" in a messy shack hangout pad for revenge. Ronnie Burns (the son of George and Gracie!) is Micky, the boyfriend of Chet's sister and the son of the witness whose testimony sent Marco to the gas chamber. The gang (in hoods) beat the DA's son, fight the judge's son at a party and burn the judge's house. A detective (with terrible skin) finally gets the misguided "psycho" to break down and cry, "Help me!" With Pamela Lincoln (from The Tingler) and Judy Howard and Russ Bender (both from The Ghost of Dragstrip Hollow). Petroff also made The Unearthly (1957) with Tor Johnson and Shotgun Wedding (1963), which was written by Ed Wood Jr.

AND GOD SAID TO CAIN

(Unicorn, 1969) D/S: Anthony Dawson/Antonio Margheriti S/P: Giovanni Addessi Italy/Germany (Shoot Twice; E Dio Disse A Caino)

Klaus Kinski stars as a man who is wrongly imprisoned for murder, is pardoned, and seeks vengeance. The post–Civil War western features Peter Carsten and Marcella Michelangelo. Margheriti also made many horror and science-fiction movies.

ANDROID

(Media, 1982) D: Aaron Lipstadt S/A: Don Opper S: James Reigle P: Mary Ann Fisher

Klaus Kinski, as Dr. Daniel, attempts to create the perfect female android (Brie Howard) on a space station. Don Opper is the bald Max 404, a sensitive clone who picks up human traits watching old movies. Three escaped convicts arrive to complicate matters. Android is one of many low-budget features filmed on the familiar sets from Battle Beyond the Stars (1980), but it's the best. The stars are perfect in their roles, and Android manages to be exciting, funny, and very charming. It was one of Roger Corman's last New World productions.

Klaus Kinski in Android.

AND THE WALLS CAME TUMBLING DOWN

(1984) D: Paul Annett S: Dennis Spooner, John Peacock UK

Barbie Benton stars as a psychic American searching for salvageable historical landmarks for the British government. Flashbacks reveal that in the 15th century the church she's inspecting was used by Satanists, and a man was walled up alive. Modern-day characters are reincarnations, and a demolition worker is strangled by electric chords. Peter Wyngarde, Brian Deacon, and Carol Royl also appear in this TV movie.

ANDY AND THE AIRWAVE RANGERS

(RCA/Columbia 1989) D/S: Deborah Brock S/P: Jed Horovitz (Andy Coby's Incredible Video Adventure)

An evil wizard imprisons kids inside a TV set, where they encounter lots of footage from Space Rangers and other Roger Corman productions. With "special appearances" by Bo Svenson, Vince Edwards, Erik Estrada, and Richard Thomas. Corman was the executive producer of the PG-rated feature.

ANDY WARHOL'S FLESH, HEAT, TRASH: See FLESH, HEAT, TRASH

AND YOU THOUGHT YOUR PARENTS WERE WEIRD

(Vidmark, 1991) D/S: Tony Cookson P: Just Betzer

Young brothers (Joshua Miller and Edan Gross) invent a stumpy robot with a vacuum cleaner body to sell so the family can keep their house. During a Halloween-party séance, the spirit of their late scientist father (the voice of Alan Thicke) takes over. The PG fantasy comedy features Marcia Strassman from Honey, I Shrunk the Kids as the mom and Gustav Vintas as the bad guy.

ANGEL

(Starmaker, 1983) D: Robert Vincent O'Neil S: Joseph M. Cala P: Roy Watts, Donald P. Borchers

The first "in-house" production of New World after Roger Corman sold it was an exploitation hit. "High-school honor student by day, hooker by night!" claimed the effective ads. Innocent-looking Donna Wilkes is 15-year-old Molly, a Hollywood schoolgirl who calls herself Angel on the streets. Cliff Gorman is the police detective, and John Diehl (from Miami Vice) is the psycho killer he's after. The down-and-out characters Angel hangs out with help make the movie memorable: Susan Tyrrell as a lesbian, Dick Shawn as a transvestite named Mae, and Rory Calhoun as an old street cowboy. With Mel Carter, Elaine Giftos, and Ross Hagen. Andrew Davis was the cinematographer. Avenging Angel was the first sequel.

ANGEL III: THE FINAL CHAPTER

(Starmaker, 1988) D/S: Tom DeSimone P: Arnold Orgolini

Each Angel movie has a different actress playing the avenging teen hooker. This time, she's played by Mitzi Kapture (Silk Stalkings). After a gambling ship with topless waitresses is raided in New York City, Angel, a photographer, returns to LA. Her estranged mother reveals that Angel has a 14-year-old sister, Michelle, before being blown up. Star villainess Maud Adams says, "This is the United Fucking States of America. We don't car-bomb people here!" Angel goes undercover as a hooker and porno actress to find Michelle (Tawny Fere). The action involves drug smuggling and a slave market. Richard Roundtree plays a cop. Mark Blankfield plays "Spanky," a gay ex-street hustler who of course, is killed. Dick Miller, Toni Basil, Roxanne Kernohan, and Laura Albert also show up for a while. Maud Adams, once a Ford model, ends up frozen in Spanky's ice cream truck. A poster for director DeSimone's Reform School Girls is on a wall. For all the in-jokes about the porno biz, you'd think this mediocre sequel was made by people who actually made porno movies. It was. The end theme is by Lou Rawls. Chris Spedding is credited with "additional guitar." From New World.

ANGEL IV: UNDERCOVER

(Live, 1994) D: George Axmith S: Dobe B. Levinson, Frank Chance P: Brad Southwick, Gary De Pew

This one has no connection with the other American Angel movies. It stars blond Darlene Vogel as a police photographer who investigates a friend's murder. With Roddy McDowall as a pill-popping former rock star and Mark DeCarlo (from the Studs TV show).

ANGEL

(World, 1986) D/S: Teresa Woo D: Raymond Leung P: Gary Chan, Amy Choi Hong Kong (Iron Angels)

Martial-arts movies became more modern and international in the 80s. This action-packed epic takes place in Hong Kong, Bangkok, Tokyo, and the Philippines. It includes large-scale battles, bombs, machine guns, torture, lots of James Bond–style devices and excellent martial-arts fight scenes. The Angel organization is led by a Chinese-American man (Alex Fong) and includes two Chinese women— a singer (Elaine Lui) and a secretary (Moon Lee)—and a Japanese martial-arts master. They try to stop the awesome kung-fu-fighting drug lord Madame Yeoung (Yukari Oshima). She wears all black and cuts four fingers off a man's hand during a corporate board meeting.Then she whips a captive till he's bloody, laughs, and licks the blood. Some surprising FX must have been inspired by the Evil Dead movies. The exciting finale features the three female stars (after most of the men have been killed off) fighting in a factory. Subtitles are in English and Chinese. Angel was a big hit and spawned some official sequels and other series like the Operation Pink Squad movies, plus many more features trying to cash in by putting Angel in their titles.

ANGEL II

(World, 1988) D/P: Teresa Woo/ Raymund Leong S: William Hsu Hong Kong (Hong Kong Police Madame II)

Alex Fong, Moon Lee (now disguised as a businesswoman) and Elaine Lui return with a new angel (Kharina Isa). There's a Hitler-fan villain with a small army, transvestites, and jungle warfare. Angel III (World, 1989) with Fong Lee, and Kharina Isa featured terrorists led by a Qaddafi type in Thailand.

ANGEL COMES TO BROOKLYN

(1945) D: Leslie Goodwins S: Stanley Paley, June Carroll P: Armand Schaefer

Charles Kemper is an angel who puts on a Broadway show. Kaye Dowd, Robert Duke, and C. Montague Shaw star in this forgotten Republic B film by the director of The Mummy's Curse, featuring FX by Howard and Theodore Lydecker.

ANGEL EYES

(Atlantic, 1991) D/S: Gary Graver
P: Jeffrey B. Mallian, Steve Armogida

Angel (Monique Gabrielle) is a killer teen who tries to ruin the relationship her real estate developer stepfather (John Phillip Law) is having with Rachel Vickers (aka porn star Raven). The two women have many sex scenes (including one with each other) and a sub plot concerns a loan shark (Erik Estrada). Rachel Harrison, Suzanne Ager, and Hoke Howell are also in the "psycho erotic thriller" from executive producer Fred Olen Ray.

ANGELFIST

(New Horizons, 1992) D/P: Cirio H. Santiago
S: Anthony L. Greene

If you've seen TNT Jackson (1975) or Firecracker (1981), both by Santiago, you know the "American lady fighter avenges the death of her sister" routine right down to the topless kickboxing scene. Yes, executive producer Roger Corman had Santiago use the same script again. Cat (Catya) Sassoon (daughter of Vidal and actress Beverly Adams) stars in this version. She's very good doing backflips and high kicks and obviously had breast implants for nude scenes. Fights take place in an ice house (remember Bruce Lee), on a subway, and even in a ring, and there's a cockfight. Melissa Moore takes showers (there are lots of showers in this movie), is tied up, and also fights. Michael Shaner and Ken Metcalfe also appear. Made in the Philippines.

ANGEL HEART

(IVE, 1987) D/S: Alan Parker
P: Alan Marshall, Elliot Kastner

For a modern horror movie, this has a complex plot and great atmosphere, but it's no classic. It's based on the novel Fallen Angel, by William Hjortsberg. In 1955, Brooklyn detective Harry Angel (Mickey Rourke) goes to Harlem and New Orleans to find a missing singer. People he visits die (head in fan, drowned in gumbo). Lisa Bonet is Epiphany Proudfoot, daughter of a voodoo priestess. Because she was on the highly-rated Cosby TV series at the time, and there was a controversial sex-and-raining-blood scene in Angel Heart, it got a lot of publicity. Robert De Niro plays one of his eccentric supporting roles, with long nails and hair, as Louis Cyphre. With Charlotte Rampling, Brownie McGhee, and Kathleen Wilhoite. The video release restored 10 seconds missing from the theatrical version. The Trevor Jones soundtrack (featuring some good blues classics) is on Island.

ANGEL OF DEATH

(Starmaker, 1986) D/S: " Frank Drew White"/Andrew Bianchi S: Gregory Freed, Jesús Franco S/P: Daniel Lesou (Commando Mengele)

Christopher Mitchum stars in a movie about Nazi hunters tracking down Dr. Josef Mengele (Howard Vernon). With Franco regulars Jack Taylor, Robert Foster, and name star Fernando Rey, and Dora Doll. The Dr. Moreau–like experiments include a monkey man, but despite all the buildup we never get to see the mutants. There's lots of shooting, though. Filmed in Uruguay and released by New World.

ANGEL OF DESTRUCTION

(New Horizons, 1994) D/S: Charles Phillip Moore
P: Cirio H. Santiago

Maria Ford stars as a blond martial-arts-expert cop and former stripper in Honolulu who takes over a murder case after her undercover private-eye stepsister (Charlie Spradling) is killed. Jessica Mark plays a blond lesbian stripper and rock star who performs a topless S&M stage show with her female partner (Chandra). Both have silicone breasts and want to be "back on the cover of Rolling Stone." Her mob backer says he wants "more Peggy Lee and less Marquis de Sade." Meanwhile, a big, scary, dead-eyed mercenary psycho (Jimmy Broome) kills Asian hookers. There's lots of mindless stuff to enjoy here, including fights, shootings, explosions, crotch kicks, topless videos, severed fingers, and Ford in stripper, topless kung-fu, and slo-mo sex scenes. This Philippines production is a remake of Black Belt.

ANGEL OF H.E.A.T.

(Vestron, 1981) D/P: Meryl A. Schreiberman
S: Helen Sanford

Marilyn Chambers, as agent Angel Harmony, works for "Harmony's Elite Attack Team" and has to save the world from a mad scientist with the ultimate weapon and androids. The popularity of the Charlie's Angels series ensured success for many mediocre movies like this. Made by the creator of Parts: The Clonus Horror (1979), it was filmed in the Lake Tahoe region and features lots of nudity and comedy. It debuted on cable TV. Mary Woronov is a lesbian H.E.A.T. agent featured in a mud-wrestling scene. One-time porno star Chambers was also in David Cronenberg's Rabid (1977).

ANGEL ON MY SHOULDER

(Sinister, 1946) D: Archie Mayo S: Harry Segall, Roland Kibbee P: Charles R. Rogers

Mickey Rourke in Angel Heart.

Paul Muni as a murdered ex-con goes to Hell in an elevator with the Devil (Claude Rains), then is sent to earth as a respected judge. It's a good fantasy with serious overtones and includes an excellent Hell sequence. Anne Baxter, Onslow Stevens, Jonathan Hale, and Fritz Leiber are also in the U.A. release. The music is by Dimitri Tiomkin. Rains had also been in the somewhat similar Here Comes Mr. Jordan (1941), based on a play by Segall. A 1980 TV remake starred Peter Strauss.

ANGEL ON THE AMAZON

(1948) D: John Auer S: Lawrence Kimbal

Vera Hruba Ralston (whose husband, Herbert J. Yates, owned Republic Pictures) is a woman who becomes an ageless jungle queen because she kills a black panther. It doesn't make a whole lot of sense, but it's pretty bizarre. With George Brent, Brian Aherne, Richard Crane, and Walter Reed.

ANGELS

(New Pacific 1971) D/S: Joe Viola
S/P: Jonathan Demme (Angels Hard as They Come; Angels: Hell on Harleys)

Scott Glenn stars as Long John, a sullen, bored, pill-dealing Hell's Angel. He arrives with a friend on Easy Rider–style bikes at Lost Cause, a ghost town where the Dragons, led by the sadistic "General" (Charles Dierkop wearing a WWI German helmet), party with terrified hippies. He saves a blonde (who had asked "What about Altamont?" and brought up Manson's name) from being raped. She dies from a stab wound, and he and two others are blamed, jailed, put on trial, found guilty, dragged behind bikes, and generally degraded. It all ends in a violent, all-out battle when fellow Angels arrive. This was the first feature credit for Demme, who admits the plot was lifted from Kurosawa's Rashomon. It was originally released by Corman's New World. Gary Busey, who plays a peaceful hippie, was once a sidekick to a Tulsa, Oklahoma, TV horror host. He probably got his first screen-acting job because he was the drummer for Carp (there's one LP on Epic), who did the soundtrack of OK instrumental rock. With James Iglehart, Janet Wood, Gary Littlejohn, and Sharon Peckinpah. Demme and Viola made The Hot Box next.

ANGELS BRIGADE

(Vestron, 1978) D/S: Greydon Clark S: Alvin L. Fast

Seven women led by a lounge singer (Susan Lynn Kiger) go after drug dealers (led by Peter Lawford). They wear bikinis and travel in a "super van." The veteran cast includes Jack Palance, Neville Brand, Jim Backus, Pat Buttram, Alan Hale Jr., and Arthur Godfrey (!). With Darby Hinton, Jacquelin Cole, and Sylvia Anderson. A PG-rated New World release.

ANGELS: HELL ON HARLEYS: See ANGELS

ANGELS IN THE OUTFIELD

(MGM, 1951) D/P: Clarence Brown
S: Dorothy Kingsley, George Wells

Paul Douglas, as the brawling Pittsburgh Pirates manager, promises an angel (the voice of James Whitmore) that he'll be good if his team gets heavenly help. Donna Corcoran is the orphan who can see the heavenly choir on the playing field and tells two reporters (Janet Leigh and Keenan Wynn). With Spring Byington and Ellen Corby as nuns, Lewis Stone, Bruce Bennett, and Marvin Kaplan. Guest stars include Bing Crosby, and Ty Cobb, Joe DiMaggio, and other baseball greats. Douglas was also in the baseball fantasy It Happens Every Spring (1949).

Charles Dierkop in Angels.

ANGELS IN THE OUTFIELD

(Walt Disney, 1994) D: William Dear S: Holly Goldberg Sloan P: Irby Smith, Joe Roth

Since Field of Dreams (1989) and other baseball movies became box-office winners, this PG remake made sense, but it's even sappier than the original and has more FX. Only a foster child (Gordon Levitt) can see angel Christopher Lloyd, who leads a group of angels helping a team to win. Danny Glover costars as the team manager, with Brenda Fricker, Tony Danza, and Ben Johnson. It was shot in Oakland Stadium.

ANGELS OF THE CITY

(Raedon, 1989) D/S/A: Lawrence Hilton-Jacobs S/P: Joseph Merhi S: Raymond Martino P: Richard Pepin

It's the first feature directed by the former Welcome Back, Kotter costar, who became an action-video star in the late 80s. LA coeds dressed as hookers for a sorority initiation are kidnapped by pimps. Hilton-Jacobs plays a police detective.

ANGELS WASH THEIR FACES

(1939) D: Ray Enright S: Michael Fessier, Niven Busch, Robert Buckner P: Hal B. Wallis

The adult stars of this vintage Warner Brothers juvenile-delinquent movie are Ronald Reagan as the district attorney and Ann Sheridan (from the first Angels film). Frankie Thomas is Sheridan's little brother, a good guy getting into trouble. Billy Halop (Billy), Leo Gorcey (Leo), Bobby Jordan (Bernie), Gabriel Dell (Luigi), Huntz Hall (Huntz), and Bernard Punsley (Sleepy) are the real stars, though. With Patrick Remsen, Bonita Granville, and Margaret Hamilton.

ANGELS WITH DIRTY FACES

(MGM, CBS/Fox, 1938) D: Michael Curtiz S: John Wexley, Warren Duff P: Samuel Bischoff

Lower East Side childhood buddies grow up and become a gangster (James Cagney) and a priest (Pat O'Brien) in a classic Warner Brothers jd and prison film. Humphey Bogart (in his third film with the Dead End Kids) also stars, with Ann Sheridan and George Bancroft. The kids all had new names again—Billy Halop (Soapy), Bobby Jordan (Swing), Leo Gorcey (Bim), Gabriel Dell (Patsy), Huntz Hall (Crabface), and Bernard Punsley (Hunky)—and were billed as "the Crime School and Dead End Kids." Nobody forgets the great ending, when tough Cagney goes to the chair and turns "yellow," screaming and begging hysterically so the kids won't consider him a hero. Music by Max Steiner. The MGM video version is colorized.

ANGEL TOWN

(Imperial, 1990) D/P: Eric Karson S: S. Warren P: Ash R. Shaw

We didn't need another post–Jean-Claude Van Damme fighting star, but French kickboxer Oliver Gruner starred in this anyway. He's a fighting postgrad LA student who helps Theresa Saldana and her family in Watts because gangs have been attacking them. With Tony Valentino, Peter Kwong, and Mark Dacascos. Karson also directed The Octagon, with Chuck Norris.

ANGKOR—CAMBODIA EXPRESS

(Vestron, 1981) D/P: Lek Kitiparaporn S: Roger Crutchley, Kailan P: Richard Randall Italy/Thailand (Kampuchea Express)

Somebody had to make a Pol Pot/Cambodia massacre exploitation movie, so the producer of The Wild Wild World of Jayne Mansfield decided he was the man for the job. It seems like there would be more movies about the subject. Robert Walker Jr. stars with the late Christopher George, Woody Strode, and Nancy Kwan. At least they did it before The Killing Fields.

ANGST

(1984) D/S: Gerald Kargl S/C: Zbigniew Rybczynski Austria (Fear)

In one of the most effective and simple psycho killer movies around, a young man (Erwin Leder) is released from prison after ten years. He breaks into a suburban home and kills the inhabitants when they return home — and gets away with it. It was supposedly based on a true incident. Rybczynski was known for his interesting rock videos. You have to wonder whether John McNaughton managed to see this before making Henry: Portrait of a Serial Killer.

ANGUISH

(Fox, 1987) D/S: Bigas Luna P: Pepón Coromina Spain (Angustia)

If you like horror movies with cosmic overtones, look for this bizarre film within a film within a film. Michael Lerner is a psychotic Los Angeles lab technician who collects eyeballs and is dominated by his mother (irritating Zelda Rubenstein, from the Poltergeist movies). He watches the silent film The Lost World in a theater, but everything we've seen turns out to be a film called The Mommy, being watched in a theater. A man (Ángel José) watching it starts killing people in the theater. There's a warning about subliminal messages on the soundtrack, but even if that's a lie, Anguish is very disorienting, as intended.

ANIMAL INSTINCTS

(Academy, 1992) D: Gregory Hippolyte S: Georges des Essentes P: Andrew Garroni

This is based on an actual Florida case where a Florida voyeur cop (Maxwell Caulfield) managed his nympho hooker wife (Shannon Whirry, who narrates) and videotaped her sessions with other cops (and some women). With Delia Sheppard as a rich lesbian, Mitch Gaylord, Erika Nann, and name-value guest stars Jan-Michael Vincent as a mayoral candidate, John Saxon as a lawyer, and David Carradine as a blackmailing strip-club owner. It's available in R or unrated versions. Whirry, who had acted on stage and in Out for Justice, went on to star in more "erotic thrillers" by Hippolyte (aka Greg Dark of the Dark Brothers porno movie fame).

ANIMAL INSTINCTS 2

(Academy, 1994) D: Gregory Hippolyte S: Darryl Haney P: Andrew Garroni

Joanna (Shannon Whirry) returns, now divorced but still talking to the camera and narrating more flashbacks. Her new psycho/voyeur/security-expert suburban neighbor (Woody Brown) hides video cameras in her house. Meanwhile Joanna takes showers, poses nude for an artist, and joins in a threesome. This sequel doesn't have guest stars to take time away from the sex scenes. With Elizabeth Sandifer as the neighbor's wife and Jennifer Campbell. Available R or unrated.

Michael Lerner in Anguish.

ANNA TO THE INFINITE POWER

(RCA, 1982) D/P: Robert Weimer

A telekinetic 12-year-old girl with supernatural powers tries to find her clone sisters while spies pursue her. It's well-made science fiction aimed at kids, with Martha Byrne, Dina Merrill, Jack Gilford, and Donna Mitchell.

THE ANNIHILATOR

(1986) D: Michael Chapman S: Roderick and Bruce Taylor P: Alex Beaton

An NBC-TV series-pilot Terminator copy with Mark Lindsay Chapman as a reporter being chased by the police for killing his girlfriend (Catherine Mary Stewart). She was really a double, one of the evil aliens with radar vision trying to take over Earth. With Susan Blakely, Lisa Blount, Geoffrey Lewis, and Brion James.

THE ANNIHILATORS

(Starmaker, 1985) D: Charles E. Sellier Jr. S: Brian Russell P: Allan C. Pederson

Nam vets take back the streets of the Southpoint neighborhood of Atlanta. They battle horrible killer-rapist punks (led by Paul Koslo) with guns, meat cleavers, and hammers who take a busload of schoolkids hostage. Christopher Stone stars with Lawrence Hilton-Jacobs (from Welcome Back, Kotter) and one-time Brian DePalma regular Gerrit Graham. The director and cinematographer of this violent movie, Henning Schellerup, had made family films for Sun Classics. From New World.

ANOTHER CHANCE

(Republic, 1988) D/S/A: Jesse Vint P: Roger Camras

An actor (Bruce Greenwood) who dies is allowed to return to earth if he can stay faithful to one woman. Some scenes are set in Heaven and Hell, and there are dream sequences, temptresses, a demon, and people impersonating famous actors. With Vanessa Angel, Jeff East, Barbara Edwards, Brenda Bakke, Karen Witter, and Anne Ramsey.

ANOTHER DAY, ANOTHER MAN

(SW, 1966) D/S/P/E: Doris Wishman

Doris Wishman made more than two dozen unique (some say terrible) adults-only movies from the late 50s until the early 80s. Wishman film festivals were later held in Berlin and LA. This wonder opens with nice b/w stills and jazz music. Steve (Tony Gregory) and Ann (Barbi Kemp), happy newlyweds, walk in Central Park. She and her former roommate Tess undress and pose in their underwear. The camera closes in on the radio, then on a bra on the floor. She moves into a new furnished apartment with Steve, who says, "You're so good, so pure. I don't think you could do anything wrong." Burt, a sleazy pimp, visits Tess but falls asleep and dreams. He narrates his dream (a movie in itself) with a voice like a cartoon gangster. The dream features "twins" Dolly and Daisy, a new girl named Meg, and her hayseed boyfriend. The women shower, undress, and dance. The camera wanders to close in on a wastepaper basket, tilts to the ceiling, then back to the floor. Burt wakes: "I must have been dreaming!" Steve gets sick, Ann goes to work for Steve (wearing a mesh body stocking), Tess gets pregnant, and Steve recovers and surprises Ann at "work." The camera shows a potted plant. Steve stabs himself. Sometimes the actors look at the camera. The dialogue was all added later. It's a rare occurrence when a few words happen to match the lips. Great stuff!

ANOTHER 48 HOURS

(Paramount, 1990) D: Walter Hill S: John Fasano, Jeb Stuart, Larry Gross P: Lawrence Gordon, Robert D. Wachs

Eddie Murphy and Nick Nolte return in a stunt-filled action sequel, with bad bikers and drug dealers. A bus rolling over 17 times and then smashing into a semi is a highlight. With Brion James, Ed O'Ross, Bernie Casey, Andrew Divof, Kevin Tighe, Tisha Campbell, and Page Leong. Watch for a scene where cars crash though a movie screen with a giant Kitten Natividad on it.

ANOTHER SON OF SAM

(Neon, 1988) D/S/P: Dale A. Adams

There is nothing about New York City's "Son of Sam" killings in this dreary, no-star, regional movie about murder on a campus.

THE ANTICHRIST

(1991) D/S: Guy Bodart

The makeup, sound, and lighting for this indy horror movie are all substandard. I could live with that, if it weren't so slow-moving. Blond Lorelei Lanford is a woman in Vegas who is pursued by a POV camera. When possessed, she has long black fingernails and a white face, and yells, "Shut up, Bug off! Ha, ha, ha!" With flashbacks to Africa and Palestine and a dream sequence. Robert Berry is the friendly archaeologist/priest. The video box says "unrated," but it would be a PG-13, maybe. The director is from Belgium.

ANTI-CLOCK

(1980) D/P: Jack Bond D/S: Jane Arden UK

An experimental video feature shot in b/w and color that played some US midnight bookings. It was called "a nuclear comedy." By the makers of Separation (1967), a film with music by Procol Harum.

ANTS = IT HAPPENED AT LAKEWOOD MANOR

ANY WHICH WAY YOU CAN

(Warner, 1980) D: Buddy Van Horn S: Stanford Sherman P: Fritz Manes

Clint Eastwood stars as bare-knuckles fighter Philo in the PG sequel to the hit action comedy Every Which Way But Loose (1978). Sondra Locke, Geoffrey Lewis, Ruth Gordon, and of course Clyde the chimp return. The highlight is an all-out bare-knuckles fight with Eastwood and William Smith that took a week to film. With gangsters, bikers, country music, Harry Guardino, Glen Campbell, Anne Ramsey, Kulie Brown, and Don Vadis. The Warner soundtrack features singing by Eastwood (with Ray Charles), Locke, and Campbell, and some oldies.

APACHE'S LAST BATTLE

(Sinister, 1964) D: Hugo Fregonese S: Robert A. Stemmle France/Italy/W. Germany/Yugoslavia (Shatterhand; Old Shatterhand)

Doris Wishman's Another Day, Another Man.

Lex Barker stars in his deerskin fringes (but with someone else's dubbed-in drawl), and Pierre Brice is his blood brother, Winnetou, an Apache chief. In this entry in the popular series, booze-hungry Comanches kill for white renegades. It all ends in a big battle for a fort. With Daliah Lavi as a half-breed and Guy Madison as the bad cavalry officer. It was originally in Super Panorama 70 and was rleased in the US by Goldstone. The pan-and-scanned TV-print video is pretty worn out.

APACHE VENGEANCE

(Allison, 1970) D: Ron Joy S/P: Dick Bakalyan (The Animals)

Michelle Carey plays an Apache woman tracking down the men who raped her. The writer/producer was a jd star who went on to act in Disney movies after making this western. Henry Silva is the main villain, and Keenan Wynn, Joseph Turkel, and John Anderson are in it too. Two years later, Hannie Caulder, a British production with Raquel Welch, used the same plot.

APARTMENT ZERO

(Academy, 1988) D/S/P: Martin Donovan S/P: David Koepp UK

Colin Firth is a stuffy, paranoid British film fanatic who runs a revival theater in Argentina. Hart Bochner, his new bisexual American boarder, is also a psycho hitman responsible for a series of grisly deaths. In one scene they watch Compulsion together. Originally 124 minutes long, this complex psychological thriller was shortened by the director himself for the video version, which is 114 minutes. It was filmed in Buenos Aires.

THE APE CREATURE

(1968) D: Alfred Vohrer S: Alfred Greger W. Germany (Der Gorilla von Soho; Gorilla Gang)

Edgar Wallace's Dark Eyes of London (1924) was first filmed in England in 1939, starring Bela Lugosi (it's also known as The Human Monster). This is the second German version (the first was in 1961) directed by Vohrer and the least known of the three. It was released in the US by Sam Sherman's Independent International. The plot, (Scotland Yard vs. a secret gang that drowns people for insurance money) is the same, but this time the setting is a reform school run by nuns, and there's more comedy. Characters are called Sergeant Pepper, Dr. Jekyll, and Mr. Sugar, and it's not due to American dubbing. A criminal known as "the Ape" is a man in a gorilla suit (pretty hard to take seriously but a fine film tradition). There's also more sex than in earlier Wallace features. A running gag concerns the bald old Sir Arthur and his many mistresses. There's a lesbian cat fight and a sex club with "a living wax museum." Horst Tappert stars as the chief investigator, with Uschi Glass and Herbert Fux. It's been on the USA network, among others.

APE MAN OF THE JUNGLE

(1962) D: "Charles Foster"/Carlo Veo Italy (Tarzak Contra gli Uomini Leopardo)

An AIP TV release with a Tarzan copy called Tarzak. He rescues a safari from a tribe of natives led by "the Leopard man."

APEX

(Republic, 1993) D/S: Phillip Roth S: Ronald Schmidt P: Gary Jude Burkett

Richard Keats stars as a scientist of the future who goes back through time to try and stop a robot from killing people in the Mojave Desert. Then he returns to an alternate future "old LA" where people he knew, including his wife, Natasha (Lisa Ann Russell), are now different characters and a war with Robocop-look robots is raging in the ruins. Mitchell Cox is a fighter with a blond buzz cut. This movie has nightmares, flashbacks, lots of explosions and red lights, and really good sound effects. From the makers of the darker Prototype X29A, also with Cox. It was shot in Nevada.

APHRODISIAC!

(Mondo, 1971) D/S/P: Dennis Van Zak P/C: Tom Parker (The Sexual Secret of Marijuana)

This is a pro-pot (and anti-booze) documentary (narrated by a "doctor") with interesting b/w historical footage (NYC mayor Fiorello LaGuardia should be a hero to smokers everywhere) and real interviews with people on the streets of Hollywood. Plus—Whoa!—it's also an early color porno feature. "Real" people look into the camera and tell us about how marijuana changed their sex lives, and their narrated flashbacks prove it. Unlike some stuff from the time, the hard-core scenes are well shot, have good-looking women, and feature many positions. A businessman (John Holmes!) tells us how his secretary turns him on and claims that, after smoking "I felt like a superman!" A woman says, "It was as if I was transformed into a huge cunt!" They also manage to throw in a marijuana party ("a new American tradition"), a nude encounter group, pot-brownie eating, interracial sex (in the woods), silent-movie footage of cavemen, Nam soldiers getting high, car crashes—and Ruby killing Oswald! Incredible!

APOCALYPSE NOW

(Paramount, 1979) D/S/P: Francis Ford Coppola S: John Milius

One of the best war films ever made was based on Joseph Conrad's Heart Of Darkness, once planned as Orson Welles' first feature. Playing the star role gave Martin Sheen a heart attack but assured him later voice-over work for endless TV commercials and narration of other Vietnam War–related projects. Marlon Brando got mixed reviews but a good percentage of the profits. Everything else aside, the leaping-tiger scene made me jump out of my theater seat, something that never happened during a horror movie. The excellent cast includes Robert Duvall and Dennis Hopper (both in top form), Frederic Forrest, Albert Hall, Sam Bottoms, 14-year-old Larry (now Lawrence) Fishburne, Scott Glenn, G.D. Spradlin, Harrison Ford, Lee Ermy (later in Full Metal Jacket), and the late Bill Graham. Colleen Camp, Cyndi Wood, and Linda Carpenter are the Playboy Playmates. The Oscar-winning cinematography is by Vittorio Storaro. The production design is by Dean Tavoularis. Eddie Romero and John Ashley, who had been making movies in the Philippines for years, were associate producers. In 1992 the tape was rereleased, "remastered and enhanced," in regular or widescreen (letterboxed) versions running 153 minutes. The excellent double Elektra soundtrack album features the Doors' uncensored version of "The End," Micky Hart, Hendrix soundalike Randy Hansen, and some choice oldies and dialogue. See also Hearts of Darkness, a documentary about the filming of Apocalypse Now.

Martin Sheen in Apocalypse Now.

APOLOGY

(HBO, 1986) D: Robert Bierman S: Mark Medoff

In New York City, Soho sculptor Lesley Ann Warren requests phone confessions to use for an art project. A psycho caller who kills homosexuals is after her, and Peter Weller (just before Robocop) is a cop on the case. With John Glover, Christopher North, and Harvey Fierstein. From HBO cable.

THE APPLE

(Paragon, 1980) D/S/P: Menahem Golan P: Yoram Globus US/W. Germany (Star Rock)

A record producer/Devil called Mr. Boogalow (Vladek Sheybal) takes over a young folk-singing duo in New York City of the future (1994). The new dance craze is called "the Bim." He uses sex and drugs to keep his stable of talent under his thumb, but God shows up at the end to help the kids out. Catherine Mary Stewart is top-billed in this ridiculous PG musical fantasy which steals ideas from The Rocky Horror Picture Show. Cannon also released a soundtrack album. Golan's next as director was Enter the Ninja.

THE APPLEGATES

(Media, 1989) D/S: Michael Lehman S: Redbeard Simmons P: Denise Di Novi (Meet the Applegates)

Lehman's follow-up to his Heathers is a devastating and funny look at how modern life in the US can ruin and devolve even the closest family, disguised as a science-fiction comedy (or an "eco-comedy," as it was promoted). Like Heathers, it's set in suburban Ohio. Ed Begley Jr., Stockard Channing, and their family of giant, garbage-eating Brazilian cockroaches arrive near Akron on an important mission and disguise themselves as a "typical" American family. Almost immediately, they're seduced by TV, drugs, heavy-metal music, sex, and alcohol. The daughter (Camille Cooper) becomes a bitter, pregnant lesbian, and the mom becomes a credit-card junkie and shoplifter. They forget their mission and all secretly spin cocoons around tasty humans. The Applegates is a clever, bizarre movie, and the human-cockroach makeup and special effects are excellent. With Glenn Shadix and Dabney Coleman in drag (a bad idea).

APPLE PIE

(1975) D/S/C: Howard Goldberg

Tony Azito is a godfather type who narrates this (so far unreleased) NYC crime comedy in flashback. Brother Theodore plays his father, and Larry "Bud" Melman, Veronica Hamel, and Irene Cara appear.

THE APPOINTMENT

(1982) D/S/P: Lyndsey Vickers UK

A family faces an evil force in a house, and Edward Woodward is cursed by his daughter (Jane Merrow).

APPOINTMENT WITH FEAR

(IVE, 1985) D/S: "Alan Smithee"/Razmi Thomas
S: Bruce Meade P: Tom Boutross

A detective (Douglas Rowe) goes after a psycho mental patient, under the influence of an Egyptian god named Attis, who kills LA high-school girls. The killer uses astral projection (as in Psychic Killer) to get around. With Deborah Vorhees, Michelle Little, and Dayton Allan (from the old Steve Allen Show) as a friendly bum. Moustapha Akkad was the executive producer and the cinematography is by Nicholas von Sternberg. The director "disowned" this odd New World release and had his name removed.

APPRENTICE TO MURDER

(Starmaker, 1987) D: R.L. Thomas
S: Alen Scott, Wesley Moore P: Howard K. Grossman (The Long Lost Friend)

Donald Sutherland is a mystical country "Pow Wow" doctor who believes that an evil man (Knut Husebo) has put a hex on him. This PG-13 New World release was filmed in Norway but is set in Pennsylvania during the 20s. Chad Lowe, Mia Sara, and Rutanya Alda costar. It's pretty slow going. Sutherland also appeared in a Kate Bush video as bizarre Freudian Marxist Wilhelm Reich.

LES APPRENTIS SORCIERS

(1977) D/S: Edgardo Cozarinsky S: A. Tauman France

You won't find this one in English, but it's one of several European productions that Dennis Hopper was in around the time of The American Friend (1976). Cozarinsky, from Argentina, directed this humorous tale of Latin American exiles in Paris, radical politics, and avant-garde filmmaking. ZouZou stars, and Marie-France Pisier, Christian Marquand, and others make appearances. Hopper plays an American spy.

APRIL FOOL'S DAY

(Paramount, 1986) D: Fred Walton
S: Danilo Bach P: Frank Mancusco Jr.

The producer and studio that made the Friday the 13th movies backed and released this mediocre horror spoof. Heiress Deborah Foreman and her teen friends are killed off at a mansion on an island. The cast (including Griffin O'Neal) play jokes and pull pranks on each other, and there's a cheat ending. Made in British Columbia by the director of When a Stranger Calls (1979). The Charles Bernstein soundtrack is on Varèse Sarabande, and there was even a book based on the feature.

ARABIAN NIGHTS

(MCA, 1942) D: John Rawlins
S: Michael Hogan P: Walter Wanger

Maria Montez and Jon Hall acted together for the first time in this fun Universal Technicolor comic fantasy complete with torture-chamber sequences. She's Sheherazade and he's Harun ar-Rachid. With Sabu (in his first non-Korda feature) as an acrobat, Turhan Bey, Leif Erickson, Edgar Barrier as the grand vizier, John Carradine as a slave guard, Shemp Howard as a comic Sinbad(!), Billy Gilbert, Elyse Knox, John Qualen, and Acquanetta (Burnu Davenport) as a harem slave girl. Thomas Gomez relates the tale. Montez (born in the Dominican Republic to Spanish parents while her diplomat father was stationed there) went on to star in five more features with Hall. Ford L. Beebe was the second-unit director.

ARABIAN NIGHTS

(Water Bearer, 1974) D/S: Pier Paolo Pasolini
Italy/France (Il Fiore delle Mille e una Notte)

The third of Pasolini's medieval trilogy includes fantasy tales (and stories inside of stories) told by a black slave girl who is sold, kidnapped, mistaken for a man, and declared heir to a kingdom. This is nothing like a Hollywood movie! It was filmed on actual locations all over North Africa and the Middle East. The X rating for violence and casual nudity kept it from most American screens. With a red-haired flying demon, a man turned into a monkey, and castration. The music is by Ennio Morricone. The film was originally 155 minutes, but the letterboxed tape runs 130. United Artists released it after The Decameron (1970) and The Canterbury Tales (1971). The director's last film was the infamous Salò (1975).

ARACHNOPHOBIA

(Disney, 1990) D: Frank Marshall S: Don Jakoby, Wesley Strick P: Kathleen Kennedy, Richard Vane

Jeff Daniels stars as a small-town doctor afraid of spiders who faces thousands of them breeding in his barn. The story starts with Julian Sands in South America (parts were shot in Venezuela). In-joke scenes refer to Aliens, Jaws, and (yawn) Psycho. It was billed as a "thrillomedy" and cost much more than the total of all the other tarantula and spider movies ever made ($31 million). It was also probably the first feature with a disclaimer stating that no spiders had been harmed during filming. With John Goodman as the gung-ho exterminator, Harley Jane Kozak, Stuart Pankin, and Henry Jones. Steven Spielberg was the executive producer of this PG film from Buena Vista/Disney. The soundtrack on the Hollywood label is by Trevor Jones.

ARCADE

(Paramount, 1992) D: Albert Pyun
S: David S. Goyer P: Cathy Gesualdo

Teens play a virtual-reality game that feeds on their souls. The Full Moon production is like a cheap version of Tron and includes similar by-then-clichéd computer FX. Megan Ward and Peter Billingsley have to save their friends, and the computer brain (the voice of Jonathan Fuller) has Freddy Krueger–type lines. With John DeLancie, Sharon Farrell, and Seth Green. It was released in 1994.

ARCHANGEL

(VSOM, 1990) D/S: Guy Madden
S: George Toles P: Greg Klymkiw Canada

In a bizarre b/w spoof of a 20s WWI movie, the main characters all suffer from amnesia. One Russian soldier uses his own intestines to strangle a Bolshevik. Kyle McCulloch (from Madden's better-known Tales from Grimli Hospital) stars as a Canadian soldier with an amputated leg helping Russians fight Germans.

THE ARCHER: FUGITIVE FROM THE EMPIRE

(MCA, 1981) D/S/P: Nick Corea P: Stephen P. Caldwell

Lane Caudell is Toran in this NBC-TV sword-and-sorcery series pilot. Belinda Bauer costars, with Victor Campos, Kabir Bedi, Priscilla Pointer, Richard Moll, Richard Dix Jr. (star of the Al Adamson movies), and George Kennedy as Brackus, the hero's dad.

ARENA

(1953) D: Richard Fleischer S: Harold Jack Bloom P: Arthur M. Loew

Gig Young stars in this 3-D, Anscocolor movie filmed at Tucson's La Fiesta de los Vaqueros rodeo. It's not much of a story, but the 3-D rodeo action must have been pretty exciting at the time. With Jean Hagen, Polly Bergen, Harry Morgan, Barbara Lawrence, Lee Van Cleef, and Morris Ankrum. Fleischer directed 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea next.

ARENA

(TWE, 1988) D: Peter Manoogian S: Danny Bilson, Paul Demeo P: Irwin Yablans

If you liked TV shows like Battlestar Galactica you might make it through this juvenile, PG-13, science-fiction comedy from Charles Band. A blond hunk hero fights goofy-looking creatures in armor in front of a big crowds on a star station. The plot rips off a Fredric Brown short story that had already been done twice on Star Trek and once on The Outer Limits. With Claudia Christian, Shari Shattuck (The Naked Cage), who sings, Hamilton Camp (with four arms), Jack Carter as the fight commentator, and another Star Wars cantina spoof. John Buechler, Steve Wang, and Screaming Mad George worked on the many creatures. The unrelated 1973 Pam Grier movie called The Arena has been retitled Naked Warriors on tape.

ARE THESE OUR CHILDREN?

(1931) D/S: Howard Estabrook P: Louis Sareky

A nice kid (Eric Linden) goes bad, shoots an old man during a robbery, and ends up on death row in this early juvenile deliquent film that approaches Reefer Madness excess. With girls who use hooch. Rochelle Hudson costars, with Ben Alexander and Mary Kornman. Estabrook scripted hits like Hell's Angels (1930) and David Copperfield(1935).

ARE THESE OUR PARENTS?

(1944) D: William Nigh S: Michael Jacoby P: Jeffrey Bernerd

Noel Neill (later famous as Lois Lane on the Superman TV series) is a teen who goes wrong. Her mother (Helen Vinson) hangs out at roadhouses, and her boyfriend's father (Lyle Talbot) doesn't take his WWII defense job seriously. Nigh also made Where Are Your Children? at Monogram.

ARE YOU IN THE HOUSE ALONE?

(Worldvision, 1978) D: Walter Graumen S: Judith Parker P: Jay Benson

Kathleen Beller is a terrorized high-school student in this CBS-TV movie. With Blythe Danner, Tony Bill, Ellen Travolta, and Dennis Quaid. It was based on Richard Peck's novel.

ARIA

(Academy, 1987) D/S: Robert Altman, Bruce Beresford, Bill Bryden, Jean-Luc Godard, Derek Jarman, Fran Roddam, Nicolas Roeg, Ken Russell, Charles Sturridge, Julian Temple P: Don Boyd

In one of the stranger post-MTV features around, 10 opera arias are interpreted by 10 international directors as if they were rock videos. Everybody agrees it's a mess, but you might want to check out what Godard, Roeg, or Russell came up with. Beverly D'Angelo, Bridget Fonda (making her debut), John Hurt, Anita Morris, Theresa Russell (as King Zog), Buck Henry, and Julie Hagerty appear. The soundtrack is on RCA Red Seal.

ARISE! THE SUBGENIOUS VIDEO

(PMV, 1969)

Bob Dobbs appears everywhere in this tape, which many saw on Nightflight. There are choice, well-edited snippets from old science-fiction movies and TV commercials, plus Bob songs, Bob rap, and footage of his 1984 onstage assassination. Altered footage, photos, and audiotracks (and Mark Mothersbaugh) help explain Church of the Subgenious theories on religion, politics, various conspiracies, and the end of the world.

ARIZONA HEAT

(Republic, 1988) D/P: John G. Thomas S: Daniel M. Colmerauer

Taking an idea from The Enforcer, a tough Arizona cop (Michael Parks) is teamed with a lesbian cop (Denise Crosby). They track down a serial killer who is after cops.

THE ARIZONA KID

(1971) D/S: Luciano B. Carlos P: Cirio H. Santiago Italy/Philippines

A real rarity: Mamie Van Doren, after we thought she'd retired, costarring in a Filipino comedy/western. Comedian Chiquito stars, and Gordon Mitchell is the villain. Some parts are in English, but other parts are in Tagalog. It's not good or anything, but a dedicated Mamie completist might find a copy in a Filipino-owned video store in major US cities. Just don't confuse it with an old Roy Rogers movie of the same name. Mamie didn't show up in another feature until Free Ride (1986).

THE ARK OF THE SUN GOD

(TWE, 1983) D: "Anthony Dawson"/Antonio Margheriti S: Giovanni Simonelli Italy/Turkey (I Sopravvissuti della Citta Morta)

More Raiders fantasy/action stuff, with British actor David Warbeck as a James Bond–like safecracker in Istanbul. Some of the music was ripped off from Battlestar Galactica. With John Steiner and Allan Collins (whose real name is Luciano Pogozzi).

ARMED FOR ACTION

(AIP, 1992) D/P: "Max Raven"/Bret McCormick

Joe Estevez stars as a cop transporting a Mafia hitman across country. They're ambushed in a small town. With Rocky Paterson and David Harrold.

ARMED RESPONSE

(RCA/Columbia, 1986) D/P: Fred Olen Ray S: T. L. Langford P: Paul Hertzberg (Jade Jungle)

Nam-vet ex-cop David Carradine owns a bar in LA's Chinatown, where his ex-cop dad (Lee Van Cleef in one of his last roles) drinks. Bad guys led by a yakuza named Akira (Mako), who is after a statue, kill Carradine's brother and torture another brother, so it's time for revenge, shooting, and exploding cars. Carradine has Nam flashbacks and nightmares. Michael Berryman wears a smile button, gives Mako fortune cookies, and has a slo-mo fight with Carradine. With Laureen Landon and Dick Miller together in a funny scene, Brent Huff, Lois Hamilton, Ross Hagen, Conan Lee, Fox Harris, Dawn Wildsmith, Michelle Bauer, Susan Stokey, Bobbie Bresse, the director, and a clip of Boris Karloff as Mr. Wong. The strangest parts are the many Carradine reaction shots in the bar scenes.

ARMOUR OF GOD

(1986) D/S/A: Jackie Chan Hong Kong

International action superstar Jackie Chan fractured his skull making this, the most expensive Hong Kong film made up to that time ($15 million). His rock-star friend's girlfriend is kidnapped (and turned into a temporary zombie) in Europe. In an attempt to acquire all the pieces of the valuable "Armour of God," Jackie ends up battling a cult of martial-arts monks with machine guns who live in a vast cavern. A lot of time is spent on comedy and the relationships between the four major characters, but the stunts and fight scenes are great, as usual. The biggest surprise is when he's faced with a team of black lady kicking kung-fu killers in high heels and leather. The Golden Harvest release was the second-highest-grossing film in Hong Kong up to that time. It was shot in Spain, Morocco, Austria, the Philippines, and other locations.

ARMOUR OF GOD II: OPERATION CONDOR

(1990) D/S/A: Jackie Chan S: Edward Tang, Ma Mei-Ping P: Raymond Chow Hong Kong (Feiying Gaiwak)

Chan returns as Condor, hired to find Nazi gold in the Sahara. He goes on the international adventure with three women and has to rescue the German one (Eva Cobo de Garcia) and the Chinese one (comedienne Carol Cheng) after they're kidnapped into slavery. Shoko Ikeda is the Japanese one. The sequel uses even more elements from Raiders films, including a Nazi fortress, and Chan does more amazing stunts. The most expensive feature made in Hong Kong up to that time, it took over two years to complete.

ARMY OF DARKNESS: EVIL DEAD III

(MCA, 1991) D/S: Sam Raimi S: Ivan Raimi P: Robert Tappert

Bruce Campbell returns as the sarcastic wiseguy Ash in a slapstick, medieval-fantasy-oriented, bigger-budget third Evil Dead feature. It starts with a brief recap of the first two movies (featuring Bridget Fonda), is filled with Three Stooges gags, and has a Monty Python look. Ash has a chainsaw arm, a Remington shotgun, and a '73 Oldsmobile. Animated swordfighting skeletons appear, and there's also an evil Ash to battle (in a scene inspired by The Manster!) and at one point many little Ashes. Parts were shot in Bronson Canyon. With Embeth Davidtz (later in Schindler's List), Marcus Gilbert as King Arthur, and cameos by Josh Becker, Harley Cokliss, William Lustig, Bernard Rose, Patricia Tallman, Bill Moseley, Theodore, and Sam Raimi. The music is by Danny Elfman. Universal held up the release until 1993, because of an unrelated rights battle over a Silence of the Lambs sequel with producer Dino De Laurentiis. It was cut to a brief 80 minutes, and the original downbeat post-nuke ending was replaced with a new ending. Some parts are too dark or blurry, too. A complete 96-minute version is on a Japanese laserdisc.

ARMY OF ONE

(Live, 1993) D/P: Vic Armstrong
S: Steven Pressfield P: Illana Diamond

Dolph Lundgren is an escaped con who was framed for murder by a corrupt detective (George Segal). He takes a female cop (Kristen Alfonso) hostage in a Ferrari in the desert and heads for LA. With Geoffrey Lewis, Michelle Phillips, Bert Remsen, and Ken Foree. R or unrated versions are available.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH FANNY HILL

(Kit Parker, 1973) D/S: Mac Ahlberg P: Tore Sjoberg

Shirley Corrigan stars in this sex comedy as the wife of a TV-commercial director who becomes a soft-core movie star. With Gaby Fuchs and Christina Lindberg. It was filmed on location around Europe by Mikael Alomon, who later lensed Thelma and Louise, and was presented by David F. Friedman. Ahlberg also made the unrelated Fanny Hill (1968).

AROUSED

(SW, 1966) D/S: Anton Holden S/P: Ray Jenkins

A Manhattan cop (Steve Hollister) searches for a psycho who kills hookers in this b/w adults-only feature. The killer is a bartender who keeps mannequins in his apartment. With a Psycho shower scene, a castration, Times Square footage, and a cosmic cyclical ending.

THE AROUSERS

(Embassy 1970) D/S/P: Curtis Hanson P: Tamera Asseyen (Sweet Kill; A Kiss from Eddie)

Tab Hunter plays Eddie, a milk-drinking high-school gym teacher living at a beach house who is also a pathetic, impotent voyeur and a necrophiliac killer. After years as a blond-hunk pinup, this was his last major theatrical role until John Waters brought him back for Polyester (1981). This film wasn't released until 1972 (by Roger Corman's New World). In a by-now-clichéd scene, Eddie's mother (in a flashback) is seen as the likely cause of his problems. Most of the many murders aren't bloody, but the slow, moody music and Hunter's convincing acting make them very effective. After the first victim is killed, her roommate tells the LAPD about Eddie, but they bust her for pot instead! Isabel Jewell (a star in the 30s) plays a neighbor, Roberta Collins plays a hooker who dresses up for Eddie and pretends to be dead, and Sandy Kenyon (Beyond the Doors) is the TV newscaster. It's pretty disturbing. Asseyen produced Norma Rae (1979) and other major releases.

THE ARRIVAL

(Prism, 1990) D/A: David Schmoeller
S/P/A: Daniel Ljoka P: Ron Matonak

Max, an old man exposed to a meteor, "dies," but he returns and gets younger by killing a woman every two weeks. The old man (who sniffs for menstrual blood) is pretty strange. After a while he becomes Joseph Culp (Robert's son), an expressionless young man in black leather. In a sequence copied from Five Easy Pieces, he's picked up by a lesbian couple. After he kills them, he goes after his nurse from years earlier (Robin Frakes), and federal agent John Saxon tries to capture him. Michael J. Pollard, has a small role, and for some reason director Stuart Gordon and his wife show up. Nearly everything in this dull movie happens offscreen, but there is a sex-in-a-tub-of-blood dream.

THE ARROGANT

(1986) D/S/P: Philippe Blot (Sylvia Kristel's Desires)

This pretentious road movie was shot in Nevada and debuted on the Playboy channel. A killer on a motorcycle who thinks he's God (Gary Graham) picks up a hitchhiking waitress (Sylvia Kristel), and fantasy sequences and sex scenes follow. Kristel was also in Cannon's Lady Chatterley's Lover, Emmanuelle, and Mata Hari.

ARTIST'S STUDIO SECRETS

(Video Dimensions, 1964) D: J. M. Kimbrough
P: Lou Campa

A Greenwich Village artist named Percy likes to see partially clothed women, so his wife makes sure his models take all their clothes off. A 70-minute b/w comedy from Boxoffice International. One of the two models is cross-eyed.

ART DECO DETECTIVE

(1993) D/S/P: Philippe Mora P: Bruce Critchley

John Dennis Johnson is Art Deco, a detective who is set up while investigating the murder of a movie star (Rene Riffel, who plays twins) in a conspiracy-movie satire by the director of the Howling sequels. With Stephen McHattie as a terrorist, Brion James, Mel Smith, and Joe Santos.

THE ART OF DYING

(PM, 1991) D/A: Wings Hauser
S/P: Joseph Merhi P: Richard Peppin

Actor Hauser directed and starred in three features made in quick succession for PM video. This is the most outrageous one. A killer (played by 6'6" Gary Wentz) and his male lover "talent scout" (Mitch Lara) make snuff films by recreating deaths from movies. There's another Psycho shower, a Scarface chainsaw killing, and a Deer Hunter Russian-roulette scene. Hauser is a troubled LA detective having an affair with Kathleen Kinmont, who is kidnapped. With Michael J. Pollard as a police psychiatrist, Sarah Douglas, Sidney Lassick, and Onna Zee.

THE ART OF MURDER

(1989) D/S/P: Milan Ziukovic

An American actor (Oliver Wright) in Belgrade is a suspect when the director of his new film is murdered. More people die as he tries to discover who the real killer is. From Concorde.

ASESINOS DE OTROS MUNDOS

(1971) D: Ruben Galindo P: Pedro Galindo Aguilar Mexico

This is one of many movies with Santo, a masked wrestling hero, and it was never dubbed into English. It's memorable because the skin-eating, killer-alien monster seems to be a dirty rubber sheet that makes the monster in the American film The Creeping Terror seem scary. It's controlled by a bad guy on a gold throne who threatens from TV screens. Gladiators fight, and the losers are shot. Santo, who usually wrestles, also mows down his opponents with a machine gun. See Santo running from the slow-moving monster and fighting bad guys to avant-garde jazz! See the exiting climax with even more rubber-sheet monsters!

AS NATURE INTENDED: See (NAKED) AS NATURE INTENDED

ASSASSIN

(1986) D/S: Sandor Stern P: Neil T. Maffeo

Robert Conrad is a retired CIA agent tracking down a right-wing killer named Golem (actually a robot) played by Robert Young. Karen Austin and Robert Webber costar in this TV movie.

ASSASSINATION

(Media, 1987) D: Peter Hunt
S: Richard Sale P: Pancho Kohner

Charles Bronson is a Secret Service agent in a tame (for him) PG-13 thriller. He protects the First Lady

"ART" MOVIES

Sleaze and horror fans: Don't discount so-called foreign "art" features just because you've met jerks who patronize them and condemn what you like. You don't have to wait in line to get into theaters full of uptight, snotty intellectuals anymore; you can watch at home on tape! Many of the most challenging or shocking movies that broke sex, nudity, and political taboos were foreign. Depending on your personal tastes (and ability to read subtitles), check out titles by Buñuel, Bergman, Fellini, Godard, Pasolini, Ferreri, Herzog, and, more recently, Pedro Almodovar or Peter Greenaway.

(Jill Ireland) from the assassins of a senator (Michael Ansara) who thinks the president will have a better chance of reelection as a widower. With Eric Stern (star of The Love Butcher!), Jan Gan Boyd, Randy Brooks, William Prince, and Peter Lupus. The music is by Valentine McCallum. Ireland was in 15 features with her (second) husband, Bronson. After this, she was in only one more film, Caught (1987), a Billy Graham production, before dying of cancer in 1990.

THE ASSASSINATION BUREAU

(Paramount, 1969) D: Basil Dearden
S/P: Michael Relph

Jack London wrote the story on which this turn-of-the-century adventure is based. Oliver Reed is Ivan Dragomiloff, leader of an all-male assassination organization. Diana Rigg, backed by Telly Savalas, infiltrates the bureau and hires Dragomiloff to have himself killed. It was filmed all over Europe, ends in a flaming zeppelin, and was rated M. With Curt Jurgens, Philippe Noiret, Clive Revill, George Coulouris, and Milton Reid. Rigg and Savalas were in On Her Majesty's Secret Service the same year.

ASSASSIN OF YOUTH

(Hollywood Confidential, 1935)
D: Elmer Clifton (Marijuana)

A high-school girl smokes the evil weed and is on the road to ruin. A reporter poses as a soda jerk to infiltrate the pot-smoking teens. Gangsters sell the drugs, kids have wild parties, girls skinny-dip, and joints fall from the sky! The original ads said, "Puff—Party—Tragedy!" The full version is 80 minutes long, but some tapes are much shorter. Marijuana Menace is the hilarious film within the film. Luana Walters (The Corpse Vanishes) costars with Arthur Gardner. The director also made Captain America. Reefer Madness was made around the same time.

ASSAULT = IN THE DEVIL'S GARDEN

ASSAULT OF THE KILLER BIMBOS

(Urban Classics, 1988) D/P: Anita Rosenberg
S: Ted Nicolau P: John Schouweiler

Go-go dancers named Lulu and Peaches (Elizabeth Kaitan and Christina Whitaker) are accused of murder and flee to a Mexican resort, in this road-movie/comedy/adventure. Tammara Souza is a truck-stop waitress who joins them. Nick Cassavetes and Griffin O'Neal are surf bums. With Eddie Deezen and Patti Astor. The song at the end is "Don't Call Me Bimbo." David DeCoteau was executive producer. Some people claim that the hit Thelma and Louise copied this movie. Rhino released the various artists soundtrack.

ASSAULT OF THE PARTY NERDS

(Prism, 1988) D/S/P/A: Richard Gabai
P: M. Alex Becker

A direct-to-video Revenge of the Nerds frat-house copy, with Michelle Bauer and Linnea Quigley as Muffin and Bambi, Troy Donahue, Burt Ward, and Tantala. It was made in five days. David DeCoteau was the executive producer. Gabai also made Assault of the Party Nerds II (VCI, 1994) with Ward, Bauer, Quigley, Arte Johnson, and Rhonda Shear.

ASSAULT OF THE REBEL GIRLS = CUBAN REBEL GIRLS

ASSAULT WITH A DEADLY WEAPON

(USA, 1976) D: Umberto Lenzi S: Dardano Sacchetti
Italy (Alt Roma a Mano Armata; Brutal Justice)

A crime thriller sold as horror (with fake credits) by New York's Aquarius releasing company in 1982. Tomas Milian stars as a hunchbacked criminal (who defiantly pisses on the police-station floor) and Maurizio Merli is an obsessive cop. With token American name-star Arthur Kennedy and Ivan Rassimov. Sybil Danning hosts the tape.

ASSIGNMENT TO KILL

(1966) D/S: Sheldon Reynolds

Patrick O'Neal stars as a private eye in Switzerland who battles killers working for villain Herbert Lom. With Joan Hackett, John Gielgud, Peter Van Eyck, Oscar Homolka, and Kent Smith. William Conrad was the executive producer of the film, which was held up until 1969 and rated M.

ASTONISHED

(Leo, 1987) D/S: Jeff Kahn D: Travis Preston P: William J. Taylor

This odd but interesting mixture of drama and comedy stars Liliana Komorowska as a European woman in an East Village apartment who is broke, has reality problems, and is accused of two murders. Characters from her dreams start to appear in her real life. A dead landlord/pimp shows up again. Several of the main characters (including the singer she falls for) are black. Komorowska (whoever she is) is very good in two roles (and has a topless scene). With music by Michael Urbaniak.

THE ASTRONAUT

(ABC, 1972) D: Robert Michael Lewis S: Gerald DiPego, Charles Kuenstle P: Harve Bennett

After an astronaut (Monte Markham) dies on Mars, a lookalike impersonates him in a government coverup scheme. Jackie Cooper, Susan Clark, Robert Lansing, and real astronaut Wally Schirra costar in this TV movie.

ASYLUM EROTICA = SLAUGHTER HOTEL

ASYLUM OF THE INSANE

(1971) D: Byron Mabe D/S/P: Donald E. Davidson S/P: David F. Friedman

There were many phony 3-D features. This one was Friedman's remake of Freaks, called She Freak (1966) with about three minutes of poor 3-D effects (including a guy demonstrating a yo-yo, as in House of Wax) added.

AT CLOSE RANGE

(Vestron, 1986) D: James Foley S: Nicholas Kazan P: Elliot Lewitt, Don Guest

A ruthless career criminal (Christopher Walken) returns to his Pennsylvania hometown in 1978. His adoring sons (real-life brothers Sean and Christopher Penn) want to join his gang but discover what he's really like. A violent, fascinating movie based on real incidents. With Mary Stuart Masterson, Eileen Ryan, Candy Clark, Tracey Walter, Crispin Glover, Kiefer Sutherland, Millie Perkins, and Stephen Geoffreys. It was shot in Tennessee. Director Foley made After Dark, My Sweet next.

ATLAS IN THE LAND OF THE CYCLOPS

(Sinister, 1961) D: Antonio Leonviola S: Oreste Biancoli, Gino Mongini P: Ermanno Donati, Luigi Carpentieri Italy (Maciste nella Terra dei Ciclopi)

The one-eyed giant eats people, and evil Queen Capys (Chelo Alonso) does a lot of horrible things to the population of Sadok but falls in love with the muscular hero, Maciste (Gordon Mitchell). Mitchell went on to the more interesting The Giant of Metropolis (1962) and many other Italian features.

AT MIDNIGHT I TAKE YOUR SOUL

(SW, 1963) D/S/A: Jose Mojica Marins
Brazil (A Mei Noite Levarei sua Alma)

Marins is Ze do Caixo (or "Coffin Joe"). Ze makes his first screen appearance, bearded, in a black cape and top hat. He has intense eyes and introduces himself, speaking directly into the camera. During the credits, weird music plays, accompanied by howls, screams, maniacal laughter, and thunder. A second introduction is made by a Gypsy witch holding a skull. She also looks into the camera and her voice is heavily echoed. Ze is hateful and evil and relishes every contemptible thing he does, but he acts polite to the townspeople as long as they don't defy him. He scares, manipulates, and humiliates people whenever possible. He lives in a house with hands sticking out of the walls (good hat racks), smokes a skull-shaped pipe, and has servants. Except for cars seen in the background, the small town seems stuck in the 19th century. Ze spends a lot of time dropping by funerals, expressing his condolences to the grieving people, who know he's responsible for the high death rate.

In the local bar he approaches a table of men and breaks a wine bottle. He stares at one man (White Zombie/Lugosi–style eye closeups are cut in), then suddenly uses the bottle to cut off two of his fingers! Most of the special effects are pretty convincing. The guy sobs, while Ze chomps down on a big (turkey?) leg. A big, bald guy knocks him down. Ze jumps on the bar, kicks the man in the head, then brutally whips him until his face is streaming blood and he cries. He tapes a woman's mouth shut, and while she lies in bed in a negligée, he lets a huge tarantula crawl on her and bite her. One woman he desires bites him on the lip when he tries to kiss her. Later he kills her boyfriend by stabbing him, putting him in a bathtub, smashing his head on the side, filling the tub, then drowning him. Then he brings her a bird in a cage, beats her, rapes her (off screen), and drinks her blood. She hangs herself after he leaves laughing. He pokes a doctor's eyes out (Three Stooges style), leaving bloody sockets, then pours alcohol on him and lights a match. He takes the crown of thorns from a bust of Christ and smashes it into a man's face. Although he does all these horrible things, he rescues a little boy from an abusive father, and is disturbed by the fortune-telling witch, who mocks him. He seems to be tempting death by stealing gifts from graves and defiantly yelling in the graveyard. Ze fears "Inferno!!" Voices and the laughing, floating ghost of the suicide torment him, and he freaks out while scary music and screaming (which sounds like the Doors' "Horse Latitudes") is heard. The doctor's corpse, surrounded by an eerie glow, returns to light his pipe. In one scene shown in negative, he sees a procession of his dead victims carrying him in an open casket. In a tomb, the terrified, bloody Ze breaks open coffins and screams insanely when he sees corpses covered with maggots and spiders. The townspeople (with torches) find him and the camera closes in on his upside-down mutilated face as the clock strikes midnight. The tape is subtitled. Tonight I'll Take Your Corpse followed.

ATOMIC CITY

(1952) D: Jerry Hopper S: Sydney Boehem P: Joe Sistrom

An atomic scientist's son (Lee Aaker) is kidnapped by Russian agents who demand hydrogen-bomb secrets. This anti-Communist story is filmed documentary style, using the real Los Alamos atomic-energy laboratory as a location. It was the first feature for the former big-band singer Gene Barry, who plays the hero father. He was in War of the Worlds (also for Paramount) the next year. With Nancy Gates, Milburn Stone, Lydia Clark, and Bert Freed.

ATOM MAN VS. SUPERMAN

(Warner, 1950) D: Spencer Gordon Bennet S: George Plympton, Joseph F. Poland, David Mathews P: Sam Katzman

The 15-chapter Columbia sequel to The Adventures of Superman (1948) has mostly the same cast and more fun animated flying scenes. Lyle Talbot is the bald villain Lex Luthor, disguised as "the Atom Man" (with a wild, glittery, silver helmet and a cape). Superman (Kirk Alyn again) has more to do than in the first serial. With a heat ray, "the Phantom Zone," an animated flying saucer, Bronson Canyon, and the inevitable overuse of stock footage. Available on 2 cassettes. Just a year later George Reeves took over the role in a short feature (Superman and the Mole Men) that led to the famous TV series.

ATOR: THE FIGHTING EAGLE

(Thorn EMI, 1982) D/S: "David Hills"/A. Massaccessi S: Michele Soavi P: Alex Susmann Italy

This was the first of several PG-rated lunkhead muscleman adventures made just after the first Conan. Miles O'Keeffe (Bo Derek's Tarzan) stars. It's pretty bad but not as bad as the sequels. With Edmund Purdom as Griba, blond beauty Sabrina Siani, Laura Gemser, Ritza Brown, a "tarantula man," and a visit to "the land of the walking dead." The Blade Master, Iron Warrior, and Quest for the Mighty Sword followed.

ATOR THE INVINCIBLE: See BLADE MASTER

ATROCITIES OF THE ORIENT

(Video Dimensions, 1959) D: William Jansen Philippines

WWII Filipino freedom-fighters battle brutal Japanese occupiers in a serious, adults-only exploitation shocker. Crude but not funny, as some video boxes suggest, it includes real war-atrocity newsreel footage, musical segments, and a romantic subplot, and features some nudity. An ad promised, "See women tortured with unspeakable barbarity!" Linda Estrella stars. Some earlier features with the same theme were Beasts of the East, Samurai, and Sins of the Orient. This was first released in the US by Astor (they removed all the credits) and sometimes played on a bill with Marijuana.

ATTACK OF THE BEAST CREATURES

(Western World, 1983) D/P: Michael Stanley S: Robert A. Hutton P: William R. Szinsky (Hell Island)

In 1920, survivors of an unseen sinking boat try to survive on an island that looks like a forest. They have problems, though, besides the usual hunting for food and bickering about what to do. The water in a stream is like acid, so a character trying to get a drink becomes a gory mess, then a skeleton. And the island is home to "hundreds" of killer dolls just like the one in the Trilogy of Terror TV movie with Karen Black! They drop from trees, make shrieking sounds, and attack like rats. You can easily imagine somebody off screen throwing them at people. The unknown actors must have had a great time pretending to fight them and running away. All those killer dolls are scary, I guess, but they move their arms up and down, have floppy hair, and make a hilarious fluttering sound when they run. In one classic scene, they all worship in front of a big (for them) wooden idol. This is my favorite movie from Connecticut since Horror of Party Beach! I wonder if the director is the former rock star from Cleveland. Nah, couldn't be.

ATTACK OF THE B MOVIE MONSTERS

(1985) D: Wayne Berwick S/P: Ted Newsom

In this mixture of stock footage and new comedy scenes, with a stop-motion monster from the director of Microwave Massacre, 50s science-fiction stars (John Agar, Kenneth Tobey, Les Tremayne, Anne Robinson, Gloria Talbott, Robert Clarke, and Robert Shayne) show up. Scenes were shot in Bronson Canyon, and Brinke Stevens and Forrest J. Ackerman are in it too. The director said the one-hour tape was suposed to be expanded or reshot as a feature, but it never was. The tape was once available from Filmfax magazine.

ATTACK OF THE 50 FT. WOMAN

(HBO, 1993) D: Christopher Guest S: Joseph Dougherty P: Debra Hill

Daryl Hannah narrates and stars as Nancy Archer, the rich, unhappy wife who grows and seeks revenge against the men in her life, in this updated remake of the 1957 cult fave by the director of The Big Picture. The dialogue is more thoughtful, references to Forbidden Planet, Tarantula, and other films are added, and female aliens appear at the end. With Daniel Baldwin as the unfaithful husband, Christi Conaway in the Yvette Vickers role, William Windom as the father, Frances Fisher as the shrink, Victoria Hass (also in Serial Mom) as the deputy, Hamilton Camp, and Richard Edson. Not bad, but it didn't need to be 25 minutes longer than the original. Gene Warren Jr. FX. Scenes from the original film show up on a drive-in screen, and screenwriter Mark Hannah gets a "based on" credit.

ATTACK OF THE HIDEOPOID

(Demolition, 1989) D/S/P/A/E: Rick Werner Fahr P: Diana Robinette

This is an overlong, strange, homemade Seattle feature about an irritating, telepathic, hillbilly cannibal with Cronenberg-inspired growths. A running joke concerns the number of flashbacks and flashbacks inside of flashbacks, and there's plenty of filler band footage (the Young Fresh Fellows do "Go Go Gorilla"). The best parts involve computer-generated blue dots (a great effect), and some scenes are copied from The Manster. With seven local bands and Fred Hopkins.

ATTACK OF THE KILLER CAVE BABES: See ONE MILLION AC/DC

ATTACK OF THE ROBOTS

(SW, 1966) D: Jesús Franco S: Jean-Claude Carrière P: Michel Safra Spain/France (Cartes sur Table)

This comic science-fiction/spy movie used to be on local TV (AIP released it) but it's b/w, so don't look for it there anymore. Eddie Constantine plays Al Peterson, playboy and James Bond–type ex-Interpol agent. Scientist Fernando Rey, working for Lady Cecilia (Francois Brion), creates kamikaze "robots," zombielike men with dark skin, in all-black clothes and glasses that change color when they're killed. Al is kidnapped and taken to an opium den in Asia, poses as a boxer from Brooklyn in Spain, and gets to romance Sophie Hardy. Carrière cowrote some of Buñuel's greatest screenplays. This has swinging music, great sunglasses, and some good moments. Franco (who appears as a pianist) did a remake in 1985 that's available only in Europe.

ATTACK OF THE SWAMP CREATURES = THE BLOOD WATERS OF DR. Z

AT THE MAX

(1991) D: Julian Temple, Christine Stand P: Michael Cohl, André Picard

The Rolling Stones' 1990 Steel Wheels tour in Europe (with a giant Blade Runner–inspired set) was filmed in IMAX (images 10 times the size of 35mm) to be shown on screens that can be "8 stories high." The Stones are helped by the Uptown Horns and (too many) other sidemen. Haskell Wexler was the camera consultant. It's been screened at museums.

AT THE SLEAZIES

(Leoram, 1991) D: Herb Padilla Jr. S: Paul Hugli P: Jeff Valencia

Rocky and Electra are the sleaze version of Siskel and Ebert. Rocky (Rob Nutt) is a funny-looking, beer-swilling, blond punk with shades, and Electra (Royce) is a sarcastic dominatrix with a ponytail and a riding crop. They introduce nine rare nudie-movie trailers, then review the films while insulting each other. The reviewer segments are actually funny, very well done (for a change), and the actors have no problem with the many big words. The real reason to own this tape, though, is to see the incredible trailers. Here are the original trailers for Orgy of the Dead and Please Don't Eat My Mother! More obscure ones are for Dr. Sex and The Peeping Phantom (he's a monster in a cape chasing strippers around a theater). Two of the best are for nudie/drug movies, Smoke of Evil and Acid Dreams. A bonus trailer is for a "European" book, Stag Party Pictures ("For he-men only"!). This book was sold in theaters along with 12 photos (in a plain envelope) for only $12! Selling books like this was common in 60s adult theaters. At the Roxy in Cleveland, the pitchman (a guy who looked like he'd escaped from a carnival) appeared in person. He also sold candy bars "with one—five—ten—or—more—dollar bills in them!'

THE ATTIC

(Unicorn, 1979) D/S: George Edwards S: Tony Crechales

The Attic is an obscure but pretty good PG-rated modern gothic psychological drama filmed in Wichita, Kansas. Ray Milland is real nasty as the domineering father in a wheelchair. Carrie Snodgress is his mousy librarian daughter who has to take care of him. She imagines how to humiliate or kill him and spends time with her chimp, Dickie. With Rosemary Murphy, Ruth Cox, and Marjorie Eaton. Edwards produced Curtis Harrington movies. Gary Graver was the cinematographer.

ATTILA

(SW, 1954) D: Pietro Francisci S: Ennio De Concini, Primo Zeglio P: Carlo Ponti, Dino De Laurentiis Italy/France (Attila: Flagello di Dio)

Anthony Quinn stars as Attila the Hun in a color spectacle considered pretty bloody in its day. With Sophia Loren as his woman, Irene Papas, Henri Vidal, and Eduardo Ciannelli. Joseph E. Levine released it in the US in 1958 to capitalize on Loren's fame. Quinn had also costarred in Ulysses for the same producers. Francisci also directed the famous first Steve Reeves Hercules (1959).

AUDITIONS

(Wizard, 1978) D: Harry Tampa/ Hurwitz S/P: Charles Band

A narrator claims that real people have been secretly filmed auditioning for Fairytales II on movie sets. An offscreen voice tells each person to strip and do various things. Several nude women masturbate for the camera, one with a skeleton foot. Linnea Quigley, as "an underage star-struck kid," does a wild nude dance in a dungeon, then has sex in various positions and is part of an "S&M fantasy." This almost-X, fake-documentary "comedy" has some awful Gong Show–type scenes and naked women (and men) talking endlessly. The cast includes porno stars Ronda Jo Petty, Rick Lutz, William Margold, and Jack Cassidy, plus Stumpy the Midget. The music is from producer Band's Laserblast. Quigley was also in Fairytales.

AUNTIE LEE'S MEAT PIES

(Columbia, 1991) D/S: J. F. Robertson S/P: Gerald Stein

Karen Black is a Satanist who sends out her four cheerful, beautiful nieces to lure men back so they can be killed, ground up, and sold as pies. Members of a heavy-metal band are the main victims. The humor is pretty odd, the FX are laughable, and Kristine Rose, Ava Fabian, Teri Weigel, and Pia Reyes (all from the pages of Playboy) do not have the expected nude scenes. Each one has her own "fantasy room," though, and there's also a full-grown female "baby." The cast includes Michael Berryman (in a larger than usual role) as a handyman, Pat Morita as the sherrif, Huntz Hall (!), and Kasha. The Mentors and Suicidal Tendencies are heard on the soundtrack. Robertson produced The Crawling Hand and later made many porno features as "Adele Robbins."

AURORA ENCOUNTER

(Starmaker, 1985) D/P: Jim McCullough Sr. S/P: Jim McCullough Jr.

Jack Elam stars with Peter Brown in a family feature about a UFO in 1897 Texas. The odd cast includes the late country singer Dottie West, the late Spanky McFarland (from the Our Gang/Little Rascals series) as the governor, Carol Bagdasarian, and director Charles B. Pierce as a preacher. The alien is played by a dying, prematurely aged kid (Micky Hays) with progeria. It was shot outside Dallas at "the Big D ranch."

AUTOMAN

(1983) D: Lee H. Katzin S/P: Glen Larson

This is the pilot for a (very) short-lived ABC-TV series that copied the movie Tron. Desi Arnaz Jr. creates a holograph crime-fighter (Chuck Wagner) with a supercar and a talking computer-cursor helper. With Robert Lansing, Camilla Sparv, and Patrick Macnee as the villain. Larson was the guy responsible for series like Buck Rogers, Battlestar Galactica, and Knightrider.

AUTOPSIA DE UN FANTASMA

(Sinister, 1966) D/P: Ismael Rodriguez S: Armando Crispini, Lucio Baitistrada Mexico (Autopsy of a Ghost)

John Carradine was in quite a few south-of-the-border movies, but this slapstick comedy/horror oddity also stars Basil Rathbone and Cameron Mitchell! Despite the three English-speaking stars (who are all dubbed by others), Autopsia is available only in Spanish. It's a very goofy, sometimes funny color movie full of surprises. The credits are presented by great skeleton, witch, and devil marionettes in an old-fashioned circus-tent show. The story opens during a thunderstorm—it rains (actual) buckets! Rathbone is Canuto Pérez, a medieval ghost in a castle who talks to his own skeleton. He can disappear at will, sleeps in a coffin, and also has a talking tarantula. Mitchell is Moléculo, an absent-minded scientist wearing crooked bifocals. Best of all is Carradine as the Devil. He has a funny, deep voice, and a retractable tail he uses as a lasso, turns people into goats, and disguises himself as a mailman and an undertaker. His arms can lengthen (just like Freddy Krueger's) and in one scene he tells a little kid in an angel costume to jab a woman in the ass with a syringe. She turns into a robot with a skirt, a wig, and a Cousin Itt voice.

Bizarre Mexican comedians with impossibly high voices, looking like they've escaped from vaudeville, complicate matters. One guy dresses like a child, runs a torture chamber, and splashes everybody, including himself, in gasoline, before being banished to Hell. Autopsia has hippies, sexy women, a gorilla in a dog house, men in drag, classical music, instrumental rock, comic signs in English, and some fun special effects. Eventually, we discover that it's all a play directed by the Devil. "Este es el fin!" The stars look like they're having a good time. Carradine and Rathbone were also both in the American Hillbillies in a Haunted House, filmed around the same time (just before Rathbone died).

AUTOPSY

(Mogul, 1973) D: José M. Forque Spain (Tarot; Ángela)

Sue Lyon marries blind old Fernando Rey but has sex with his valet. The maid and cook become involved in the murder-for-money plot. With Gloria Grahame. Not to be confused with the 1973 Spanish Mondo movie or the 1976 Italian movie with Mimsy Farmer (from Prism) with the same title.

AUTUMN BORN

(Monterey, 1979) D/P: Lloyd Simandl Canada

Dorothy Stratton stars in her first feature, the one described in Star 80 as "a traumatic bondage film." In it, she's a 17-year-old orphan about to inherit a financial empire. She's tied up, subjected to brainwashing, and whipped. It was released on video only after she was murdered in real life. Also with Roberta Bizeau. The same year, Stratton was in Americathon and Skatetown, USA.

AVALANCHE

(1994) D: Paul Shapiro S: Tim Redman P: Jonathan Goodwill Canada

Michael Gross and his teen daughter (Deanna Milligan) and young son are trapped in a snowbound house in the Canadian Rockies, also containing a seemingly indestructable killer diamond thief (David Hasselhoff). The Fox TV movie was filmed in British Columbia.

THE AVENGERS

(EMG series, 1961–69)

The wonderful original British spy/fantasy The Avengers series starred Patrick Macnee as John Steed, paired first with Ian Hendry, then with a series of very modern women who wore great clothes and knew martial arts: Honor Blackman as Catherine Gale (1962–64), Diana Rigg as Mrs. Emma Peel (1965–68), then Linda Thorson as Tara King (1968–69). Blackman quit and played Pussy Galore in Goldfinger, and Rigg quit and was in On Her Majesty's Secret Service. The Rigg episodes are the coolest, and many are now on tape. Some of the Blackman episodes (never shown in the US on TV) are also on tape and provide a fascinating look at how the series evolved. There are 65 53-minute episodes available. The first episode that was on tape was "A Touch of Brimestone" (1966), and it was sold in the S&M section of porno stores. There was also The New Avengers (1976–79) with Macnee and Joanna Lumley.

AVENGING ANGEL

(Starmaker, 1985) D/S: Robert Vincent O'Neil
S: Joseph M. Cala P: Sandy Howard, Keith Rubinstein

Betsy Russell takes over the Molly/Angel role in this sequel to Angel (1983). The former Hollywood teen hooker is now a law student packing a .357 Magnum who goes undercover as a hooker to avenge the death of her detective friend. Rory Calhoun and Susan Tyrrell return to lighten things up and are joined by a bag lady and transvestites, Ossie Davis, Ross Hagen as a hit man, Lynda Weismeier, Charlene Jones, Deborah Vorhees, Karen Mani, and Hoke Howell. Another actress took over for Angel III.

THE AVENGING CONSCIENCE

(Video Yesterday, 1914) D/S/P: D. W. Griffith

This is one of the oldest horror features available on tape and was a major all-star release in its day. It's based on Edgar Allan Poe's story "The Tell Tale Heart," with touches of the poem "Annabel Lee." The editing and double exposures were advanced at the time, and the film has Griffith's typical religious touches, not found in Poe. Henry B. Walthall stars as the killer who has visions of Christ and Moses before he kills his uncle and walls up the body "for the love of Annabel Lee" (Blanche Sweet). With Donald Crisp, Dorothy Gish, and Mae Marsh. Griffith made it at Reliance-Majestic. It's 78 minutes long. Many other silent Griffith films are available on tape, including his famous epics Intolerance (1915) and The Birth of a Nation (1916).

AVENGING FORCE

(Media, 1986) D: Sam Firstenberg
S/A: James Booth P: Golan/Globus

The martial-arts fighters from Firstenberg's American Ninja movies return as different characters. Michael Dudikoff is agent Matt Hunter, and Steve James is a kung-fu-fighting candidate for senator in Louisiana. Star villain John P. Ryan is the leader of "the Pentacle," a white supremacist group. Ryan dies at the end, but in the real world he might be David Duke. With James Booth, Bill "Superfoot" Wallace, a manhunt in the bayou, and the spectacle of lots of tourists being killed during Mardi Gras by ninjas.

AVENGING GODFATHER

(Active, Intergobal 1977) D/S: J. Robert Wagoner
P/A: Rudy Ray Moore S: Cliff Roquemore
(Disco Godfather)

Comedian Rudy Ray Moore, from Fort Smith, Arkansas, was famous for his X-rated "party albums" before he became a movie star in Dolemite (1975). This was his fifth movie, and it's an amazing, PG-rated, anti-drug, action movie/musical. Active changed the title for the video because they don't realize that "disco" is now a profitable nostalgia word, just like "Hollywood" or "rock and roll." Moore plays Tucker Williams, "the Disco Godfather," at his own popular Blueberry Hill club. Every night he wears outrageous jumpsuits and commands the mixing boards, rapping to the house, "Put your weight on it! Put your weight on it!" His student basketball-star nephew Bucky shows up on PCP ("The newest psychedelic chemical of the 70s!") and promptly freaks out. Tucker starts a one-man "Attack the wack!" campaign, confronts pushers and criminal chemists, and visits a hospital ward where a PCP victim has a flashback to when she roasted and served her baby for dinner. As Tucker, Rudy is determined, likable, and believable (except when his double shows up for fight scenes). This movie is jammed with incredible freak-out sequences that could have been inspired by Glen or Glenda. A skeleton walks, eyes light up, a cartoon demon appears, and a witch cuts off Bucky's hands! There's an exorcism, a doctor prescribes shock treatments, and gangsters snort coke off the cover of the Saturday Night Fever soundtrack album! This movie has a soundtrack album too, and it's worth a whole lot more than copies of the album from that Travolta movie! With Carol Speed (the star of Abby). Watch this tape and find out what you've been missing!

AVENGING SPIRIT = DOMINIQUE

THE AWFUL DR. ORLOF

(SW, 1961) D/S: Jesús Franco P: Sergio Newman
Spain/France (Gritos en la Noche)

In 1912 the blind Morpho (Richard Valle) kidnaps women and takes them to a castle on an island. Dr. Orlof (Howard Vernon) just wants a new face for his disfigured daughter (Diana Lorys). A ballerina (also Lorys) goes undercover to help her police-inspector boyfriend catch the killer. Maria Silva is a cabaret dancer (she sings in Spanish), and Franco himself can be seen playing the piano. This b/w film has some impressive atmospheric shots, especially the ones with the bizarre Morpho. The Frank Henenlotter Sexy Shocker release is the dubbed American version released in 1964 by Sigma III. The subtitled French version from Video Search of Miami has some brief additional nudity. Franco returned to the Dr. Orlof(f) character many times.

AXE

(SW, 1974) D/S/A: Frederic R. Freidel P: J. G. "Pat" Paterson Jr. (California Axe Murders; Lisa Lisa)

Three escaped cons attack a disturbed young girl (Lisa Lee) living on a farm with her catatonic grandfather. She knows how to decapitate chickens, and she's prepared to fight back with an axe and a razor. This is 65 minutes of dreary rural revenge produced in Charlotte, North Carolina by the man who made Dr. Gore. Axe was rereleased in 1983 and was once available on a tape with Scream in the Streets.

BABES IN TOYLAND

(Orion, 1986) D: Clive Donner S: Paul Zindel P: Tony Ford, Neil T. Maffeo

A pre-femme fatale Drew Barrymore stars with Keanu Reeves (!) in an overlong (150-minute) NBC-TV version of the Victor Herbert operetta filmed in Munich. With Richard Mulligan (who was soon to marry a porno star in real life) as Barnaby, Eileen Brennan, Jill Scholen, and Pat Morita. Leslie Bricusse wrote a new score. Zindel also wrote the 80s TV version of Alice in Wonderland. By the way, Babes in Toyland was also a great three-woman band from Minneapolis who most likely took their name from this version instead of the 1934 or even the 1961 version.

BABY CART series: See LIGHTNING SWORDS OF DEATH and LONE WOLF

BABY DOLL

(Warner, 1956) D: Elia Kazan S/P: Tennessee Williams

This atmospheric film set in the backwoods was condemned by the Legion of Decency and the Catholic Church and was banned in many areas. John Waters said it made him decide to be a director. Karl Malden burns the cotton mill of his rival, Sicilian Eli Wallach (in his film debut), who gets revenge by seducing Malden's young still-virginal wife (Carroll Baker, who was nominated for an Oscar). The acting of the entire cast (which includes Mildred Dunnock, Rip Torn, and Lonny Chapmen) is inspired. The great soundtrack by Kenyon Hopkins includes "Shame Shame Shame" by Smiley Lewis. It was filmed in Benoit, Mississippi.

THE BABY DOLL MURDERS

(Republic, 1992) D/S/P: Paul Leder P: Ralph Thornberg

Each time a psycho in a hooded sweatshirt is about to kill, we get to see the victim naked first (usually having sex). This "erotic thriller" is packed with comedy and sex scenes. Jeff Kober (a guy with a really strange face) and Bobby DiCiccio are LA police detectives who are after the killer. The suspects include a mechanic and a deaf man, but you'll probably figure out who's leaving those baby dolls by the bodies. With John Saxon as the top cop, Melanie Smith, Julie McCullough, and Eileen Seeley. The entire cast is proudly introduced at the end. Leder was in his 4th decade of turning out this stuff.

BABY FACE NELSON

(1957) D: Don Siegel S: Irving Shulman, Daniel Mainwaring P: Al Zimbalist

Mickey Rooney has one of his best 50s roles as the famous Depression-era gangster. Carolyn Jones costars as his girlfriend. With Leo Gordon (perfect as Dillinger), Ted De Corsia, Cedric Hardwicke, Anthony Caruso, Jack Elam, John Hoyt, and Elisha Cook Jr. Rooney was back playing short gangsters in The Last Mile and The Big Operator (both 1959).

BABYLON FIVE

(1993) D: Richard Compton S: J. Michael Straczynski P: Robert Latham Brown

The feature pilot for the TV series stars Michael O'Hare as the commander of a futuristic space ship whose huge station includes humans and members of four alien races. Jerry Dole costars as the security chief, with Mira Furlan as a bald alien, Tamlyn Tomita, Patricia Talman, and Johnny Sekka. With music by Stewart Copeland and computer FX. Straczynski was the executive producer and creator, and Harlan Ellison was a consultant. The recast, syndicated series (with regulars O'Hare, Dole, and Furlan, plus Claudia Christian, Peter Jurasik, Andreas Katsulas, Stephen Furst, and Bill Mumy) debuted in 1994 (at the same time as the very similar but more expensive Star Trek spinoff Deep Space Nine), with Miles Copeland as executive producer.

THE BABY MAKER

(Warner, 1970) D/S: James Bridges P: Richard Goldstone

In this controversial (at the time) Robert Wise production from short-lived National General, hippie Barbara Hershey agrees to conceive a baby with a suburban man for $500. Scott Glenn (in his first feature), as her boyfriend, plays the guitar, takes psychedelic drugs, and has an affair. He rides a motorcycle in this and his next two features (Angels: Hard as They Come and Hex). It's complete with dated clothes and music. With Sam Groom, Colin Wilcox-Horne, Jeannie Berlin, Phyllis Coates, and Brenda Sykes.

BABY: SECRET OF THE LOST LEGEND

(Touchstone, 1985) D: B. W. L. Norton S: Clifford and Ellen Green P: Jonathan T. Taplin (Dinosaur: Secret of the Lost Legend)

Paleontologists William Katt and Sean Young find an inflatable-looking, cute baby dinosaur in the jungles of the Ivory Coast. Its father is killed and its mother is kidnapped. Young is also kidnapped (by tribesmen). Patrick McGoohan is the leading scientist villain of this PG-rated King Kong-inspired Disney misfire.

THE BABYSITTER

(1969) D: Don Henderson S/A: James E. McLarty P/A: George E. Carey

A judge (Carey), about to sentence a motorcycle gang for a murder, is blackmailed with evidence of his affair with a teenage babysitter, Candy (Patricia Wymer). A counterframe is planned by planting marijuana on the bikers. With Kathy Williams and Robert Tessier. The music for this b/w, R-rated Crown International feature is by the Food. Weekend with the Babysitter was a follow-up.

THE BABYSITTER

(HBO, 1980) D: Peter Medak S: Jennifer Miller P: David Garcia

Stephanie Zimbalist stars as a psycho housekeeper who plays deadly mind games with the parents who hired her (William Shatner and Patty Duke). This ABC-TV movie also features John Houseman.

BABY SNAKES

(MPI, 1979) D/P/A/M/E: Frank Zappa

This part-live feature actually played theatrically. Originally 166 minutes, it was later trimmed to 91 minutes but is complete on tape. The concert is from Halloween 1977 in New York City and features lots of Zappa guitar work. With Adrien Belew, drummer Terry Bozzio, Roy Estrada, Peter Wolf, and Ron Delsener. If you're not a Zappa fanatic, the reason to watch Baby Snakes is the excellent clay animation by Bruce Brickford. The Amazing Mr. Brickford (MPI, 1987) is a solid hour of his animation (with Zappa's music).

BACHELOR PARTY

(Fox, 1984) D/S: Neal Israel S: Pat Proft P: Ron Moler, Bob Israel

The maker of Tunnelvision and Americathon were responsible for this teen hit featuring Tom Hanks and hookers at a wild party. Tawny Kitaen is his future bride, and don't miss the sight of the head of William Tepper on the naked body of Monique Gabrielle. With Adrian Zmed, Michael Dudikoff, George Grizzard, Brett Clark, John Bloom, Ji-Tu Cumbuka, Angela Aames and Roseanne Katon.

BACHELOR'S DREAM

(Rhino, 1967) D/P: A. C. Stevens/ Stephen C. Apostoloff S: Jason Underwood (Bachelor Party)

This feature, advertised as being "in loving color and gorgeous Astrovision," is a crudely made throwback to early nudies like The Immoral Mr. Teas. Funny-looking everyman Abner Bidle imagines himself alone in a theater watching strippers on stage. Most of the feature is tinted b/w footage that Stephens owned but did not film himself. Several new full-color scenes (a blonde taking a bubble bath, a woman dancing topless at home with a stuffed bunny, and a brief lesbian encounter) were added. It's hard to imagine grown men paying to watch this in a theater in 1967, but they did. The video version is subtitled Naked Dream of the Naughty Nerd (!). On Rhino's Saturday Night Sleazies (Volume II) with Lady Godiva Meets Tom Jones.

BACKBEAT

(Polydor, 1994) D/S: Iain Softley S: Stephen Ward, Michael Thomas, Stephen Woolley, Phinola Dwyer UK

This is the best movie ever made about the Beatles, and it almost makes you forget all their later overblown experimentation and Paul McCartney's epic ballad hits. It's about the Beatles when they were a hardworking, hard-rocking, pill-popping bar band playing before strip acts in Hamburg in 1961. It centers on Stu Sutcliff (Stephen Dorff) as the artist and bass player falling for Astrid Kirchner (Sheryl Lee) and on the jealous John Lennon (Ian Hart, also in the 1992 film The Hours and the Times). Astrid comes up with the famous haircuts, and Stu suffers from a brain hemmorhage, possibly brought on by a fight Lennon started. With Gary Bakewell as McCartney and Chris O'Neill as George Harrison. The excellent Virgin soundtrack (all covers of covers) features members of Nirvana, REM, Sonic Youth, and others as the early Beatles and was produced by Don Was.

George Harrison (Chris O'Neill), Stu Sutcliff (Stephen Dorff), and John Lennon (Ian Hart) in Backbeat.

BACK DOOR TO HELL

(1964) D: Monte Hellman S: Richard A. Guttman P: Fred Ross US/Philippines

Singer Jimmie Rodgers (whose hits had stopped coming), the still-struggling Jack Nicholson, and John Hackett star as Americans in this WWII story. They take back a town with the help of some Filipino freedom-fighters, but the Japanese threaten to execute one child per hour if the Americans don't give up. Nicholson gets drunk, worries, wonders, and is eventually shot. Conrad Maga and Annabelle Huggins are the Filipino stars. 20th Century–Fox released the Lippert production. Nicholson was in four Hellman movies in a row. This one was made back to back with Flight to Fury (1965).

BACKDRAFT

(MCA, 1991) D: Ron Howard S: Gregory Widen P: Brian Grazer, Pen Densham, John Watson

Howard made a more serious version of the kind of all-star 70s disaster movies Irwin Allen used to make but with the addition of expensive, state-of-the-art ILM FX. It's long (135 minutes). Kurt Russell and William Baldwin star as firemen brothers at odds with each other while fighting large, picturesque fires. Robert De Niro is the chief arson investigator. With Donald Sutherland, Scott Glenn, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Rebecca De Mornay, Jason Gedrick, J. T. Walsh, David Crosby, and the director's brother Clint. The climactic fire in a chemical warehouse was the basis for a Universal Studios tour attraction. A letterboxed edition is available.

BACKFIRE

(Vidmark, 1987) D: Gilbert Cates S: Larry Brand, Rebecca Reynolds P: Danton Rissner US/Canada

Karen Allen is married to a disturbed but rich Nam vet (Jeff Fahey) who has violent flashbacks. Keith Carradine is a mysterious drifter. The complex film noir drive-a-person-to-suicide plot includes the reliable blood-from-a-shower trick and Allen in topless scenes. With Bernie Casey and Dean Paul Martin, who died after production (in British Columbia). It debuted on Showtime.

BACK FROM HELL

(Kashmir, 1992) D/S/P/C/M/E: Matt Jaissle

A black priest (Shawn Scarbrough, who narrates) visits his old friend Jack (Larry DuBois), a young Hollywood star who is in hiding after selling his soul to the devil. Jack also confesses that he "smoked a doobie with a talk show host." The two guys encounter masked killers with axes, a possessed cop, zombies, gore, and spurting blood. A hand from a Bible grabs Father Aaron by the crotch and he eventually fights back with a chainsaw, yelling, "Tell Satan I said, kiss my black ass!" The all-male cast 16mm feature was shot in rural areas around Ann Arbor by the then 20-year-old director.

BACK IN ACTION

(MCA, 1994) D: Steve DeMarco S: Karl Schiffman P: George Flak

An LA detective (Roddy Piper) joins a former Special Forces agent and vigilante (Billy Banks) to battle bad guys and rescue Banks' sister (Bobbie Phillips) in Toronto. The SGE release is mostly fights and shooting, with some torture thrown in.

BACKSTAB

(1990) D: James Kaufman S: Steve Koval P: Tom Berry

James Brolin stars as an architect having an affair, in this Fatal Attraction copy, with Meg Foster, June Chadwick, and Isabelle Truchon (featured in the sex scenes).

BACKSTREET DREAMS

(Vidmark, 1990) D: Rupert Hitzig D/S/A: Jason O'Malley P: Lance H. Robbins

You don't want to see this Brooke Shields movie set in Hoboken, New Jersey, but you might want to know about it. O'Malley, the creator and star, plays Dino, an Irish-Italian wrestler who doubles as an enforcer for gangsters and has a slutty young wife (Sherilyn Fenn) and an autistic little boy. Shields plays Stevie, a social worker who softens him up, tells him about Neal Cassidy, and teaches his son. Meanwhile, a drug deal in Newark with some black men gets violent, the boy is kidnapped, and the young stars fall in love. Filmed in Hoboken, Weehawken, and Union City (and in LA), this vanity production also features Burt Young, Anthony Franciosa, Nick Cassavetes, Joe Pantoliano, and Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini. Hitzig also directed Night Visitor.

BACK STREET JANE

(Scorched Earth, 1989) D/S/P/C/M/E: Ronnie Cramer

Cramer's first feature (in 16mm b/w) is a great-looking story of "blank generation" people who live for drugs. Two bored, unemployed friends, Diane (Monica McFarland) and Jane (Marlene Shapiro), sneak into a dealer's house to rip him off. They find him murdered, so they slowly and methodically track down the killers to blackmail them. Nicole, a Eurasian dragon lady (Sheila Ivy Traister), kills her male partner and gives half her coke stash to the blackmailers, after she puts arsenic in it. She goes to stay with two guys, gets high, and talks about monster movies before they all nod out. There's effective (offscreen) sex and violence and nonstop double-crosses and plot surprises in the tradition of movies like The Killing. The actors, who do fine, low-key work, have all been in plays or TV shows. Cramer, based in Denver, made excellent rock videos for his group, Alarming Trends, first.

BACK TO BACK

(MGM, 1989) D: John Kincade S: George Francis Skrow P: Brad Krevoy, Steven Stabler

Hitchhiker Apollonia joins the two sons of a disgraced armored-car driver on a search to find a lost fortune in the Nevada hills. With a good cast, including Bill Paxton, Ben Johnson, Susan Anspach, and Luke Askew. Apollonia was also in Ministry of Vengeance for Roger Corman's Concorde.

BACK TO THE BEACH

(Paramount, 1987) D: Lyndall Hobbs S: Peter Krikes, Steve Meerson, Christopher Thompson P: Frank Mancuso Jr.

Frankie Avalon and Annette Funicello (who were the executive producers) have settled down in Ohio, more than 20 years after their Beach Party movies. They go on a Hawaii beach vacation with their kids and encounter has-been 60s TV stars Connie Stevens, Don Adams, Bob Denver, Alan Hale, the surviving cast members of Leave It to Beaver, and Edd "Kookie" Byrnes. Dick Dale and the late Stevie Ray Vaughn play "Pipeline." With Lori Loughlin, Fishbone, and Pee-wee Herman (who sings "Surfin Bird"). This PG film was "based on characters created by Lou Russoff" back at AIP. The original movies had better guest stars.

BACK TO THE FUTURE

(MCA, 1985) D/S: Robert Zemeckis S/P: Bob Gale P: Neil Canton

Original star Eric Stoltz was fired well into production, so replacement Michael J. Fox (who had been starring in President Reagan's favorite TV program, Family Ties) became the time-traveling Marty McFly. This Steven Spielberg production from 20th Century-Fox made tons of money. Dr. Brown (Christopher Lloyd) and a nuclear-powered DeLorean take McFly back to the nostalgic and simpler 50s to help his own father (the always weird Crispin Glover) stand up to bullies and meet his mother (Lea Thompson). There's a near-incest theme with his mother in this PG-rated hit. A theater of the past (showing a Ronald Reagan western) that later became a porno theater is a message the president himself must have enjoyed. Huey Lewis and the News do "The Power of Love," a song we all got real sick of, and the scene where McFly invents rock and roll by showing a black band how to play is one of the most irritating of the decade. With Marc McClure, Casey Siemaszko, James Tolkan, Thomas F. Wilson, Elisabeth Shue, Billy Zane, and George "Buck" Flower as a bum. The ILM FX (used in the entire series) are typically great, and the soundtrack is on MCA.

BACK TO THE FUTURE, PART II

(MCA, 1989) D: Robert Zemeckis
S/P: Bob Gale P: Neil Canton

This one starts right where Part I left off. The limited talents of Michael J. Fox were spread a little thin playing three roles at once, and at nearly 30 he was a little too old for a teen. The sequel was a flop compared to the original. He travels to 2015 and plays his own son (and daughter), then goes back to 1985, then back to 1955. Lloyd, Thompson, Wilson (the villain), Siemaszko, Tolkan, Zane, and Shue all returned. Glover asked for too much money. Wilson steals the DeLorean time-machine car and goes back to 1955 to bet on sports events. With Joe Flaherty, Flea, Jason Scott Lee, and Buck Flower. Capra's classic but overquoted It's a Wonderful Life is the major plot inspiration. The end is just a setup for Part III, which was filmed at the same time, a practice that used to result in lawsuits and criticism but by the late 80s was accepted as just business as usual.

BACK TO THE FUTURE, PART III

(MCA, 1990) D: Robert Zemeckis
S/P: Bob Gale P: Neil Canton

Fox, Lloyd, Thompson, and Shue return again in a comedy/science-fiction/western set mostly in 1885. With Mary Steenburgen and western character actors Matt Clark, Pat Buttram, Harey Carey Jr., and Dub Taylor. The ILM FX are fine as usual, and the group ZZ Top shows up for a cameo. Crispin Glover sued over Parts II and III (where Jeffrey Weissman was given his role and copied his acting style). The diminishing financial returns made this the last stop for the overage teen time-traveler. There's also a Secrets of the "Back to the Future" Trilogy tape from MCA.

BACKTRACK

(Vestron, 1988) D/S/A: Dennis Hopper
S: Rachel Kronstadt P: Dick Clark, Dan Paulson (Do It the Hard Way; Catch Fire)

Originally this movie was 3 hours long. Hopper had his name removed from a 98-minute version, but a 102-minute tape was released in 1992. It's an excellent road movie with gangsters, penitentes in New Mexico, action, and art arguments. Hopper plays a calm, sax-playing hitman named Milo who loves Charlie Parker's music. Jodie Foster plays the woman he's hired to kill, a successful LA artist who makes LCD sign art with thought-provoking messages (by real artist Jenny Holtzer). Milo claims he's given up his whole life for her, and she has no choice but to spend the rest of her life with him. The great cast of hoods includes Dean Stockwell, Vincent Price, John Turturro, and a ranting Joe Pesci. And there's Fred Ward and Sy Richardson as cops, Charlie Sheen, Julie Adams, Toni Basil, and Bob Dylan as a sculptor.

BACKWOODS

(Cinema Group, 1986) D: Dean Crow
S: Charles Joseph P: Maureen Sweeney (Geek!)

A hillbilly father and his geek son terrorize and kill urban campers. It's from Indiana. Luther the Geek (from Illinois) covered some of the same territory.

BAD ATTITUDE

(Xenon, 1990) D: Bill Cummings
S: Crane Webster P: Bruce Clark

A demoted undercover drug cop (Leon, who resembles Jimmy Cliff in The Harder They Come on his custom-built chopper) battles local drug dealers. The tough bad guys are both overacting women in male drag (!) who never seem to leave their van. A tattooed Vietnamese woman in black leather (Gina Lim) works for a blind street preacher, but neither are what they seem. There isn't really enough action, violence, or sex, but Susan Finque is pretty outrageous as Mendez (she/he bites an ear off), and the ending (a shootout with female vigilantes) is worth seeing. Filmed in Seattle. Leon, later in big-budget movies and the star of Cool Runnings, was also associate producer.

BAD BLONDE

(1952) D: Reginald Le Borg S: Guy Elmes, Richard Landau P: Anthony Hinds UK (The Flanagan Boy)

In this Hammer film (released by Lippert in the US), Barbara Payton plays Lorna, a scheming blonde who seduces a boxer (Tony Wright) and convinces him to murder her fight-manager husband (Frederick Valk). Payton was also in The Four-Sided Triangle (1953), a Hammer science-fiction movie. The company was capitalizing on the actress's many real-life scandals. In the early 60s she was arrested for prostitution.

BAD BLOOD

(1981) D: Mike Newell S/P: Andrew Brown New Zealand/UK

During WWII a farmer (Jack Thompson) kills seven people and is hunted in the bush country. The film is based on a real incident.

BAD BLOOD

(Academy, 1989) D/P: Chuck Vincent
S: Craig Horrall (A Woman Obsessed)

"Ruth Raymond" (aka 70s porno star Georgina Spelvin) stars in a Baby Jane-type role. She's an artist living in a Long Island mansion who imagines her dead husband has been reincarnated as her grandson. Various characters are killed. With Linda Blair as her daughter-in-law (who spends most of the movie in bed), Troy Donahue, Christina Veronica, and Jane Hamilton/Veronica Hart. It was one of many direct-to-video features made by Vincent and Horrall before both died of AIDS.

BAD BOY

(Allied Artists, 1949) D: Kurt Neuman
S: Robert Hardy Andrews P: Paul Short

"Danny is going straight—straight to the electric chair!" That's how they advertised the third feature with Audie Murphy, America's most decorated WWII soldier. It was his first starring role, as a 16-year-old Dallas juvenile delinquent named Danny Lester. He's sent to a boys' ranch to reform. Lloyd Nolan and Jane Wyatt are the adult stars, with James Gleason, Stanley Clements, Martha Vickers, former child stars James (Jimmy) Lydon and Dickie Moore, Selena Royle (later in Robot Monster), and Tommy Cook (later in Missile to the Moon).

THE BAD BUNCH

(VCI, 1973) D/S/A: Greydon Clark
S/P: Alvin L. Fast (Tom; Nigger Lover)

A war vet (Clark) goes to the Watts area of LA to deliver a letter from a black friend who died in Nam. He encounters his friend's hostile younger brother Tom aka Makimba (Tom Johnigar), hippie girls, gangsters, and Aldo Ray and Jock Mahoney as hateful cops. (Former screen Tarzan Mahoney had a stroke shortly afterward.) Most viewers agree that the film is "depressing and racist." A scene at a pool party is an excuse for naked women (like Bambi Allen and Jacquelin Cole). The theme song is called "Nigger Lover," and the music is by Ed Cobb, once known for his psychedelic and garage-rock hits. It was rated GP, then R. Exploitation specialist Mohammed "Mardi" Rustam was the executive producer of this Dimension release and appears in the cast. It was filmed on location.

BAD CHANNELS

(Paramount, 1992) D: Ted Nicolaou
S: Jackson Barr P: Keith Rayson

A small-town DJ (Paul Hipp) is held hostage by aliens during a marathon. Nothing much happens in this boring, dumb comedy with terrible effects, but every once in a while a rock video wakes you up. One of them is a Devo takeoff, and one character imitates Crispin Glover. With Charlie Spradling, Martha Quinn as a reporter, Aaron Lustig, and Sonny Carl Davis. The box tries to lure renters with "music by Blue Oyster Cult." They (or what was left of them) do two forgettable songs. Nicolaou also made the (much better) Subspecies movies.

BAD DREAMS

(CBS/Fox, 1988) D/S: Andrew Fleming
S: Steven E. deSouza P: Gale Anne Hurd

Richard Lynch (with his real-life damaged face), is a Jim Jones type of cult leader who dies during a mass suicide in a fire in 1973. Somehow he returns years later to terrorize the lone survivor (Jennifer Rubin) when she comes out of a coma. Most of this unsuccessful horror movies takes place in an insane asylum for young people (as did the previous year's Nightmare on Elm Street III, also with Rubin). With Harris Yulin as a crazed shrink, Bruce Abbott, Dean Cameron, and Sy Richardson. The effects are by Michelle Burke. The soundtrack, on Varèse Sarabande, was composed by Jay Ferguson (from Spirit) and features the original "I Had Too Much to Dream" by the Electric Prunes and "The Time Has Come Today" by the Chambers Brothers.

BADGE OF THE ASSASSIN

(Vidmark, 1985) D: Mel Damski S: Lawrence Roman

A CBS-TV movies with James Woods playing a (real) DA chasing after three 70s cop-killers in Harlem, San Francisco, and New Orleans. Yaphet Kotto and Alex Rocco help him, and Pam Grier and Rae Dawn Chong are Black Liberation Army revolutionaries in the Bronx. It's based on a best-selling 1979 novel by Robert K. Tannenbaum. The music is by Tom Scott.

BAD GEORGIA ROAD

(VCI, 1977) D/S/P: John C. Broderick S: Jeffrey Bernini

Gary Lockwood and Carol Lynley star in this southern-appeal drive-in movie. With Royal Dano, Mary Woronov, and George "Buck" Flower in the solid exploitation cast.

BAD GIRLS (1974): See DELINQUENT SCHOOLGIRLS

BAD GIRLS

(Fox, 1994) D: Jonathan Kaplan S: Ken Friedman, Yolande Finch P: Linda Obst

Madeleine Stowe is the prostitute heroine sentenced to death for killing an abusive customer in this revenge western set in 19th-century Oregon. She teams up with Mary Stuart Masterson, Drew Barrymore, and Andie MacDowell, and they flee from Pinkerton detectives and battle bad guys led by James Russo. With James LeGros, Robert Loggia, and Dermot Mulroney as a good-guy gunslinger. Director Tamara Davis was fired after three weeks of production. The script was rewritten, and Kaplan, who made drive-in hits in the 70s, took over. Jerry Goldsmith provided the score. The unrated version on video includes three extra minutes.

BAD GIRLS DO CRY

(Sinister, 1954) D: Sid Melton P: Howard Freeman

David F. Friedman created the ad campaign for this road-show exploitation classic. It has no synced dialogue, and in some scenes two people just look at each other, not even opening their mouths, while voices are heard. It's the sad tale of small-town blond beauty Sally Downs (Misty Ayers). She goes to a model agency ("Why not?"), is attacked by the typical slimeball guy with a little mustache ("What a cheap trick. And I fell for it!"), is shot up with drugs, and ends up a hooker and prisoner. Sally and the other women undress a lot, showing off garter belts and underwear, and there's a cat fight. Comedy relief is provided by an insurance man who can't get laid, a gay customer who doesn't respond to a sexy dance, the Dean and Jean radio soap opera, and an alcoholic madam who accidentally drinks milk and spits it out. I liked the part where a man hides behind a phone pole to avoid being shot. Believe it or not, this 63-minute wonder was released to theaters in 1965. Director Melton was an actor who played Uncle Charlie, the manager, on The Danny Thomas Show and Alf on Green Acres.

BAD GIRLS' DORMITORY

(Active, 1985) D/S: Tim Kincaid
P: Cynthia DePaula

This trashy women-in-prison movie was made in New York by a director who had been known as Joe Gage when making all-male X-rated features. It was the first of many R movies he made over several years for the video market, and it features sex, drugs, and rape. It stars Teresa Farley, Jennifer Delora, Francis Raines, and Marita. Ed French provided the FX.

BAD GIRLS FROM MARS

(Vidmark, 1989) D/S/P: Fred Olen Ray S: Mark Thomas McGhee P: Grant Austin Waldman

The familiar plot of this one is about characters being killed off by a masked killer while making a grade-Z movie. Edy Williams stars as Emmanuelle, a famous madam who is turned on by the smell of garbage. She appears topless a lot (of course) and has a brief lesbian scene with Brinke Stevens. Also in the cast are Jay Richardson as a hammy actor and Jasae. Cinematographer Gary Graver, Ray, and Waldman all appear on camera, along with posters for other Ray features (a self-promotional device that Ed Wood Jr. used to use). The last line is "Will this movie ever end?" It was made in five days.

BAD GIRLS GO TO HELL

(Sleaziest, 1965)
D/S/P: "Dawn Whitman"/Doris Wishman

A b/w made-in-Manhattan marvel about the downfall of newlywed Meg Kelton (Gigi Darlene). After a happy shower with her businessman husband, he leaves, and she kills an attacking janitor in self-defense. Her voice-overs ask, "What have I done? Where can I go? I'll go to New York!" She arrives by bus at the Port Authority terminal (where we see closeups of lots of feet pounding the pavement) and heads for Central Park (where very loud bird-tweets are dubbed in). Now known as Ellen Green from Chicago, she goes home with a friendly guy who gets mad, chugs a bottle of booze, and beats her with a belt. She escapes and moves in with Della, a lesbian. Ellen claims she's an acrobatic dancer and proves it by standing on her head in her underwear. Both women lounge around in bikini underwear while the camera goes to the left of the room, then to the right, then back again, and instrumental jazz and rock play. A newspaper XTRA! headline announces, POLICE SEEK BLONDE SUSPECT IN BOSTON MURDER CASE! After some (offscreen) lovemaking, she leaves and rents a room for $20 a week. The landlady's husband attacks her, so she takes a job as a companion to an older woman whose son turns out to be a detective on the Boston murder case! Meg is caught, but she wakes up screaming. It was all a dream! Then (oh no!) the whole story starts all over again! Some tapes have a Joe Bob Briggs intro.

Doris Wishman's Bad Girls Go to Hell.

BAD GIRLS IN THE MOVIES

(Vestron, 1986) D/P: Dominic Paris

This ill-conceived 56-minute compilation of uncredited scenes shows female delinquents and killers from various features. Some scenes are from Satan's Sadists, Deadly Weapons, and several other Doris Wishman movies. A "prison psychiatrist" stars in the wraparound sequences.

BAD GUYS

(IVE, 1985) D: Joel Silberg S: Brady W. Setwater, John Gillis P: John D. Backe, Myron A. Hyman

This dumb, PG-rated comedy about two suspended cops who become wrestlers features Adam Baldwin, James Booth, Ruth Buzzi, and lots of name wrestlers like Sergeant Slaughter. It was created by the talented, trend-following director of Breakin', Rappin', and Lambada.

BAD INFLUENCE

(RCA, 1990) D: Curtis Hanson
S: David Koepp P: Steve Tisch

Star Rob Lowe was in the news for his homemade sex video from Atlanta when this modernized Strangers on a Train variation was released. He plays a psycho in LA who befriends computer programmer James Spader, videotapes him having sex, and soon has him robbing liquor stores. With Lisa Zane, Joyce Meadows, Charisse Glen, and Kathleen Wilhoite. The UCLA grad screenwriter went on to write scripts for films directed by Spielberg, De Palma, and others. There was a various artists soundtrack.

BADLANDS

(Warner, 1973) D/S/P/A: Terrence Malick

Martin Sheen and Sissy Spacek (who narrates) play the real Charles Starkweather and Caril Fugate in 1958. The infamous garbage collector turned killer starts by shooting his girlfriend's father (Warren Oates), and the couple flee through several states until they're captured. It's a great-looking film shot in Colorado (for an amazing $500,000), and it uses romantic pop songs coming from the radio instead of the expected rock and roll. This look at the boring 50s is more realistic than usual. Alan Vint, Gary Littlejohn, and Ramon Bieri are also in the cast. Malick has made only one other feature, Days of Heaven (1978). For other movies based on Starkweather, look for The Sadist and Stark Raving Mad.

BAD LIEUTENANT

(Live, 1992) D/S: Abel Ferrara S/A: Zoe Lund P: Edward Pressman, Mary Kane

Harvey Keitel goes all out as a nameless, corrupt, depraved, lapsed-Catholic New York City cop in serious debt. He's put on the case of a raped nun (Frankie Thorn) who forgives her attackers and refuses to name them. Keitel shoots, smokes, and snorts heroin and crack, drinks, sells drugs, gambles on Mets games, masturbates in front of some teen girls, and has sex with hookers. He also does a crying nude scene and has a vision of Christ (Paul Hipp) on the Cross. Screenwriter Lund, who plays his junkie girlfriend, was the star of Ferrara's Ms. 45 (as Zoe Tamerlis). The music includes Scooly D rapping over Led Zeppelin riffs and the late Johnny Ace. An NC-17 and a shorter R-rated version are available. The video we saw had an anti-drug spot at the beginning. Ferrara made Body Snatchers next.

BAD LORD BYRON

(1949) D: David Mcdonald S: Terence Young, Anthony Thorne P: Aubrey Baring UK

Dennis Price, as the poet Lord Byron, faces a heavenly court that's reviewing his life. The cast includes Joan Greenwood, Mai Zetterling, and Ernest Thesiger.

BAD MANNERS

(HBO, 1984) D/S: Robert "Bobby" Houston S: Joseph Kwong P: Kim Jorgensen Canada (Growing Pains)

Some orphans spring a kid from a rich couple (Martin Mull and Karen Black) and totally trash the house. The orphanage is run by a sadistic nun (Anne DeSalvo) and her assistant, who uses cattle prods. With Kimmy Robertson and Edy Williams. At one time Disney was going to release this movie, but New World ended up with it. The director costarred in The Hills Have Eyes.

BAD MAN'S RIVER

(High Desert, 1971) D/S: Eugenio Martin S: Phillip Jordan Italy/Spain (E Continuavano a Fregarsi il Milione di Dollari)

Lee Van Cleef leads an outlaw gang in a comic western. James Mason costars, with Gina Lollobrigida, Gianni Garko, and Diana Lorys. Scotia International released this with a PG rating in the US.

THE BAD SEED

(1985) D: Paul Wendkos S/P: George Eckstein

This is an ABC-TV remake of the 1956 feature (which is available from Warner). Both are based on Maxwell Anderson's play about an inherently evil little girl. Carrie Welles stars, with Blair Brown as her mother. David Carradine is creepy as Leroy, the handyman. With Lynn Redgrave and Richard Kiley.

BAD TASTE

(Magnum, 1987) D/S/P/A/C/E: Peter Jackson S: Tony Hiles, Ken Hammond New Zealand

Jackson (then in his 20s) took four years to make this unrated, 16-mm wonder, for which he also did the FX. It's a unique comic/action/gore/science-fiction movie. Government investigators on a small island discover that the entire population is missing. It turns out that aliens living in a house that's really a space ship have been using the people as junk food. Most of Bad Taste takes place in bright daylight near the ocean, so the outrageous (and well done) scenes of blood and dismemberment are all the more shocking. The down-under accents are pretty thick, and there are no females in the cast. The music by Michelle Scullion and the end theme by the Remnants are excellent. A picture disc soundtrack was released. Jackson returned with The Feebles.

BAD TIMING: A SENSUAL OBSESSION

(VSOM, 1980) D: Nicolas Roeg S: Yale Udoff P: Jeremy Thomas UK

A suicidal married woman (Theresa Russell) is involved with a hateful, womanizing psychiatrist (Art Garfunkel) in Vienna. Harvey Keitel is a detective who investigates her death, which is revealed in flashbacks. Strippers on a trampoline and a necrophiliac sex scene helped keep it from wide release. It was Roeg's first feature after The Man Who Fell to Earth (1976) and would have been called just Obsession, but Brian De Palma used the title first. Russell, who later married the director, starred in many more of his films. The uncut version runs 128 minutes and is available on a Japanese laserdisc (but with all pubic hair obscured!). With Denholm Elliott, Daniel Massey, Robert Walker Jr., and Dana Gillespie. The soundtrack features the Who (the irritating "Who Are You?"), Tom Waits, Keith Jarrett, Billie Holiday, and others. World Northal released a cut version of this Rank film in the US.

BAIL JUMPER

(Fox Lorber, 1990) D/S: Christian Faber S/P: Josephine Wallace

Eszter Balint stars as a Missouri shoplifter who heads for New York with her small-time crook boyfriend (B. J. Spalding). It's a road movie, a love story, and a disaster film with falling meteorites, floods, a swarm of locusts, an eclipse, a tidal wave, an earthquake, and tornadoes. With Joie Lee as a clairvoyant and Bo Brinkman.

BAIL OUT

(Vestron, 1988) D/P/A: Max Kleven P/A: David Hasselhoff P: Sanford Hampton (W. B. Blue and the Bean)

David Hasselhoff is WB (White Bread), a bail-bondsman who has to keep Linda Blair alive for a court appearance during a drug war (involving Iranians) in South America. She's kidnapped and tied up. This crime comedy is one of several direct-to-video releases starring the Hasselhoff/Blair team. John Vernon plays yet another villain in a Blair movie, and Debra Lamb and Buck Flower are in there too.

BALBOA

(Vestron, 1982) D/S/P: James Polakof

Tony Curtis is a tycoon with a real-estate scam in a condensed version of a Dallas-type miniseries that was never aired. Carol Lynley, Chuck Connors, Sonny Bono, Cassandra Peterson (Elvira), Lupita Ferrer, and Henry Jones are in the cast. Leo Sayer is on the soundtrack. Martine Beswick narrates, and some nude scenes were added years later for the video debut.

THE BALCONY

(Mystic Fire, 1963) D/P: Joseph Strick S/P: Ben Maddow

Shelley Winters is Madame Irma in this b/w adaptation of Jean Genet's allegorical play. Peter Falk is her police-chief lover. With Lee Grant, Ruby Dee, Jeff Corey, and Kent Smith. Leonard Nimoy (!), who plays the rebel leader, also starred in another Genet adaptation, Deathwatch (1966). Strick also filmed Tropic of Cancer.

LA BAMBA

(RCA, 1987) D/S: Luis Valdez P: Taylor Hackford, Bill Borden

Lou Diamond Phillips stars as 17-year-old singer Ritchie Valens (Valenzuela). He has premonitions of the 1959 plane crash that he died in. Esai Morales costars as his jealous brother. Phillips doesn't look anything like the real (heavier-set) Valens, and the movie deals more with his identity problems as a Mexican-American who speaks only English than with his brief career as a rock star, but it's pretty interesting. With Elizabeth Pena, Joe Pantoliano, Marshall Crenshaw as Buddy Holly, Stephen Lee as "the Big Bopper," Rick Dees, and Brian Setzer. Valens' singing voice is provided by David Hidalgo of Los Lobos. Valens' own songs and some Little Richard standards are performed. The theme song became a hit again and was used in commercials for many products. By the 90s Phillips was the star, and sometimes the director, of many direct-to-video movies, often playing Native Americans. This Columbia release is PG-13.

BAMBOO GODS AND IRON MEN

(1974) D: Cesare Gallardo S: Kenneth Metcalfe P: Cirio H. Santiago Philippines

James Iglehart stars in this kung-fu and boxing action movie, with Shirley Washington, Ken Metcalf, Eddie Garcia, and Ciquito. Inglehart was the boxer in Beyond the Valley of the Dolls and starred in Santiago's Savage! (also from AIP).

THE BAMBOO HOUSE OF DOLLS

(VSOM, 1973) D: Kuei Chih Hung P: Run Run Shaw Hong Kong

Before Ilsa: She Wolf of the SS, this Asian version of a similar tale was released. It features prisoners (Chinese and American women, mostly) in a Japanese WWII camp run by a sadistic female warden with a whip. Lo Lieh plays a Chinese soldier who helps some of the women escape. Birte Tove is top-billed as an American blonde. This exploitation movie seems aimed at Western audiences. Peppercorn Wormser released it in America.

BANDERA BANDITS

(TWE, 1972) D/S: Sergio Corbucci S: Sabatino Ciuffini P: Roberto Loyola Italy/W. Germany/Spain (Cronaca Criminale del Far West; Sonny and Jed)

Tomas Milian and Susan George are Bonnie and Clyde-type robbers being pursued by a lawman (Telly Savalas). This western features Rossana Yanni and Herbert Fux. The score is by Ennio Morricone. K-Tel (the mail-order-record people) released it in the US.

BAND OF THE HAND

(RCA, 1986) D: Paul Michael Glaser S: Leo Garen, Jack Baran P: Michael Rauch

A Nam vet (Stephen Lang) trains five street punks in the Everglades to battle drug dealers in Miami. With John Cameron Mitchell, Larry (now Lawrence) Fishburne, Lauren Holly, and James Remar as a drug king. Michael Mann was the executive producer, and the Miami Vice influence is obvious. Bob Dylan sings the title song with Tom Petty. Soundtrack on MCA.

BANG BANG! YOU'RE DEAD!

(Ace, 1966) D: Don Sharp S: Peter Yeldham P: Harry Alan Towers UK (Our Man in Marrakesh; Bang Bang!)

This comedy stars Tony Randall as an American who becomes involved with spies and gangsters in Morocco. Senta Berger costars as a CIA agent. With Herbert Lom, Terry-Thomas, and Klaus Kinski as Arabs, and Wilfrid Hyde-White. This AIP release was filmed in Marrakesh. Sharp made The Brides of Fu Manchu the same year.

THE BANKER

(MCEG/Virgin, 1989) D/P: William Webb S: Dana Augustine

LA cop Robert Forster is after a musclebound banker (Duncan Regehr) who paints his face like a South American Indian and kills and mutilates hookers with a laser-sight crossbow. The psycho thinks he's collecting souls and is indestructible. With Shanna Reed, Jeff Conaway and Leif Garrett as pimps, Richard Roundtree as a police captain, William Webb, Teri Weigel (in a sex scene), and Deborah Richter.

Klaus Kinski in Bang, Bang, You're Dead.

BANZAI RUNNER

(Vidmark, 1987) S/P: John G. Thomas S: Phillip L. Harange

Dean Stockwell stars as a California highway patrolman who goes after hit-and-run drivers. With John Sheperd, Charles Dierkop, Billy Drago, and lotsa car chases.

BARABBAS

(RCA, 1961) D: Richard Fleischer S: Christopher Fry, Ivo Perilli P: Dino De Laurentiis

Anthony Quinn stars in a long (144-minute) biblical epic (released by Columbia in 70mm for some engagements). Barabbas, a thief, is condemned, then pardoned. Jesus dies in his place. Barabbas becomes a slave and has to fight Jack Palance (great as Torvald, the sadistic captain of the gladiators) in the arena. Barabbas is freed and captured again, then crucified because he has become a Christian. The international cast includes Silvana Mangano, Arthur Kennedy as Pontius Pilate, Katy Jurado, Harry Andrews, Vittorio Gassman, and Ernest Borgnine as Lucius. Mangano's brother (and the brother-in-law of De Laurentiis) plays Christ. The film is based on the book by Par Lagerkvist, previously filmed in Sweden in 1952.

BARBARIAN QUEEN

(Vestron, 1985) D: Hector Olivera S: Howard R. Cohen P: Frank Isaac, Alex Sessa

In a typical Concorde/Corman movie filmed in Argentina, Amethea (6-foot-tall Lana Clarkson) and her friends seek revenge after her wedding is disrupted by some torture and rape and killing. There's lots of nudity in this 70-minute time-waster. The topless Amethea is put on the rack. She can castrate men during sex with her well-developed muscles. With the future director Katt Shea (Ruben) as her sidekick, Dawn Dunlap, and Frank Zagarino. R and unrated videos are available.

BARBARIAN QUEEN II: THE EMPRESS STRIKES BACK

(Live, 1989) D: Joe Finley S: Howard Cohen, Lance Smith P: Alan Krone, Anthony Norway

Lana Clarkson returns (this time called Athelia) and is imprisoned by the evil King Ankaris (several times). She escapes and joins a group of Amazons in leather bikinis. There's topless mud-wrestling, swordfighting, and Lana, topless, suspended over a bed of spikes. With Rebecca Wood and Elizabeth Jaeger. It was shot in Mexico.

BARBARIAN MASTER: See SWORD OF THE BARBARIANS

THE BARBARIANS

(Cannon, 1987) D: Ruggiero Deodato S: James R. Silke P: John Thompson Italy

This laughable movie stars David and Peter Paul (known as "the Barbarian Brothers"!) as Kutchek and Gore. Richard Lynch, with long, braided blond hair, is the evil Kadar, and appearances are made by a dragon, reptile men, and a wolfman. With Eva LaRue, Michael Berryman as "the Dirtmaster," and George Eastman. Pino Donnagio did the soundtrack.

THE BARE HUNT

(Video Dimensions, 1963) (My Gun Is Jammed)

A goofy-looking (and sounding) private detective (Marv Watson) is on a big case. He investigates characters in the nudie-movie business and meets naked models and actresses like "the Boobsy Twins." The figure models look pretty good. No other credits are available.

BARE KNUCKLES

(TWE, 1977) D/S/P: Don Edmonds

This is the most violent movie I can remember seeing on local TV in Cleveland in the late 70s. Edmonds made it after his Ilsa films. It's about a bounty hunter who's after a kung-fu killer. Sherry Jackson, who used to be on The Danny Thomas Show, costars with black action star Gloria Hendry (in her last feature), Robert Viharo, and John Daniels.

BARELY PROPER

(1975) D/P/A: Brad Grinter S: Manny Dietz

This rare Florida movie by the maker of Blood Freak was a throwback to early–60s nudist movies. It's about a teacher put on trial by the school board for belonging to the Seminole Health Club nudist colony. Ed Trostle and Carol Riccio star. There's a play (also called Barely Proper) within the film, starring Cindy Walker. Grinter, who made Never the Twain next, was a nudist himself.

BARFLY

(Warner, 1987) D/P: Barbet Schroeder
S: Charles Bukowski P: Tom Luddy, Fred Roos

Mickey Rourke temporarily redeemed himself and his career playing a drunken Los Angeles writer based on Bukowski. Faye Dunaway is pretty great too. With Jack Nance, Alice Krige, Frank Stallone, and veteran character actor Fritz Feld. Bukowski even makes a brief appearance. Francis Ford Coppola presented the Cannon feature. The music is good jazz and R&B, and the cinematography is by Robby Muller. It was the first American feature for the Swiss director, whose two-volume The Charles Bukowski Tapes (Lagoon) feature the late notorious writer himself.

BARN OF THE NAKED DEAD

(1973) D/P: Alan Rudolph S: Roman Valenti, Ralph Harold (Terror Circus)

Before he became Robert Altman's protegé, Rudolph was assistant director of The Brady Bunch. He made Premonition (1972) and this horror movie using a phony name. Three women on the way to Vegas in a beat-up station wagon are stranded in the desert. Andrew Prine (Simon, King of the Witches) shows up in a jeep and takes them home to add to his collection of women chained up in the barn. One says "He's like all other men. He wants to control us, and I hate him!" He dresses like a ringmaster, chains 12 of them together, and whips them in the desert. The women argue constantly about what to do. Sometimes he selects one, paints her with blood, lets her go, and releases a hungry cougar. He decides one woman is his mother. It all takes place on what was an H-bomb test site, and a long-haired mutant shows up. Except for some interesting experimental music, this movie has terrible sound and bad editing, and it's pretty dreary. With Jennifer Ashley (Guyana: Cult of the Damned). David Keith was a stunt man.

THE BARON

(Paragon, 1975) D/S: Philip Fentry (Black Cue)

Calvin Lockhart plays an actor making a movie with an all-black cast. He has real-life trouble because he borrowed money from the mob. With Richard Lynch as a sadistic gangster, Joan Blondell, Raymond St. Jacques, Marlene Clark, and Gail Strickland. Fentry also wrote Superfly.

BARON BLOOD

(Redemption, 1972) D: Mario Bava S: Vincent Forte P: Alfred Leone Italy (Gli Orrori del Castello di Noremberga; The Torture Chamber of Baron Blood)

Here's a nice-looking, 88-minute, letterboxed, British print of a movie that was released (cut) by AIP here. When the often hysterical Elke Sommer and Antonio Cantafora read a parchment in a huge (real) old castle in Austria, they unleash the spirit of the accursed, scar-faced, 16th-century baron who built it. The killer (of many characters) looks like Vincent Price in House of Wax but turns out to be a man named Alfred Becker, who buys the castle and restores it. The late Joseph Cotten, who laughs and jokes a lot, is very good in the role, played mostly in a wheelchair. Some standout scenes show skewered bodies on the rooftop, the burning spirit of a witch, death by iron maiden, and bodies coming back to life. With little Nicole Elmi (in a larger role than in most of her 70s horror movies), Massimo Girotti, Rada Rassimov, and Alan Collins as the caretaker. It also has the original Stelvio Cipriano soundtrack, with some nice, typically 60s Italian electric-guitar and bongo passages.

BARON MÜNCHHAUSEN

(Video City, 1943) D: Josef von Baky S: Erich Kästner Germany (Münchausens Abenteuer)

The year 1943 was the 25th anniversary of Germany's famous UFA studios, the company that had produced The Last Laugh, Metropolis, and many other classics. Of course, by then, the studio and everything else was owned and run by the state. Propaganda Minister Josef Goebbels chose Barön Münchhausen, which had already been filmed in France, Italy, Germany, the US, the USSR, and Czechoslovakia, as the prestige color-epic anniversary release. I was amazed at how much Terry Gilliam's overblown and overbudgeted version, The Adventures of Baron Munchausen (1989), copied this one (available with subtitles on tape, running 110 minutes). It opens at a lavish 18th-century party. All of a sudden you notice an electric light, then a car, and realize it's a costume party. People talk about Rudolf Raspe's 18th-century book recounting the Baron's adventures and wonder whether he was real. This colorful fantasy is much more adult than Gilliam's version, with topless harem girls, a nude painting that comes to life, and a eunuch harem-keeper. The Baron has encounters with Catherine the Great, Count Cagliostro, and Casanova. He has a servant, Christian, who can run superfast. He rides a cannonball and is captured in a Turkish fort. They escape in a balloon and go to the moon, where one day equals an earth year. The man in the moon carries around his wife's head, and people grow from tree pods. There's a human clock, living clothes that bark, and an invisibility ring. The Baron in this version, played by Hans Albers (Variety; The Blue Angel) is ageless. It's interesting to note that Russians are mostly shown as drunks devouring piles of caviar. The comic bad-guy Arabs are shown mistreating black slaves. People in Nazi-occupied countries didn't want to see an expensive, showoff fantasy film backed by Nazis, and it certainly wasn't welcome in America at the time. The UFA studios disappeared just two years later. A fantasy film that could have been as famous as The Wizard of Oz and The Thief of Bagdad is unknown to most and pretty much lost in history. Von Baky, the Hungarian-born director, worked in West Germany until his death in 1966. His last film was a 1961 Edgar Wallace thriller, The Strange Countess.

BARRACUDA

(1978) D/S/P/A: Harry Kerwin
S/P/A: Wayne Crawford (The Lucifer Project)

Florida river pollution affects fish and people. Wayne-David Crawford stars in this Jaws-inspired science-fiction obscurity with Jason Evers, Bert Freed, and William Kerwin. Kerwin also made adult titles like My Third Wife George (1968) and Sweet Bird of Aquarius (1970). The music is by the Frankfurt Radio Symphony Orchestra and Klaus Schulze (?!).

BARRY MCKENZIE HOLDS HIS OWN

(VSOM, 1974) D/S/P: Bruce Beresford
S/A: Barry Humphries Australia

Barry Crocker plays six roles in this comedy sequel to The Adventures of Barry Mckenzie. Both features, based on a comic strip, are filled with anti-British gags, slang words, and lots of "booze and broads." Donald Pleasence as Count Plasma kidnaps Mckenzie's aunt (Crocker), thinking she's the queen of England, and siphons her blood to sell. A reverend (Crocker) saves the day with a cross made of beer cans. With Barry Humphries as Dame Edna Everage, Roy Kinnear as a kung-fu cook, and the real Australian prime minister. Beresford made more serious Hollywood movies later.

BARTON FINK

(Fox, 1991) D/S: Joel Coen
S/P: Ethan Coen P: Graham Place

John Turturro stars as a serious New York Jewish writer who's in Hollywood during WWII trying to write a screenplay for a Wallace Beery wrestling movie for "Capital Pictures" on his Underwood typewriter. While suffering from writer's block, he befriends a salesman living at the same hotel (John Goodman), who turns out to be a mass murderer of German descent. The film is funny for a while but turns into a nightmare, with Eraserhead ideas, dream sequences, a decapitated head, and great fire scenes in the hotel. Characters are partially based on Clifford Odets (Turturro), William Faulkner (John Mahoney), and Louis B. Mayer (Michael Lerner). With Judy Davis and Steve Buscemi. The screenplay was published with Miller's Crossing.

BASIC INSTINCT

(Live, 1992) D: Paul Verhoeven
S: Joe Eszterhas P: Alan Marshall

A rich bisexual novelist (Sharon Stone) is suspected of being a serial killer who uses icepicks to kill men during sex. The movie's first victim is a retired rock star named Johnny Boz. She seduces the ex-alcoholic, chain-smoking San Francisco detective nicknamed Shooter (Michael Douglas) who's on the case. With Jeanne Tripplehorn as his girlfriend and shrink, Leilani Sarelle (Neon Maniacs) as Stone's lover, George Dzundza as his detective partner, Wayne Knight, and Dorothy Malone. Eszterhas received a record $3 million for the script (which borrows from several Hitchcock features). Protests by gay groups during filming started a deluge of publicity, and the $40 million movie made many millions. Tri Star cut it for an R rating in the US. It was an even bigger hit (uncut) in Europe. The tape put 42 seconds back (R and unrated videos were released), and the Pioneer laserdisc version added a running commentary by the director. See the director's own earlier The Fourth Man for an interesting comparison. With a film clip from Hellraiser, Rob Bottin FX, and a Jerry Goldsmith score.

BASKET CASE 2

(SGE, 1990) D/S: Frank Henenlotter P: Edgar levins

Duane (Keven Van Hetenryck) and his mutant twin, Belilal, return in a "freaks' rights" sequel to the 1982 NYC cult classic. Both twins fall in love, and there's more comedy, but Henenlotter keeps a sick edge to things. Granny Ruth (famous singer turned actress Annie Ross) provides a refuge for freaks, and her Staten Island house is filled with bizarre, fantastic characters. The Tod Browning–inspired horror comedy actually suffers from latex-makeup overkill. Heather Rattray (from family movies like Mountain Family Robinson) is Duane's girl. Kathryn Meisle and Matt Mitler work for scandal-magazine editor Jason Evers (from The Brain That Wouldn't Die!). With a sideshow, Ted Sorel, and Beverly Bonner. It was filmed back to back (for SGE) with Frankenhooker, and the dual soundtrack by Joe Renzi is on SMI.

BASKET CASE 3: THE PROGENY

(SGE, 1991) D/S: Frank Henenlotter
S: Robert Martin P: Edgar levins

This time the now pretty insane Duane, Belilal, their protector Granny Ruth (Annie Ross), and all the freaks from Part II flee to Atlanta and stay in another house. This movie opens with highlights from the first two. The filmmakers, probably bored with the concept by then, practiced absurd extreme overkill in every way possible and added more comedy and even a musical number. Duane falls for the sheriff's daughter (Tina Louise Hilbert). When Belilal becomes a father, an endless stream of little monsters are born. In the best scene (inspired by Aliens), Belilal attacks a sheriff (Gilbert Roper) in an incredible custom-made metal apparatus. With the Morell twins.

THE BAT

(Sinister, 1925) D/P: Roland West S: Julien Josephson

For years The Bat was thought to be a lost film. (Roughly 50 percent of all films made before 1950 are lost.) The United Artists release was rediscovered and is now on tape with an orchestral score. It's an adaptation of Mary Roberts Rinehart's mystery novel and stage play about a notorious masked criminal with bat wings, big ears, and sharp teeth stalking an old, dark house being rented by a mystery writer. The story had first been filmed as The Circular Staircase in 1915. Jack Pickford stars, with Louise Fazenda as the comic maid, the mysterious Sojin as the butler, Tullio Carminati as the detective, and Emily Fitzroy as Cornelia Van Gorder. The huge room sets were designed by William Cameron Menzies. Roland West (from Cleveland) also made The Monster (1925), with Lon Chaney, and an even better remake of The Bat called The Bat Whispers (1931). Batman creator Bob Kane must have seen one of the versions, because the shadowy, threatening, almost supernatural Bat was an obvious inspiration for the hero Batman. The Scimitar version adds Bat Clips, a short film about the Batman TV show.

Belial returns in Frank Henenlotter's Basket Case 2.

BATES MOTEL

(1987) D/S: Richard Rothstein
P: Ken Topolsky, George Linder

"Norman Bates may be gone, but the hotel lives on!" claimed NBC-TV when they aired this series pilot. A mental patient (Bud Cort) inherits the famous motel (right after the events of the original movie) and reopens it. The idea for the projected occult-theme anthology series was that each week would center on a different guest. Lori Petty, Jason Bateman, Gregg Henry, Moses Gunn, and Buck Flower were in the pilot too.

THE BATMAN

(Sony, 1943) D: Lambert Hillyer S: Victor McLeod, Leslie Swabacker, Harry Fraser P: Rudolph C. Flothow

The first 15-chapter Columbia serial based on the comic-book characters created by Bob Kane was the only serial directed by a B-western specialist. Lewis Wilson and Douglas Croft star as Batman and Robin. J. Carroll Naish as the Japanese Dr. Daka turns men into zombies with his machine. His headquarters are behind an amusement-park attraction showing Japanese atrocities. Some chapters of the WWII-era serial are "Slave of the Rising Sun," "A Nipponese Trap," and "The Doom of the Rising Sun." When Sony (Japanese-owned) issued the videotape of the serial, they altered all the dialogue that referred to the villain being Japanese (!). Some viewers probably didn't notice or care about this subversive tampering, but you should know about it. With Charles Middleton, Shirley Patterson, and stunt man Eddie Parker. In 1965 it was rereleased to theaters as An Evening with Batman and Robin, lasting four hours. I sat through the whole damn thing in Cleveland, where it opened. Columbia also made Batman and Robin (1949), with different stars.

J. Carroll Naish as the evil Japanese Dr. Daka in the original Batman serial.

BATMAN

(Warner, 1989) D: Tim Burton S: Sam Hamm, Warren Skaaren P: Jon Peters, Peter Gruber M: Danny Elfman

This PG-13 movie has great sets and is a darker version of the hero than most people were used to. But the whole project seemed rushed, the ending was bad, and it was all kind of an overhyped mess, actually. Burton was only 28 when he directed Batman, his third feature. Michael Keaton stars, but Jack Nicholson got a record $50 million (maybe as much as $60 million!) for playing the Joker. Kim Basinger is Vicki Vale, Robert Wuhl is fun as a wisecracking reporter, Jack Palance as a corporate gang leader is killed off too soon, and British horror star Michael Gough plays Alfred, the butler (and pocketed some side cash by doing Diet Coke TV ads as the character). With Pat Hingle as Commissioner Gordon, Billy Dee Williams, Tracey Walter, and Jerry Hall. Danny Elfman did the (orchestral) soundtrack, and Prince provided (mediocre) songs and recorded "Scandalous Sex Suite 12" with Basinger. His complete "soundtrack" album is available. Batman runs 126 minutes. Not long after the film's release, script doctor Skaaren died, and production designer Anton Furst (who received an Oscar for his art direction) killed himself. Batman had a record number of licenses for merchandising (160 at the time of the record-breaking premiere) and the highest number of single openings (2,850 US screens on June 23, 1989). Batman is second only to E.T. in video sales. The hype worked. Both the Elfman score and an alternate Prince soundtrack were released.

BATMAN AND ROBIN

(Goodtimes, 1949) D: Spencer Gordon Bennet S: George Plympton, J. F. Poland, Royale K. Cole P: Sam Katzman

The second 15-chapter Columbia Batman serial is available on 2 cassettes. Part of the first chapter

(usually longer than the others) is cut on the tape, though. Robert Lowry and John Duncan took over as Batman and Robin and had to battle the black-hooded Wizard, who has a machine that paralyzes traffic and who can become invisible. Jane Adams is Vicki Vale, and Lyle Talbot (who played Lex Luthor in a Superman serial) is Commissioner Gordon. With Ralph Graves and stunt man Eddie Parker doing most of the Bat fighting.

BATMAN: MASK OF THE PHANTASM

(Warner, 1993) D/P: Eric Radomski, Bruce W. Timm S: Alan Burnett, Paul Dini, Martin Paso, Michael Reaves P: Benjamin Melniker, Michael Uslan

After the animated Fox-TV series, this PG animated feature, which captures the feel of early comics, was released. Kevin Conroy (Batman), Stacy Keach (the Phantasm), Mark Hamill (the Joker), Dana Delaney, Hart Bochner, Efrem Zimbalist Jr. (Alfred), Abe Vigoda, John P. Ryan, and Dick Miller provide the voices.

BATMAN RETURNS

(Warner, 1992) D/P: Tim Burton S: Dan Waters P: Denise DiNovi

Batman (Michael Keaton) becomes a supporting character in his own sequel, which takes a very dim view of government and media. It was shot on sets with a German-expressionist look, and many scenes take place in a copy of Rockefeller Center at Christmastime. Danny DeVito is the confused, grotesque Penguin (Stan Winston did the makeup), who discovers he's Oswald Cobblepot, runs for mayor, then tries to kidnap all the firstborn children of Gotham City. Christopher Walken is corrupt tycoon Max Schreck, the real villain. Michelle Pfeiffer is his pathetic secretary, who miraculously survives being pushed out of a window and emerges as a sexy, backflipping Catwoman with a tight black-leather outfit and a whip (kickboxer Kathy Long was her double). Some people in the Times Square audience yelled in outrage when Batman tore off his mask, unnecessarily revealing his identity to several characters. This long (126-minute) feature cost an estimated $80 million. It made lots of money, though, and megamerchandising (with companies like McDonald's) helped. All the penguins (real and created) are pretty great, though. With Michael Gough, Pat Hingle, Michael Murphy as the mayor, Vincent Schiavelli, Jan Hooks, Christy Conaway, Stuart Lancaster, and Paul Reubens as the Penguin's father. Danny Elfman did the score, and Steve Johnson worked on the FX. Batman Forever followed.

*batteries not included

(MCA, 1987) D/S: Mathew Robbins S: Brad Bird, Brent Maddock, S. S. Wilson P: Ronald L. Schwary

Steven Spielberg was an executive producer of this PG fantasy with Oscar-winning ILM FX. Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy (in between Cocoon movies) and their neighbors are being evicted from a Lower East Side tenement building. Some friendly aliens arrive in two little flying saucers and help. It's almost the light side of Liquid Sky. With Elizabeth Pena, John Pankow, Wendy Schaal, and James LeGros. Filmed in the real East Village, where no aliens have shown up to help so far.

BATTLEFLAG

(1976) D/P: Ottokar Runze S: Herbert Asmodi W. Germany/Spain (Die Standard)

Simon Ward stars as a cadet serving the Austro-Hungarian Empire at the end of WWI. This seldom-seen action movie/love story costars Siegfried Rauch, Jon Finch, Peter Cushing as Major Hackenberg, Wolfgang Preiss, Maria Perschy, and Lil Dagover (from the original silent version of The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari).

BATTLE FORCE

(Quality, 1978) D/S: "Humphrey Longan"/Umberto Lenzi, Cesare Frugoni Italy/W. Germany/Yugoslavia (The Great Battle; Il Grande Attacco)

An all-star WWI movie by the same director who next made Make Them Die Slowly. It's about how the war affects the lives of members of an American family and a German family. With Helmut Berger, Samantha Eggar, Stacy Keach, Edwige Fenich, Henry Fonda, John Huston, Evelyn Stewart, and Giuliano Gemma. Orson Welles narrates some newsreel footage to fill up more time.

THE BATTLE OF AUSTERLITZ

(USA, 1959) D/S: Abel Gance S: Nelly Kaplan P: Alexander Salkind Italy/France/Yugoslavia/Liechtenstein (Austerlitz)

Gance directed the famous triple-split-screen 1927 epic Napoléon (which was rereleased to great acclaim in 1981). For his last film, Gance returned to the same subject, but by the time this all-star version made it to the US it was badly dubbed, and about 43 minutes (out of 166) were missing. Now it's commonly available on video and even found in Woolworth stores. The original (also on tape) is really impressive only on a wide screen in a theater. This version is fun for spotting some of the guest stars. With Claudia Cardinale, Martine Carol, Vittorio De Sica, Orson Welles, Jean Marais, Jack Palace, Michel Simon, Rosanno Brazzi, Leslie Caron, and Pierre Mondy as Napoléon. This money-losing epic cost around $4 million (a lot in the late 50s).

THE BATTLE OF LOVE'S RETURN

(1971) D/S/P/A: Lloyd Kaufman

Yes, Troma once made a G-rated feature. Lynn Lowry, who was usually in more daring projects (like I Drink Your Blood, from the same year) stars. Kaufman was also directing X-rated features (as Louis Su) at the time. The unknown Oliver Stone (!) acted in this obscurity, then was a producer for Troma's Sugar Cookies (also with Lowry).

THE BATTLE OF NERETVA

(Republic, 1971) D: Veliko Bulajic S: Ugo Pirro P: Steve Previn US/Italy/W. Germany/Yugoslavia (Bitka na Neretvi)

AIP released this 102-minute version of the nearly three-hour epic about the Nazi invasion of Yugoslavia (which was a timely topic again in the 90s). Yul Brynner stars, with Orson Welles, Sergei Bondarchuk, Curt Jurgens, Sylvia Koscina, Hardy Kruger, and Franco Nero. The music by Bernard Herrmann was left over from his rejected Torn Curtain score. The soundtrack is on Entacte.

BATTLE OF THE AMAZONS

(1973) D: "Al Bradley"/Alfonso Brescia S: Mario Amendola, Bruno Corbucci P: Riccardo Billi Italy/Spain (Amazzoni Donne d'Amore e di Guerra)

Lucretia Love (from The Arena) stars in a violent, R-rated movie about female warriors on horseback. Eventually their male victims and some villagers defeat them with martial arts. The ads said, "Hell hath no fury like 10,000 women!"

BATTLE OF THE BOMBS

(Rhino, 1985)

Johnny Legend put together this 80-minute compilation of scenes and trailers from wonders like Orgy of the Dead, I Changed My Sex, The Creeping Terror, The Terror of Tiny Town, and Eegah! The tape is pretty much a long commercial for Rhino video, but it's totally entertaining and a great way to hook an unsuspecting, casual viewer into the dangerous and addictive habit of watching and appreciating "bad" movies. For a while there, Rhino was the number 1 company releasing 50s and 60s Psychotronic classics on video.

BATTLE OF THE COMMANDOS

(Republic, 1969) D: Umberto Lenzi S: Dario Argento, Rolf Griminger, Eduardo M. Brochero Italy/Spain/W. Germany (Legion of the Damned)

A WWII movie starring Jack Palance as Colonel Anderson, whose commandos must destroy a German cannon. With Wolfgang Preiss, Curt Jurgens, Diana Lorys, and Thomas Hunter. This is of interest to some as one of the earliest features Dario Argento was involved with.

BATTLE OF THE MODS

(1966) D: Franco Montemurro S: Ennio De Concini, Adriano Bolzoni, Michael A. Scheiber P: Luigi Waldeitner Italy/W. Germany (La Battaglia dei Mods; Crazy Baby)

Ricky (Ricky Shayne) is a mod guitar player in Liverpool. His girlfriend is killed in a rumble with some rockers, so he flees to London, then Paris, and ends up in decadent Rome, where he becomes involved with the sister of his rich businessman father's mistress. Joachim Fuchsberger is the dad. This color film wasn't released in the US until 1968, when mods and rockers were either unknown or forgotten.

BATTLESTAR GALACTICA

(MCA series, 1978–80)

At least 8 episodes of the ABC-TV copy of Star Wars are on tape and run 47 minutes each. These TV episodes were the most expensive ("$1 million each") produced up to that time. The series was pretty dumb and unoriginal when it was new but might be old enough for some laughs by now. The late Lorne Greene starred in the entire series, with Richard Hatch, Dirk Benedict, a robot dog, and Maren Jensen, who all left in 1979. Some actors who were around for just one season were Anne Lockhart, Robyn Douglas, and Richard Lynch as Xavier. One episode, "The Return of Starbuck," is on Goodtimes. The feature-length series pilot was released theatrically (and is on tape), and two episodes became a feature overseas, Mission Galactica: Cyclon Attack.

THE BAT WHISPERS

(Scorched Earth, 1931) D/S/P: Roland West
P: Joseph M. Schenck

In this fascinating remake of West's The Bat (1925), a radio announcer warns about "that notorious madman, the mysterious criminal, the Bat!" and we see the jewel thief (or his huge, frightening bat shadow) in action in New York City. This opening segment is incredible, using advanced sweeping camera movements and an incredible scale model city. The story settles into the familiar secluded, old, dark mansion with secret rooms and many characters wondering who the Bat is. Chester Morris (with his pencil-thin mustache) is the detective hero, the wonderful Gustav von Seyffertitz is a doctor, and Grace Hampton is rich Mrs. Van Gorder (with her comedy-relief maid). This United Artists film features some very odd special effects that will have viewers rewinding for another look. The stage-bound surprise gimmick ending is worth waiting for and makes you promise not to reveal who the killer is, so I won't. The print of this rare film is excellent, but somebody managed to repeat a scene during the trans- fer. Astor rereleased it in the 40s. Another remake, The Bat, with Vincent Price, was released in 1959.

BAY OF BLOOD = TWITCH OF THE DEATH NERVE

Chester Morris in Roland West's The Bat Whispers.

BEACH BABES FROM BEYOND

(Paramount, 1993) D: "Ellen Cabot"/David DeCoteau S: Alexander Sachs P: Karen L. Spencer

This sex comedy has a 60s plot (AIP beach-party movies), 70s music (new wave), and lots of ready-for-cable nudity and slo-mo sex. Three blond alien "teens" (Sarah Bellomo, Tamara Landry, and Nicole Posey) arrive on the beach, where each of them has sex scenes (including one pretty explicit, oil-soaked, doggy-style fuck). With Linnea Quigley (as an adult for a change), Joe Estevez (as the Big Kahoona), Joey Travolta, and Burt Ward. Also with the briefly seen and incredibly ugly pair of "name" (!) stars Jaqueline Stallone and Don Swayze. It was shot in Mexico.

BEACH BALLS

(1988) D: Joe Ritter S: David Rocklin P: Matt Leipzig

Phillip Paley goes after dreamgirl Heidi Helmer. Girls in bikinis are featured in this Roger Corman/Concorde release. There was a various artists soundtrack.

THE BEACH BOYS: AN AMERICAN BAND

(Vestron, 1985) D/S: Malcolm Leo
P: Leo Peterson, Bonnie Peterson

This authorized biographical documentary tells only part of the story, of course, but it's excellent for what it does show. The live and TV footage covers all phases of the band, but the only way to tell when unidentified, early, live performance footage changes is the size of the stripes on the shirts. Footage that was cut from the TAMI Show is here, plus fun scenes from Girls on the Beach. Highlights include an "In My Room" promo film, "Help Me, Rhonda" live, and Brian Wilson singing "Surf's Up" at home alone in 1966. Brian is interviewed from his bed (from a 1976 TV special), but probably had little to do with this tape. Excerpts from shows in Germany and Prague after the hits stopped in the late 60s are great, but the late Dennis Wilson singing "You Are So Beautiful" is painful. The Beach Boys deserve to be remembered for more than supplying themes for irritating car and soda commercials and the embarrassing public battle over who controls what's left of Brian Wilson. A later version of this tape is cut. Also look for The Story of the Beach Boys (1990).

THE BEACH GIRLS

(Paramount, 1982) D: Pat Townsend
S: Patrick Duncan, Phil Groves
P: Marilyn J. Tenser, Michael D. Castle

Deborah Blee, sharing her uncle's beach house with friends, throws a big party. With James Daughton, Corinne Bohrer, Jeane Tomasina (from Playboy), Adam Roarke, Catherine Mary Stewart as a "surfer girl," and music by Michael Lloyd. From Crown.

BEACH HOUSE

(Thorn EMI, 1982) D/S: John Gallagher S/P: Marino Amoruso
(Down the Shore)

Italian teen slobs from Brooklyn go to the beach for a vacation and have problems with upper-class jocks from Philly. Kathy McNeil and Richard Duggan star in this minor release from New Line.

BEACH RED

(VSOM, 1967) D/S/P/A: Cornel Wilde S: Clint Johnston, Donald A. Peters, Jefferson Pascal

You've never seen a WWII movie like this. Wilde created a bizarre, brutal, antiwar movie using psychedelic editing to deal with memory and honor. He plays the leader of a US Marine battalion in the Philippines. Rip Torn is the sadistic sergeant. Wilde remembers the days with his wife (his real-life wife, Jean Wallace), while the Japanese captain (Genki Koyama) remembers his home life. Parts of it are daring and inspired, while others will have you shaking your head in disbelief. The United Artist release was filmed on location in the Philippines and Japan. Wilde next made No Blade of Grass (a post-nuke feature that Road Warrior borrowed a lot from).

BEAKS: THE MOVIE

(IVE, 1987) D/S/P: René Cardona Jr. Mexico
(El Ataque de los Pájaros; Birds of Prey)

The director of Night of the Bloody Apes made this gory Birds ripoff. Whole scenes are copied from Hitchcock, but these birds peck out eyes (in closeup), eat babies, and even bring down airplanes. The ending takes place on a bird-filled train. Christopher Atkins (from The Blue Lagoon) and Michelle Johnson star as a photographer and a reporter. With Italian exploitation regular Gabrielle Tinti.

BEAR ISLAND

(Starmaker, 1979) D/S: Don Sharp S: David Butler, Murray Smith P: Peter Snell Canada/UK

This PG-rated Alistair MacLean adaptation, about ex-Nazis after gold in a sunken U-boat and a multinational United Nations scientific expedition at the Arctic, was a big money-loser. Donald Sutherland stars as an American biologist, with Vanessa Redgrave, Richard Widmark (a Nazi), Christopher Lee (a Polish scientist), Barbara Parkins, and Lloyd Bridges. Filmed in British Columbia and Alaska, it was the most expensive Canadian feature ever made up to that time. Sharp, a former Hammer director, and Harry Alan Towers followed this with What Waits Below (1983).

THE BEAST = EQUINOX

BEASTMASTER 2: THROUGH THE PORTAL OF TIME

(Republic, 1991) D/S/P: Sylvio Tabet S: R. J. Robertson, Jim Wynorski, Ken (Wings) Hauser, Doug Miles

The 1982 Don Coscarelli movie Beastmaster became a hit on cable TV, so Marc Singer returned in his loincloth as the long-haired Dar in this PG-13 fantasy/comedy sequel. Wings Hauser is the villain with a leather mask covering half his face and a laser weapon. A beautiful witch (Sarah Douglas) tells him how he can rule the world by going through a time portal and stealing a neutron bomb. MTV VJ Kari Wuhrer is a rich LA girl who somehow drives her red Porsche through the portal. Eventually the parallel-world characters join her in the present, along with Dar's animal friends (a tiger, an eagle, and two ferrets). The dialogue is painful ("Chill out, Lord Dude"), and the ancient characters adapt to modern ways too fast, but it's okay light entertainment. Watch for the theater marquee announcing Beastmaster II. With Robert Z'Dar and Michael Berryman. Mark Damon was executive producer.

THE BEAST OF MOROCCO

(Sinister, 1966) D: Frederic Goode S: Bruce Stewart P: Harry Field UK (The Hand of Night)

This feature has great opening credits, showing a bat and a skull with an eye, then proceeds with a nightmare inside of a nightmare. A depressed British architect (William Sylvester) who thinks he's losing his mind goes to Morocco, where a phantom woman (Alizia Gur) and her laughing old servant, Omar, appear. He goes to a castle, where a group of black dancing girls are all killed. Despite what some have written, this movie is in color, has a vampire, and is pretty good. Some parts were shot on location.

THE BEAST OF THE DEAD = BEAST OF BLOOD

BEASTS (1972) = THE TWILIGHT PEOPLE

BEASTS

(Prism, 1983) D/P: Don Hawks Canada (Claws)

A killer grizzly menaces Tom Babson and Kathy Christopher.

THE BEASTS ARE IN THE STREET

(1978) D: Peter Hunt S: Lawrence Heath P: Harry S. Sherman

The wild animals from a park escape and terrorize a small town. Carol Lynley, Billy Green Bush, Dale Robinson, Philip Michael Thomas, and Bill Thurman costar. This Hanna-Barbera TV production was filmed in Texas.

THE BEAST THAT KILLED WOMEN

(SW, 1965) D/P/C: Barry Mahon S: Clelle Mahon

A story is told in flashback to a detective in a hospital. A couple at a nudist camp sleep in twin beds. The acting is bad even for a nudie movie. Women dance around a fire. Later, a gorilla starts grabbing and killing them, and the cops arrive. That's about it, except for the topless square-dancing (!) and a scene where two naked black women walk away from the camera. Byran Mabe was assistant director. The one-hour color feature was made in Miami Beach, and is presented by Frank Henenlotter.

THE BEAST WITH THE MAGIC SWORD

(VSOM, 1983) D/S/P/A: Jacinto Molina/Paul Naschy Spain/Japan (La Bestia y la Espada Mágica)

Naschy returns for his 10th time as el Hombre Lobo/Daninsky. Set in 16th-century Japan, then in Europe, where a Japanese woman who loves a werewolf puts him out of his misery, this movie looks like a deranged Conan copy. The Beast has lots of nudity, gore, and decapitations. With Gerald Tichy and Sergio Molina. One of several Naschy features that were coproduced by Japanese companies, it's two hours long and subtitled.

THE BEAT

(Vestron, 1987) D/S: Paul Mones P: Julia Phillips, Jon Lok, Nich Weschler (The Conjurer)

David Jacobson plays an imaginative new kid in a New York City neighborhood full of street gangs. He ends up teaching them poetry. John Savage, David Glover, and Kara Glover costar.

THE BEATNIKS

(SW, 1959) D/S: Paul Frees S: Arthur Jullian P: Edward Heite

Four guys and a girl named Iris stage a robbery wearing skull masks. Their singing leader, Eddie (Tony Travis), is discovered in a Hollywood soda shop and makes a record the next day. The next night he's on the Rocket to Stardom TV show, and he falls for his agent's blond secretary (Joyce Terry) just as fast. The moody, jealous, jive-talking Moon (Peter Breck from Shock Corridor) ruins everything when he kills a bartender, then shows up to tell Eddie, "You're one of us. Are you hip?" Breck steals the whole show, laughing, ranting, and killing, dressed all in black. If you don't expect a "beatnik" movie, this is a lot of fun. Frees was one of the most famous voices in 50s science-fiction hits. He even cowrote the pop songs like "Sideburns Don't Need No Sympathy"! Kenneth Herts was production supervisor.

BEAT STREET

(Vestron, 1984) D: Stan Lathan S: Andy Davis, David Gilbert, Paul Golding P: David V. Picker, Harry Belafonte

Rae Dawn Chong and Guy Davis star in this PG breakdancing musical about ghetto kids making it in show biz. With Duane Jones (from Night of the Living Dead), the expected rapping from Melle Mel, Africa Bambaata, and Soul Sonic Force, and graffiti. The original story was by High Times editor Steven Hager. The soundtrack is on Atlantic.

THE BEAUTIES AND THE BEAST

(API, 1973) D: Ray Naneau S: Gaynor MacLaren P: Art Jacobs (The Beast and the Vixens)

Here's the world's first nudie Bigfoot movie. A narrator crouching in the woods with binoculars tells about the giant footprints found in the Pacific Northwest. A woman rows a boat to shore, sunbathes topless, and is carried away by a man in a gorilla suit and a caveman mask—before the credits! The beast carries another woman (wearing go-go boots) to his cave. He brings another, played by a redhead who is now porno star Coleen Brenan. He watches a naked couple in the woods, scares the guy away, and grabs another woman for his cave collection. Meanwhile Uschi Digart arrives at a cabin with another woman to "research a term paper." Soon they meet hippie campers, and they all strip and go swimming. A bearded guy sings "Gypsy Mountain Madness," and his jealous girlfriend has a dream about two women wearing only gun-belts facing off for a Wild West shoot-out!? She wakes in time for a long sex scene with her boyfriend. Two sadistic ex-cons with guns show up looking for a treasure and tie everybody up, then start to mess with the women. A bearded old hermit (and his rubber-masked beast-man friend) save the day! We never find out what happened to the women in the cave.

THE BEAUTIFUL, THE BLOODY, AND THE BARE

(SW, 1964) D: Sande N. Johnson P: Al C. Ruban

This one had credits on street signs. It's a color New York City movie about Peter, a photographer who comes to stay with an old friend who owns a life-drawing studio on Bleecker Street, in Greenwich Village. After we see lots of naked women posing for art students, we see lots of naked women posing for Peter. The problem is, when he sees red he goes crazy and strangles them. Lots of other red things (shirts, chairs) don't seem to affect him, though. The first woman dies in Central Park. At the end Peter is all bloody, "an inhuman demon, gurgling, screaming," chasing his friend's red-haired wife with a knife over rooftops. Jack Lowe stars, with Marlene Denes and Debra Page. It was rereleased by Boxoffice International.

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST

(Republic, 1987) D: Richard Franklin

Linda Hamilton (from the Terminator movies) stars as the New York City attorney who loves the gentle Beast, Vincent (Ron Perlman), who hides out beneath the city like The Phantom of the Opera. This series pilot also features Ray Wise and Ron O'Neal. Episodes of the romantic-fantasy CBS-TV series (1987–90) are on individual tapes lasting 52 minutes each. Laser versions have two per disc. The tapes were being released while the show was still being produced. The starring couple eventually had a baby on the show, and Hamilton's character was killed off and replaced by Jo Anderson.

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST

(1987) D: Eugene Marner S: Carole Lucia Satrina P: Golan/Globus

The G-rated version is really for kids. John Savage stars as the singing Beast and Rebecca De Mornay is the singing Beauty. Better yet, look for Beauty and the Beast (Fox, 1983), Roger Vadim's 52-minute long Faerie Tale Theatre version starring Klaus Kinski as the beast!

BECAUSE OF THE CATS

(Prism, 1972) D: Fons Rademakers S: Hugo Klaus Netherlands/Belgium

Pre-Emmanuelle Sylvia Kristel costars in a story about cult murders, with Alexandra Stewart and Bryan Marshall. The director later received a best-foreign-film Oscar.

BEDROOM EYES

(Fox, 1984) D: William Fruet S: Michael Alan Eddy P: Robert Lantos, Stephen P. Roth Canada

In this erotic mystery, Harry Ross (Kenneth Gilman), a voyeur stockbroker watches a bisexual redhead (Barbara Law), sees a murder, and becomes the number 1 suspect. Rear Window was the obvious influence, with added sex, violence, and flashbacks. With Dayle Haddon.

BEDROOM EYES II

(Vidmark, 1989) D: Chuck Vincent S: Gerard Cicoritti P: Arnant Singh

Wings Hauser is Harry Ross, the stockbroker framed for a murder, in this "sequel." He's married to Kathy Shower and is having an affair with Linda Blair (they were later married in real life). With Alan Rickman, Jennifer DeLora, Kimberly Taylor, and Jane Hamilton/Veronica Hart as a psycho.

BEDROOM WINDOW

(Vestron, 1987) D/S: Curtis Hanson P: Martha Schumaker

Steve Guttenberg witnesses a murder in Washington, DC, but can't tell anybody because he was with his boss's wife (Isabelle Huppert) at the time. This Hitchcock-type feature was based on a novel, The Witness, by Anne Holden. With Elizabeth McGovern, Wallace Shawn, and Paul Shenar. Robert Towne was the executive producer of the DEG release. Hanson did Bad Influence next.

BEETLEJUICE

(Warner, 1988) D: Tim Burton S: Michael McDowell, Warren Skaaren P: Michael Bender, Larry Wilson, Richard Hashimoto

Michael Keaton stars as the crude, funny, mumbling ghost Beetlejuice and plays him like a dirty-old-man used-car salesman in this surprise PG-rated horror/comedy hit. It launched the career of Winona Ryder (whose godfather is Timothy Leary), who plays the suicidal, punk-look girl. Her pretentious parents (Catherine O'Hara and Jeffrey Jones) try to cash in by exploiting the ghosts in their new Upstate New York house. Alec Baldwin and Geena Davis as the good ghost couple are secondary, surrounded by all the comedians, fun special effects (by Chuck Gaspar and Robert Short), and ghoulish gags. With Gary Shadix, Robert Goulet, Dick Cavett, Annie McEnroe, and Harry Belafonte's calypso "Banana Boat Song." Sylvia Sidney, as the keeper of a way-station to Hell, has cigarette smoke coming out of her slit throat. The Danny Elfman score is from Warner. Beetlejuice also became a kids' TV cartoon series (also on Warner video). Burton directed Keaton in Batman next.

Winona Ryder as Lydia in Beetlejuice.

BEFORE DAWN

(1933) D: Irving Pichel S: Garrett Fort, Marian Dix P: Merian C. Cooper

This forgotten, one-hour-long RKO release was produced by the same man who (with Ernest B. Schoedsack) produced King Kong (1933), and like that hit, it was based on an Edgar Wallace novel. Warner Oland is a sinister Viennese doctor in New York City, Stuart Irwin is the comedy-relief police detective, and Dorothy Wilson is a clairvoyant. They all come together in a haunted-house setting. Also with Frank Reicher. Pichel had also directed Cooper and Schoedsack's production of The Most Dangerous Game (1932).

BEG!

(1994) D/S: Robert Golden S/A: Peta Lily S: David Glass P: Sandra Yarwood UK

Lily, a mime, who directed the play this is based on, is the head of the women's ward at a private hospital where a murder is committed and a power struggle occurs. It's a black comedy.

BEGGARS IN ERMINE

(Sinister, 1934) D: Phil Rosen S: Tristram Tipper P: William T. Lackey

Lionel Atwill stars as a steel-mill manager who loses his legs because of an accident with molten lead and then is cheated out of his wife and his business. He manipulates the stock market and organizes a profitable society of cripples and beggars who help him seek vengeance. This Monogram film is very similar to some Lon Chaney Sr. movies. With Henry B. Walthall, Betty Furness, and George "Gabby" Hayes. Horror great Atwill rivaled Karloff and Lugosi for a short while and had already starred in Dr. X, The Mystery of the Wax Museum, The Vampire Bat, Murders in the Zoo, and others.

BEGINNER'S LUCK

(Starmaker, 1983) D/S: Frank Morris S/P: Caroline Morris

A virgin law student (Sam Rush) becomes involved in a comic ménage à trois with neighbors. From New World.

THE BEGUILED

(MCA, 1970) D/P: Don Siegel S: Irene Kamp, Albert Maltz, Claude Traverse

Clint Eastwood is a wounded Union Army corporal who seeks sanctuary in a southern girls' school run by Geraldine Page. He tries to take advantage of the situation but ends up helpless, with his leg amputated, and afraid for his life. Elizabeth Hartman and Jo Ann Harris costar, and Pamela Ferdin's turtle is killed. This grim historical horror film was shot in New Orleans. It was a box-office failure because most Eastwood fans probably didn't like seeing him at the mercy of women. The hits Dirty Harry and Play Misty for Me (with the hero terrorized by another woman) were released the same year. Screenwriters Kamp and Maltz (he had been jailed and blacklisted) used pseudonyms because they didn't like the ending of the finished film.

BEHAVE YOURSELF!

(United, 1951) D/S: George Beck P: Jerry Wald, Norman Krasna

Shelley Winters and Farley Granger adopt a stray dog that carries information some gangsters want. This RKO comedy features Lon Chaney Jr., Hans Conried, Francis L. Sullivan, William Demarest, Elisha Cook Jr., and Marvin Kaplan. Classic pinup artist Vargas painted the original poster.

BEHIND ENEMY LINES

(Monterey, 1988) D: Cirio H. Santiago S: Joe Mari Avellana Philippines

Robert Patrick is a GI who returns to Nam on a mission to rescue POWs. There's a motorcycle escape, bad Russians, and Lydie Denier in a wet T-shirt. It's a sequel to Eye of the Eagle.

BEHIND LOCKED DOORS

(Best, 1976) D/S/P: Charles Romine S: Stanley H. Brasloff P: Harry Novak S. Africa (Anybody, Anyway)

A sick tale of a scientist/rapist trying to create the perfect mate. His sister and an ugly necrophiliac servant help him torment some women whose car has run out of gas nearby. Released in the US by Box Office International.

BEHIND THAT CURTAIN

(1929) D: Irving Cummings S: Sonya Levien, Clarke Cummings

Warner Baxter and Lois Moran star in a creaky mystery featuring Boris Karloff and the first (brief) sound-film appearance of Charlie Chan (played by E. L. Parks). Karloff was in nine films in 1929. This was considered a lost film for years. It was originally released in silent and sound versions.

BEHIND THE CELLAR DOOR = TERROR FROM UNDER THE HOUSE

BEHIND THE WALL

(Hurricane, 1984) D/S: James Dearden P: Mark Forstater, Bob Weiss UK (The Cold Room)

A college girl (Amanda Pays), visiting her writer father (George Segal) in East Berlin, somehow goes through a time warp to WWII. She becomes another person who is trying to smuggle out a Jewish woman (Renee Soutendijk) hidden in the next room. Based on a novel by Jeffrey Caine, it was filmed in England and Germany and had its US debut on HBO.

THE BEING

(HBO, 1980) D/S: Jackie Kong
P/A: William Osco (Easter Sunday)

A briefly seen killer-mutant kid is a result of nuclear waste. Osco stars, using the alias Rexx Coltrane, and surrounds himself with one of those oddball all-star casts: Martin Landau, José Ferrer, Dorothy Malone as the mother of the monster, Ruth Buzzi, Kinky Friedman, Murray Langston, and Marianne Gordon Rogers (Kenny Rogers' wife). Most of the stars appear briefly, then die. The narration attempts to make sense of it all.

THE BELIEVERS

(HBO, 1986) D/P: John Schlesinger S: Mark Frost P: Michael Childers, Beverly Camhe

Martin Sheen screams and yells a lot as a New York City police psychologist whose wife is mysteriously electrocuted by a coffeemaker. His son (Harley Cross) is chosen to be sacrificed by people from the Caribbean who practice Santería in Harlem. Helen Shaver develops a zit full of spiders in the most memorable scene in this upscale horror movie by the man who directed Midnight Cowboy. It was based on the novel The Religion, by Nicolas Conde, and photographed by Robby Muller. With Robert Loggia, Harris Yulin, Lee Richardson, Richard Masur, Jimmy Smits, and Trey Wilson. The soundtrack, on Varèse Sarabande, was composed by J. Peter Robinson.

BELL, BARE, AND BEAUTIFUL

(SW, 1963) D/C: Herschell G. Lewis
S: Leroy C. Griffith P/A: David F. Friedman

A young millionaire (William Kerwin) is obsessed by an unknown woman he dreams about. He goes to a shrink, places a sketch of the woman in a newspaper ad, and discovers that she's stripper Gina Adair (played by stripper Virginia "Ding Dong" Bell, "48–24–36"). They end up at a nudist camp (Spartan's Tropical Gardens in Miami). Bell, the main attraction of this Eastmancolor nudie movie, was four months pregnant at the time. Producer/actor Friedman also did the sound. With Jerry Eden and Sunny Dare. The title spoofs the title of the Broadway play and film Bell, Book, and Candle.

BELL, BOOK, AND CANDLE

(RCA, 1958) D: Richard Quine
S: Daniel Taradash P: Julian Blaustein

A Manhattan witch (Kim Novak) falls for a publisher (James Stewart), casts a spell on him, and loses her powers. Jack Lemmon is her warlock brother, Ernie Kovacs is an author, Janice Rule is the publisher's fiancé, and Elsa Lanchester and Hermione Gingold are witches. This comedy/fantasy from Columbia is based on the 1950 Broadway play by John Van Druten. James Wong Howe did the color cinematagraphy. A remake is planned.

BELLE DE JOUR

(Miramax, 1967) D/S: Luis Buñuel S: Jean-Claude Carrière P: Robert and Raymond Hakim France/Italy

Catherine Deneuve (shortly after starring in Polanski's Repulsion) is the frigid new wife of a wealthy surgeon. She has S&M fantasies and starts spending her afternoons working in an expensive Paris brothel where all kinds of unspeakable things are implied. She seems to find happiness only after her husband (Jean Sorel) has been crippled. Buñuel uses dreams and flashbacks and typically plays around with the audience's expectations. Genevieve Page is the lesbian madam, and Pierre Clementi is the criminal customer with gold teeth. With Michel Piccoli, Francisco Rabal, George Marchal, Françoise Fabian, and a Japanese man with a mysterious box. Allied Artist released this controversial film in the US. Martin Scorsese arranged a theatrical rerelease in 1995.

THE BELLS

(Video Yesterday, 1926) D/S: James Young
P: I. E. Chadwick

Five years before Frankenstein, Boris Karloff plays one of his first important roles as a sideshow mesmerist in this silent rarity with an excellent cast, from Chadwick Pictures. A mean landlord (Gustav von Seyffertitz) wants money or the daughter of businessman Lionel Barrymore. On Christmas, a visiting Jew from Warsaw (with gold in his belt) is killed with an axe in the snow. Barrymore pays the landlord and becomes burgomaster but suffers from nightmares, sees a ghost, and goes mad from hearing sleigh bells. Karloff helps reveal who the killer is. He looks great (made up to resemble Dr. Caligari) and makes a woman float at the fair. The Bells had made English actor Sir Henry Irving famous in 1872. It had already been filmed four times, and three sound versions were made in the 30s in Europe. This version is 92 minutes long and includes music.

BELOVED INVADERS: THE VENTURES

(1965) D/P: George M. Reid S: Junko Terayama Japan

The Ventures, from Tacoma, Washington, were one of the first American rock bands to become big in Japan. They toured there in the mid-60s, recorded some albums just for Japan, and even starred in this great b/w movie, part travel documentary, part concert-performance film. The print is excellent and letterboxed. The beginning is priceless. A narrator starts things off (in Japanese) as we see some scenes of everyday life in Tokyo. Then a teenager picks a selection from a jukebox ("Out of Limits," from the classic Ventures in Space album), and we see records being made at a pressing plant, then sold in stores. Lots of young guys are shown buying and practicing with electric guitars; then various homegrown rock groups play. One group is so amateurish that audience members cover their ears. The Ventures, four ordinary-looking Joes with 50s pompadours whose voices are dubbed into Japanese, are shown walking down a street and are identified (Nokie, Don, Bob, and Mel). Then, in an exhilarating scene, a couple dance wildly by the seashore to a great, upbeat Ventures cut. Ventures mania has obviously arrived! The rest of the movie consists of the group sightseeing, signing autographs, eating noodles with chopsticks, and traveling around the country, with concert footage from each city shown. They even fly to Hiroshima, where they visit a crowded Pachinko parlor. If you're an instrumental-group fan you'll love this rare movie.

BELOW THE BELT

(1974) D/S/P: Robert Fowler S: Sherry Sonnet

Regina Baff is a New York waitress who becomes a female wrestler, "the Beautiful Boomerang." With "Terrible Tommy," Shirley Stoler, and the voices of the Firesign Theater. It was (finally) released in 1980.

BE MY GUEST

(1965) D/P: Lance Comfort S: Lyn Fairhurst UK

David Hemmings and his rock band have a new place to play when his family inherits a seaside hotel. This is a follow-up to 1963's Sing and Swing (aka Live It Up). Guest artists include Jerry Lee Lewis, backed by the Nashville Teens, and some British groups you've never heard of. The late Small Faces/Humble Pie singer Steve Marriot is the drummer in Hemmings' band. A year later Hemmings was in Blowup.

BENEATH THE VALLEY OF THE ULTRAVIXENS

(RM, 1979) D/P/C/E/A: Russ Meyer

Lavonia (Francesca "Kitten" Natividad) and Lamar (Pat Wright) are a small-town couple who have exaggerated, wild sex with many other characters. Lavonia calls herself Lola when she strips at the Other Ball. He works for Junkyard Sal (June Mack). Stuart Lancaster is the narrator, and Henry Rowland is back as Martin Bormann. With Ann Marie (in two roles), Uschi Digart, Candy Samples, and Mary Gavin. Meyer throws in his usual comic violence, a chainsaw, an evangelist, and sex in a coffin, and shows up as himself. This is Meyer's last to date, and it's my least favorite of his 70s features. Others were funnier and sexier. Since then, Meyer has run his own video company and announced film, video, and book projects that never seem to get finished. Whenever he does finish something, a growing legion of fans will be waiting for it.

BERETTA'S ISLAND

(Live, 1994) D: Michael Preece
S/P/A: Franco Columbo

Franco Columbo, a short former Mr. Universe, stars as a musclebound Interpol agent (and winemaker) who goes home to Sardinia (and to Vegas) to battle drug dealers, led by Van Quattro. Columbo's real-life friend Arnold Schwarzenegger shows up for a few minutes in a workout scene. Elizabeth Kaitan and Jen Percheval costar.

BERKELEY SQUARE

(1943) D: Frank Lloyd S: Sonya Levien, John L. Balderston P: Jesse L. Lasky

Leslie Howard is an American who somehow goes back in time to 18th-century England and falls for Heather Angel. The cast also includes Samuel S. Hinds, Valerie Taylor, and Alan Mowbray. This romantic fantasy from 20th Century-Fox was remade as I'll Never Forget You (1951), using the same script. Balderston also scripted many early Universal horror classics.

THE BERLIN CONSPIRACY

(RCA, 1991) D: Terence H. Winkless S: Jackson Barr P: Kevin Reidy (The Day the Wall Came Down)

Executive producer Roger Corman, the first person to make a movie exploiting the 1958 Soviet Sputnik (War of the Satellites), was one of the first with a camera crew in Berlin when the wall came down. The trouble is, by the time he got this one onto video shelves it was old news. It's about two agents, former rivals, Klaus (Stephen Davies) and CIA man Harry (Marc Singer), trying to keep some canisters of deadly bacteria out of the hands of terrorists. They also both want Mary Crosby. There's one sex scene featuring extras and a comic fight. The sound is bad. I was wondering about the realities of shooting in Germany just after reunification. Except for some Berlin Wall footage, this was made in Sofia (Bulgaria) and LA. From Concorde and the director of Bloodfist.

BERMUDA TRIANGLE

(Lightning, 1978) D: Richard Friedenberg S: Stephen Lord P: Charles E. Sellier, James L. Conway

A G-rated pseudodocumentary with re-creations of supposed events, based on a book by Charles Berlitz. The narration is by Sunn Classics regular Brad Crandall and Thalmus Rasulala.

BERRY GORDY'S THE LAST DRAGON See THE LAST DRAGON

BERSERKER

(Starmaker, 1987) D/S: Jef Richard P: Jules Rivera

A Viking spirit in a bear mask possesses a man who kills teen campers. Buck Flower is the "name" in this silly slasher-in-the-woods movie. The cinematography is by Henning Schellerup. It was filmed in Utah.

BEST DEFENSE

(Paramount, 1984) D/S: Willard Huyck S/P: Gloria Katz

Dudley Moore is a failing inventor who is given the secret of the "DYP Giro" supertank weapon in this flop comedy. "Guest star" Eddie Murphy, as a US lieutenant, accidentally drives his tank into the middle of a war between Iraq and Kuwait, so at least they predicted that right. With Kate Capshaw as Moore's wife, George Dzundza, Tom Noonan, David Rasche, and Tracey Ross. It was shot in Hollywood and Israel.

THE BEST OF ALFRED HITCHCOCK PRESENTS: See ALFRED HITCHCOCK PRESENTS

THE BEST OF DARK SHADOWS: See DARK SHADOWS

THE BEST OF MARTIAL ARTS FILMS

(1992) D/S: Sandra Weintraub P: Fred Weintraub

John Saxon narrates this very entertaining look at modern martial-arts movies, which briefly covers the careers of Cynthia Rothrock, Angela Mao, Jackie Chan, Samo Hung, Yuen Baio, Jean-Claude Van Damme, Richard Norton, and Benny "the Jet" Urquidez using choice film clips. The Weintraubs made a documentary on Bruce Lee (using some of the same footage) at about the same time. This one debuted on Cinemax.

THE BEST OF SEX AND VIOLENCE

(Wizard, 1981) D: Ken Dixon

John Carradine hosts a compilation of 40 exploitation trailers. Carradine's sons David and Keith show up for a few seconds, but his segments are ill-conceived and embarrassing. Seek out this tape for the incredible Rudy Ray Moore trailers (Dolemite; Disco Godfather) and appearances by Cassandra (Elvira) Peterson (Working Girls), Vanity (Tanya's Island), Phyllis Davis (Terminal Island), Claudia Jennings, Uschi Digart, Edy Williams, Laura Gemser, and others. Angelo Rossitto also appears, and Brinke Stevens is on the video box.

BEST OF THE BEST

(SVS, 1989) D: Bob Radler S: Paul Levene P/A: Phillip Rhee P: Peter E. Strauss

James Earl Jones and "spiritual adviser" Sally Kirkland take an American taekwondo team to Korea to compete. Phillip Rhee stars in this PG-13 Rocky-style movie. He goes after the martial-arts-champ killer (his real-life brother Simon Rhee) of his brother in Korea. He got a lot of names to act in his movie, including Eric Roberts, Christopher Penn, and Louise Fletcher. With John P. Ryan and Kane Hodder too. From Taurus Films.

BEST OF THE BEST 2

(Fox, 1993) D: Robert Radler S: Max Strom, John Allen Nelson P/A: Phillip Rhee P: Peter E. Strauss

Phillip Rhee returns in a more exploitative and violent (R-rated) sequel, this time from a major studio. Christopher Penn is killed, and Rhee and Roberts fight gladiators in a hidden illegal-betting fight arena under a Las Vegas nightclub. They also train with Sonny Landham, as Rhee's alcoholic Native American stepbrother, in "the Valley of Fire." The bad guys are gladiator Ralph Moeller and Wayne Newton as Weldon, the MC. With Meg Foster, Edan Gross, and Simon Rhee. Best of the Best 3 followed.

BEST SELLER

(Orion, 1987) D: John Flynn S: Larry Cohen P: Carter De Haven

A wired, psychotic corporate hitman (James Woods) teams up with an LA cop (Brian Dennehy) to help him write a book. The two stars are excellent, and the teaming of Flynn and Cohen was a great idea. With Victoria Tennant and Paul Shenar as the industrialist criminal threatened by the existence of Woods.

BETRAYAL

(Cinema Home, 1974) D: Gordon Hessler S: James M. Miller P: Gerald I. Isenberg

An ABC-TV movie starring Amanda Blake (from Gunsmoke) as a wealthy widow who advertises for a companion. The young girl who gets the job (Tisha Sterling) is a killer and extortionist working with a boyfriend. With sex star Rene Bond as a waitress. Not to be confused with several other tapes with the same title.

BETRAYAL OF THE DOVE

(Prism, 1992) D: Strathford Hamilton S: Robby Benson P: Ashrok Amritraj

Helen Slater is a single mom who goes on a blind date with a doctor (Billy Zane). Murders occur in this "Hitchcockian psychological thriller" and many characters are suspected. With David Lander as her lawyer boyfriend, Alan Thicke as her alky ex, Kelly LeBrock, Stuart Pankin, and Harvey Korman. Benson wrote the story with Karla DeVito.

BETRAYED

(1944) D: William Castle S: Philip Yordan, Dennis J. Cooper P: Maurice and Franklin King (When Strangers Marry)

A small-town girl (Kim Hunter, from The Seventh Victim) marries a stranger (Dean Jagger) and goes to Manhattan. An old boyfriend (Robert Mitchum) shows up, and a series of silk-stocking murders occur. The 67-minute Monogram release also features Neil Hamilton as a police detective and Milton Kibbee.

BETTER OFF DEAD

(Key, 1985) D/S: Savage Steve Holland P: Michael Jaffe

High-school student John Cusack loses Amanda Wyss to a jock. He becomes suicidal but eventually finds French exchange student Diane Franklin to replace her. The PG-rated teen comedy features animated singing hamburgers, an attack by newspaper boys, and other odd surprises. With Curtis Armstrong as the best friend, David Ogden Stiers and Kim Darby as the parents, and Vincent Schiavelli as a teacher. Holland also made One Crazy Summer and How I Got into College.

A BETTER TOMORROW

(Republic, 1986) D/A: John Woo S: Chan Hing-Kai, Leung Suk P: Tsui Hark Hong Kong

Ti Lung (an ex-con Triad gangster) and Leslie Cheug (a cop) play brothers in a violent, bloody, action-packed hit. Chow Yun-Fat costars as Mark, a now-derelict friend who has lost a leg. It features a shootout finale that later features had to try and top. With Emily Chu and Waise Lee. This was the biggest Hong Kong hit ever released at the time. Woo, Hark, and Chow Yun-Fat were all major forces in the new-look Hong Kong features of the 80s and 90s and helped gain international critical acclaim for the industry (and do away with old-style kung-fu movies).

A BETTER TOMORROW II

(1987) D/S: John Woo S/P: Tsui Hark Hong Kong

The same cast returns in this popular sequel, but since Mark was killed in the first film, Chow Yun-Fat plays the character's twin brother. He teams with cop Leslie Cheung and reformed gangster Ti Lung to fight criminals. There's an exciting conclusion with a staggeringly high body count, and some scenes take place in America. Star Chow Yung-Fat was in the equally violent hit The Killer the next year.

A BETTER TOMORROW III: LOVE AND DEATH IN SAIGON

(1989) D/S/P: Tsui Hark Hong Kong

Chow Yun-Fat and Tony Leung returned in this slower-paced, longer (130-minute), and more serious prequel to the first two films in the series. There's a major female character this time, Anita Mui as a businesswoman who becomes a warrior. It's partially set in Vietnam during the early 70s (the director was born there) and unlike the first two movies was not a major hit.

THE BEVERLY HILLBILLIES

(Fox, 1993) D/P: Penelope Spheeris
S: Lawrence Konner, Mark Lowenthal, Jim Fisher, Jim Staal P: Ian Bryce

This PG-rated remake of the popular TV series (1962–71) stars Jim Varney as Jed, Cloris Leachman as Granny, Erika Eleniak as Ellie May, Diedrich Bader as Jethro, Lily Tomlin as Miss Hathaway, and Dabney Coleman as Mr. Drysdale. Lea Thompson is a gold digger who's after Jed (the same plot as Addams Family Values), and there are cameos by Zsa Zsa Gabor, Dolly Parton, and original star Buddy Ebsen.

BEVERLY HILLS BODYSNATCHERS

(SGE, 1989) D: John Mostow
S/P: P. K. Simonds Jr. P: John Mostow

A serum revives the dead in this black comedy. Vic Tayback (in his last role) is a mortician, and Frank Gorshin is a mad doctor. They run into trouble when they revive a gangster. With Art Metrano and Brooke Bundy.

BEVERLY HILLS BRATS

(Media, 1988) D: Dimitri Sotirakis
S: Linda Silverhorn P/A: Terry Moore

Terry Moore (still claiming to be Howard Hughes' widow) produced this PG-rated comedy. A boy (Peter Billingsley) arranges for Burt Young and Robert Tessier to kidnap him so he'll get more attention from his rich parents. Martin Sheen is the plastic-surgeon dad, and Moore is the mom. With Natalie Schafer, George Kirby, and Martin's son Ramon Sheen. Janet Sheen was associate producer. Nobody liked it, but if you do, you can relive some of your favorite scenes while watching the outtakes at the end.

BEVERLY HILLS COP

(Paramount, 1984) D: Martin Brest S: Daniel Petrie Jr. P: Don Simpson, Jerry Bruckheimer

Eddie Murphy is at his best as Detroit cop Axel Foley in a role once planned for Sylvester Stallone. He joins Judge Reinhold and John Ashton as LA cops to bring down a British gangster (Steven Berkoff) who killed his partner (James Russo). With Lisa Eilbacher, Ronny Cox, Bronson Pinchot, Paul Reiser, and Karen Mayo Chandler. This action comedy was a huge hit, so sequels followed. The Danny Elfman soundtrack (with various artists) was also a big seller on MCA.

BEVERLY HILLS COP II

(Paramount, 1987) D: Tony Scott S: Larry Ferguson, Warren Skaaren P: Don Simpson, Jerry Bruckheimer

Eddie Murphy, Judge Reinhold, and John Ashton return in an inferior sequel with an interesting group of villains. Brigitte Nielsen, Jurgen Prochnow, and Dean Stockwell steal diamonds and use a rifle range as a front. With Allen Garfield as the police chief, Ronny Cox (bedridden), Paul Reiser (he stays in Detroit), Gilbert Gottfried, Chris Rock, and Carrie Leigh as herself. The sequel also features Hugh Hefner and many Playboy centerfolds and models as Playboy Playmates at a pool party: Rebecca Ferratti, Kymberly Herrin, Luanne Lee, Venice Kong, Kym Page, Ola Ray, Kari Whitman, and Alana Soares.

BEVERLY HILLS COP III

(Paramount, 1994) D: John Landis
S: Steven E. deSouza P: Robert Rehme

Detroit cop Axel Foley (Murphy) goes back to LA and is teamed with Judge Reinhold again, but few people cared anymore. Parts of this action comedy are set in a theme park, called Wonderworld, run by a Walt Disney type (Alan Young), and there are typical John Landis in-jokes. With Theresa Randle, Hector Elizondo, Stephen McHattie, John Saxon, Bronson Pinchot (again), Al Green as a minister, and Julie Strain. The score is by Nile Rogers. It cost roughly $50 million and was a commercial flop.

BEVERLY HILLS GIRLS

(Hideaway, 1985) D/S: Mike Hall

Michelle Bauer is a lesbian millionairess video producer, and Linnea Quigley (who sings) is the lesbian leader of a rock group. With Becky LeBeau. This soft-X film was shot on video. Bauer was also in New Beverly Hills Girls.

BEVERLY HILLS VAMP

(Vidmark, 1988) D: Fred Olen Ray
S: Ernest D. Farino P: Grant Austin Waldman

This comedy is loaded with Hollywood gags and references to director Ray's own career. Manic Eddie Deezen stars. He and his nice-guy friend Tim Conway Jr. are would-be filmmakers. They visit a whorehouse run by Britt Ekland as Madame Cassandra, who has a gay butler and is actually a vampire. When her usually-naked vampire hookers (like Michelle Bauer, Jillian Kessner, and Debra Lamb) are having sex, the men leave their pants on like in old nudie movies. Deezen becomes an enthusiastic vampire-hunter with a cross on his underwear after his friend is bitten. Writer Farino used to do effects for S. F. Brownrigg movies in Texas. With Jay Richardson as the Ray-like director, Robert Quarry, Dawn Wildsmith, and Pat McCormick delivering an overlong intro.

BEWARE, MY LOVELY

(Republic, 1952) D: Harry Horner
S: Mel Dinelli P: Collier Young

Robert Ryan is a confused, unpredictable, frightening psycho who takes a job as a handyman at the home of a widow (Ida Lupino). This simple, underrated feature from RKO was based on Dinelli's play.

BEWARE OF CHILDREN

(1960) D: Gerald Thomas S: Norman Hudis, Robert Estridge P: Peter Rogers UK (No Kidding)

In this comedy, a couple (Leslie Phillips and Geraldine McEwan) inherit an old manor house and turn it into a vacation resort for rich kids. The international assortment of spoiled brats chop down trees, steal cars, and terrorize an alcoholic cook by dressing up as ghosts. AIP released the comedy in America.

BEWARE, SPOOKS!

(1939) D: Edward Sedgwick S: Richard Flournoy P: Robert Sparks

Joe E. Brown, the once-popular wide-mouthed comedy star, is a bumbling rookie detective who chases an escaped criminal (Marc Lawrence) in a Coney Island amusement park haunted house. With Mary Carlisle and Clarence Kolb. Just over an hour long, it was overshadowed by a bigger-budget crime comedy released the same year, Paramount's The Cat and the Canary (Bob Hope's first hit).

THE BEYOND: See SEVEN DOORS OF DEATH

BEYOND AND BACK

(1978) D: James L. Conway S: Stephen Lord P: Charles E. Sellier Jr.

See after-death experiences recreated in this pseudodocumentary based on a book by Ralph Wilkerson. Actors play Plato and Houdini's wife. Lots of people saw this at drive-ins. What a way to spend an evening! The narration is by Sunn Classics' familiar voice of Brad Crandall.

BEYOND A REASONABLE DOUBT

(VidAmerica, 1956) D: Fritz Lang
S: Douglas Morrow P: Bert Friedlob

Lang's last American feature stars Dana Andrews as a novelist who puts his life on the line to discredit capital punishment. After he lets himself be tried (the trial is televised) and sentenced to death for a crime he didn't commit, the evidence that would free him is destroyed, and his fiancé (Joan Fontaine) has to save the day. The plot takes some surprising (and hard-to-believe) turns, and although the low budget of this RKO production sometimes shows, it's pretty dark and fascinating. With Sidney Blackmer, Barbara Nichols, Shepperd Strudwick, Arthur Franz, and Dan Seymour. Andrews had also been in Lang's While the City Sleeps, released the same year (it's also on video).

BEYOND DARKNESS

(Imperial, 1990) D/S: "Clyde Anderson"/ Claudio Fragasso S: Sarah Asproon Italy

A minister (Gene LeBrock) and his family move into an isolated house. Amityville Horror stuff happens, but the FX are minimal. An alcoholic ex-priest helps them, and there's something about a kid-killing woman on death row. From the maker of Rats and Monster Dog. Laura Gemser is credited with costume design, so Joe D'Amato was probably involved in this derivative bore.

BEYOND DEATH'S DOOR

(1979) D: Henning Schellerup
S: Fenton Hobart Jr. P: Stan Siegel

If you loved Beyond and Back, here's another look at what happens when you die. With Tom Hallick as a doctor who believes, after two dying patients (a hooker and a skier) relate their cosmic, heart-stopping experiences. "Their experience could change your life—and death," said the ads. It was Schellerup's follow-up to In Search of Historic Jesus.

BEYOND DREAM'S DOOR

(VidAmerica, 1988) D/S: Jay Woelfel
P: Dyrk Ashton

Benjamin Dobbs, a psychology student whose parents are dead, dreams about a nonexistent younger brother and a (topless) woman with a scary voice. Some of the best nightmare images are a light bulb exploding in slow motion, a balloon filled with blood, and a janitor with no hands who approaches and says, "Shake." Benjamin writes down his dreams and shows them to his professor. Soon the man (and his house) disappear: "Nothing around here seems real! I can't feel anything!" There are zombies and a demonic red monster that mangles its victims. A female doctor is decapitated. The score is somber and menacing. It's hard to follow all the changing fragments of this interesting movie, but I guess that's the point. I think Woelfel could work wonders with a slightly bigger budget. He made this at Ohio State University in Columbus when he was 26 years old.

BEYOND JUSTICE

(Vidmark, 1990) D: Duccio Tesari S: Adriano Bolzoni, Sergio Donati, Luigi Montefiori Italy

CIA agent Rutger Hauer goes to the Moroccan desert to rescue Carol Alt's son. The rich-brat New York kid has been chosen by his Muslim grandfather (Omar Sharif) to lead his tribe. Kebir Bedi is Sharif's son. With Donald Sutherland and Elliott Gould, for name-value support, and Brett Halsey. Some missile and kung-fu fights occur. The score is by Ennio Morricone.

BEYOND MOMBASA

(1956) D: George Marshall S: Richard English
P: Adrian Worker, Tony Owen UK/US

Cornel Wilde stars as the leader of a group searching for uranium in the African jungle. With Donna Reed, Christopher Lee as a French hunter, Leo Genn, and Ron Randell. They experience a Mau Mau attack, alligators, and leopard men. This color Columbia release was shot in British East Africa.

BEYOND REASON

(Media, 1977) D/S/A: Telly Savalas
P: Howard Koch (Mati)

Bet you didn't know that Kojak directed a movie. He's Dr. Mati, a shrink who is seeing things and losing his mind, and who may even be a killer. Diana Muldaur costars with Laura Johnson and Melissa Prophet. Priscilla Barnes (who was the original star) was mostly cut out of this PG feature which was not released until 1982.

BEYOND THE CALL OF DUTY

(1991) D/P: Cirio H. Santiago
S: T. C. McKelvey Philippines

Jan-Michael Vincent stars as a US Army commander who rescues some soldiers and a group of singing orphans at the end of the Vietnam war. Lots of Vietcong soldiers die, and things blow up. With Jillian McWhirter and Eb Lottimer. From Concorde.

BEYOND THE CELLAR DOOR = TERROR FROM UNDER THE HOUSE

BEYOND THE CURTAIN OF SPACE: See ROCKY JONES

BEYOND THE DOOR III

(RCA, 1989) D: Jeff Kwitny S: Sheila Goldberg Italy (The Train)

LA coeds go to the countryside to reenact an ancient ritual and encounter "the Prince of Darkness." The rest of the movie takes place on a train on a collision course. It was shot in Yugoslavia and has a surprisingly high-budget look. With Bo Svenson as a Serbian professor (!), Savina Gersak, Mary Kohnert, Victoria Zinny, and a dwarf. Beyond the Door (1975) was an Exorcist copy, and Beyond the Door II (1979) was an unrelated, retitled Mario Bava movie, so the three make up another fake "series." Ovidio Assonitis (who directed the original using the name Oliver Hellman) was the executive producer.

BEYOND THE DOORS

(Unicorn, 1983) D/S/P: Larry Buchanan (Down on Us)

See how a government assassin killed Jimi Hendrix, Janis Joplin, and Jim Morrison! Dallas-based Buchanan is a conspiracy buff who made The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald (1964) years before a TV movie with the same name. It's not hard to imagine that maybe the American government was somehow behind the deaths of famous role-model rock stars. This was (finally) released with a new title to cash in on Oliver Stone's The Doors. A lot of time is spent showing actor clones of the rock stars live in concert. Each one of them performs three whole songs that sound sort of like songs made famous by the originals. You might recognize bits of familiar lyrics but not enough for Larry to have to pay any copyright fees. The only song he could get away with copying is "The Star Spangled Banner"! No matter who's supposed to be playing in whatever city, they always seem to be on the same stage in front of the same audience.

Jimi and Janis meet and sing drunken blues together backstage. Janis confronts Morrison in the ladies' room. You get to see Jimi pose with topless blondes for an LP cover, meet "the Plaster Casters," and watch a New York drag show. Morrison in Miami screams, "Wake up before the whole world goes into the atomic sewer!" and "How does it feel to be vermin?!" See Janis shoot up while watching Vietnam war footage on TV. Nixon is heard saying, "These voices must be still." The government assassin (Sandy Kenyon, who landed a short-lived role on Knots Landing after this) is shown at home breaking his son's records. He offs two of the stars, but Jim Morrison fakes his own death in Paris and hides out in a Spanish monastery (!), where he later dies anyway. Buchanan's movie is eerily fascinating despite (or because of) being too long, too dark, and too cheap. Someday a director with money will tackle the same idea for a major company, and Larry will be able to say "I did it first" again. With Stuart Lancaster and Karen Mayo-Chandler.

BEYOND THE LAW

(Sinister, 1968) D/S: Giorgio Stegani
S: Fernando Di Lio Italy/W. Germany
(Al di la della Legge; The Good Die First; Bloodsilver)

Lee Van Cleef is a thief who wanders the West with a preacher (Lionel Stander) and an ex-slave. He becomes a sheriff in order to rob a silver shipment before his former partner (Gordon Mitchell) can get to it. With Antonio Sabata, Ann Smyrner, Herbert Fux, and Bud Spencer.

BEYOND THE LAW

(Live, 1992) D/S: Larry Fergusson
P: John Fielder, Mark Tarlov

Bearded, long-haired Charlie Sheen is an Arizona cop who goes undercover in a gang of arms-dealing, murdering bikers. He also has flashbacks to the time he killed his abusive uncle. It's all based on a real case. Linda Fiorentino costars as a photographer, with Michael Madsen, Rip Torn, Leon Rippy, and Courtney B. Vance. It was released in 1994. Fergusson (one of the uncredited scriptwriters on Alien^{3}) wrote a script that copies Stone Cold.

BEYOND THE LIVING = NURSE SHERRI

BEYOND THE LIVING DEAD: See THE HANGING WOMAN

BEYOND THE STARS

(1989) D/S: David Saperstein
P: Michael Plotkin (Personal Choice)

Christian Slater, as a kid on vacation, meets an astronaut (Martin Sheen) who was on the moon and who reveals surprising secrets about his trip. With Robert Foxworth, Sharon Stone, Olivia D'Abo, and F. Murray Abraham.

BEYOND THE UNIVERSE

(1981) D/S: Robert Emenegger S/P: Allan Sadler

A scientist in the 21st century tries to save Earth from further destruction after two atomic wars. He makes contact with "God." With David Ladd, Jaqueline Ray, and Christopher Carey. Emenegger is a UFO specialist.

BEYOND TOMORROW

(Sinister 1940) D: A. Edward Sutherland
S: Adele Comandini P: Lee Garmes

The spirits of three rich New York City businessmen (Harry Carey, C. Aubrey Smith, and Charles Winninger) return to Earth on Christmas Eve to help a young couple (Richard Carlson, as a singing Texan, and Jean Parker). This romantic fantasy from RKO is more serious than most. There's a murder, and some characters are sent to Hell. With Maria Ouspenskaya as an exiled Russian noblewoman and former silent-film star Rod LaRocque.

BIG

(CBS/Fox, 1988) D: Penny Marshall S: Gary Ross, Anne Spielberg P: James L. Brooks, Robert Greenhut

A 12-year-old kid becomes Tom Hanks, and Elizabeth Perkins falls for the childish man. With John Heard, Robert Loggia, Jon Lovitz, and Mercedes Ruehl. This PG romantic fantasy/comedy hit was followed by many similar movies, such as Vice Versa and 18 Again.

BIG BAD BOLD BOSS: See BOSS

BIG BAD JOHN

(Magnum, 1989) D: Burt Kennedy
S: Joseph Berry P/A: Red Steagall

Jimmy Dean stars as a retired sheriff living in a swamp cabin who goes after Big Bad John (football star Doug English). Mostly characters in "monster" trucks shoot at each other, but this PG-13 film ends like the song, in "that nameless pit." Dean's 1961 hit single of the same name is heard, but not his version. With Jack Elam, Ned Beatty, Bo Hopkins, Anne Lockhart, and Romy Windsor.

BIG BAD MAMA II

(MGM, 1987) D/S: Jim Wynorski
S: R. G. Robertson P: Roger Corman

Angie Dickinson returns as a Depression-era killer in Texas in this remake of and sequel to the 1974 original. She uses a body double this time for her nude scene (with costar Robert Culp), but young Danielle Brisebois (from All in the Family and Archie Bunker's Place) and Julie McCullough (from Growing Pains and the pages of Playboy) have topless scenes as her seductive daughters. With Bruce Glover as the evil candidate for governor, Kelly Maroney, Linda Shayne, and Harriet White Medin. The music is imitation Morricone. From Concorde.

THE BIG BET

(Cinema Group, 1986) D/S/P: Bert I. Gordon

Sylvia Kristel helps a teenager (Lance Sloane) seduce a schoolgirl. With Kim Everson, Elizabeth Cochrell, Stephanie Blake, Monique Gabrielle, speeded-up film, porno tapes, teen fantasies, and nudity. Gordon made another sex comedy, Let's Do It, next.

THE BIG BIRD CAGE

(Warner, 1972) D/S: Jack Hill P: Jane Schaffer (Women's Penitentiary II)

The comic New World sequel to the previous year's The Big Doll House features "women so hot with desire they melt the chains that enslave them!" Anitra Ford is kidnapped during a nightclub shootout and thrown in jail. The bamboo "big bird cage" is a tall sugar mill. Blossom (Pam Grier), a mercenary, leads a prison break with the help of Sid Haig as Django. The women rape the gay prison guard (Vic Diaz), then smother him by sitting on his face. Drive-in cheap thrills with Roberta Collins, Teda Bracci as a lesbian, Carol Speed (from Abby), and Candice Roman.

THE BIG BRAWL

(Warner, 1980) D/S: Robert Clouse
P: Fred Weintraub

Jackie Chan starred in his first American film, by Bruce Lee's best-known director. Not enough people here knew who Chan was (the number 1 star in Asia), and not many were interested in a 30s gangster movie, set in Chicago, with martial-arts fighting. Mako is the old master who trains him. With Rosalind Chow, Kristine DeBell (from the X-rated Alice in Wonderland), José Ferrer, Lenny Montana, and H. B. Haggerty as a wrestler. Raymond Chow was the executive producer. The music is by Lalo Schifrin (who also scored Enter the Dragon).

THE BIG BUST OUT

(Embassy, 1973) D/S/P: "Richard Jackson"/ Sergio Garrone Italy/W. Germany
(La Mònaca tre Bastardi, e sette Peccatrici)

Vonetta McGee (from Hammer and Blacula) and a group of prisoners (and a nun) escape from a Middle Eastern prison, are caught by slavers, and escape again. With Gordon Mitchell, Tony Kendall, and William Berger. This New World film features nudity, rape, lesbian scenes, and a sadistic dwarf. It was made by a director who later gained notoriety in Europe for a series of pretty vile Nazi-theme movies.

THE BIG CAGE

(1933) D: Kurt Newmann S: Edward Anthony, Ferdinand Reyher

Clyde Beatty, in his film debut, stars as himself, a famous wild-animal trainer. In one memorable scene, 20 lions and 20 tigers escape from the same cage. Mickey Rooney is the kid who idolizes him, and Anita Page is the trapeze-artist love interest. With Andy Devine and Wallace Ford. The Universal feature was rereleased by Realart in 1950. The animal footage was used in countless other films over the years. Beatty returned in The Lost Jungle and Darkest Africa.

BIG CALIBRE

(Sinister, 1934) D/S: Robert North Bradbury
P/A: A.W. Hackel C: John Alton

This strange, gothic western stars Bob Steele (who was the director's son). A mad scientist (Perry Murdock) wearing a disguise kills the hero's father with a capsule of corrosive gas. The production was supervised by Sam Katzman and distributed by Bradbury. Steele, a B-western star since 1927, later became a character actor. He retired in the 70s after playing a regular role on the F Troop TV series.

THE BIG COMBO

(Prism, 1955) D: Joseph H. Lewis
S: Phillip Yordan P: Sidney Harmon

Cornel Wilde stars as a detective named Diamond in this film noir, sex-and-violence cult classic by the director of Gun Crazy. Diamond uses any means available to break up the operations of a mob financier (Richard Conte), whose motto is "First is first and second is nobody," and tries to get Jean Wallace (his real-life wife) away from him. Lee Van Cleef and Earl Holliman play Fante and Mongo, a homosexual pair of thugs, and Brian Donlevy is killed with his own hearing aid. John Hoyt, Ted De Corsia, Whit Bissell, and Robert Middleton also appear in this United Artists release.

THE BIG CRIMEWAVE

(Favorite, 1987) D/S/A: John Paizs
Canada (Crimewave)

A would-be crime novelist (Steven Penny) has writer's block. This surreal comedy with an evil Elvis was made over a three-year period.

BIG DADDY

(1965) D/S/P: Carl K. Hittleman (Paradise Road)

Reed Sherman (the associate producer) falls for an illiterate swamp girl in the Florida Everglades. Victor Buono plays the title character. Gators and a voodoo witch doctor figure in the plot. M. A. Ripps (Poor White Trash) retitled and rereleased this indy feature (by the screenwriter of Jesse James Meets Frankenstein's Daughter) in 1969. With Joan Blondell, Chill Wills, Tisha Sterling, Billy Benedict, and Arline Hunter.

THE BIG DEADLY GAME

(1955) D/S: Daniel Birt S/P: Robert Dunbar
UK (Third Party Risk; Deadly Game)

In this Hammer film (released in the US by Lippert) Lloyd Bridges is an American on vacation in Spain who becomes involved with a smuggling ring. Simone Silva, Finlay Currie, and Ferdy Mayne are also in the cast.

THE BIG DOLL HOUSE

(Embassy, 1971) D: Jack Hill S: Don Spencer
P: Jane Shaffer Philippines (Women's Penitentiary)

Eddie Romero and actor John Ashley were the executive producers of this first-of-its-kind women-in-prison drive-in classic. Red-haired Judy Brown is top-billed and has nude scenes. Pam Grier is a tough lesbian hooker named Grear and also sings the theme song, "Long Time Woman." It was her first major role after being in Beyond the Valley of the Dolls. With Roberta Collins, Sid Haig (in his first of six appearances with Grier), Kathryn Loder as a sadistic guard, Brooke Mills, and Pat Woodell. The Big Bird Cage was a follow-up with most of the same cast.

THE BIG FISHERMAN

(1959) D: Frank Borzage S: Howard Estabrook S/P: Rowland V. Lee

Howard Keel stars as Saint Peter in a 180-minute religious epic based on the novel by Lloyd C. Douglas. With Susan Kohner, John Saxon, Martha Hyer, Herbert Lom as King Herod, Rhodes Reason, Henry Brandon, and Jonathan Harris (from Lost in Space). God strikes down an evil man, Christ appears, but the best miracles are the visible microphones and electric lights. This money-losing film cost $4 million and was originally shown in Panavision 70mm. It was the last film by Borzage, who had been a director since 1916. Buena Vista released but did not produce it.

BIGFOOT THE MYSTERIOUS MONSTERS

(1975) D/S: Robert Guenette

Peter Graves narrates a pseudodocumentary about Bigfoot, the Abominable Snowman, and the Loch Ness Monster. With scenes from Land of the Yeti (1964). Bigfoot: Man or Beast? (1971) was another similar documentary. Bigfoot (1987) was a Disney TV movie directed by John Huston's son Danny.

BIGGER THAN LIFE

(1956) D: Nicholas Ray S: Cyril Hume, Richard Maibaum P/A: James Mason

James Mason is excellent as a grade-school teacher hooked on life-saving cortisone. He becomes a tense megalomaniac who insults and outrages everybody, eventually terrorizes his family, and intends to kill his wife (Barbara Rush) and son. Walter Matthau is a family friend who tries to get help. With Roland Winters. It was released (in Cinemascope) the year after The Man with the Golden Arm. The two films led to changes in censorship rules forbidding the depiction of drugs in films.

BIGGLES: ADVENTURE IN TIME

(Starmaker, 1985) D: John Hough S/P: Kent Walwin S: John Groves P: Pom Oliver UK

Peter Cushing (in his last film appearance) plays a retired Royal Air Force colonel in this PG-rated time-travel fantasy. A young American businessman (Alex Hyde-White in his first role) goes back in time to WWI and helps rescue his "time twin," a British pilot named Biggles (Neil Dickson), from the Germans. It's based on characters, created by Captain W. E. Johns, that were popular in the 20s. New World released it in the US. Cushing died in 1994.

THE BIG GUNDOWN

(Columbia, 1967) D/S: Sergio Sollima S: Sergio Donati, Tulio Demicheli P: Alberto Grimaldi
Italy (La Resa dei Conti)

Lee Van Cleef, just after costarring in Leone's The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly, stars as a Texas lawman chasing a Mexican outlaw (Tomas Milian) at the request of a wealthy railroad man. He eventually discovers that he's being used and that the man he's after is innocent. This serious political western was made by the screenwriter of Burn! and The Battle of Algiers. With Fernando Sancho and Walter Barnes. The music is by Ennio Morricone. The uncut European version runs 114 minutes, but Columbia cut it for the US and it was rated M. The ads said, "Mr. Ugly comes to town today!"

THE BIG HEAT

(RCA, 1953) D: Fritz Lang S: Sydney Boehm P: Robert Arthur

Lang's best 50s film is a film noir classic starring Glenn Ford as a police detective investigating the suicide of his partner. He discovers that the chief of police works for the gangsters responsible and that most people are like "scared rabbits." Because he won't back down, his wife (Jocelyn Brando) is blown up in her car, and he becomes a determined vigilante. Lee Marvin as a sadistic gangster and Gloria Grahame as his moll both use hot coffee as a weapon. Scorsese called this Columbia release one of the most important American films of all time. It was based on a book by William P. McGivern. With Jeanette Nolan, Alexander Scourby, Carolyn Jones, and Dan Seymour. Ford and Grahame were teamed again in Lang's next film, Human Deisre (1954), a remake of Jean Renoir's La Bete Humaine (1938).

THE BIG HEAT

(1988) D: Andrew Kai, To Kei Kong
S: Gordon Chan P: Tsui Hark Hong Kong

Waise Lee (Bullet in the Head) stars as a cop who leads a group against a crime boss to avenge the death of his partner (Kuo Choi). With Chu Kong as a crimelord importing drugs for the Russians, and lots of violence and blood.

BIG HOUSE, USA

(1955) D: Howard W. Koch
S: John C. Higgins P: Aubrey Schenck

Broderick Crawford and his prison gang make life Hell for new inmate Ralph Meeker, a kidnapper who has a fortune stashed away. Koch filmed in documentary style at Casabel Island Prison and in a Colorado national park. Considered excessively violent when released, the film includes death by blowtorch and boiler vat. With William Talman, Lon Chaney Jr. as Alamo Smith, Charles Bronson as Benny Kelly, and Reed Hadley.

Lon Chaney Jr. in Big House, USA.

THE BIG HURT

(Magnum, 1986) D/S: Barry Peak
S: Sylvia Bradshaw Australia

A reporter (David Bradshaw) for a Melbourne tabloid discovers a government-backed plot involving "pain/pleasure drugs" that were tested on hookers.

BIG MAN ON CAMPUS

(Vestron, 1989) D: Jeremy Kagan S/A: Allan Katz
P: Arnon Milchan (The Hunchback of UCLA)

Katz is a comic hunchback living in the UCLA bell tower. He's put on trial and tested, but a doctor (Cindy Williams) falls for him, and he falls for Melora Hardin. Another doctor (Jessica Harper) wants to exploit him. With Corey Parker, Tom Skerritt, and Gerritt Graham as a TV host. This PG-13 film was a trial to sit through.

BIG MEAT EATER

(Media, 1982) D/S: Chris Windsor
S/P: Laurence Keane S: Phil Savath Canada

Toy-robot aliens go after radioactive meat that forms in a septic tank below a butcher shop, in this unique would-be cult film set in the 50s, with some funny song-and-dance numbers. George Dawson, acting almost as nerdy and cheerful as Pee-wee Herman, stars, sings, and talks to the camera as the local butcher who has invented a new, universal language. He hires a singing-psycho janitor named Abdullah, played by Big

THE BIG PAYOFF: See WIN, PLACE, OR STEAL

THE BIG PICTURE

(RCA, 1989) D/S: Christopher Guest
S/P: Michael Varhol

Kevin Bacon is an Ohio film student in Hollywood who discovers just who gets the money to make features, and why. He takes a phone-sales job and directs a rock video. This on-target comedy is filled with fantasy sequences, in-jokes, some excellent acting, and guest stars. With Emily Longstreth, Teri Hatcher, J. T. Walsh as a film executive, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Martin Short as a creepy agent, Kim Myori, John Cleese, Jason Gould, and Michael McKean (who acted with director Guest in This Is Spinal Tap).

THE BIG RED ONE

(Warner, 1980) D/S: Samuel Fuller P: Gene Corman

The last American feature that Fuller had control of after The Naked Kiss (1964) was based on his own WWII experiences. Lee Marvin stars as the weathered sergeant leading a group of very young soldiers as they land on the beaches. With Mark Hamill as Griff, Robert Carradine, Bobby Di Cicco, Perry Lang, Siegfried Rauch, and Stèphane Audran. The battle scenes are very convincing, there's a great asylum scene, and concentration-camp scenes were filmed in Israel with Israeli soldiers playing guards. Monte Hellman was the second-unit director. United Artists released it with a PG rating, but Fuller had more career setbacks when his next feature, White Dog (1982), was withdrawn by Paramount. A Dutch documentary, Sam Fuller and the Big Red One (1979) is narrated by the late Aldo Ray.

THE BIG SCORE

Richard Boone as a hitman, Edward Fox, John Mills, Harry Andrews, Richard Todd, Colin Blakely, and even James Stewart.

THE BIG SNATCH

(SW, 1968) D: "Ronnie Runningboard"/B. Ron Elliot

A long-haired guy in a pickup truck, with trained dogs, kidnaps 5 women off the street. He insults them and makes them dance and call him master. They all do exercises topless in an empty pool. Momo, the servant, is whipped when he tries to mess with the women. It looks like it would be easy for them to escape, but finally Uschi Digart says, "Let's sock it to him, night and day," so they tie him up and they do. This color movie has lots of nudity and sex (outdoors, in the shower . . .) and fake credits. With Peggy Church (All American Girl). Newspapers in 1968 often changed the title to The Big Catch. Alan Rudolph's Barn of the Naked Dead (1973) had a similar plot, without so much sex.

THE BIG SWEAT

(AIP, 1990) D: Ulli Lommell S: Max Bolt P/A: Joanne Watkins

The crash footage (nearly half the running time of this tape!) was lifted from Gone in Sixty Seconds (1974), by the late H. B. Halicki. Other footage was borrowed from Lommell's own Cold Heat (also 1990). Robert Z'Dar is the FBI-agent hero, and Steve Malone leads a gang of bank robbers.

THE BIG TNT SHOW

(1966) D: Larry Peerce P/M: Phil Spector

This excellent "electrovision" followup to the TAMI Show was taped in 1965 at the Lost Angeles Moulin Rouge club. David McCallum, star of Big Adventure (1985) was so good had a lot to do with director Tim Burton. This follow-up was a flop, Pee-wee's once popular show ended in 1991, then a scandal resulted from an absurd arrest in a porno theatre in Florida. Anyway, in what will likely be the last Pee-wee Herman movie, he invents a hot-dog tree and giant vegetables. Kris Kristofferson keeps 6-inch-high Susan Tyrrell in his pocket. With Penelope Ann Miller, Kenneth Tobey, Kevin Peter Hall, and naturally tiny Michu. The Arista soundtrack features Danny Elfman's score, which copies Nino Rota.

THE BIG TOWN

(Vestron, 1987) D: Bem Bolt S: Robert Roy Pool P: Martin Ransohoff, Don Carmody

Matt Dillon is a small-town crapshooter in 50s Chicago, where he meets a stripper played by Diane Lane (her real-life mom was a Playboy centerfold). The film is based on the novel The Arm by Clark Howard. With Tommy Lee Jones, Suzy Amis, Bruce Dern, Lee Grant, Tom Skerritt, and Lolita Davidovich.

BIG TROUBLE IN LITTLE CHINA

(Fox, 1986) D: John Carpenter S: Garry Goldman, David Z. Weinstein P: Larry J. Franco M: John Carpenter, Alan Howarth

Kurt Russell is a wisecracking truck driver with a John Wayne voice in this PG-13 fantasy/adventure/comedy with martial arts, machine guns, lots of FX, and rubbery monsters. It has a lot in common with The Golden Child, released the same year, but is a lot more fun. Sue Francis (Suzee Pai, Penthouse's January 1981 Pet, from Toledo) is kidnapped by an ancient magician (James Hong) in San Francisco, and Russell tries to rescue her. With Dennis Dun, Kim Cattrall, Victor Wong, Kate Burton, James Pax, and many other Asian actors (including Cary-Hiroyuki Tagawa and Jade Go). The soundtrack by the director and his usual collaborator, Alan Howarth, was on Enigma. This was the fourth Carpenter/Russell feature (after Elvis, Escape from New York, and The Thing). With FX by Steve Johnson.

BIG WEDNESDAY

(Warner, 1978) D/S: John Milius S: Dennis Aaberg P: Buzz Feitshans (Summer of Innocence)

James Hong and Suzee Pai in Big Trouble in Little China.

Jan-Michael Vincent, Gary Busey, and William Katt are legendary surfers in a widescreen, PG-rated feature that was overlooked when released. It cost $11 million to make (a very big budget at the time) and includes excellent surfing footage. The story takes place from the early 60s to the mid–70s and shows the changes that the Vietnam War brought. With Lee Purcell, Patty D'Arban-ville, Barbara Hale (Katt's real-life mother), Reb Brown, and Robert Englund. It's 126 minutes long (but a TV version is shorter). The soundtrack includes some choice oldies (including "Green Onions") and some classic authentic Hawaiian music. The director surfed in real life, which explains some of the dialogue in Apocalypse Now (written by Milius and Coppola).

BIKERS, BLONDES, AND BLOOD

(SW, 1994)

Johnny Legend introduces this compilation of around 40 trailers plus a 1966 US Navy social-etiquette short, Blondes Prefer Gentlemen. Some rare and outrageous trailer highlights are Racers From Hell, Road Devils, The Undertaker and His Pals, Captive Girl (Buster Crabbe and Johnny Weismuller), Girl in Black Stockings, The Wild, Wild World of Jayne Mansfield, Queen of Blood, Teenage Tramp, Teenage Strangler, and the 4-feature "Chiller Carnival of Blood" show. A few of these titles haven't been reviewed or listed anywhere yet.

BIKINI ISLAND

(Prism, 1991) D/P: Anthony Markes S: Emerson Bixby P: Zachary Matz

Five models are taken to a remote island for a Swimwear Illustrated shoot. An unknown psycho kills off the models and the photo crew members using arrows, strangulation, and a bathroom plunger. Most of the time is spent with the girls posing in bikinis or taking showers while rock songs are heard. A creepy handyman lurks, and somebody peeps through (huge) keyholes. This really stupid Mike Curb production at least looks good. Holly Floria is the top-billed survivor. A stuntman was killed making this.

BILL AND COO

(Video Yesterday, 1947) D: Dean Riesner S: Royal Foster, Dean Riesner P/A: Ken Murray

They don't make 'em like this anymore. "George Burton's Love Birds" star in this bizarre novelty movie from Republic. A whole town full of birds who act like humans is menaced by a black crow who attacks during a circus. Circus acts take up most of the 61-minute running time. Murray also narrates.

Keanu Reeves, George Carlin, and Alex Winter in Bill and Ted's Excellent Adventure.

BILL AND TED'S EXCELLENT ADVENTURE

(Orion, 1987) D: Stephen Herek S: Chris Matheson, Ed Soloman P: Scott Krooft, Michael S. Murphy, Joel Soisson

Alex Winter and Keanu Reeves are Bill and Ted in this clever time-travel fantasy/comedy. A guy from the future named Rufus (George Carlin) helps the lovable lunkheads pass history class by taking them back in time in a phone booth (an idea from Dr. Who). They meet Billy the Kid (Dan Shor), Joan of Arc (the Go Gos' Jane Weidlin), Genghis Khan (Al Leong), "So Crates," Napoleon, Lincoln, and Sigmund "Frude." Before they can help out in the classroom, the confused famous characters experience a shopping mall. With Bernie Casey, Diane Franklin, Clarence Clemens, and Fee Waybill. After DEG made this PG film it was delayed for two years, but it became a hit when Orion released it. Bill and Ted became an animated TV show before it was sequelized, and inspired Wayne's World. Matheson is the son of the famous scriptwriter Richard Matheson. Not bogus.

BILL AND TED'S BOGUS JOURNEY

(Orion, 1991) D: Peter Hewitt S: Chris Matheson, Ed Soloman P: Scott Kroopf

Bill (Alex Winter) and Ted (Keanu Reeves) return, go to Heaven and Hell, meet martians, and beat the Seventh Seal–style Grim Reaper (William Sadler) at Clue and Twister. They also meet God, the Devil, Albert Einstein, and the Easter bunny! With evil robots of the heroes, Rufus (George Carlin), Amy Stock-Poynton, Sarah Trigger, Joss Ackland, Pam Grier, and Taj Mahal. The world is saved by Kiss playing "God Gave Rock and Roll to You." This PG sequel was to be (and should have been) called Bill and Ted Go to Hell. A terrible live-action Fox-TV series followed.

BILLY JACK

(Warner, 1971) D/S/P/A: Tom Laughlin
S/A: Dolores Taylor P: Mary Rose Solti

The half-breed karate expert and ex–Green Beret Nam hero from AIPs biker movie Born Losers (1967) returns. He saves horses from being used for dog food and protects an Arizona "freedom school" for runaways. Laughlin's real-life wife, Dolores Taylor, costars, with Bert Freed, Kenneth Tobey as the mean deputy sheriff, and the Committee comedy troupe (with Howard Hesseman). McLaughlin directed (as T. C. Frank), and he and his wife used fake names (Frank and Theresa Christina) for writing. The low-budget, PG movie was started at AIP but was moved to Fox and then to Warner. Laughlin took it back from Warner in 1973 and "four-walled" it into hundreds of theaters himself, using saturation advertising and making it a very profitable cult hit. It's a long 115 minutes. The Warner soundtrack features Coven doing the hit "One Tin Soldier." The Trial of Billy Jack (1974) was next.

BILLY JACK GOES TO WASHINGTON

(1977) D/S/A: Tom Laughlin
S/A: Dolores Taylor P: Frank Capra Jr.

After The Trial of Billy Jack, Laughlin returned in a talk-filled, anti-nuke remake of Frank Capra's classic Mr. Smith Goes to Washington. This was a very bad idea, and few people ever saw the results. Dolores Taylor costars, as usual, with Sam Wanamaker, Luci Arnaz, E. G. Marshall, Pat O'Brien, and Dick Gautier. It runs a long 155 minutes. By 1981 the former cult star was reduced to acting in The Legend of the Lone Ranger. He made the papers in 1986 while working on The Return of Billy Jack in Times Square, but the film was never finished. In 1991 Laughlin announced he was running for president. He might have had a chance 20 years earlier.

BIMBOS IN TIME

(Asylum, 1993) D/P/A: Todd Sheets S: Roger Williams

While this silly time-warp sci fi comedy was obviously made on an incredibly low budget, it's very ambitious, including many costumed extras in various time settings and some good location work. There's even a medieval battle scene with suits of armor. Bimbos (which would be rated PG) is loaded with this-is-a-movie in-jokes and also throws in animated dinos, a disco scene, robots on skateboards, some old rock hits, historical figures, and A-bomb footage. My favorite character is a comical older-lady villain (Cathy Metz) with a rolling pin. There are outtakes and interviews at the end. It's the last of a Kansas City video trilogy, following Bimbos BC and Prehistoric Bimbos in Armageddon City.

BIOHAZARD

(VGB, 1983) D/S/P/A: Fred Olen Ray

A small, face-ripping lizard monster from another dimension (played by the director's son) is unleased at a desert lab, in this very low-budget Alien copy. The late Aldo Ray is a general, and the late Angelique Pettyjohn (who had been in hardcore features like Body Talk and Titillation in 1982) is a mind-reader. Also with an unrecognizable Carroll Borland (from Tod Browning's Mark of the Vampire) and Robin Schurtz. The end features plenty of outtakes of Pettyjohn naked and Johnny Legend singing. It was Ray's first 35-mm feature after the unreleased Brain Leeches, The Alien Dead (with Buster Crabbe), and Scalps. He went on to direct a record number of features, always with name stars from the past.

BIONIC SHOWDOWN: THE SIX MILLION DOLLAR MAN AND THE BIONIC WOMAN

(1989) D: Alan J. Levi S: Michael Sloan P: Nigel Watts

Lee Majors and Lindsay Wagner return and run around in slow motion again. New, younger bionic heroes join them, and they all try to capture a bionic spy. With old series regular Richard Anderson, Lee Majors II, and Robert Lansing. This ABC-TV pilot was the network's attempt to create a spinoff series from the two lame 70s shows. The network wouldn't give up, so Bionic Breakdown (1994) followed.

BIRD OF PARADISE

(Video Yesterday, 1932) D/P: King Vidor S: Wells Root, Wanda Tuchock, Leonard Praskins

Dolores Del Rio is Luana, a native girl in a sarong. Joel McCrea falls in love with her, but she's chosen to be sacrificed to the volcano god. Lon Chaney Jr. plays his very first role. This RKO feature, based on a play by Walton Tully, was remade in 1951.

BIRD OF PARADISE

(1951) D/S/P: Delmer Daves

Debra Paget is Kalua, and Louis Jourdan is the outsider who loves her. This Technicolor remake was filmed in Hawaii. With Jeff Chandler, Everett Sloane, Jack Elam, and Maurice Schwartz as the big Kahuna. Water turns to blood, Paget walks on hot coals, and, in an ending viewers never forget, she sacrifices herself to save her people by leaping into the active volcano.

BIRD ON A WIRE

(MCA, 1990) D: John Badham S: Louis Venosta, Eric Lerner, David Seltzer P: Rob Cohen

Mel Gibson, who's in a witness-protection program, and his lawyer ex-girlfriend Goldie Hawn hide out from drug-dealer killers, in this PG-13 by-the-numbers adventure filmed in Canada. David Carradine had his first major theatrical-release role in years as the main villain. It all ends in a battle in a zoo/rain forest. With Joan Severance, Bill Duke, Jeff Corey, and Stephen Tobolowsky. The Neville Brothers sing the title song, written by Leonard Cohen, and Bob Dylan's "Blowin' in the Wind" is heard.

THE BIRDS II: LAND'S END

(MCA, 1994) D: "Allan Smithee"/Rich Rosenthal S: Jim and Ken Wheat P: Ted Kurdyla

Chelsea Field and Brad Johnson move to Gull Island somewhere on the East Coast with their daughters and soon are being attacked by seagulls. Local officials act like they're in Jaws. This 30-years-later sequel to Hitchcock's movie was shot in North Carolina and debuted on Showtime. With James Naughton, Jan Rubes, and original star Tippi Hedren as a shopkeeper. Animatronics and real birds were used.

BIRTH OF THE BEATLES

(1979) D: Richard Marquand S: John Kurland, Jacob Eskendar P: Tony Bishop US/UK

The early days with Pete Best (consultant on the film) and Stu Sutcliffe are touched on, but this mostly looks at the mop-tops up until the first Ed Sullivan Show appearance. With lookalike actors and music by Rain. Members of the Beatles sued to stop this Dick Clark production but lost. It was made for ABC-TV but played theatrically in Europe. Two years later a film version of the plotless stage play Beatlemania was released. See Backbeat instead.

Tom Laughlin is Billy Jack.

THE BISHOP MURDER CASE

(1930) D: Nick Grinde, David Burton S: Lenore Coffee

Fourteen Philo Vance detective features were made by different studios with various stars from 1929 to 1947. They were all based on novels by S. S. Van Dine (Willard Huntington Wright). Here, Basil Rathbone stars as the upper-class Vance. (William Powell played the detective in the first Vance film, The Canary Murder Case, made by Paramount in 1929, and later starred in three more.) A deranged killer called "the Bishop" uses Mother Goose rhymes to plan his murders. With Leila Hyams (from Island of Lost Souls), Roland Young, and a crippled hunchback. It was nearly a decade before Rathbone became Sherlock Holmes.

THE BISHOP'S WIFE

(Samuel Goldwyn, 1947) D: Henry Koster S: Robert E. Sherwood P: Samuel Goldwyn

Watch this after you get sick of It's a Wonderful Life. Cary Grant stars as a charming angel in human form named Dudley who arrives just before Christmas to help a young Episcopal bishop (David Niven) and his wife (Loretta Young) build a new church and repair their marriage. With Monty Woolley, James Gleason, Elsa Lanchester, Regis Toomey, and some of the kids from It's a Wonderful Life. Billy Wilder and Charles Brackett (uncredited) wrote additional scenes. The RKO release was later colorized. A remake is planned.

THE BITCH

(Thorn EMI, 1979) D/S: Gerry O'Hara P: John Quested UK

Joan Collins is "the bitch" in a disco/sex movie based on a story by her sister, Jackie Collins. She owns a disco and has Mafia problems. With Ian Hendry and Sue Lloyd. The soundtrack includes tunes by Blondie, the Stylistics, and Three Degrees. It was followed by a sequel, The Stud.

BITE ME, DARLING!

(1970) D/S/P: Helmut Foernbacher S: Martin Roda Becher, W. H. Riedl Germany (Beiss Mich, Liebling)

This sex comedy about a stud mailman features a psychiatrist who becomes a vampire. With Eva Renzi, Brigitte Skay, and Barbara Valentin. The Vampire Happening was a more ambitious German vampire/sex comedy from the same year.

BITTER HARVEST

(Prism, 1993) D: Duane Clark S: Randall Fontana P: Steven Paul, Gary Binkow

Jim Kelly in Blackbelt Jones.

In an erotic thriller that copies Bonnie and Clyde (again), Patsy Kensit is a blond real-estate saleswoman who wants the estate of hick Stephen Bladwin, and Jennifer Rubin is a blond hitchhiker. The three of them end up robbing banks together. With M. Emmet Walsh and Adam Baldwin.

BITTER MOON

(New Line, 1992) D/S/P: Roman Polanski S: Gerard Brach, John Brownjohn

Oskar (Peter Coyote, who narrates) is a wealthy, egotistical American would-be writer in Paris who becomes involved with a beautiful waitress (Emmanuelle Seigner). The relationship goes downhill from love and lust to boredom, TV-watching, S&M games, abuse, cheating, hatred, and revenge. Seven years later he's crippled and in a wheelchair, telling it all to an embarrassed but fascinated Brit (Hugh Grant) on an ocean liner just before New Year's Eve. The depressing tale is based on a novel by philosopher Pascal Bruckner. With Kristen Scott Thomas. There's a clip from Once Upon a Time in America, a score by Vangelis, and appropriate older hit songs by Brian Ferry, the Eurythmics, and others. Bitter Moon was a hit in Europe, and Fine Line released it in America (in 1994) after NC-17 rating threats. Polanski had married Seigner in 1989. His next was Death and the Maiden (1994).

BITTER VICTORY

(1957) D/S: Nicholas Ray S: Rene Hardy, Gavin Lambert P: Paul Graetz France/UK

A love triangle interferes during a British commando raid in North Africa during WWII. Richard Burton, Curt Jurgens, and Ruth Roman star, with Christopher Lee as a British sergeant and Nigel Green. The full British version of the film, shot in Libya and France, is 103 minutes long.

THE BLACK ABBOT

(Sinister, 1963) D/S: Franz Gottlieb S: Johannes Kai W. Germany (Der Schwartze Abt)

Charles Regnier stars as Inspector Puddler in an Edgar Wallace mystery about a killer in a black cloak and hood and a family treasure. With Joachim Fuchsberger, Dieter Borsche, Eddi Arent, Werner Peters, and Klaus Kinski as Thomas, the butler. It was released to TV in the US.

BLACK ALLEY CATS

(SW, 1972) D: John Hayes S: Joseph Drury P: John Munchkin

Some private-school girls (two black, two white) want revenge for a rape attack by a gang. They take kung-fu lessons, learn to shoot, and wear masks and black-cat logos on their jackets. "The Alley Cats" rob corrupt businessmen and make everyone at a rich people's party strip (including Uschi Digart). They also attack and strip the new Jamaican student in the showers. She doesn't mind much and soon joins them. Marsha Jordon plays a lesbian who seduces her student babysitter while her rapist/doctor husband takes pictures. They are punished too, of course.

THE BLACK ARROW

(RCA, 1984) D: John Hough S/P: Harry Alan Towers US/UK/Spain (La Flecha Negra)

Stephan Chase and Georgia Slowe star in an adventure based on a novel by Robert Louis Stevenson. With Oliver Reed as the landowner villain, Fernando Rey, and Donald Pleasence. (The story had also been filmed in 1948 with Louis Hayward.) It debuted on the Disney Channel but was a theatrical release in Europe. Towers was making movies for Playboy (Frank and I, Black Venus, Christina) and Disney at the same time.

BLACKBEARD'S GHOST

(Disney, 1967) D: Robert Stevenson
S: Bill Walsh P: Walt Disney

Peter Ustinov is the friendly ghost of a cursed 18th-century pirate who helps a modern-day college track team coach (Dean Jones) on the Carolina coast. He also saves an inn run by Elsa Lanchester from gangsters. This typical Disney fantasy/comedy features Suzanne Pleshette, Richard Deacon, silent-film star Betty Bronson, and Alan Carney as a bartender.

BLACK BELT

(New Horizons, 1992) D/S: Charles Phillip Moore
P: Cirio H. Santiago

Don "the Dragon" Wilson is an ex-cop who uses martial arts to protect a singer (Diedre Imershein) from a psycho Nam-vet serial killer (Mathias Hues). With Richard Beymer as a crooked record producer, Maria M. Ruiz, Brad Hefton, Ernest Simmons, and many real martial-arts fighters as bad guys. Roger Corman, who started Wilson's acting career with the Bloodfist series, was the executive producer. It was later remade as Angel of Destruction. Blackbelt II: Fatal Force (New Horizons, 1993) stars Blake Bahner.

BLACK BELT JONES

(Warner, 1974) D: Robert Clouse S: Oscar Williams P: Fred Weintraub, Paul Heller

"Black Belt" Jones (Jim Kelly) fights the Mafia to protect his martial-arts school in Watts. Gloria Hendry (Live and Let Die) is a fighter too, in this PG feature. With Scatman Crothers and Eric Laneuville. There's a big battle in a car wash at the end. By the makers of Enter the Dragon, which Kelly had also been in. Music by Dennis Coffey.

BLACK BIKERS FROM HELL = BLACK ANGELS

BLACK BRIGADE

(1969) D: George McGowan S/P: Aaron Spelling
S: David H. Kidd P: Danny Thomas (Carter's Army)

This ABC-TV movie is about a redneck army captain from the South (Stephen Boyd) put in charge of black troops in 1944 on the road to Berlin. With Richard Pryor, Billy Dee Williams, Rosie Grier, Moses Gunn, Robert Hooks, Glyn Turman, and Paul Stewart. Susan Oliver is credited with "TVs first interracial kiss" (if you don't include Star Trek).

BLACK CAESAR

(Orion, 1973) D/S/P: Larry Cohen

This was Cohen's first film after The Housewife. Fred Williamson is at his best as Tommy Gibbs, a shoeshine boy who grows up to beat the Italian mob. The AIP hit includes Gloria Hendry, D'Urville Martin as the (fake) Reverend Rufus, Julius W. Harris, Don Pedro Colley, James Dixon, Val Avery, and Art Lund as the racist cop who ends up having to shine Gibbs' shoes while singing "Mammy" in blackface. The amazing ending was shot on the streets of New York, with Gibbs being gunned down in front of Tiffany's. The music is by James Brown ("Down and Out in New York City"), Fred Wesley, and Lyn Collins and is on the Polydor soundtrack. Hell Up in Harlem is the sequel (1973). With makeup FX by Rick Baker.

BLACK CARRION

(1984) D: John Hough S: Don Houghton UK

A satanic 60s rock band in a castle keep playing "Shakin' All Over." Season Hubley and Leigh Lawson are in this Hammer TV movie, shown on Fox Mystery Theater.

THE BLACK CAT

(Rhino, 1980) D/S: Lucio Fulci S: Sergio Salvati
P: Biagio Proietti Italy (Il Gatto Nero)

Fulci fans used to his gory movies like Zombie and Gates of Hell were disappointed by this tamer effort, but it's pretty interesting. I can't think of a movie with more closeups of eyes. The widescreen image was cropped for video release, so sometimes when the edges are cut off all you see is the bridge of a person's nose! Mimsy Farmer, a blond 60s American teen star, in Europe ever since Barbet Schroeder's More (1969), plays an American photographer taking pictures in a crypt in a British village. Patrick Magee is Miles, a medium trying to contact the dead with electrical equipment. A lot of things happen that make no sense, but Miles' mysterious black cat seems to be causing various violent deaths. He tells the cat, "We need each other. We're bound together by hatred!" David Warbeck is a Scotland Yard inspector on a bike. Farmer is asked to photograph dead people and is attacked by bats. Magee drugs the cat and tries to hang it. It all ends with the familiar Poe cat-in-the-wall scene. This is one strange movie (it was filmed in Rome and England), and Magee and Farmer are better than Fulci deserves. With Dagmar Lassander. The music is by Pino Donaggio.

BLACK CAT

(1990) D/S: Luigi Cozzi Italy
(Edgar Allan Poe's Black Cat)

Here's another horror movie about making a horror movie, full of Mario Bava/ Dario Argento movie references that fans will enjoy and lots of shock effects. An early line is: "That man is no director. He's a butcher!" Ann (Florence Guerin) is a pregnant actress whose husband, Mark, directs "spaghetti horror" movies. Another actress (Caroline Munro) lives with the screenwriter. Together they discuss Argento's Suspiria and plan to make Out of the Depths, about the witch Livana ("the third mother"), who shows up in various disguises to kill and manipulate. Brett Halsey appears as a mean, wheelchair-bound producer in a haunted house. There are lots of confusing dream sequences and guts from a TV. Black cats are frequently shown to justify the title, lightning strikes a lot, and part of "Radar Love" is heard. The hard-to-believe cosmic Cozzi ending involves control of time and space (and 2001). With Urbano Barbarini and Michele Soavi. From 21st Century.

BLACK CAT

(VSOM, 1991) D/P: Stephen Shin Hong Kong

This is basically an uncredited remake of the French film La Femme Nikita. Like that very influential hit, it starts out really violent, spends time as a love story, then gets back to some outrageous action. Jade Leung stars as the young, harmonica-playing criminal who has a computer chip (called "the Black Cat") implanted in her head and becomes a government assassin in Hong Kong and eventually in Canada and Japan. Simon Yam is the CIA trainer. The tape is (badly) dubbed. A laserdisc version has multiple soundtracks (in English, Mandarin, and Cantonese). Black Cat II (also with Leung) followed. This is better than the American version (Point of No Return).

BLACK CHARIOT

(1971) D/S/P: Robert L. Goodwin

Bernie Casey joins a Black Panther-type group, but they're betrayed by a member. This was promoted as "the first all-black feature" (it wasn't). Goodwin, a TV screenwriter, raised money door to door in LA, shot it partially on videotape, and released it himself.

BLACK CLUE = THE BEAST MUST DIE

BLACK COBRA

(Video Gems, 1976) D/S: "Joe D'Amato"/ Aristide Massaccesi Italy (Eva Nero; Erotic Eva)

Judas, a rich playboy in Honk Kong (Jack Palance), is obsessed with snakes. He takes in Eva (Laura Gemser), who dances topless with cobras at a nightclub. The plot involves murders for money and features nudity (of course) and lesbian scenes. It was shot on location around Hong Kong. With Gabrielle Tinti. The uncut version runs 98 minutes.

BLACK COBRA

(Southgate, 1986) D: Stelvio Massi S: Danilo Massi P: Luciano Appignani Italy

Fred Williamson is a New York City police detective who shoots it out with a gang of psycho bikers (led by a Schwarzenegger clone) and saves a witness (Eva Grimaldi). With Sabrina Siani as the police chief's daughter who is kidnapped. The title and theme were borrowed from Stallone's Cobra, and it was followed by three sequels.

BLACK CUE: See THE BARON

BLACK DEVIL DOLL FROM HELL

(Budget, 1984) D/S/P/M: Chester Novell Turner

Here's a hard-to-believe, low-budget, homemade film with an all-black cast. A churchgoing lady (Shirley L. Jones) is compelled to buy a doll at a magic shop. The possessed doll is actually a Jerry Mahoney mannequin (the kind you used to be able to buy) in blackface and a Rasta wig. The big-eyed doll watches the woman shower and soon becomes her secret lover, growling, "Beg for it, bitch!" Long sequences show the doll grunting and thrusting on top of her. She throws away her Bible, the doll leaves, and she picks up guys at discos and bars, but they just don't measure up. Do-it-all Turner also performs the (not bad) rock-and-roll theme song. If it sounds stupid, offensive, hateful, and crude, it is, but I swear that some of the doll's dialogue was copied in Child's Play. The tape runs 70 minutes (including 7 minutes of opening credits!).

THE BLACK DOLL

(1938) D: Otis Garrett S: Harold Buckley P: Irving Starr

A rich, corrupt businessman and several other characters are murdered. A Mexican voodoo doll is left with each body. The mystery takes place in an old, dark house by the sea, complete with secret tunnels. Donald Woods stars as a detective, and Edgar Kennedy is the irritating comic-relief sheriff. With Nan Grey, Holmes Herbert, and William Lundigan. Phil Karlson was the assistant director of this 66-minute film, the second in a series of seven Universal "Crime Club" B-movie mysteries based on stories from pulp magazines.

THE BLACK DUKE

(1963) D: Pino Mercanti S: Mario Amendola P: Tulio Bruschi Italy/Spain (Il Duco Nero)

Cameron Mitchell plays the Italian Renaissance military conqueror and ladies' man Cesare Borgia. Caterina Sforza (Gloria Millan) tries to have him destroyed by sending spies and women to poison him. It was one of several Italian historical costume movies Mitchell starred in during the 60s.

BLACK EAGLE

(Imperial, 1988) D: Eric Karson S: A. E. Peters P: Shimon Arama

In a spy drama with martial arts, hero Sho Koshugi goes to Malta to recover a secret laser device from a downed American plane. Jean-Claude Van Damme is the unstoppable Soviet villain. With Bolo Yeung and Kane and Shane Koshugi.

BLACK ELIMINATOR: See DEATH DIMENSION

BLACK EMANUELLE

(1975) D/S: "Albert Thomas"/Alberto Albertini Italy (Emanuelle in Africa)

Laura Gemser, in the first of a long series of "black Emanuelle" movies, is a photographer in Africa. She has dream sex with natives, sleepwalks in the nude, and becomes involved with Karin Schubert (who later did porno) and her boyfriend. The two female stars returned in Emmanuelle Around the World. There's also the unrelated Black Emanuelle, White Emanuelle, with Louisa Longo. "Thomas"/Albertini also made Black Emanuelle 2 (with Sharon Lesley) and Yellow Emanuelle (with Chai Lee). Gemser was in Emanuelle in Bangkok next.

BLACK EVIL = GANJA AND HESS (cut version)

BLACK EYE

(1974) D: Jack Arnold S: Mark Haggard P: Pat Rooney

Fred Williamson is Shep Stone, a suspended California police detective turned private eye. He has to deal with a drug ring, porno movie producers, Jesus freaks, and murder. Teresa Graves (the star of the ABC-TV series Get Christie Love) is his bisexual girlfriend. With Richard Anderson, Rosemary Forsyth, Richard X. Slattery, and Bret Morrison (radio's "the Shadow"). Arnold also directed Williamson in Boss.

BLACK FORCE: See GANG WARS

BLACK FORCE II: See MAN ON THE RUN

BLACK GAUNTLET: See BLACK STARLET

THE BLACK GESTAPO

(Unicorn, 1975) D/S/A: Lee Frost D/P/A: Wes Bishop (Ghetto Warriors)

This absurd, nasty movie has almost the same plot as Bucktown (from the same year). "The Black People's Party of Watts" is organized to fight white gangsters who sell drugs, take protection money, and rape local women. Gangsters are beaten, shot, thrown out of windows, and, in one case, castrated. The vigilante leader, Colonel Kojan (Charles P. Robinson), goes too far when he starts acting like the gangsters and his men start goosestepping ("Sieg heil" is dubbed in). Hero Rod Perry stops him. The directors play drug-dealer gangsters. With adult-movie regulars Dona Desmond and Uschi Digart as hookers. It opens with German Gestapo footage and includes some good microphone shadows. Frost did Race with the Devil (starring Peter Fonda) and The Thing with Two Heads (with Bruce Dern) next.

THE BLACK GLOVE

(1954) D: Terence Fisher S: Ernest Borneman P: Michael Carreras UK (Face the Music)

This Hammer film was released by Lippert in the US. Alex Nicol stars as an American trumpet player who tries to find the killer of a British singer.

THE BLACK GODFATHER

(Magnum, 1974) D/S/P: John Evans

Rod Perry, as a black gangster, goes against the white mob. With heroin, kidnapping, and death by meat cleaver. Evans returned with Blackjack (1978). Perry went on to star in Black Gestapo. From Cinemation.

BLACK GUNN

(1972) D: Robert Hartford-Davis S: Robert Shearer P: John Heyman, Norman Priggen

Jim Brown stars as an LA nightclub owner out for revenge after the drug-dealing mob kills his revolutionary Nam-vet brother. He uses ex-cons and vets with guns to wipe out the gangsters. With Martin Landau as a used-car salesman who smuggles drugs in tires, Brenda Sykes (from Ozzie's Girls), Luciana Paluzzi, Keefe Brasselle, William Campbell, Bruce Glover, Stephen McNally, Bernie Casey, Gary Conway, Jeannie Bell (from Playboy), and some priceless haircuts. Brown starred in Slaughter the same year.

BLACKHAWK

(Stokey, 1952) D: Spencer Gordon Bennet, Fred F. Sears S: George Plympton, Royal K. Cole, Sherman L. Lowe

The year Eisenhower ran against Stevenson was the peak year for anti-Communist movies. This 15-chapter Columbia serial starring former Superman Kirk Alyn got the message across to kids. It was based on Will Eisner's comics, which were originally about a group of seven men fighting the Axis during WWII. The gadgets in the serial include a ray gun and a disintegrator, and the hero has a hawk's-head insignia on his military jacket. Carol Forman, who had also played evil women in The Black Widow (1947), Brick Bradford (1947), and Superman (1948), is Laska. With John Crawford.

BLACK HEART

(1994) D/S/C/E: Jim Exton

Two young guys hunt for a blood drinking serial rapist murderer (Don McCarrens, a security guard in real life) who does his thing in graveyards and lives in a van. A young woman (Shelli Wallace) invites the homeless killer into her home, and more deaths results. The slow moving movie (filmed in Memphis) has characters washing their faces, shaving, and just sitting around for long stretches of time, and Wallace (who has large breasts) takes a shower. The original punk music is instumentals and songs. The director is based in Durham, North Carolina.

BLACK HEAT: See THE MURDER GANG

BLACK HOOKER: See BLACK MAMA

BLACK ICE

(Prism, 1992) D: Neil Fearnley S: Arme Olson, John Alan Schwartz P: Vonnie von Helmolt Canada

Joanna Pacula, on the run from a killer government agent (Michael Ironside), finds reluctant help from a cabdriver/writer (Michael Nouri) with a ponytail. It's a snowbound road/murder movie with one sex scene featuring Pacula's body double. The unrated version (I saw the R) must be an improvement. It was shot in Manitoba.

BLACKJACK

(1971) D/P: William T. Naud S/P/A: Dick Gautier (Wild in the Sky; God Bless the Bomb)

Three anti-war activists hijack a B-52 bomber in a PG-rated comic adventure from AIP. It ends with Fort Knox being nuked. George Stanford Brown stars with Brandon De Wilde (in his last role), James Daly as the president, Keenan Wynn as a general, Tim O'Connor, Robert Lansing, Dub Taylor, Bernie Kopell, and Joseph Turkel.

BLACK JACK

(VSOM, 1981) D/S/A: Max Boulois Spain

Peter Cushing receives top billing in this story about a casino robbery. Claudine Auger, Hugo Stiglitz, and Fernando Sancho are also in it, but it was barely released outside Spain.

BLACK LIZARD

(Cinevision, 1968) D: Kinji Fukasaku
S: Masashige Narusawa Japan (Kurotokage)

A male actor (Akihiro Maruyama) stars as "the Black Lizard," a female jewel thief. She is a master of disguises (and wigs) and has an island hideaway where she collects "dolls" (naked people who are supposed to be dead). A detective tries to rescue the kidnapped Eurasian daughter of a jewel merchant. Black Lizard includes decapitated heads, a bloody hand cut off, a death couch, a midget, and some wild nightclub scenes. It's based on a play by the controversial writer Yukio Mishima (Paul Schrader later made a movie about him), who is also in the cast. This very 60s and uniquely Japanese movie from Shochiku had a successful run in Paris in 1984 and was revived in New York a few years later. Maruyama is a well-known transvestite entertainer in Japan. Fukasaku later made more mainstream science-fiction/disaster features like The Green Slime, Message from Space, and Virus. The tape is letterboxed.

BLACK LOLITA

(1974) D/S/P: Stephen Gibson
S: Mike Brown (Bad Lolita)

In the only all-black 3-D film, Yoland Love is "foxier than Foxy Brown, deadlier than Cleopatra Jones." Love (Miss Black Galaxy) stars as a singer who returns home, puts together a team of fighters, and goes after gangsters. The shootout ending takes place on a merry-go-round.

BLACK LOVE

(1972) D/P: Herschell Gordon Lewis

Lewis shot this X-rated, soft-core obscurity in Chicago. It was made in three days. He made his last hillbilly and horror movies (Year of the Yahoo and The Gore Gore Girls) the same year, retired from filmmaking, and became wealthy writing mail-order books about advertising techniques.

BLACK MAGIC

(VLS, 1949) D/P: Gregory Ratoff D/A: Orson Welles S: Charles Bennett, Richard Schlayer

Welles stars as the 18th-century hypnotist Cagliostro in a feature based on a work by Alexandre Dumas père. Cagliostro, a Gypsy whose parents have been hanged, becomes a carnival magician, learns hypnotism from Dr. Mesmer, and uses his new powers for a complicated revenge against members of the court of Louis XV in France. With Nancy Guild as Marie Antoinette, Valentina Cortese, Harriet White Medin, and Akim Tamiroff as a Gypsy. Barry Kroeger, as Dumas, tells the story in flashback to his son, Alexandre Dumas fils (Raymond Burr!). Welles directed some sequences without credit. Screenwriter Bennett had written many Hitchcock classics. The Edward Small production was filmed in Italy (just before Welles appeared in The Third Man) and was released by United Artists.

BLACK MAGIC

(SB, 1977) D: Ho Meng-Hua
P: Run-Me Shaw Hong Kong

A magician (Lo Lieh, the Indonesian-born star of Five Fingers of Death, The Stranger and the Gunfighter, and other films) makes a lot of money casting love spells for people but still lives in a remote shack. Spells require a finger and some teeth hidden under a bed, or prayers over a burning head. A man wants a rich woman who won't give him the time of day. He has a spell put on her. She has a spell put on a construction worker. She has to strip in a graveyard, help rob a grave, and provide some of her hair, blood, and milk. The man has to drink drool from a corpse's mouth. A bride finds worms under her skin. The magician decides he wants the woman himself. It's hard to keep track of who has spells on whom, but this tape never gets boring. A good magician (who looks like a Chinese Wilford Brimley) fights the bad magician at the construction site during the special-effects-filled ending. Filmed in Singapore. Star Ti Lung returned in the even more bizarre Black Magic II (known in the US as Revenge of the Zombies and Black Magic III (or Queen of the Zombies) by the same director. Ho Menga also made The Flying Guillotine (1975) and Goliathon (1977). The Shaw brothers later produced a similar black-magic feature, Seeding of a Ghost (1984), with even more blood, nudity, and maggots.

BLACK MAGIC

(MCA, 1992) D/S: Daniel Tapitz P: Dan Wigutow

Judge Reinhold is haunted by a dead cousin (Anthony LaPaglia) in a South Carolina town. He falls for the witch his cousin wants him to kill (Rachel Ward). Brion James is also featured in this PG-13 black comedy.

BLACK MAGIC TERROR: See QUEEN OF BLACK MAGIC

BLACK MAGIC WOMAN

(Vidmark, 1991) D/P: Deryn Warren
S: Gerry Daly P: Marc Springer

Mark Hamill stars in this boring video as a suburban art-gallery owner who needs an exorcism after a jealous witch casts a spell on him. A headless chicken shows up in his bed, he becomes impotent, and the already sick-looking actor (he had facial surgery after a car accident in real life) gets worse, thanks to makeup. Only the Hispanic characters understand what's happening, but they can't protect even themselves. Apollonia (Kotero) and Amanda Wyss costar, and Santana's original version of the title song is heard. With exploitation staples like sex in the shower and death by boiling water. After this, Hamill was in movies directed by Screaming Mad George and Jesús Franco!

BLACKMAIL

(Republic, 1929) D/S: Alfred Hitchcock S: Benn W. Levy, Charles Bennett P: John Maxwell UK

Blackmail was the first feature-length sound film made in England. When production began (at Gainsborough Pictures) it was a silent film. Some scenes were reshot, but the characters don't speak until the second reel. (The first all-talking British film was The Clue of the New Pin, an Edgar Wallace adaptation released the same year.) The star, Czech actress Anny Ondra, was the first performer in films ever to be dubbed (by English actress Joan Barry, who starred in Hitchcock's Rich and Strange in 1932). The original posters for Blackmail said, "See it and hear it—our mother tongue as it should be spoken" (a dig at American sound films). Her boyfriend is the detective assigned to the case. There's an exciting chase in the British Museum, and the ending should satisfy modern viewers. Hitchcock had already directed nine features and would stay in England another ten years. You can spot him reading a newspaper on the subway. With Sara Allgood and Donald Calthrop. The Criterion laserdisc version includes an alternate audiotrack (featuring Charles Bennett, the then 92-year-old screenwriter) and a rare screen test.

BLACKMAIL

(Paramount, 1991) D: Ruben Preuss
S: Miguel Tejada-Flores

Dale Midkiff and Beth Toussaint are drifters who blackmail a gangster's wife (Susan Blakely). Mac Davis is a detective and John Saxon is the gangster, in this made-for-cable feature.

BLACK MAMA, WHITE MAMA

(1972) D/P: Eddie Romero S: H. R. Christian P: John Ashley (Women in Chains)

This AIP release and Savage Sister were the last of many John Ashley films made in the Philippines. It was from a story by Jonathan Demme, who copied it from The Defiant Ones. Pam Grier, as a hooker, and Margaret Markov, as a revolutionary, escape from prison disguised as nuns. There are gun battles, cat fights, and a shower scene. Sid Haig is a bounty hunter in cowboy clothes. With Lynn Borden (who was a regular on the TV series Hazel) and Eddie Garcia as a drug-dealing pimp. The female stars returned in The Arena.

BLACK MOON

(Nightmare, 1975) D/S/P: Louis Malle S: Ghislain Uhry, Joyce Buñuel France/W. Germany

Cathryn Harrison (Rex's daughter) flees the future, where men and women are at war against each other, to a fantasy world with talking animals and unicorns. Ex-Warhol star Joe Dallesandro and Alexandra Stewart (as brother and sister) are there too. Black Moon was shot in English around the director's own farm, with striking cinematography by Sven Nykvist. It was a flop, so Malle moved to America and made Pretty Baby (1978) and Atlantic City (1980).

BLACK MOON RISING

(Starmaker, 1985) D: Harvey Cokliss S: John Carpenter, Desmond Nakano P: Joel B. Michaels, Douglas Curtis

They took the title from a great song, but the movie doesn't come close. Killers are after government agent Tommy Lee Jones (in a jet-powered car). There's humor along with the action, and the cast includes Linda Hamilton (who steals the car for villain Robert Vaughn), Richard Jaeckel, Lee Ving, Bubba Smith, Dan Shor, William Sanderson, Keenan Wynn, Nick Cassavetes, and Don Opper. John Carpenter was executive producer of the New World release.

BLACK OAK CONSPIRACY

(Charter, 1977) D: Bob Kelljan S/P/A: Jesse Vint S: Hugh Smith P: Tom Clark

Jesse Vint has to fight the crooked sheriff in this New World drive-in movie. Karen Carlson, Albert Salmi, and Seymour Cassel costar.

BLACKOUT

(1955) D: Terence Fisher S: Richard Landau P: Michael Carreras UK (Murder by Proxy)

Dane Clark stars as an American war vet who recovers from a night of heavy drinking and thinks he might have murdered somebody. With Belinda Lee and Alfie Bass. This film was released in America by Lippert.

BLACKOUT

(1978) D: Eddy Matalon S: John C. Saxton P: Ivan Reitman Canada/France

A group of criminals terrorize people in an apartment building during the 1977 New York City blackout. With Jim Mitchum, Robert Carradine, Belinda Montgomery, June Allyson, Ray Milland, and Jean-Pierre Aumont.

BLACKOUT

(Fox Hills, 1985) D: Douglas Hickox S: David Ambrose P: Richard Parks, Richard Smith, Les Alexander

After a car crash, Keith Carradine, suffering from amnesia, emerges from plastic surgery and marries Kathleen Quinlan. Richard Widmark thinks he's the masked mass murderer who killed his family. With Michael Beck. This HBO movie is set in Seattle but was filmed in Vancouver.

BLACKOUT

(Magnum, 1988) D/P: Doug Adams S/P: Joseph Stephano (The Attic)

Gail O'Grady stars as a repressed virgin who returns to her family's old house and suffers from nightmares. Carol Lynley (who appears topless) is her unloving mother, and the father is missing. With Joanna Miles and death by screwdriver. The video box plays up the fact that Stephano wrote the screenplay for Hitchcock's Psycho.

BLACKOUT

(1992) D/P: Paulita Sedgwick S: Damian Wong UK

Three young people go to the "Red Zone" of a futuristic London in this low-budget underground feature. Kali stars as a blond rocker, with Guy Beckett as her boyfriend and Abi Manox as his sister. With Ultra Violet, Eddie Tudor-Pole, and Angel Sedgewick.

BLACK OUT: THE MOMENT OF TERROR = GANJA AND HESS (cut version)

BLACK PARACHUTE

(1944) D: Lew Landers S: Clarence Upson Young P: Jack Fier

William Smith and Carol Speed in Black Samson.

John Carradine stars as a Nazi general occupying an unnamed European country. Hero Larry Parks is an American who disguises himself as a Nazi colonel. Osa Massen is a Nazi spy, and Jonathan Hale is the deposed king. Eight Landers pictures were released in 1944.

BLACK RAINBOW

(Media, 1989) D/S: Mike Hodges P: John Quested, Geoffrey Helman UK

Rosanna Arquette, part of a phony traveling clairvoyant act with her drunken father (Jason Robards), discovers she can actually predict deaths. Tom Hulce is a reporter who gets involved. It was filmed in and set in North Carolina, complete with kudzu weeds. The US debut for this interesting feature was on Showtime.

THE BLACK ROOM

(Vestron, 1981) D: Elly Kennedy D/S: Norman Thaddeus Vane P: Aaron C. Butler

Stephan Knight and Cassandra Gaviola, as a brother and sister with a Beverly Hills house, lure people for sex games in a special back room, then drain their blood with an elaborate pump system. The blood spurts all over. The voyeur brother watches sex, and there are S&M scenes. It's not very good but is fascinating in a cheap-movie way. With the model from the cover of the Jefferson Starship Spitfire LP and Linnea Quigley in a small role.

THE BLACK ROSE

(1950) D: Henry Hathaway S: Talbot Jennings P: Louis D. Leighton

Orson Welles plays Bayon, a 13th-century Mongol conqueror, in this 2-hour Technicolor epic from 20th Century-Fox. Tyrone Power stars as a Saxon, with Cecile Aubry as "the Black Rose," Michael Rennie, Jack Hawkins, Herbert Lom, Finlay Currie, James Robertson Justice, Laurence Harvey, and Torin Thatcher. It was filmed by cinematographer Jack Cardiff in England and North Africa.

BLACK ROSES

(Imperial, 1988) D/P/E: John Fasano S: Cindy Sorrell P: Ray Van Dorn

Sal Vivano leads the heavy-metal group Black Roses. They arrive in a small town to play, and parents argue over whether it's a bad idea or not. Since the band has made a deal with the Devil, they turn kids into ugly zombie parent-killers. With Ken Swofford, Carmine Appice (from Vanilla Fudge), and Julie Adams. It was an SGE production that came in a 3-D video box. Various artists are featured on the Enigma soundtrack. Fasano had previously directed Rock and Roll Nightmare.

BLACK SAMSON

(1973) D: Charles Bail S: Warren Hamilton Jr. P: Daniel B. Cady

A bearded LA nightclub owner named Samson (Rockne Tarkington) has a pet lion and uses kung fu to fight white drug-dealing gangsters (like William Smith) and drug pushers. With Connie Strickland, Carol Speed, and John Alderman. The music is by Allen Toussaint. By the director of Cleopatra and the Casino of Gold. From Warner.

BLACK SAMURAI

(Continental, 1977) D: Al Adamson S: B. Radick P: Barbara Holden (Black Terminator)

Jim Kelly is a rich, James Bond-type playboy, Nam vet, and government agent for D.R.A.G.O.N. His girlfriend (Essie Lin Chia) is kidnapped by "the Warlocks," drug-dealing, women-selling, voodoo-worshipping killers. Felix Silla (Cousin Itt on The Addams Family) is a midget Warlock. With Marilyn Joi and D'Urville Martin. It takes place in Hong Kong and Haiti. Kelly returned in Death Dimension, also directed by Adamson.

BLACK SHAMPOO

(VCI, 1976) D/S: Greydon Clark S/P: Alvin L. Fast

John Daniels stars as swinging hairdresser Jonathan Knight, who fights the mob. There's lots of R-rated sex, a pool cue goes through a man, there's death by chainsaw, and a gay assistant is beaten up. With Tanya Boyd. It's blaxploitation at its worst, from the director of Satan's Cheerleaders. From Dimension.

BLACK SISTER'S REVENGE

(Unicorn, 1975) D/S/P: Jamaa Fanaka (Emma Mae)

Jerri Hayes stars as a short, southern country cousin who moves in with some suburban LA relatives. She's laughed at and called "that ol' hamhock broad," but she can fight ("C'mon, you doodlebug!") and ends up robbing a bank to raise bail for a guy on "fender benders" (reds) she likes. This entertaining piece of the 70s is loaded with afros, bell bottoms, good funky music, corrupt cops, a cat fight, lots of swearing, and a character named Big Daddy with a rifle and a turban who gives a speech about the evil white man. It was partially backed by AFI. Fanaka went on to make more outrageous movies, including the Penitentiary series.

THE BLACK SIX

(Unicorn, 1974) D/P: Matt Cimber/ Matteo Ottaviano P: George Theakos

"Six times tougher than Shaft! Six times rougher than Superfly!" If you believe that ad line, you deserve to watch Jean Washington, Mercury Morris, "Mean" Joe Greene, and other NFL stars as friendly Nam-vet bikers avenging a brother's death in a southern city. They fight bad white bikers at the end, which is followed by the message, "Honky, look out!" From Cinemation.

BLACKSNAKE!

(1973) D/S/P: Russ Meyer S: Len Neubauer (Sweet Suzy; Dutchess of Doom)

After making films at 20th Century-Fox, Meyer filmed his only major flop in Barbados. Meyer himself seems to think it failed because it's the only feature he made with women with normal-sized breasts. Critics hated this story of a 19th-century slave revolt in the Caribbean and accused Meyer of trying to capitalize on the black-action craze. It has very little sex or nudity, but it has his great fast editing and lots of violence (whippings, a machete attack, a crucifixion). After all that, the movie has a comical happy ending. Anouska Hempel stars, and David Warbeck (usually in Italian horror movies) plays two roles. With Bernard Boston, Percy Herbert, and Dave Prowse (who played Darth Vader in the Star Wars series). When released in theaters, Blacksnake! included a trailer for Viva Foxy, starring Edy Williams, a film that was never made. The version I saw was in French.

BLACK STARLET

(Video Gems, 1974) D: Chris Munger S: Howard Ostroff P: Daniel B. Cady (Black Gauntlet)

Juanita Brown (veteran of movies like Caged Heat and Foxy Brown) stars as Clara, who leaves Gary, Indiana, for Hollywood. She's robbed, arrested, lied to, used, and abused. She sleeps with a producer and even stars in a movie. With Rockne Tarkington, Nicolas Worth, and Al "Grandpa" Lewis (!) as Sam Sharp, a dry cleaner.

BLACK STREET FIGHTER

(1974) D: Timothy Galfas S: Tim Kelly P: Peter S. Traynor, William Larrabure (Black Fist)

Richard Lawson stars as Leroy Fist, a street-fighter in Los Angeles who starts working for mobsters. Philip Michael Thomas costars, with Dabney Coleman as a crooked cop and Anazette Chase.

BLACK SUNDAY

(Paramount, 1977) D: John Frankenheimer S: Ernest Lehman, Kenneth Ross, Ivan Moffat P: Robert Evans

Terrorists plot to blow up the president during the Super Bowl game (Cowboys vs. Steelers), in this superior disaster thriller based on a novel by Thomas Harris (author of The Silence of the Lambs). Robert Shaw is the Israeli-commando hero, and Bruce Dern is the former Nam-POW terrorist in the Goodyear blimp. With Marthe Keller as a Palestinian terrorist, Stephen Keats, Fritz Weaver, Michael V. Gazzo, and William Daniels. Don't confuse it with the classic 1960 Mario Bava horror movie of the same name.

BLACK TRASH: See SOUL PATROL

BLACK VALOR: See SAVAGE!

BLACK VAMPIRE = GANJA AND HESS (cut version)

A BLACK VEIL FOR LISA

(1968) D/S: Massimo Dallamano S: Petri and Belli Italy (La Morte Non ha Sexo)

John Mills stars as a narcotics cop with a beautiful, cheating, ex-criminal wife (Luciana Paluzzi). He hires a hitman (Robert Hoffmann) to kill her, and the anticipated double cross occurs.

BLACK VENGEANCE: See HEARTBREAK HOTEL

BLACK VENUS

(MGM, 1983) D: Claude Mulot S/P: Harry Alan Towers

Former Miss Bahamas Josephine Jacqueline Jones stars as Venus in a 19th-century erotic tale made for Playboy-TV. Most of it is a flashback about a guy obsessed with a statue of Venus. With Mandy Rice-Davies as the madam, Karin Schubert (also in Towers' Christina) as a lesbian, Florence Guerin, Helga Line, and red-haired Monique Gabrielle fucking a pirate. Mulot also made the bizarre Blood Rose (1969).

BLACK WATER

(Academy, 1994) D/S: Nicholas Gessner S: Laird Koening P: Bernard Lang, Peter-Christian Fueter

Julian Sands is a British tax attorney who is blamed for a murder while fishing in Tennessee. Stacey Dash (Mo' Money) is the black teen hitchhiker he picks up. With Rod Steiger as a judge, Ned Beatty, Ed Lauter, Denise Crosby, Brian McNamara, and Johnny Cash in a cameo as himself. It was based on a novel by Hans Werner Kettenbach and made by the director of The Little Girl Who Lives Down the Lane.

BLACK WEREWOLF = THE BEAST MUST DIE

THE BLACK WIDOW

(Stokey, 1947) D: Spencer Gordon Bennett, Fred C. Bannon S: Franklyn Adreon, Basil Dickey, Jesse Duffy, Sol Shore

A 13-chapter Republic serial starring Bruce Edwards as hero Steve Colt and Carol Foreman as the evil, sexy (and supposedly Asian) Sombra, "the Black Widow." She wears a great-looking slit skirt with a jewel-encrusted front. A "matter transmitter" is the device everybody wants. With Theodore Gottlieb (later known as Brother Theodore) as Hitomu and Virginia Lindley. The 1966 feature version was Sombra, the Spider Woman.

THE BLACK WIDOW

(1951) D: Vernon Sewell S: Alan McKinnon P: Anthony Hines UK

Christine Norden stars in this early Hammer feature, based on a BBC-TV serial. It's only 62 minutes long and costars Robert Ayers. Sewell made Ghost Ship the next year.

BLACK WIDOW

(Fox, 1987) D: Bob Rafelson S: Ronald Bass P: Harold Schneider

Justice Department agent Debra Winger puts her life on the line and goes after rich, seductive Theresa Russell, who kills her husbands and always gets away with it. With Sami Frey, Nicol

Williamson, Terry O'Quinn, Dennis Hopper, Mary Woronov, Diane Ladd, John Heard, Rutanya Alda, Leo Rossi, James Hong, and David Mamet.

THE BLACK WINDMILL

(MCA, 1974) D/P: Don Siegel S: Leigh Vance UK

The young son of British agent Michael Caine is kidnapped and held for a ransom of diamonds. The agent discovers he can't even count on his own allies while on the trail of the kidnappers in London and Paris. With Donald Pleasence, Delphine Seyrig, John Vernon, Clive Revill, Space 1999's Catherine Schell, John Rhys-Davies, and Murray Brown. It's a Universal release.

BLADE IN THE DARK

(Lightning, 1982) D/P: Lamberto Bava
S: Elisa Briganti, Dardano Sacchetti Italy
(La Casa con la Scala nel Buio)

A composer (Andrea Occhipinti) working on a horror-movie score goes to an isolated, old, dark house to work. A phantom slasher kills in vicious ways similar to the murders in the film he's working on. Michelle Soavi (the assistant director) and Lara Naszinski costar in this shocking Dario Argento-inspired feature (with bad dubbing).

BLADE MASTER

(Media, 1982) D/S: "David Hills"/A. Massaccesi
P: John Newman (Ator, the Invincible)

Miles O'Keeffe saves Earth from a superbomb, fights a giant snake, and hang-glides. This Ator sequel features visible sunglasses and tire tracks and a senseless atomic explosion at the end. With Lisa Raines/Foster (star of the 1981 Fanny Hill), Chen Wong, and David Cain Haughton as Zor. New Line released it.

BLADE OF THE RIPPER

(Regal, Saturn, 1970) D: Sergio Martino S: Eduardo Brochero, Ernesto Gastaldi Italy/Spain (Lo Strano Vizio della Signora Wardh; The Next Victim; Next!)

Somebody is trying to drive Edwige Fenech mad, and she has nightmares about a slasher. With George Hilton, Alberto De Mendoza, and Ivan Rassimov. The video version, called The Next Victim, is missing most of the nudity and violence. It's set in Vienna.

BLADES

(Media, 1988) D/S: Thomas Rondinella
S/P: John P. Finegan S: William R. Pace

This Jaws parody features a possessed-killer power-mower at a golf course in Wildwood, New Jersey. The plot of the original Jaws is copied closely. From Troma.

BLAKE OF SCOTLAND YARD

(Stokey, 1937) D/S: Robert F. Hill
S: William Lord Wright

A 15-chapter Victory serial starring Ralph Byrd (better known as Dick Tracy) as Sir James Blake. The same director had made a 1927 serial version for Universal. A death-ray television is the futuristic weapon in the hands of "the Scorpion" (Lloyd Hughes). This was the last independent serial produced. The rest were all from three studios (Republic, Universal, and Columbia). A 70-minute condensed version is also available from Sinister.

BLAKE'S 7

(BFS series, 1978–81) UK

Six futuristic outcasts and a computer named Zen battle "the Federation." Gareth Thomas stars with Sally Knyvette. 26 volumes of the series (105 minutes each) have been released.

BLANK GENERATION

(1979) D/S: Ulli Lommel P: Roger Deutsch

When German actor/director Lommel came to America he hooked into the New York underground scene. Cocaine Cowboys and this punk-rock spy story were his first American projects. It wasn't released until it showed up in England in 1991. Poet/rocker Richard Hell and Carole Bouquet (from That Obscure Object of Desire) star, and Andy Warhol shows up. Not to be confused with Amos Poe's live-at-CBGB Blank Generation (1976).

BLANKMAN

(Columbia, 1994) D: Mike Binder S/A: Damon Wayans P: Eric Gold, Doc Erickson

Wayans is a nerdy inventor turned no-power superhero and David Alan Grier is his older brother partner. The two stars (both from the In Living Color show) fight the mob and look like Rat Pfink and Boo Boo from Ray Dennis Steckler's 60s Batman spoof. Robin Givens costars as a TV news reporter with Christopher Lawford, Jon Polito, and Jason Alexander. The PG-13 comedy is a Columbia release.

BLASTFIGHTER

(Vestron, 1984) D: "John Old Jr."/Lamberto Bava
S: Max Von Ryt, Luca Von Ryt Italy (First Blood)

Michael Sopkiw stars as an ex-con called Tiger who becomes a Rambo-type crime-fighter. With George Eastman and Valerie Blake.

BLAST OFF

(HBO, 1967) D: Don Sharp S: Dave Freeman
P: Harry Alan Towers (Those Fantastic Flying Fools)

It's a Victorian-era race to the moon based on Jules Verne (the same story as From the Earth to the Moon). Burl Ives is P. T. Barnum, and Troy Donahue, Gert Frobe, Daliah Lavi, and Hermione Gingold costar. This AIP film is one of several (all with Terry-Thomas) that followed Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines and The Great Race (both 1965).

BLAST-OFF GIRLS

(SW, 1967) D/S/P: Herschell Gordon Lewis

Attention: readers who are or were in bands should see this movie! It's a former lost classic about the rise and fall of the Big Blast, a teen garage band (played by a real, authentic, non-actor Chicago garage band, the Faded Blue) in Florida. Boojie Baker (Dan Conway) becomes their sleazy manager, and they have a hit called "Noise" (it's shown on the charts just after the Yardbirds). He provides new clothes, studio time, champagne, and women, but when the band rebels for lack of profits, he frames them on a pot bust. Then they go on TV high and sing "Go —— Yourself, My Friend." With Lewis regular Ray Sager as Boojie's assistant and Colonel Harlan Sanders (!), who shows up to offer fried chicken to the group for playing while little kids dance. The keyboard player sounds like Pigpen from the Grateful Dead! The ending is copied from the TV series The Monkees. Louise Downe was the assistant director. David Friedman later tackled the same topic with Bummer!

BLAST OF SILENCE

(1961) D/S/A: Allen Baron P/C: Merrill Brody

This fascinating, bleak tale about a paranoid hitman from Cleveland named Frank Bono was finally recognized at the 1991 Berlin Film Festival and went on to play the revival circuit. Frank arrives in New York City on Christmas Eve to kill a gangster. Everything is filmed on location in Harlem, on the Staten Island Ferry, in a Greenwich Village jazz club (where Dean Shelton sings a memorable song), and on streets filled with irritating holiday cheer. The distinctive voice of Lionel Stander provides (often unnecessary) narration throughout the film and begins by stating, "You were born with hate and anger built in. Took a slap on the backside to blast out the scream." With Molly McCarthy and Larry Tucker (Shock Corridor). Baron made another movie, Terror in the City (1963), starring Lee Grant, and directed many TV programs.

BLAZE STARR: THE ORIGINAL

(Blaze Video, 1960) D/P/A: Doris Wishman
S: Melvin Stanley (Blaze Starr Goes Nudist; Back to Nature; Nature Girl)

Real-life big-breasted stripper Starr plays an actress who infuriates her fiancé/agent (with a drawn-on mustache) by spending weekends at a nudist camp and missing "press functions." When dressed, she wears a pointy bra, gold lamé pants, and gold high heels. Camp highlights include nude checkers and archery, and a nude underwater swimming sequence. The funniest character is Andy, the camp director, who always wears swim trunks, drinks Cokes, and plays the accordion. He's played by Ralph Young (of Sandler and Young) and also sings the theme song backed by Doc Severinson and his band! This vintage nudist-colony movie (in bright Eastmancolor) was retitled to cash in on the biographical movie Blaze (1989). Blaze herself had a small role in the story of her involvement with Louisiana governor Earl Long (played by Paul Newman). It was a Disney feature!

BLAZING STEWARDESSES

(VidAmerica, Marathon, 1975) D: Al Adamson
S/P: Sam Sherman S: John D'Amato
(Texas Layover; Cathouse Callgirls; The Great Truck Robbery; Up Like a Shot)

Regina Carroll and two other stewardesses go to a dude ranch in this sex comedy/western. Yvonne De Carlo runs a whorehouse (and sings). With old-time stars Don "Red" Barry, Bob Livingston, and Jimmy and Harry Ritz. There's a masked villain and sex-with-an-inflatable-doll, but not much nudity. It was sort of a sequel to Naughty Stewardesses (1973). Like most movies from Independent International, it was released over the years with different titles to confuse people.

BLIND DATE

(Vestron, 1983) D/S/P: Nico Mastorakis
S: Fred C. Perry (Deadly Seduction)

Joseph Bottoms goes blind after seeing a murder in Athens. Keir Dullea is a doctor who can temporarily restore vision with a computer implant. This New Line film was shot in Greece. With Kirstie Alley, Marina Sirtis (from Star Trek: The Next Generation) as a hooker (topless), a pre-star Valeria Golino, James Daughton, and "introducing" Lana Clarkson (topless). The soundtrack by Stanley Myers is on Varese Sarabande. Not to be confused with the 1987 Kim Basinger movie from RCA.

BLIND FEAR

(Academy, 1989) D: Tom Berry S: Sergio Alteri
P: Pierre David, Franco Battista Canada

Shelley Hack is a blind employee at a deserted Maine lodge. Three killer gangsters (including Kim Coates) arrive. It's like Wait Until Dark with some new twists. With Jan Rubes.

BLINDFOLD: ACTS OF OBSESSION

(Libra, 1993) D/S: Lawrence Simeone P: Ronnie Hadar

Shannon Doherty, a big-deal, "difficult" TV teen in tabloid news at the time, stars in her first "erotic thriller." She's a bored, rich married woman who gets involved with her shrink (Judd Nelson). Shannon (who will never receive an acting award) gets naked in slo-mo sex scenes. We also get a confusing plot about a Halloween killer who uses blindfolds and handcuffs, complete with nightmares and flashbacks. With Kristian Alfonso, Drew Snyder, and Michael Woods. It was shot in Dallas. A cut version debuted on the USA Network, and the video is R or unrated.

BLIND FURY

(Columbia, 1989) D: Philip Noyce S: Charles Robert Carner P: Daniel Grodnik, Tim Matheson

A blind Nam-vet swordsman (Rutger Hauer) who was missing in action (and has flashbacks) has to protect a kid (Brandon Call) from gangsters on the road from Miami to Reno. Hauer is good, as usual, in this pretty exciting and funny gimmick-action movie, based on a script for the Japanese Zatoichi series by Ryoza Kashahara, and filmed in Australia. With Terry O'Quinn, Meg Foster, Lisa Blount, villains Noble Willingham, Nick Cassavetes, and Randall "Tex" Cobb, Harriet White Medin, and, in the best fight scene, Sho Koshogi. The Australian Noyce made Dead Calm the same year. Look for the original Zatoichi movies from Ocean video.

BLINDMAN

(1971) D: Fernando Baldi S/P/A: Tony Anthony S: Piero Anchisi, Vincenzo Cerami P: Saul Swimmer US/Italy

Tony Anthony is the philosophical hero Blindman, hired to deliver 50 mail-order brides (who have actually been sold into slavery and appear naked a lot). Ringo Starr is Candy, the overacting Mexican bandit who rapes and kills in what was intended to be a parody of Italian westerns. With Lloyd Batista and Magda Konopka. Shot in Spain, this was a hit practically everywhere but in the US (where it was released by 20th Century–Fox). It was a product of Allan Klein's Abcko company, which had also backed El Topo. Anthony later starred in the 3-D movies Comin' at Ya! (which reused the Blindman plot) and Treasure of the Four Crowns.

BLIND RAGE

(MGM, 1976) D: Efron C. Pinion S/A: Leo Fong S: Jerry O. Tirazona Philippines

D'Urville Martin stars with Leo Fong and Tony Ferrer in an action movie about five blind criminals who rob a bank. Fred Williamson, who usually had Martin in his films, shows up as CIA agent Jesse Chowder.

BLIND VISION

(Worldvision, 1990) D/S: Shuki Levy
S: Winston Rickard P: Jonathan Braun

After appearing on Twin Peaks, Lenny Van Dohlen became a direct-to-video psycho specialist. Here he's an office-mail-room nerd and psycho voyeur obsessed with a blond coworker and neighbor played by the director's wife, Deborah Shelton. He talks to himself, visits a shrink, has nightmares, and watches her with a zoom lens in Rear Window–derived scenes. The guest stars all watch Shelton too. Robert Vaughn as her angry ex watches. Louise Fletcher as the landlady watches, and Ned Beatty as a police sergeant watches. This unrated, not very erotic thriller was shot in Norfolk, Virginia, and also features Stoney Jackson. Thelma Houston provides the theme song.

BLINK

(New Line, 1994) D: Michael Apted
S: Dana Stevens P: David Blocker

Madeleine Stowe stars as a blind musician who partially regains her sight after a corneal transplant and witnesses a murder. We see her unreliable point of view (thanks to computer FX). Aidan Quinn is the Chicago police detective she falls in love with. With Laurie Metcalf, James Remar, and Paul Dillon. The Celtic rock band she plays with is the Drovers. The score is by Brad Fiedel.

BLINK OF AN EYE

(Vidmark, 1991) D: Bob Misiorowski
S: Edward Kovach P: Jacob Kotzky

Michael Paré stars as a soldier who goes to a Turkish refugee camp to rescue the daughter (Janis Lee) of a CIA director. Terrorists plot to steal plutonium for a nuclear war, and Paré is temporarily blinded, but he's psychic, so he defeats the bad Arabs anyway. With Uri Gavriel as a helpful Kurd.

BLISS

(NW, 1985) D/S: Ray Lawrence S: Peter Carey P: Anthony Buckley Australia

In a bizarre black comedy, Barry Otto plays a family man who dies from a heart attack, experiences Heaven, and is revived by paramedics. In a nightmare sequence, cockroaches crawl out of a woman. He decides that his wife and children are no good and that life on earth is Hell. With Helen Jones.

THE BLOB

(RCA, 1988) D/S: Chuck Russell S: Frank Darabont P: Jack H. Harris, Elliott Kastner

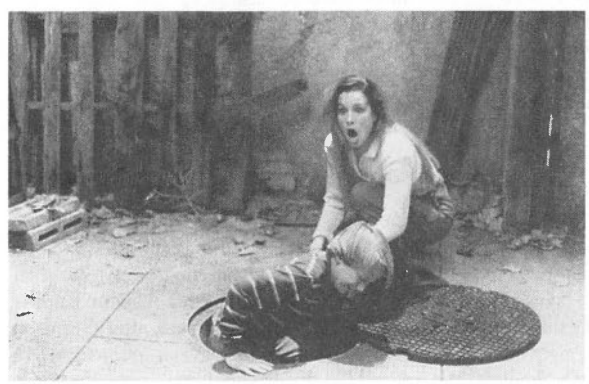
Thirty years after the original movie The Blob (also produced by Harris), this modernized version was released. I still like the original with Steve McQueen, but this is an excellent remake. Kevin Dillon is the juvenile-delinquent star who ends up with cheerleader Shawnee Smith while the mysterious blob (with tentacles) terrorizes a small town. Much of the simple plot is the same (and a few key scenes are copied), but there's a new government-conspiracy explanation. This version has more action, more tension, and better special effects. With Donovan Leitch (son of the singer), Del Close (who was also in Beware the Blob!) as the Reverend Meeker, Jack Nance, Candy Clark, Joe Seneca, Art La Fleur, Erika Eleniak, Charlie Spradling and Julie McCullough (from Playboy). The soundtrack by Michael Hoenig is on Cinedisc.



Shawnee Smith screams in a good remake, The Blob.

BLOBERMOUTH

(1990) D/S: Kent Skov S: Steven L. Rothman, Steve Pinto, Robert Bucholz P: Jack H. Harris

The LA Connection comedy group redubbed the original 1958 movie The Blob. Steve McQueen becomes a struggling standup comic. The Blob now talks with an animated mouth. The screenwriters provided the voices. The new comedy version received an R rating.

BLONDE ALIBI

(1946) D: Will James S: George Bricker P: Ben Pivar

Martha O'Driscoll is "the most beautiful clue that ever lured men to danger" in this one-hour Universal movie, costarring Tom Neal (who had just been in Detour) as a flyer accussed of murder. Also with Elisha Cook Jr., Robert Armstrong, and Donald MacBride. O'Driscoll (House of Dracula; Ghost Catchers) married a rich Chicago man and retired after this.

BLONDE BAIT

(1956) D: Elmo Williams S: Val Guest, Richard Landau P: Anthony Hinds UK (Women Without Men)

Beverly Michaels (the star of Hugo Haas' Pickup and the women's-prison movie Betrayed) stars in her last movie. She's an American showgirl who breaks out of a British prison. With Joan Rice and Gordon Jackson. New scenes were added (with Jim Davis, Richard Travis, and Paul Cavanagh) to this Hammer film for the US release (by Associated). "I don't need a gun to catch a man!" was an ad line.

BLONDE EMANUELLE (IN 3-D)

(1978) D: Giorgio Ferreri P: Stephen Gibson (Disco Girls in Hotskin)

Monique Fabergé plays Emanuelle in a ripoff 3-D sex movie made in California. It was promoted as being "European" and was rated NC-17 in 1990.

BLONDE FIST

(1991) D/S: Frank Clarke P: Joseph D'Morais, Christopher Figg UK

Margi Clarke stars as a Liverpool mom who becomes a boxer managed by an ex-stripper (Carroll Baker). It was advertised as "Thelma and Louise meets Rocky."

BLONDE GODDESS

(Video X, 1982) D: Bill Eagle (Bill Milling) P: Bobby Bouchard

This X-rated, hard-core feature is a Walter Mitty takeoff. Star Jonathan Ford is a comic-book artist who imagines himself in several of his own stories and naturally gets to have plenty of sex. In a Raiders of the Lost Ark–inspired segment he rescues a woman from a goddess (Susanna Britton) in a Mexican temple. Other segments concern WWI flyers and a superman on another planet. A b/w segment is a Bogart takeoff. It's more imaginative than standard porno, but don't expect too much. With Jacqueline Lorians, Loni Sanders, and Ron Jeremy.

BLONDE ICE

(1948) D: Jack Bernard S: Kenneth Ganet, Raymond Schrock P: Martin Mooney

Leslie Brooks (who had been in Rita Hayworth musicals) stars as a "blond Svengali" in this forgotten bad-girl movie, with Robert Paige and Michael Whalen. Bernard also made Unknown Island the same year for the same company.

BLONDE ON A BUM TRIP

(SW, 1967) D: Ralph Mauro P: Jack Braverman, Ed Adlum

I love this 65-minute b/w sex/drugs/rock and roll movie filmed in New York City. Flashbacks related in a hospital by various characters show how Susan, a naive chemistry major with blond bangs, is used by her roommates and a guy named TJ to make LSD for them and ends up "caught in a whirlpool of life." Sugar cubes are passed out at a party. Everybody chants, "LSD's got a hold on me!" to bongo music. The freak-out scenes are clever, and there are several tasteful sex scenes. One stars a sexy black maid and another features a Nixon mask. The excellent and frequently heard theme ("Put the Clock Back on the Wall") is by Tower recording group the E-Types. They sound like the Electric Prunes to me. The Bit-a-Sweet (on MGM) are seen doing "Out of Sight, Out of Mind" at a discotheque, and the Vagrants (with Leslie West) are heard doing "I Love You, Yes I Do." The fashions, music, and editing are all top-notch (the dubbing isn't), and there's some welcome, intentionally hip humor. Mauro also made a nudie, Girls in the Saddle (1969). Braverman later produced Voodoo Dolls (in Canada), and Adlum made Shriek of the Mutilated and Invasion of the Blood Farmers!

BLONDE SAVAGE

(Sinister, 1947) D: S. K. Seeley S: Gordon Bache P: Lionel J. Toll

"Blonde ruler of a pagan paradise! Prize of thrill-hungry men!" This was the first release by Eagle Lion (formally PRC). Gale Sherwood is the blond Meelah, singing leader of an African tribe. Leif Erickson tells the whole Tarzan-inspired tale in flashback. A standout bizarre singing scene was later used in the compilation feature It Came from Hollywood. With Veda Ann Borg, Douglas Dumbrille, and Matt Willis. Sherwood later sang in nightclubs with Nelson Eddy.

BLOOD

(1971) D/S: Mario Caiano S: Antonio Saguera, Horst Hachler P: Nello Santi, Hans Pfluger Italy/W. Germany (L'Occhio nel Labirinto)

Rosemary Dexter dreams that her psychiatrist lover (Horst Frank) is a psycho killer. She goes to a castle on a beach where his mistress (Alida Valli) lives. With Sybil Danning and Adolfo Celi. This movie features flashbacks, LSD trips, a severed head, and a giant eyeball. It's by the director of Nightmare Castle (1965).

BLOOD AND CONCRETE: A LOVE STORY

(RCA, 1991) D/S/E: Jeffrey Reiner S/P/E: Richard LaBrie

This very cool and funny LA-punk-scene drug/crime movie has some of the same spirit as Repo Man. Billy Zane (Dead Calm) stars as a car thief accused of murder who moves in with Jennifer Beals, as a suicidal cabaret singer, after they meet in a graveyard. Darren McGavin is in top form as a determined older cop who doesn't get any respect, and Nicholas Worth (Don't Answer the Phone) is a big, gay gangster pushing addictive "libido pills." With James LeGros as Worth's scary, violent lover and Harry Shearer. The music is by Nuclear Assault. Miles Copeland III was the executive producer for IRS. The video is letterboxed.

BLOOD AND GUNS

(1968) D/S: Giulio Petroni S: Sergio Solinas, Ivan Della Mea Italy (Tepepa; Viva la Revolución!)

Tomas Milian stars as Tepepa, a Mexican revolutionary, in this political western. Orson Welles is Colonel Casscarro, the chief of police. With John Steiner and José Torres.

BLOOD AND GUTS

(IVE, 1978) D: Paul Lynch S: Joseph McBride, William Gray, John Hunter P: Peter O'Brian

William Smith is an aging, alcoholic wrestler with a young wrestling troupe in this PG-rated film. Lynch did Prom Night and Humungus next.

BLOOD AND SAND

(Vidmark, 1989) D: Javier Elorrieta S: Rafael Azcona, Ricardo Franco P: Jose Frade Spain

Nude scenes of Sharon Stone and real Spanish bullfights were the selling points of this remake about a young married matador (Christopher Rydell) having an affair. With Ala Torrent, Aldo Sanbrell, and Simon Andreu. Earlier, more successful versions starred Rudolph Valentino (1922) and Tyrone Power (1941).

BLOOD AND STEEL

(Fox, 1959) D: Bernard Kowalski S: Joseph C. Gilette P: Gene Corman

John Lupton stars in this 62-minute b/w 20th Century–Fox film about a native girl (Ziva Rodann) who helps US Navy Seabees free island villagers from the Japanese during WWII. With Brett Halsey, black actor James Edwards (Home of the Brave), and James Hong. Floyd Crosby was the cinematographer.

BLOOD AT SUNDOWN

(Imperial, 1965) D/S: Duccio Tessari P: Luciano Ercole Italy/Spain (Una Pistola para Ringo; A Pistol for Ringo)

A professional killer ("Montgomery Wood"/Giuliano Gemma) is hired to free a ranch from Mexican bandits (led by Fernando Sánchez) who are holding hostages.

BLOODBATH

(21st Genesis, 1976) D: Silvio Narizzano S/A: Win Wells P: Andrés Vicente Gómez Spain (The Sky Is Falling)

Dennis Hopper is Chicken, a grisly-looking junkie poet who hallucinates a lot and has nightmares, religious visions, and frequent, disturbing childhood flashbacks. He mistreats his black girlfriend and says things like "Nothing is real. Everything is permitted." Treasure (Carroll Baker) is an alcoholic ex–Hollywood star who sings, throws parties, and shows off her scrapbook (with actual star photos of Carroll Baker). Richard Todd is an alcoholic pilot still wearing his WWII uniform, and Treasure's gay companion is played by the scriptwriter. They're in a Spanish village where kids are dying and funeral processions go by on Good Friday. All the main characters are self-destructive, miserable, and doomed and Narizzano makes you look at all kinds of Mondo-type ugliness. It's some serious weirdness from the director of Die! Die! My Darling! Not to be confused with the 1966 or 1976 Bloodbath.

BLOODBATH AT THE HOUSE OF DEATH

(Media, 1983) D/S/P: Ray Cameron
S: Barry Cryer P: John Downes UK

Radio and TV star Kenny Everett and one-season Saturday Night Live regular Pamela Stephenson star as paranormal researchers who go to "Headstone Manor." Guest star Vincent Price is the leader of a group of Devil worshippers. With some animation, a killer teddy bear, Carrie, Alien, and Star Wars spoofs, lots of fart humor, and a man flushed down a toilet.

BLOODBEAT

(TWE, 1982) D/S: Fabrice-Ange Zaphiratos
P: Helen Boley, Henri Zaphiratos

A woman (Helen Benton) in deer-hunting country is possessed by a Japanese samurai warrior. This confusing movie was made in Wisconsin with French-backing. It includes dream sequences, magical powers, nudity, and blood. (For a change of pace, see Ninja III, in which a woman is possessed by a ninja.)

BLOOD BRIDE: See THE BRIDES WORE BLOOD

BLOOD CASTLE (1970) = SCREAM OF THE DEMON LOVER

BLOOD CASTLE (1972) = FEMALE BUTCHER

BLOOD CITY = WELCOME TO BLOOD CITY

BLOOD CLAN

(Monarch, 1990) D: Charles Wilkenson
S/P: Glynis Whiting Canada

In Scotland in 1895, soldiers in kilts massacre an entire clan, living in caves, who have been accused of murder and cannibalism. A judge (Gordon Pinsett) rescues one little girl and emigrates to Canada. By 1910 the girl has grown into a strong-willed redhead (Michelle Little) living with her adopted family on a farm. Her awful stepmother hates her, and she has nightmares with a Stonehenge-like setting. A series of mutilation murders make the townspeople suspect her. Blood Clan is a suspenseful, well-made feature with surprising plot twists. It was filmed in Alberta.

BLOOD CULT

(VCI, 1985) D: Christopher Lewis
S: Stuart Rosenthal P: Linda Lewis

This was called "the first" shot-on-video horror release. It was shot with a Sony Betacam but wasn't really the first. Female students are being killed on campus, and (rubber) body parts are collected to assemble a new body for a blood sacrifice (to a dog god!). It features dismembered bodies and gore and a lame Psycho shower scene. It was directed in Tulsa, Oklahoma, by the son of Loretta Young (!), whose brother Peter was in the group Moby Grape. Revenge was a sequel.

BLOOD DELIRIUM

(1988) D: Sergio Bergonzelli
S/P: Raffaella Mertes Italy

John Phillip Law stars as a deranged artist who belives he's the reincarnation of Van Gogh. He tries to make a musician (Brigitte Christensen) "become" his late wife (whose body sits at a piano) and paints with blood. Gordon Mitchell is his necrophiliac butler.

BLOOD DINER

(Vestron, 1987) D/P: Jackie Kong
S: Michael Sonye P: Jimmy Maslon

This is a very gory, dumb comedy/horror takeoff on Herschell Gordon Lewis' 1963 Blood Feast (it was planned as Blood Feast II), but it's bad in a way that the original wasn't. Two nephews of Uncle Anwar run a "health food" diner where they serve their victims. The late Rick Burks and Carl Crew star. Blood Diner features rock bands (Art Fein was the music consultant), topless aerobics, and low-riders.

BLOOD EVIL = DEMONS OF THE MIND

BLOOD FEAST: See NIGHT OF A THOUSAND CATS

BLOODFIST

(MGM, 1989) D: Terence H. Winkles
S: Robert King P: Roger Corman

World light-heavyweight kickboxing champion Don Wilson (in his first starring role) is Jake "the Dragon." He goes to Manila to avenge the death of his brother. Bloodfist copied Blood Sport and Kickboxer but was a major hit for Concorde, Corman's production company. With Riley Bowman, Joe Marie Avellana, and Filipino-movie regular Vic Diaz as a detective. Sequels followed with the Japanese-American Wilson.

BLOODFIST II

(MGM, 1991) D: Andy Blumenthal
S: Catherine Cyran P: Roger Corman

Don "the Dragon" Wilson returns as Jake the Dragon in a copy of Enter the Dragon. He goes to the Philippines again, to find a missing friend. Kidnapped along with other international fighters, he's taken to a secret island, where he's forced to battle superstrong fighters (created by a mad scientist using monkey glands) in a steel cage while rich people watch and make bets. There's some sex and an anti-drug lecture. Wes Craven received an "adviser" credit.

BLOODFIST III: FIRST TO FIGHT

(New Horizons, 1992) D: Oley Sassone S: Allison Burnett P: Roger Corman (Forced to Fight)

Don "the Dragon" Wilson is Jimmy Boland this time, and he's in prison for a crime he didn't commit. He makes friends with Richard Roundtree and John Cardone, and becomes involved in racial battles between black and white inmates. This was the first release from Corman's own video division. It includes topless scenes from TNT Jackson being watched by inmates. With Rick Dean and Richard Joseph Paul.

BLOOD FREAK

(Simitar, 1971) D/S/P: Brad Grinter
S/A: Steve Hawkes (Blood Freaks)

A man (Brad Grinter) sits behind a desk, smokes, looks down, and reads about "a pretty girl with a problem" and "a catalyst." Steve Hawkes, who conceived this moral tale, stars as Herschell, a big, muscular, strait-laced Nam-vet biker with wide sideburns. He offers a ride to Angel (a Bible-quoting Loretta Lynn clone with a flat tire) and ends up at her bad sister Ann's drug party. Angel lectures, "You know your body is a temple of the holy spirit. You shouldn't defile it!" When a girl comes on to Herschell, he calls her a tramp, so her boyfriend and Ann plot to make him an addict. The narrator reminds us that Herschell is conservative and responsible. The girl's scientist father, who owns a noisy turkey farm, offers him a maintenance job and a home. Ann, in her new bikini, offers him a joint. He smokes, laughs, and follows her to bed: "I'm not a coward!" The father uses him for a guinea pig, serving him a whole drugged turkey. He shakes and gets sick from withdrawal pains, then smokes more pot, Reefer Madness–style. After a while he becomes a turkey-headed monster with flared jeans, a turkey monster that gobbles! He shows a note to Ann, who's lounging on a leopard-skin water bed. She says, "You sure are ugly!" He goes after the drug dealers (who play 8-track tapes). In his nightmare, people eat him, and a (real) turkey is decapitated. He cuts the leg off a screaming dealer with a power saw. It looks like the actor has a wooden leg, making the bloody scene strangely effective. Angel, of course, cures Herschell with prayer. The narrator (Grinter) talks about "the human body as a mixing bowl," and in an unexpected instance of intentional comedy/irony he has a coughing fit from smoking! Grinter was also responsible for the Hitler horror movie Flesh Feast. Hawkes owned some lions and also made and starred in some obscure Tarzan ripoffs. The acting, makeup, and rock-music soundtrack are all wonderfully horrible. The first time I saw this incredible made-in-Florida tale was in Paris. It was pretty interesting dubbed into French, but I missed dialogue like "Go ahead and become a Bible freak. I don't give a damn!"

BLOOD FRENZY

(Hollywood Family Entertainment, 1987)
D/P: Hal Freeman S: Ted Newsom

A maniac kills off a group of "troubled" teens during group encounter sessions held in the desert. "Pop Goes the Weasel" is heard during the murders. With Wendy MacDonald and grown-up Lisa Loring (who played Wednesday in the original Addams Family) as Dory. It was made by a porno director (he made the Caught from Behind series) but features blood, not sex.

BLOOD GAMES

(Epic, 1989) D: Tanya Rosenberg
S: Craig L. Clyde, James L. Hennessey, George P. Saunders P: Yakov Bentsui

"Babe and His Ball Girls" (manager Ross Hagen and a bunch of sexy young female baseball players) travel around in a bus for exhibition games. After they beat a bunch of unshaven, beer-drinking rednecks (including Buck Flower), the local survivalist boss's beloved son is shot, and Hagen is killed. The distraught father offers "$1000 per dead bitch!" and it's dumb, violent hillbillies vs. terrified women in the woods. Laura Albert stars as the pitcher. All the women are seen naked in a shower, and none of them ever wear bras. Several of them are killed, but the survivors are more devious than the backwoods attackers. Not as bad as it could have been, Blood Games suffers from too many slo-mo scenes, and the one black character is there just so that she can be an extra in the shower scene, then die.

BLOOD HARVEST

(UAV, 1986) D: Bill Rebane S: Ben Benson, Emil Joseph
P: Luseszek Burzynski (The Marvelous Mervo)

Here it is—the gory horror movie with Tiny Tim! He's the weird "Marvelous Mervo," always lurking around. He wears clown makeup and talks and sings to himself. He prays, sings, and cries in church. Jill (Itonia Salocheck) returns to her family's small-town farm, but nobody is there. Mervo is the "crazy" brother of her jealous childhood boyfriend. Characters are hung upside down, and their throats are cut so the blood can be collected in a bucket. Jill is knocked out, tied up in bed, and photographed. Rebane is the man who made Monster A Go-Go, The Giant Spider Invasion, and many more, all in Wisconsin. This is his only movie with lots of blood and nudity. Because of that fact (and Tiny Tim), it's his best by default.

BLOOD HOOK

(Prism, 1987) D: James Mallon S: Larry Edgerton, John Galligan P: David Herbert

Troma released this horror movie, made in backwoods Wisconsin and directed by a guy who later produced the Mystery Science Theater TV show. Teen fishermen and a family are killed off by a crazed war vet with a metal plate in his head. He sells his victims as bait, and many fish jokes are told. With Lisa Todd (from Hee Haw).

BLOOD HUNGER (1974) = VAMPYPRES

BLOOD HUNGER

(Even Steven, 197?) D/S/C: Gary Graver
P: Ed DePriest

It's packaged like a horror movie, but it's a cheap nudie movie that opens with a (real) crushed cat. A private eye narrates a story about women who are kidnapped and raped, but it's a comedy. Graver's reflection is visible on the side of a phone booth. With Antoinette Maynard, Walt Phillips, and Uschi Digart.

BLOOD HUNT = THE THIRSTY DEAD

BLOOD IN THE STREETS

(1972) D/S: Sergio Sollima S: Ardiono Maiuri, Massimo De Rita Italy/France/ W. Germany (The Revolver)

This gangster movie stars Oliver Reed as an Italian official forced to release a prisoner (Fabio Testi) because his wife has been kidnapped. The pursuit of the kidnappers leads to Paris. With Agostina Belli and an Ennio Morricone score. From Independent International.

BLOOD ISLAND = THE SHUTTERED ROOM

BLOOD LINK

(Nelson, 1982) D: Alberto De Martino S: Theodore Apstein P: Robert Pagaggi Italy (The Link)

Women are being killed in this convoluted sex-and-violence horror movie by the director of Puma Man. Michael Moriarty is a shrink who "sees" the murders. He thought his (Siamese!) twin brother had died in a fire. Some of the actors and an Ennio Morricone score make it worth seeing. With Penelope Milford, Cameron Mitchell as a punch-drunk boxer, Geraldine Fitzgerald, and Martha Smith (from Playboy).

BLOODLUST

(Top, 1981) D/S: Walerian Borowczyk
P: Robert Kupferberg, Jean-Pierre Labrande France (Dr. Jekyll et les Femmes; Dr. Jekyll and Miss Osbourne; Bloodbath of Dr. Jekyll)

Dr. Jekyll (Udu Kier) uses transcendental medicine (and music) and becomes Dr. Hyde (played by a different actor without eyebrows). This whole movie takes place in the house where overnight guests have gathered for Jekyll's wedding to Fanny Osbourne (Marina Pierro). (Fanny Osbourne was the wife of Robert Louis Stevenson, author of The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.) A woman is killed, so a general (Patrick Magee), who likes to whip women, takes charge. Fanny eventually bathes in Jekyll's solution, and after a destructive fit she kills too. Howard Vernon is a doubting doctor. The unique acting styles of Kier and Magee help make this deconstruction of a literary classic (in English) worthwhile. Set design by director Borowczyk. The Japanese laserdisc version is uncut (more sex and nudity) but is digitally censored.

BLOODLUST

(1992) D/S/P: Richard Wolstencroft
S: Jon Hewitt Australia

Three modern-day vampires (two are female) go on a killing spree in a city armed with guns. Dumb cops, religious-cult members, and drug dealers are after them. The feature has sex, blood, drugs, and punk-rock music. It made news when it was seized by customs officials in the UK.

BLOODLUST: SUBSPECIES III

(Paramount, 1993) D/S: Ted Nicolaou
P: Vlad and Oana Paunescu

The second sequel to Subspecies has the same characters as Bloodstone but offers nothing new. Anders Hove is Radu again, bringing (topless) female victims to vampire Denise Duff. Her sister (Melanie Shatner), Kevin Blair, and Jon Haiduc are still trying to save her. It's padded with flashbacks from the other features, and has a few seconds of stop-motion animation. The whole series was filmed in Romania.

BLOOD MASSACRE

(Star III, 1988) D/S/P/E: Don Dohler
S/P: Barry Gold, Dan Buehl

When you think of directors who live and work in Baltimore, you might come up with John Waters and Barry Levinson, but there's also Don Dohler. This effort is scratchy-looking and laughable, but it does have a few surprises. A group of demented Nam vets and a girlfriend drink Schaefer beer, kill somebody during a convenience-store holdup, then hold a family hostage in a remote house. They insult and abuse the horrified people, but the captives turn out to be not only cannibals (!) but rotted ghouls under their (synthetic?) skin. George Stover, a veteran of several Waters and Dohler films who looks like Karl Malden's brother, gets his first top billing as the mean Rizzo.

BLOODMATCH

(HBO, 1990) D/S: Albert Pyun

A pumped-up Hope Marie Carlton (from Andy Sidaris movies) fights and defeats men for revenge. Villain kickboxer Thom Mathews kidnaps and tortures fighters and makes them fight to the death in Las Vegas. With kickboxer Benny "the Jet" Orquidez.

BLOOD MOON (1970) = THE WEREWOLF VS. THE VAMPIRE WOMEN

BLOOD MOON

(IVE, 1989) D: Alec Mills S: Robert Brennan
P: Stanley O'Rourke Australia

A psycho uses barbed wire to kill in the woods behind a Catholic girls' school. Lots of characters are involved in many subplots. There's a shower-room scene and a ridiculous glam-rock band, and there was a "Fright Break" in theaters. The Brian May soundtrack was released in Australia. The producer and director returned with Dead Sleep.

BLOOD OF A POET

(Home Vision, 1930) D/S: Jean Cocteau
France (Le Sange d'un Poète)

Four surrealistic segments (in 53 minutes) show the adventures of a young poet. The sight of his own blood drives him mad and causes visions. It was the first film by the famous director of Beauty and the Beast. A documentary, Jean Cocteau: Autobiography of an Unknown (Home Vision), is also available.

THE BLOOD OF HEROES

(HBO, 1989) D/S: David Peoples P: Brian Rosen Australia (Salute of the Jugger)

You've probably seen all the post-nuke Road Warrior copies you can stand, but face it, they were the westerns of the 80s, and they're still around. This one's by the writer of the Blade Runner script, and it's one of the best, with a good cast. It doesn't feature hyped-up vehicles but centers on a ragged group who travel around to compete in a violent game that uses dog skulls on sticks. One-eyed Rutger Hauer stars, with Joan Chen, Vincent Phillip D'Onofrio, Hugh Keays-Byrne as Sir Vile, Max Fairchild, and fighter Richard Norton. They travel to more games, then reach the giant, underground league headquarters. The American version is 90 minutes long and is missing 12 minutes.

BLOOD OF JESUS

(Discount, 1941) D/S/P/A: Spencer Williams P: Alfred Sacks

Reggie Jackson (Williams), a small-town nonbeliever, accidentally shoots his Baptist wife. She dies and goes to a crossroads, where a laughing Devil (with horns and a tail) sends the handsome Judas to lead her astray in a juke joint. He wants to make her a hostess, but she runs away and wakes in bed at the end. There's a ladder to Heaven, a transparent lady angel, and a statue of Christ that talks. The music is all gospel until she takes the wrong road. Then jazzy swing music and some great slide-guitar truckin' blues music is heard. This incredible movie cost only $5,000! It was the first of seven made by Williams, the major black director after Oscar Micheaux (whose career was in the 20s and 30s). Williams made the similar Go Down Death (1944) and later starred as Amos on Amos and Andy on TV (1951–53).

BLOOD ON THE BADGE

(AIP, 1992) D/S/P: Bret McCormick S: John Cianetti

A pumped-up young cop (David Harrod) goes to a small Texas town with his new female partner (Desire LaFore) to avenge the death of his former (black) partner (Todd Everett), who appears in dreams to give helpful clues (!). The rich, racist, terrorist/survivalist villain, who owns a sausage company, is eaten by pigs at the end. With slo-mo deaths, motel sex with a maid, a guitar soundtrack, and machine guns that light up like firecrackers. "Name" star Joe Estevez is the cops' boss. Blue Thompson, who used to act in McCormick's Dallas-based movies, was the editor, and the audio is by Tony Brownrigg.

BLOOD QUEEN

(Video Search, 1972) D/P: Radley Metzger S: Brian Phelan US/Yugoslavia (Little Mother)

Christiane Kruger stars as the ruthless Marina Pinares (based on Eva Perón), who rises from being an out-of-work actress sharing a cheap apartment to become the wife of the powerful leader (Siegfried Rauch) of "Argonia." Flashbacks reveal all the plotting, sex, media manipulation and killing that got her there. Blood Queen is a very well made feature with excellent editing and is very political. It was probably too serious for Metzger fans expecting just more stylish sex. Mark Damon (an ex–teen star) is her lover who turns against all the corruption. They have a sex scene on different sides of a shower door. With Ivan Desny as a general and Anton Diffring as the cardinal. The Audubon film was cut in America for an R rating. The letterboxed, subtitled, uncut version I saw features some full nudity and is in Finnish. Metzger made this and Score (1973), both in Yugoslavia, then became "Harry Paris" for a series of acclaimed hard-core features.

BLOODRAGE

(IVE, 1979) D: Joseph Bigwood S: Robert Jahn P: Joseph Zito, Alan M. Braverman (Never Pick Up a Stranger)

Ian Scott is a psycho peeping Tom who kills hookers in Times Square. We hear his voiceover monologue. With James Johnson as a vigilante cop, Judith-Marie Bergen, Irwin Keyes, and Lawrence Tierney (also in Abduction and The Prowler by Zito).

BLOOD RAGE

(Paramount, 1984) D: John W. Grissmer S: "Richard Lamden"/Bruce Joel Rubin P/A: Marianne Kanter (Nightmare at Shadow Woods)

This was written by Bruce Joel Rubin (Ghost), which is really embarrassing for him. An evil twin (Mark Soper) keeps killing while his innocent brother (whose just escaped from the nuthouse) is blamed. Louise Lasser as the confused mom screams a lot on a phone and says Mary Hartman–style lines. The producer costars as a doctor from the asylum. Ted Raimi appears. A girl is cut in half, a head is split open, and somebody is decapitated, so if all you want is some gore, you've got it in this dumb horror movie shot in Jacksonville, Florida. Ed French did the FX. Grissmer also made Scalpel (1976).

BLOOD RECKONING: See DEATH RAGE

BLOOD RED

(Nelson, 1986) D: Peter Masterson S: Ron Cutler P: Judd Bernard, Patricia Casey

Sicilian grape farmers battle railroad men in the Napa Valley wine country during the 1850s. It's the only feature with Eric Roberts and his sister Julia (making her debut as his sister), but wasn't released until 1990. With Dennis Hopper as a corrupt railroad tycoon, Burt Young as a hired thug, Giancarlo Giannini, Susan Anspach, Marc Lawrence, Frank Campanella, Lara Harris, Horton Foote Jr., Charles Dierkop, and Aldo Ray as Father Stassio. The music is by Carmine Coppola.

BLOOD RELATIONS

(Nelson, 1987) D: Graeme Campbell S: Stephen Saylor P: Nicolas Stilliadis Canada

Three generations of a family try to kill each other for a fortune. Ray Walston is the bedridden grandfather with a neurosurgeon son (Jan Rubes) and a spoiled, jet-setting grandson (Kevin Hicks) who brings his girlfriend (Canadian beauty Lydie Denier) to the family mansion. This movie has lots of blood, violence, and nudity and some plot surprises. With Carrie Leigh.

BLOOD RELATIVES

(United Artists, 1977) D/S: Claude Chabrol France/Canada (Les Liens du Sang)

Donald Sutherland is a Quebec police detective investigating the murder of a teen (Lisa Langlois). His character is based on Steve Carella in the 87th Precinct novels by Ed McBain. The plot involves incest. The cast includes Stéphane Audran, Donald Pleasence as a pedophile, and David Hemmings. Some other features by Chabrol

Joan Chen on a post-nuke sports team in The Blood of Heroes.

(sometimes called the French Hitchcock) available in the US on tape are Bluebeard, Bad Girls, and Club Extinction.

BLOOD SABBATH

(JLT, 1972) D: Brianne Murphy S/P: William A. Bairn P: Lisa Fluet (Yyalah)

This is sort of a fairy tale for adults and is a must for the General Hospital fan in your life. Tony Geary is a hitchhiking Nam vet with an acoustic guitar, sandals, and sideburns. While he's sleeping in the woods of Mexico (?), five naked hippie women (including Uschi Digart) wake him and chase him. He hits his head on a rock, then is woken again, this time by some kind of nice sea goddess named Yyalah (Susan Damante with a terrible blond wig and too much eye makeup). The evil, topless Queen Alotta (Dyanne Thorne!) wears a crown, a red cape, and a black bikini bottom, but her female followers are always naked. Alotta plans to sacrifice a child. The tortured Geary just wants to spend a night with Yyalah, so he offers his soul and drinks blood. With baby-killing Nam flashbacks, topless dancing, the decapitation of a priest, a freak-out sequence, and weird music (theremin and flute). The female director (from England) was a cinematographer who later shot the Little House on the Prairie series. Hugo Grimaldi (The Human Duplicators) was the supervising editor.

BLOOD SALVAGE

(Magnum, 1990) D/S: Tucker Johnson S: Ken Sanders P: Martin J. Fischer (Mad Jake)

Danny Nelson, known in the Atlanta area for Cates Pickles TV ads, plays Jake Pruitt, a Bible-quoting maniac surgeon in dirty overalls with a big smile and a great Ben Johnson–type voice. His sons, the dumb and mean Hiram and the stupid but friendly Roy, cause car accidents, tow the victims, then keep them artificially alive. The ridiculous barn/lab is filled with dead or alive mutilated and drugged bodies (including Elvis) hanging from the ceiling with life-support tubes sticking out. Jake sells body parts to Ray Walston, who bargains for better prices and says, "This place stinks!" Jake keeps a crippled beauty-contest winner named April (Lori Birdsong) locked up as a replacement for his dead daughter. John Saxon (who was also in Cannibals in the Streets, filmed in Atlanta) is her father. April is the only survivor in an ironic ending. This tasteless comic/horror movie is comparable in some ways to Mansion of the Doomed and Motel Hell, and is memorable for Nelson and the wheelchair-bound female lead. With boxer Evander Holyfield (an executive producer).

BLOOD SCREAMS

(Warner, 1986) D/S/P: Glenn Gebhardt P: Pedro Villa, Paul Gongaware

Russ Tamblyn was in his first feature in years, playing a magician in a plot about accursed 16th-century monks in modern Mexico. With Stacey Shaffer and Isela Vega as a witch. Shot in Mexico and released by Concorde. Blood Screams launched Tamblyn's direct-to-video career.

BLOODSHACK

(Sinister, 1971) D/S/P/E/C: "Wolfgang Schmidt"/ Ray Dennis Steckler S: Christopher Edwards S/A: Ron Haydock P: Carol Flynn (Chopper: Curse of the Evil Spirit)

The director's wife, Carolyn Brandt (as herself), inherits a ranch possessed by an Indian spirit. One version of this very boring feature is padded with lots of rodeo footage. With the late Ron Haydock, who turns out to be the killer, and Steckler's kids. Haydock had been a rockabilly singer and edited the 60s magazine Fantastic Monsters. Sinister also offers a "director's cut."

BLOOD SHED: See CRAZED

BLOOD SIMPLE

(MCA, 1984) D/S: Joel Coen S/P: Ethan Coen

Blood Simple is a modern film noir classic inspired by James M. Cain, with horror ideas from Poe and a title from Dashiell Hammett. Frances McDormand (making her film debut) stars, with Dan Hedaya as her jealous bar-owner husband. M. Emmet Walsh is perfect as a sleazy detective in a yellow suit hired to kill the wife's lover (John Getz). Also with Samm-Art Williams. It has good plot twists, atmosphere, and innovative camerawork by Barry Sonnenfeld, and it was made in Texas for less than a million dollars. The soundtrack by Carter Burwell was released by Varèse Sarabande (on an album that includes music from Raising Arizona). Joel Coen started out working on Fear No Evil (1981) and with Sam Raimi on The Evil Dead. An illustrated screenplay was published after the brothers made Raising Arizona, Miller's Crossing, and Barton Fink.

BLOOD SISTERS

(Sony, 1986) D/S/C: Roberta Findlay P: Walter E. Sear

Sorority girls on a scavenger hunt are killed off while spending the night in an old mansion that used to be a whorehouse and was the site of a multiple killing. There are ghosts in mirrors, hazing hijinks, nudity, a lesbian scene, and a transvestite killer. With Amy Bretano, Maria Machart, John Fasano, Maitland McDonagh, and Ruth Collins.

BLOOD SONG

(Abacus, 1979) D/S: Alan J. Levi (Dreamslayer)

Frankie Avalon (the same year as Grease) stars as a flute-playing axe murderer. He's telepathically linked to a blood donor. Donna Wilkes sees the killer in her nightmares. With Dane Clark and Richard Jaeckel. Filmed in Oregon.

BLOODSPELL

(Forum, 1987) D: Deryn Warren S: Gerry Daly P: Jessica Rains

A telekinetic teen (Anthony Jenkins) is sent to an asylum for young people, and people start dying in gory ways. He's possessed by the spirit of his dead sorcerer father. The same people made Mirror of Death the same year.

BLOOD SPLASH = NIGHTMARE

BLOODSPORT

(Warner, 1988) D: Newt Arnold S: Sheldon Leitch P: Mark DiSalle

Bloodsport, from Cannon, was based on the true story of Frank Dux, the first Westerner to win the secret Kumite martial-arts competition in Hong Kong. It was the first starring role for the Belgian Jean-Claude Van Damme (real name Van Varenberg). He's trained by Senzo "Tiger" Tanaka and has to fight Bolo Young (from Enter the Dragon) as the crooked, mean Korean contestant. With Forest Whitaker, Leah Ayers-Hamilton, and Michel Qissi. After a while, kickboxer movies were as common as post-nuke-survival movies.

BLOODSTALKERS

(Vidmark, 1975) D/S/A: Robert W. Morgan P: Ben Morse (The Night Daniel Died)

Two New York couples vacationing in a shack in the Florida Everglades are killed by a (fake) creature. A psycho Nam vet is the real problem. This film copies The Texas Chainsaw Massacre in several ways and was filmed near Fort Lauderdale. Doug Hobart provided the bloody effects. Ads claimed it was "banned in 24 countries!" Former teen actor Kenny Miller stars. Several of the actors had appeared in Mako: Jaws of Death.

BLOODSTONE

(Forum, 1988) D: Dwight Little S: Curt Allen P: Nico Mastorakis

An ex-cop (Bret Stimely) and his heiress wife (Anna Nicholas) hunt for rubies in India, in this PG-13 Raiders of the Lost Ark. With Christopher Neame and Laura Albert as Kim Chi.

BLOODSTONE: SUBSPECIES II

(Paramount, 1993) D/S: Ted Nicolaou P: Vlad and Oana Paunescu

Surprise—this is one of the best vampire movies in recent years. Anders Hove returns as Radu, the ugly, creepy, long-haired Nosferatu-style vampire from Subspecies. Denise Duff becomes a vampire, and her sister (Melanie Shatner) arrives. With the Romanian Michael Dewish as a Dr. Van Helsing type, Pamela Gordon as Radu's sorceress "mummy," Jon Haiduc, and Kevin Blair. The Romanian location work is excellent, using an actual castle and an old theater, and the giant vampire shadows are very effective. Also with a nude shower scene (Duff) and some animated creatures from David Allen. Next in the series was Bloodlust.

BLOOD SUCKERS

(Virgin Vision, 1970) D: Robert Hartford-Davis S: Julian More P: Graham Harris UK (Incense for the Damned)

A narrator relates the story of how "I was asked to investigate" the whereabouts of Richard, an Oxford student missing in Greece. He flies to Greece with Richard's fiancée and a school friend (African actor Johnny Sekka). They're joined by an embassy official (Patrick Macnee, in between The Avengers series). It turns out that Richard is a masochistic virgin, an easy victim for a sadistic female "vampire" who has sex-and-drug orgies. Hartford-Davis also directed the swinging-London horror movie Corruption (1967), and this more serious effort is also padded with nudity and a long psychedelic-orgy sequence with lots of warped lead-guitar sounds and somebody singing, "Baby, don't flash your evil eyes at me!" Top-billed Peter Cushing actually has a supporting role as an Oxford professor but is in one great scene where Richard, back in England, almost causes a riot by giving an anti-academic speech. A surprisingly thin Edward Woodward has one scene as an expert who talks about how a person could achieve an orgasm having their neck sucked. Originally released in America on a double bill with Blood Thirst, it's based on the novel Doctors Wear Scarlet, by Simon Raven.

BLOODSUCKERS FROM OUTER SPACE

(Warner, 1984) D/S: Glenn Coburn
P: Gale Boyd Latham

Texas farmers become brainwashed bloodsuckers in this gore spoof with a photographer hero, a Psycho shower scene, lots of puking, and guest "star" Pat Paulsen as the president.

BLOODSUCKING (NAZI) ZOMBIES: See OASIS OF THE ZOMBIES

BLOODSUCKING PHAROS IN PITTSBURGH

(Paramount, 1990) D/S: "Alan Smithee"/Dean T. Schetter P: James A. Baffico, Laurence Barbara, Beverly Pewberthy (Picking up the Pieces)

This was announced as (yet another) remake of Blood Feast. Two cops and a detective's daughter pursue a chainsaw killer. Some of the humor is of the anything-goes Airplane variety, and some memorable black-humor gags make this a very anti-smoking feature. Although the killings take place off screen, Tom Savini provided the results. With a decapitation, a face ripped off, a wild cat fight, weird "twin" old-lady coroners, and despicable Arabs in "the Egyptian part of town." The surprise star is ex–porno star Veronica Hart (aka Jane Hamilton), enjoying her best role in an R-rated movie. Filmed in Pittsburgh.

BLOOD, SWEAT, AND BULLETS

(Cinetrust, 1990) D/S: Bob Cook

A hard-drinking army major (Phil Stallone) has to take seven female-killer prisoners (led by Heidi Payne) to Brazil so they can pose as hookers and kill some Cuban officers. It was filmed around Orlando, Florida.

BLOOD THIRST (1979) = 'SALEM'S LOT

BLOOD THIRST

(Sinister, 1965) D/P: Newt Arnold
S: N. I. P. Dennis Philippines

A sex-crimes specialist from New York City named Adam Rourke (Robert Winston) arrives in the Philippines to go undercover as a writer and help his friend Captain Miguel (Vic Diaz) solve a series of murders. Women are discovered hung upside down with their blood drained. Adam is a fast-talking, wisecracking type who seems more interested in two living females, Serena, the belly dancer at the El Barrio club, and Miguel's adopted sister, Sylvia. We finally find out who the lumpy-faced monster (in a crypt) is at the end. This b/w film was released in the US in 1971 by Chevron, along with the British Bloodsuckers.

BLOODTHIRSTY EYES

(VSOM, 1971) D: Michio Yamamoto
S: Masura Takesue, Ai Ogawa P: Fumio Tanaka
Japan (Chi o Suu Me; Lake of Dracula)

Toho tried to copy Hammer with a series of vampire movies with Western ideas. Mori Kishida is the vampire, whose ancestors emigrated from Transylvania. He preys on some women staying at a lakeside house, and a doctor investigates. The widescreen feature is subtitled. Yamamoto made a trilogy, including Night of the Vampire/The Vampire Doll (1970) and Evil of Dracula/The Vampire Rose (1975).

BLOODTIDE

(1980) D/S: Richard Jeffries S/P: Nico Mastorakis, Donald Langdon UK/Greece (Red Tide)

Treasure hunter James Earl Jones accidentally frees an (unconvincing) underwater monster that used to force the local people to sacrifice virgins. With José Ferrer, Lila Kedrova as a nun, and Mary Louise Weller, Deborah Shelton, and Martin Kove as visiting Americans. Filmed in Greece.

BLOOD TIES

(New Horizons, 1991) D: Jim McBride
S: Richard Shapiro P: Gene Corman

Jason Lendon is a Texas teen whose parents were staked and burned by a group of vampire hunters. He goes to Long Beach, California, and learns from a Lost Boys–type group of motorcycle-riding teen vampires, part of an empire-building Carpathian vampire clan (the heroes) led by Patrick Bauchau (from Creepers). Meanwhile, a Carpathian reporter (Harley Venton) who wants to lead a normal life has an affair with a DA (Kim Johnson-Ulrich). With Michelle Johnson, Michael C. Gwynne, Bo Hopkins, and Grace Zabriskie. Also with the same mansion exterior used in House on Haunted Hill and Donald Trump and Zsa Zsa Gabor on TV. This bloodless Fox-TV series pilot by the director of Great Balls of Fire was conceived while the "new" Dark Shadows looked like it might be a hit. The tape is slightly different from the original broadcast version.

BLOOD TRACKS

(Vista, 1985) D: Mats Olson D/S: Mike Jackson
S: Anna Wolf P: Tom Sjoberg Sweden

Members of a rock group called Easy Action are at a remote mountain ski resort to make a video. They're killed off by members of a mutant cannibal family.

BLOOD WARRIORS

(Imperial, 1993) D: Sam Firstenberg S: Ram Alon, David Bradley P: Gope T. Samtani Indonesia

Direct-to-video action star David Bradley is a former Marine from Texas who wears a cowboy hat, fights, plays guitar, and sings. With Jennifer Campbell and Frank Zagarino and Tanaka as fighting villains.

BLOODY BIRTHDAY

(Starmaker, 1980) D/S: Ed Hunt
S: Barry Pearson P: Gerald T. Olson

Three ten-year-old California kids use bats, arrows, and guns to kill townspeople and teachers. It turns out that they were all born simultaneously during a total solar eclipse (an idea from Village of the Damned). Susan Strasberg stars as a schoolteacher, and José Ferrer is a doctor. With Joe Penny, Michael Dudikoff, Julie Brown (who appears topless in a cemetery), and some voyeurism and sex. It was released in 1986. Olson later produced the hit House Party.

THE BLOODY BROOD

(SW, 1959) S/P: Julian Roffman S: Elwood Ullman, Ben Kerner, Des Hardman Canada

Here's a must for fans of Peter Falk and beatnik movies. Nico (Falk) works for a crime boss and hangs out in a stylish basement club (there's a big skeleton hand in the background). His first line is: "There's no doubt about it. The world's falling apart." The normal, square hero in this anti-beatnik movie is the brother (Jack Betts) of an innocent delivery boy who's killed. Nico and his bored TV-director friend put ground glass in his hamburger at a party. The dialogue is priceless, and the punks in leather jackets are named Studs and Weasel. Roffman also made the 3-D classic The Mask.

BLOODY FRIDAY

(1973) D/P: Ferd, Beverly Sebastian
S: Ann Cawthorne (The Single Girls)

Claudia Jennings stars in this drive-in murder movie. With Joan Prather, Greg Mullavey, Albert Popwell, and Mercy Rooney (from Playboy) as the killer. It was made after Gator Bait, also from Dimension and with Jennings.

BLOODY GIRL = MALENKA THE VAMPIRE

BLOODY MOON

(TWE, 1980) D/A: Jesús Franco
S: Rayo Casablanca P: Wolf C. Hartwig
W. Germany (Die Säege des Todes)

Olivia Pascal's friends are killed off by somebody with a scarred face and long hair who's escaped from an asylum. Her rich aunt in a wheelchair is burned, a woman is cut in half by a saw, and there's some nudity and disco music. Franco shows up as a doctor. A clip from this was used in Pedro Almodovar's Matador.

BLOODY NEW YEAR

(Academy, 1986) D: Norman J. Warren S: Frazier Pearce P: Hayden Pearce UK (Time Warp Terror)

Three young couples manage to strand themselves in an old hotel on an island that somehow (don't ask) has become stuck in the year 1959. Warren tells his convoluted teens-in-peril story using cost-effective special effects and ideas from The Shining, The Evil Dead, and Nightmare on Elm Street. There's a phantom rock band, a ghost maid, a possessed girl, and even a tablecloth monster, and a clip of the flying brains from Fiend Without a Face on TV that outshines everything else.

BLOODY PIT OF HORROR

(SW, 1965) D: "Max Hunter"/Massimo Pupillo S: Roberto Natale, Romano Migliorini P: Francesco Merli Italy (Il Boia Scarlatto)

A group of people break into an old castle to shoot sexy covers for horror novels. Mickey Hargitay (Jayne Mansfield's bodybuilder husband), believing he's the reincarnation of a 17th-century executioner in red tights and a mask, acts insane and very excited as he uses various devices (hot wax, hot coals, and ice water) to torture and kill the "sinning" women. Sharp spears cut into the clothes (and breasts) of four bound women as they go around in circles on a wooden S&M merry-go-round. Bloody Pit is laughable (awful dubbing), fascinating (Hargitay was Arnold Schwarzenegger's hero!), and very sick. With Walter Brandi (star of Playgirls and the Vampire) as the horror novelist and Femi Benussi (Tarzana). The production credits were all fake Anglicized names. This Frank Henenlotter Sexy Shocker release is a letterboxed, uncut version (called both Crimson Executioner and A Tale of Torture on the print) with 10 minutes never before seen in this country. It was first released here (in "Psychovision") in 1967 (by Pacemaker). I saw it years later on an unforgettable Cleveland drive-in double bill with Goke.

BLOODY TRAIL

(Paragon, 1972) D/P: Richard Robinson S: Gale Robinson (Monteego)

Brad, an ex-soldier from Virginia, hops a train and is beaten and robbed. A black woman who nurses him turns out to be part of a group of renegade former slaves who have reverted to their tribal ways, complete with makeup and spears. The ending is extremely stupid, and it's all padded with real Civil War–era photos and sepia-tinted war footage from some other movie for flashbacks. It's a novel exploitation idea but is pretty slow going. Robert Mitchum's brother John and Rance Howard are lowlifes on the train. I imagine the video is cut, because except for a few brief scenes the expected sex and nudity are absent. Louis Sher (The Stewardesses) was the executive producer. Robinson explored racial problems again in his Heartbreak Hotel.

BLOODY WEDNESDAY

(Prism, 1984) D/P: Mark G. Gilhuis S/P: Philip Yordan (The Great American Massacre)

An auto-repair-shop worker (Raymond Elmendorf) who has lost his wife and job lives as a caretaker in an abandoned hotel. He imagines (or does he?) sex with his shrink, he talks to his teddy bear (the voice of Billy Curtis), and his bed sheet turns into a snake. Some mean punks give him a machine gun, and he uses it to kill everybody in a diner (in slow motion). It's an unpredictable movie inspired by the (real) California McDonald's massacre, with a moral message about what society can do to a person.

BLOWN AWAY

(Live, 1992) D: Brenton Spencer S: Robert C. Cooper P: Peter R. Simpson

Corey Haim is a ski-resort employee, and Nicole Eggert is the teen nympho who wants him to help kill her rich father. This "teen erotic thriller" also features Corey Feldman and Gary Farmer. It comes in R or unrated versions. Ray Sager was a producer.

BLOWN AWAY

(MGM, UA, 1994) D: Stephen Hopkins S: Joe Batteer, John Rice P: John Watson

This was the bomb movie that competed with Speed. It has a more complex plot and lots of flashbacks. Jeff Bridges stars as a Boston explosion-expert cop, Jimmy Dove. Tommy Lee Jones is a Northern Irish prison-escapee terrorist with a personal grudge who vows to kill Dove's violin-playing wife (Suzy Amis) and stepdaughter. With Forest Whitaker and Lloyd Bridges (then 81) as the uncle. It runs 121 minutes.

BLOWUP

(MGM, 1966) D/S: Michelangelo Antonioni S: Tonino Guerra P: Carlo Ponti UK/Italy

After his oblique trilogy L'Avventura, La Notte, and Eclisse, Antonioni went to England and created this international hit. David Hemmings is a rich, jaded London photographer who discovers he may have taken an incriminating picture of a murder. You might think about the Zapruder film of the Kennedy assassination as you watch Hemmings become obsessed with enlarging the photo to search for details. Vanessa Redgrave is top-billed, and the cast includes Sarah Miles, model Veruschka (as herself), Tsai Chin, and a rare look at the Yardbirds, with Jimmy Page and Jeff Beck. Jane Birkin and Gillian Hills (from Beat Girl) are in an "orgy" scene, and Birkin made it into the record books for being the first person in a major-release film to show pubic hair. MGM used a subsidiary called Premiere to release Blowup after it was denied a production-code seal. The rare MGM soundtrack features Herbie Hancock's music plus "Stroll On" by the Yardbirds. I saw a great-looking new print in Paris in the 80s and can recommend Blowup as thought-provoking, ahead-of-its-time entertainment (even if you don't like mimes).

BLUE COLLAR

(MCA, 1978) D/S: Paul Schrader S: Leonard Schrader P: Don Guest

The first film directed by Schrader, who had written Taxi Driver and Rolling Thunder, is a devastating look at how workers are kept in their place, written by Schrader's brother (who went on to make The Killing of America). Richard Pryor, Harvey Keitel, and Yaphet Kotto play Detroit auto-assembly-line workers who pull off a small union robbery and accidentally take an incriminating notebook. With Ed Begley Jr., Harry Bellaver, Cliff De Young, and Tracy Walter. The Ry Cooder soundtrack includes "Hard-Working Man," sung by Captain Beefheart. The film is from Universal.

BLUE DESERT

(Academy, 1990) D/S: Bradley Battersby S: Arthur Collins P: Joel Soisson, Michael Murphy

Craig Scheffer (Nightbreed) stars as a killer on a motorcycle in a small desert town. He and a cop (D. B. Sweeney) both want Courtney Cox.

THE BLUE GARDENIA

(Warner, 1953) D: Fritz Lang S: Charles Hoffman P: Alex Gottlieb

Anne Baxter thinks she's killed an artist (Raymond Burr) who made drunken advances to her. The police think she's guilty too, but a reporter (Richard Conte) attempts to prove her innocence. Based on a mystery by Vera Caspary (the author of Laura), it has a surprising ending. With Ann Sothern, George Reeves as a cop, and Nat "King" Cole (as himself, performing in a nightclub). Lang's next was The Big Heat. The next year Burr was the wife-killer in Rear Window.

THE BLUE IGUANA

(Paramount, 1988) D/S: John Lafia P: Steven Gold, Sigurjon Sighvatsson

Dylan McDermott stars in a bizarre detective/western spoof. He's hired by IRS agents Dean Stockwell and Tovah Feldshuh to go to El Diablo, Mexico, and recover millions of dollars. With Jessica Harper, Pamela Gidley, James Russo, and Flea. It was shot in Mexico.

THE BLUE LAGOON

(RCA, 1980) D/P: Randal Kleiser S: Douglas Day Stewart

Kleiser directed this remake of a 1949 British hit (which starred Jean Simmons) after he made Grease. Two little kids grow up together stranded on an island. After half an hour they become Brooke Shields and Christopher Atkins, making his film debut. (Atkins was in Playgirl the same year.) Nestor Almendros was the cinematographer. With Leo McKern and William Daniels. The copies were more exploitative. Sabrina Siani was in the Italian Blue Island (1981). Then Phoebe Cates starred in Paradise (1982). A sequel, Return to the Blue Lagoon (1991), starred Milla Jovovich and was a major flop.

BLUE MONKEY

(RCA, 1987) D: William Fruet S: George Goldsmith P: Martin Walters Canada (Green Monkey; Insect)

You could call this "Alien in a Hospital," but the slimy, fast-moving mutant "caterpillar" monster that can reproduce itself is pretty effective. The hospital it's in is filled with kids and drunken old ladies. Steve Railsback is the detective hero in this Sandy Howard production. With Gwynyth Walsh, Don Lake, Susan Anspach, John Vernon, and Joe Flaherty and Robin Duke (both from SCTV).

BLUE MOVIES

(Academy, 1986) D/S: Paul Koval, Ed Fitzgerald P: Maria Snyder

Two losers try to make a porno movie, and the mob moves in. This very cheaply made comedy features Lucinda Crosby (Cathy Lee's sister) as a porno star, Christopher Stone, Russell Johnson (from Gilligan's Island), Larry Linville (from *M*A*S*H*), and Don Calfa.

BLUE MURDERS

(1985) D/S: Charles Weiner S: Geoffrey Pico Canada (The Porn Murders)

A crime reporter searches for a psycho who kills people in the porno business. Made for TV and not very exciting.

BLUE PARADISE

(TWE, 1982) D/S: "John Wilder"/Luigi Russo S: Domenico Raffle P: Enzo Doria (Adam and Eve; Adam and Eve Against the Cannibals)

This wacked-out story features an erupting volcano and dinosaurs lifted from Ray Harryhausen's One Million BC (1966). The ancient couple (Mark Gregory and Andrea Goldman) also fight natives who roll a giant rock at them (just like in Raiders of the Lost Ark).

THE BLUES BROTHERS

(MCA, 1980) D/S: John Landis S/A: Dan Aykroyd P: Robert K. Weiss

John Belushi and Dan Aykroyd expanded their mediocre Saturday Night Live soul-men skits into a pretty fun movie full of car crashes. At least the musical-comedy/action film brought some of the original singers and musicians to a new audience. Watch for Cab Calloway ("Minnie the Moocher"), Ray Charles, Aretha Franklin (who does a killer version of "Think"), James Brown, and music by Steve Cropper and Donald "Duck" Dunn (of Booker T and the MGs), who appear as themselves. With John Candy, Henry Gibson as a Nazi, Charles Napier, Carrie Fisher, Kathleen Freeman, and bits by John Lee Hooker, Steven Spielberg, Steve Lawrence, Frank Oz, Twiggy, and Paul Reubens (Pee-wee Herman). More good R&B oldies are on the Atlantic soundtrack.

BLUE STEEL

(MGM, 1990) D/S: Kathryn Bigelow S: Eric Red P: Edward R. Pressman

This was disappointing, coming after Bigelow's Near Dark. Jamie Lee Curtis is a suspended New York City rookie cop blamed for murders committed by a schizo/psycho Wall Street commodities trader (Ron Silver). Silver overacts horribly, Curtis' character seems too thick sometimes, and it all gets too dumb pretty fast. With Elizabeth Pena, Louise Fletcher, Philip Bosco, Clancy Brown, and a wife-abuse subplot. There's a very violent street-chase shootout at the end. Bigelow married James Cameron the same year. Oliver Stone was an executive producer.

BLUE SUEDE SHOES

(1979) D: Curtis Clark P: Penny Clark UK

The first rock-and-roll weekend at the Great Yarmouth Holiday Camp is featured in a documentary. Rockers watch Ray Campi and others, and the late Bill Haley is seen in a 1978 London performance. Film clips of Gene Vincent, Eddie Cochran, and others are also shown.

BLUE THUNDER

(RCA/Columbia, 1983) D: John Badham S: Dan O'Bannon, Don Jakoby P: Gordon Carroll

A Nam-vet LA police pilot (Roy Scheider) who has flashbacks steals a deadly government surveillance/attack helicopter (developed for the 1984 Olympics), in an attempt to stop a right-wing, Nam-vet-pilot army colonel (Malcolm McDowell) whose conspiring to use the copter (also perfect for voyeurs) against LA ghetto residents. A super sky battle results. Warren Oates shows up too briefly (in his last role), and Candy Clark and Daniel Stern co-star. Badham made War Games the same year. There was an ABC-TV series based on Blue Thunder in 1984, and the more successful Air Wolf series was basically a copy of this movie.

BLUE VELVET

(Warner, 1986) D/S: David Lynch P: Fred Caruso

Dennis Hopper and Isabella Rossellini in Blue Velvet.

This one really took American audiences by surprise and got people to notice Dennis Hopper again. Lynch was even nominated for an Oscar! Blue Velvet is disturbing, long (2 hours), and fascinating even for the viewers who hated it. It was made by the ailing DEG movie studio run by Dino De Laurentiis, who had also backed Dune. Future Twin Peaks star Kyle McLachlan stars as Jeffrey Beaumont, in a town called Lumberville. Hopper is frightening as Frank Booth, and Isabella Rossellini is the victimized singer Dorothy. With Laura Dern (who went on to Wild at Heart), Dean Stockwell (who lip-syncs to Roy Orbison's "In Dreams"), Hope Lang, Priscilla Pointer, Brad Dourif, and Jack Nance. The soundtrack, composed by Angelo Badalamenti, is on Varèse Sarabande and includes Bobby Vinton's title hit from late 1963. You could also look for the animated The Alphabet and The Grandmother, Lynch's pre-Eraserhead shorts, on tape.

BOARDING HOUSE

(Paragon Classics, 1982) D: John Wintergate S: Jonema P: Peter Baahlu (Housegeist)

If you watch many horror tapes, you know that lots of them these days are (obviously) shot with video cameras (just like porno tapes). This historic, brain-damaged, overlong, bad LA horror movie with a synthesizer score was the first. It was transferred to 35mm, and in 1984 it actually played in theaters, advertised as being shot in "Horrorvision!" A long, hard-to-read computer scrawl, accompanied by loud, irritating beeps, informs us of the history of the cursed Hoffman house. We get solarized flashbacks, dreams, and flashforwards, along with a "ten years later" plot.

Jim (Hank Adly) is an irritating blow-dry blond with a gold earring, a tie-dyed muscle shirt, a cowboy hat, and leopard-skin briefs. He chants, "Om," and makes a bar of soap and a sock float. He buys the house and rents rooms to adoring young women. A laughable, "weird," limping, peeping-Tom, Nam-vet, punk gardener lurks. A doctor pulls his own guts out, a nurse hangs herself, a woman runs through a graveyard in a nightgown, another sees a (real) pig's head in the mirror, hands come out of a bed, and there's death by floating ice pick, electrocution by hair dryer, plus nudity—and a pie fight. Jonema, the scriptwriter, plays Victoria, lead singer of the 33 1/3 rock band. They play at a pool-side party. She gets lots of screen-time and closeups. When the killer female is revealed, she has an exorcist voice and breathes steam. The end is a psychic battle between her and Jim: "Focus! White light! White light!" You can pick up a rerelease copy for under 10 bucks in better check-cashing stores.

BOARDINGHOUSE BLUES

(Fang, 1948) D: Josh Binney S: Hal Seeger P: E. M. Glucksman

You might remember Jackie "Moms" Mabley as an old-lady comic on network TV during the 60s. Here she is, years earlier, starring in an all-black musical-comedy vaudeville-revue featuring many acts. It's a real find—it's "prehysterical!" The bare plot is about Moms needing money to keep the evil landlord from evicting her and her assortment of show-biz tenants. Comedy routines that must go back to the turn of the century are mixed with novelty acts, dancing, and singing. There's an acrobatic guy in a monkey suit, an amazing dancer with one arm and one leg, tap-dancers Stump and Stumpy, a great band, singer Bullmoose Jackson, and comics who tell drug jokes. Moms impersonates a Gypsy fortune-teller, tap-dances, makes jokes about Cab Calloway, serves "hot cakes and rabbit stew" for dinner, and says, "Open the door, Richard!" at the film's end. Moms also starred in Amazing Grace.

BOARDING SCHOOL

(Vestron, 1976) D: André Farwagi S: Paul Nicholas W. Germany (Hotel der Leidenschaftlichen; Passion Flower Hotel; Preppy School Girls; Virgin on Campus)

16-year-old Nastassja Kinski is an American girl at a Swiss boarding school during the 50s. She comes up with a plan for the students to pose as prostitutes to get boys from a nearby boys' school. With Fabiana Udenio and Kurt Raab, who was also the art director. This sex comedy was released several times to cash in on Kinski's fame. It was only her fourth role after Wim Wenders' Wrong Move (Falsche Bewewgung, 1974), the Hammer film To the Devil, a Daughter (1975), and For Your Love Only (1976), by Wolfgang Petersen.

BOB AND SALLY

(1948) D: Erle C. Kenton (The Story of Bob and Sally)

This road-show presentation, A Mom and Dad (1947) imitation, from "Social Guidance," includes real scenes of a normal and a Cesarean birth. A horrifying (real) VD sequence is shown near the end, after the live talk presented by "hygiene commentator Roger T. Miles." It was still playing in the late 50s. Kenton had been the director of the horror classic Island of Lost Souls (1933). His last film was One Too Many (1950).

BOBBIE JO AND THE OUTLAW

(Vestron, 1976) D/P: Mark L. Lester S: Vernon Zimmerman

Lynda Carter is a carhop and Marjoe Gortner is a bandit who thinks he's the reincarnation of Billy the Kid, in this Bonnie and Clyde copy from AIP. It takes place in modern-day New Mexico and features Belinda Belaski, Jesse Vint, Merrie Lynn Ross, Lynda Kimball, and a manic Gerrit Graham. Steve Brodie was the coproducer. Topless scenes of Carter (TV's former "Wonder Woman") from this exploitation movie have appeared in countless men's magazines over the years.

A giant Anita Ekberg in Fellini's Boccaccio '70 segment.

BOCA

(Republic, 1994) D: Rene Manzor, Walter Avancini, Zalman King S: Ed Silverstein P: Jeff Young, Joffre Rodriguez US/Brazil

Executive producer Zalman King used footage from a 1990 Brazilian film, a Brazilian documentary, and his own Wild Orchid and added new (uncredited) scenes to create a soft core sex movie that's also an exposé about the problems of Brazilian street kids. Rae Dawn Chong stars and relates flashbacks as an American TV reporter with Tarcisio Meira in new and older scenes as Boca, a crime lord, Martin Kemp as a photographer and Martin Sheen. Sex and violence scenes are shown in slo-mo.

BOCCACCIO '70

(VSOM, 1962) D/S: Federico Fellini, Luchino Visconti D: Vittorio De Sica S: Cesare Zavattini P: Carlo Ponti, Antonio Cervi France/Italy

Multidirector anthologies like this used to be common in Europe. I wish somebody could get the rights to all of them, disassemble them and release short compilations of each director's work (all Fellini, all Godard, etc.). Boccaccio '70 includes three stories. Visconti's stars Romy Schneider, and De Sica's stars Sophia Loren. (A fourth episode was cut from the US release.) Fellini was between La Dolce Vita and 8 1/2 when he created his episode, "The Temptation of Dr. Antonio," and it's the one you'll remember. A sexy woman on a billboard (Anita Ekberg) comes to life. She taunts and lifts up a moral crusader who has demanded that the poster be taken down. I wonder whether Fellini saw Attack of the 50 Ft. Woman.

THE BODY

(TZ, 1967) D: Romolo Guerrieri S: Ernesto Gastaldi Italy/France (The Sweet Body of Deborah; Il Dolce Corpo di Deborah)

Carroll Baker and Jean Sorel return to Geneva from their honeymoon. A man accuses the husband of causing the suicide of his girlfriend, played by Evelyn Stewart (real name Ida Galli). The "giallo" murder mystery has a double-twist ending. With George Hilton. This was the first of many features Baker made in Italy. Warner released it in the US.

BODY AND SOUL

(MGM, 1981) D: George Bowers S/A: Leon Isaac Kennedy P: Golan/Globus

In a remake of the 1947 John Garfield film, Leon Isaac Kennedy becomes a boxer to pay for his sister's operation. With Jayne Kennedy, Peter Lawford, Michael V. Gazzo, Perry Lang, Muhammed Ali (as himself), and Mel Welles. Lots of Playboy Playmates (Rosanne Katon, Johari Azizi, Laurie Senit, and Ola Ray) are in one scene. Jayne and Leon posed in Playboy, then were divorced the next year. She became a TV hostess and said she had been born again. Bowers also made The Hearse and became an editor of major features.

BODY BAGS

(Republic, 1993) D: John Carpenter, Tobe Hooper S: Dan Angel, Billy Brown P: Sandy King

Executive producer Carpenter is also the wise-cracking host, the Coroner, in this Showtime horror-anthology series pilot that's as good as Tales from the Crypt, which it copies. Alex Datcher works the night shift in "The Gas Station," with Robert Carradine, Sam Raimi, David Naughton, Buck Flower, and Wes Craven. "Hair" is a comic tale that has a sci-fi twist, with Stacy Keach, Sheena Easton, David Warner, Kim Alexis, and Deborah Harry. Mark Hamill receives the eye of a serial killer in "Eye," the lone segment by Hooper, with Twiggy, Charles Napier, and John Agar and Roger Corman (!) as doctors. KNB did FX, and Rick Baker did the special makeup.

BODY BEAUTIFUL

(1953) D/P: Max Nosseck S: Nat Tonchuck, Arnold Phillips (Miss Body Beautiful)

Susan Morrow (Cat Women of the Moon) stars as a model, with Robert Clarke, Noreen Nash, and O. Z. Whitehead. Nosseck later made The Garden of Eden, set in a nudist colony (1957). A WWII refugee, he settled in Germany in the 50s and made two films there.

BODY CHEMISTRY

(RCA, 1990) D: Kristine Peterson S: Jackson Barr P: Alida Camp

Corman/Concorde released this kinky Fatal Attraction copy set in a sex-research lab. Married Marc Singer has a wild affair with Lisa Pescia, but she won't let him go. They have sex at work, in a van in front of his house, and wherever and however she wants it. Pescia is pretty amazing as the crazed, jilted lover. She ends up threatening his wife and family. She also substitutes a tape of S&M sex featuring herself and Singer for his son's Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles video. With Mary Crosby as the wife and Joseph Campanella.

BODY CHEMISTRY II: THE VOICE OF A STRANGER

(Columbia, 1991) D: Adam Simon S: Jackson Barr, Christopher Wooden P: Alida Camp

Gregory Harrison (one-time star of the Trapper John, MD TV series) stars as a suicidal ex-cop and sexual deviant who beats up women. He ends up being used by radio psychiatrist Lisa Pescia (from the first film) for sexual experiments. She's being blackmailed by the radio-station owner (Morton Downey Jr.). With Robin Riker, director John Landis as a shrink, Clint Howard, and, in flashback sequences (lifted from other Corman/Concorde productions), Maria Ford and Monique Gabrielle. Simon also made Brain Dead.

BODY CHEMISTRY III: POINT OF SEDUCTION

(New Horizons, 1994) D: Jim Wynorski
S: Jackson Barr P/A: Andrew Stevens

Andrew Stevens is a big-deal TV producer who wants the rights to the story of the hostess of a cable sex show (Shari Shattuck) who has killed two of her lovers. They spend most of the movie fucking in places where they could easily be caught. Too bad either the sex scenes are too dark or Shattuck leaves her clothes on. When she's naked you can see her crotch cover. With Chick Vennera, Morgan Fairchild as Stevens' soap-opera-star wife, Robert Forster, Stella Stevens, Delia Sheppard, and Becky LeBeau. Followed by Body Chemistry IV.

BODY COUNT

(Midnight, 1986) D: Ruggiero Deodato
S: Alessandro Capone, Dardeno Sacchetti
P: Alessandro Fracassi Italy (Camping del Terror)

Teens are killed in the woods again, but there's a good US/Italian exploitation cast. Mimsy Farmer is married to camp owner David Hess but loves the sheriff (Charles Napier). With Ivan Rassimov, Bruce Penhall (the motorcycle-racing champ formally on CHIPs), and John Steiner. The music is by Claudio Simonetti of Goblin.

BODY COUNT

(Forum, 1987) D/S/P/E: Paul Leder
(The Eleventh Commandment)

A dangerous psycho (Bernie White) breaks out of an asylum and goes after his uncle (Dick Sargent, from Bewitched). With Greg Mullavey, who had been acting in Leder movies since 1970 (The Marigold Man) and was in many more, including I Dismember Mama (1974).

THE BODY DISAPPEARS

(1941) D: D. Ross Lederman S: Erna Lazarus, Scott Darling P: Bryan Foy

In this Warner Brothers comedy, a formula developed by Edward Everett Horton to bring back the dead makes people invisible instead, and soon half the cast is invisible. Jeffrey Lynn stars, with Jane Wyman (Ronald Reagan's wife at the time), Willie Best, Marguerite Chapman, Craig Stevens, and Natalie Schafer.

BODY DOUBLE

(RCA/Columbia, 1984) D/S/P: Brian De Palma
S: Robert J. Arrech

De Palma's worst showoff Hitchcock copy borrows shamelessly from Rear Window and Vertigo. A struggling actor who is a claustrophobic voyeur (the boring Craig Wasson) house-sits after being fired from a movie (Vampire's Kiss) and witnesses a murder committed by an "Indian" killer with a large electric drill. Melanie Griffith got the attention for playing porno star Holly Body. With Gregg Henry, Deborah Shelton, Dennis Franz, Barbara Crampton (in a sex scene), Brinke Stevens, Barbara Peckinpah, Alexandra Day, and porno actresses Annette Haven, Linda Shaw (as herself), and Windsor Taylor Randolph/Lisa Berenger. Frankie Goes to Hollywood does "Relax" during one of the MTV-inspired sequences. The score is by Pino Danaggio.

BODY FEVER

(Sinister, 1968) D/S/P/A: Ray Dennis Steckler
S: William Edgar P: Keith A. Webster
(Super Cool; The Last Original B Movie)

Ray Dennis Steckler, who acts under the name Cash Flagg, is best known for The Incredibly Strange Creatures That Stopped Living and Became Mixed-Up Zombies. This is his Bogart tribute/spoof. Down-and-out private detective Charles Smith (Steckler), who has to hitchhike everywhere, narrates the story. He's hired to find a girl, played by Carolyn Brandt (his wife at the time). She wears Catwoman-style tight clothes during robberies. The music is a great mixture of rock, bongos, and a full orchestra. The plot includes strippers, junk, and a gangster called Big Mac. Posters for Ray's other movies are on the wall in a bar, where Liz Renay is seen briefly. It's a typical dumb-fun Steckler production with an oddball cast, including Gary Kent (a regular in biker movies), Herb Robbins (who directed The Worm Eaters), Coleman Francis (who directed The Beast of Yucca Flats), and rockabilly singer Ron Haydock. The big late-60s question is: "Are you a bird? Birds fly!"

BODY HEAT

(Warner, 1981) D/S: Lawrence Kasdan P: Fred T. Gallo

Kathleen Turner (very sexy in her first role) baits a Florida lawyer (William Hurt) into killing her husband (Richard Crenna). This hit looks back to 40s film noir and copies Double Indemnity, but it in turn influenced countless "erotic thrillers" produced later. With Ted Danson and Mickey Rourke.

BODY LANGUAGE

(Paramount, 1992) D: Arthur Allan Seidelman
S: D. Gurskis, Brian Ross P: Robert M. Rolsky

Linda Purl is a psycho secretary out to take the job of her executive boss (Heather Locklear). She imitates her, then kills with a knife and a paperweight. This USA Network TV movie copies Single White Female. It also features Edward Albert as the big boss, James Acheson, and Jeff Kizer.

BODY MELT

(Prism, 1993) D/S/M: Philip Brophy S/P: Rod Bishop P: Daniel Scharf Australia

Injected vitamins from a health farm cause hallucinations and cause people to mutate, crack open, and melt. Two Italian kids from a Melbourne suburb become lost in the outback and visit a seemingly retarded family. The kids (whose father developed the drug) kill a kangaroo and eat its glands. This odd gore movie, which borrows a lot from David Cronenberg's movies, features comedy, some disturbing scenes, and full nudity. A mutant woman collects ribs, musclebound workers create more vitamins, and a blobby creature emerges from a pregnant woman. Gerald Kennedy stars as a police detective.

BODY OF A FEMALE

(1965) D/P: J. Elsworth, Julian Marsh S: Francis Ellie

Future director Roberta Findlay (aka "Anna Riva") stars as a Cuban stripper named Cindy who works near Coney Island. She's drugged and taken to a mansion owned by Spencer, a rich, crazy man (future director Lem Amero) by a drifter named Bruno. Spencer whips her and hunts down Cindy and Bruno on a beach. This b/w nudie also features a very rare appearance by Betty Page.

BODY OF EVIDENCE

(MGM, 1992) D: Uli Edel S: Brad Mirman P: Dino De Laurentiis

Did Madonna kill her millionaire record-biz lover with rough sex? Not many people cared, and they stayed away from this movie in droves. Willem Dafoe costars as the foolish defense lawyer who falls for her. With Joe Mantegna, Jurgen Prochnow, Anne Archer, and Julianne Moore. It's by the director of the much better Last Exit to Brooklyn. R and NC-17 tapes are available.

BODY OF INFLUENCE

(Academy, 1993) D: Gregory Hippolyte
S: David Schreiber P: Andrew Garoni

Blond Shannon Whirry (also in Gregory's Animal Instincts movies) seduces and ruins the life of a Beverly Hills shrink (Nick Cassavetes, who narrates). He videotapes sessions with "repressed" housewife patients who talk a lot and tell their dreams. Some sex scenes involve handcuffs, guns, and strangling, and there's talk about a serial killer. A detective (Richard Roundtree) says, "It wasn't difficult to figure out." I think I saw the tame R version. It was pretty boring. With Sandahl Bergman, Don Swayze, Sandra Margot (aka Tiffany Million), Monique Parent, and Anna Karin.

BODY PARTS

(Paramount, 1991) D/S: Eric Red S: Norman Snider P: Frank Mancuso Jr. Canada

The arm of a criminal psychologist (Jeff Fahey) is replaced by a brilliant but crazed woman doctor (Lindsay Duncan). Artist Brad Dourif (an acting high point) and an athlete receive other body parts that turn out to be from a condemned serial killer. Fahey starts losing control of his arm and is afraid he'll kill his own family. With Kim Delaney as his wife and Zakes Mokae (The Serpent and the Rainbow) as a perplexed cop. Body Parts seems pretty subdued until near the end, with car chases, gore effects (by Gordon Smith), and the fairly ridiculous mad doctor and her creation scene. It's full of plot implausibilities but has a standout car-accident scene. Just after its release, the Jeffrey Dahmer serial-killer story hit the news, and some theaters pulled the feature. The very good soundtrack on Varèse Sarabande is by Loek Dikker.

BODY PUZZLE

(Triboro, 1992) D: "Larry Louis"/ Lamberto Bava S: Bruce Martin Italy

The body of the husband of Tracy, a wealthy widow and editor (Joanna Pacula), is stolen. Soon body parts (an ear, a hand) continue to turn up in surprising places in her remote home. It seems that her husband was a promiscuous bisexual, so there are many suspects. Although it seems she'd be in constant hysterics, Tracy finds time to act cheerful and fall in love even after a severed penis shows up in her pool! Tom Arana (The Church) and Gianni Garko are two thick cops who should be fired. This movie is as stupid as Pieces (from 10 years earlier) without the gore. With Erica Blanc as a shrink, Susanna Javicoli (Suspiria), and John Morghen. Classical music (Moussorgsky's "A Night on Bald Mountain") was added to the soundtrack of the US version.

BODY ROCK

(HBO, 1984) D: Marcelo Epstein S: Desmond Nakano P: Jeffrey Shechtman

Lorenzo Lamas goes big-time as a club emcee in this PG-13 breakdancing movie. Lamas (son of 50s stars Fernando Lamas and Arlene Dahl) later became a direct-to-video action star. With Vicki Frederick, Cameron Dye, Ray Sharkey, and Grace Zabriskie. It was shot by Robby Mueller and directed by a guy who had done rock videos.

THE BODY SHOP: See DOCTOR GORE

BODY SHOT

(Triboro, 1993) D/P: Dimitri Logothesis S: Robert Ian Strauss P: Gene Margolis

Robert Patrick (Terminator II) stars as a blond LA paparazzo who becomes the patsy when a reclusive Madonna-type singer called Chelsea is killed. Michelle Johnson as a Chelsea lookalike is featured in several (pretty tame) sex scenes. The plot is filled with improbable nonsense. With Jonathan Banks, Ray Wise, and Kim Miyori as a clever detective. Charles Napier, Kenneth Tobey, and Liz Torres have brief roles. There's a scene at the Griffith Park observatory, and a cheap nightmare sequence. By the director of Slaughterhouse Rock.

BODY SLAM

(Nelson, 1987) D: Hal Needham S/P: Shel Lyton S: Steve Burkow P: Mike Curb

Dirk Benedict is a music promoter who gets into the wrestling world and takes a group of fighters on tour, in this comedy from DEG with Tanya Roberts, Billy Barty, John Astin, and Roddy Piper, Captain Lou Albano, the Wild Samoans, and other real wrestlers.

BODY SNATCHERS

(Warner, 1992) D: Abel Ferrara S: Stuart Gordon, Dennis Paoli, Nicholas St. John P: Robert H. Solo

This is the third version of Jack Finney's novel, this time with gun battles, explosions, and teen stars. The original was Invasion of the Body Snatchers (Republic, 1956). Tom Burman handled FX for this and the 1978 Philip Kaufman version (also produced by Solo). Gabrielle Anwar stars (and narrates) as a teen living on an Alabama army base with her parents when the pod people start taking over. Billy Wirth is her chopper-pilot boyfriend, Christine Elise is the rebellious daughter of the base commander (R. Lee Ermy), Terry Kinney is her EPA-investigator father, Meg Tilly is her stepmother, and Forest Whitaker is a medical officer who tries to warn people. Larry Cohen has co-story credit. It was filmed at an abandoned Air Force base near Selma.

BODYWAVES

(New Horizons, 1991) D: P.J. Pesce S: B. Zenga P: Mike Elliot

Two LA tanning-lotion salesmen teach some teen nerds how to score. This dumb comedy features dreams and fantasy segments. With Sean'a Arthur, Sherrie Rose, Sandra Wild, Larry Linville, and Dick Miller.

BOG!

(Genesis, 1978) D: Don Keeslar S: Carl N. Kitt P: Michelle Marshall

A creature kills people and drains their blood in a swamp, in this PG-rated movie with veteran Hollywood stars. Gloria DeHaven plays the female lead and an old witch, Marshall Thompson is a doctor, and Aldo Ray is the sheriff. The man-in-a-rubber-suit monster is saved for the end. With Leo Gordon and lots of odd freeze frames. It was filmed in Wisconsin

BOGGY CREEK II

(Media, 1983) D/S/P/A: Charles B. Pierce

The official PG-rated sequel to Pierce's The Legend of Boggy Creek (1972) was released by Aquarius and played on 42nd Street as The Barbaric Beast of Boggy Creek. An Arkansas professor (Pierce) and his students (including Pierce's real-life son) camp out in Texarkana to obtain evidence of the beast (a man in a gorilla suit). Convincing locals are interviewed about what they saw.

BOILING POINT

(Warner, 1993) D/S: James B. Harris P: Marc Frydman

Wesley Snipes stars as a US Treasury agent in LA. His partner (Dan Hedaya) is killed, and he's about to be reassigned to Newark. Dennis Hopper (in another standout performance, as Red Diamond) and Viggo Mortensen are the psychotic-killer villains. Snipes and Hopper hunt each other amid crack addicts and whores. It's based on a novel by Gerald Petrievich. With Lolita Davidovich as a hooker. Seymour Cassel as a counterfeiter, Tony LoBionco as a Mafia loanshark, Valerie Perrine, and James Tolkan.

BOIN-N-G

(SW, 1963) D/S: Herschell Gordon Lewis S/P: David F. Friedman

One of five Lewis/Friedman features released in 1963 (the most famous was Blood Feast), this color comedy about making a nudie movie was shot in Barrington, Illinois. An inexperienced producer and director (not unlike Lewis and Friedman) hire a cameraman, audition naked women, and film them posing and walking around an estate on a private lake. Everything goes wrong, but a distributor is happy to buy the finished product. William Kerwin (who was in five 1963 titles) stars, with Linda Cotten (The Adventures of Lucky Pierre), Thomas Sweetwood, Vickie Miles, and Laurence Wood. Producer/screenwriter David F. Friedman also did the sound.

BOLERO

(IVE, 1984) D/S/C: John Derek P/A: Bo Derek

In the Dereks' follow-up to Tarzan, Bo is Ayre McGilvary, a virgin in the Sahara Desert in the 20s. Bo rides a horse naked, is covered with honey, and has slo-mo sex scenes. Cannon generated a lot of publicity by releasing this film unrated. With George Kennedy, Olivia D'Abo (the teen daughter of the former singer for Manfred Mann), and Andrea Occhipinti as Angel, the bullfighter. Available in R or unrated versions. A (Menahem) Golan/(Yoram) Globus production.

THE BONEYARD

(Prism, 1990) D/S: James Cummins P: Richard F. Brophy

Here's a film with a difference. It's suspenseful, serious, and surprising but has some unexpected laughs too. The scary, slimy, mummylike little cannibal zombies in an old city morgue are Asian-style Kyoshe kids with tails. Star Deborah Rose plays the reluctant-psychic heroine, who just happens to weigh about 300 pounds. Former Corman regular Ed Nelson (The Brain Eaters) is a patient cop called Jersey, Phyllis Diller (without a wig) is a mean, nasty old woman who runs the morgue, and Norman Fell (!), with a ponytail and earring, is a mortician. You won't believe the Big Daddy Roth–like monster Diller becomes, or the giant-poodle monster!! Cummins also did the FX. Filmed in Statesville and Ashville, North Carolina.

BONNIE AND CLYDE: THE TRUE STORY

(1992) D/S: Gary Hoffman

Tracy Needham and Dana Ashbrook star as the young, real-life criminals in a TV movie that was shot in East Texas. With Doug Savant and Michael Brown.

BONNIE'S KIDS

(Forum, 1973) D/S: Arthur Marks P: Charles Stroud

Tiffany Bolling and Robin Mattson star as sisters in this road picture. They're on the run after having killed their abusive father. With Alex Rocco and Timothy Brown as hitmen who are after them, Scott Brady, Leo Gordon, Steve Sandor as a stud detective, and Sharon Gless as a waitress.

BOOB TUBE

(UA, 1975) D/S: Christopher Odin P: Jerry Adler, Al Burton

This X-rated, soft-core soap-opera spoof (with commercials) is more of a nudie movie than movies like Tunnelvision. With John Alderman and Sharon Kelly, both funny veterans of many adults-only movies, and Becky Sharpe. From Independent International. The unrelated Boob Tube Strikes Back (aka The Fabulous Fanny) (1978) was directed by Lee Frost.

THE BOOBY HATCH

(1975) D/S/P: Jack Russo D/S/A: Rudy Ricci P: Russell Steiner (The Liberation of Cherry Janowski; Dirty Book Store)

Here's a sex comedy that some of the people behind the original Night of the Living Dead conjured up without George Romero. It was released by International Artists.

BOOGEYMAN II

(VCI, 1982) D: Bruce Starr
S/P/A: Uli Lommel S/A: Suzanna Love

Former Fassbinder actor Uli Lommel plays Micky Lombard, a director filming the story of the lone survivor from The Boogeyman (Suzanna Love, his real-life wife). Lots of footage from the original feature (with John Carradine) is used in flashbacks. Lommel works out his hatred of Hollywood by showing how the director is forced to add sex and violence. Obnoxious show-biz types are killed at a pool party, and there's death by electric toothbrush. The video was banned in the UK. Lommel went on to direct many more horror and action features that usually went directly to video.

BOOK OF NUMBERS

(1973) D/P/A: Raymond St. Jacques S: Larry Spiegel

Raymond St. Jacques and Philip Michael Thomas star as waiters who become involved in a Depression-era numbers racket in Arkansas. With singer Freda Payne and D'Urville Martin. The music is by Sonny Terry and Brownie McGhee. There's a Brut soundtrack. It was filmed in Texas.

BOOM IN THE MOON

(USA, 1945) D: Jaime Salvador S: Victor Trivas
P: Alexander Salkind Mexico (El Moderno Barba Azul)

Buster Keaton, in his last starring role, is a WWII soldier who thinks he's landed in Japan but is in Mexico. Local authorities think he's the Bluebeard killer of local women and sentence him to death. He and another condemned man are pardoned so that they can be guinea pigs in a rocket to the moon. They land back in Mexico and think they're on the moon. This rare, dubbed comedy will probably disappoint fans of both science fiction and Keaton.

THE BOOST

(HBO, 1989) D: Harold Becker
S: Darryl Ponicsan P: Daniel H. Blatt

New York couple Sean Young and James Woods move to LA (their first big mistake) so that he can sell tax shelters. He eventually becomes a bankrupt coke addict who steals from his boss. It was based on Ludes, by Benjamin Stein (the deadpan teacher from Ferris Bueller's Day Off). This drug-hysteria movie is remembered by most because Woods sued Young for $6 million in 1989, charging harassment. The publicity didn't help either one of their careers. The executive producer was Julia Phillips (author of the memoir You'll Never Eat Lunch in This Town Again). With Amanda Blake and Grace Zabriske.

BOOT HILL MAMAS: See OUTLAW WOMEN

BOOTLEG

(AIP, 1988) D/S/P: John Prescott
P: Trevor Hawkins Australia

John Flaus is a detective involved with prostitutes, evil government agents, and anti-nuke terrorists.

BOOTLEGGERS

(1974) D/P: Charles B. Pierce
S: Earl J. Smith (Bootlegger's Angel)

Paul Koslo and his backwoods Arkansas cousin fool around, start fights, spend time in jail, and shoot the guys who killed their grandpa (Slim Pickens). With Jaclyn Smith as Sally Fannie. Pierce made the PG-rated Howco release after The Legend of Boggy Creek (1972).

BORA-BORA

(1968) D/S: Ugo Libertore
P: Alfredo Bini France/Italy

AIP released this R-rated tale of a man looking for his wife on some South Sea islands. He ends up with a 15-year-old native wife and a mistress. Haydee Politoff and Corrado Pani star. The music is by Lex Baxter.

BORDER RADIO

(Pacific Arts, 1984) D/S: Allison Anders, Dean Lent, Kurt Voss P: Marcus De Leon

Real-life rockers Chris D. (from the Flesh Eaters), John Doe (from X), and Dave Alvin (from the Blasters) take money owed them for a gig and run to Mexico. This semi-improvised b/w feature was made over a period of three years by UCLA students who had worked on Wenders' Paris, Texas (cowritten by Anders) and was released in 1987. With one-time Corman actress Luana Anders and Green on Red.

BORIS AND NATASHA

(Academy, 1988) D/A: Charles Martin Smith
S: Charles Fradlin, Linda Favila P: Jonathan D. Krane

Dave Thomas and Sally Kellerman (the executive producer, who also sings the theme song) star in a live-action movie based on Jay Ward's Potsylvanian spy characters from the Rocky and Bullwinkle TV cartoon series. The narrated comedy plot is about a scientist with a time-reversal microchip. With Andrea Martin, John Candy, Alec Rocco, Sid Haig, Anthony Newley, Christopher Neame, Arye Gross, and John Travolta (as himself). MCEG, the company that produced the film, went bankrupt, and it debuted on Showtime in 1992.

B.O.R.N.

(Prism, 1988) D/S/A: Russ Hagen
S/A: Hoke Howell P/A: Claire Hagen

The title stands for "Body Organ Replacement Network." William Smith and Russ Tamblyn are plastic-surgeon villains who sell human organs and kidnap Russ Hagen's three daughters. With P. J. Soles (who was also the coproducer), Debra Lamb, Amanda Blake (from Gunsmoke—this was her last role before she died of AIDS), Rance and Clint Howard, Dawn Wildsmith, Kelly Mullis, and Lorraine Michaels (from Playboy).

BORN AMERICAN

(Magnum, 1986) D/S: Renny Harlin
S/P: Markus Selin Finland/US

Three young Americans in Lapland cross the USSR border, go to jail, are tortured by the KGB, and escape. It stars Chuck Norris' son Mike, David Coburn, and Steve Durham, with Thalmus Rasulala and Albert Salmi. Harlin, from Helsinki, is really named Lauri Harjula. He went on to huge features like Die Hard II. This movie, from Concorde/Cinema Group, was banned in his native Finland, which still had a "special relationship" with its Soviet neighbor at the time.

BORN IN EAST LA

(MCA, 1987) D/S/A: Cheech Marin
P: Peter MacGregor Scott

This comedy is based on a comedy record and video by Marin that was a spoof of a Bruce Springsteen hit. Despite that, it's pretty funny and was a great concept. Rudy Robles (Marin), a man in Los Angeles who can't speak Spanish, is rounded up with illegal aliens and deported to Mexico. With Daniel Stern, Paul Rodriguez, Jan-Michael Vincent, Jason Scott Lee, and Neith Hunter as the redhead. Cheech does a funny version of "Purple Haze." The movie is from Universal. The TV version is longer.

BORN IN FLAMES

(1983) D/S/P: Lizzie Bordon S: Hisa Tayo

In New York City of the future, a women's army plans to overthrow the government. This 16mm feminist feature took five years to complete. It ends with explosions at the World Trade Center. Honey stars, with singer Adele Bertei and Kathy Bigelow.

BORN INNOCENT

(Program Hunters/Westernworld, 1974) D: Donald Wrye S: Gerald DiPego P: Bruce Cohn Curtis

Linda Blair is a 14-year-old runaway in a harsh, realistic reformatory. The infamous rape-with-a-broomstick scene was cut in the US after a lawsuit against NBC-TV but remains in European- release versions. With Joanna Miles, Mary Murphy, and Janit Baldwin. Kim Hunter and Richard Jaeckel are the parents. It was one of three network-TV movies Blair made in between Exorcist movies. She later went back to jail in Chained Heat and Red Heat. It was filmed in New Mexico.

BORN KILLER

(AIP, 1988) D: Kimberly Casey S/P: David Prior S/A: Ted Prior P: David Winters

Two escaped cons attack some vacationing teenagers during a war game with paint guns. With Ty Hardin, Robert Z'Dar, Fritz Mathews, and Adam Tucker.

BORN OF FIRE

(Vidmark, 1986) D/P: Jamil Dehlavi S: Raficq Abdullah P: Therese Pickard UK

Fans of El Topo may appreciate this beautifully filmed, confusing, and sometimes disturbing mystical tale. Peter Firth stars as a British concert flutist who goes to Turkey and has a musical duel with an evil-master fire-spirit magician (Oh-Tee). It's chock full of parallel events, paradoxes, symbolism, puzzles, hallucinations, and incredible visuals. A female astronomer (Susan Crowley) has sex with a (real) deformed dwarf and gives birth to an insect monster. A skull eclipses the moon, a man becomes a giant baboon, and there's lots of nudity, blood, snakes, and maggots. James Galway provided the flute-playing. It was filmed in Turkey.

BORN TO BE BAD

(1950) D: Nicholas Ray S: Charles Schnee P: Robert Sparks

Joan Fontaine is Christabel Caine, "Man-bait!" in this RKO release. In a plot like a Hugo Haas movie, she ruins the lives of both novelist Robert Ryan and millionaire Zachary Scott. Mel Ferrer and Joan Leslie are also in the cast. It followed Ray's Knock on Any Door (1949).

BORN TO BOOGIE

(MPI, 1972) D/S/P: Ringo Starr S/A: Marc Bolan

Find out what "TRexstasy" was all about. T. Rex concert footage ("Telegram Sam," "Jeepster") is mixed with staged sequences, including a surreal mad tea party and acoustic versions of some hits. Elton John and Ringo also appear in this 75-minute letterboxed Apple Films feature. The year it was released star Marc Bolan and T. Rex had five top-10 hits in England. It was a busy year for Starr too. He was in Blindman and Concert for Bangladesh. Bolan died in a car accident in 1977. A double soundtrack was released in England.

BORN TO KILL

(1947) D: Robert Wise S: Eve Green, Richard Macaulay P: Herman Schlom M: Constantin Bakaleinikoff

Lawrence Tierney is incredible as a sullen psycho killer who wants his wife's divorced sister (Claire Trevor). He also wants to "fix it so I can spit in everybody's eye." It's based on James Gunn's novel Deadlier Than the Male and is one of the darker movies of the 40s. With Walter Slezak, Elisha Cook Jr., Philip Terry, and Audrey Long, Tierney was also in The Devil Thumbs a Ride at RKO the same year.

THE BOSTON BLACKIE SERIES

Columbia released 14 features (1941–49), all starring Chester Morris as an ex-thief, con man, and part-time magician who solved crimes. Series regulars were Richard Lane as a police detective and George E. Stone as Blackie's friend Runt. Some were directed by big names like Robert Florey, Edward Dmytryk, and Budd Boetticher. Chance of a Lifetime (1943) was the first feature directed by William Castle. There was also a radio show, then a TV series starring Kent Taylor.

Morris also played the hypnotist in The She Creature.

BORN TO WIN

(MGM, 1971) D: Ivan Passer S: David Scott Milton P: Philip Langer (Addict)

George Segal stars as a New York City junkie and thief, in this black comedy shot on location. It was Passer's first American feature. With Paula Prentiss, Karen Black as Parm, Hector Elizondo, Andy Robinson as a killer, and the then-unknown Robert De Niro in a small role as a cop.

THE BORROWER

(Cannon, 1989) D: John McNaughton S: Mason Nage, Richard Fire P: R. P. Sekon, Steven A. Jones

An alien is punished by being sent to Earth in human form but needs to replace its head every once in a while. It becomes a hunter (Tom Towles), than a homeless man (Antonio Fargas). The alien also retains (parts of) the memory of each victim. Meanwhile, a violent rapist is after cop Rae Dawn Chong. Most of The Borrower takes place in downtown LA, where a zombie-like, bloody man with women's sunglasses wouldn't cause alarm. This is an awkward, slow-moving mixture of a serious, gritty cop drama, a horror movie, and odd humor. It's a surprise when the alien uses a dog's head, but it doesn't really work as it should have. It's also irritating when the alien, who only changes heads, also has different-sized bodies. With Don Gordon, Pam Gordon, Bentley Mitchum, Madchen Amick videotaping a band, a Henry poster, a Cleveland joke, and the Goodyear blimp. This delayed second feature by the maker of Henry finally played some midnight dates in 1991, after the original distributor went bankrupt. Sex, Drugs, and Rock and Roll (1991) was McNaughton's third feature.

BOSS

(Magnum, 1974) D/P: Jack Arnold S/P/A: Fred Williamson (Boss Nigger; Black Bounty Hunter, Big Black Bold Boss)

Williamson and D'Urville Martin star as bounty hunters in the 1870s. This comic action movie treats racial problems in a humorous way. They free a slave woman (Carmen Hayworth), and become the allies of some Mexicans. The cast includes R. G. Armstrong, William Smith (who had been in Hammer with Williamson) as a racist outlaw, Barbara Leigh, Don "Red" Barry, and Bruce Gordon. It was Arnold's last theatrical feature and was a PG-rated Dimension release. Williamson and Arnold had also made Black Eye.

THE BOSTON STRANGLER

(Fox, 1968) D: Richard Fleischer S: Edward Anhalt P: Robert Fyer

Tony Curtis is schizophrenic plumber Albert De Salvo in this serial-killer movie based on the best-seller by Gerold Frank. De Salvo was convicted of killing 13 women in the Boston area from 1962 to 1964. Henry Fonda plays the assistant DA who sets up the investigation to find the killer. A psychic is called in, and every known sex offender is questioned. With George Kennedy, Murray Hamilton, William Hickey as a pathetic suspect with a handbag fetish, Hurd Hatfield as a gay suspect, Sally Kellerman as an almost victim, William Marshall, Jeff Corey, James Brolin, and John Cameron Swayze. The long (two-hour) Fox film uses a multi-split-screen technique for some sequences, includes references to the JFK funeral, and was filmed mostly in Boston. Tony Curtis' voice was also used in Rosemary's Baby the same year.

BOULEVARD

(Live, 1994) D: Penelope Buitenhuis S/A: Rae Dawn Chong P: Peter Simpson, Ray Sager

Chong stars as a hooker who sees a pimp (long-haired Lou Diamond Phillips) commit a murder. She also tries to help a woman (Kari Wuhrer) fleeing from an abusive husband. With Joel Bissonette and Lance Henriksen as a cop. The music is by Ian Thomas.

BOULEVARD NIGHTS

(Warner, 1979) D: Michael Pressman S: Desmond Nakano P: Bill Benenson

Richard Yniguez and Danny De La Paz star as two Mexican-American brothers involved with street gangs. This serious anti-gang movie was filmed on location in LA, where Chicano groups protested the opening.

BOUND AND GAGGED: A LOVE STORY

(Triboro, 1993) D/S: Daniel Appleby

Ginger Lynn Allen cheats on her abusive husband (Chris Mulkey) with a woman (Elizabeth Saltarrelli). When they're discovered and the wife wants to end the relationship, the lover kidnaps her and takes her to a "deprogrammer" (Karen Black!). It's an unrated black comedy.

BOUND FOR GLORY

(MGM, 1976) D: Hal Ashby S: Robert Getchell
P: Robert F. Blumofe, Harold Leventhal

David Carradine is the young Woody Guthrie, hopping trains, hitchhiking, and singing during the years 1936–40. Songs include "Deportees" and "This Land Is Your Land." With Ronny Cox, Melinda Dillon as Guthrie's wife, Gail Strickland, Randy Quaid, M. Emmet Walsh, Ji-Tu Cumbuka, and James Hong. Haskell Wexler's cinematography received an Oscar (this was the first feature to be partially shot with a Steadycam). It's one of the best (and at 150 minutes, the longest) of all the films on the Depression and was nominated for several Oscars. The United Artists soundtrack includes cuts by Woody Guthrie, Arlo Guthrie, the Weavers, and others. Ashby made the hit Coming Home next. Carradine went on to Ingmar Bergman's The Serpent's Egg, then more drive-in movies.

THE BOUNTY HUNTER

(1954) D: André de Toth S: Winston Miller P: Samuel Bischoff

This Randolph Scott western was shot in 3-D but released flat by Warner Brothers. With Dolores Dorn, Marie Windsor, Ernest Borgnine, Dub Taylor, and Fess Parker. De Toth (who was blind in one eye) had already directed the 3-D features House of Wax (with Vincent Price) and The Stranger Wore a Gun (with Scott).

THE BOWERY BOYS SERIES

Members of the Dead End Kids became the Bowery Boys at Monogram in 1946. Some of them stayed for 12 years and an incredible 48 features. When Monogram went upscale in 1953 and became Allied Artists, they kept making Bowery Boys movies (and Bomba movies). Sach (Huntz Hall) was in all 48 Bowery Boys titles. Slip (Leo Gorcey) quit in 1956, and was replaced by Stanley Clements. By 1958 Hall was 38 years old and had been playing basically the same "boy" since Dead End debuted on Broadway in 1936! A lot of the boys' adventures deal with fantasy, haunted houses, crazy experiments, ghosts, time travel, and even the Devil. While some hate these comedies, others collect them, and there's a book called The Bowery Boys (Citadel) if you need the details. Warner and Grapevine released some of them on tape starting in 1992. Spook Busters (1946), Bowery Buckeroos (1947), Hard Boiled Mahoney (1947), Blues Busters (1950), Ghost Chasers (1951), and Clipped Wings (1953) were released first. The Bowery Boys Revisited (Parade, 1991) is a good overview, with trailers, film clips, some outtakes, and interviews.

Bela Lugosi and Angelo Rossitto meet the East Side Kids in Spooks Run Wild.

BOUNTY HUNTER

(AIP, 1989) D/S/A: Robert Ginty
S: Thomas Baldwin P: Fritz Mathews

A corrupt Oklahoma sheriff (Bo Hopkins) steals land from Indians. The plot was stolen from 1955's Bad Day at Black Rock. First-time director Robert Ginty stars as a man who returns home to avenge the death of his Nam-vet Indian buddy. With Loeta Waterdown and a score by Rita Coolidge.

BOUNTY TRACER

(Republic, 1992) D: Kurt Anderson
S: Caroline Olsen P: Pierre David

Lorenzo Lamas stars as a kickboxing bounty hunter whose brother has been killed. He teams up with some East LA homeboys to battle Mathias Hues and Cyndi Pass. Also with Anthony Peck and Whip Hubley.

BOXING BABES

(AIP, 1986) D/P: Stewart Dell (Foxy Boxing)

In a Long Beach, California, club, girls in bikinis dance, then box (losing their tops in the process). This tape includes three fights and was reissued because one of the fighters is Traci Lords. Also with Penthouse Pet Ginger Miller.

BOXING HELENA

(Orion, 1992) D/S: Jennifer Chambers Lynch
P: Carl Mazzocone

Sherilyn Fenn is an accident victim who loses her legs. A rich and sick voyeur surgeon (Julian Sands) who has been obsessed with her removes her arms and keeps her captive on a pedestal in his mansion. It's a "metaphor" that has a cheat ending. The Fine Line release (originally planned to star Madonna) was the debut of the 24-year-old daughter of David Lynch. It gained publicity when Kim Basinger was sued for around $9 million for backing out of the leading role. Then the MPAA threatened an NC-17 rating. With Bill Paxton, Kurtwood Smith, Art Garfunkel, Betsy Clark, and Nicolette Scorsese. The music is by Graham Revell. The Orion laserdisc is a longer "director's cut" with audio commentary and other extras.

A BOY, A GIRL

(1969) D/S/E: John Derek
P: Jack Hanson (The Sun's Up)

This is the only movie Derek directed that didn't star one of his wives, and it was shot in 16mm. Dean Martin's son Dino Jr. (from Dino, Desi, and Billy) stars with Airion Fromer. They're 15-year-olds who fall in love, but after a friend dies in a motorcycle crash, she goes away with a rich man who gives her a horse and he takes LSD with an older woman. With Karen Steele, Kerwin Mathews, Peggy Lipton, and Michael Nader. Cannon rereleased it in 1970 under a new title. Derek also wrote the songs sung by the Jamme, a group whose LP was produced by John Phillips.

THE BOYS

(1962) D/P: Sidney J. Furie S: Stuart Douglas UK

A group of London teddy boys (and one girl) are accused of murdering an old man for his money. Richard Todd is the prosecuting attorney at their trial, and Robert Morley is the defense attorney. Dudley Sutton and Jess Conrad (Horrors of the Black Museum) are two of the accused. With Patrick Magee, Felix Aylmer, Ian Fleming, and Wilfrid Brambell and Roy Kinnear (both soon to show up in Beatles movies). The fine instrumental music in this 123-minute feature is by the Shadows (an EP was released in England). Furie made The Leather Boys next.

BOY SLAVES

(RKO, 1939) D/P: P. G. Wolfson
S: Albert Bein, Ben Orkow

Teen lawbreakers are exploited at a southern turpentine plant. Anne Shirley stars with James McCallion and Roger Daniel. This serious exposé was considered in bad taste in the US, and it received an "H certificate" in the UK.

THE BOYS NEXT DOOR

(Starmaker, 1985) D: Penelope Spheeris
S: Glen Morgan, James Wong P: Keith Rubenstein, Sandy Howard

Maxwell Caulfield and Charlie Sheen are Southern California high-school grads who go on a murder and rape spree on the way to LA. With Patti D'Arbanville, Moon Zappa, and Kenneth Cortland. It's a pretty violent film from New World.

BOYS' PRISON

(1954) D/S: Willis Goldbeck S: Jack Andrews
P: Ray Alcorn (Johnny Halliday)

William Bendix stars as a retired calvary officer who rehabilitates a kid (Allen Martin). Astor advertised it as "the story of teenage terror!" when it was rereleased, but it was really more of an uplifting family feature filmed at the Indiana Boys' School in Bloomington. The original release, from United Artists, had a cross-promotion scheme involving Tootsie Rolls. With Hoagy Carmichael, who sings, and Stanley Clements.

THE BOY WHO COULD FLY

(Lorimar, 1986) D/S/A: Nick Castle P: Gary Adelson

An uplifting PG film that deals with serious subjects (like suicide), centering on an autistic boy (Jay Underwood) who maybe can fly. With Bonnie Bedelia, Fred Savage, Colleen Dewhurst, Fred Gwynne, Louise Fletcher, and Lucy Deakins, and bits by directors John Carpenter and Tommy Wallace.

THE BOY WHO CRIED BITCH

(1991) D: Juan López Campanella
S: Catherine Mary Levin P: Louis Tancredi

A disturbed 12-year-old (Harley Cross, from The Believers) is thrown out of prep school, then out of a psychiatric hospital. He leads his younger brothers astray and threatens his mother (Karen Young) with an axe. It's a believable first effort by an NYU student from Argentina who said he wanted to see what "Manson, the Hillside strangler, and Jon Hinckley were like as children." With Jesse Bradford and Moira Kelly.

BOYZ IN THE HOOD

(Columbia, 1991) D/S: John Singleton
P: Steve Nicolaides

Real-life violence at openings of this serious look at life in urban LA gained it a lot of publicity. Lawrence Fishburne plays the strong single dad of Cuba Gooding Jr. Ice Cube costars as one of the local guys going nowhere fast. With Nia Long (from The Guiding Light), Angela Bassett, Tyra Ferrell, Regina King, and Morris Chestnut. Heard but unseen helicopters in South Central LA are a constant presence. The music is by Stanley Clarke. The 23-year-old director made Poetic Justice (1993) next.

BRADDOCK: MISSING IN ACTION III

(Media, 1988) D: Aaron Norris S/A: Chuck Norris
S: James Bruner P: Golan/Globus

Norris goes back to Nam again to look for his Vietnamese wife and son, and he rescues some Amerasian children and a priest while he's there. With Aki Aleong as a sadistic Vietnamese general and Miki King. Four Filipino soldiers died while working as extras. In 1988, Norris' autobiography, The Secret of My Inner Strength, was published, and he campaigned for George Bush.

THE BRAIN (1971) = BRAIN OF BLOOD

THE BRAIN

(IVE, 1988) D: Edward Hunt S: Barry Pearson
P: Anthony Kramreither Canada

David Gale (Dr. Hill in Reanimator) is Dr. Blake, the local TV host of Independent Thinkers on Channel 9. He commands a giant killer brain and brainwashes the locals, causing them to hallucinate and commit murder and suicide. James (Tom Breznahan, from Twice Dead), a high-school troublemaker with a high IQ, is sent to the celebrity doctor by his parents. Mom says, "Dr. Blake wouldn't be on TV if he wasn't good!" James has electrodes attached to his head and imagines the female assistant topless. Soon he's hallucinating like crazy and on the run with his blond girlfriend (Cyndy Preston), who works at a 7–Eleven type of store, trying to warn the people busy watching Blake on TV. This movie borrows ideas from David Cronenberg's films (as did Hunt's 1977 Plague) and from Invasion of the Body Snatchers, Strange Invaders, Nightmare on Elm Street, and even Fiend Without a Face, but it's a fun, action-packed science-fiction/horror movie. Some of the low-budget special effects are well done, but others are laughable. The brain becomes a big, scary, floating face with movable teeth that eats people whole, people are decapitated, and characters have surprising hallucinations.

BRAIN DAMAGE (1971) = BRAIN OF BLOOD

BRAIN DAMAGE

(Paramount, 1987) D/S/E: Frank Henenlotter
P: Edgar Eivens

Rich Herbst (aka Rich Hearst, from The Guiding Light) stars as young Brian. Elmer is an animated, hallucination-inducing, eel-like parasite (with the voice of Zacherly!) that injects "juice" into Brian and sings in the bathtub. Brian tries to go "cold turkey" in a hotel room. "I don't get a brain, you don't get my juice," says Elmer. "We'll see who cracks first." This surprising drug-addiction/horror movie premiered at the Cine 42 on 42nd Street. It was cut even more than the R-rated theatrical version on tape but is available complete and uncut in the UK. With Beverly Bonner and Ari Roussimoff. Jim Muro operated the Steadycam, and Bob Martin wrote the novelization. This was Henenlotter's second feature (there's a Basket Case in-joke appearance on the subway) and is one of his best.

BRAIN DEAD

(MGM, 1990) D/S: Adam Simon
S: Charles Beaumont P: Julie Corman

Bill Pullman stars as neurologist Dr. Rex Martin. Bill Paxton, his corporate friend, blackmails him, making him go to a hospital to see Halsey, a crazy, devious, paranoid accountant who has slaughtered his own family but has valuable secrets locked in his mind. Bud Cort takes the bizarre-acting honors as the funny and scary Halsey. "Cosmetic" brain surgery and shock therapy lead to personality switches, horrible visions, dreams in dreams, nightmares, and flashbacks, making Brain Dead hard to follow but a good trip movie. The seriousness is ruined by characters running around with valuable, rare brains in jars, usually stored on insecure shelves you know will tip over, and a silly ending. With Nicholas Pryor as a doctor and a blood-spattered hitchhiker who keeps reappearing, Patricia Charbonneau, and George Kennedy. The script was written by Charles Beaumont (known for his Twilight Zone episodes), who died in 1967. The director was only 28.

BRAIN DONORS

(Paramount, 1992) D: Denis Duggan S: Pat Proft

You'd have to be crazy to remake a Marx Brothers comedy, but this is basically A Night at the Opera, with John Turturro as Groucho, Mel Smith as Chico, Bob Nelson as Harpo, Terri Copley, and Nancy Marchand. It opens with Will Vinton Claymation title sequences. Steve Johnson did the FX. Duggan also made Problem Child, which copied The Bad Seed. With music by Mark Mothersbaugh of Devo.

THE BRAIN MACHINE

(Paragon/Electric, 1972) D/S: Joy Houck Jr.
S: T. H. Phillips P: Stephen E. Burnham
(Grey Matter; The E-Box)

A preacher (James Best) makes people reveal their secrets. The military wants his invention. This was made in Mississippi and wasn't released until 1977. Gerald McRaney (Major Dad) is the star. McRaney was also in Night of Bloody Horror (1969) and Women of Bloody Horror (1970), by the Houcks (father and son).

BRAINSCAN

(Columbia, 1994) D: John Flynn S: Andrew Kevin Walker P: Michael Roy Canada

Michael (Edward Furlong) is a limping horror-fan kid, a loner who plays a CD-ROM virtual-reality game that conjures up the heavy-metal-look Trickster (T. Ryder Smith). Michael ends up accused of a series of murders by a police detective (Frank Langella). Although it features Steve Johnson FX, lots of issues of Fangoria, and a Freddy Krueger–type character, this is a very anti–horror movie horror movie with an irritating cheat ending. With Amy Hargreaves, Jamie Marsh, and Zak the dog. The Triumph release was filmed in Montreal. The Columbia soundtrack features bands like the Butthole Surfers and Mudhoney.

BRAIN SMASHER: A LOVE STORY

(Vidmark, 1993) D/S: Albert Pyun P: Tom Karnowsky

A very toned-down Andrew Dice Clay is a nice-guy bouncer in Portland, Oregon who helps a model (Teri Hatcher) battle acrobatic, black-masked Chinese "Red Lotus Monk" villains who walk everywhere. Her martial-arts-fighting sister, a botanist, (Deborah Van Valkenburg), has a rare flower that can bring world domination. It's a fun enough movie, but Clay fans will miss the old Diceman. With Yuji Okumoto, Brian James, and Tim Thomerson as thick cops, Nicolas Guest, and Queen Kong. You see lots of Portland, where the streets seem to be empty at all times.

BRAINSTORM

(1965) D/P: William Conrad S: Mann Rubin

A research scientist (Jeffrey Hunter) wants to get rid of rich Dana Andrews and marry his suicidal wife (Anne Francis). Andrews convinces everybody that Hunter is insane and should be locked up. With Viveca Lindfors, Michael Pate, Strother Martin, and a surprising (unhappy) ending. Future Jake and the Fatman star Conrad directed it after Two on a Guillotine and My Blood Runs Cold.

BRAINSTORM

(MGM/UA, 1983) D/P: Douglas Trumbull S: Robert Stitzel, Phillip Frank Messina

Scientists Christopher Walken and Louise Fletcher develop a sensory-experience headset called Brainstorm, and the government steps in to use it as a weapon. Characters using the awkward looking headset experience heaven, death, and, in one case, extreme orgasms. With Cliff Robertson and Jordan Christopher. This PG film was originally planned to showcase Trumbull's 60-frame-per-second Showscan process, but MGM agreed only to let the dream sequences be shot in Super Panavision 70mm. Natalie Wood, who plays Walken's estranged wife, drowned in Catalina (while on a boat with Walken) in 1981, near the end of production. The feature was almost scrapped but was finally released, and it disappointed most who saw it. Trumbull did FX for Candy, 2001, Close Encounters of the Third Kind, and Blade Runner. Silent Running (1971) is his only other feature as a director.

THE BRAINSUCKER

(Raedon, 1988) D/S/A: Herb Robbins P: Dawn Middleman

If you wondered what happened to the guy who made and starred in The Worm Eaters (1977), I'm afraid he made this too. Jonathan Middleman stars as Max, a vagrant outcast who goes to a mad doctor and becomes a killer. He rants to the camera constantly as he goes around killing his enemies by putting a giant corkscrew into the backs of their heads (an awful effect). He poses as Dr. Suck, a shrink. A French cop and a Chicago cop (Herb Robbins) search for the killer. The whole embarrassing mess looks and sounds like an irritating, amateurish TV comedy skit. It was made in Santa Fe, New Mexico.

THE BRAIN THAT WOULDN'T DIE

(Chiller, 1959) D/S: Joseph Green P: Rex Carlton

This sleazy horror favorite about a doctor looking for a new, sexy body for his decapitated fiancée's head has been easy to see on tape for years because Warner and then Rhino released a 70-minute cut version. Other versions run up to 92 minutes. Filmed near Tarrytown, New York, in 1959, it was released by AIP. If you've seen this movie only on TV or on the cut tape, here are some things you may have missed: an exposed brain during an operation, a stripper fight, and the famous mutant-escapes-from-the-closet highlight. He (it) rips the arm off the doctor's assistant, who dies a very slow death, going up, then down, the stairs while wiping blood all over the wall with his shoulder. It takes a bite from the doctor's shoulder, holds up the bloody hunk of flesh, and throws it on the floor! The music, by the way, is great. One song goes, "Ooh wah ooh wah dig it dig it." There were 43 investors backing the project. Carlton planned to show the doc's head being bitten off during the last reel, which would have been in color. Scenes were shot with rats menacing the head. Carlton, who had promoted beauty contests and wrestling events, produced C-Man (1949), with John Carradine; Mr. Universe (1951), a wrestling movie; and The Devil's Hand (1958). In the late 60s he killed himself after borrowing mob money to finance more movies. Green (31 at the time) had made a burlesque film called Sex Kittens. Virginia Leith, from Cleveland (who was signed with Fox at the time), played Jan, the fiancée/head ("Ha ha ha ha hee hee hee"). One of the photographers in the "art" classes is Sammy Petrillo (from Bela Lugosi Meets a Brooklyn Gorilla). The mutant is played by 7'8" Eddie Carmel, who had been "Eleazer Carmel, the wrestling champion of Israel" and "the Happy Giant Clown" on TV(!). He was also the subject of Diane Arbus photos. The Rhino version has an Elvira intro.

BRAINWASH

(Media, 1981) D: Bobby Roth S: Beth Sullivan, Stephen Bello P: Gary L. Mehlman, Jeffrey White (Deceit; Circle of Power; Naked Weekend)

Yvette Mimieux runs therapy sessions for executives and their wives at an estate in the woods. The couples who attend suffer physical and mental abuse and humiliation. John Considine and Denny Miller help her. It's supposedly based on real executive-training sessions. With Christopher Allport, Cindy Pickett, Scott Marlowe, Julius Harris, and Terence Knox.

BRAINWAVES

(Embassy, 1982) D/S/P: Ulli Lommel S/A: Suzanna Love (Shadow of Death)

A woman in a coma (Suzanna Love) receives brain waves from a murder victim and retains the victim's memory, so the killer is after her. Keir Dullea is her husband, and Tony Curtis is a mad doctor. With Corinne Wahl, who is electrocuted in a bubble bath, and Vera Miles. It was rated R, then PG.

BRAM STOKER'S DRACULA (1973) = DRACULA

BRAM STOKER'S DRACULA

(Columbia, 1992) D/P: Francis Ford Coppola S: Jim Hart P: Freed Fuchs, Charles Mulvehill

Instead of the expected state-of-the-art FX, Coppola used various ideas from the silent-movie days, which relied on sets and bizarre costumes. He also used too many narrators and added a prologue showing how the 15th-century prince Vlad the Impaler "became" Dracula. This romantic tale of the undead quickly became the biggest-grossing vampire movie of all time. Gary Oldman, as Dracula, has three distinct human looks (and hairstyles) and can become a batman, a wolfman, a mist, or rats. Winona Ryder costars as Mina, his lost love, Anthony Hopkins is a joking Dr. Van Helsing, and Keanu Reeves is a bland Jonathan Harker. With Sadie Frost, Tom Waits as Renfield, Richard E. Grant as Dr. Seward, Cary Elwes, and Bill Campbell. The film runs 123 minutes and was shot by Michael Ballhuas. Annie Lennox does the end theme, and Dracula's screaming voice is provided by Lux Interior. The Criterion widescreen laserdisc includes an alternate-track narration by the director, his son, Roman Coppola, and others. The Columbia "Special Edition" includes a half-hour HBO documentary on the film. The Columbia soundtrack is by Polish composer Wojciech Kilar.

BRAND OF SHAME

(1968) D/P: B. Ron Elliot S/P: David F. Friedman S: Gene Radford

A sex-and-violence "adult color western"/comedy about a schoolmarm (Samantha Scott) who arrives on a stagecoach with a map to a gold mine. A lesbian dance-hall owner (Martha Jordan) plots to steal the map.

BRAND X

(1970) D/S/P: Win Chamberlain

This is one of the first of several counterculture takeoffs on TV that were released in the early 70s. At the time, sex and drugs were taboo in television, and Saturday Night Live wasn't on yet, so Brand X is very dated. Taylor Mead stars in several roles, including the president of the US. The cast of this New Line release includes Sally Kirkland, Tally Brown, Abbie Hoffman, Ultra Violet (who sings), Candy Darling, Baby Jane Holzer, and Sam Shepard.

BRAZIL

(MCA, 1985) D/S: Terry Gilliam S: Tom Stoppard, Charles McKeown P: Arnon Michan

Brazil is Gilliam's best feature. It's a dazzling, frightening, and funny improvement on the 1984 theme, with great, heroic fantasy dream sequences and a fascinating, crumbling 40s industrial nightmare look. Jonathan Pryce is the clerk hero whose dreamgirl is Kim Greist. Katherine Helmond is wonderful as his plastic-surgery-obsessed mother. With Michael Palin, Bob Hoskins, Robert De Niro as a terrorist plumber, David Warner, Ian Holm, and Ian Richardson. There was a lot of publicity about the delay in the US release. Universal refused to release the film, and Gilliam refused to recut it, but he did eventually. It came out here at 131 minutes (the original is 142 minutes). The US and UK versions each contain some different scenes. The Japanese version is longer and letterboxed. Beware of the re-edited US TV version, with a false happy ending. The Michael Kamen soundtrack is on Milan. The Battle of Brazil is a book about the controversy. Gilliam tried to top this with The Adventures of Baron Munchausen.

BREAKER! BREAKER!

(Embassy, 1977) D/P/M: Don Hulette S: Terry Chambers

After retiring as world middleweight karate champ, Chuck Norris stars (for the first time) in a kung-fu road movie as a fighting trucker searching for his younger brother unjustly imprisoned in a redneck jail. This AIP film, rated PG, costars George Murdock and Terry O'Connor.

BREAKFAST AT MANCHESTER MORGUE

(VSOM, 1974) D: Jorge Grau S: Sandro Continenza, Marcello Cosia P: Edmondo Amanti Italy/Spain (Non si Deve Profanane il Sonno dei Morti; Sleeping Corpses Lie; Don't Open the Window)

Now you can see a widescreen, uncut version of the first notable, serious Night of the Living Dead–inspired zombie movie. Government agricultural research near a nuke plant causes bodies in a nearby old crypt, a morgue, and a hospital to rise. More zombies are created by touches of blood, and they eat people and rip apart a nurse in brief gore scenes. Arthur Kennedy is a tough, conservative cop (complete with Scottish accent) who arrests the long-haired, anti-establishment hero (Ray Lovelock) on a motorcycle. Also with Cristina Galbo. The tape is in English with Spanish subtitles.

Katherine Helmond in Brazil.

BREAKFAST OF ALIENS

(Hemdale, 1989) D/S/M: David Lee Miller S/A: Vic Dunlop P: Brian James Ellis

Walter (Dunlop) is a childish overweight idiot who delivers pizza for a dwarf. He becomes a popular obnoxious (and loud) standup comedian after he swallows a tiny alien in his cereal. Walter also becomes an alcoholic coke addict who hallucinates and eventually he mutates into a slimy killer monster. I hated this movie until near the end. It's a pretty good look at the price of fame. With Deborah Hobart as a sexy blonde, Steve Franken as a gay neighbor, Donald Gibb, Johnny Dark, Murray Langston, and the band Haunted Garage. Wayne Toth provided the FX.

BREAKIN'

(MGM, 1984) D: Joel Silberg S/P: Allen DeBevoise S: Charles Parker P: David Zito

In this rush-released, PG, breakdance-exploitation Flashdance ripoff set in LA, Aldolfo "Shabba-Doo" Quinones and Michael "Boogaloo Shrimp" Chambers teach a white waitress (Lucinda Dickey) to dance so she can win a contest. With Ice T in a harmless role that makes his later controversies very suspect. The soundtrack is on Polydor. Silberg also made the equally inane Rappin' and Lambada for Cannon.

BREAKIN' 2: ELECTRIC BOOGALOO

(MGM, 1984) D: Sam Firstenberg S: Jan Ventura, Julie Reichert P: Golan/Globus

In the tradition of Don't Knock the Rock and its sequel, and Don't Knock the Twist and its sequel, the same main cast returns in a plot about developers threatening an LA community recreation center run by Boogaloo and Shabba-Doo. They put on a show to raise money, just like in 30s musicals. With Susie Bono, Ice T doing a lame rap, and a Tor Johnson mask.

BREAKING GLASS

(Paramount, 1980) D/S: Brian Gibson P: Davina Belling, Clive Parsons UK

Kate (Hazel O'Connor) becomes a new-wave star, leaving her punk band behind. With Phil Daniels (from Quadrophenia), Jon Finch, and Jonathan Pryce as a junkie sax player. Tony Visconti was the musical director, and the soundtrack is on A&M. In the US, the ending with Kate in an insane asylum (!) was deleted, and the film was rated PG.

BREAKING POINT

(Rep, 1994) D: Paul Ziller S: Michael Berlin, Eric Estrin P: Robert Vince Canada

Gary Busey is a detective after the "Surgeon" (Jeff Griggs), a serial killer and male stripper in Seattle. With Darlanne Fluegel as his cop partner and Kim Cattrall as the killer's ex. A censored TV version has swear words like "mother freaker." Filmed in Vancouver.

BREAK IN THE CIRCLE

(1955) D/S: Val Guest
P: Michael Carreras UK

Forrest Tucker stars as an adventurer hired by a German millionaire to help a Polish scientist escape to the West. This color Hammer film (released in the US in b/w by 20th Century–Fox) was filmed in London and Hamburg, and features Eva Bartok, Marius Goring, and Eric Pohlmann. Tucker was also in Hammer's The Abominable Snowman (1957), directed by Guest.

A BREED APART

(Thorn EMI, 1984) D: Philippe Mora S: Paul Wheeler P: John Daly, Derek Gibson

Donald Pleasence, as a crazed millionaire egg collector, wants an endangered bald eagle's eggs from a North Carolina island. Environmentalist Rutger Hauer owns the island and is pretty crazed himself. Mountain climber Powers Boothe is hired to steal the eggs. With Kathleen Turner, Brion James, and Jane Bentzen.

BREEDERS

(Lightning, 1986) D/S: Tim Kincaid P: Cynthia DePaula

Virgins are kept by green-insect rapist aliens living under the Empire State Building. The girls bathe in sperm. Teresa Farley stars as a doctor. With Frances Raines and Matt Mitler (who had both been in the off-Broadway play Grindhouse) and Amy Bretano. There's a mutant baby, bad acting, flubbed lines, and lotsa nudity. Ed French provided the FX (and he also acts).

BRENDA STARR

(1976) D: Mel Stuart S: George Kirgo P: Robert E. Larson

This ABC-TV series-pilot version of the 40s comic strip by Dale Messick stars Jill St. John. She goes to the Brazilian jungle and encounters voodoo. With Victor Buono, Torin Thatcher, Barbara Luna, Sorrell Brooke, and Marcia Strassman. Brenda Starr, Reporter (VCI, 1945) was a Columbia serial with Joan Woodbury.

BRENDA STARR

(Columbia, 1986) D: Robert Ellis Miller
S: Noreen Stone, James David Buchanan, Jenny Wolstone P: Myron A. Hyman

This much-delayed and pretty dull PG-film finally premiered (in Tokyo) in 1989, then opened in the US in 1992. An artist (Tony Peck, son of Gregory) enters his own comic strip, where Brooke Shields is the redheaded Brenda. With Timothy Dalton as Basil St. John, Diana Scarwid as Brenda's rival, Charles Durning, Eddie Albert, Kathleen Wilhoite, Ed Nelson as President Truman, and Henry Gibson as a former Nazi. With animated segments, Commies, and Amazon-crocodile attacks. The cinematographer was Freddie Francis (who had just shot Dune), and it was filmed in NYC and Puerto Rico. A Saudi prince who liked Brooke put $22 million into the project.

BREWSTER MCCLOUD

(MGM, 1970) D: Robert Altman
S: Nora William Cannon P: Lou Adler

Altman made this unique fantasy/comedy after the hit *M*A*S*H*. Bud Cort lives in a bomb shelter under the Houston Astrodome. He learns to fly in the Astrodome with self-made wings, while the police try to find out who's responsible for deaths caused by bird droppings. With Shelley Duvall (in her first film), Sally Kellerman as a protective angel in a trenchcoat, Michael Murphy, William Windom, Stacy Keach as a 120-year-old flying ace, Margaret Hamilton, René Auberjonois, Jennifer Salt, and Bert Remsen. John Phillips wrote and sings parts of the score, released by MGM. The premiere was held at the Astrodome, where a record 23,930 people saw a special 70mm print.

BRICK BRADFORD

(Stokey, 1947) D: Spencer Gordon Bennet, Thomas Carr S: George Plympton, Arthur Hoerl, Lewis Clay P: Sam Katzman

This 15-chapter Columbia serial, based on a comic strip, stars Kane Richmond. He and Linda Johnson travel back to the 18th century in a "time top" (a big, clunky-looking, upright metal ship), and they also use a professor's "crystal door" to go to the moon. Rick Vallin is Sandy, and Carol Forman is Queen Khana. The first chapter is called "Atomic Defense."

BRICK DOLL HOUSE

(SW, 1967) D/P: Tony Martinez, David F. Friedman S: Joe Delg

Five women tell the police their own version of what happened before the murder of their exotic-dancer roommate, Min Lee. Martinez was known for starring in a road-company version of Man of La Mancha. He failed to complete this adult-only sex movie (it lasts only one hour), so Friedman took over.

THE BRIDE

(RCA/Columbia, 1985) D: Fran Roddam
S: Lloyd Fonvielle P: Victor Drai

Despite Sting as Dr. Charles Frankenstein and wide-eyed Jennifer Beals as the independent bride he creates, this film has some great sequences (the ones without the stars, mostly). The subplot, with Clancy Brown (from Urbana, Ohio) as the monster and his dwarf friend David Rappaport joining a Budapest circus, is the best part. With Geraldine Page, Quentin Crisp, Veruschka, Phil Daniels, Cary Elwes, and Guy Rolfe. The Maurice Jarre soundtrack is on Varese Sarabande. The PG-13 release was from Columbia.

THE BRIDE OF JOHNNY IN MONSTERLAND

(1992) D/S/C/A: Jonathan Morrill S/A: David Bishop

There's way too much talk in this long (100-minute), senseless fantasy/comedy that includes frequent nods to features like Freaks, The Bride of Frankenstein, Carnival of Souls, Dr. Cyclops, The Wizard of Oz, and others. It constantly goes from color to b/w, has solarized scenes, and is filled with dream and nightmare sequences. It was shot on tape in Provincetown.

BRIDE OF RE-ANIMATOR

(IVE, 1989) D/P: Brian Yuzna S: Woody Keith, Rick Fry

Jeffry Combs is Dr. Herbert West ("How dare you judge my work!"), and Bruce Abbott and David Gale also return from the 1985 hit. Bride has even more humor, outrageous Screaming Mad George and John Carl Buechler FX (arm/leg, eyeball/hand, bat head), and some Dave Allen animation. With Fabiana Udenio (from Argentina), Claude Earl Jones (son of James) as a police lieutenant, Kathleen Kinmont as the bride, and Johnny Legend. R and unrated tapes are around, but only the bootlegs are uncut. Silver Screen issued a Richard Band soundtrack that includes music from the first movie too. This film was copied by several Hong Kong productions.

BRIDES OF THE BEAST = BRIDES OF BLOOD

BRIDE OF THE KILLER NERD

(Riot, 1992) D/S/P: Mark Steven Bosko, Wayne A. Harold

Toby Radloff is back as Harold in the sequel to Killer Nerd. He's got a new data-processing job in a new state, but he's still a nerd, and even though he killed his mother in the first movie, she shows up (with an axe in her head) to torment him. He becomes suicidal, repeating, "I work, I eat, I sleep, I work," but falls for Thelma Crump (Heidi Lohr), a female student (with pimples and braces). After they're humiliated at a party (where everybody drinks Busch beer) they go on a bloody revenge spree together. It's a pretty good sick sequel with effective gore FX. There's an ill-conceived, irritating black-guy victim. And why does the girl in the Psycho shower scene have panties on? Parts were filmed in Cleveland's Public Square, and the Twistoffs, a great-sounding band with three horns, play at a party.

THE BRIDE WITH WHITE HAIR

(1993) D/S: Ronny Yu S: David Wu, Lam Ki To P: Michael and Raymond Wong Hong Kong (Jiang-Hu)

There's a romance between a Ming-dynasty swordsman (Leslie Chung from Rouge), working for some united clans, and Wolf Girl (Brigitte Lin Ching), a fighter for an underground rebel group. She's a beautiful witch with a whip who was raised by wolves. With bloody violence, some gore and sex scenes, and a supernatural male/female Siamese-twin villain. It was followed by The Bride with White Hair II (1993).

THE BRIDE WORE BLACK

(MGM, 1967) D/S: François Trauffaut
S: Jean-Louis Richard P: Oscar Lewenstein
France/Italy (La Mariée Était en Noir)

Jeanne Moreau's husband is killed by a stray bullet on her wedding day. The obsessed woman goes after the five killers, in a Hitchcock-inspired feature complete with a Bernard Herrmann score. She uses various methods (poison, knife, bow and arrow). It was based on Cornell Woolrich's 1940 novel (so was Trauffaut's next, Mississippi Mermaid). With Claude Rich, Michel Bouquet, Michel Lonsdale, Jean-Claude Brialy, Charles Denner, and Alexandra Stewart. The tape is subtitled.

THE BRIDES WORE BLOOD

(Regal, 197?) D/P: Robert R. Favorite
S: (there were 5 of them) (Blood Bride)

Made in Jacksonville, Florida, this movie is slow, boring, and confusing. It involves a family curse, a psychic, and a plot by a vampire demon to impregnate an unsuspecting blonde (Dolores Heisel). Dreams, flashbacks, and a voiceover don't help matters much. Some actors flub their lines, there's a closeup of a needle going into a vein, and a dimwit mute has Beatle bangs and a snake. The death-by-sunlight transformation scene is one of the worst ever. The only good part is the large, ornate Casa De Lorca mansion.

BRIGADOON

(MGM/UA, 1954) D: Vincente Minnelli
S: Alan Jay Lerner P: Arthur Freed

A magical Scottish village reappears every 100 years. This MGM Cinemascope and Ansccolor musical was based on the 1947 Broadway hit by Lerner and Loewe (which was based on an old German story and later inspired Herschell Gordon Lewis' 2000 Maniacs (1964)!). Gene Kelly and Cyd Charisse star, with Van Johnson, Barry Jones, and Elaine Stewart.

THE BRIGAND OF KANDAHAR

(1965) D/S: John Gilling P: Anthony Nelson-Keys UK

Oliver Reed is Eli Khan, leader of the Gilzhais in 1850s India. He likes to torture members of the Bengal Lancers. Ronald Lewis is the hero, and Yvonne Romain is Ratina. The last of many Hammer appearances for Reed, this film uses footage from Zarak (1957). It was released in the US by Columbia.

A BRILLIANT DISGUISE

(Prism, 1994) D/S/A: Nick Vallelonga
P: David Andreole Corrigan

A sports writer (Anthony John Denison) falls for a nympho painter (Lysette Anthony) who seems to have multiple personalities (including man-hating psycho and "12-year-old child"). Sex scenes (in studios, galleries, and bathrooms) and murder result. With Cathy Shower, Ray Shafer, Devin Devasquez, Corbin Bernsen as the shrink, and models Beverly Johnson and Elizabeth Nottoli.

BRIMSTONE AND TREACLE

(MGM, 1982) D: Richard Loncraine
S: Dennis Potter P: Kenith Trodd UK

The script was first done as a BBC-TV movie in 1976, but it was not aired until after this theatrical version. Sting plays an irritating, mysterious drifter (the Devil?) who "cures" a nearly catatonic, handicapped young woman (Suzanna Hamilton, later in 1984), by raping her. Denholm Elliott is her father, and Joan Plowright is her mother. For some theatrical bookings it was blown up to 70mm. United Artists released it in the US.

BRING ME A VAMPIRE

(SW, 1959) D: Alfredo E. Crevena
S: Alfredo Ruanova P: Mario García Camberos Mexico (Écheme al Vampiro)

Heirs gather in a haunted castle for the reading of the will, in this vampire comedy dubbed and released in America by K. Gordon Murray.

BRING ME THE HEAD OF ALFREDO GARCIA

(MGM, 1974) D/S: Sam Peckinpah P: Martin Baum

Peckinpah made this in Mexico as a reaction to the failure of his Pat Garrett and Billy the Kid (1973). You've heard how bad Alfredo is. Watch it and decide for yourself. Bennie, a piano player at a tourist bar in Mexico City (Warren Oates), talks to a rotting human head in a dirty sack covered with flies. He's become a bounty hunter determined to bring back the head of a corpse because a man has offered ten thousand dollars for it. Gig Young and Robert Webber are gay hitmen. A major scene takes place in an old cemetery, and the film ends with a gun pointing at the audience. With Isela Vega, Kris Kristofferson as a biker, and Helmut Dantine (who was the executive producer). The full, uncut video version runs 112 minutes.

BRITANNIA HOSPITAL

(HBO, 1982) D: Lindsay Anderson
S: David Sherwin P: Davina Belling UK

A hospital during its 500th anniversary is the setting for this disturbing, bizarre satire. There's a head-transplanting mad professor and one horrifying look at a generic mutant. With Joan Plowright, Leonard Rossiter, Jill Bennett, Marsha Hunt, Alan Bates, Mark Hamill, Robbie Coltrane, Arthur Lowe, and Malcolm McDowell repeating his roles in Anderson's If (1969) and O Lucky Man (1973). United Artists released the film in the US.

THE BROKEN LAND

(1962) D: John Bushelman S: Edward J. Lasko P: Leonard A. Schwartz

Jack Nicholson is the misunderstood young son of an outlaw in this color western from 20th Century–Fox. He's wrongly imprisoned by a corrupt, sadistic sheriff (top-billed Kent Taylor), escapes, gets into more trouble without even trying, and is killed. With Dianne Darrin and Jody McCrea as the romantic leads. This hour-long film was backed by Roger Corman and shot by Floyd Crosby. Bushelman had also directed Wild Youth, with Nicholson.

BROKEN TRUST

(Monarch, 1993) D/P: Ralph Portillo
S: James Elliot, Jeff Spielman

People try to drive an heiress (Kimberly Foster) to suicide in an "erotic thriller." With Nick Cassavetes as her husband, Kathryn Harris as the red-haired sister featured in most of the sex scenes, Edward Albert as a lawyer, Don Swayze as a cop, and Wendy McDonald.

BRONX EXECUTIONER

(Warner, 1989) D: "Bob Collins"/ Umberto Lenzi Italy

Michael Dudikoff is the host of this movie about cyborgs fighting humans. With Gabrielle Gori and Woody Strode. From Cannon.

BRONX WAR

(Academy, 1989) D/S/A: Joseph B. Vasquez
P: Elizabeth Frankel

In this outrageous, unrated, extremely violent gang movie, Tito Sunshine (Vasquez with a ponytail) is the cool but naive owner of a Bronx strip bar with a loyal gang that deals coke and stolen credit cards. Rachel (Charmain Cruz), a bad sister, is his downfall when she comes to stay after escaping a drug-related slaughter. A war with vicious black gangsters kills off most of the cast. An arm is cut off in one blood-spurting scene. Fabio Urena costars as Tito's right-hand man.

THE BROTHER FROM ANOTHER PLANET

(Key, 1984) D/S/A/E: John Sayles
P: Peggy Rajski, Maggie Renzi

Joe Morton (Terminator II) is a mute, telepathic, three-toed escaped alien who lands on Ellis Island and goes to Harlem. He gets a job at a video arcade, where he easily "repairs" broken games, finds a girlfriend (Dee Dee Bridgewater), and stops a hard-drug dealer. In a nod to Cyborg 2087 (1966), two alien bounty hunters (Sayles and David Strathairn) track him on foot. With Steve James as a bartender, Rosette Le Noire, Fisher Stevens, and Josh Mostel. Cinematographer Ernest Dickerson later worked for Spike Lee. Made for only $300,000, this is one of the best by the maverick, Hoboken-based director. A soundtrack is available.

BROTHERHOOD OF DEATH

(MPI, 1976) D/S/P: Bill Perry P: Richard Barker

"Watch these brothers stick it to the Klan!" Three Nam vets (played by former Washington Redskins) return home during the 60s. They help register voters, then have to fight the KKK.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF THE BELL

(1970) D: Paul Wendkos S/P: David Karp

This surprisingly paranoid ABC-TV movie is about conspiracies and how people become successful by joining secret societies. Glenn Ford stars as a professor whose life is in danger because he hasn't paid his bill from "the Brotherhood of the Bell." People around him die, and he goes on a TV talk show (hosted by William Conrad as a Joe Pyne type) to expose the corrupt, ruthless ruling elite. With Dean Jagger, Maurice Evans, Rosemary Forsyth, Will Geer, Eduard Franz, Dabney Coleman, and Robert Clarke.

BROTHER JOHN

(Columbia, 1971) D: James Goldstone S: Ernest Kinoy P: Joel Glickman

A karate-fighting Messiah returns to a southern town with racial problems, and he's played by Sidney Poitier. Beverly Todd as a schoolteacher costars, with Will Geer as a doctor, Bradford Dillman as the DA, and Paul Winfield. The music is by Quincy Jones. The film is rated PG.

BROTHERLY LOVE

(1985) D: Jeff Bleckner S: Ernest Tidyman

Businessman Judd Hirsch is stalked by his psycho twin, just out of a mental hospital. A TV movie with George Dzundza, Barry Primus, and Karen Carlson.

BROTHER ON THE RUN: See MAN ON THE RUN

BROTHERS

(1977) D: Arthur Barron S/P: Edward Lewis P: Mildred Lewis

A serious prison movie with Bernie Casey, Vonetta McGee, Ron O'Neal, and Stu Gilliam. It's about (the real) black militant professor Angela Davis and San Quentin convict George Jackson (who was shot in 1971). He and his brother were known as the Soledad Brothers. The Jackson family sued. The music by Taj Mahal is on a Warner soundtrack. Filmed at the North Dakota State Penitentiary.

BROTHERS IN ARMS

(Republic, 1989) D: George Jay Bloom III S: Shane Kilpatrick P: Mark R. Gordon, Christopher Melendandri

Jack Starrett is the religious-fanatic father of inbred hillbilly killers who hunt humans in the Rockies, in another Deliverance copy. With lots of sex and humiliation scenes and DeDee Pfeiffer. Also with Todd Aleen and Mitch Pileggi.

BRUCE GENTRY

(Stokey, 1949) D: Spencer Gordon Bennet, Thomas Carr S: George Plympton, Joseph F. Poland, Lewis Clay P: Sam Katzman

A 15-chapter Columbia serial, based on a comic strip, starring Tom Neal (from Detour). With Judy Clark, Tris Coffin as Krendon, Jack Ingram, Eddie Parker, Dale Van Sickel, and flying discs.

BRUCE LEE: CURSE OF THE DRAGON

(Warner, 1993) D/P: Fred Weintraub, Tom Kuhn S: Davis Miller

This documentary, narrated by George Takei, was released after the film Dragon and the death of Brandon Lee. With scenes from Bruce Lee's films, candid scenes, and interviews with James Coburn, Chuck Norris, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, and Brandon Lee. The Real Bruce Lee (Video Gems, 1979), the first Lee documentary, contains scenes from his childhood features. Bruce Lee: The Legend (Fox, 1984) is another documentary. The Arts and Entertainment network did a good documentary in 1994, part of the Biography series. Bruce Lee and Kung Fu Mania (Goodtimes, 1992) is a short on the making of Enter the Dragon and has many Shaw Brothers trailers.

BRUCE LEE FIGHTS BACK FROM THE GRAVE

(Media, 1978) D/S: Doo Yong Lee P: Chong Huang Kuok

Many Bruce Lee ripoffs are around, but this is one of the worst. It opens with a tacked-on prologue with "Lee" (Bruce Lea/Jun Chong) bursting from a phony-looking grave. It was filmed in LA with an Italian and Chinese cast. There's no Lee footage at all, and the villain is called Marcus Welby! Some sources claim that Umberto Lenzi was involved with this. The Dragon Dies Hard (1975) and Bruce Lee, Super Dragon (1976) were both cash-in Allied Artists releases with actors playing Lee.

BRUTAL FURY

(AIP, 1988) D/S/P: Frederic P. Watkins P: James A. Sullivan (Missy)

Here's a Dallas-area exploitation movie with flashbacks and terrible fight scenes. Quiet, red-haired Missy (Lisa-Gabrielle Green) joins "the Sisterhood," a secret group of kickboxing, vigilante high-school students with skull masks and initiation rites. They start by beating other girls for their offenses ("That's for smoking pot in our rest room!" "That's for selling your body, bitch!") Missy, who was abused as a child and has a "dual personality," gets more serious ("I am the instrument of God's vengeance!") as she kills drug dealers and a lesbian gym teacher. Meanwhile, a young woman with a detective boyfriend goes undercover (with a punk look) at the school. Texas is a special place.

BRUTAL GLORY

(Quest, 1987) D: Koos Roets S: Tinus Grobler P: Philo Pieterse S. Africa

Robert Vaughn is an Irish boxing promoter in 1918 New York City. He fights martial-arts actor James Ryan, then goes to Africa for a safari, has adventures, and meets Gor the bushman.

BRUTAL SORCERY

(Ocean Shores, 1984) D: Pam Ling Hong Kong/Thailand

Here's another outrageous Southeast Asian horror title. A cabbie who picked up some ghosts becomes involved with black magic. Children become chickens, and there are the usual worms and maggots, severed pigs' heads, and good and evil sorcerers.

THE BRUTE

(Cinemateque, 1952) D/S: Luis Buñuel S: Luis Alcoriza P: Oscar Danciger Mexico (El Bruto)

A slaughterhouse worker (Pedro Armendariz) falls for the daughter (Rosita Arenas) of a man he accidentally murdered while harassing tenants for a corrupt landlord boss. With Katy Jurado. Buñuel complained that he was forced to tone down the script too much. His Robinson Crusoe from the same year was more successful.

BULLDOG DRUMMOND

The crime-solving British gentleman Captain Hugh Drummond was created in 1919 by "Sapper" (Herman Cyril McNeile) for the first in a series of novels. The character first made it to the screen in 1922. Bulldog Drummond (Embassy, 1929), with Ronald Colman, was the first sound version, and Colman was also in a sequel, Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back (Goldwyn, 1934). A British film, The Return of Bulldog Drummond (1934), starred Ralph Richardson as Drummond. In Bulldog Jack (1935), British comedian Jack Hulbert takes the place of an ailing Drummond, and Richardson plays the French villain, Morrell. Bulldog Drummond Escapes (Paramount, 1937) starred Ray Milland. Paramount then produced a series of eight films (1937–39) starring John Howard, usually with John Barrymore, in his days of fading glory, as Inspector Neilson. (Most are available from Embassy Video or Sinister.) Later there were two with Ron Randell from Columbia in 1947 and two with Tom Conway from 20th Century–Fox in 1948. Calling Bulldog Drummond (1951) from MGM, with Walter Pidgeon, was a bigger-budget production. The Bond-influenced Deadlier Than the Male (1966) and Some Girls Do (1969) starred Richard Johnson. Bullshot Crummond (HBO, 1982) was a British spoof of the early films.

Fabian stars in Larry Buchanan's A Bullet for Pretty Boy.

THE BRUTE AND THE BEAST

(1966) D: Lucio Fulci S: Fernando Di Leo Italy (Tempo de Massacro)

This violent western is about a prospector (Franco Nero) who has to battle a sadistic man and his son who have taken over the family ranch. With George Hilton.

BRUTES AND SAVAGES

(MPI, 1975) D/P: Arthur Davis

This travelogue/Mondo movie filmed in South America was advertised with the claim "After Jaws and King Kong comes another box-office blockbuster!" It mostly shows primitive tribes killing animals and includes a (fake) scene of a man being eaten alive by a "giant" crocodile. Davis also hosts. The backers were Japanese.

BUCK ROGERS

(UA, 1939) D: Ford Beebe, Ralph De Lacy S: Norman S. Hall, Ray Trampe

After the first two great Flash Gordon serials, Buster Crabbe became Buck Rogers. The 12-chapter Universal serial, based on novels and the comic strip by Phillip Francis Nowlan, is available in a two-tape set. After a dirigible crash, Buck and Buddy (Jackie Moran) spend 500 years in suspended animation, then take a spaceship to Saturn and have many adventures. Constance Moore costars as Wilma Deering. With C. Montague Shaw as Dr. Huer, Anthony Ward as Killer Kane, evil ruler of the world of the future, Henry Brandon as Captain Lasca, and Philson Ahn as the helpful Prince Tallon. The lumpy, zombielike Zuggs were my favorite characters when the serial was shown on the Ghoulardi show in Cleveland. The 50s feature versions were called Planet Outlaws and Destination Saturn (also on video). Buck Rogers was rereleased after Star Wars as "the original interplanetary adventure."

BUCK ROGERS

(MCA, 1979–81)

Episodes of the lame NBC series Buck Rogers in the 25th Century (lasting 47 minutes each) are on tape. The irritating comedy-relief robot Twiki was played by Felix Silla (who was also Cousin Itt on the series The Addams Family) with Mel Blanc's voice ("be de be de be"). This series used props from the Battlestar Galactica series. Gil Gerard stars with Erin Gray, Tim O'Connor, sexy Pamela Hensley as Princess Ardala, and either Henry Silva or Michael Ansara as Killer Kane. One episode, "Ardala Returns," is on a Goodtimes video. There was also a 1950–51 Buck Rogers series on ABC.

BUCKSTONE COUNTY PRISON

(1977) D: Jimmy Huston S: Tom McIntyre P/A: Earl Owensby (Seabo)

Earl plays Seabo, a bounty hunter in 1957 wrongly blamed for a murder. In prison, he's chained and tortured by the warden (Don "Red" Barry). A sheriff (Sunset Carson) helps get him out, and he teams up with real-life ex-con and country singer David Allan Coe (who also provides the music) to catch the real killer. Stunt coordinator Ed Parker also acts, and Craig T. Nelson is an inmate. Filmed in North Carolina.

BUCKTOWN

(Orion, 1975) D: Arthur Marks S: Bob Ellison P: Bernard Schwartz

Fred Williamson, as Duke Johnson, returns to his corrupt southern hometown of Buchanan to bury his brother, a victim of the local police, led by Art Lund. Corrupt blacks and whites are everywhere. Pam Grier costars with Thalmus Rasulala, Bernie Hamilton, Tony King, and Carl Weathers. This AIP release was shot in Kansas City, Missouri.

BUDDY BUDDY

(MGM/UA, 1981) D/S: Billy Wilder S: I. A. L. Diamond

Suicidal Jack Lemmon is a big problem for hitman Walter Matthau. Paula Prentiss (who retired after this and Saturday the 14th) and Klaus Kinski as Dr. Hugo Zuckerbrot, Joan Shawlee, and Ed Begley Jr. costar in this remake of the French comedy A Pain in the A—. It was Wilder's last feature.

THE BUDDY HOLLY STORY

(RCA, 1978) D: Steve Rash S: Robert Gitler P: Fred Bauer

Gary Busey is good and does his own singing (not so good) as the young musical genius from Lubbock, Texas. This was Busey's big break after 7 years in films, and he received an Oscar nomination. It's a typical fact-bending music bio but worth catching. Charles Martin Smith, Don Stroud, and Busey all play their own instruments, and they made some personal appearances after the film's release. With Maria Richwine as Holly's Mexican wife, Albert Popwell, Conrad Janis, "Stymie" Beard, and Buddy Miles. See Little Richard's autobiography for another look at the "shy" Holly. The soundtrack is on MCA.

BUFFY THE VAMPIRE SLAYER

(Fox, 1992) D: Fran Rubel Kuzui S: Joss Whedon P: Kaz Kuzui, Howard Rosenman

Kristy Swanson stars as an athletic blond air-head valley girl cheerleader who learns from an endlessly reincarnated mystic (Donald Sutherland) that she's one of a long line of vampire hunters. He trains her and she goes after the pointy-eared, living-dead team of Rutger Hauer as Lothos (who plays the violin) and Paul Reubens (with goatee and long hair) using martial arts and a stake. Her boyfriend, Luke Perry (from Beverly Hills 90210), helps. The vampires crash a high-school prom. It's a lot better than the Teen Wolf movies. With Natasha Wagner, Mark DeCarlo, Sasha Jenson (Dazed and Confused), Michael Kopelow (The Stoned Age), Hilary Swank, Liz Smith, and Candy Clark. The PG-13 comedy was by the female director of Tokyo Pop. The soundtrack (mostly 60s covers) features Mathew Sweet, Ozzy Osbourne, the DiVinyls, and others.

A BULLET FOR BILLY THE KID

(1963) D: Raphael Baledon S: Raymond Oban P: Alfred Ripstein Mexico

Jerry Warren recut and released this 61-minute color western in the US. It stars Gaston Sands, with Steve Brodie and Lloyd Nelson in new scenes.

A BULLET FOR THE GENERAL

(Nelson, 1966) D: Damiano Damiani S: Salvatore Laurani P: Bianco Manini Italy/Spain (Quien Sabe?)

Gian-Maria Volontè is El Chucho, a guerrilla leader of the 1910 Mexican revolution. Klaus Kinski is his religious-fanatic brother, El Santo. With Lou Castel as an American mercenary with gold bullets and Martine Beswick. This 135-minute political western was released in a severely cut version by Avco Embassy.

A BULLET FOR PRETTY BOY

(1970) D/P: Larry Buchanan S: Henry Rosenblum

Fabian stars as Pretty Boy Floyd, seen first as an Oklahoma farmer who is forced into a fight at his own wedding. He accidentally kills a man and seems trapped in a life of crime. AIP released this GP-rated feature made in the Dallas area. With Adam Roarke, Jocelyn Lane, Camilla Carr, Bill Thurman, and Cynthia Rose. There's an AIP soundtrack album with music by Harley Hatcher and the Source. It's pretty bad but a must for Buchanan completists. Buchanan's previous feature had been the documentary Sex and the Animals.

A BULLET FROM GOD: See GOD'S GUN

BULLET IN THE HEAD

(Long Shong, 1990) D/S/P: John Woo S: Patrick Leung, Janet Chun Hong Kong

Tony Leung, Jacky Cheung, and Waise Lee flee Hong Kong after a gang war in the late 60s. They go to Saigon and become involved with the wartime black market, and are tortured by the Vietcong. This very violent, long (135-minute), but intense and emotional action drama was made just after the Tiananmen Square massacre and has an anti-Communist theme. It's one of the all-around best from Woo. Simon Yam costars. Neil Diamond's "I'm a Believer" is on the soundtrack. The Cinema City laser version is drastically cut.

BULLETPROOF

(RCA, 1987) D/S: Steve Carver S: T. L. Lankford P: Paul Hertzberg

Gary Busey, as blond LA cop Frank "Bulletproof" McBain, tries to rescue a big silver supertank called Thunderblast from some Commies in New Mexico. He keeps all the bullets pulled out of him in a jar. With Darlanne Fluegel, Henry Silva as a Libyan colonel, William Smith as a Russian commander who blows up churches, L. Q. Jones, R. G. Armstrong, Thalmus Rasulala, Rene Enriquez, and Lydie Denier. The associate producer was Fred Olen Ray, who also cowrote the ridiculous story. Busey was in critical condition after his motorcycle crash in 1988. This was made before he announced he had sobered up.

BULLETPROOF HEART

(1994) D: Mark Malone S: Gordon Melbourne P: Robert Vince, William Vince (Killer)

A hitman (Anthony LaPaglia) is hired to kill a woman (Mimi Rogers), but he falls for her. This familiar sounding film noir takes place during one night in NYC. With Matt Craven and Peter Boyle.

BULLIES

(MCA, 1985) D: Paul Lynch S: Bryan McCann, John Sheppard P: Peter Simpson Canada

A moonshiner and his sadistic sons (the Cullins) terrorize a family led by a pacifist stepfather at a British Columbia ski resort. The ending is inspired by Straw Dogs. With Stephen B. Hunter, Olivia D'Abo (in a wet T-shirt) as the bad family's daughter, and Bill Croft. The production supervisor was Ray Sagar. Scenes from this were used on a Donahue show in 1993 to illustrate how films could incite real-life violence. Lynch was a guest.

BUMMER!

(Magnum, 1973) D: William Castleman P/A: David F. Friedman

The title's good, but you'll probably be disappointed by this look at a rock group. Stuart Whitman's son Kipp stars as Duke, lead singer of "the Group." The lesbian manager wants to fire the drunken, fat-slob, woman-hating bass player, who ends up going on a raping and killing spree. Carol Speed (from Abby), Connie Strickland, and Diane Lee Hart are the groupies. There's some sex, and Bob Cresse and producer Friedman show up as cops.

BUNNY O'HARE

(1972) D/P: Gerd Oswald S: Stanley Z. Cherry, Coslough Johnson

Bette Davis and Ernest Borgnine star as bank robbers disguised as hippies. AIP released this PG oddity, but Davis sued them (the suit was later dropped) because she claimed they had censored her dialogue and destroyed the film. With John Astin, Jack Cassidy, Jay Robinson, and Bruno ve Soto. The music is by Mike Curb, and Billy Strange and Full Circle do a song by Keith Richards. AIP released a soundtrack album.

The 'burbs

(MCA, 1989) D: Joe Dante S: Dana Olsen P: Larry Brezner, Michael Finnell

The weird Klopek family (Henry Gibson, Brother Theodore, and Courtney Gaines) are suspected of all kinds of horrible things in a nice suburban neighborhood. Bruce Dern is the shell-shocked Nam-vet neighbor of normal Tom Hanks and Carrie Fisher. With Corey Feldman, Gale Gordon, Dick Miller, Franklyn Ajay, Rance Howard, and Wendy Schaal. The effects are by ILM, and the score is by Jerry Goldsmith. Scenes from The Exorcist and The Texas Chainsaw Massacre are seen on TV. Dante blamed a writers' strike for production problems, but The 'burbs just isn't very successful, despite some funny moments. Ron Howard was a producer of this PG film.

BURDEN OF DREAMS

(Flower, 1982) D/P: Les Blank

Werner Herzog is shown trying to make his epic Fitzcarraldo in Ecuador over a period of several years. This fascinating documentary shows how the obsessive director treats the native actors, deals with setbacks, and pushes ahead despite incredible odds. Original costars Mick Jagger (who left because of other commitments) and Jason Robards (who became ill after five weeks of shooting) are shown in early footage. Jagger didn't act again in a real feature until Freejack (1992). Klaus Kinski, who remained to star in Fitzcarraldo, and Herzog had a public feud over making this feature. Kinski claimed to hate him and was said to have threatened his life.

THE BURGLAR

(1956) D: Paul Wendkos S: David Goodis P: Louis W. Kellerman

This is a serious feature written by David Goodis (whose novel Down There became Truffaut's Shoot the Piano Player) and based on his own novel. It was shot on location in Philadelphia and Atlantic City by first-time director Wendkos. Burglar opens with classic bad guy Dan Duryea in a theater watching an excellent (and convincing) newsreel about "Sister Sarah," a famous, rich, and fake spiritualist. He and his cronies (including Jayne Mansfield and Mickey Shaughnessy) rob the woman, hide out, and fight among themselves. They flee to Atlantic City, where they encounter a crooked killer cop and other serious problems. The film is filled with desperate, weary soul-searching characters and Cold War references, and was obviously patterned after several Orson Welles classics. The cinematography is excellent, the acting is fine all around (including Stewart Bradley and Martha Vickers), and Jayne wears a

BURLESQUE FEATURES

Many adults-only movies from the 30s through the 50s, usually plotless and in b/w, featured strippers and exotic dancers. A lot of them were simply filmed live stage shows (complete with baggy-pants comedians) featuring minimal nudity. Others added flimsy plots. These are just some of the many titles available on tape (most from SW): ABC's of Love; Bagdad After Midnight; Burlesque in Harlem; Hollywood Burlesque; Kiss Me Baby; A Night at the Follies; Oriental Vanities; Strip Strip Hooray; Striptease Girl; Striptease Murder Case, and Tijuana After Midnight.

In the video-boom era, if you ask some people which actors work the most, they might say Gene Hackman or Martin Sheen, but thanks to the miracle of video releases, these very Psychotronic character actors and B stars have them beat creditwise. These are some of the faces you're most likely to see (like it or not) when renting those secondary titles:

1. David Carradine (carrying on in the grand tradition of his father)
2. Karen Black
3. Shannon Tweed
4. Troy Donahue
5. William Smith
6. Linda Blair (who married Wings Hauser)
7. George Kennedy
8. Ned Beatty
9. M. Emmet Walsh

polka-dot bikini in one scene. Burglar is worth looking for just to see the diving horse and the old Steel Pier funhouse where mechanical ghouls repeat, "We, the dead, welcome you. We, the dead, welcome you." It was remade in France in 1972, with Jean-Paul Belmondo, as The Burglars.

BURGLAR FROM HELL

(Falcon, 1993) D/S: Chip Herman

A bunch of guys go to a rented house (in Rockaway Beach) for a vacation and some girls show up. A séance reanimates a big, laughing zombie (Bryant Sohl) in a Kool shirt and most of them (and some gang members who show up) are killed. This ambitious shot-on-video feature has nightmares, a sex fantasy, and a shower scene (featuring Nancy Felciano). It also has enough characters and character developement for several movies. They have arguements, fights, and racial discussions (some are black) before they die. The gore FX, makeup, and sound are all bad, and there's an obvious dummy, but I enjoyed it anyway. Barry Gaines stars with Angela Jackson as the medium girlfriend. The director works as a New York bus driver.

BURIAL GROUND

(Vestron, 1979) D: Andrea Bianchi S: Piero Regnoli Italy (Le Notte di Terror; Zombie III)

Slow-moving zombies from a churchyard attack a country-club party. An eyeball is skewered, and a zombie kid bites his mother's nipple off. The very gory, badly dubbed feature was billed in Europe as if it were part of a series.

BURIED ALIVE

(Sinister, 1939) D: Victor Halperin S: George Wicker P: Ben Judell

This was made (for PRC) by Halperin after Torture Ship. The current video cover makes it look like a horror movie. It's not, but so what! It is Ernie, the executioner, drinks after frying killer Joe Brzinski and gets into a bar fight. The dumb Big Bill (copied from Of Mice and Men) figures in the plot. Halperin made only one more feature, Girls' Town (1942).

BURIED ALIVE

(IVE, 1979) D/C: "Joe D'Amato"/Aristide Massaccesi S: Ottavio Fabri P: Marco Rossetti Italy (Buio Omega; Blue Holocaust; Beyond the Darkness)

A young taxidermist orphan living in a mansion keeps his dead girlfriend around. He tortures and kills women and eats a heart. With actual autopsy and cremation scenes. The music is by Goblin. The gory, unrated release upset people even in 42nd Street audiences.

BURIED ALIVE

(RCA, 1988) D: Gerard Kikoine S: Jake Clesi, Stuart Lee P: Harry Alan Towers S. Africa

This modern mixture of several Poe stories, set in an American school for delinquent girls, is worth it only for the cast. Robert Vaughn stars as the celebrity doctor who runs the Ravenscroft Institute. Donald Pleasence is an eccentric, scene-stealing, junk-food-eating doctor in a gray wig and bow tie. Karen Witter (from All My Children) is the new blond teacher. Former porno star Ginger Lynn Allen is a tough, pot-smoking inmate. The script wastes elements of Poe's stories "The System of Dr. Tarr and Professor Feather," "The Black Cat," and "The Premature Burial." Guest star John Carradine (in his last role before he died in Milan in November 1988) is a surprise walled-up character. With a hand emerging from a toilet,

BURIED ALIVE

(MCA, 1990) D: Frank Darabont S: Mark Patrick Carducci P: Nicki Marvin

This modern variation on Poe was made for the USA network. Jennifer Jason Leigh (good in an evil role) poisons her husband (Tim Matheson) and has him buried (in a cheap, damaged coffin without formaldehyde), but he's not really dead. He manages to dig his way out and plots his revenge by building a maze for his wife and her doctor/lover (William Atherton). With Hoyt Axton.

BURLESQUE IN HARLEM

(SW, 1949) D: William Alexander P: Joseph Tully (Rock 'n Roll Burlesque)

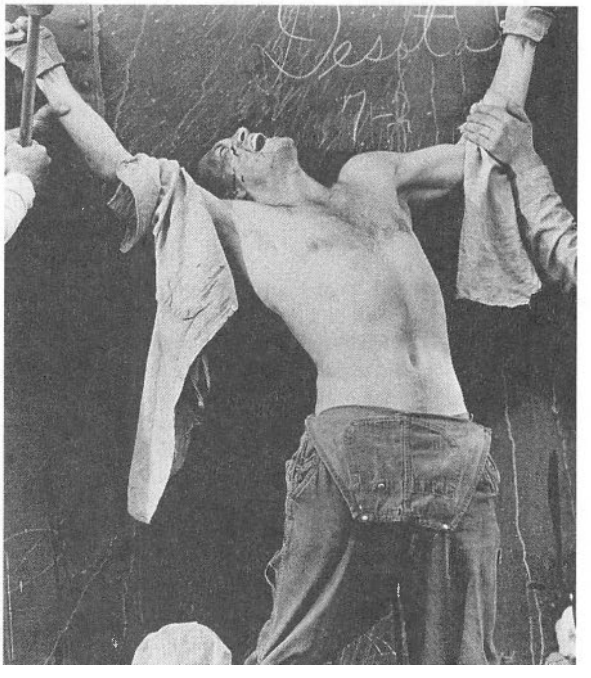
It's just a series of stage acts, but this is a treasure trove of black performers. Dick Barrow is the (big) MC and sings "I've Got a Juicy Baby." An equally big lady dances and sings "I'm Just a Big Gal Doin' the Best I Can." Top-billed comedian Pigmeat Markham is featured in several routines, and a lady comedian says "Honey, he had so many wrinkles on his forehead, they had to screw his hat on!" Gertrude "Baby" Banks dances several times, dressed in a bikini, and the acrobatic Taza steals the show. With Mabel Hunter, Vivian Harris, Jo Jo Adams, Hucklebuck Jones (there were a half dozen "Hucklebuck" songs on the R&B charts that year), and tap dancers Slip and Slide. The rock title was for a late 50s reissue. The TNT Pictures release, now a Roadshow Rarities video, is from a jumpy print.



BURNDOWN

(MEG, 1989) D: James Allen
S: Anthony Barwick, Colin Stewart P: Ed Fredericks S. Africa

A southern nuclear boom town becomes a ghost town in this murder mystery with a radioactive rapist/ killer. Cathy Moriarty (from Raging Bull) is a reporter, Peter Firth is the sheriff, and Hal Orlandini discovers a group of disfigured, hooded men living in the closed plant.

THE BURNING COURT

(Sinister, 1961) D/S: Julien Duvivier S: Charles Spaak P: Yvon Guezel France/Italy/W. Germany (La Chambre Ardent; Curse of the Coffin)

A group of people visit an eccentric old student of black arts who lives in an ancient, cursed castle. Characters die after a costume party. It was based on a novel by American mystery writer John Dickson Carr. With Jean-Claude Brialy, Nadja Tiller, and Edith Scob. The films of the French director, whose career spanned nearly 50 years, include The Golem (1936) and Flesh and Fantasy (1943).

THE BURNING CROSS

(Ace, 1974) D: Terence Young S: Sam Fuller, Millard Kaufman P: William Alexander (The Klansman)

Nobody liked this all-star race-problem movie from Paramount about civil-rights workers, the KKK, lynchings, rape, and vigilantes. Sam Fuller was set to direct but backed out. Lee Marvin is top-billed as the fair minded sheriff of Ellenton, Alabama, Cameron Mitchell is his racist, lynch-mob-leading deputy, and Richard Burton is a reclusive aristocrat. O. J. Simpson, as a black militant, kills off Klansmen. With Lola Falana, David Huddleston, Luciana Paluzzi, Linda Evans, Hoke Howell, and Jeanne Bell. The Staple Singers are on the soundtrack.

BURNING MOON

(Dead Alive, 1992) D/S: Olaf Ittenbach Germany

After a violent gang fight, a teenage junkie tells three horror stories to his little sister. A decapitating escaped mass murderer dates an unsuspecting girl; in the 50s, a Satanic rapist priest chains up a woman; and, uh, I forget the third one. This grim relentless overlong movie has lots of extreme gore FX. Some are well done but the obvious dummy being run over is a problem. It was filmed in Munich and is subtitled except for frequent fuck-yous and OKs.

THE BUSHIDO BLADE

(HBO, 1979) D: Tom Katani
S: William Overgard P: Arthur Rankin Jr.
US/Japan (The Bloody Bushido Blade)

Richard Boone (in his last role) stars as Admiral Perry in this historical action movie about a steel samurai blade that is to be given to the Americans but is stolen. The impressive cast includes Toshiro Mifune, Sonny Chiba, James Earl Jones, Laura Gemser (Emmanuelle), and Mako, but Frank Converse is the star. Kotani also did The Last Dinosaur (1977) with Boone for Rankin/Bass, the team known for the annual Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer TV cartoon special. Though some called The Bushido Blade an attempt to cash in on the Shogun miniseries (also with Mifune), it was made first.

THE BUSHWACKERS

(Sinister, 1952) D/S: Rod Amateau
S: Tom Gries P: Larry Finley

Lon Chaney Jr. is a crippled land baron, the villain of this western. John Ireland is the Confederate Army vet hero. With Dorothy Malone, Wayne Morris, Lawrence Tierney, and Jack Elam. It was a Jack Broder (Bride of the Gorilla) production.

THE BUS IS COMING

(1971) D: Wendell James Franklin
S: Robert H. Raff S/P: Horace Jackson

A black Nam vet (Mike Simms) returns home to LA and learns that his brother was killed by racist cops. He joins a militant group to get revenge. Franklin was an early black director who made this in LA and Cleveland before the black-action craze.

BUSTED UP

(MCA, 1986) D: Conrad E. Palmisano
S/P: Damien Lee P: David Mitchell Canada

Paul Coufolos is a street-fighter who owns a gym in the ghetto but has to fight to keep it. Irene Cara, his girlfriend, sings "She Works Hard for the Money."

BUSTER'S BEDROOM

(Alliance, 1990) D/S: Rebecca Horn
S: Martin Mosebach P: Luciano Gloor
Canada/Germany/Portugal

A crazy doctor (Donald Sutherland) takes over the Nirvana House, a hospital where Buster Keaton supposedly once stayed. Amanda Ooms is the teen star of this absurdist comedy full of bizarre characters. Also with Valentina Cortese, Geraldine Chaplin, Mary Woronov, and Taylor Mead. It was shot by Sven Nykvist.

BUTTERFLY

(Vestron, 1981) D/S/P: "Matt Cimber"/Matteo Ottaviano S: John Goff US/Canada

Kady (Pia Zadora), a 17-year-old, drives her "father" (Stacy Keach) to plot a murder and tempts him with incest. Keach guards a silver mine for Ed McMahon and June Lockhart. With Orson Welles as a lecherous small-town judge, Stuart Whitman, Edward Albert Jr. (also in Cimber's A Time to Die), Lois Nettleton, James Franciscus, Paul Hampton, and Buck Flower. It was based on a James M. Cain story set in 1937 and is the best known of Cimber's many exploitation movies, thanks to Pia's publicity. She was also in Cimber's Fake-Out (1982) and posed for Penthouse in 1983.

BUTTERFLY MURDERS

(1979) D: Tsui Hark (Xu Ke) S: Lum Chi-Ming Hong Kong (Tieh Pieni)

Hark's first effort concerns a journalist trying to solve a mystery in "Martial World" with help from a master fighter and a woman called Green Breeze. They go to a mysterious castle, where they encounter poisonous butterflies and a killer in black leather armor. Lau Siu-Ming and Wong Shih-Tong star. It was a commercial flop when released but was rediscovered by fans later, after Hark became a major director and producer. He had studied film in Texas.

BUY AND CELL

(Starmaker, 1988) D: Robert Boris
S: Ken Krauss, Merrin Holt P: Frank Yablans

Wall Street investment broker Robert Carradine is unjustly sent to jail, where he plays the stock market. With Malcolm McDowell as the warden, Michael Winslow, Lise Cutter, Ben Vereen, Randall "Tex" Cobb, Rowdy Roddy Piper, Imogene Coca, and Fred Travalena. This comedy includes in-jokes about earlier prison movies. Charles Band was the executive producer of this New World release, shot in Italy.

BY DAWN'S EARLY LIGHT

(HBO, 1990) D: Jack Sholder S: Bruce Gilbert P: Thomas M. Hammel

This Cold War thriller, based on the novel Trinity's Child, had the US and the USSR launching nuclear missiles at each other. Powers Boothe stars in this cable feature, with Rebecca De Mornay, James Earl Jones, Darren McGavin, Rip Torn, Martin Landau, and Peter MacNicol.

BYE BYE BIRDIE

(RCA, 1963) D: George Sidney
S: Irving Brecher P: Fred Kohlmar

This Technicolor light-rock musical from Columbia was based on the 1960 Broadway hit, which was inspired by Elvis being drafted in 1958. Conrad Birdie (Jesse Pearson), the Elvis/Conway Twitty character, visits a small town before beginning his stint in the army. Ann-Margret (who went on to act opposite the real Elvis in Viva Las Vegas) costars, with Bobby Rydell, Janet Leigh, Dick Van Dyke, and Paul Lynde. Van Dyke and Lynde had both been in the play. With Ed Sullivan and a scene where a turtle is given speed. The RCA soundtrack was a big seller.

BYE BYE MONKEY

(Nightmare, 1978) D/S: Marco Ferreri
S: Gérard Brach, Rafael Azcona Italy/France

Gérard Depardieu and 70s porno star Abigail Clayton (also in the Joe Spinnell Maniac) adopt "baby Kong" (a chimp) found near the World Trade Center. With Marcello Mastroianni, James Coco, Mimsy Farmer, Geraldine Fitzgerald, and Clarence Muse. The giant, King Kong from the Dino De Laurentiis remake appears. The film was shot in English in New York City.

CABEZA DE VACA

(New Horizons, 1989) D/S: Nicolás Echevarría S: Guillermo Sheridan P: Rafael Cruz, Jorge Sanchez Mexico

Geraldo Villareal, as the Spanish explorer Álvar Núñez Cabeza de Vaca, and Juan Diego, as the treasurer of the expedition, survive a storm in the New World in 1528. They're enslaved by a medicine man and develop mystical powers over a period of eight years. The 128-minute film, based on a true story, partially resembles Aguirre and The Naked Prey. It was released in the US by Roger Corman and can sometimes be seen on PBS.

CABIN BOY

(Touchstone, 1994) D/S: Adam Resnik P: Tim Burton, Denise Di Novi

Chris Elliott stars as Nathaniel, a geeky, obnoxious, rich, British "fancy lad" who always asks for the trouble he gets in. He accidentally ends up on the fishing boat the Filthy Whore. This odd PG-13 fantasy/comedy, which seems to be set in several time periods at once, would never had been made if it hadn't been for the clout of Tim Burton. It costars Melora Walters, Brion James, Mike Starr, and Brian Doyle Murray. Ann Magnuson is the six-armed Kali, Russ Tamblyn is a half shark/half man, and Ricki Lake is the ship's figurehead. With some Harryhausen–type animation (such as an ice monster and a talking cupcake during a hallucination scene), Bob Elliott (the star's real-life father), and David Letterman.

THE CABINET OF DR. CALIGARI

(Republic, 1919) D: Robert Wiene S: Carl Mayer, Hans Janowitz P: Erich Pommer Germany (Das Cabinet des Dr. Caligari)

The very theatrical and influential Caligari, made shortly after WWI, is a must see for serious horror fans. It's famous for its incredible impressionistic sets. I first saw it in a revival theater as a kid with my grandfather (who was around and watching movies in 1919), and he said it looked more like it was made in 1900 to him. Conrad Veidt is the sleek, zombielike somnambulist Cesare, used by the fairground hypnotist Dr. Caligari (Werner Krauss) to kill. The entire story is told by a man who turns out to be an inmate in an asylum run by the doctor. Also in the cast are Lil Dagover, Friedrich Feher, Hans von Twardowski, and Rudolph Klein-Rogge. The Republic video version has a music score, is tinted (as when originally released), and runs 69 minutes. The original time was 82 minutes, and it's been listed at many different running times (most tapes run too fast). Wiene and Veidt reteamed in 1925 for the original version of The Hands of Orlac. Pommer also produced many early films by Fritz Lang, who had originally been asked to direct Caligari. Made by Decla-Bioscop (which was absorbed by UFA in 1923), it is said to have cost around $20,000! A book of the original shooting script was released in 1988. Update/remake attempts were made in 1962 (The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari), 1989 (Dr. Caligari), and 1991 (The Cabinet of Dr. Ramirez).

THE CABINET OF DR. RAMIREZ

(1991) D/S: Peter Sellars P: Rainer Mockert US/Germany

Chicago theater director Sellars made a pretentious (silent) remake of The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari in New York City. David Lynch was the original executive producer but isn't in the credits. Characters die in various bloody ways, then show up in a clinic at end. Mikhail Baryshnikov (from Latvia) stars as Cesare, with Joan Cusack, Peter Gallagher, and Werner Klemperer. There's a symphonic score.

CABIRIA

(Kino, 1914) D: Giovanni Pastrone S: Gabrielle D'Annunzio Italy

This epic film (over 2 hours) is about a girl named Cabiria (Lidia Quaranta) who is saved by Maciste (Bartolomeo Pagano) from being sacrificed to a pagan god while Mount Etna erupts. Pagano returned as Maciste in other films. D. W. Griffith was influenced by it when he made the Babylonian sequence of Intolerance, and it was a predecessor of all later Hercules-type features.

CAESAR THE CONQUEROR

(1963) D: "Amerigo Anton"/Tanio Boccio S: Arpad De Riso P: Roberto Capitano Italy (Giulio Cesare il Conquistadore delle Gallie)

Cameron Mitchell stars as Julius Caesar. Mitchell spent much of the 60s in Europe playing cowboys, Vikings, murder suspects, and villains.

CAFE FLESH

(VCA, 1982) D/S/P: "Rinse Dream"/Steven Sayadian S: Herbert W. Day P/C: "F. X. Pope"/Joseph Robertson

In a dreary post-nuke future, "sex negatives" watch "sex positives" perform in a club with a Cabaret-type MC. The frequent closeups of leering voyeurs make this an anti-porno porno movie. Patrons who saw it when it opened in adult theaters probably hated it, but it became a cult feature for others, at midnight screenings. Penthouse July 1981 Pet Pia Snow costars as Lana. She was also in Bad Girls (1982), and a transsexual movie, Shannon (1983) before she became "scream queen" Michelle Bauer. With Becky Savage, Marie Sharp, Kevin Jay, and Ken Starbuck. The same guy made the unique Nightdreams (1981) and its later direct-to-video sequels and his own (non-porno) Dr. Caligari (1989).

CAGE

(Orion, 1989) D/P: Lang Elliott S: Hugh Kelly

Big Lou Ferrigno (who is nice, and dumb, and childlike after being shot in the head in battle) and Reb Brown are Nam buddies who run a bar. Fixed "human cockfights" make a lot of money in a secret LA Chinatown location, and gangsters trick Ferrigno into risking his life in the "cage." With Michael Dante, James Shigeta, Marilyn Tokuda, and Al Leong. This violent movie has lots of ethnic slurs and delivers the goods for action fans. Elliot also made Tim Conway comedies. Cage II: The Arena of Death (1994) followed, with the same leads.

THE CAGE

(Magnum, 1977) D: Karen Arthur S: Don Chastain P: Diana Young (The Mafu Cage; My Sister, My Love)

You probably know that actress Carol Kane can be pretty interesting and funny, but you've never seen her like this. She plays a young woman who grew up in Africa and is obsessed with her "Mafu" (which turns out to be an orangutan). She lives with her astrologist sister (Lee Grant), who works at Griffith Park Observatory and is totally nuts. Kane is amazing—yelling, screaming, swearing, and doing frenzied native dances (to some excellent African-based music). She also keeps James Olson in a cage and does other disturbing things. Also with Will Geer. It's based on a play. The unheralded Arthur later made Lady Beware (1987) and other features.

CAGED DESIRES

(1970) D/P: Don Davis S/A: Barbara Peeters

This obscure, adults-only women-in-prison movie stars Peeters, who went on to direct movies for Roger Corman like Bury Me an Angel (1972) and Humanoids from the Deep (1980). Nudie director Davis had done production work on Orgy of the Dead.

CAGED FURY

(VBG, 1984) D: Cirio H. Santiago S: Bobby Greenwood P: Emily Bass Philippines

American women in a Vietnamese prison are brainwashed and given shock treatments to make them zombielike human bombs. Using an idea from Telefon, they kill when they hear a phrase over the phone. Ken Metcalf is the American hero. With Bernadette Williams, Taaffe O'Connell, and some nudity. The casting was by Jim Wynorski.

CAGED FURY

(RCA, 1989) D/S: Bill Milling P: Bob Gallagher

Roxanne Michaels, as a blond would-be actress in Hollywood, is sent to a secret women's prison. Erik Estrada is the Harley-riding hero in this movie with kung fu and bikers. With Paul Smith, James Hong, Michael Parks, Jack Carter, Melissa Moore, Blake Bahner, and porno stars, including Ron Jeremy (one of the producers), Ty Randolph, and Kascha. From 21st Century.

CAGED HEAT II: STRIPPED OF FREEDOM

(New Horizons, 1994) D/P: Cirio H. Santiago S/P: Paul Ziller (Prisoners)

This is more like Jack Hill's The Big Doll House (1971) than Jonathan Demme's Caged Heat (1974) and is very much like a vintage 70s drive-in action movie. Jewel Shepard stars as a CIA agent who goes undercover in a penitentiary to try and rescue a princess (Chanel Akiko Hirai) who had been kidnapped. In one scene, Jewel (who uses a Clint Eastwood–style delivery) is hung upside down by her hair for a long time and is whipped, but is basically fine afterwards. The women fight each othert a lot but I want to know why they wear pants in the showers. With Vic Diaz as the bald rapist warden, Pamella D'Pella as the tough, big-busted, black junkie gang leader, and Susan Harvey. It was made in the Philippines.

CAGED IN PARADISO

(Vidmark, 1989) D: Mike Snyder
S: Michele Thyne P: John G. Thomas

Women (including Irene Cara, whose husband produced) in an island prison are surrounded by deadly lasers. Fame star Cara was an exploitation movie regular by the mid-80s. Joseph Culp (son of Robert) plays a terrorist.

CAGED MEN PLUS ONE WOMAN

(1972) D/S: Edward J. Forsythe S: Jerry Thomas P: Avron M. Slutker UK

A man is conned by a woman into committing a crime , and he ends up in prison, where a lot of violent things happen. Ross Stephanson and Maureen McGill star, with Abdullah the Butcher.

CAGED TERROR

(New World, 1972) D/S/P: Barry McLean, Kristen Weingartner (Golden Apples of the Sun)

Percy Harkness and Elizabeth Suzuki are a hippie couple having a good time in the country until some folk-singing psycho Nam vets show up. The video debut came when the feature was 20 years old.

CAGED VIRGINS

(SW, 1971) D/S: Jean Rollin P: Sam Selsky France (Requiem pour un Vampire; The Virgins and the Vampires; Dungeons of Virgins; Crazed Vampire)

Two pigtailed lesbians (a blonde and a redhead) dressed as clowns blow up a car after a chase and hide out in a cemetery. They go to a castle where a female vampire with 18th-century clothes and pointy teeth keeps brutal, ugly male slaves. The two crooks are tied up, pawed, and eventually used to lure more (male) victims. It's slow going, has very little dialogue, and features real bats. Marie-Pierre Castel and Mireille Dargent star. It was the 4th of Rollin's unique vampire movies. This is the dubbed Boxoffice International American-release version, originally rated X but looking like an R. Dungeons of Terror (Best) is a different video version, and an uncut, subtitled version is available too.

CAGED WOMEN

(Vestron, 1982) D/E: "Vincent Dawn"/ Bruno Mattei S: Palmanbroccio Molenti, Oliver Lemat Italy (Women's Penitentiary IV; Emanuelle: Reportage da un Carcere Femminile)

Journalist Emanuelle (Laura Gemser) goes undercover as a prostitute/prisoner. This sick movie is filled with lesbians, gays who are beaten up and raped, and lotsa sadism. Full bedpans are thrown at guards, and rats attack prisoners in the "hole." Gabrielle Tinti plays a prison doctor. The husband/wife acting team of Gemser and Tinti had already been in around 20 films together. The same year, they were in a Michael Landon movie (!), Passion and Valor. The same cast returned in Women's Prison Massacre.

THE CALENDAR GIRL MURDERS

(Edde, 1984) D: William A. Graham S: Scott Swanton, Gregory S. Dinallo P: James O'Fallon

Tom Skerritt is a cop investigating serial-killer murders, in this ABC-TV movie. Sharon Stone costars, with Robert Culp as the calendar publisher. Also with Barbara Parkins, Robert Morse, Alan Thicke, Robert Beltran, and Claudia Christian, plus Rip Taylor, Meredith MacRae, and Peter Brown as themselves.

CALIFORNIA

(1963) D/P: Hamil Petroff S: James West

Revolutionaries fight Mexican troops in 1841 California. Jock Mahoney stars as Don Miguel, with Faith Domergue, Michael Pate, and Nester Paiva.

CALIFORNIA AXE MURDERS: See AXE

CALIFORNIA DREAMING

(1979) D: John Hancock S/A: Ned Wynn P: Christian Whitaker

Dennis Christopher stars as an uncool guy from the Midwest who desperately tries to fit in on the beach in California. With Glynis O'Connor, Seymour Cassel, Tanya Roberts, Jimmy Van Patten, Stacy Nelkin, Marshall Efron. AIP released it years after their 60s beach-party movies.

CALIGULA

(Vestron, 1980) D: Tinto Brass, Giancarlo Lui, Piernico Solinas S: Gore Vidal P: Bob Guccione, Franco Rossellini US/Italy

Malcolm McDowell stars in this infamous X-rated historical movie from Penthouse magazine, which was most likely inspired by Pasolini's Salò (1977). It's an uneven exploitation movie, of course, but like it or not, it has the ability to shock. Seeing it during its X-rated 42nd Street run was a real experience. It was the only time I saw several (probably high as a kite) guys in the audience stand up and scream during a movie. The cast includes Peter O'Toole, Sir John Gielgud, Helen Mirren, Teresa Ann Savoy (from Salò) as Caligula's sister, John Steiner, Lori Wagner, and Anneka De Lorenzo. Some of the name stars later claimed they didn't know about the stronger scenes, and names were removed from the production credits. Vidal had his name removed too. Caligula features an incredible decapitation machine, blood-drinking, impalement, guts, a male fist-fuck, some hard-core sex, and gore. Marjorie Lee Thorson, 1975 Pet of the Year, later sued Guccione, claiming that her role had done "irreparable harm" to her acting career. She was awarded $4.06 in damages by the Supreme Court. The X version runs 148 minutes, but the uncut version is said to be 156 minutes. The R-rated reissue is 105 minutes. X and R tapes are available. Penthouse released a soundtrack album, and copy movies were made in Europe (Caligula Erotica, Emperor Caligula, The Untold Story, Caligula's Slaves, Caligula and Messalina). Some tapes were retitled. Caligula: Funniest Home Videos is actually the 1965 British comedy Carry On Cleo!

CALIGULA REINCARNATED AS HITLER: See THE GESTAPO'S LAST ORGY

CALIGULA REINCARNATED AS NERO

(Magnum, 1981) D/S/E: "Vincent Dawn"/Bruno Mattei S: Antonio Passalia Italy (Nerone e Poppea)

Nero is portrayed as a dumb, comic character in this cheap movie with a lion played by a man in a suit. It was actually filmed in 70mm with Dolby sound.

CALIGULA: SINS OF ROME: See MESSALINA, MESSALINA

CALIGULA: THE UNTOLD STORY: See EMPEROR CALIGULA: THE UNTOLD STORY

THE CALLER

(TWE, 1987) D: Arthur Allan Seidelman S: Michael Sloane P: Frank Yablans

Malcolm McDowell terrorizes Madolyn Smith in a remote cabin. He turns out to be a robot covered with fake flesh, in a double-surprise ending. John Buechler did the FX for this claustrophobic Empire release, shot in Italy. Made by the director of Arnold Schwarzenegger's first film, Hercules Goes Bananas.

CALL ME

(Vestron, 1988) D: Sollace Mitchell S: Karyn Kay P: John E. Quill, Kenneth F. Martel

In New York, Patricia Charbonneau is turned on by an obscene phone call, in this "erotic thriller." She ends up involved with drugs and crooked cops. With Patti D'Arbanville, Stephen McHattie (who follows her around), and Steve Buscemi as Switchblade.

CALL OF THE JUNGLE

(1945) D: Phil Rosen S: George Callahan P: Philip N. Krasne

This was the last of three movies that stripper Ann Corio starred in at Monogram. The first two were musicals. All three run about an hour each. She's a South Seas native helping an American cop (James Bush) find sacred pearls in a temple. With I. Stanford Jolley and Phil Van Zandt.

CALL OF THE SAVAGE

(Stokey, 1935) D: Louis Friedlander S: Nate Gazert, George Plympton, Basil Dickey

This 12-chapter Universal serial stars Noah Berry Jr. as a Tarzan-like jungle man. In one sequence, a cure for polio is discovered in the jungle. With Dorothy Short and Bryant Washburn. It was based on Jan of the Jungle, by Otis Adelbert Kline. The New Adventures of Tarzan, another serial, was released the same year.

THE CALL OF THE WILD

(Warner, 1972) D: Ken Annakin S: Hubert Frank, Tibor Reeves P: Arthur Brauner Germany/Spain/France/Italy

Charlton Heston stars in this version of Jack London's novel set in Alaska, about a dog named Buck. Heston falls for Michele Mercier, as a barkeeper, and discovers gold. With George Eastman (The Grim Reaper) as Black Burton and Maria Rohm. It was filmed in Finland. Harry Alan Towers was the executive producer.

CALYPSO JOE

(1957) D/S: Edward Dein S: Mildred Dein P: William F. Broidy

Angie Dickinson, as a stewardess with beatnik/musician friends, plans to marry a South American millionaire. With Herb Jeffries and His Calypsomaniacs, Lord Flea, the Easy Riders, Ed Kemmer, and Laurie Mitchell. Dein made it after Shack Out on 101. This Allied Artist feature played on double bills with Hot Rod Rumble.

CAMERON'S CLOSET

(SVS, 1987) D: Armand Mastroianni S: Gary Brandner P: Luigi Cingolani

A scientist (Tab Hunter) tests the telekinetic abilities of his son, Cameron (Scott Curtis), but falls on a machete and loses his head in an early scene. Cameron moves in with his psychiatrist mom (Mel Harris) and her asshole actor boyfriend, and more people die. There's a 50s-style winged monster created by Carlo Rambaldi in the closet (another dimension, actually). Most of it is pretty boring. With Cotter Smith as a cop, Chuck McCann as a scientist, Leigh McCloskey, Kim Lankford, and Gary Hudson. The script was written by the author of The Howling and made by Marcello's cousin, who also directed many episodes of the Friday the 13th TV series. The music is by Henri Manfredini.

CAMILLE 2000

(Magnum, 1969) D/P: Radley Metzger S: Michael DeForrest

Danielle Gaubert, who has already "ruined many men," is the beautiful, spoiled, jet-set junkie mistress of a rich duke. She throws many wild champagne-and-pill parties at a villa. The most memorable has a prison theme complete with cells and handcuffs. It's a very stylish and colorful widescreen modernization of the Alexandre Dumas story, with imaginative erotic scenes. Nino Castelnuovo and Eleanora Rossi-Drago costar. It was filmed in English in Rome by American director Metzger, who made The Lickerish Quartet (1970) next. Gaubert died in 1970.

CAMPFIRE TALES

(K. Beech, 1990) D/S/P: Paul Talbot D/S: William Cooke

Original Leatherface Gunnar Hansen is a bearded bum who intrudes on three camping kids reading horror comics and tells them four scary stories. One is about a hook-hand killer. It's bloody and features a clip of Karloff from The Terror. One is about an evil young guy who is punished by "Satan" Claus at Christmas. Another is a period story about a pirate, an ex-slave, and zombies on an island. The oddest is a "just say no" tale about two guys who cop some killer pot, smoke it in bongs in their basement hangout, and mutate and eventually fall apart. It features more clips on TV (Reefer Madness; Witchcraft Through the Ages). It's a fun anthology with gore and effective rock music.

THE CAMP ON BLOOD ISLAND

(1958) D/S: Val Guest S: Jon Manchip White P: Anthony Hinds UK

Hammer took a break from gothic horrors to make this bloody (for the time) look at the real-life horrors of a WWII Japanese prisoner-of-war camp. André Morell stars, with Carl Mohner, Barbara Shelley, and Michael Gwynn. Columbia released it in the US. Hammer returned to the same theme with The Secret of Blood Island (1965).

CAMPUS CORPSE

(Vestron, 1977) D/P: Douglas Curtis S/P: Bruce Shelley (The Hazing, The Curious Case of the Campus Corpse)

This GP-rated obscurity about death resulting from hazing pranks has a cast that includes Jeff East, the late Brad Davis (in his first feature), and Charles Martin Smith (from the American Graffiti films). Curtis later directed The Sleeping Car.

CANADIAN BACON

(Polygram, 1994) D/S/P: Michael Moore P: David Brown

America and Canada go to war in a comedy by the maker of the documentary Roger and Me. The late John Candy stars, with Rhea Perlman, Alan Alda, Kevin J. O'Connor, Bill Nunn, G. D. Spradlin, Kevin Pollak, Wallace Shawn, and Steven Wright.

CANADIAN MOUNTIES VS. ATOMIC INVADERS

(Republic, 1953) D: Franklin Adreon S: Ronald Davidson

Bill Henry stars as a Mountie Sergeant who battles spies, in this Cold War Republic serial. With Sue Morrow, Arthur Space as Marlof, and Dale Van Sickle. A condensed TV version was called Missile Base at Taniak. Adreon directed all of the last five Republic serials. The next two (Man with the Steel Whip and Trader Tom of the China Seas) are available from Stokey.

CANDYMAN

(Tri Star, 1992) D/S: Bernard Rose P: Steve Golin

A Chicago grad student (Virginia Madsen) investigates an urban legend about the "Candyman" in the Cabrini Green projects. Tony Todd (star of the Night of the Living Dead remake) is the spirit of an artist, the son of a slave who had been lynched (stung to death by bees) for being with a white woman. He has a hook hand for killing and wants Madsen, who ends up accused of the murder of the baby of Vanessa Williams (not the former Miss America). Candy Man is an uneasy mixture of real-life ghetto horrors and a half-assed supernatural story with mediocre FX. It was based on "The Forbidden," a short story by executive producer Clive Barker. His name was not used in the publicity, but the film proved to be the biggest Barker hit up to that time, and a sequel followed. With Kasi Lemmons and Carolyn Lowry. Phillip Glass provided the score.

CANDYMAN: FAREWELL TO THE FLESH

(Polygram, 1995) D: Bill Condon S: Rand Ravich P: Sigurjon Sighvatsson

The wealthy New Orleans family of Annie Tarrant (Kelly Rowan) seems to be cursed. We eventually find out that the supernatural Candyman (Tony Todd), who's back during Mardi Gras, is a family secret. Annie's brother (William O'Leary) is blamed for the killings. The 19th-century flashbacks of Candyman's torture and death (for being with a white woman) are disturbing. This sequel is more awkward than the original, the special effects are minor, the Phillip Glass score is sleep inducing and characters say the magical name Candyman many times, practically asking to die. Also with Timothy Carhart, Veronica Cartwright, Bill Nunn, and Matt Clark.

CANDY MOUNTAIN

(Republic, 1988) D: Robert Frank D/S: Rudy Wurlitzer P: Ruth Waldburger Canada/France

Kevin J. O'Connor is an untalented would-be rock musician in New York City who is sent to find Elmore Silk (Harris Yulin), a legendary, reclusive guitar-maker. This pretty slow northbound road movie takes place mostly in Canada but picks up with some celebrity cameos. With Roberts Blossom, Bulle Ogier, David Johansen as a rock star, Tom Waits, Leon Redbone, Dr. John, Airto Lindsay, and Rockets Redglare.

CANDY SNATCHERS

(1973) D: Guerdon Trueblood S/P: Byron Gindoff

Here's a real find, an obscure and well-made exploitation movie that delivers and has clever, unexpected plot twists. Tiffany Bolling and two guys kidnap a young teen named Candy (Susan Sennett) and bury her alive, waiting for the ransom money from her wealthy parents. The plot flirts with rape, incest, drugs, dismemberment, and murder. The soundtrack is period "wacka wacka" guitar, and the theme song is "Money Is the Root of All Happiness." Tiffany Bolling was also in Wicked Wicked, Centerfold Girls, and Kingdom of the Spiders. Sennett (who has a topless scene) was one of Ozzie's Girls on TV the same year (!). This General Film Corp. movie (presented by Arthur Marks) has not been officially released on tape but can be found in mail-order catalogs.

Maria Rojo and Candice Rialson are two of the Candy Stripe Nurses.

CANDY STRIPE NURSES

(Nelson, 1974) D/S: Allan Holleb P: Roger Corman

The last of five nurse drive-in movies from New World is more of a comedy than the others, but it has the usual elements (three sexy women, topless scenes, guns, and some kind of political or feminist statement). Star Candice Rialson cures an impotent rock star, Robin Mattson has an affair with a basketball player, and Maria Rojo solves a gas-station holdup. With Dick Miller, plus Tom Baker and Sally Kirkland, who had both been in New York underground movies.

CANDY TANGERINE MAN

(Unicorn, 1975) D/P: "Matt Cimber"/ Matteo Ottaviano S: George Theakos

John Daniels stars as a suburban LA businessman who, unknown to his family, is also the "Black Baron," a Hollywood Boulevard massage-parlor owner and overdressed pimp. He battles Italian gangsters and eventually decides to give up his illegal life. With Angel (Tracy) King, C. D. Lefleur, Mikel Angel, Pat Wright, and "the actual hookers and blades of the Sunset Strip." This is the kind of black exploitation movie that's easy to condemn. It's a violent, nasty movie with a hand pushed in a garbage disposal and a hooker's breasts cut off. Daniels returned in Black Shampoo and Getting Over.

CAN HIERONYMUS MERKIN EVER FORGET MERCY HUMPPE AND FIND TRUE HAPPINESS?

(1969) D/S/P/A: Anthony Newley S: Herman Raucher UK

Newley made this self-indulgent, Fellini-inspired autobiographical mess with his real-life wife, Joan Collins (as Polyester Poontang). It's about a filmmaker who turns 40, chases after young girls, and meets the Devil. Collins and Newley were divorced shortly after the film's release. It received an X rating in America, and few people saw it. Connie Kreski (from the pages of Playboy) is Mercy. With Milton Berle, George Jessel (who sings), Stubby Kaye, Victor Spinetti, and Robert Hutton.

CANNIBAL: See JUNGLE HOLOCAUST

CANNIBAL APOCALYPSE = CANNIBALS IN THE STREETS

CANNIBAL CAMPOUT

(Intercoast, 1988) D/P: Tom Fisher D/A: Jon McBride S: John Rayl

A toxic-waste drum is used for a still in this amateurish shot-on-video horror from New Jersey. The resulting cannibals attack and eat teens (and a fetus) in the woods.

CANNIBAL FEROUX: See MAKE THEM DIE SLOWLY

CANNIBAL HOLOCAUST

(Mogul, 1978) D: Ruggiero Deodato S: Gianfranco Clerici P: Franco Palaggi Italy (Jungle Holocaust)

The director of The Last Survivor (1976) returns with more exploitative cannibal atrocities. A search party finds footage shot by a mondo-documentary film crew in South America. The filmmakers had killed animals and raped a native woman. This incites the Amazonian natives to do even more horrible things (impale a naked woman, rip out a human fetus), and there's a piranha attack. R. Bolla (a.k.a. Robert Kerman) is a professor. The uncut 96-minute version (Canibal Holocausto) is out in Venezuela, in English with Spanish subtitles, for completists who can't get enough. This controversial movie, which included animals actually being killed, hasn't been topped for disgusting scenes. It's also a very convincing, clever, subversive, and dishonest feature, pretending to condemn everything it shows.

CANNIBAL HOOKERS

(Camp, 1987) D/S/P: Donald Farmer P/A: Gary J. Levinson

Hillary and Dee Dee, two sorority pledges, have to pose as hookers. They buy punk clothes at Hollywood Book and Poster (owner Eric Caidin makes an appearance). The guys watch footage from a (real) zombie-gore movie (Curse of the Screaming Dead) and talk about sex with pigs. The girls become zombie cannibals. A blonde chained in a dungeon has her Buckwheat shirt ripped off. With producer Levinson as Lobo, Mayra Grant, Sheila Best (from G.L.O.W.) as the head of the sorority, and Matt Borlenchi. It was shot (on video) in Ted V. Mikels' "castle." The sound is terrible, one girl keeps looking at the camera, and the FX consist of blood and boobs. The music, by Das Yahoos and Ben Vaughn ("She's a Real Scream") was issued on Skyclad. Farmer also made Scream Dream, Demon Queen, and Vampire Cop.

CANNIBAL ISLAND

(SW, 1956)

Publicity for this one-hour exploitation documentary about South Pacific pygmies proclaimed, "A telephoto lens was a necessary part in the making of this picture because closer contact with the natives would have meant certain death!" The videotape box claims that it was produced as a government training film. With topless Polynesian women and very racist narration.

CANNIBALS OF THE SOUTH SEAS

(1912)

This was the first of many films by the husband/wife team of Martin and Osa Johnson, originally backed by George Eastman. They used editing tricks and were accused of staging many scenes, but they continued to make popular documentaries in exotic locations until Martin's death in a plane crash in 1937.

CANNON

This company was purchased by Menahem Golan and Goram Globus, two cousins from Israel, in 1979. It became the most prolific and publicized producer of features in the world for many years. They made some major releases, signed Charles Bronson and Chuck Norris to exclusive contracts, and turned out international action, horror, and exploitation movies like the ones AIP used to. In one year they backed 44 features. Eventually the cousins stopped talking and split into Cannon and the rival 21st Century. This created the spectacle of the former partners making rival lambada and rap movies. More names changes followed. Golan, who also directs (Delta Force), once worked for Roger Corman.

CANNIBAL WOMEN IN THE AVOCADO JUNGLE OF DEATH

(Paramount, 1988) D/S: "J. D. Athens"/J. F. Lawton
P: Gary W. Goldstein (Piranha Women)

Shannon Tweed is a feminist college professor who goes to a Southern California jungle with a young, comic bimbo and an inept but macho mercenary (Bill Maher). This deadpan PG-13 Indiana Jones parody with feminist maneaters also features Barry Primus and Adrienne Barbeau as the empress. There's a lot of talk, but some of it is pretty funny. It was made by the scriptwriter of the hits Pretty Woman and Under Siege. Tweed is good as the tough feminist (she keeps her clothes on, for a change), but it's hard to forget that she dated Hugh Hefner and had breast surgery to get into the pages of Playboy magazine and start her career.

CANNONBALL RUN

(Vestron, 1980) D: Hal Needham
S: Brock Yates P: Albert S. Ruddy

This popular and nearly plotless action/comedy hit copied Corman's Cannonball and The Gumball Rally (both 1976). Burt Reynolds and his comic sidekick Dom DeLuise star with car crashes, more car crashes, and many guest stars. Jackie Chan (who helped make it a hit in Asia too) gets to beat on bikers played by Peter Fonda and Robert Tessier. With Adrienne Barbeau, Dean Martin and Sammy Davis Jr. as Catholic priests, Roger Moore (who thinks he's James Bond), Farrah Fawcett, Bert Convy, Jack Elam, Jamie Farr, Bianca Jagger, Johnny Yune, and Katt Shea. The outtakes at the end are now a common way to pad the running time of a feature. A Golden Harvest (Hong Kong) production.

CANNONBALL RUN II

(Warner, 1983) D/S: Hal Needham
S: Harvey Miller P: Albert S. Ruddy

Reynolds and DeLuise returned, and Raymond Chow and Golden Harvest were the backers again, bringing Jackie Chan with them. It's got more of the same lame gags and even more guest stars. Look for Jack Elam, Richard Kiel, Henry Silva, and actors from The Andy Griffith Show (Don Knotts, Jim Nabors, and George "Goober" Lindsay). Most of the "Rat Pack" show up, including Dean Martin and Frank Sinatra (both in their last feature film appearances to date) and Sammy Davis Jr. again. With Shirley MacLaine and Marilu Henner dressed as nuns, Ricardo Montalban and Jamie Farr as Arabs, Telly Savalas, Michael Gazzo, Doug McClure, Katt Shea, Louis Nye, Mel Tillis, Susan Anton, Catherine Bach, Sid Caesar, Tony Danza, Abe Vigoda, Tim Conway, Arte Johnson, and some Ralph Bakshi animation. The third in this painful series didn't feature Reynolds and was called Speed Zone.

CAN SHE BAKE A CHERRY PIE?

(Paramount, 1983) D/S: Henry Jaglom
P: M. H. Simonsons

Karen Black, in a rare, serious 80s feature, leaves her husband and ends up with Michael Emil. They talk a lot. Black and Jaglom had been off-Broadway actors together in the early 60s. With Michael Margotta (from Drive, He Said, also with Black).

THE CANTERBURY TALES

(Water Bearer, 1972) D/S/A: Pier Paolo Pasolini P: Alberto Grimaldi
Italy/France (I Racconti di Canterbury)

Four of Chaucer's 14th-century tales are told by Chaucer himself (Pasolini). The highlight is a visit to hell, where giant devils shit out friars. With Laura Betti, Hugh Griffith, Josephine Chaplin, Jenny Runacre, Tom Baker, Robin Askwith, and Ninetto Davoli. United Artists released this years after Pasolini was killed (1975), and it received an X rating. The Arabian Nights (1974) and Salò (1975) were next from the controversial director.

THE CANTERVILLE GHOST

(MGM, 1944) D: Jules Dassin S: Edwin Harvey Blum P: Arthur L. Fields

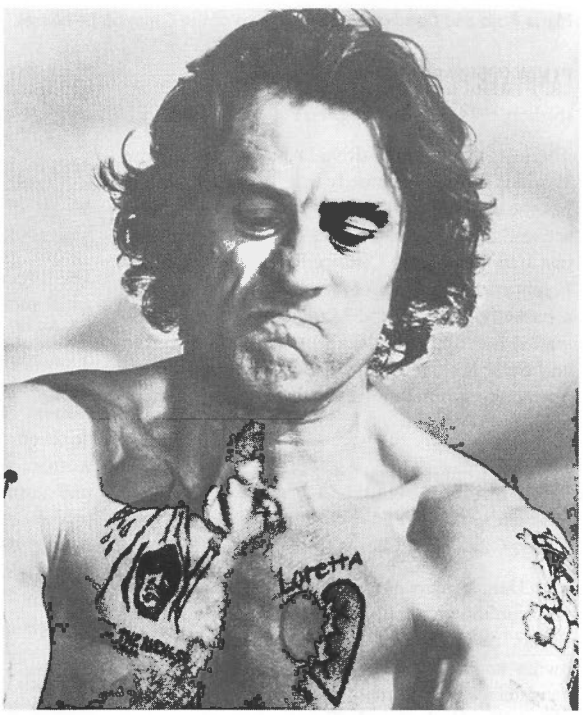
Charles Laughton stars as a cursed 17th-century ghost who had been walled up alive, in this lavish fantasy/comedy with a WWII background. A modern-day relative (Robert Young) has to perform a brave act to free him. It's (sort of) based on a story by Oscar Wilde, whose novel The Picture of Dorian Gray was filmed the next year. With Margaret O'Brien as a child who is not afraid of the ghost, William Gargan, Una O'Connor, Frank Faylen, Frank Reicher, Peter Lawford, and Mike Mazurki. Dassin was blacklisted in 1950 and settled in Europe. The RCA video version is a 1986 TV remake starring John Gielgud.



Two Roberts (Mitchum and De Niro) as Max Cady in two versions of Cape Fear.

CAN'T STOP THE MUSIC

(HBO, 1980) D: Nancy Walker
S: Bronte Woodward S/P: Alan Carr
P: Jacques Morali, Henri Belolo

Carr backed this PG-rated disaster after his success with Grease. A model (Valerie Perrine) tries to get Steve Guttenberg's songs recorded by the Village People (who play themselves). This 40s-style musical story of the rise of the once-popular group includes Busby Berkeley-style numbers featuring men in gyms, shower rooms, and swimming pools (at the YMCA) and ends with a big concert in San Francisco. With Olympic decathlon champ Bruce Jenner, Paul Sand, Tammy Grimes, June Havoc, Barbara Rush, Jack Weston, Leigh Taylor-Young, and various musicians, who are on the Casablanca soundtrack. The one-time director was best known for being in Bounty paper-towel TV commercials. By the time this $20 million flop came out, the Village People were no longer having top-40 hits. Carr returned with (what else?) Grease II (1982).

CANVAS: THE FINE ART OF CRIME

(Live, 1992) D/S: Alain Zaloum
S: Brenda Newman Canada

Vittorio Rossi is a New York artist who becomes a criminal to save his brother. Gary Busey is a psycho criminal art dealer, John Rhys-Davies is a killer Greek thief, and Cary Lawrence is the girl. Filmed in Quebec.

THE CAPE CANAVERAL MONSTERS

(1960) D/S: Phil Tucker P: Richard Greer

Aliens (spots of light) take over two bodies from a car crash. Soon they've got a secret lab (at Bronson Canyon), where they take orders from a voice in a box. The armless male alien (Jason Johnson) runs around shooting down Earth rockets with a long, awkward bazooka. The scar-faced female alien, Nadja, (Katherine Victor, who was also in many Jerry Warren movies) shoots up a woman and puts her into a transmitter. The young scientist hero (Scott Peters) calls his girlfriend (Linda Connell) "Little Monkey." This has lots of science talk (like "electric-convulse shock therapy"), a German scientist, and enough bizarre and hilarious situations to be worthy of the famed director of Robot Monster.

CAPE FEAR

(MCA, 1961) D: J. Lee Thompson
S: James R. Webb P: Sy Bartlett

Robert Mitchum is pretty terrifying as Max Cady, the clever and relentless white-trash ex-con out to punish lawyer Gregory Peck and his family in this feature based on The Executioners, by John D. MacDonald. Polly Bergen is his wife, and Lori Martin is their daughter. With Martin Balsam, Telly Savalas, Barrie Chase, and Edward Platt. Cape Fear was filmed in Georgia in b/w, featured an unsettling Bernard Herrmann score, and was released by Universal. After seeing both versions, I think the original is still better. Scenes of Mitchum killing in the swamp and crushing an egg over Bergen top anything in the remake.

CAPE FEAR

(MCA, 1991) D: Martin Scorsese
S: Wesley Strick P: Barbara De Fina

This was Scorsese's biggest hit (to date) and could be considered his first horror movie. It was great to see Robert De Niro, as Max Cady, back working with Scorsese again, and it's easy to see why the modernized color and R-rated version was so popular. Some of the much-promoted scary parts come too close to Friday the 13th territory, and when Cady keeps fighting even after his face is burned off, horror fans will immediately think of Freddy Krueger. They made it longer (130 minutes), added more tension between the lawyer and his wife, and changed a few scenes and situations. (It seems as though Scorsese would rather have remade The Night of the Hunter (1955), in which Robert Mitchum plays a killer whose hands are tattooed with the words "love" and "hate"; De Niro's many tattoos include "truth" and "justice.") Scene-stealing Juliette Lewis (daughter of actor Geoffrey) plays the young daughter. Nods to the original include Peck, Mitchum, and Balsam all showing up in smaller roles, and Herrmann's original score was redone by Elmer Bernstein (and released on MCA). Nick Nolte and Jessica Lange are the troubled and terrified parents. With Joe Don Baker, Fred Thompson, and Illeana Douglas (granddaughter of Melvyn Douglas). The cinematographer was Freddie Francis, and Saul Bass created the title sequence. Cape Fear was filmed in Florida and was presented by Spielberg's Amblin Entertainment (Spielberg himself was originally set to direct).

THE CAPITOL HILL GIRLS

(1977) S/P: "William J. Condos"/ Bill Condon(The Arab Connection; Best Little House on Capitol Hill; Capitol Hill: Behind Closed Doors)

An X-rated 3-D movie in "Lazer Vision" partially filmed on location in Washington, DC, back in the days of Jimmy Carter. The cast includes Christine Burke and Alex Anders (probably fake names), and nobody took credit for directing.

CAPONE

(Vidmark, 1989) D: Michael Pressman S: Tracy Keenan Wynn P: Vicki Niemi-Gordon

Ray Sharkey stars as Al Capone, and Keith Carradine is a special FBI agent. This movie shows how the famous gangster continued to run the rackets from behind bars and also plotted the assassination of the mayor of Chicago. The same story was told on the original Untouchables TV show. Debrah Farentino and Charles Haid costar. Rod Steiger starred in Al Capone, (1959), Neville Brand in The Scarface Mob (1962), and Roger Corman produced a 1975 Capone starring Ben Gazzara.

CAPTAIN AMERICA

(Stokey, 1944) D: John English, Elmer Clifton
S: Royal Cole, Ronald Davidson, Basil Dickey

This 15-chapter Republic WWII serial stars Dick Purcell (who died after production) as assistant DA Grant Gardner, who is also the costumed hero Captain America. Lionel Atwill is Dr. Maldor (aka "the Scarab"), who uses "the purple death" to kill his enemies and can bring animals back to life. Lorna Grey is Gardner's assistant, Gail Richards. Dale Van Sickle is the captain in the many fight scenes. It was based on Jack Kirby and Joe Simon's comic-book character. Captain America and Captain America II: Death Too Soon (both 1979 and both on MCA) are TV movies about the original's son.

CAPTAIN AMERICA

(Columbia, 1989) D: Albert Pyun
S: James Tolkin P: Menahem Golan, Tom Karnowski

Matt Salinger (the 6'4" son of J. D. Salinger) stars as somebody's idea of a hero. He fakes being sick several times and doesn't even wear his costume in most of the movie. It starts out during WWII with a battle against "the Red Skull" (an Italian orphan transformed by Nazis). The Captain is frozen in Alaska, and the Skull (Scott Paulin) goes on to do horrible things in the world with his evil daughter. Did you know that Martin Luther King, JFK, and John Lennon were killed by the Skull? Two kids from Ohio who saw the Captain once grow up to be the US president (Ronny Cox) and a newspaper editor (Ned Beatty). Beatty helps him thaw out, and Cox is kidnapped. With Darren McGavin as an evil US general, Melinda Dillon, Michael Nouri, and Billy Mumy. The PG-13 film was made in Yugoslavia by 21st Century and (finally) was released on tape in 1992.

CAPTAIN APACHE

(Prism, 1971) D: Alexander Singer
S/P: Milton Sperling S: Philip Yordan UK

What seems like a "spaghetti western" was actually made in England by a British director. Lee Van Cleef is an Indian Confederate Army officer who stops landowner villain Stuart Whitman from starting an Indian war. Whitman's men dress up like Indians and also try to kill President Grant. With Carroll Baker and Percy Herbert. It has some great rock-style music and even hallucination scenes. It's rated PG.

CAPTAIN EO

(1986) D: Francis Ford Coppola P: Rusty Lemorande

Michael Jackson's 17-minute 70mm 3-D short was made to be shown only at Disney theme parks. It took over a year to make and cost a record $20 million, which mostly went to ILM FX. George Lucas was executive producer. With Dick Shawn and Angelica Huston as the Supreme Leader robot. It was a very commercial year for Coppola, who also made Peggy Sue Got Married.

Lionel Atwill is the Scarab in the Captain America serial.

CAPTAIN GALLANT OF THE FOREIGN LEGION

(Sinister, 1955–57) (Foreign Legionnaire)

Buster Crabbe had starred in serials from 1932 (Tarzan the Fearless) until 1952 (King of the Jungle). He starred in this popular half-hour NBC-TV Saturday-morning kids' show with own son, Cullen (as Cuffey). Crabbe plays the commander of the French Foreign Legion's North African desert headquarters. The show, shot on location, was syndicated and rebroadcast for years. With Al "Fuzzy" Knight as the comic sidekick. Episodes were directed by Sam Newfield (Nabonga).

Serial hero Buster Crabbe became a TV hero as Captain Gallant of the Foreign Legion.

CAPTAIN MIDNIGHT

(Rhino series, 1955)

Richard Webb stars, with his Silver Dart plane, the all-kids secret squadron, comic sidekick Icky, and scientist Tut. The inspiration for this show was the success of the Captain Video TV series, but this is more anti-Communist. When it was syndicated it was renamed Jet Jackson. Three 60-minute volumes, with two episodes each, are available with the original TV commercials for Kix and Ovaltine. Not to be confused with the 1942 Columbia serial Captain Midnight.

CAPTAIN VIDEO, MASTER OF THE STRATOSPHERE

(Stokey, 1951) D: Spencer Gordon Bennet, Wallace A. Grissell S: Royal Cole, Sherman L. Lowe P: Sam Katzman

This 15-chapter Columbia serial was actually based on a TV show, a sure sign of the coming death of serials. The live TV series, Captain Video and His Video Rangers, began in 1949, starred Al Hodge, and ran until 1955. In an effort to make this serial special, scenes on different planets were tinted different colors. To make it appeal to the youngest kids possible, there wasn't even a female costar. Judd Holdren stars, wearing what looks like a very old football helmet. He flies around in cartoon rocket ships and fights some very old and familiar-looking clunky movie robots. With Larry Stewart as the young Video Ranger, Gene Roth as Vultura, leader of the planet Atoma, Jack Ingram, I. Stanford Jolly, and Skelton Knaggs. The Lost Planet (1953) was a serial sequel, also with Holdren.

CAPTIVE

(Continental, 1987) D/S: Paul Mayersberg P: Don Boyd UK/France

Irina Brook (daughter of British director Peter Brook and actress Natasha Parry) stars as the daughter of a rich man (Oliver Reed) who is kidnapped by fashion-model anarchists. The score, by the Edge (from U2) includes the debut of Sinead O'Connor. The director was a Nicolas Roeg collaborator, and his film (inspired by the Patty Hearst kidnapping) has been called "erotic, arty, and pretentious." Reed was also in Roeg's Castaway the same year.

CAPTIVE RAGE

(Forum, 1988) D/S: Cedric Sundstrom S: Rick Marx P: Harry Alan Towers, Barry Wood, Keith Rosenbaum S. Africa

Oliver Reed, as a crazed South American general, kidnaps American coeds as ransom for his drug-dealer son being held in the US. There's lots of torture and some rape. With Robert Vaughn and Claudia Udy.

CAPTIVE WOMAN

(TZ, 1980) D/S: Jesús Franco S: G. E. Derendor P: Erich Tomeck W. Germany/Spain (Die Nackten Superhexen von Rio Amore; Naked Superwitches of the Rio Amore; Orgia de los Nonformanas)

Katja Bienert, who was raised in a convent, comes to Spain to search for her sister (Ursula Buchfellner), a prisoner in a whorehouse. There's nudity and S&M scenes. Raquel Evans and Robert Foster costar. The rest of the titles in this (at least) seven-volume video "series" are unrelated except for the obvious themes.

CAPTIVE WOMEN II: See SS EXPERIMENT

CAPTIVE WOMEN III: See SWEET SUGAR

CAPTIVE WOMEN IV: See FRÄULIEN DEVIL

CAPTIVE WOMEN V: See HELL TRAIN

CAPTURED IN CHINATOWN

(Sinister, 1935) D/S: Elmer Clifton P: Bert Sternbach

Rin Tin Tin was so popular in the early 30s that there were imitation hero-dog movie stars. This Consolidated Pictures release was part of a rival series featuring Tarzan, a German-sheperd police dog. It's about a Chinese Tong war, a valuable necklace, murder, and a villain named Zamboni. Tarzan saves the day. With Charles Delaney and Marion Schilling.

THE CAPTURE OF BIGFOOT

(Active, 1979) D/S/P: Bill Rebane S: Ingrid Neumayer

George "Buck" Flower and Otis Young (from The Last Detail) are in this guaranteed bad movie (Troma picked it up for release) by the director of The Giant Spider Invasion.

CAPTURE THAT CAPSULE

(SW, 1961) D/S/P: Will Zens (Spy Squad)

This absurd, slow-moving, boring b/w movie demonstrates that Communist spies in America are underfunded, unorganized, gullible, jive-talking sarcastic men who can't follow orders, say "comrade" and "the party" a lot, and will fight over a can of beer. The plot concerns a space capsule (it looks like a megaphone to me) that the Commies only think they have captured. The theme is played on an out-of-tune piano and drums. Some of the non-action takes place in the Marine World parking lot. Richard (not Dick) Miller stars. David Bradley (They Saved Hitler's Brain) was assistant director. Incredibly, Zens went on to direct at least 8 other features, including two starring Marty Robbins. Presented by Johnny Legend.

CARAVANS

(1978) D: James Fargo S: Nancy Voyles Crawford, Thomas A. McMahon, Lorraine Williams P: Elmo Williams US/Iran

Anthony Quinn stars in this PG-rated James Michener adaptation filmed in Iran. Christopher Lee, as the powerful Sardar Khan, helps Michael Sarrazin search for Jennifer O'Neill, as the daughter of a US senator who has joined Quinn and his nomadic group. The plot is the same as The Searchers. Also featured are Joseph Cotten and Barry Sullivan, with an Iranian supporting cast. It was backed by the Shah of Iran during his last days in power and cost a reported $14 million. Fargo later made Voyage of the Rock Aliens. Quinn had also been in The Message (1970), backed by Quaddafi. There's an Epic soundtrack.

CAREER BED

(SW, 1969) D/S: Joel M. Reed P: Jeff Gold

This b/w adults-only drama is by the maker of Bloodsucking Freaks. Future porno star Jennifer Welles is Susan Potter, a "virgin" with a horrible stage mother (Honey Hunter) whom one character calls "a sewer." Mom seduces Susan's boyfriend, and a lesbian casting agent in a pants suit (Georgina Spelvin) seduces Susan. Reed's movie is more concerned with hateful dialogue and insults than with sex and nudity. In one scene, a bald gangster makes a photographer bark like a dog for money. It all leads to an ironic ending.

There's a Times Square tour sequence that's too dark to see well, and the editing is very bad. The rock music (by the Lost Children) sounds like it's from San Francisco.

CAREFUL!

(VSOM, 1993) D/S: Guy Madden Canada

Madden's first feature in color is a comedy set in Tolzbad, an Alpine village where a sneeze can start an avalanche. Animals have their vocal chords cut. Madden regular Kyle McCulloch stars, with director Paul Cox and Jackie Burroughs.

THE CARELESS YEARS

(1957) D: Arthur Hiller S/P: Edward Lewis

Dean Stockwell stars in this mild teen drama. It was the first role in six years for the former child star. Natalie Trundy plays "a girl from the 'right' kind of home, stumbling into the 'wrong' kind of love!" as the United Artists ads claimed. The couple flee to Mexico but return and take their parents advice to wait until they finish school. With Barbara Billingsley (just before she became June Cleaver on TV), John Larch, and Virginia Christine. Stockwell was in the more serious Compulsion next.

CAR 54, WHERE ARE YOU?

(Orion, 1989) D: Bill Fishman S: Eric Tarloff, Ebbe Roe Smith P: Robert H. Solo Canada

The guy who made Tapeheads also made this PG-13 feature based on the TV comedy series (1961–63). It was shelved, then released to horrible reviews in 1994. David Johansen (a long way from his New York Dolls days) stars as New York City police officer Gunter Toody. He and John McGinley, as Muldoon, protect a witness (Jeremy Piven). With Daniel Baldwin as a mobster, Fran Drescher, Rosie O'Donnell, and Nipsey Russell and Al Lewis from the original show. There's a rap score by Bernie Worrell, and the Ramones do "I Believe in Miracles" in a club.

THE CARHOPS

(1980) D: Peter Locke S: Paul Ross, Michael Blank P: Jim Buckley

Wes Craven was the editor of this teen sex comedy from NMD. It was made by porno people and features Kitty Carl and Lisa Farringer.

CARMILLA

(Cannon, 1989) D: Gabrielle Beaumont S: Jonathan Furst P: Bridget Terry

Sheridan Le Fanu's frequently filmed vampire novel is transplanted to the post–Civil war American South. Meg Tilly is the shape-shifting living/dead Carmilla, and Ione Skye (Leitch, daughter of singer Donovan) is the young girl she befriends and bites. Dogwood is used to ward off vampires. Roddy McDowall and Roy Dotrice costar. Linda Hunt narrates. This Shelley Duvall's Nightmare Classics Showtime presentation runs 52 minutes. By the female director of The Godsend.

CARNAGE = TWITCH OF THE DEATH NERVE

CARNAGE

(Media, 1983) D/S/P/C: Andy Milligan P: Louis Mishkin

The video box tries to convince you that "you'll scream with laughter!" but this scratchy-looking Amityville Horror copy, filmed on Staten Island, isn't a comedy and it isn't exactly funny. It is a typically senseless Milligan movie. Newlyweds move into an old house, the scene of an earlier murder/suicide. When a man taking a bath is electrocuted by a radio (playing harmonica music), you can see his underpants. When the husband's New York secretary shows up, a floating axe decapitates her obvious dummy head. A butcher knife flies into a priest's head. After all this, none of the dead people are missed, no police arrive, and the couple calmly worry about leaving: "I love this house so much!" Eventually the wife joins the laughing ghost couple with echo voices.

CARNIVAL MAGIC

(1981) D: Al Adamson S: Mark Weston, Bob Levine P: Elwin Feltner

Markov (Don Stewart) is a carnival magician working with Alex, an intelligent chimp. Alex is kidnapped and sold to a scientist. He tries to commit suicide, dies, and is brought back to life by the power of prayer! With Regina Carroll. It was followed by Adamson's Lost (1984), with Sandra Dee.

CARNIVAL OF FOOLS: See DEATH WISH CLUB

CARNIVAL OF SOULS

(VidAmerica, 1962) D/P: Herk Harvey S: John Clifford

After a successful 1989 theatrical rerelease with lots of press, good new reviews, and TV coverage, this low-budget cult film from Lawrence, Kansas, was officially released on tape. (Previous video versions were shorter.) This is "the director's full-length authorized version" (84 minutes), the best and most complete version we'll ever see. Carnival of Souls was originally released at 80 minutes, (but was listed as 91 before the Herts Lion 1962 release). There's a fun new b/w introduction by Harvey ("It may come back to haunt you"), and some whole scenes have been restored. Most of the new footage shows people talking (two men at the organ factory, a talk with a gas-station attendent). The new video version is a must, if only for the superior quality of the print. Watch Harvey's Carnival of Souls again and wonder about its influence on others. Think about Night of the Living Dead (zombies), Blue Velvet (birds), and Eraserhead (music), for example. Since the rerelease, scenes have even been copied for TV commercials.

CARNIVAL STORY

(1954) D/S: Kurt Neumann S: Hans Jacoby P: Maurice and Frank King W. Germany/US (Rummelplatz der Liebe; Circus of Love)

Carnival Story was filmed in Munich and Vienna, in color, simultaneously in English and in German. The German version (starring Eva Bartok, Curt Jurgens, Bernhard Wicki, and Adi Berber as Groppo) was released in 3-D. RKO released the English-language version (starring Anne Baxter, Steve Cochran, Lyle Bettger, George Nader, and Jay C. Flippen) in the US flat. All the actors appear in both versions. In one they star, in the other they're in the background. In 1958 the German version was dubbed into English and released in America too. In 1960 it was rereleased on a double bill with Herschell Gordon Lewis and David F. Friedman's first movie, The Prime Time! And for some reason, the first English version seemed to be the film most likely to show up on local TV stations at three in the morning during the 80s. So there's a good chance you've seen this drama!

CARNOSAUR

(New Horizons, 1993) D/S: Adam Simon P: Mike Elliott

Thanks to executive producer Roger Corman's timing and publicity, this gory Jurassic Park ripoff was a money maker. Unfortunately, the best part of the movie is a picture of Alfred E. Neuman. Carnosaur doesn't make much sense, the music is boring, there's too much talk, and the dinosaurs created by John Buechler are often laughable. Raphael Sbarge stars as a security guard, and Jennifer Runyon is his girlfriend from a commune. An evil, government-backed scientist (Diane Ladd) in an underground lab in upstate New York develops a virus in chicken eggs that makes women give birth to blood-hungry dinosaurs. This results in a stomach-bursting birth scene (a cliché used in many Corman productions). It's based on a novel by Harry Adam Knight (a pseudonym of John Brosnan). With Harrison Page as a sheriff, Ned Bellamy, Clint Howard, and a clip from Simon's Brain Dead. Carnosaur II followed.

CARNY

(Warner, 1980) D: Robert Kaylor S/P/M/A: Robbie Robertson S: Thomas Baum

Robertson, leader of The Band, backed and starred in this underrated carnival movie. He's a manager facing mobsters, Jody Foster is a 17-year-old runaway, and Gary Busey is Bozo the clown, who gets dunked in water daily for a living. With Gary Busey as Bozo in Carny.

JOHN CARRADINE (1906–1988)

One of the most recognizable, eccentric, and busy actors of all time (he was in more than 250 features), Carradine worked until the very end. His sons David, Robert, and Keith keep the family tradition going. Some later credits not reviewed in this book are The Mouse and the Child (1978, voice), The Secret of Nimh (1981, voice), Choose Me (1984, voice), Hollywood Ghost Stories (1986, narrator) Captain Willoughby (1986), and some TV movies. Fred Olen Ray shot "generic" footage of Carradine for future use. Some scenes were used in (then new) features, some were added to old, previously unreleased features, and several years after his death, "new" Carradine appearances were still being released. This is sort of like what happened to Lugosi in Plan 9 from Outer Space.

Meg Foster, Kenneth McMillan, Elisha Cook Jr., Bert Remsen, Craig Wasson, and Fred Ward. From United Artists. The Warner soundtrack is by Alex North.

CAROLINE AT MIDNIGHT

(New Horizons, 1993) D: Scott McGuinness
S: Travis Rink P: Mike Elliot

Clayton Rohner (from I, Madman) stars as Jack Lynch, investigative reporter, in an "erotic thriller" told in a series of flashbacks (and a nightmare collage). Mia Sara is married to killer drug-dealer cop Tim Daley, whose partner is/was Judd Nelson. In the R version, Sara has several unmemorable sex scenes. Some more of "the hippest stars" (according to the video box) are Virginia Madsen as a black-haired drug dealer, Paul LeMat as a gray-haired cop, and Stacy Travis, plus Zach Galligan and Thomas F. Wilson, who appear briefly as detectives.

THE CARPATHIAN EAGLE

(Thriller, 1980) D/S: Francis Megahy
S: Bernie Cooper UK

Elvira hosts this one-hour-long Hammer TV drama about a police detective trying to find out who's been killing people by cutting their hearts out. With Suzanne Danielle and Sian Phillips.

THE CARPENTER

(Republic, 1987) D: David Wellington
S: Doug Taylor P: Pierre Grise Canada

A woman (Lynne Adams) cuts up her husband's expensive suit while suffering from a nervous breakdown. In the mental hospital she has to share a room with a woman who keeps repeating "Knock on wood." Her husband, a teacher who puts his classes to sleep and is having an affair with a student, takes her from the hospital directly to their new house, still being renovated. She dreams and seems to be having hallucinations. Wings Hauser, acting very restrained and quiet, is a carpenter who works in the middle of the night without the other workers knowing. Although this movie could be seen as thoughtful, and even feminist at times, it's also part Toolbox Massacre, as Wings becomes the woman's secret protector, cutting off a would-be rapist's arms with a chainsaw, crushing hands in a vice, and using a nail gun to pin somebody to the floor. The old-fashioned Wings (a ghost?) goes on about what bad shape people are in today. While drilling a dead man's chest, he exclaims, "See what I mean? Soft!" It's available in R and unrated versions, but even in the unrated version I saw, most of the violence is off screen or pretty tame by today's standards. Made in Quebec, it was the first effort by a film-school graduate.

CARPET OF HORROR

(Sinister, 1962) D: Harald Reinl S: Felix Lutzkendorf, Giuseppe Mangione Germany/Italy/Spain
(Der Teppich des Grauens)

Secret agents in London battle a master criminal who uses poison gas to kill. This is not an Edgar Wallace adaptation. With Joachim Fuchsberger, Karin Dor, and Eleonora Rossi-Drago.

THE CARRIER

(Magnum, 1987) D/S: Nathan White P: Jeffrey Dougherty

An outcast teenager carries a disease in an early 60s Michigan town cut off from the outside world during a flood. Flesh deteriorates as soon as he touches somebody, so everyone else wears protective plastic suits. Eventually they split into religious and nonbeliever groups and fight each other. This interesting, gory, no-budget, AIDS-inspired feature was filmed in Michigan. There's also a Bigfoot-like creature (it started the infection).

THE CARS THAT EAT PEOPLE

(RCA, 1973) D/S: Peter Weir
P: Hal McElroy, James McElroy
Australia (The Cars That Ate Paris)

The people of a small town in the outback cause accidents and rob the passengers. A doctor (Kevin Miles) turns the victims into living vegetables, and the cars are turned into spiked killing machines. Star Terry Camilleri's voice was dubbed in the 74-minute US version from New Line. The original runs 91 minutes. Weir's first feature is a black comedy and nothing like a Mad Max movie, despite the presence of Bruce Spence in the cast. Weir did Picnic at Hanging Rock next.

CARTEL

(Southgate, 1989) D: John Stewart
S: Moshe Hadar P: Ronnie Hadar

Don Stroud is a violent, out-of-control cokehead drug lord who terrorizes the family of pilot hero Miles O'Keeffe. Both of them end up in the same jail where William Smith is a corrupt guard. O'Keeffe sneaks out to kill the guys who killed his sister (Suzanne Slater), then sneaks back in. This violent SGE release also features Crystal Carson.

CAR WASH

(MCA, 1976) D: Michael Schultz S: Joel Schumacher P: Art Linson, Gary Stromberg

Franklin Ajaye receives top billing, but this nearly plotless, fun, PG-rated movie has many guest stars in top form. Richard Pryor is the phony preacher Daddy Rich, and Antonio Fargas is a militant gay character. With Tracy Reed, George Carlin, Professor Irwin Corey, Ivan Dixon, Bill Duke, Lorraine Gary, Melanie Mayron, Garrett Morris, Clarence Muse, the Pointer Sisters, and Brooke Adams. Schultz had directed Cooley High

THE "CARRY ON" SERIES

The British Carry On comedies started in 1958 with Carry on Sergeant and were still being made more than 20 years later. The original regulars were Sidney James, Kenneth Williams, and Kenneth Connor, and Gerald Thomas was the regular series director. Americans caught some of the very British comedies on late-night TV, but some had theatrical releases here too. Three—Carry on Doctor (1968), Carry on Camping (1970), and Carry on Henry VIII (1972) were released by AIP. The following have been on tape in America: Carry on Admiral (VCI, 1956), Carry on Nurse (HBO, 1958), Carry on Cruising (VSOM, 1962), Carry on Cleo (HBO, 1965), Carry on Cowboy (HBO, 1966), Carry on Doctor (1968), Carry on at Your Convenience (Axon, 1971), Carry on Behind (1975), and Carry on Emmanuelle (1978). Psychotronic fans should enjoy Carry on Spying (1964) and Carry on Screaming (1966), which can be found on tape if you look hard enough. A new title, Carry on Columbus, was produced in 1992.

the year before. The hit theme song and the hit double MCA soundtrack are by Rose Royce. A 1979 TV pilot based on this movie starred Danny Aiello.

CASABLANCA EXPRESS

(Trylon, 1990) D: Sergio Martino S: Ernesto Gustabi P: Pietro Innocenzi Italy

Two sons of famous actors (Jason Connery and Francesco Quinn) have to save Churchill from the Nazis in North Africa. Donald Pleasence and Glenn Ford are Allied generals.

A CASE FOR MURDER

(MCA, 1993) D/S: Duncan Gibbons
S: Pablo F. Fenjves P: Michael S. Murphy

Jennifer Grey is New York lawyer Kate Weldon, Peter Berg is a Chicago lawyer, and Belinda Bauer is his wife. It's "Hitchcockian."

THE CASEBOOK OF SHERLOCK HOLMES: See SHERLOCK HOLMES

THE CASE OF THE CAT PEOPLE = CAT PEOPLE (1942)

CASINO ROYALE

(1954) D: William H. Brown
S: Anthony Ellis, Charles Bennett

The first James Bond adaptation was on the CBS Climax! live anthology show, eight years before Dr. No. Barry Nelson was an American "Jimmy" Bond, and Peter Lorre was Le Chiffre, the gambling villain. With Linda Christian and Michael Pate. The novel had just been published (in 1953), and it was later used as the basis for the 1967 Bond comedy of the same name. It's 55 minutes long.

CASSANDRA

(Virgin, 1987) D/S: Colin Eggleston S: John Ruane, Chris Fitchett P: Trevor Lucas Australia

The daughter of a famous fashion photographer (Tessa Humphries) has nightmare visions of murders in a movie much like The Eyes of Laura Mars (1978). She discovers that her parents are brother and sister, and that her killer twin brother has just gotten out of a mental hospital. People are decapitated and throats are slashed. With Shane Briant. The music is by Trevor Lucas, formerly of Fairport Convention.

CAST A DEADLY SPELL

(HBO, 1991) D: Martin Campbell
S: Joseph Dougherty P: Gale Ann Hurd

Mixing H. P. Lovecraft with Raymond Chandler is an intriguing idea, but I wish they had taken it a little more seriously and stuck to the original concept. The always-reliable Fred Ward stars as Philip Lovecraft, a detective in 1948 Los Angeles. It's a fantasy time when seemingly everybody (except Lovecraft) uses magic. Objects float in the air, his landlady is a witch, a man talks backwards, and gangsters use spells to kill. Gremlins in a car engine and traditional monsters in the city jail are just silly, and the black zombies (one looks like a dark Tor Johnson) are an awkward throwback to old Monogram movies. A rich man (David Warner) hires Lovecraft to bring back his copy of the Necronomicon and protect his daughter (Julianne Moore), a virgin who hunts unicorns. A stone gargoyle comes to life, one of the "old ones" is revived, and a major character spends the entire film in drag. With Clancy Brown and Arnetia Walker. It was followed in 1994 by Witch Hunt.

CASTAWAY

(Warner, 1986) D: Nicolas Roeg
S: Allan Scott P: Rick McCallum

A wealthy publisher (Oliver Reed) advertises for a woman to spend a year with him on a deserted island. Amanda Donohoe (in her film debut) takes the job and spends much of the movie wearing little more than a belt with a knife, but she doesn't want any part of his sex fantasy. Reed develops nasty boils. Donohoe was also the best reason to see Ken Russell's The Lair of the White Worm. Actor Richard Johnson was the co-producer of this Cannon release, adapted from Lucy Irvine's bestselling novel, which was based on a true story. Also with Virginia Hey. The soundtrack includes songs by British singer/songwriter Kate Bush.

THE CASTLE

(1968) D/S: Rudolph Noelte
P/A: Maximilian Schell P: Walter Reade Jr.
W. Germany/Switzerland (Das Schloss)

Schell is K., a land surveyor who arrives in a village where he has been hired by some rulers in a castle. Everybody in the village tries to keep him away from the castle, nobody inside will see him, and he becomes obsessed with doing what he was summoned to do. The film is based on an unfinished 1926 Kafka novel and was shot in Austria. K. died in the original ending, which was later altered. Schell was also in Labyrinth (1992), also adapted from Kafka.

CASTLE OF DEATH = DEVIL'S NIGHTMARE

CASTLE OF THE CREEPING FLESH

(Magnum, 1967) D/S/P: "Percy C. Parker"/Adrian Hoven S: Eric Martin Schnitzler W. Germany (Im Schloss der Blutigen Begierde; The Castle of Bloody Lust)

This horror movie about a perverse count (Howard Vernon) has the same cast, crew, and locations of the Jesús Franco films (Succubus and Kiss Me, Monster) that Hoven (Mark of the Devil) also produced. With Janine Reynaud and some gory open-heart surgery.

CASTLE OF THE MONSTERS

(SW, 1957) D: Julián Soler S: Fernando Galiana P: Jesús Sotomayor Mexico (El Castillo de los Monstrous)

Germán Robles (star of The Vampire and The Vampire's Coffin) is El Vampiro again in this horror comedy. Newlyweds in a haunted castle discover "Frentenstein," a werewolf, a mummy, a gorilla, and one American monster that Universal must have made legal threats about, "la Bestia de la Laguna Negra" (the Creature from the Black Lagoon). In Spanish.

CASTLE OF THE WALKING DEAD = BLOOD DEMON

CATACLYSM

(Genesis, 1979) D: Tom McGowan, Greg Tallas, Philip Marshak S: Philip Jordan P: Darryl A. Marshak (The Nightmare Never Ends; Satan's Supper)

To me, any movie available under four titles, and with three directors and Cameron Mitchell, is worth checking out. Naturally, this is an uneven, low-budget oddity under any title, but in a way it's an exploitation classic. The young Mr. Olivier is a decadent, ageless one-time Nazi who likes to hang out in discos and is actually Satan, with hooves. Marc Lawrence, as an old Nazi-hunter, is on to him, and tries to convince a cop (Mitchell). In this odd move, Lawrence, who used to play gangsters a lot, also shows up as Mitchell's partner. Meanwhile, Night Court's Richard Moll (with hair) is

WILLIAM CASTLE

This prolific director and master showman produced or directed about 65 features. He started making B movies in the Boston Blackie, Crime Doctor, and Whistler series in the 40s, then made Technicolor period-adventure movies (some in 3-D). Starting with Macabre (1958), Castle became an onscreen celebrity, and each of his new horror movies had a great gimmick involving publicity and/or audience participation ("Emergo!," "the Fright Break," and "the Punishment Poll"). Thanks to John Waters (a fan), cable TV, and the reprinting of Castle's entertaining memoirs (Step Right Up!), Castle (who died in 1977) has a growing following.

the "Noble Prize–winning" author of the best-seller God Is Dead. His wife, a successful surgeon (Faith Cliff, a pretty terrible actress), has nightmares about Olivier's past atrocities and finds herself chosen to defeat him. The laughable scenes don't prepare you for the effective and shocking operating-room possession climax, which includes real open-heart surgery. Filmed in Salt Lake City and San Diego by the Marshaks, who also made Dracula Sucks (1979). This easy-to-find, multititled feature is also available in an altered and condensed version as part of Night Train to Terror (plus animation scenes). The most complete version (92 minutes) is Cataclysm.

THE CATAMOUNT KILLING

(1976) D: Krzysztof Zanussi W. Germany

Hallmark (AIP) released this film, made in Vermont by a Polish director. A banker with business and family problems is transferred to a town called Pittsville. He seduces an older woman, and they plan a payroll heist together. With Horst Buchholz, Ann Wedgeworth, Polly Holliday, and Chip Taylor.

THE CAT AND THE CANARY

(Video Yesteryear; Sinister, 1927) D: Paul Leni
S: Robert F. Hill, Alfred A. Cohn P: Carl Laemmle

Look for this Universal film on tape. It's the ultimate old-dark-house mystery/comedy. Everything about the reading-of-the-will plot and an escaped madman was old even in 1927, but the camerawork and some then-new optical effects are still being studied and copied today. The atmospheric Upstate New York mansion sets are especially great. It was based on a popular play that debuted in 1922. Laura La Plante and Creighton Hale star as cousins, with Lucien Littlefield, Arthur Edmund Carewe, Tully Marshall, Flora Finch, Gertrude Astor, Forrest Stanley, and Martha Mattox as Mammy Pleasant. The tape is 70 minutes and features a newly recorded score, but the original running time was 86 minutes. Leni, an important German director and art director, directed only four films for Universal before dying of blood poisoning. This film was remade as The Cat Creeps (1930) in English and Spanish versions, as a Bob Hope comedy (1939), and as a British comedy directed by Radley Metzger in 1978.

THE CAT BURGLAR

(1961) D: William Witney S: Leo Gordon P: Gene Corman

June Kenny (Attack of the Puppet People) and Jack Hogan star in this 65-minute United Artist crime drama, written by an actor often in Roger Corman features and produced by Corman's brother. It's about foreign agents who kill for a secret formula. With Greg Palmer, Gene Roth, and Bruno Ve Sota. Daniel Haller was the art director.

CAT CHASER

(Vestron, 1989) D: Abel Ferrara S: Elmore Leonard, Jim Borrelli, Alan Sharp P: Peter Davis, William Panzer

Kelly McGillis is in love with Miami hotel owner Peter Weller but is married to Tomas Milian, the former head of the Santo Domingo secret police. This film noir love triangle is better than other Elmore Leonard adaptations (Stick, 52 Pick-Up) but went direct to video in the US. With Charles Durning and Frederic Forrest. The music is by Chick Corea. An R-rated version and a longer, unrated version (featuring some pretty shocking violence and nudity) are available.

CATCH MY SOUL

(1973) D: Patrick McGoohan S/P: Jack Good
P: Richard Rosenbloom (Santa Fe Satan)

The same year as Godspell and Jesus Christ Superstar, the star of the TV series The Prisoner directed singer Richie Havens as Othello in a hippie commune. The film, rated PG, got terrible reviews and disappeared. It's based on Jack Good's rock opera. With Season Hubley as Desdemona, Lance LeGault as Iago, Susan Tyrrell, Tony Joe White, and Delaney and Bonnie Bramlett. The British stage version had starred Jerry Lee Lewis (!) and P. J. Proby. The Cinerama release was rated PG.

CATCH THE HEAT

(Media, 1987) D: Joel Silberg
S: Sterling Silliphant P: Don Van Atta

Mr. Hannibal (Rod Steiger), a talent agent in Buenos Aires, hires dancers and tells them they'll get important jobs in other countries if they have breast implants. They're taken to a well-armed secret base where a doctor hides heroin in their breasts. Later on they're killed for the drugs. Despite the exploitative (but nearly believable) premise, things are kept pretty light and comic. Tiana Alexander (real name Tiana Thi Thanh Nga, Silliphant's wife) stars as Checkers Goldberg, a San Francisco–based agent posing as dancer Cinderella Poo to expose Steiger. She's funny and pretty, and she can fight. Her bumbling, lovesick partner is David Dukes. Steiger's bouncers are a big black guy, wrestler Professor Toru Tanaka, and a skinny white guy. Lots of jokes are made about language differences. Most of the violence and blood is offscreen, but people swear a lot: "You're fuckin' dog meat!" Steiger, as usual, wears a hairpiece that looks ready to slide off at any minute, flashes his big grin once in a while, and spends the rest of the time slowly building to emotional explosions. The ending is a big battle with lots of heavy artillery. The screenplay was written by the same man who wrote the script for Steiger's Oscar-winning role in In the Heat of the Night (1967). Brian Thompson is also in the cast.

THE CAT FROM OUTER SPACE

(1978) D/P: Norman Tokar S: Ted Key

This G-rated Disney comedy about an alien cat (made the year after Star Wars) has a plot similar to E.T. (1982). It stars Ken Berry, Sandy Duncan, Harry Morgan, Roddy McDowall, McLean Stevenson, Jesse White, and Hans Conried.

CAT IN THE BRAIN

(Video Search, 1989) D/S/A: Lucio Fulci S: Giovanni Simonelli P: Luigi Nannerini, Antonio Lucidi Italy
(Un Gatto nel Cervello; Nightmare Concert)

Fulci, a balding guy with beard and glasses, plays a horror-movie director who goes to a shrink (who hypnotizes him) because he's disturbed by memories of his own films and seems to be a killer himself. "It's as if my brain were being eaten by a cat," he explains. Just about anything can trigger gory clips from (what else?) Fulci horror movies, which make up the bulk of this paste-up feature. If you like overkill, check out the many decapitations and cut-up bodies, a cannibalism scene, and a change-of-pace shower scene. Fulci also imagines his German backers as Nazis. With Melissa Longo and Bret Halsey (in a comic S&M sequence). It's dubbed into English.

CAT IN THE CAGE

(Genesis, 1978) D/S/P: Zarin Dast S: Richard Vasquez

A young man (Behrouz Wossoughi) returns to the LA-area family mansion from "the booby hatch." His rich father, Rachid Khan (Frank DeKova), has married his dead wife's nurse (Sybil Danning), who plots with her chauffeur lover to kill the old man for his fortune. She's deathly afraid of cats and likes being slapped. Meanwhile, the black housekeeper practices witchcraft on a cat. This nutty, mean-spirited movie features Danning nude, what seems to be a wolf man, and a laughable ending. With Colleen Camp (who sings the title song) and Mel Novak.

CAT MURKIL AND THE SILKS

(Seagull, 1976) D: John Bushelman
S/P: William C. Thomas

An obscure LA street-gang movie about a psychotic teen who kills the leader of his own gang and blames a rival gang. With Derrell Maury (Massacre at Central High), Rhodes Reason, Steve Bond, and Doodles Weaver. The director edited Bert I. Gordon movies.

CAT'S EYE

(MGM, 1985) D: Lewis Teague
S: Stephen King P: Martha Schumacher

Drew Barrymore, a cat, and a small troll (created by Carlo Rambaldi) are in "The General," written by King specifically for Barrymore, who had starred in his Firestarter. Two other stories in the PG-13 anthology from DEG were adapted by the writer from his short stories. James Woods stars in "Quitters Inc.," about extreme ways to stop smoking cigarettes, with Alan King. Kenneth McMillan and Robert Hays are in "The Ledge," about a deadly bet, with Candy Clark, James Naughton, and Patty LuPone. There's some animation and the song "96 Tears," and the Christine car and the Cujo dog also make in-joke appearances. It was one of several King/Dino De Laurentiis collaborations made in North Carolina. The cinematography was by Jack Cardiff, and Alan Silvestri provided the score, released on Varèse Sarabande.

CAT WOMEN OF THE MOON

(Rhino, 1953) D: Arthur Hilton
S: Roy Hamilton P: Al Zimbalist

There's too much talk and not enough action, but any movie with Marie Windsor (as Helen, the navigator) falling for (20-years-older) Victor Jory on the Moon, while alien women in black tights dance a ballet, has a lot going for it. And who can forget the great Sonny Tufts as the commander, the giant spiders, and the music by Elmer Bernstein? The gold-hungry guy on the space mission says, "You're too smart for me, baby. I like 'em stupid," before he's stabbed to death. Hilton, usually an editor, was British. Incredibly, this Astor release (later "presented" by Wade Williams), was remade as Missile to the Moon (1958). The (lousy) 3-D goes on and off throughout the tape. Rhino also released Robot Monster (also produced by Zimbalist, and with awful, partial 3-D) and The Mask (excellent partial 3-D with glasses).

CAVE GIRL

(RCA, 1985) D/S/P/C: David Oliver

A teen comedy with a nerd (Daniel Roebuck) who goes back in time and finds love, lions, and cannibals. It costars Cindy Ann Thompson, with Michelle Bauer and Jasae in small parts. From Crown International.

THE CAVERN

(1965) D/P: Edgar G. Ulmer S: Michael Pertwee, Jack Davies Italy/W. Germany (Sette Contro la Morte)

This was Ulmer's last film and it's much better than his other 60s features. The Cavern is actually a fascinating allegorical tale. During WWII in Italy, a diverse group of four Allied servicemen, a German soldier, an Italian soldier, and his girlfriend are trapped in a cave after a bombing attack. They discover alcohol and dynamite, but no matter what they try they can't seem to get out. Brian Aherne is especially good, and the cast also includes John Saxon, Rosanna Schiaffino, Larry Hagman, and Peter Marshall. 20th Century–Fox released it in the US.

CAVE-IN!

(1979) D: George J. Fenady
S: Norman Katkov P: Irwin Allen

You know a movie is special when NBC-TV makes it, then doesn't air it for four years. Dennis Cole, Leslie Nielsen, Julie Sommars, Ray Milland, and James Olson are trapped in caverns, and two cave-ins occur. Allen made Beyond the Poseidon Adventure the same year.

CB4: THE MOVIE

(MCA, 1993) D: Tamara Davis S/P: Nelson George S/A: Chris Rock S: Robert LoCash

Chris Rock stars in a This Is Spinal Tap–like look at the ex-con Cell Block 4 rap trio, really nice suburban guys. With Alan Payne, Phil Hartman, Chris Elliott as a documentary filmmaker, Theresa Randle, and Charlie Murphy (Eddie's brother). Ice T, Ice Cube, and other real rap stars have cameos. MCA also released the soundtrack of this Universal feature. The independent Fear of a Black Hat from the same year used the same idea.

C. C. AND COMPANY

(1970) D: Seymour Robbie S/P: Roger Smith P: Allan Carr (Chrome Hearts)

Joe Namath is pretty ridiculous as C. C. Ryder, a member of the Heads, led by William Smith as Moon. (Smith had already been in Angels Die Hard, The Losers, and Run Angel Run.) C. C. saves Ann-Margret from the rest of the gang when her limo breaks down. He leaves the free life to go to Vegas with her, but the gang kidnaps her. Sid Haig, Greg Mullavey, Bruce Glover, and Gary Littlejohn are bikers. With Teda Bracci as Pig and Jennifer Billingsley. Wayne Cochran and the C. C. Riders appear to do a number, and Mitch Rider is heard. Ann-Margret sings too, and they're all on the Avco Embassy soundtrack. Her husband produced and wrote this R (later PG) movie. Allan Carr and Smith had also produced The First Time (1969). Namath's acting career didn't go very far, but he was also in Chattanooga Choo Choo (1984).

CEASE FIRE

(1953) D: Owen Crump S: Walter Doniger P: Hal B. Wallace

This Korean War docudrama features real American and Korean servicemen in 3-D. It was filmed on location in South Korea. One of the soldier/actors is said to have actually died on screen. Cheong Yul Bak stars as Kim. The score is by Dimitri Tiomkin. From Paramount.

CEASE FIRE

(HBO, 1985) D: David Nutter S: George Fernandez P: William Grefe

Don Johnson stars as a shell-shocked Nam vet still having flashbacks. His friend commits suicide. The serious feature was made in Miami just before Johnson became a big name in the TV series Miami Vice, but it was shelved for several years. With Lisa Blount, Chris Noel, and William Kerwin. It was the first feature produced by Grefe since Mako: The Jaws of Death (1976).

CELEBRITY COMMERCIALS

(Good Times)

Around 40 commercials are on this one-hour tape. Some of the celebs making extra bucks are Boris Karloff, Ronald Reagan, Charles Laughton, Johnny Weissmuller, Ernie Kovacs, the Monkees, the Nelson family, and the Three Stooges. Some are characters (Captain Midnight, the Lone Ranger, the Cisco Kid, Sergeant Bilko), impersonations (Laurel and Hardy), cartoon characters or actors before they were known (Marilyn Monroe, Christopher George, Louise Lasser). Charlton Heston, Steve McQueen, Nick Adams, Humphrey Bogart, Jack Benny, Lucy and Desi, and Fred and Barney âll hawk cigarettes. Also with the famous early-70s animated King Kong Volkswagen ad. Watch this tape and see why you are what you are today. Wouldn't you eat Shredded Wheat if Rin Tin Tin endorsed it? The sell though low-priced tape was purchased in a shopping mall.

CELIA, CHILD OF TERROR

(1988) D/S: Ann Turner P: Timothy White, Gordon Glenn Australia

Rebecca Smart stars as 9-year-old Celia, who starts imagining fictional monsters after her grandmother dies in 1950s Australia. It's not a horror movie. With Nicholas Eadie and Mary Anne Fahey.

THE CELLAR

(Hemdale, 1990) D: Kevin Tenney
S/P: Patrick Wells P: Steven E. Berman

A young boy (Chris Miller) visiting his divorced father in the Arizona desert knows about an Indian spirit in the basement of the farmhouse. Nobody believes him, but many are killed by the monster (some kind of a mutant boar) in this PG-13 movie. With Patrick Kilpatrick, Suzanne Savoy, and Ford Rainey.

CELLAR DWELLER

(Starmaker, 1986) D: John Carl Buechler
S: Kit DuBois P: Bob Wynn

Jeffrey Combs is a horror-comic artist in the early 50s. His creations come to life, and he's killed by his own 8-foot-tall monster. Years later, a new female cartoonist (Deborah Mullowney) revives the creature in Combs' country house, now part of an artists' colony. With Pamela Bellwood, Yvonne De Carlo, Vince Edwards, and Cheryl Ann Wilson. This Empire feature was filmed in Italy and released by New World. Buechler also did the FX. Frank Brunner provided the comic art.

CELL BLOCK GIRLS: See THUNDER COUNTY

CEMETERY HIGH

(Unicorn, 1987) D/S/P: Gorman Bechard
P: Kristine Covello

The Scumbusters, high-school-grad-cheerleader vigilantes, wipe out "male slimeballs" with guns. You get jokes about vigilantes, gore, and a "gore gong and horror hooter" gimmick. Characters talk to the camera, and the onscreen narrator is killed! With Debi Thibeault, Karen Nielsen, and Ruth Collins. Made in Waterbury, Connecticut.

CEMETERY MASSACRE: See NORTHVILLE CEMETERY MASSACRE

CENSORED

(SW, 1965) D/P: Barry Mahon

A man (Sid Berry) who reminds me of Bud Abbott gives a long, serious, (and pretty factual) lecture about movie censorship. The various scenes he shows us that were cut from "art" and adult films were actually created for this b/w movie. If you like this kinda stuff, it's a brilliant concept, Mahon really knew how to photograph beautiful women, and parts are downright surreal. He was also an equal-oportunity employer (remember this was made in the early 60s). A black man portrays an artist and a black woman is the star of the outrageous nudist colony scenes (also in the Shameless Shorts compilation—PV magazine #16). Models pose naked, a naked woman talks on the phone, and women strip down for life in a nudists colony. The most suprising scenes copy the then-new adults only "roughie" features. There's some bondage, a Nazi woman torturer, and a hilarious H. G. Lewis–type movie scene takeoff. When a guy cuts a woman's (obviously wood) leg off there's no blood! The (excellent) editing was by Byron Mabe.

THE CENSUS TAKER

(1984) D/S: Bruce Cook S: Gordon Smith P: Robert Bealmer

Greg Mullavey and Meredith MacRea (already an established team in obscure exploitation movies) kill a census taker (Garrett Morris) because he asked too many personal quesions and try to hide his body from a detective (Timothy Bottoms). It's a black comedy.

THE CENTERFOLD GIRLS

(Media, 1974) D: John Peyser S: Robert Peete P: Charles Stroud

Models for Bachelor magazine go to an island mansion and are killed off. Andrew Prine is a psycho killer with wire-rimmed glasses. This very-low-budget movie (presented by Arthur Marks) has a drug subplot and a good exploitation cast, including Ray Danton, Francine York, Jeremy Slate, Aldo Ray as a rapist, Mike Mazurki, and Dan Seymour. Jennifer Ashley, Jamie Lyn Bauer, Tiffany Bolling as a stewardess, Connie Strickland, Teda Bracci, Janet Wood, Anneka De Lorenzo (from Penthouse, also in Caligula), Ruthy Ross (from Playboy), and others play centerfolds and are in the many topless scenes.

CENTER OF THE WEB

(AIP, 1992) D: David Prior P: Kimberly Casey

Charlene Tilton is an assistant DA whose acting-teacher boyfriend (Ted Prior) is kidnapped by gangsters, then recruited by the government to work undercover. There are lots of car crashes. With Robert Davi, Tony Curtis, Chuck Connors, Charles Napier, and Bo Hopkins. This played the Harris, on 42nd Street.

CENTIPEDE HORROR

(World, 1989) D: Keith Li S: Amy Chan, Suet Ming P: Stephen C. K. Chan Hong Kong

See characters puking up centipedes and scorpions! See an exorcism and reanimated flying-chicken skeletons! It's all the result of black-magic spells and a curse in Thailand, because somebody's father cheated on his wife years ago.

CERTAIN FURY

(Starmaker, 1985) D: Stephan Gyllenhaal S: Michael Jacobs P: Gilbert Adler US/Canada

There's nothing like an exploitation movie starring two young Oscar winners. Tatum O'Neal is Scar, a tough, illiterate hooker, and Irene Cara is innocent and middle-class. In a courtroom facing charges, they accidentally become part of a shootout/breakout and flee into the sewers and slums of a city. It's basically another Defiant Ones copy. Peter Fonda is a wealthy gangster, Moses Gunn is Cara's father, and Nicholas Campbell is a drug dealer/pornographer. Cara appears topless, is shot up with drugs, and gets raped. The director of this New World release later made Paris Trout.

A CERTAIN SACRIFICE

(Virgin, 1979) D: Stephen Jon Lewicki

Nobody would ever have cared about this 58-minute super-8 punk-attitude student film if it hadn't costarred future megastar Madonna. She did it in New York for "$100" several years before her first LP was released and later tried to sue to keep it unreleased. The grainy film with bad sound features Madonna as "bad girl" Bruna. She's naked, is smeared with blood, joins in (simulated) group sex, is raped, and eventually helps kill and eat her rapist. This was for sale in Kmarts for years.

CHA-CHA-CHA BOOM

(1956) D: Fred F. Sears S: James B. Gordon P: Sam Katzman

A talent scout with his own record company looks for new Latin talent to sign. With Pérez Prado, the Mary Kay Trio, Alix Talton, and José González González. The songs include "Cuban Rock and Roll" and "Voodoo Suite." Sears directed Rock Around the Clock (also for Columbia) the same year.

CHAIN GANG

(1984) D/S: Worth Keeter S: Todd Durham P/A: Earl Owensby

This is one of several 3-D adventure movies made at Owensby's EO studios in North Carolina. He stars as Rafe McPherson, and Al "Lash" La Rue is in the cast. The ads compared it to The Wild Bunch. Don't believe it.

CHAIN GANG WOMAN

(Academy, 1971) D/S/A/C/E: Lee Frost P/A: Wes Bishop

A ripoff title disguises a drive-in movie about an all-male chain gang. An ad said, "The road from a chain gang to Hell is very short." Robert Lott is on a Georgia chain gang for a marijuana bust. He escapes with a "sex killer" (Michael Sterns), and they take over a farmhouse. With country music and split-screen chase sequences. From Crown International

CHAINED HEAT

(Vestron, 1983) D: "Paul Nicolas"/Lutz Schaarwaechter S: Vincent Mongoi P: Billy Fine US/W. Germany

Chained Heat may be the ultimate modern WIP (women-in-prison) feature. Linda Blair (who went topless for the first time) is the innocent new inmate, Stella Stevens is the strict prison officer, Henry Silva is the coke dealer/pimp guard, and John Vernon is the warden, who deals in drugs and women (and videotapes his hot-tub orgies). Tamara Dobson (from the Cleopatra Jones movies), as Duchess, leads the black gang, and Sybil Danning, as Erika, leads the white gang. With Edy Williams, Monique Gabrielle in the hot tub, John Aprea, Jennifer Ashley, Louisa Moritz, Marcia Karr, Nita Talbot, Greta Blackburn, Michael Callan, and John Vernon's daughter, Kate, as a prisoner. This follow-up to The Concrete Jungle (1982) also includes some transvestites and some visible boom mikes.

CHAINED HEAT 2

(New Line, 1993) D/P: Lloyd Simandl S: Chris Hyde P: John Curtis

Red-haired Brigitte Nielsen as Magda, the new warden, towers over the rest of the female cast in this "sequel" (actually a remake of Red Heat) set in (and shot in) Prague. She smokes drugs, snorts coke, and turns girls into expensive prostitutes at a castle for the corrupt US ambassador (Paul Koslo). Magda also likes to be whipped (off screen) by her laughing lesbian guard Rosa (Jana Suandova), who makes naked prisoners work in a coke factory at night and is like a younger version of Rosa in From Russia with Love. Kimberly Kates is the innocent tourist who was framed, and Kari Whitman is her sister, who wants her out. As far as women-in-prison movies go it's real tame. You do get shower scenes, but Brigitte keeps herself pretty much covered, and her acting hasn't improved. By the director of Maniac Warriors.

CHAIN OF DESIRE

(Prism, 1992) D/S: Temistocles Lopez P: Brian Cox

In another version of La Ronde (see New York Nights), interconnecting stories about sex are centered around a Manhattan nightclub. With Linda Fiorentino, Elias Koteas, Patrick Bauchau, Grace Zabriske as a dominatrix, Malcolm McDowell as her closet-case husband, and Seymour Cassel as a pedophile artist.

CHAIN REACTION

(1980) D/S: Ian Berry P: David Elfick Australia

Nuke-plant officials want to kill a contaminated worker (Ross Thompson) before he can notify people about a cover-up concerning nuclear waste and a near meltdown that caused an earthquake. Steve Bisley and Anna-Maria Winchester are a vacationing couple. George Miller was the associate producer of this China Syndrome–inspired action thriller after he directed Mad Max.

CHAINS OF GOLD

(Academy, 1992) D: Rod Holcolmb S: John Petz, Linda Favila P: Jonathon D. Krane

John Travolta is a Miami-area social worker who goes beyond the call of duty to save a kid named Carlos (Benjamin Bratt). Gangs use kids to work their drug factory, put them in suspended cages, and kill the defectors. Travolta (who also cowrote this) falls down the side of a building and is kidnaped, shot at, and thrown in an alligator pit. His ex-wife (Marilu Henner) is a gang lawyer, and Bernie Casey and Hector Elizondo are cops. Also with Joey Lawrence and Conchita Ferrell.

THE CHAIR

(Imperial, 1986) D: Waldemar Korzeniowsky S: Carolyn Swartz P: Anthony Jones (Hot Seat)

There were a lot of prison horror movies in the late 80s. None were very good, but this (possibly the first completed) is the worst. James Coco (who died shortly after filming) is corny, sentimental, and overbearing as a friendly doctor practicing primal therapy on a small group of inmates in an old, rundown prison that's haunted by electrical forces. The inmates include Stephen Geoffreys, a black drag queen, and Stranger Than Paradise star Richard Edson (in flashbacks). The only memorable parts involve an animated eyeball in a light bulb. With Trini Alvarado and the irritating Paul Benedict (from The Jeffersons). The theme song is sung by Lonette McKee. It was filmed by Angelika Films (the theater owners) at the old Essex County (New Jersey) jail and in New Paltz, New York, and released in 1989.

THE CHAIRMAN

(1969) D: J. Lee Thompson S: Ben Maddow P: Mort Abrahams US/UK (The Most Dangerous Man in the World)

A transmitter (actually a bomb) is planted in the skull of a Nobel Prize–winning scientist (Gregory Peck) who is asked by the president to go to China to obtain a supergrowth enzyme. He's lied to and used by the Communists and his own government.

CHARLIE CHAN

The famous Chinese detective Charlie Chan was based on a character in books by Earl Derr Biggers (1884–1933). In 1926, only one year after the first novel (The House Without a Key) was published, a silent Pathé serial based on it was made, with Japanese actor George Kuwa as a comic Chan. Another Japanese actor, Kamiyama Sojin, played Chan in Paul Leni's The Chinese Parrot (Universal, 1928). A sound film, Behind the Curtain (Fox, 1929), had English actor E. L. Park playing Chan as a supporting character.

Fox then put Swedish actor Warner Oland (who had been starring in their Fu Manchu movies) into a series of 17 features that lasted from 1929 until the actor's death in 1938. They have the highest production values and the best plots and guest stars. Keye Luke often played Lee Chan, "number one son." Charlie Chan in Paris (1935), Charlie Chan at the Opera, with Boris Karloff (1936), and Charlie Chan's Secret (1936) are on video from Key.

Sidney Toler took over the role in 1938 and was in 11 Fox films until 1942. (Victor) Sen Young usually played Jimmy Chan, "number two son." George Zucco is in Charlie Chan in Honolulu (1938), and Lionel Atwill is in Charlie Chan in Panama (1940) and Charlie Chan's Murder Case (1940). In 1944 Monogram took over the series, and Toler was in 11 more until he died in 1947. These are the ones with Mantan Moreland as comic-relief chauffeur Birmingham Brown and Benson Fong as Tommy Chan, "number three son." More people are familiar with the Monogram entries because they've been on TV so much. Sen Young and Keye Luke showed up in some of the Monogram entries too. The movies got more predictable as the years went by and often had more comedy than crime-solving. Charlie Chan at the Wax Museum (1940), Murder Over New York (1940), Charlie Chan in Rio (1941), Castle in the Desert (1942), Meeting at Midnight (or Black Magic), Charlie Chan in the Secret Service, and The Chinese Cat (all 1944), and The Jade Mask, The Shanghai Cobra, and The Scarlet Clue (all 1945) are on video.

Roland Winters took over the role for the last six films (1947–1949). The New Adventures of Charlie Chan was a 1957 TV series starring J. Carroll Naish and James Hong. Tapes of these programs have been around. The Return of Charlie Chan (1971) was a TV-pilot feature with Ross Martin as Chan. Because of protests over the appearance of yet another Caucasian actor in the role, it wasn't aired for eight years.

Mantan Moreland as Birmingham Brown and Keye Luke in The Jade Mask.

JACKIE CHAN

For many years Chan was the biggest star in Asia. A former child actor and stunt man, he starred in many comic period martial-arts movies. Many of these early titles are available (dubbed) in the US (often from All Seasons) under various confusing and misleading titles. Some are: Eagle's Shadow Fist (1973), All in the Family (1975), Hand of Death, (1975), Shaolin Wooden Men (1976), New Fists of Fury (1976), To Kill with Intrigue (1977), Dragon Fist (1978), Half a Loaf of Kung Fu (1978), Magnificent Bodyguard (1978), Snake and Crane Art of Shaolin (1978), Spiritual Kung Fu (1978), Eagle's Shadow (1978), his first big hit, Drunken Master (1979), Fearless Hyena (1979), his first film as director, Young Master (1980), and Fearless Hyena II (1980). Some ripoff titles used new footage of doubles for Chan mixed with outtakes or old scenes. A 1980 US production, The Big Brawl, failed to make him a star here, but his Hong Kong hits continued to break box-office records. His biggest and best-known action features are Police Story (1987), Project A (1983), and Armour of God (1986). They all had sequels.

With Anne Heywood, Arthur Hill, Burt Kwouk, Keye Luke, and Conrad Yuma as Chairman Mao. Jerry Goldsmith wrote the score of this M-rated 20th Century–Fox release.

CHALLENGE

(Continental, 1974) D: Martin Beck P/A: Earl Owensby

This was the first of many movies that Owensby made in North Carolina. In the simple, PG-rated revenge plot, he blows away the guys who killed his wife. Owensby's movies were advertised as "clean, decent entertainment" and played exclusively in southern states until some became video releases.

THE CHALLENGE

(1970) D: "Alan Smithee" S: Marc Norman P: Jay Cipes, Ed Palmer

Darren McGavin and Mako are warriors who represent America and an unnamed Asian country in the future. They're sent to a deserted island to fight to the death as an alternative to WWIII. With Broderick Crawford, James Whitmore, Adolph Caesar, Skip Homeier, and Paul Lukas. It was made for ABC-TV. The director's real name is unavailable.

THE CHALLENGE

(Fox, 1982) D: John Frankenheimer S: John Sayles, Richard Maxwell, Ivan Moffat P: Robert L. Rosen, Ron Beckman

American boxer Scott Glenn, training in Kyoto, Japan, ends up eating food that moves and is buried up to his neck, in this odd movie filmed in Kyoto by Americans. Toshiro Mifune and Atsuo Nakamura are rival brothers after a family samurai sword. Mifune invades his brother's high-security corporation with a bow and arrows and a sword. With Donna Kei Benz. It was Sayles' first filmed script after The Howling. Steven Seagal was the fight coordinator. The music is by Jerry Goldsmith. A recut and retitled version was later shown on TV as Sword of the Ninja.

A CHALLENGE FOR ROBIN HOOD

(1968) D: C. M. Pennington-Richards S: Peter Bryan P: Clifford Parkes UK

Barrie Ingham stars as Robin Hood in a typical tale of the merrie men of the forest, with a cast of actors unknown in the US (where it was released by 20th Century–Fox). Hammer had also made Men of Sherwood Forest (1954) and Sword of Sherwood Forest (1960), the latter with Richard Greene, who also starred in the TV series The Adventures of Robin Hood.

CHANCES ARE

(RCA, 1989) D: Emile Ardolino S: Perry Howze, Randy Howze P: Mike Lobell

Robert Downey Jr. is the reincarnated soul of the husband of Cybill Shepherd. With Mary Stuart Masterson as their daughter, Ryan O'Neal, Marc McClure, Mimi Kennedy, and Kathleen Freeman. Tri Star released this PG comedy with music by Maurice Jarre. Downey later starred in another body-switch comedy, 1993's Heart and Soul.

CHANEL SOLITAIRE

(1981) D: George Kaczender S: Julian Spangler P: Larry Spangler US/France

Marie-France Pisier stars as Coco Chanel, who rises from poverty to conquer the fashion world. About $1 million was spent on costumes in this two-hour-long romantic biography. The international cast includes Timothy Dalton, Rutger Hauer, Karen Black, Brigitte Fossey, and Catherine Allegret as a lesbian.

CHANG

(Milestone, 1927) D/P: Merian C. Cooper P: Ernest B. Schoedsack

Roughly 50 percent of this extraordinary 67-minute documentary was staged or fake, making it an early "docudrama." The Paramount release was filmed in the jungles of Siam (now Thailand) and features a real farming family. Cooper and Schoedsack's follow-up to Grass (1925) is famous for the long sequence of an elephant herd destroying a native village. Some scenes were later copied in the filmmakers' next project, King Kong. The restored video release includes a new orchestral score.

CHANGE OF MIND

(1969) D: Robert Stevens S/P: Seeleg Lester, Richard Wesson

The brain of a white district attorney is transplanted into a dead black man (Raymond St. Jacques). The DA tries to resume his life in the new body, but his family and colleagues shun him. He eventually goes for help to the woman (Janet MacLachlan) who was married to the dead man and ends up a hero in a court case involving a bigoted sheriff. With Susan Oliver and Leslie Nielsen. This R-rated movie, filmed in Toronto, features music composed and conducted by Duke Ellington. Don't expect another The Thing with Two Heads.

THE CHANNELER

(Magnum, 1990) D/S/P/A: Grant Austin Waldman

A group of people from LA go backpacking. One guy has visions of a miner. He becomes possessed, rolls his eyeballs back, and talks with a deep voice. A monster with limp rubber claws kills people, and everything is explained in a cave at the end. Jay Richardson plays a nice guy husband and is the best part of the movie. Dan Haggerty is a Nam vet doing research in the woods and Euro star Richard Harrison is a bar owner who comes to the rescue. The Channeler starts out better than average, but gets boring and stupid pretty fast. With Robin Sims, Cindy Brooks, and a from-the-neck-down-only nude shower scene. Fred Olen Ray was the executive consultant.

THE CHANT OF JIMMY BLACKSMITH

(1978) D/S/P: Fred Schepisi

At the turn of the century, a half-breed Aborigine (Tommy Lewis) raised by an English missionary (Jack Thompson) declares war on all whites after years of abuse. He starts by killing a family with an axe. The film was adapted from a novel by Thomas Keneally that was based on a true incident. Most US prints are cut. Schepisi later made Iceman in the US.

THE CHARGE AT FEATHER RIVER

(1953) D: Gordon Douglas S: James R. Webb P: David Weisbart

The Cavalry rescues two women being held by hostile Cheyenne Indians, in this 3-D Natural-vision and Warner Color feature. Guy Madison (TV's Wild Bill Hickok) stars, with Frank Lovejoy (who had just been in the 3-D horror hit House of Wax), Vera Miles, Steve Brodie, Helen Westcott, Onslow Stevens, Neville Brand, and Henry Kulky. Bullets, arrows, and even tobacco juice seemed to shoot or be spat out at the audience. The music is by Max Steiner.

CHARLEY AND THE ANGEL

(1973) D: Vincent McEveety
S: Roswell Rogers P: Bill Anderson

Harry Morgan is the angel in this G-rated Disney fantasy/comedy set in the Depression-era Midwest. Fred MacMurray (who had starred in several Disney hits a decade before) is Charlie, a store owner, and Cloris Leachman is his wife. The plot is mostly a light version of Capra's It's a Wonderful Life. Richard Bakalyan as a bootlegger, Edward Andrews, Barbara Nichols, and George Lindsay make it (almost) bearable for adults, and there are newcomers like Kurt Russell as a teen who likes Charlie's daughter, Vincent Van Patten, and Ed Begley Jr.

CHARLEY ONE-EYE

(1972) D: Don Chaffey S: Keith Leonard P: James Swann UK

Richard Roundtree (just after Shaft) is "the black man," a Union Army deserter who kills his commanding officer and flees to Mexico. He meets up with "the Indian" (Roy Thinnes), an outcast half-breed with a bad leg. Nigel Davenport is a sadistic bounty hunter. This allegory was produced by David Frost's British production company for Paramount.

CHARLIE BOY

(IVE, 1980) D: Francis Megahy S: Bernie Cooper, Francis Megahy UK

Elvira introduces this 60-minute Hammer TV production about a British couple and an African voodoo idol. She also appears during a break and at the end to remind you how dull it is. With Leigh Lawson and Marius Goring.

CHARLY

(Fox, 1968) D/P/A: Ralph Nelson S: Sterling Silliphant

A mentally retarded Boston man (Cliff Robertson) who works at a bakery undergoes an operation to accelerate his brain development. It succeeds, and he falls in love with a social worker (Claire Bloom). He becomes an awkward genius and runs away for a while to be a hippie, but his independence is temporary. Based on the novel Flowers for Algernon, by Daniel Keyes, the film includes split-screen hippie sequences and music by Ravi Shankar. The cast includes Dick Van Patten. Robertson first played the role on TV in 1961. He developed the script, secured the financing, and received an Oscar for his efforts. He has wanted to make a sequel for many years, but Awakenings (1991), with Robert De Niro, probably put an end to those plans.

THE CHASE

(Vidmark, 1991) D: Paul Wendkos
S: Guerdon Trueblood

Casey Siemaszko is an escaped psycho bank robber in Denver. With Barry Corbin as a cop, Ben Johnson, Megan Follows, and Ricki Lake. It was made for TV.

THE CHASE

(1994) D/S: Adam Rifkin P: Brad Wyman, Cassian Elwes

Charlie Sheen (also an excutive producer) is an escaped con (he was framed) who hijacks a BMW, takes heiress Kristy Swanson hostage, and drives from San Diego to Tijuana. The cops and the media follow. With Ray Wise as the millionaire father, Josh Mostel, Cary Elwes, Marshall Bell, and Claudia Christian. The soundtrack is heavy metal, and musicians Henry Rollins and Anthony Kiedes also act. This PG-13 film from 20th Century–Fox was shot in Texas by the director of The Dark Backward.

CHASERS

(Warner, 1994) D/A: Dennis Hopper S: Joe Batteer, John Rice, Dan Gilroy P: James G. Robinson

Tom Berenger and William McNamara are seamen assigned to transport a court-martialed sailor who turns out to be sexy Erika Eleniak. She has nude scenes, and uses disguises to try to escape. Another little-seen project of Hopper's, it has Gary Busey, Frederic Forrest, Seymour Cassel, Crispin Glover, Dean Stockwell, Marilu Henner, and Hopper himself in small roles. The comic action takes place on the southern Atlantic coast.

CHASTITY

(1969) D: Alessio de Paola S/P/M: Sonny Bono

After Good Times (1967), with Sonny, Cher made her solo starring debut in this R-rated movie when she was in between top-40 hits. She runs away from home, hitchhikes, encounters hookers, lesbians, and prostitutes, smokes pot, steals a car, goes to Mexico, pretends to be a hooker, and rips off a young would-be customer's money. She also reveals that she was a victim of childhood incest. It was rated R, then PG. With Barbara London, Stephen Whittaker, and Tom Nolan. The soundtrack is on Atco. The film was a flop, but the famous couple named their kid after it anyway. Cher didn't act in a feature again until Come Back to the Five and Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean (1982).

CHATO'S LAND

(MGM, 1972) D/P: Michael Winner
S: Gerald Wilson UK/Spain

Winner directed Charles Bronson for the first of many times in this post–Civil War western shot in Spain. He plays an Apache half-breed who speaks only two lines of English in the entire movie. Bounty hunters are after him for killing a sheriff, but he ends up pursuing and killing them. It was violent for a PG rating, and, typically for Bronson movies of the time, was a hit in Europe but was ignored in the US (where United Artists released it). With Jack Palance, Richard Basehart, Jill Ireland (Bronson's real-life wife), James Whitmore, Simon Oakland, Richard Jordan, and Ralph Waite.

CHATTAHOOCHEE

(HBO, 1990) D: Mick Jackson
S: James Hicks P: Aaron Schwab

Gary Oldman, as a Korean War vet returning to the South as a hero in the early 50s, becomes suicidal, shoots up the town, and ends up in a brutal insane asylum called Chattahoochee. He receives shock treatments there but attempts to expose the horrible conditions. Dennis Hopper and M. Emmet Walsh are fellow patients. With Frances McDormand, Pamela Reed, and Ned Beatty.

CHATTERBOX!

(Vestron, 1977) D: Tom De Simone
S: Mark Rosin P: Bruce Cohn Curtis

The inspiration for this AIP release was probably a French porno film called Pussytalk (or an American one called Angel Above, Devil Below). They're both about talking (and, in this case, singing) vaginas. Don't you miss the 70s? Candice Rialson (remembered for some Roger Corman drive-in hits) works at a beauty parlor owned by Rip Taylor. Her new voice gets her into trouble, making wisecracks to a lesbian at work and to her shrink. She goes on a TV show hosted by Professor Irwin Corey, "sings" naked on stage, has a hit record ("Wang Dang Doodle"), goes on tour, stars in a musical feature with chicken men, and makes the cover of Time magazine. Chatterbox features discos, a clip from that famous old "talking frog" cartoon, and too many painfully bad gags for any sober viewer to endure. The new songs were written by Neil Sedaka (!). Also with Larry Gelman (from The Bob Newhart Show). De Simone also made gay porno titles like Good Hot Stuff and several Linda Blair movies.

CHE!

(1969) D/P: Richard Fleischer S: Michael Wilson, David Karp S/P: Sy Bartlett

Omar Sharif stars as Dr. Ernesto Guevara, who became the revolutionary Che Guevara, in a biographical feature with a pretty odd cast. He helps Castro overthow Batista in Cuba, tries to start a revolution in Boliva, and is shot in 1967, just two years before 20th Century–Fox released this much-hated M-rated feature. Actors playing characters who knew Guevara tell the story, talking to the camera. It was advertised with lines like, "With a dream of justice, he created a nightmare of violence!" Jack Palance is Castro! With Cesare Danova, Robert Loggia, Woody Strode, Barbara Luna, Abraham Sofaer, Sid Haig, Perry Lopez, Adolph Caesar, and director Jesús Franco as Sergeant Terraza(!). It was filmed in Puerto Rico and Malibu and has music by Lalo Schifrin.

CHEECH AND CHONG'S NEXT MOVIE

(MCA, 1980) D/S/A: Thomas Chong
S/A: Cheech Marin P: Howard Brown

The comedy team's follow-up to Up in Smoke has even less of a plot. There's plenty of pot humor, though, plus Evelyn Guerrero, "Mousie" Gardner, Michael Winslow, Bob and Edie McClurg, Missy Cleveland, Rikki Marin, future Saturday Night Live regular Phil Hartman, and future Pee-wee Herman Paul Reubens as a desk clerk. From Universal.

CHEECH AND CHONG'S NICE DREAMS

(RCA, 1981) D/S/A: Thomas Chong
S/A: Cheech Marin P: Howard Brown

The third Cheech and Chong hit has them selling pot from an ice-cream truck. Stacy Keach is the Sarge (back from Up in Smoke), Evelyn Guerrero costars again, and this time Paul Reubens is Howie Hamburger. With Timothy Leary (as himself), Cheryl "Rainbeaux" Smith, and Linnea Quigley. The Columbia release was shot by Brianne Murphy, the only female union director of photography in Hollywood at the time.

Cheech Marin and Tommy Chong in Cheech and Chong's Nice Dreams.

CHEECH AND CHONG'S THE CORSICAN BROTHERS

(Vestron, 1984) D/S/A: Thomas Chong
S/A: Cheech Marin P: Peter MacGregor-Scott

Drugs were left out of the last Cheech and Chong movie, a PG-rated period comedy shot in France. They play Alexandre Dumas' Corsican Brothers, who can feel each other's pain. With Roy Dotrice, Sophie Favier, Edie McClurg, and family members Rikki Marin, Rae Dawn Chong, and Robbie Chong. The team had also been in the historical comedy Yellowbeard (1983). After this they appeared in After Hours, then went their separate ways after being a team since 1970. From Orion (formerly AIP).

CHEERLEADER CAMP

(Prism, 1987) D/P: John Quinn S: David Lee Fein, R. L. O'Keefe P: Jeffrey Prettyman (Bloody Pom Poms)

Cheerleader Betsy Russell has nightmares about murders at a summer camp. A guy videotapes embarrassing moments for comedy relief, and campers start dying in various gory ways. Leif Garrett is the hero, and Lucinda Dickey is a mascot in an alligator costume. With Buck Flower, Karen Russell, and Teri Weigel and Rebecca Ferratti (from Playboy).

CHEERLEADERS' WILD WEEKEND

(Vestron, 1979) D: Jeff Werner S: D. W. Gilbert, Jason Williams P: Chuck Russell

Jason Williams (who was also the associate producer) and Christine DeBelle star in this sex comedy from Dimension. A busful of cheerleaders are kidnapped. Williams had starred in Flesh Gordon, and DeBelle was Alice in the X-rated Alice in Wonderland. With Tracy Ann King.

CHERRY, HARRY, AND RAQUEL!

(RM, 1969) D/S/P/C: Russ Meyer
S: "Thomas J. McGowan"/Tom Wolfe

The same man who wrote The Right Stuff scripted this violent, early, X-rated Russ Meyer hit. Charles Napier is lecherous, corrupt sheriff Harry Sledge, who runs drugs, has sex with the pot-smoking female stars, and engages in a bloody battle with a rival Indian pot-smuggler. Linda Ashton is Nurse Cherry, and Larissa Ely is Raquel, the mistress of bedridden narcotics king Mr. Franklin (Franklin Bolger). Raquel has sex with Harry, Cherry, and the dead Mr. Franklin. With Bert Santos and Uschi Digart as Soul in inserted comic scenes. A lesbian sequence shot in Meyer's pool was also added to expand the running time. Napier was also in three other forgotten "nudies" released in 1969. A soundtrack LP was released on the Beverly Hills label. This was Meyer's last indy film before making the classic Beyond the Valley of the Dolls and the tame The Seven Minutes (both at 20th Century–Fox).

CHERRY 2000

(Orion, 1985) D: Steve DeJarnatt
S: Michael Almereyda P: Edward R. Pressman, Caldecot Chubb

Melanie Griffith is a tough female tracker with an old red Mustang in the post-nuke year 2017. David Andrews hires her to go to the dangerous Zone Z and get important parts for his love robot, Cherry 2000 (Pamela Gidley). This overlooked feature has some amazing stunts worthy of the best James Bond movies, a good cast, and some effective, intentional humor, and it's one of the few original post–Mad Max movies around. Ben Johnson is Six Finger Jake, running an underground ferryboat, Tim Thomerson leads a suburban barbecue cult, and Brion James is a crook. Also with Michael C. Gwynne, Harry Carey Jr., Robert Z'Dar, Larry Fishburne, and special guests Gort and Robby. Cherry 2000 was shot near Las Vegas and at Hoover Dam. This PG-13 feature wasn't released (by Orion) until 1988. The scriptwriter directed Twister (1989).

CHESTY ANDERSON, USN

(Program Hunter, 1975) D: Ed Forsyth
S/P: Paul Pompian S: H. F. Green, Henning Schellerup (Anderson's Angels)

Shari Eubank (Super Vixens) wants revenge after her sister is killed in a garbage chopper. She, Rosanne Katon, and two other WAVES who know kung fu go after Ace Garbage boss Frank Campanella. His underling (scene-stealing Timothy Carey in a silver jacket) sings and rants ("Buck, buck, buck"). Scatman Crothers sings and plays pool. There's very little nudity (Katon has a topless scene), but there is a dwarf bartender and a man-eating plant, and you can see the microphone. Also look for Fred Willard as a corrupt senator's aide, Dyanne Thorne as a nurse, Uschi Digart, Nell Carter, and Betty Thomas (from Hill Street Blues).

CHEVY VAN

(1976) D: Sam Grossman S: Celia Susan Cotelo, Rob Rosenthal P: Paul Lewis (The Van)

Stuart Getz stars as a kid impressing girls with his customized van, in this dumb teen-sex comedy. With Deborah White, Stephen Oliver, Michael Lloyd, and Danny DeVito, who nobody could have predicted would become famous.

CHEYENNE WARRIOR

(New Horizons, 1994) D: Mark Griffiths
S: Michael B. Drunman P: Mike Elliott

When westerns returned in a big way, executive producer Roger Corman (who had started directing low-budget westerns in the 50s) offered this PG-13 film. Kelly Preston stars as a pregnant woman who is taken in by an injured Indian (Pato Hoffman) after her husband is killed. They fall in love. With Bo Hopkins, Rick Dean, Clint Howard, and Dan Haggerty.

THE CHICKEN CHRONICLES

(Nelson, 1977) D: Francis Simon S: Paul Diamond P: Walter Shenson

Steve Guttenberg, one of the most overused actors of all time, made his debut in this passable PG teen comedy. He works at a fast-food joint in late-60s Beverly Hills. With Phil Silvers, Ed Lauter, Lisa Reeves, Meredith Baer, and lots of top-40 hits (mostly on the Imperial label).

UN CHIEN ANDALOU

(1928) D/S/P: Luis Buñuel, Salvador Dali France

There are more incredible images in this 24-minute short than in just about any feature you could name. It caused scandals when it was new. It's the one that begins with an eyeball being sliced with a razor blade. Classical music is heard while a man drags two priests, two grand pianos, and two dead donkeys. Some kids first saw it in the mid-70s when it was used to open David Bowie concerts. Buñuel and Dali (who later hated each other) also collaborated on L'Age d'Or (1930).

Charles Napier as Harry in Russ Meyer's Cherry, Harry, and Raquel!

Buñuel's Un Chien Andalou.

THE CHILD

(Best, 1977) D: Robert Voskanian
S: Ralph Luca P: Robert Dadashian
(Kill and Go Hide!; Zombie Child)

A little girl (Rosalie Cole) who lives in a remote home with her father can raise the dead and uses zombies from the nearby graveyard to kill the people she thinks killed her mother. Laurel Barnett is the new governess. The little girl dies with an axe in her head at the end. It was released by Boxoffice International.

CHILD BRIDE

(SW, 1937) D: Harry J. Revier
(Child Bride of the Ozarks)

In a backwards mountain community, the progressive schoolmarm, Miss Carol, crusades for a child-marriage law. Local men in hoods with torches tie her up and are about to tar and feather her during a weird lightning storm, but she's saved by the dwarf Angelo (Angelo Rossitto) and the simple-minded Happy, who work at a still. Meanwhile, Jake, the evil still owner, kills his partner and plans to marry the man's cute, very innocent, and very underage daughter, Jennie (Shirley Miles). All this would make a fine hillbilly exploitation movie, but this one goes an extra step further and includes a (still surprising) nude skinny-dipping sequence with Jennie, who looks maybe 12. The acting is awful, but I'm sure nobody complained. Revier also directed the serial The Lost City (1935) and the notorious Lash of the Penitentes (1936), which has scenes just like the teacher-in-peril scene here. Child Bride was a Kroger Babb presentation (presented on tape by David F. Friedman). Some sources claim it later played as Dust to Dust, with a reel showing the birth of a baby added. The tape includes two dozen choice trailers.

CHILD OF DARKNESS, CHILD OF LIGHT

(Paramount, 1991) D: Marinia Sargenti
S: Brian Taggert P: Paul Tucker

Two teenage girls (Sydney Penny and Kristin Datillo) mysteriously become pregnant. A Catholic priest says that one will have the son of God, the other the son of Satan. This USA Network movie is based on a novel by James Patterson. With Brad Davis, Paxton Whitehead, Viveca Lindfors, Sela Ward, and Anthony John Dension.

CHILD OF SATAN = TO THE DEVIL, A DAUGHTER

THE CHILDREN

(1990) D: Tony Palmer
S: Timberlake Wertenbaker P: Andrew Montgomery UK/W. Germany

What are exploitation greats Karen Black, Joe Don Baker, and Britt Ekland doing in this drama, based on a novel by Edith Wharton? Ben Kingsley stars as a man who has an affair with a teenage girl while planning to marry a widow (Kim Novak). With Geraldine Chaplin and Siri Neal. Filmed in Switzerland and Venice.

CHILDREN OF THE CORN

(New World, 1984) D: Fritz Kiersch S: George Goldsmith P: Donald Borchers, Terrence Kirby

I hated this senseless killer-kids movie, based on a Stephen King short story (from Night Shift). The only memorable scene is when the kids of a small Nebraska town slaughter all the adults after church one day. Peter Horton, as a doctor, and Linda Hamilton arrive in town several years later and have to fight for their lives. The kids sacrifice humans to some god in the fields, and something burrows under the dirt. John Franklin is the lead weird/scary kid, Isaac. With R. G. Armstrong and Courtney Gains. The Jonathan Elias soundtrack is on Varèse Sarabande. A better, student-made short version of the same story is available on the tape of The Stephen King Night Shift Collection.

CHILDREN OF THE CORN II: THE FINAL SACRIFICE

(Paramount, 1992) D: David Price S: A. L. Katz, Gilbert Adler P: Scott A. Stone, David G. Stanley

A kid (Paul Scherrer) and his divorced tabloid-journalist father (Terence Knox) go to a small town where "over 50" decomposed bodies have been discovered but the killer kids are free to stand around and stare. Kids attack a doctor with syringes and crush an old lady under a house, but the negative FX, POV stalking scenes, and computer-animation "void" scenes don't really cut it. Christie Clark and Rosalind Allen (also in Price's Son of Darkness) are the female love interests, Ryan Bollman is Micah (who eventually morphs into what looks like The Hideous Sun Demon), and Ned Romero is an American Indian anthropology professor who talks about Koyaanisqatsi (Hopi for "life out of balance"). It was shot in North Carolina. Childen of the Corn III followed.

CHILDREN OF THE FULL MOON

(Thriller, 1980) D: Tom Clegg S: Murray Smith UK

TV horror hostess Elvira introduces this one-hour Hammer "House of Horrors" TV production about a couple (Diana Dors and Robert Urquhart) whose car breaks down in the woods. They go to a mansion where the strange kids turn out to be werewolves.

CHILDREN OF THE NIGHT

(Columbia, 1991) D: Tony Randel S: Nicolas Falacci P: Christopher Webster

In a dark, dreary, misty, empty small town, a young priest keeps two female vampires (Karen Black and Maya McLaughlin) chained up in a room. They sleep covered with goo, eat leeches, and are controlled by a tall ex-priest/vampire with a mutant face (David Sawyer). The set of the submerged crypt under a church is interesting, but this movie is senseless and irritating. Top-billed Black gets to rant in her one scene. Ami Dolenz costars with Peter DeLuise, as a teacher. Garrett Morris drinks and preaches from a van with an electric cross on top. This Fangoria production was shot in Wisconsin and Michigan by the director of Hellbound (which didn't make any damn sense either). KNB handled the FX.

THE CHILDREN OF TIMES SQUARE

(Fries, 1986) D/S: Curtis Hanson
P: Marcy Gross, Ann Weston

ABC-TV presented this exploitative look at Times Square runaways. With just a little swearing and nudity it could have played in Times Square, so I considered it a find on network TV. Howard Rollins Jr. is a coke dealer who leads kids astray, and Joanna Cassidy is a mother who arrives at the Port Authority bus terminal searching for her kid. With Griffin O'Neal, Joe Spinnell, hookers, pornographers, and dealers.

CHILD'S PLAY

(MGM, 1988) D/S: Tom Holland S: Don Mancini, John Lafia P: David Kirschner

It's way too much like the old Twilight Zone episode "Talking Tina," but Child's Play caught on, thanks largely to a good TV ad campaign showing how much kids were scared by it and liked to yell ("Chucky! Chucky!"). Brad Dourif as murderer Charles Lee Ray doesn't last very long, but his soul and voice live on in a popular (and ugly) doll. All the kids want Good Guy dolls, and when Alex Vincent as six-year-old Andy gets the possessed one, the trouble stars. This doll talks, walks, kills, and makes wisecracks. Although sometimes a mechanical device, Chucky is mostly played by Ed Gale. The ending, with Catherine Hicks as the mom battling the seemingly indestructible evil-killer doll, is a lot like the doll segment of Trilogy of Terror. With Chris Sarandon as a Chicago cop and Dinah Manoff. Holland also directed Fright Night. Chucky merchandise was available for real kids to own, which seems even more demented than Freddy Krueger dolls. The producer is the head of Hanna Barbera cartoons(!).

CHILD'S PLAY 2

(MCA, 1990) D: John Lafia S: Dan Mancini P: David Kirschner

MGM/UA passed on making a sequel, so Universal got the rights. Little Alex Winter returns, trying in vain to warn people in Chicago about Chucky, the killer doll. Gerrit Graham and Jenny Agutter, as his foster parents, and Grace Zabriske all show up, just to be killed off. Busy Brad Dourif's voice is used for Chucky's wisecracks again. Scenes of the doll doing horrible things are either scary or pretty hilarious, depending on the mood of the viewer. The best part is a suspenseful end sequence set in an automated factory turning out more Chuckies.

CHILD'S PLAY 3

(MCA, 1991) D: Jack Binder S: Don Mancini, P: David Kirschner, Robert Latham Brown, Laura Moskowitz

Now 16 years old, Andy (Justin Whalin) is at military school, still haunted by what happened before. For some reason, a new Chucky doll tries to possess a tiny, childish black cadet (Jeremy Silvers). With Andrew Robinson as a military barber, and the voice of Brad Dourif. It was partially filmed in Missouri. A pretty good concept went downhill real fast. The ad line for this useless entry was "Don't fuck with the Chuck." In England in 1994, this tape was blamed for the real-life murder of a child by two older children.

CHILLER

(Edde, 1985) D: Wes Craven S/P: J. D. Feigelson

Michael Beck returns after being frozen for 10 years, but he's without a soul and does creepy things. With Beatrice Straight, Paul Sorvino, Laura Johnson, and Jill Schoelen. It was the third TV movie by the director of The Last House on the Left and debuted on CBS. Craven directed episodes of the revived Twilight Zone the same year. FX by Stan Winston.

CHILLERS

(Troma, 1988) D/S/P/E: Daniel Boyd

Five people miss their Ohio Valley bus and spend time at the station telling each other scary tales. It's a very well made, serious horror anthology filmed in South Charleston, West Virginia. A girl has an affair with a guy she met at an indoor pool (they have sex in the shower), but he's really a scary-looking ghost with white eyes and a deep head wound. In my favorite story, a kid tells about a camping trip where the wimpy adult leader turns out to be a scary, crazy killer. A woman has an encounter with a TV newsman/vampire. A young guy can wish dead people listed in newspaper memorials ads back to life. A professor tells about a female student who was possessed by an Indian spirit. The characters all come together in a fun, Dead of Night–inspired, bus-to-hell ending. All the stories have clever plot twists, and the music (some songs sound like Lou Reed) and FX are mostly top-notch. The 33-year-old director, from Martinsburg, West Virginia, previously made documentaries and was a professor of communication at West Virginia State College. Troma picked this up for release.

THE CHILLING (1972) = DEATHDREAM

THE CHILLING

(Hemdale, 1989) D: Deland Nuse D/S/P: Jack A. Sunseri

This time Linda Blair assists a doctor (Troy Donahue) in a cryogenics lab in Kansas City. The intro asks, "Would God approve, or is this Satan's work?" Troy has been stealing organs from the frozen bodies to sell. On Halloween, lightning strikes each corpse separately at midnight, and green cannibal/zombies with glowing eyes start walking. The laughable zombies are wrapped in tin foil. Dan Haggerty is a heroic security guard. Subplots involve Linda's alcoholic boyfriend and a Nam vet holdup man who has sex in a shower with his girlfriend. The acting is unusually bad.

CHIMES AT MIDNIGHT

(1966) D/S/A: Orson Welles P: Emiliano Piedra, Angel Tasca Spain/Switzerland (Campanadas a Medianoche; Falstaff)

Orson Welles is excellent as the large, corrupt Sir John Falstaff, in another of his neglected must-see classics. It's based on parts of five Shakespeare plays and was shot in b/w in Spain. The bloody scenes of senseless battles are some of the best ever shot and were done by second-unit director Jesús Franco. Keith Baxter is Prince Hal, with Sir John Gielgud as King Henry IV, Margaret Rutherford, Jeanne Moreau, and Fernando Rey. The narration is by Sir Ralph Richardson. The complete running time is 119 minutes. Sadly, it was Welles's last completed fictional feature.

CHINA GIRL

(Vestron, 1987) D: Abel Ferrara S: Nicholas St. John P: Michael Nozik

A Romeo and Juliet story set in New York City's Chinatown and Little Italy was a pretty good (if unrealistic) idea. China Girl has gangsters and good fight scenes staged in real streets (not on sets, like Year of the Dragon). Richard Panebianco and Sari Chang star as the young lovers, with James Russo, Russell Wong, James Hong, and David Caruso (later the star of NYPD Blue).

CHINA 9, LIBERTY 37

(VSOM, 1978) D/P: Monte Hellman S: Douglas Venturelli Italy/Spain (Clayton and Catherine)

Fabio Testi stars in this western as Clayton Drumm, a gunman who is saved from hanging if he'll kill a landowner/gunman (Warren Oates) for the railroad. He invites himself in and takes off with Oates' young wife, Catherine (Jenny Agutter) instead. They join a midget at the circus and drink a cocaine remedy. With Helga Line and Sam Peckinpah, who shows up as a journalist. The score is by Pino Donaggio. Hellman's next was Iguana (1988).

CHINA O'BRIEN

(Imperial, 1988) D/S: Robert Clouse P: Fred and Sandra Weintraub

Blond 5'3" Cynthia Rothrock (from Scranton, Pennsylvania) became a high-kicking kung-fu star in Hong Kong before returning home to star in a series of features. Here she's an ex-cop/martial-arts teacher who returns to Utah to help her sheriff father battle drug-dealer gangsters. With Richard Norton as the secondary martial-arts fighter. In better days, Clouse had directed Bruce Lee, Jackie Chan, and Jim Kelly movies. Rothrock also made an instructional tape, Defend Yourself.

CHINA O'BRIEN II

(Imperial, 1989) D: Robert Clouse S: James Hennessy, Craig Clyde P: Fred and Sandra Weintraub

Small-town sheriff China O'Brien (Cynthia Rothrock) and Matt (Richard Norton) are after a drug lord (Harlow Marks) who escaped from prison. It was released directly to video in 1992.

THE CHINA SYNDROME

(RCA/Columbia, 1979) D/S: James Bridges S: T. S. Cook, Mike Gray P/A: Michael Douglas

Incredibly, this influential message thriller (without a music score) opened just before the Three Mile Island "Incident" in Pennsylvania. When the cooling system in a California nuke plant fails, there's a cover-up. A TV news reporter (Jane Fonda) and a camerman (Michael Douglas) convince corporate-executive Jack Lemmon of the danger. Fonda and Lemmon received Oscar nominations. With Scott Brady, James Karen, and Wilford Brimley. By the director of Colossus: The Forbin Project (1979).

CHINATOWN

(Paramount, 1974) D/A: Roman Polanski S: Robert Towne P: Robert Evans

Polanski made only two American features, Rosemary's Baby and Chinatown. Both are classics, but this brilliant, complex, 131-minute thriller set in 30s LA is one of the best films of the 70s. Jack Nicholson, as J. J. Gittes, and Faye Dunaway, as Evelyn Mulray, both were nominated for Oscars. John Huston is very convincing as Noah Cross. With Perry Lopez, John Hillerman, Diane Ladd, Dick Bakalyan, Burt Young, Bruce Glover, and James Hong. Screenwriter Towne, who received an Oscar, had started with Roger Corman movies. He worked (uncredited) on Bonnie and Clyde and The Godfather. Set director Rube Levitt had worked on the TV series The Addams Family. Nicholson himself directed the much-delayed and unpopular sequel, The Two Jakes (1990), also written by Towne.

CHINATOWN AFTER DARK

(Sinister, 1931) D: Staurt Patton S: Betty Burbidge P: Ralph M. Link

Madame Ling Yu (Carmel Myers), a San Francisco Chinatown dragon lady, kills for a dagger with a valuable ruby on its handle. The hero is Rex Rease and the cast inludes Barbara Kent as Lotus and Billy Gilbert as a comical police captain. This rare, short (59-minute), early-talkie mystery was made by Action Pictures.

CHINATOWN MURDERS: MAN AGAINST THE MOB

(Vidmark, 1989) D/P: Robert Pressman S: Michael Petryn

George Peppard stars as an honest 40s LA cop, and Ursula Andress plays a whorehouse owner. The plot of this TV movie concerns waterfront gangs and "white slavery." With Charles Haid, Richard Bradford, Jason Beghe, Joe Tornatore, Julia Nickson, and James Pax.

THE CHINESE CONNECTION

(Fox, 1971) D/S/A: Lo Wei Hong Kong (Fist of Fury)

In 1908, when Shanghai is occupied by the Japanese, Bruce Lee seeks revenge (and uses disguises) after his teacher is killed. He beats a whole school of Japanese fighters and one Russian villain. In a famous scene, Lee kicks apart a sign reading, "No dogs or Chinese allowed." It was Lee's second starring feature and broke records in Hong Kong. Nora Miao costars. The dubbing was done in England. The importers of this film somehow switched titles with his first one and called it Fists of Fury. By the time most Americans saw the film, the screen's first international kung-fu star was dead at 33. New Fists of Fury (1976), a sequel with some of the same actors, starred Jackie Chan.

A CHINESE GHOST STORY

(1987) D: Ching Siu-Tung S: Yuen Kai Chi P: Claudie Chung

Look for this atmospheric medieval-fantasy hit with brilliant camera work. Ning (Leslie Cheung) is a bumbling monk in love with the ghost Sian (Wang Tsu Hsien/Joey Wang). To please her he has to face decapitated heads, sceaming skulls, and an androgynous tree-spirit demon that becomes a giant life-sucking tongue. Tsui Hark was the executive producer. Only the UK version has English subtitles. As with most hits, there were sequels and many ripoffs.

CHINESE GHOST STORY II

(1990) D: Ching Siu-Tung S: Lau Tai-Mok, Kan Keito P: Tsui Hark

Roman Polanski about to slice Jack Nicholson's nose open in Chinatown.

A monk (Leslie Cheung) is jailed, then teams up with a Taoist magician (Jacky Cheung) to battle a rock demon. Joey Wang is a reincarnation of the original ghost. It was the biggest hit in Asia at the time and has even more slapstick and action and FX than the first movie. It opens with scenes from the original.

A CHINESE GHOST STORY III

(1991) D: Ching Siu-Tung S/P: Tsui Hark

The story is the same as in I but takes place 100 years later. This time Tony Leung is the comic young Buddhist monk, with Joey Wang as the female ghost. The tree demon also returns. Jacky Cheung plays a different role. As in all these features, there are a lot of FX.

CHITTY CHITTY BANG BANG

(1968) D/S: Ken Hughes S: Roald Dahl P: Albert Broccoli UK/US

This 145-minute, Super Panavision 70mm, G-rated musical fantasy based on a novel by Ian Fleming was a commercial flop but remains a favorite of some people who saw it as kids. Dick Van Dyke stars, with his flying car, and Sally Ann Howes is Truly Scrumptious. Also with Lionel Jeffries, Gert Frobe, Anna Quayle, and Benny Hill. This UA release was filmed in Britain, France and West Germany.

THE CHOCOLATE WAR

(Forum, 1988) D/S: Keith Gordon P: Jonathan D. Krane

The star of Christine directs for the first time. John Glover plays the dictatorial headmaster of an all-boys Catholic high school with a secret society called the Vigils. This black-comedy/drama, based on Robert Cormier's novel, features Ilan Mitchell-Smith, Bud Cort, Adam Baldwin, and Jenny Wright.

A CHOICE OF WEAPONS

(Paragon, 1975) D: Kevin Connor S: Julian Bond, Steve Rossen P: Fred Weintraub, Paul Heller UK (Trial by Combat; A Dirty Knight's Work)

In a film with a plot much like an Avengers episode, David Birney investigates the murder of his father (Peter Cushing) with the help of a retired police commissioner (John Mills). Cushing had been the leader of the Order of Avalon, modern-day knights in armor, taken over by Donald Pleasence, who has them execute escaped criminals. The cast includes Barbara Hershey, Margaret Leighton, and Brian Glover. Pleasence and Cushing were also in Land of the Minotaur the same year.

CHOKE CANYON

(Media, 1986) D: Chuck Bail S/P: Ovidio G. Assonitis S: Sheila Goldberg, Alfonso Brescia (On Dangerous Ground)

Stephen Collins is a cowboy/physicist fighting a corrupt industrialist dumping nuclear waste. To save the planet, he has to conduct sound/energy experiments in a canyon at the exact time that Haley's comet passes. With Lance Henriksen, Bo Svenson, and Nicholas Pryor. The PG movie, filmed in Utah, has lots of action and great stuntwork but is pretty silly.

CHOPPER CHICKS IN ZOMBIETOWN

(RCA, 1988) D/S: Dan Hoskins P: Maria Snyder (Chrome Hearts)

The plot of this one is female bikers vs. zombies, and it's a good horror spoof. Don Calfa (from Return of the Living Dead) as a mad doctor/funeral director turns townspeople into cannibal zombies with the reluctant assistance of a tiny dwarf (Ed Gale, who could be the Michael Dunn of the 90s). The biker heroines include Catherine Carlen (who's great and also sings), Jamie Rose (from Falcon Crest), and Vicki Frederick. They save a bus full of cynical, blind orphans who help them knock the heads off the attacking zombies and lure them into a church with raw meat. Martha Quinn (from MTV) plays a local woman. Ed French provided the FX. The hip soundtrack features Alex Chilton, Camper Van Beethoven, and the Panther Burns. The great title song at the end is by the DBs. Released by Troma.

THE CHOPPERS

(Fang, 1961) D: Leigh Jason S/P/A: Arch Hall Sr.

Five jive-talking teens ride in a poultry truck and totally strip down cars. All (including Torch and Flip) are introduced by the narrator (Arch Hall) at the beginning. Jack "Cruiser" Bryan (16-year-old Arch Hall Jr., making his debut) the leader, sings the classic "Kongo Joe," "Monkey in My Hat Band," and other songs. The gang even steals hubcaps in broad daylight while a couple makes out in their car at the Chick-a-Dolly Drive-In ("Tacos 15¢"). A cop and an insurance agent are after them, and it all ends with a shootout at the junkyard. Hall also narrated. The gorgeous Marianne Gaba (Playboy's Miss September, 1959) is Liz, the insurance man's helpful assistant. Bruno Ve Sota is the comic-relief stolen-parts dealer Big Moose (he had played a similar role in Hot Car Girl). Arch's last line is "We had a ball!" He returned in Wild Guitar and The Sadist. All of them are highly recommended!

CHOPPING MALL

(Vestron, 1986) D/S: Jim Wynorski S: Steve Mitchell P: Julie Corman (Kilbots; R.O.B.O.T.)

Overage "teens" partying in a shopping mall at night are trapped inside and picked off by three out-of-control robot guards with killer laser beams. The movie features brief in-joke cameos from Roger Corman actors like Dick Miller, Paul Bartel, Mary Woronov, and Mel Welles and topless scenes by the female stars, Kelli Maroney, Barbara Crampton, and Suzanne Slater. With John Terlesky, Gerrit Graham, and Angela Aames (who died in 1988). From Concorde.

THE CHRISTIAN LICORICE STORE

(1969) D: James Frawley S/P: Floyd Mutrix

Beau Bridges is a tennis champ who becomes corrupted in Hollywood. With Maud Adams and Cindy Williams in their first roles, veteran actor Gilbert Roland, Allen Arbus, McLean Stevenson, Barbara Leigh, Talia Shire, Greg Mullavey, Anne Randall, and the late Tim Buckley performing the incredible "Pleasant Street" (the film's title comes from the lyrics). Directors Monte Hellman, James B. Harris, and Theodore J. Flicker also appear. It was the first film by Frawley and was released (with sex scenes cut out) in 1971 by National General. Mutrix also wrote Two-Lane Blacktop.

CHRISTIANE F.

(Media, 1981) D: Ulrich Edel S: Hermann Weigel P: Bernd Eichinger, Hans Weth W. Germany

Corman's New World released this excellent drug movie in the US. It stars Nadja Brunkhorst as the (real) Christiane F., a West Berlin girl who turns to prostitution to support her junk habit. It's pretty grim and long (124 minutes), but since the girl is a Bowie fan, his music (which had been recorded in Berlin) is put to good use, and he appears in some concert footage. The excellent all-Bowie soundtrack is on RCA. One effective scene has a mostly wasted audience in a theater showing Night of the Living Dead. Dubbed and subtitled versions played in American theatres. The same team later made Last Exit to Brooklyn.

CHRISTINE

(RCA, 1983) D: John Carpenter S: Bill Phillips P: Richard Kobritz

Keith Gordon plays Arnie, a misfit student in a small California town whose possessed 1958 red Plymouth Fury, named Christine, plays only old rock hits. The car somehow makes him cool, kills his enemies, and can reassemble itself. It was one of three movies based on Stephen King books that were released in 1983. With John Stockwell, Alexandra Paul, Harry Dean Stanton, Roberts Blossom, Robert Prosky, and Kelly Preston. The special effects and the music of this Columbia release are better than the story. The soundtrack is on Motown.

THE CHRISTINE JORGENSEN STORY

(VSOM, 1970) D: Irving Rapper S: Robert E. Kent P: Edward Small

United Artists released this melodramatic R-rated biography of George Stevenson Jr., who went to Denmark and became Christine Jorgensen (who was also the inspiration for Glen or Glenda). Most viewers agree that star John Hansen seems more like a drag queen than a transsexual. The cast includes young Pamelyn Ferdin (later in The Toolbox Massacre), Stuart Erwin, Joyce Meadows, and Svetlana (later a porno director). It was written by the same man who gave us The Fastest Guitar Alive and Hot Rods to Hell. In 1991 it was part of a clever cable-TV double bill with Homicidal.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL

(MGM, 1938) D: Edwin L Marin S: Hugo Butler P: Joseph L. Mankiewicz

Dickens' famous tale had been filmed many times, but this was the first American sound version. Reginald Owen (a one-time Sherlock Holmes) stars as Scrooge, with Leo G. Carroll as Marley's ghost, Ann Rutherford as the ghost of Christmas present, Gene Lockhart as Bob Cratchit, Kathleen Lockhart as Mrs. Cratchit, and their real-life daughter June as their daughter. The MGM release (which was rereleased every Christmas for years) is only 69 minutes long. It was later colorized.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL

(United, 1951) D/P: Brian Desmond-Hurst S: Noel Langley UK (Scrooge)

Nearly everyone agrees that this is the best, darkest version of the famous story. Alastair Sim stars as Scrooge, with George Cole as young Scrooge, Michael Hordern as Marley's ghost, Mervyn Johns as Bob Cratchit, Hermione Baddeley as Mrs. Cratchit, Kathleen Harrison, Jack Warner, Miles Malleson, Ernest Thesiger, Peter Bull (who also narrates), and Patrick Macnee as young Marley. United Artists released it in the US. It was later colorized.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL

(1984) D: Clive Donner S: Roger Hirson P: William Storke, Alfred Kelman UK

George C. Scott stars as Scrooge in this atmospheric version of the Dickens classic. The British cast includes Frank Finlay as Marley's ghost, David Warner and Susannah York as the Cratchits, Angela Pleasence as the ghost of Christmas past, Edward Woodward as the ghost of Christmas present, Michael Carter as the ghost of Christmas future, and Lucy Gutteridge. It debuted on CBS-TV. An American Christmas Carol (1979) is an updated version from ABC-TV starring Henry Winkler. A British musical version is called Scrooge (1970).

CHRISTMAS EVIL

(Genesis, 1980) D/S: Lewis Jackson P: Burt Kleiner, Peter Kameron (You Better Watch Out; Terror In Toyland)

A toy-factory asembly-line boss (Brandon Maggart) thinks he is Santa. He's been obsessed with Christmas and Christmas things since he saw his mom having sex with "Santa" as a kid. The madman even keeps lists of the neighbor kids who are naughty and nice, and he kills while dressed as Santa, humming "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town." It's very cheap but better than the later Silent Night, Deadly Night. A police lineup of Santas is one memorable image. It was rereleased in 1983.

A CHRISTMAS STORY

(MGM, 1983) D/S/P: Bob Clark S: Leigh Brown, Jean Sheperd P: Rene Dupont Canada

Even if you hate Christmas movies (and with a few exceptions, you should) this one, based on part of Jean Shepherd's In God We Trust, All Others Pay Cash, (and narrated by the author) is a must. It's irreverent, funny, rude, and nostalgic. Ralphie (Peter Billingsley), growing up in an American city in the 40s (parts were filmed in Cleveland), wants a Red Ryder BB gun for Christmas. All the confusing and scary events are seen through his eyes, including a nightmarelike visit to a department-store Santa (Jeff Gillen). Another memorable scene shows a schoolkid whose tongue gets stuck on a frozen pole. Darren McGavin is great as "the old man," and Melinda Dillon is the mother. Clark made Porky's II the same year, but don't let that stop you.

CHROME AND HOT LEATHER

(Orion, 1971) D: Lee Frost S: Michael Allen Haynes, David Neibel, Don Tair P: Wes Bishop

Tony Young stars as a Green Beret out to get the bikers who killed his fiancé. He gets help from his Special Services friends, including Motown great Marvin Gaye (in his first and last acting role) as a soldier with an ascot who rides a motorcycle. Biker-movie veterans William Smith and Peter Brown costar (both had been in the Laredo TV series). With screenwriter Haynes

(a stuntman who later became the Marlboro Man) and Larry Bishop (Joey's son). And look for Cheryl Ladd, Dan Haggerty, and Erik Estrada. The AIP release was rated PG.

CHROME HEARTS: See C. C. AND COMPANY

CHROME SOLDIERS

(Paramount, 1992) D: Thomas J. Wright
S: Nick Ranall P: Derek Kavanaugh

In a clichéd 70s plot, three Nam-vet buddies (the late Ray Sharkey, Yaphet Kotto, and Nicholas Guest) join Desert Storm vet Gary Busey in small-town Oregon to avenge the murder of his brother. They all ride motorcycles (with helmets) and uncover a deadly marijuana-business plot. William Atherton is the sheriff. The movie debuted on the USA Network.

CHUCK BERRY: HAIL! HAIL! ROCK 'N' ROLL

(MCA, 1987) D: Taylor Hackford P: Stephanie Bennett

A special St. Louis Fox Theater concert in 1986 (just before Berry's 60th birthday) is shown in this two-hour film, along with interviews (Little Richard, Bo Diddley, Jerry Lee Lewis, Roy Orbison, the Everly Brothers) and backstage problems. The excellent concert, produced by Keith Richards, features a band led by Richards (who was trying to pay back the difficult Berry for ripping off all his guitar licks) and Etta James, Eric Clapton, Robert Cray, Linda Rondstadt, and Julian Lennon. Universal released the film and the soundtrack album. Chuck Berry also hosts Born To Rock (Music Media, 1984), a condensed version of The TAMI Show and The Big TNT Show.

CHUCK'S CHOICE CUTS

(Admit One) Canada

If you can find a copy of this ahead-of-its-time tape, you'll be glad. Chuck was an early-80s Toronto cable-TV host who pretended to be a security guard playing parts of the station's vast collection of trash-culture tapes after hours. This compilation features some amazing 60s juke-box videos, choice trailers, and film scenes.

C.H.U.D.

(Media, 1984) D: Douglas Cheek
S: Parnell Hall P: Andrew Bonhime

Homeless people living in the sewers of New York City have become monsters (Cannibalistic Humanoid Underground Dwellers) because of toxic waste. This attempt to do something a bit different was shot on location, but it doesn't work and has below-par FX (by Ed French and John Gaglione). John Heard stars as a photographer. Daniel Stern overacts as a minister running a soup kitchen. With Laurie Mattos and Kim Greist (Brazil). New World (and Tony Randall) messed with it a lot by adding humorous narration and cutting out nearly 20 minutes, including a massacre in a diner that was later restored in the TV version. John Goodman is in the TV version only.

C.H.U.D. II: BUD THE CHUD

(Vestron, 1989) D: David Irving
S: Ed Naha P: Jonathan Krane

This teen-zombie comedy takes place on Halloween and has no relation to the first film at all. Students steal the corpse of zombie-cannibal Bud (Gerrit Graham), created by the army. More zombies, created by bites, invade a small town and a Halloween party. The young heroes somehow manage to freeze the zombies in a swimming pool. Many guest stars show up briefly, and most become zombies too. With Robert Vaughn, Tricia Leigh Fisher, Bianca Jagger, June Lockhart, Norman Fell, Rich Hall, Jack Riley, Clive Revill, Priscilla Pointer (the director's mother), Rich Hall, Larry Linville, and Robert Englund.

THE CHURCH

(Southgate, 1988) D: Michele Soavi S/P: Dario Argento S: Franco Ferrini P: Mario and Vittorio Cecchi Gori Italy (La Chiesa)

Originally planned as Demons III, this film starts with an interesting historical prologue showing Teutonic knights slaughtering "witches" in a pit sealed with a big cross, where a huge Gothic cathedral will later stand. As in the Demons movies, most of the action takes place in one haunted location where people are trapped and killed, but Church is a lot slower, more serious, and (at 102 minutes) maybe too long. The church, filled with tourists, priests, and a fashion-magazine camera crew, seals itself (as in Land of the Pharoahs). Argento's daughter Asia stars as Lotte, the caretaker's young daughter, the only character who knows how to escape. The cast also includes John Richardson. The dead rise again, a demon is seen briefly (in a Rosemary's Baby–inspired scene), and other things that don't necessarily make any sense happen, but it all looks impressive. Wish we could have seen it in a theater. The cinematography, art direction, and music (by Keith Emerson and Goblin, with themes written by Philip Glass) are all typically excellent. Filmed in Rome, Hamburg and Budapest, it's available in an unrated and a slightly edited R-rated letterboxed version. Argento and 33-year-old Soavi made The Devil's Daughter next.

CIA: CODE NAME ALEXA

(PM, 1992) S/P: Joseph Merhi P: Richard Pepin

Lorenzo Lamas stars as a CIA agent who works out of a sewage plant where kung-fu teams are trained. His real-life wife, Kathleen Kinmont, plays a kickboxing international terrorist (called "a Rambo bitch") who becomes his lover and helps stop her psycho boss (Alex Cord) from achieving world conquest. O. J. Simpson plays an LA police detective, which gave this movie a rental boost in 1994.

CIA II: TARGET ALEXA

(PM, 1994) D/A: Lorenzo Lamas
P: Richard Pepin, Joseph Merhi

Lamas and Kinmont team up to stop John Savage from selling a nuclear guidance system to North Korea. The two stars were divorced in 1994, but continued to act together. With Pamela Dixon and John Ryan. Kinmont returned in C.I.A. 3: Nation Under Siege (1994).

CINDERELLA

(Vestron, 1977) D: Michael Pataki
S: Frank Ray Perill P: Charles Band

This X-rated sex/musical comedy at least is better than most similar 70s movies. Cheryl "Rainbeaux" Smith stars, with Sy Richardson as the "fairy" godmother, Kirk Scott, Mariwin Roberts, and Linda Gildersleeve. The video is (or was) available in R or unrated versions. Pataki, usually an actor, had directed Mansion of the Doomed (1975). Al Adamson's awful Cinderella 2000 was released the same year.

CINDY AND DONNA

(1970) D/P: Robert J. Anderson
S: Barry Clark P: Terry Anderson

Crown International didn't usually release X-rated movies, but this one received the dreaded rating. Debbie Osborne and Nancy Ison star as suburban teenage half-sisters who experience sex, drugs, and more sex.

CINEMACABRE TV TRAILERS

(Cinemacabre)

Since we all spent more time watching TV than sitting in theaters, these two tapes bring back more memories than theatrical-trailer tapes. They cram in dozens of collectible spots for sci-fi and horror movies, always different from the ones seen in theaters and lasting from 20 to 60 seconds. Many have silent endings, so that the local-station voice-over could tell you where the movie was playing. Some are reissues (especially kid-appeal fantasy movies from MGM). The all-b/w tape (50s/60s) runs 84 minutes It features lots of Hammer, Toho, AIP, Corman, Castle, and K. Gordon Murray titles. "See Them!" and "Psycho is back!" (rated M) are two great campaigns. The all-color tape (some 60s, lots of 70s) runs 110 minutes. It includes some great Bava, Argento, Harryhausen, and Hitchcock hits, Amicus and Hammer double bills, and more major-studio releases than the b/w tape. With Barbarella, Spirits of the Dead, The Ghost and Mr. Chicken, Chamber of Horrors, Deranged, and Flesh Gordon and Witchcraft '70 (two X-rated features!).

CIRCLE OF FEAR

(1989) D: Clark Henderson S: Frederic Bailey P: Isabel Sumayo Philippines

Patrick Dollaghan (imitating Michael Douglas) stars as a Nam vet who searches for his kidnapped daughter and finds out that she's been sold as a sex slave in Manila. With Wesley Pfenning and Vernon Wells. A Concorde release.

CIRCUITRY MAN

(RCA, 1990) D/S: Steven Lovy S: Robert Lovy P: Steven Reich, John Schouweiler

In the near future, a tough bodyguard turned clothing designer named Lori (Dana Wheeler-Nicholson) ends up on the run with Danner (Jim Meltzer), a handsome, suicidal pleasure-droid with a ponytail. They attempt to drive from LA to New York in a 1964 Galaxy, mostly through an underground-garage tunnel. They're pursued by or betrayed by the lurking, bald Plughead (Vernon Wells, from Road Warrior, who is excellent); Juice (Lu Leonard), a big, ugly female gangster; Yo-Yo, a tough blonde with two goons; a pair of bumbling cops; Leech (Dennis Christopher), a filthy mechanic from New Jersey; and Japanese biker bandits. Topside, they need oxygen tubes and visit the Last Gasp Cafe, an air stop. Sure, some of this sounds silly or derivative, but Circuitry Man is a clever, sometimes funny, well-made science-fiction adventure (and love story). The cinematography, acting, and special effects are all top-notch, the plot moves are not predictable, and the tape is letterboxed. It's a lot more fun than Hardware, for instance, or Total Recall. The songs are sung by Deborah Holland. The executive producer was Miles Copeland (IRS Records), who at least did something worthwhile with all that Police money.

CIRCUITRY MAN II

(Columbia, 1994) D/S: Steve Lovy S: Robert Lovy P: Stephen Reich

The leads return in an almost plotless, sometimes funny comedy sequel from I. R. S. An FBI agent (Deborah Shelton, who has a topless scene) forces Danner the droid (Jim Melzler, who has flashbacks) to go with her to a desert work camp to stop Plughead (Vernon Wells) from more killing. Leech (Dennis Christopher) and an idiot mute (Nicholas Worth) escape together. With a pair of stupid bounty hunters, Buck Flower as a guard, Judy Tenuta, and Traci Lords (as a scientist named Norma). Worth gets the last laugh.

CISCO PIKE

(1972) D/S: Bill L. Norton P: Gerald Ayers

Singer Kris Kristofferson, in his first acting role, stars as a rocker forced to deal heroin by a crooked cop (Gene Hackman). Karen Black costars, with Harry Dean Stanton, Allen Arbus, Roscoe Lee Browne, Antonio Fargas, and Severn Darden. In one scene Kristofferson goes to bed with Joy Bang and Viva. The Sir Douglas Quintet and Sonny Terry are heard on the soundtrack.

CITIZENS BAND

(Paramount, 1977) D: Jonathan Demme S: Paul Brickman P: Shep Fields (Handle with Care)

Spider (Paul Le Mat), runs a southwestern CB shop and emergency-rescue service. Many subplots and interesting characters helped make this PG comedy a critical favorite. With Candy Clark, Marcia Rodd, Ann Wedgeworth, Bruce McGill, Demme regular Charles Napier (funny as "the Chrome Angel"), Roberts Blossom, and Ed Begley Jr. Paramount cut, retitled, and rereleased it in an attempt to reach a larger audience. Songs by Richie Havens, Joe Cocker, and others are heard.

CITIZEN TANYA

(Provisional, 198?) D/S/P: Raymond Pettibon D/A: Dave Markey

This seemingly endless (it's 87 minutes) talk-filled tape stars Shannon Smith as Patty Hearst. She's kidnapped and becomes revolutionized. Markey (Desperate Teenage Love Dolls) also directed 1991—The Year Punk Broke.

Vernon Wells as Plughead in Circuitry Man.

CITIZEN X

(HBO, 1995) D/S: Chris Gerolmo

With all the movies about real and fictional serial killers, none could top the real story of Chikatilo (Jeffrey DeMunn) the former schoolteacher who killed and mutilated a record number (52) of young boys and girls in the Soviet Union. This made-for-cable movie shows how serious government corruption and backward police procedures made it possible for him to keep on killing for over eight years. It's one of the most effective looks at life during the final years of the USSR. Stephen Rea stars as the forensic expert who persists in his nearly impossible job to find the killer. With Donald Sutherland as his military superior, Max Von Sydow as a psychiatrist, Radu Amzulrescu, John Wood and Joss Ackland. It was based on the book The Killer Department by Robert Cullen and was shot in Hungary.

CITY HUNTER

(1993) D: Wong Ching Hong Kong

Jackie Chan stars as womanizing P.I. Mung Bo, hired by a Japanese tycoon to find his daughter (Kumiko Goto). Characters magically appear in a video game. This slapstick comedy/action movie with FX and in-jokes was based on Japanese comics (and the Streetfighter II video game). Joey Wang costars, with Richard Norton and Gary Daniels as terrorists on a cruise ship. A scene from Game of Death is used. It was shot in Hong Kong and Japan.

CITY IN FEAR (1972): See A PLACE CALLED TODAY

CITY IN FEAR

(Vestron, 1980) D: "Allan Smithee"/Jud Taylor S: Albert Ruben P: Ronald Lyon (Panic on Page One)

David Janssen (in his last role) stars as an alcoholic columnist. The story is loosely based on the "Son of Sam" murders, and Mickey Rourke is the serial killer. With Robert Vaughn as the newspaper publisher, Susan Sullivan, William Prince, Perry King, William Daniels, and M. Emmet Walsh. It debuted on NBC-TV.

CITY LIMITS

(Vestron, 1984) D: Aaron Lipstadt S: Don Opper P: Rupert Harvey, Barry Opper

A post-plague city in the year 2003 is the scene of rival kid-biker-gang battles after most adults have died. John Stockwell stars, with Kim Cattrall, Rae Dawn Chong as Yogi, James Earl Jones (who also narrates), Robby Benson, producer Don Opper, and John Diehl. The film (from the makers of Android) was later ridiculed on Mystery Science Theater 3000.

CITY OF BLOOD

(Magnum, 1983) D/S: Darrell Roodt P: Anant Singh S. Africa

An anti-apartheid medical examiner investigates the ceremonial killings of white prostitutes. (Their hands and feet are chopped off and the bodies burned.) "Spirit warriors" in the city are blamed. It's a confused mixture of horror and politics. With Ken Gampu (later in The Gods Must Be Crazy).

CITY OF FEAR

(1965) D: Peter Bezencenet S/P: Harry Alan Towers P: Sandy Howard, Arthur Steloff UK

Paul Maxwell stars as a Canadian reporter, in this Cold War drama. He falls for Terry Moore in Budapest. Marisa Mell is a spy. With Pinkas Braun and Albert Lieven. It was filmed in Austria and Hungary. Moore's other 60s spy movie was A Man Called Dagger (1966)

CITY OF SHADOWS

(Starmaker, 1986) D/P: David Mitchell S/P: Damian Lee P/A: John P. Ryan

Paul Coufos and John P. Ryan are rival brothers in the near future. Ryan is a rebel cop, and Coufos is a maniac who kidnaps and kills young boys. New World released this offbeat movie, filmed in Canada. The soundtrack is by Tangerine Dream.

CITY OF THE WALKING DEAD

(Continental, 1980) D: Umberto Lenzi
S: Piero Regnoli, Antonio Corti, Luis María Delgado
P: Diego Alchimede, Luis Mendez Italy/Spain
(Incubo sulla Citta Contaminata; Nightmare City)

Mexican star Hugo Stiglitz is a reporter in this story of a nuclear spill that causes people to become fast-moving, bloodsucking zombies carrying knives and axes. Some of them arrive in an airplane and attack a disco and an amusement park. Guest star Mel Ferrer as a general ("Aim for the brain!") was featured in newspapers ads as "star of Falcon Crest!" With Francisco Rabal and Laura Trotter. The zombies aren't very impressive-looking.

CLAIRVOYANT: See THE KILLING HOUR

THE CLAN OF THE CAVE BEAR

(Fox, 1986) D: Michael Chapman
S: John Sayles P: Gerald I. Isenberg

Daryl Hannah is Ayla, an "ugly" outcast orphan who becomes a warrior in this flop based on the best-selling novels by Jean M. Auel. Neanderthals think the Cro-Magnon girl is an evil spirit. With Pamela Reed, James Remar, and Nicole Eggert. There are subtitles for the made-up language. It was filmed in Canada by Chapman, a cinematographer. Mark Damon was the executive producer.

CLARENCE

(Republic, 1990) D: Eric Till S: Lorne Cameron, David Hoselton P: Seaton McLean

Robert Carradine is Clarence the angel (from It's a Wonderful Life) in this comic fantasy. He helps a widow (Kate Trotter) and her kids. It was filmed in Toronto and debuted on the Family Channel.

CLASS

(Vestron, 1983) D: Lewis John Carlino S: Jim Kouf, David Greenwalt P: Martin Ransohoff

In one of the many older-woman/teenage-boy sex comedies of the 80s, wealthy but bored Jaqueline Bisset seduces innocent young Andew McCarthy (in his film debut), and his roommate, her son (Rob Lowe), finds out. AT&T spokesman Cliff Robertson is her husband. With John Cusack, Lolita Davidovich, Casey Siemaszko, Virginia Madsen (making her debut), and Stuart Margolin. It was released by Orion (formerly AIP).

CLASS OF 1999

(Vestron, 1988) D/P: Mark L. Lester
S: C. Courtney Joyner

Lester made this worthy follow-up to his own Class of 1984 (1981). Kennedy High School in Seattle of the future is the setting, and the plot is inspired by Robocop. The school is heavily armed and guarded, and principal Malcolm McDowell brings in an outside firm with supereffective android teachers. Stacy Keach acts pretty strange as an albino. Pam Grier, John P. Ryan, and Patrick Kilpatrick are all good as the android teachers who go out of control. Some of the FX and action sequences are excellent. Bradley Gregg stars, with Traci Lind as the principal's daughter. With Joshua Miller (Near Dark), Darren E. Burrows, and Jill Gatsby. R and unrated versions are available.

CLASS OF 1999 II

(Vidmark, 1994) D: Spiro Razatos
S: Mark Sevi P: Russell Markowitz

Sasha Mitchell is pretty bizarre as the last of the kickboxing "battle-droids," working as an emotionless substitute teacher who beats, blows up, and kills delinquent students (and is a voyeur). Unlike Class of 1984 and Class of 1999 (both very good action-packed exploitation movies) this boring sequel takes place almost entirely in the woods and resembles a cheap war movie. Nick Cassavetes and Caitlin West, as teachers, are featured in a sex scene. Non-star scenes from Class of 1999 are reused to fill up time and save more money.

THE CLASS OF MISS MacMICHAEL

(1978) D: Silvio Narizzano S/P: Judd Bernard UK/US

Glenda Jackson stars in this comic update of The Blackboard Jungle. With Oliver Reed, Michael Murphy, Rosalind Cash, and Phil Daniels (Quadrophenia). By the director of Why Shoot the Teacher? (1977).

CLASS OF NUKE 'EM HIGH

(Media, 1986) D/S: "Samuel Weil"/Richard W. Haines D/S/P: Lloyd Kaufman S: Mark Rudnitsky, Stuart Strutin P: Michael Herz

Radioactive "atomic high" pot causes a nice teen couple to give birth to a mutant creature who helps fight the ridiculous Cretins gang. R. I. Ryan is in this typically stupid Troma movie, set in New Jersey. By the director of Splatter University. Even their Toxic High movies are better, but two sequels followed anyway.

CLASS OF NUKE 'EM HIGH II: SUBHUMAN MELTDOWN

(Media, 1991) D/S: Eric Louzil S/P: Lloyd Kaufman S: Carl Morano, Marcus Roling, Jeffrey W. Sass, Matt Unger P: Michael Herz

Brick Bronsky, a musclebound blond, stars as a reporter who narrates this tale of how much things have mutated at school, in another overkill Troma comedy. The mad Professor Holt (Lisa Gaye with a 2-foot-high beehive hairdo) creates topless drone workers with mouths in their belly buttons and some other animated mutants. An animated giant Godzilla/squirrel stomps some model buildings. With lots of girls in bikinis, scenes from the first movie (including the Smithereens), and porno stars Sharon Mitchell and Trinity Loren. Class Of Nuke 'Em High, Part III: The Good, The Bad, and the Subhuman (1991) was made at the same time. Both had Japanese investors (who probably have deep regrets).

CLASS REUNION

(Private Screenings, 1970) D/P: "A. C. Stevens"/Stephen Apostoloff S: Ed Wood Jr.

Wood had written Orgy of the Dead for Stevens back in 1965 and went on to write several more 70s adult-only soft-core features for him. Wood rarely received any credit for these films. Some say Stevens didn't even pay him. By then porno films were becoming common, so Stevens no longer had to make the men leave their boxer shorts on during sex scenes, but he stopped just short of making hard-core porno. Stevens has been quoted as saying, "I don't make smoot!" Class Reunion has a surprising gay sex scene that must have sent typical adult-movie theater goers running for the exit doors. It also features tinted b/w footage from Stevens' College Girls. At one point a woman called Fluff says to a guy called Wimpy, "I'm always ready, willing, and I hate to use the word 'able,' but for lack of a better word, able." The press book said: "Class Reunion is a strong film in the tradition of sex and what sex stands for, and if the antiquated missionary position is impossible for some, then they must seek out and investigate other ways. Class Reunion investigates most of those other ways. Some will love this story while others turn purple, but all will leave the theater with something new in their minds . . . and there is little doubt but what they have learned something about their own welfare." With Terry Johnson, Foreman Shane, and Marsha Jordan, plus Rick Lutz and the late Rene Bond (a real-life couple who were also in Please Don't Eat My Mother and many nudie and porno movies).

CLASS REUNION MASSACRE = THE REDEEMER

CLAWS

(Video Gems, 1977) D: Richard Banslach, Robert E. Pierson S/P: Chuck D. Keen

A "spirit" bear kills people in a national park, in this Jaws-inspired horror movie made after the similar Grizzly (1976). With Jason Evers, Ken Gampu, Myron Healy, veteran actor Leon Ames, and Anthony Caruso. It was filmed in Alaska.

CLAY PIGEON

(VCL, 1971) D/P/A: Tom Stern, Lane Slate S: Ronald Buck, Buddy Ruskin, Jack Gross (Trip to Kill)

Stern stars as a decorated Nam vet who is set up by Telly Savalas and the FBI and becomes an LA narc disguised as a hippie. Other Nam vets are involved in the drug-dealing and violence. It's supposedly based on a true story. With Marlene Clark, Robert Vaughn, Burgess Meredith, Ivan Dixon, Jeff Corey, John Marley, and Peter Lawford. It features music by Arlo Guthrie, Kris Kristofferson, and others. From MGM.

CLEAN AND SOBER

(Warner, 1988) D: Glen Gordon Caron S: Tod Carroll P: Tony Ganz, Debra Blum, Jay Daniel

Michael Keaton is a fast-talking real-estate salesman, in debt and with a drinking and cocaine problem, who goes to a drug clinic to avoid embezzlement (and possibly murder) charges. He falls for Kathy Baker there and really does straighten out. With Morgan Freeman, M. Emmet Walsh, Claudia Christian, Brian Benben, Harley Jane Kozak, and Luca Bercovici (Ghoulies). The film showed the serious side of Keaton. The next year he played the title role in Batman (and had a publicized affair with porno star Rachel Ryan, who played a corpse). This was one of many late 80s horrors-of-coke movies. Ron Howard was the executive producer.

CLEAN, SHAVEN

(Fox Lorber, 1993) D/S/P: Lodge H. Kerrigan

This film fest award-winning indy feature is about a possible child serial killer (Peter Green, later in Pulp Fiction). The schizophrenic man hears voices and is searching for his lost daughter. Some women fainted when this was screened at the Sundance Film Festival. It was shot on an island off New Brunswick and on Long Island. The director is from Brooklyn.

CLEAR AND PRESENT DANGER

(Paramount, 1994) D: Philip Noyce S: John Milius, Donald Stewart, Steven Zaillian P: Mace Neufeld, Robert G. Rehme

Harrison Ford returns as Jack Ryan in the sequel to Patriot Games. Willem Dafoe costars as a mercenary in Colombia. Anne Archer is back, and the cast also includes Harris Yulin, Miguel Sandoval as a drug lord, and James Earl Jones. Donald Moffat is a Bush-like president. Also with Henry Czerny, Ann Magnusun, Dean Jones, Thora Birch, and Hope Lange. This major action/adventure movie was shot in Mexico.

THE CLEARING

(1991) D/S/P: Vladimir Alenikov USSR

In the 8th century, a woman is killed during a pagan ritual. Some blame a local medicine woman, but the village chieftain (George Segal!) thinks it's the work of a werewolf. With nightmare sequences, blood, and nudity. Available on Canadian video.

CLEO/LEO

(Starmaker, 1985) D/S/P/E: Chuck Vincent

A sexist businessman drowns and is reincarnated as a woman (Jane Hamilton/Veronica Hart). The mostly porno-star cast of this New World release includes Ginger Lynn Allen, Ruth Collins, Jennifer DeLora, and Kimberly Taylor (from Penthouse). Hart was in more than 20 films by the late Vincent. For the same plot, check out 1991's Switch, starring Ellen Barkin and Jimmy Smits.

CLEOPATRA JONES

(Warner, 1973) D: Jack Starrett S: Max Julien, Sheldon Keller P: William Tennant

The 6'2" Tamara Dobson stars as the kung-fu-fighting CIA narcotics agent, in this PG-rated, comic-book-style black action-movie hit. She drives a customized black Corvette and orders the napalming of Turkish opium fields. Shelley Winters, as a butch LA gang leader/drug dealer called Mommy, plants dope in a halfway house. Winters wears black leather and overacts even more than usual. With Antonio Fargas as drug dealer Doodlebug, Bernie Casey, Brenda Sykes, Esther Rolle, Albert Popwell, Paul Koslo, and John Alderman. The popular Warners soundtrack by J. J. Johnson features Joe Simon, Millie Jackson, and jazz. Writer Julien (who also co-produced) starred in The Mack the same year. Dobson returned in a sequel.

Tamara Dobson stars in Cleopatra Jones.

CLEOPATRA JONES AND THE CASINO OF GOLD

(Warner, 1975) D: Chuck Bail S/P: William Tennant US/Hong Kong

Tamara Dobson returns, this time in Hong Kong and with even more silver eye shadow. Stella Stevens is Bianco Jovan, the drug-dealing dragon lady of Macao. With Albert Popwell, Norman Fell, and Asian actress Tanny as Cleopatra's private-eye friend Mi Ling, who has motorcycle-riding helpers. A Run Run Shaw coproduction.

CLIFFHANGER

(Columbia, 1993) D/P: Renny Harlin S: Michael France P: Alan Marshall

After several comedy flops, Stallone plays a Rocky Mountain rescue expert who goes after fugitive criminals who have robbed a Treasury Department jet and survived a plane crash. Much of the high-up action takes place during a storm. John Lithgow is a psychotic British thief, and Michael Rooker (Henry) is Sly's former buddy on the rescue team. With Janine Turner (from the TV series Northern Exposure) as his helicopter pilot girlfriend, Ralph Waite, Paul Winfield, and Rex Linn. The Tri Star release, set in Colorado but shot in the Italian Alps, reportedly cost $65 million and was made by the director of Die Hard II. The score is by Trevor Jones. K2 and Herzog's Scream of Stone were other early-90s mountain-peril features.

CLOAK AND DAGGER

(Republic, 1946) D: Fritz Lang S: Albert Maltz, Ring Lardner Jr. P: Milton Sperling

Lang's first post-WWII film is about the last days of the war and the development of the atomic bomb. A professor (Gary Copper) becomes a secret OSS agent. He has to rescue a female scientist from Nazis in Switzerland, then another nuclear scientist (Vladimir Sokoloff) in Italy. With Lilli Palmer, Robert Alda, Dan Seymour, and Marc Lawrence. Warner Brothers removed some of the anti-bomb dialogue before releasing the film. In 1947, Maltz and Lardner were blacklisted and jailed.

CLOAK AND DAGGER

(MCA, 1984) D: Richard Franklin S: Tom Holland P: Alan Carr

Nobody believes Henry Thomas (after E.T.) when he witnesses an espionage-related murder. Dabney Coleman plays both his father and a make-believe hero, Jack Flack. It was (loosely) based on "The Boy Who Cried Murder," by Cornell Woolrich (first filmed as The Window in 1949). With Michael Murphy, John McIntire, Jeanette Nolan, Robey, and Christine Nigra. Holland wrote Fright Night, Class of '84, and others. From Universal.

THE CLONING OF JOANNA MAY

(1992) D: Philippe Saville S: Ted Whitehead P: Gub Neal UK

In the near future, an industrialist (Brian Cox) has his wife's lovers murdered. She (Patricia Hodge) leaves, so he uses a DNA sample to have her cloned. This black comedy/fantasy about the war of the sexes is based on a story by Fay Weldon (as was She Devil). With Billie Whitelaw and Siri Neal. It debuted on the Arts and Entertainment Network.

CLOSET LAND

(Fox, 1991) D/S: Radha Bharadwaj P: Brian Grazer, Ron Howard

In the near future, an author of children's books (Madeleine Stowe) is interrogated by a representative of a totalitarian government (Alan Rickman). This is basically a two-character play.

CLOUDBURST

(1950) D/S: Francis Searle S: Leo Marks P: Anthony Hinds UK

Robert Preston stars as a WWII vet, working for the British Foreign Office, who must hunt for his wife's killer. With Elizabeth Sellars, Harold Lang, and Noel Howlett. This b/w Hammer film was released in the US by United Artists.

CLOUD DANCER

(Prism, 1978) D/P: Barry Brown S: William Goodheart

David Carradine and Joseph Bottoms (who has a drug problem) are competing daredevil flyers in this PG-rated drama with lots of good stunt work. Jennifer O'Neill has Carradine's baby. With Colleen Camp, Albert Salmi as the simple-minded brother, Salome Jens, Nina Van Pallandt, and Hoyt Axton.

CLOUDS OVER ISRAEL

(1962) D: Ivan Lengyel S: Moshe Hadar P: Mati Raz Israel (Sinaia)

Hemisphere was known for releasing horror and action movies, often from the Philippines. This film, set during the 1956 Arab-Israeli war, was different. A young pilot (Yiftah Spector) has to bail out of his plane in Egypt, where he helps an injured Bedouin woman who is in shock. In 1965 Hemisphere released this film and the more typical Psycho a Go-Go and Blood Creature.

CLOWNHOUSE

(RCA, 1988) D/S/P: Victor Salva P: Michael Danty, Robin Mortarotti

Here's proof that clowns are scary. Just before Halloween, three kid brothers, alone in a big, old, isolated house, have to defend themselves against three escaped mental patients. The relentless killers are dressed as Cheezo, Bippo, and Dippo, the traveling circus clowns they murdered. This serious, atmospheric, and old fashioned horror movie takes its time introducing the very different and believable brothers and has a great suspenseful score by Michael Becker, a scary one-eyed fortune teller and (mostly offscreen) murders. I don't really know why it's rated R, but Clown House is a good one for young horror fans or older ones who aren't looking for sex and blood. The executive in charge of production was Roman Coppola, post production was done at the Zoetrope studios, a poster for The Outsiders is on a wall, and the brothers watch Dementia 13 on TV!

THE CLOWN MURDERS

(TWE, 1975) D/S: Martyn Burke P: Christopher Dalton Canada

A fake kidnapping takes place at a rich people's Halloween party. Stephen Young stars, with Al Waxman and Susan Keller. A pre-SCTV John Candy plays Ollie, which is the only reason this tape was released in the US.

THE CLUB

(Image, 1993) D: Brenton Spencer S: Robert C. Cooper P: Ilana Frank Canada

The Devil is released at a senior prom held in an old house, and after midnight only five kids are left trapped inside. Joel Wyner (the demon) replaced Corey Haim after several days of shooting, which only partially explains why this movie is so senseless. It's full of false scares, and for the cosmic ending, the film goes backwards at fast speed. Wyner does an imitation of Jack Nicholson in The Witches of Eastwick. With Kim Coates as a rapist guidance counselor who beats a kid to death in the men's room, blond Andrea Roth (also in The Psychic), and Kelly Taylor. There's one morphing scene in a tape that copies the Prom Night series (also from Canada).

CLUB DEAD = TERROR AT RED WOLF INN

CLUB EXTINCTION

(Prism, 1989) D: Claude Chabrol S: Solace Mitchell P: Ingrid Windisch W. Germany/France/Italy (Dr. M)

Chabrol made this ill-conceived coproduction, filmed in English. It was "inspired" by Fritz Lang's 1922 silent Dr. Mabuse, der Spieler but was instantly dated when the Berlin Wall came down. Alan Bates stars as Dr. Marssfeldt, whose subliminal messages on his 21st-century West Berlin TV station cause suicides. Jennifer Beals, who works for him, is on billboards and screens everywhere telling people that it's "time to go." H-bomb footage is screened in a disco, and there's a sinister New Age retreat in the desert. Hanns Zischler (Kings of the Road) is the unshaven police lieutenant who investigates. With William Berger, Wolfgang Preiss (who played Mabuse in more enjoyable 60s movies), and Andrew McCarthy in a bit part. Mekong Delta performs a song.

CLUB FED

(Prism, 1990) D: Nathaniel Christian S: Jordan Rush P: Norman Stevens

Judy Landers, as a gangster's girl, is framed and sent to a minimum-security prison, in this PG-13 in-joke-filled comedy. With Burt Young as the warden, Karen Black as an inmate, Joseph Campanella as an FBI agent, Mary Woronov, Lyle Alzado, and Wally George. Both Allen Garfield and Sherman Hemsley appear in drag. Judy Landers' mother was the executive producer. She also produced California Casanova for sister Audrey Landers.

CLUB LIFE

(Starmaker, 1985) D/S/P: Norman Thaddeus Vane

Tony Curtis owns a neon-lit New York City disco. Tom Parsekian stars as a biker who becomes the bouncer but flees after Curtis and an older bouncer (Michael Parks) are killed by the mob. With Jamie Barrett, Dee Wallace Stone as a drug-addict singer, Pat Ast as Butch, Kristine DeBell, D.W. Stone, and lots of martial arts. Curtis was in Midnight for the same director. This was a Troma release.

CLUE

(Paramount, 1985) D/S: Jonathan Lynn P: Debra Hill

A silly murder mystery/comedy based on a story by co-executive producer John Landis and on the Parker Brothers board game. With Eileen Brennan, Tim Curry, Madeline Kahn, Michael McKean, Martin Mull, Lesley Ann Warren, Colleen Camp, Howard Hesseman, Lee Ving, and Jane Weidlin (from the Go Gos). The original gimmick was that three endings were filmed, and you didn't know which you were going to see. Very few people cared enough to pay to see it more than once, and now all three endings are on the video.

THE CLUTCHING HAND

(Stokey, 1936) D: Albert Herman S: Leon D'Usseau, Dallas Fitzgerald P: Louis Weiss

Jack Mulhall stars as Craig Kennedy, a scientific detective, in a 15-chapter Stage and Screen serial (one of only three from the indy company). The same character had been in The Exploits of Elaine (1915) and other silent serials. The hooded villain has a formula for synthetic gold, and there are many television monitors. With Marion Schilling, William Farnum, Yakima Canutt, Robert Frazer, Mae Busch, Gail Patrick, and Jon Hall. A feature version is available from Sinister.

C-MAN

(Dark Dreams, 1949) D/S/P: Joseph Lerner S: Bernie Giler

Dean Jagger is Cliff, a US customs agent posing as a private eye, in this violent Film Classics release, shot on location in New York City. The star, who narrates, was 46 and balding, but he's supposed to be 35. He gets beaten up a lot. John Carradine, as Doc, is forced by ruthless international jewel thieves to knock out a woman in the bathroom of an airplane, then inject her with something to keep her out. A nightclub scene includes a great drunk sing-along, "Do it Now!" The tape of this rare film has some sound problems. Lerner directed Studs Lonigan (1960), with Jack Nicholson, and executive producer Rex Carlton went on to produce The Brain That Wouldn't Die.

COACH

(Media, 1978) D: Bud Townsend S: Stephen Bruce Rose P: Mark Tenser

Cathy Lee Crosby is a high-school basketball coach in this PG teen movie from Crown International, with Keenan Wynn, Michael Biehn, Rosanne Katon, and Brent Huff. Townsend also made Alice in Wonderland.

COAST OF SKELETONS

(1965) D: Robert Lynn S/P: Harry Alan Towers S: Anthony Scott Veitch UK/W. Germany

Richard Todd stars as Sanders in Towers' sequel to his remake of Edgar Wallace's Sanders of the River (previously filmed in 1935, starring Paul Robeson as Bosembo and Leslie Banks as Sanders). It's about a search for diamonds in Africa, murder, double crosses, and gold. Heinz Drache costars with Marianne Koch and Dale Robertson. The US debut of this American Seven Arts release was in Cincinnati.

THE COBRA

(Unicorn, 1967) D: Mario Sequi S: Gumersindo Mollo P: Fulvio Luccisano Italy/Spain (Il Cobra)

The Chinese Communists are smuggling opium into America by hiding it in Arab oil tankers. Dana Andrews is the retired agent called upon by the Secret Service to stop the operation. With Anita Ekberg as a helpful addict and Peter Martell. This AIP release was filmed in the Middle East.

COBRA

(Warner, 1986) D: George P. Cosmatos
S/A: Sylvester Stallone P: Golan/Globus

LA cop Mario Cobretti (Stallone) is after "the night slasher" (Brian Thompson). The serial killer uses an axe in this one, and there are lots of product plugs. With Brigitte Nielsen, Andrew Robinson, Val Avery, and Art Le Fleur. That perfect couple, Sly and Brigitte, were also in Rocky V together but divorced in 1987. A Cannon release.

COBRA VERDE

(VSOM, 1988) D: Werner Herzog S: Peter Green

The late, great Klaus Kinski (with long blond hair) stars in his last (and least seen) of 5 Herzog features, as the brooding Francisco Manuel Da Silva (called Cobra Verde), a barefoot 19th-century Brazilian bandit. A sugarcane-plantation owner hires him to keep his slaves in line, but Verde has children with all of the man's illegitimate black daughters. As punishment, he's sent alone to Africa, at the risk of his life, to reopen the slave trade. He survives, trains an all-female (topless) army, is appointed viceroy, and has 62 more children! Based on The Viceroy of Ouidah, by Bruce Chatwin, the film concludes when slavery is finally abolished in Brazil, in 1888. This ironic tall tale features bats, crabs, heads on poles, a cross-eyed prince, an insane king, and some extreme (real) cripples. The music is by Popol Vuh. The West German production was shot in Dahomey and Bahai, Brazil, and was backed by DEG. The tape (in English) has Spanish subtitles.

THE COBWEB

(1955) D: Vincente Minnelli S: John Paxton P: John Houseman

Technicolor weirdness, with Richard Widmark as the head of an asylum, Gloria Grahame as his wife, John Kerr as a patient obsessed with Van Gogh, Lauren Bacall, Charles Boyer, Susan Strasberg, Paul Stewart, Fay Wray, Lillian Gish, Virginia Christine, Tommy Rettig, and Oscar Levant, who sings. Patients make drapes as therapy.

COCAINE COWBOYS

(New Pacific, 1979) D/S: Ulli Lommel
P: Christopher Francis Gierke

A drug-smuggling, horse-riding rock group on Long Island is the subject of this boring film. Jack Palance is their manager, and Andy Warhol appears because it was filmed at his Montauk summer home. With Tom Sullivan, Suzanna Love, and the Cowboy Island Band. Watch for visible boom mikes. Lommel, from Germany, made Blank Generation around the same time.

THE COCAINE FIENDS

(Video Dimensions, 1936) D: William A. O'Connor, Norton S. Parker (The Pace that Kills; Girls of the Street; What Price Ignorance?)

Eddie and Jane (Lois January) are a brother and sister working at a roadside restaurant. She takes dope-pusher Nick's "headache powders" and runs away to the big city, where she goes to the Dead Rat Cafe (complete with rats painted on the wall). Eddie follows her, takes "a sleigh ride with some show birds," and ends up an addict with a pregnant hooker girlfriend. They finally meet again in an opium den, but Eddie drowns himself. One of the most entertaining of the old anti-drug movies, it's a remake of a 1928 film, The Pace that Kills (Video Yesterday), in which a farm boy (Owen Gorin) goes to the big city. It runs 68 minutes (some copies are 60).

COCAINE WARS

(Media, 1984) D: Hector Olivera S: Steven M. Krauzer P: Roger Corman, Alex Sessa (Vice Wars)

John Schneider (from the TV series The Dukes of Hazzard) becomes a Rambo type to destroy a coke factory run by ex-Nazis. With Kathey Witt and Royal Dano. This Concorde release was shot in Mexico.

THE COCKEYED MIRACLE

(1946) D: S. Sylvan Simon S: Karen DeWolf P: Irving Starr

Frank Morgan is a turn-of-the-century Maine shipbuilder who dies but is allowed to return as a ghost and help his family. Keenan Wynn is his ghost father (who had died in his 30s). With Audrey Totter and Marshall Thompson as Morgan's kids, Cecil Kellaway, Richard Quine, Leon Ames, Morris Ankrum, and Arthur Space. This comic fantasy was based on a play by George Seaton.

COCKFIGHTER

(Platinum, 1974) D: Monte Hellman S/A: Charles Willeford P: Roger Corman (Born to Kill)

Warren Oates (who narrates) makes a vow of silence after losing a cockfight. This was the first feature based on a novel by Charles Willeford and was filmed in Georgia by Nestor Almendros. With Harry Dean Stanton, Richard B. Shull, Millie Perkins, Laurie Bird (from Two-Lane Blacktop), and Troy Donahue. Ed Begley Jr. and Steve Railsback have standout scenes as young hicks. It was a flop, so Corman (who had added a dream sequence) tried again with another title. He also had Joe Dante edit in some car crash and sex scenes from Night Call Nurses. Willeford became "cool" years later, so the video is the original version. The year 1974 was a good one for Oates, who was also in the cult films Bring Me the Head of Alfredo Garcia, White Dawn, and Badlands. Hellman's next was to be the Hammer/Hong Kong movie Shatter, but he was replaced.

COCKSUCKER BLUES

(1972–76) D: Robert Frank, Daniel Seymour P: Marshall Chess (CS Blues)

This famous 16-mm Rolling Stones tour documentary received an X rating, was withdrawn by the band, and was shown legally only at some special screenings beginning in 1979. While roadies are shown shooting up and snorting things, scenes of band members (mostly Keith Richards) using drugs were removed. It's a (mostly boring) backstage look at the group's 1972 American tour, with some songs. Keith does throw a TV set out of a hotel window, though. With Stevie Wonder, Tina Turner (also in Gimme Shelter), and the jet set: Andy Warhol, Dick Cavett, Truman Capote, and Terry Southern. Robert Frank took the "Exile on Main Street" photos. Bootleg tapes are around, of course, but even they are often cut. Ladies and Gentlemen, the Rolling Stones (1974) is a more standard concert film from the same tour.

THE COCKTAIL HOSTESS

(1972) D/P: "A. C. Stevens"/ Stephen C. Apostoloff S: Ed Wood Jr.

"You pay for the drinks. They do the rest!" Set at Club 69, this is pretty graphic, with threesomes, orgies, and a rape. This cast includes Rene Bond, Rick Lutz, Terri Johnson, and Lynn Harris. It was shot back to back with Snow Bunnies. This was one of Stevens' many features written by Ed Wood Jr.

COCOON

(Fox, 1985) D: Ron Howard S: Tom Benedek
P: Richard D. Zanuck, David Brown, Lili Fini Zanuck

Don Ameche, Wilford Brimley, and Hume Cronyn star as Florida retirees who are accidentally "revitalized" by aliens when they swim in treated water. Their wives (Jessica Tandy, Gwen Verdon, and Maureen Stapleton) go for a swim too, so all three old couples can breakdance. Brian Dennehy leads the aliens (including Tahnee Welch and Tyrone Power Jr.). Everyone leaves for another planet forever (or until the sequel) at the end. With Steve Guttenberg, Jack Gilford, and Clint Howard. Ameche received a best-supporting-actor Oscar. The ILM FX also got an Oscar. It was released by 20th Century–Fox and rated PG-13.

COCOON II: THE RETURN

(Fox, 1988) D: Daniel Petrie S: Stephen McPherson
P: Richard D. Zanuck, David Brown, Lili Fini Zanuck

The old couples return from space to visit with friends and families in this PG sequel. It features lots of outtakes from the original. Ameche, Guttenberg, Cronyn, Tandy, Stapleton, Gilford, Welch, and more ILM FX return. With Elaine Stritch and Courteney Cox.

C.O.D.

(Vestron, 1982) D/S/P: Chuck Vincent S: Rick Marx, Jonathan Hannah US/W. Germany

Rival executives have to come up with an ad campaign for the Beaver Bra Company (sounds like the Arch Hall movie What's Up Front?). Chris Lemmon stars, with Olivia Pascal, Corinne Alphen, Marilyn Joi, Teresa Ganzel, and Samantha Fox.

CODE NAME: VENGEANCE

(AIP, 1986) D/P: David Winters
S: Anthony Palmer S. Africa

Ex-CIA agent Robert Ginty is sent to North Africa to rescue a Middle Eastern magnate's wife and son. With Shannon Tweed, Cameron Mitchell as Dutch, Don Gordon, James Ryan, and Kevin Brophy.

CODENAME: WILD GEESE

(Starmaker, 1984) D: "Anthony Dawson"/ Antonio Margheriti S: Tito Carpi, Gianfranco Couyoumdjian P: Edwin C. Dietrich
W. Germany/Italy (Geheimcode Wildganse)

They called it "third in the series," but this movie has no relation to the others. Mercenaries fight a Burmese opium warlord in the Golden Triangle. Lewis Collins stars, with Lee Van Cleef as China, Mimsy Farmer, Klaus Kinski, and Ernest Borgnine. There's a Morricone score. Collins and Kinski were back in Commando Leopard, by the same director, the next year.

CODE NAME ZEBRA

(TWE, 1986) D: Joe Tornatore
S: Robert Leone P: Joe Kaufman

A group of Nam vets (all played by sons of famous actors) form an international anti-crime unit. This sequel to the same director's Zebra Force (1976) stars Jim Mitchum, Timmy Brown (son of Jim), Lindsay Crosby, and Frank Sinatra Jr. (!), with Mike Lane as a hitman villain, Charles Dierkop as Crazy, and Deanna Jurgens.

CODE OF SILENCE

(HBO, 1985) D: Andy Davis
S: Michael Butler P: Raymond Wagner

Chuck Norris, as a Chicago cop posing as a sanitation worker, is after drug lord Henry Silva, and there's a police cover-up. This is one of Chuck's best. The screenplay was originally written for a Dirty Harry movie. With Dennis Farina and Bert Remsen. Davis later directed Steven Seagal's first film, Above the Law, also with Silva and set in Chicago. From Orion. Soundtrack on Easy Street records.

COFFIN JOE'S VISIONS OF TERROR

(SW, 1994)

This tape consists of 14 outrageous, hype-filled (and subtitled!) trailers (1963–86) for a series of bizarre Brazilian movies directed by and/or starring Joe Mojica Marins. They feature shocking horror and sex, in color and b/w.

Ernest Borgnine, Mimsy Farmer, and Lee Van Cleef, three American stars in Europe, in Codename Wildgeese.

COFFY

(Orion, 1973) D/S: Jack Hill
P: Robert A. Papazian

"She's the godmother of them all, the baddest one-chick hit squad that ever hit town!" Pam Grier, in her first starring role, is a nurse named Coffin in this popular AIP movie. She pretends to be a junkie and infiltrates the mob as revenge for her little sister, who is catatonic from drugs. She seduces the pusher, then blows his head off. There's surprising nudity and gore in the scene (often cut out). Sid Haig is the bald henchman of mob boss Allen Arbus (who had been in Robert Downey movies). With cat fights, plenty of action, topless scenes, razors in afros, and a man shot in the crotch. The cast includes Booker Bradshaw, Robert DoQui, and Linda Haynes. The Polydor soundtrack is by Roy Ayers.

Henry Silva in Code of Silence.

COHEN AND TATE

(Nelson, 1989) D/S: Eric Red P: Antony Rufus Isaacs

Roy Scheider and a wired punk (Adam Baldwin) are hitmen who hate each other. They kidnap a kid (Harley Cross) whose parents they have murdered. This suspenseful Texas road movie is by the screenwriter of The Hitcher. Red's first (obscure) feature was Gunman's Blues (1981).

COLD COMFORT

(Republic, 1989) D: Vic Sarin S: Richard Beattie, L. Elliot Simms P: Ilana Frank, Ray Sager Canada

A crazed gas-station owner (Maury Chaykin) on the Manitoba prairies kidnaps a traveling salesman (Paul Gross) as a birthday present for his young daughter (Margaret Langrick). With Jayne Eastwood. This was originally a play.

COLD FEET

(IVE, 1989) D: Robert Dornhelm S: Tom McGuane, Jim Harrison P: Cassian Elwes

Keith Carradine, Sally Kirkland, and a pretty crazed Tom Waits star in an odd movie about smuggling jewels into the US from Mexico in a horse. With Bill Pullman, Rip Torn, Kathleen York, Vincent Schiavelli, Jeff Bridges (who was in McGuane's Rancho Deluxe) as a bartender, and Chuck Woollery as himself. Dornhelm also made Echo Park.

COLDFIRE

(PM, 1990) D/A: Wings Hauser S: Joe Hart P: Richard Pepin, Joseph Merhi

Two young California cops go undercover to bust dealers pushing coldfire, a new Soviet designer drug. This was the first film directed by Hauser, who plays an older cop. With Darcy De Moss and Nancy Locke (Hauser). Hauser directed two more films soon afterward.

COLD HEAT

(AIP, 1989) D/S: Ulli Lommel

This story involves child abuse, kidnapping, and mercenaries. John Phillip Law, Britt Ekland, and Robert Sacchi star.

COLD HEAVEN

(Hemdale, 1990) D: Nicolas Roeg
S/P: Allan Scott P: Jonathan D. Krane

Theresa Russell wants to get out of her marriage. Her pathologist husband (Mark Harmon) dies in a boating accident in Mexico but reappears in California sick and confused, with a bashed-in skull. She relates flashbacks and dreams and has a vision of the Virgin Mary. With James Russo as her lover, Julie Carmen as his wife, Will Patton as a priest, Talia Shire as a nun, and Seymour Cassel. The script (based on a novel by Brian Moore) is by the screenwriter of Roeg's much better Don't Look Now. Hemdale waited two years to release this slow-moving, angst-filled movie.

COLD JUSTICE

(RCA, 1989) D/S: Terry Green P/A: Dennis Waterman

Roger Daltrey stars as a poor former British boxer, known as "Keith the thief," who lives in Chicago with his fighting pit-bull dog. After lots of working-class local color (bowling, shots and beers, minority squabbles and fights, an illegal boxing match, and a suicide) a drinking "priest of the people" (Waterman, who was in Scars of Dracula) is crucified. I didn't get it either. Penelope Milford costars.

COLD STEEL

(RCA, 1987) D: Dorothy Ann Puzo S: Michael Sonye, Moe Quigley P: Lisa M. Hansen

Brad Davis is an LA cop out to avenge the Christmas Eve murder of his father. Iceman, the killer (Jonathan Banks), is an ex-cop with bad scars who has to talk with a voice box and who blames Pam Grier is Coffy.

Davis for his problems. Adam Ant is his sadistic sidekick. With Sharon Stone, Eddie Egan, and Sy Richardson.

COLD SWEAT

(Paramount, 1993) D: Gail Harvey S: Richard Beattie P: Peter R. Simpson Canada

With Shannon Tweed on the video box, this is presented as yet another "erotic thriller." Actually, it's a pretty funny over-the-top spoof (with two R-rated Tweed sex scenes) that's played seriously. Ben Cross is a family man who is secretly a contract killer. A grouchy Toronto real estate agent (SCTV's Dave Thomas) has a coke dealer (Adam Baldwin) contact Cross to off his business partner (Henry Czerny). Thomas's wife (Tweed) is having affairs with the dealer and the partner and the various hateful characters all double- and triple-cross each other. Meanwhile, the ghost (Lenore Zann) of an innocent witness that Cross killed shows up in a graveyard, then in his house and even his bathtub. He has nightmares and flashbacks and says, "I shot you, alright? It happens." The theme song by Chris Rea is very good. Ray Sagar was co-producer and it debuted (cut) on the USA Network.

A COLD WIND IN AUGUST

(1961) D: Alexander Singer S: Burton Wohl P: Philip Hazelton

Scott Marlowe (The Cool and the Crazy), as an underage New York City janitor's son, is seduced by a stripper (Lola Albright). He later discovers to his horror what she does for a living. With Herschel Bernardi and Joe De Santis. It was filmed by Floyd Crosby in b/w. The first cult film condemned by the Catholic Church's Legion of Decency, it's one of John Waters' "guilty pleasures."

THE COLLECTOR

(RCA, 1965) D: William Wyler S/P: John Kohn S: Stanley Mann P: Jud Kinberg US/UK

Terence Stamp is a neurotic London bank clerk who wins a football pool, buys an estate, and devotes his time to collecting and studying butterflies. He abducts an art student (Samantha Eggar) and keeps her prisoner in a basement apartment, waiting for her to start loving him. This creepy psycho movie is better than most, thanks to Wyler and Stamp, who received a best-actor award at the Cannes Film Festival, but it's also long (2 hours).

COLLEGE GIRL CONFIDENTIAL

(Rhino, 1968) D/P: "A. C. Stevens"/ Stephen C. Apostoloff (College Girls)

The guys at the LSD fraternity have a wild toga party with a table loaded with drugs and a folk singer. This entertaining nudie movie also has a lesbian scene, flashbacks, a Jayne Mansfield painting on a wall, a gay cheerleader who loves the school showers, and an anti-drug message at the end. In the scene everybody remembers, Harvey Shane takes too many pills and jumps off a balcony. Costar Marsha Jordan (real name Kopete) was in five of Stevens' films, and Shane was in even more. On Saturday Night Sleazies, Volume I.

THE COLLEGE GIRL MURDERS

(1967) D: Alfred Voher S: Alex Berg W. Germany (Der Monk mit der Peitsche)

A 1928 American film, The Terror (from a novel by Edgar Wallace), was the first sound horror film. It was remade in the US as Return of the Terror in 1934. The novel was also the basis for a British film, The Terror, made in 1938. A West German version, Der Unheimliche Monk, was filmed in 1965. This sequel to that version is the only one in color and can sometimes be seen on American TV. The German title means "the monk with the whip." The killer wears a red robe with a pointed hood and emerges from a blue fog with a white whip. College girls are killed with an acid gas dispensed from a Bible. Joachim Fuchsberger stars as Inspector Higgins, with Uschi Glas, Siegfried Schurenberg, and Jan Hendricks.

COLLEGE SCANDAL

(1935) D: Elliott Nugent S: Frank Partes, Charles Brackett

Characters are killed for revenge after a hazing accident. The plot was reused in many later horror movies, but this is also a musical. Arline Judge, Johnny Downs, and Wendy Barrie are in this Paramount release. It was remade as Sweater Girl (1942).

COLLISION COURSE

(HBO, 1987) D: Lewis Teague S: Frank Darius Namei P: Robert Court, Ted Field

Future Tonight Show host Jay Leno is a Detroit cop teamed with a Japanese detective (Pat Morita) in this PG action comedy, which rips off Red Heat. With Tom Noonan, Susan Sarandon, Ernie Hudson, Al Waxman, Soon-Teck Oh, and Randall "Tex" Cobb. It was filmed in Detroit by DEG (which went bankrupt) and wasn't released until 1992.

COLONEL MARCH Of SCOTLAND YARD

(Sinster series, 1953–54) UK

Boris Karloff stars as a pipe-smoking police detective with an eye patch, in this British TV series. It was syndicated in the US. Of the 26 episodes filmed, 6 volumes with 2 episodes each are available. Titles include "The Abominable Snowman," "The New Invisible Man," "The Talking Head," and "The Sorcerer." Some were directed by Hammer regular Terence Fisher.

COLOR OF LOVE = LORD SHANGO

COLOR OF NIGHT

(Hollywood, 1994) D: Richard Rush S: Mathew Chapman, Billy Ray P: Buzz Feitshans

Bruce Willis stars as a troubled New York City shrink who moves into the home of his best friend, an L.A. shrink (Scott Bakula) who was murdered. He takes over his friend's group therapy sessions,

COLORIZATION

Many older psychotronic movies have been colorized. This is done for purely economic reasons, because polls have shown that many more people will rent, buy, or watch a feature if it's in color, which is sad but probably true. If you disapprove, you can (hopefully) turn the color off on your TV set. If you don't like this practice, Ted Turner is the main villain. The worst job of coloring I've seen (so far) is The Absent Minded Professor (Disney, 1961).

sleeps with his girlfriend (Jane March from The Lover), and tries to figure out who the mystery killer is while being closely watched by comical cop (Rueben Blades). March is the youngest-looking lover of a middle aged man in an American movie in many years and this trashy, over the top, often funny feature has sex, nudity, gore, Vertigo scenes, and lots of nutty patients. Brad Dourif is an obsessive lawyer, Lance Henriksen is a cop whose family was killed, Kevin J. O'Connor is an artist, Lesley Ann Warren is the nympho, and there's this odd young boy. Also with Jeff Corey, Shirley Knight, and Kathleen Wilhoite. Music by Dominic Frontiere. Rush made AIP movies in the 60s. It was just over two hours long in theatres. The 15 minutes longer "director's cut" video includes scenes of Willis naked which had been removed to avoid an NC-17 rating. The uncut tape was rated R anyway.

COLORS

(Orion, 1988) D: Dennis Hopper S: Michael Schiffer P: Robert H. Solo, Paul Lewis

Sean Penn and Robert Duvall are cop partners at odds with each other while dealing with gangs in LA. It was Hopper's biggest hit as director, and cuts from the popular soundtrack were being heard from cars and boom boxes for years after. Herbie Hancock composed parts of the soundtrack, which features Ice T's hit title track and some select oldies by groups like War. With Maria Conchita Alonso, Sy Richardson, Jack Nance, Seymour Cassel, Richard Rust, Damon Wayans, and Tony Todd. Trinidad Silva (who died in a traffic accident in 1988) is great as Frog. The cinematography is by Haskell Wexler. Real gang members were cast in supporting roles, and the street slang is pretty convincing. The tape (127 minutes) is seven minutes longer than the theatrical version.

THE COLOSSUS OF RHODES

(1960) D/S: Sergio Leone S: Ennio De Concini P: Michele Scaglione Italy/France/Spain (Il Colosso di Rodi)

This was the first feature credited to Leone, who had also codirected the biblical epic Sodom and Gomorrah and had been the assistant director on several big biblical epics. American Rory Calhoun stars as Dario, a Greek captain who tries to destroy the gigantic bronze statue of Colossus on the island of Rhodes. He has to fight in the arena and an earthquake topples the statue at the end. From MGM. Leone's next as director was A Fistful of Dollars. The French-language version is on tape.

COMBAT SHOCK

(Troma, 1984) D/S/P/E: Buddy Giovinazzo (American Nightmare)

Frankie (Ricky Giovinazzo), an unemployed, addicted Nam vet, has gory, horrifying war nightmares and flashbacks. He owes money to a drug dealer, who has him beaten. He and his miserable, starving, pregnant wife and their sick, deformed baby are about to be evicted from their slum apartment. The baby wails and cries constantly. The wife stares at a broken TV set. Frankie thinks, "I can no longer tell where one torture ends and the next begins." His junkie friend ODs by putting drugs directly into an open wound. Little-girl hookers walk the streets, people wait in unemployment lines, other people rip each other off, and Frankie wanders aimlessly. During one of his mental breakdowns, Nam footage is projected onto his face, a great effect previously used in 60s drug movies. The editing and FX are excellent, making it all a little hard for many viewers to take. It ends in a bloodbath of killing (and worst of all, he drinks a carton of very sour milk). This depressing but well-made 16mm $40,000 film was made in Port Richmond, Staten Island, by a former College of Staten Island student. His younger brother stars and composed the impressive synthesizer score. Despite the horror-movie overtones, Buddy Giovinazzo interviewed Nam vets and researched the subject before writing the script, and his dedication shows. He's an admitted fan of Eraserhead and Taxi Driver, two movies you might think about while watching this. The 85-minute video release of this hard-to-sell item tries to pass it off as a war film! The original uncut version (American Nightmare) is 100 minutes long.

COMEBACK

(MGM, 1981) D/S: Christel Buschmann P: Joachim von Vietinghoff W. Germany

In this almost plotless movie, Eric Burden is Rocco, a rock star in black leather pants who owes money, has a junkie wife (Julie Carmen), and hates the way rock has become big business. Bailed out of jail in LA after a coke bust, he goes to W. Berlin. He sings at a whorehouse there, with Louisiana Red playing steel guitar, and is attacked by a jealous German and an American debt collector. In one scene Rocco yells, "I'm dead. You're all dead!" on stage then attacks his manager. The new songs performed on stage (including the punk attempt "Who Gives a Fuck") are pretty bad, but when Burden gets back to older blues classics he sounds great. With Michael Cavanaugh and John Amprea. Burden also appeared in Gibbi (1979) by the same director.

COME BACK, CHARLESTON BLUE

(1972) D: Mark Warren S: Ernest Kinoy P: Samuel Goldwyn Jr. M: Donny Hathaway

This comic sequel to Cotton Comes to Harlem, is based on the novel The Heat's On, by Chester Himes. The director had worked on the TV series Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In. Godfrey Cambridge and Raymond St. Jacques return as Gravedigger Jones and Coffin Ed Johnson. Drugs are smuggled in Thanksgiving turkeys in Harlem. With Peter DeAnda and Marcia McBroom.

COME BACK TO THE 5 AND DIME, JIMMY DEAN, JIMMY DEAN

(Sultan, 1982) D: Robert Altman S: Ed Graczyk P: Scott Bushell

In this filmed version of Graczyk's Broadway play, five small-town Texas women, who started a James Dean fan club when he was filming Giant nearby, gather at Woolworth's 20 years later. All of them are neurotic. Sandy Dennis even thinks Dean was the father of her child. Cher (in her "serious" film debut) costars, with Karen Black as a transsexual, Kathy Bates, Sudie Bond, and Marta Heflin.

THE COMEBACK TRAIL

(1971) D/S/P: Harry Hurvitz

Chuck McCann and a partner put an old star (Buster Crabbe) in a western, hoping he will die so that they can collect the insurance. With Ina Balin, Henny Youngman, Professor Irwin Corey, Hugh Hefner, Joe Franklin, and Monte Rock III. It was based on a story cowritten by Roy Frumkes (Street Trash) and may have been released in 1982. McCann and Balin were also in Hurvitz's The Projectionist. Crabbe's only other post-60s role was in Fred Olen Ray's Alien Dead (1980).

THE COMIC

(Magnum, 1985) D/S/P: Richard Driscoll UK

Set "in another time, in another place," this arty, foggy movie is about Sam Coxe (Stevie Munro), an untalented guy with dyed orange hair who wants to be "the king of comedy." In order to get a standup job at a music hall, he kills the resident comedian and buries him. One of the dream sequences is in b/w, with only his hair in color. The director must have liked Rumblefish and Cafe Flesh, because he borrowed ideas from both of those cult movies. There's a rock-video sex scene, a jazz band, a ponderous organ-music soundtrack, and some goose-stepping guards with ponytails. The endless dialogue is often obscured by wind noise, and several slow-motion scenes seem to go on forever. Chris Tucker (The Elephant Man; Quest for Fire) provided some forgettable FX.

COMIC BOOK CONFIDENTIAL

(Pacific Arts, 1988) D/S/P: Ron Mann P: Martin Harbury, Don Haig Canada

This documentary covers the history of comics, including the Senate hearings on horror comics in the 50s, DC Comics, and EC Comics. Mad is well represented by the late William M. Gaines (seen defending comics before a Senate subcommittee), the late Harvey Kurtzman, and Al Feldstein. R. Crumb, Harvey Pekar, Bill Griffith, Will Eisner, Art Spiegelman, Stan Lee, and many other artists and writers are interviewed, and some narrate their own strips. Dr. John does the theme song. It's also available on CD-ROM with additional footage and lists of the artists' works.

COMING SOON

(MCA, 1983) D: John Landis S: Mick Garris

Jamie Lee Curtis hosts this 55-minute made-for-TV look at Universal horror classics. Most of it consists of classic trailers, including the great 8-minute Psycho trailer starring Hitchcock. There are some interviews and behind-the-scenes segments. It also wastes time promoting new (in 1983) Universal releases by Spielberg and others.

THE COMMANDER

(1988) D: "Anthony M. Dawson"/Antonio Margheretti S: Arne Elsholtz, Titi Carpi P: Edwin C. Dietrich Italy/Philippines

Lewis Collins, Lee Van Cleef, Donald Pleasence, John Steiner, and Brett Halsey star in this WWII movie.

COMMANDO

(1963) D/S: Frank Wisbar S: Arturo Tofanelli Italy/Belgium/Spain/W. Germany (Marcia o Crepa)

Stewart Granger stars as a captain in the French Foreign Legion in 1961, near the end of the Algerian war. Dorian Gray costars. This was the last film by the German-born maker of Strangler of the Swamp (1945). An AIP release.

COMMANDO

(Fox, 1985) D: Mark L. Lester S: Steven E. De Souza P: Joel Silver

Arnold Schwarzenegger, as ex-commando Colonel John Matrix, is forced to lead a mission in S. America after his daughter (Alyssa Milano) is kidnapped by a dictator (Dan Hedaya). This violent 20th Century–Fox film is funny on purpose. With Rae Dawn Chong as a stewardess, Vernon Wells as a gay Marine, Bill Paxton, Bill Duke, David Patrick Kelly, Chelsea Field, and Ava Cadell.

COMMANDO CODY, SKY MARSHAL OF THE UNIVERSE

(Stokey, 1953) D: Fred C. Bannon, Harry Keller, Franklin Adreon S: Ronald Davidson, Barry Shipman

Republic had released two Commando Cody serials, Radar Men from the Moon and Zombies of the Stratosphere. Since the days of theatrical serials were nearly over, they decided to make a series of 12 half-hour TV adventures (without cliffhanger endings). The episodes aired on NBC first, then ended up playing in theaters after all. Judd Holdren (from Zombies) was Cody again, and Aline Towne again costarred. Gregory Gaye was Retik, from the Moon, and the cast also included Lyle Talbot (who had been in the Batman and Superman serials at Columbia), Richard Crane, William Schallert, Denver Pyle, and John Crawford. This was the last gasp for the overused rocket-pack flying-man scenes, which were first filmed for King of the Rocket Men (1949) and were later the inspiration for The Rocketeer (1991)

COMMANDO GIRLS: See HELL SQUAD

COMMANDO LEOPARD

(1985) D: "Anthony M. Dawson"/Antonio Margheretti S: Roy Nelson P: Edwin C. Dietrich Switzerland/W. Germany/Italy

Lewis Collins, Klaus Kinski, and John Steiner star in this war movie, made in the Philippines. It's about rebels in a fictitious South American country and was made after Margheretti's Codename: Wild Geese (with part of the same cast).

An outer-space lab of the future! From Commando Cody.

COMMANDO SQUAD

(TWE, 1987) D/P: Fred Olen Ray S: David A. Jackson, James Saad, Tom Riparetti, Steve Le Gassick P: Alan Amiel

Playboy Playmate Kathy Shower makes her debut in a black wig as a government drug-enforcement agent in Mexico. She poses as a hooker (but keeps her clothes on) to rescue her partner, Brian Thompson (from Cobra). There are a lot of car chases and guest stars, including villains William Smith, Sid Haig (as Iggy), and Ross Hagen. With Robert Quarry, Mel Welles, Dawn Wildsmith, Russ Tamblyn as a biker (like in Satan's Sadists), and the director himself. Marie Windsor is seen running the Hollywood Book and Poster Store. Scenes were filmed at Bronson Canyon.

COMMERCIAL MANIA

(Rhino)

Johnny Legend compiled 60 minutes of choice American TV commercials from the 50s through the early 70s. The ones for beer and cigarettes are especially interesting. Many celebrity ads are included, with the Three Stooges, Harpo Marx, Lucy and Desi, Ronald Reagan, and others. Commercial Mania: The Special Edition is a half-hour version.

THE COMMIES ARE COMING! THE COMMIES ARE COMING!: See RED NIGHTMARE

COMMITTED

(Media, 1987) D: William A. Levy S: Simon Last, Paul Mason S. Africa

Jennifer O'Neill arrives as a nurse and becomes an abused inmate in an asylum run by William Windom. Narration helps hold together this disjointed variation on the much-used "lunatics taking over the asylum" plot (the film was once abandoned as unfinished). By the director of Wham, Bam, Thank You, Space Man (1973). With Robert Forster, Sidney Lassick, and Ron Paillo.

THE COMMITMENTS

(CBS, 1990) D: Alan Parker S: Dick Clement, Ian La Fresnais, Roddy Doyle P: Roger Randall-Cutler, Lynda Myles

A struggling Dublin soul cover band (they consider the Irish "the blacks of Europe") disintegrates just when they could be making it on records. Based on a 1990 book by Roddy Doyle, this film makes statements about slum life and Ireland itself. Andrew Strong is the lead singer, and Robert Akins is the determined guy who gets the musicians together. With Michael Aherne, Bronagh Gallagher, Angela Ball, and Maria Doyle. The "group" actually played some dates in America after the film was released. 20th Century–Fox also released The Making of "The Commitments."

COMMON BONDS

(Academy, 1991) D: Allan Goldstein S: Alan Aylward, Michael Ironside P: Richard Davis Canada (Chaindance)

Michael Ironside (who also was the executive producer and cowrote this comedy/drama) is a prisoner handcuffed to a cerebral-palsy victim in a wheelchair (Brad Dourif) as part of a demented reform program. He has to care for him, but they hate each other. With Rae Dawn Chong, as the social worker responsible for the plan, and Bruce Glover.

COMMON-LAW CABIN

(RM, 1967) D/P/C/E: Russ Meyer S: John E. Moran, P: Eve Meyer

Meyer's first color movie with a plot has the same rural setting as his previous hits Lorna and Mudhoney and lots of outdoor go-go dancing. It's an outrageous crime-and-sex melodrama with Jack Moran, Babette Bardot, Adele Rein, Alaina Capri (star of Good Morning and Goodbye!), Ken Swofford (later a regular on the TV series Fame), and Franklin Bolger. It sometimes played as How Much Loving Does a Normal Couple Need?

COMMON-LAW WIFE

(SW, 1963) D: Eric Sayers S: Grace Nolan P: Fred A. Kadane

M. A. Ripps (Poor White Trash) presented this b/w feature, made in Texas. It's similar in some ways to the rural dramas Russ Meyer was about to make, with good dialogue (written in this case by a woman) but minus the comedy. A rich, corrupt old man throws out his live-in lover, Linda (Annabelle Lee), and asks his gold-digging niece, Baby Doll (Lacy Kelly), to move in. Kelly (also in Irving Klaw's Nature's Sweethearts) is great as the sarcastic, wild beauty who uses the (married) sheriff and Bull out in the swamp to get what she wants and plots murder. Linda fights back, and the ending is outrageous! I liked all the twisting in the club too. Mike shadows are visible. Lee went on to act in S. F. Brownrigg movies like Don't Look in the Basement. I want to see Sayers' other movie, The Garbage Man!

COMMUNION

(MCEG, 1989) D/P: Philippe Mora S/P: Whitley Strieber P: Dan Allingham

Christopher Walken as Whitley Strieber (The Hunger; Wolfen) recalls under hypnosis how he encountered skinny ETs ("little blue fuckers") in his Upstate New York cabin. Lindsay Crouse is his wife, and Frances Sternhagen is his psychiatrist. It's based on Strieber's 1987 book and is 110 mostly boring minutes with group-encounter sessions and Eric Clapton theme music. Another tape, Close Encounters of the Fourth Kind, is an hour of interviews with Strieber, hosted by Roddy McDowall.

COMPAÑEROS

(1970) D/S: Sergio Corbucci S: Dino Mauri, Massimo De Rita Italy/Spain/W. Germany
(Vamos a Matar, Compañeros!)

Franco Nero is a Swedish mercenary who helps a Mexican revolutionary (Tomas Milian). Jack Palance steals the show as a character with a wooden hand (he had been nailed to a cross) and a pet hawk named America to which he feeds chunks of his victims. With Fernando Rey and Karin Schubert. It's a long (121-minute) sequel to Professional Gun (1968), by the same director, also with Palance and Nero. Ennio Morricone composed the score.

THE COMPANY OF WOLVES

(Vestron, 1984) D/S: Neil Jordan
S: Angela Carter P: Chris Brown UK

Sarah Patterson stars as a Little Red Riding Hood type in a slow-moving but fascinating black-comedy/allegory based on stories by Angela Carter. Angela Lansbury as Granny tells the fantasy/horror stories, and there are dreams inside of dreams. With David Warner, Brian Glover, Danielle Dax, Stephen Rea, and an unbilled Terence Stamp. Chris Tucker created the transformation FX, including a wolf that actually emerges from a human. It was all filmed in a studio, with production design by Anton Furst. The George Fenton score is on Varese Sarabande.

THE COMPLEAT BEATLES

(MGM/UA, 1982) D: Patrick Montgomery

Malcolm McDowell narrates this nearly 2-hour unauthorized biography (which received limited theatrical release). It's the best overall look at the Fab Four (so far). The early days are the most interesting. Stu Sutcliff and Pete Best are covered, and there's some good live footage of Tony Sheridan (who is interviewed). The Beatles are seen playing in Hamburg and at the Cavern in Liverpool ("Some Other Guy"), then on international Beatlemania tours. After the "Penny Lane" promo film, things go downhill fast. Long, ponderous versions of "Let It Be," "Hey Jude," and other later epics waste way too much time as the group is seen dissolving. George Martin, Marianne Faithfull, Gerry Marsden, and others are also interviewed. Watch it on a double bill with The Rutles. Also check out The Beatles' First US Visit (MPI, 1990), which was directed by Albert Maysles for British TV. There are also many other Beatles tapes and others just on Lennon or McCartney.

COMPLEX WORLD

(Hemdale, 1989) D/S: James Wolpaw P: Geoff Adams, Rich Lupo, Dennis Maloney

An evil presidential candidate wants to close the Heartbreak Hotel nightclub/bar, owned by his son (Dan Welch), so he hires terrorists to blow it up. Stanley Mathis stars as Morris, a folk-singing terrorist who does a funny anti–New Jersey song. This amusing indy film from Providence, Rhode Island, features NRBQ playing briefly, band member Tom Ardolino geting high and talking to Elvis on the phone, Captain Lou Albano as a biker, and the Young Adults (featuring Dave Hanson) doing comic songs on stage.

COMPULSION

(Fox, 1959) D: Richard Fleischer S: Richard Murphy P: Richard D. Zanuck

Adapted from the book by Meyer Levin, this film is based on the real Leopold-Loeb case, which also inspired Hitchcock's Rope (1948) and Swoon (1992). Two very intelligent young men from wealthy Chicago families, fascinated by the writings of Nietzsche and involved in an excessively close (possibly sexual) relationship, kidnapped and killed a14-year-old cousin of one of them. It was "the crime of the century" in the 20s. Dean Stockwell and Bradford Dillman star, with Orson Welles as an anti-death-penalty defense attorney patterned on Clarence Darrow. The three stars shared the best-actor award at Cannes. Welles' 15-minute summation speech was even released on a record. With E. G. Marshall as the prosecuting attorney, Diane Varsi (in her last feature for nearly a decade), Martin Milner, and Richard Anderson.

COMPUTER BEACH PARTY

(Vestron, 1985) D/S/P/E: Gary Troy

In this beach-party comedy made in Galveston, Texas, a computer expert tries to stop beach property from becoming a tourist attraction.

THE COMPUTER WORE TENNIS SHOES

(Walt Disney, 1970) D: Robert Butler
S: Joseph L. McEveety P: Bill Anderson

In the first of three Disney fantasy/comedies starring Kurt Russell, he's Dexter, a student with a computer in his brain, pursued by gangsters. With Cesar Romero, Joe Flynn, William Schallert, Richard Bakalyan, and Fritz Feld. Russell had been in Disney films since The Absent Minded Professor (1960), was still in them in 1975 (The Strongest Man in the World), and finally made a career change by starring as Elvis on TV in 1979. He returned as Dexter in The Barefoot Executive (1971) and Now You See Him, Now You Don't (1972). Disney remade Computer . . . as a TV movie in 1995.

COMRADES IN ARMS

(Republic, 1991) D/S/P: J. Christian Ingvordsen
S/P/A: Steven Kaman, John Weiner Canada

Rick Washburn stars as Bone, an ex–Green Beret, in this awful, senseless "action" movie made in Ontario. It has something to do with KGB agents helping to battle a drug cartel in the Colombian jungle. Boring dialogue scenes alternate with explosions and generic battles. Lance Henriksen is wasted as a CIA chief, and the late Lyle Alzado is laughable as a Russian general. Ingvordsen also made several movies starring Jake LaMotta. Henriksen was also in his movie The Outfit.

CONAN THE DESTROYER

(MCA, 1984) D: Richard Fleischer S: Stanley Mann P: Raffaella De Laurentiis

There's more comedy in this PG sequel to the R-rated Conan the Barbarian (1982). Arnold Schwarzenegger protects a virgin princess (Olivia D'Abo) on a quest for a magic gem. With scene-stealing Grace Jones as Zula, Wilt Chamberlain, Mako as a wizard, Tracey Walter, Sarah Douglas, Jeff Corey, and Ferdy Mayne. Carlo Rambaldi created the Dagoth monster. It was filmed in Mexico. Fleischer did Red Sonja (1985) with Arnold next. This was the star's first film after his Shape Up with Arnold tape (1983). A more embarrassing tape is Carnival in Rio (After Dark, 1983), a Playboy TV special, with Arnold as the leering host.

COMMUNISM

Anti-Communist features flourished in America in the early 50s. Even if you agree with the message, most of them are pretty ridiculous, and some are hilarious. Around the same time, generic villains with German names and accents became generic villains with Russian names and accents in serials, spy movies, science fiction movies, and TV adventure shows. The villains stayed around, but specific anti-Communist movies were rare in the 60s (except for a few about Cuba) and the 70s. As soon as Reagan was elected, they returned. The 80s revival reached a peak with several Stallone hits. After the fall of Communism in Europe, generic movie villains started having German names and accents again, or were Arabs. Better Dead Than Red (1992) is a good book about the whole phenomenon.

Arnold Schwarzenegger in Conan the Destroyer.

CONCORDE AFFAIR '79

(VSOM, 1978) D: Ruggero Deodato
S: Ernesto Gastaldi, Renzo Genta Italy

Remember The Concorde: Airport '79, the last of the Airport movie series? Well, it did better business in Europe than here, so this spy movie ripped off the title. James Franciscus leads the name cast, with Americans-in-exile Mimsy Farmer, Joseph Cotten, Van Johnson, and Edmund Purdom. Deodato's next film was Cannibal Holocaust.

CONCRETE ANGELS

(Academy, 1987) D/P: Carlo Liconti S: Jim Purdy P: Anthony Kramreither Canada

A battle-of-the-bands contest is held in 1964 Toronto to select one to open for the Beatles. Joseph Dinambro stars

THE CONCRETE JUNGLE

(1960) D: Joseph Losey S: Alun Owen
P: Jack Greenwood UK (The Criminal)

Stanley Baker stars as an ex-con in this grim story of a racetrack robbery. He's sent back to prison but won't tell the other cons where the loot is stashed, so he's tortured and his girlfriend is kidnapped. With Sam Wanamaker, Patrick Magee, Nigel Green, Jill Bennett, Patrick Wymark, and Edward Judd. It's based on a story by Jimmy Sangster. Losey's next film was These Are the Damned, made for Hammer.

THE CONCRETE JUNGLE

(RCA/Columbia, 1982) D: Tom DeSimone
S: Alan J. Adler P: Billy Fine

Skier Tracy Bregman is Cherry, set up by her boyfriend, busted for coke, and sent to women-in-prison Hell. Jill St. John (in her last theatrical feature to date) is Warden Fletcher. There's lots of the expected torture and humiliation. With exploitation veteran Peter Brown, Sondra Currie, Barbara Luna as a killer lesbian known as "the Cat," Aimee Eccles, Camille Keaton, Nita Talbot as a social worker, Marcia Karr, Greta Blackburn, and Carol Conners. Producer Fine returned with Chained Heat (1983).

CONDEMNED TO HELL

(TWE, 1982) D/S: Anibal Di Salvo Italy

A typical innocent young woman (Leonor Benedetto) is sent to a typical movie-world women's prison. After the showers, scenes of lesbian sex, and beatings by guards, she gets revenge.

CONDEMNED TO LIVE

(Sinister, 1935) D: Frank Strayer
S: Karen DeWolf P: Maury M. Cohen

Ralph Morgan stars as a kindly professor who seems to become a vampire during the full moon and terrorizes a European village. It turns out that he had been bitten by a vampire bat in an African cave (actually Bronson Canyon) as a child. With Mischa Auer as Zan, the hunchbacked servant who dumps bodies at Bronson Canyon, Pedro De Cordoba as a Dr. Van Helsing type, and Maxine Doyle. It uses the same music and Universal sets as the Lionel Atwill movie The Vampire Bat (1933), with a similar plot and by the same director. Made by an independent studio, Invincible Pictures, it's only 65 minutes long.

CONDEMNED WOMEN

(1938) D: Lew Landers S: Lionel Houser P: Robert F. Sisk

Made a dozen years before the better-known Caged (1950), this tough women-in-prison movie shows that the clichés were already in place. Anne Shirley takes the rap for her boyfriend and ends up at the state penal institution for women. Louis Hayward is the reform-minded prison psychiatrist, Esther Dale is the sadistic matron. With Sally Eilers, Lee Patrick (also in Caged), and Jack Carson. Shirley was also in Boy Slaves.

CONDOR

(1986) D: Virgil L. Vogel S: Len Janson, Chuck Menville P: Peter Nelson

In this ABC-TV series pilot, set in the future of the 1990s, a secret agent (Ray Wise) and his Robocop-like android partner (Wendy Kilbourne) work for an agency run by Craig Stevens.

CONDORMAN

(Disney, 1981) D: Charles Jarrott S: Marc Stirdivant, Glen Caron, Mickey Rose P: Jan Williams

Michael Crawford stars in this PG-rated spy spoof as an American cartoonist in Paris whose cartoon character helps in the adventure. Oliver Reed is the evil Sergei, and Barbara Carrera is Natasha.

CONEHEADS

(Paramount, 1993) D: Steve Barron S: Tom Davis, Dan Aykroyd P: Lorne Michaels

Dan Aykroyd and Jane Curtin are pointy-headed aliens posing as a middle-class "French" couple in Queens, where he works as a cabdriver. They move up to Paramus, New Jersey, and eventually return home. It was made 15 years after the skits on Saturday Night Live, but this PG comedy has its moments, and the final scenes on their native planet are very impressive. With Michelle Burke (also in Dazed and Confused) as their sexy (and bald) daughter, Chris Farley as her boyfriend, Michael McKean as a government immigration official, Dave Thomas as the alien high master, Adam Sandler, Sinbad, Laraine Newman, Jason Alexander, Michael Richards, Tom Arnold, Phil Hartman, Chris Rock, Jon Lovitz, Jan Hooks, Garrett Morris, and many other (mostly) former SNL cast members. The movie contains plugs for Subway sandwiches and Pepsi.

CONFESSIONS OF A BLUE MOVIE STAR

(Cinematheque, 1975) D/S/C: Richard R. Rimmel, Andrzej Kostenko (and Wes Craven)
W. Germany (The Evolution of Snuff)

An interesting post–Manson murders Roman Polanski interview is intercut (out of context) into this documentary supposedly made by a student of the director. A narrator tells us the story behind the headline-making suicide of a part-Polish, Nietzsche-reading medical student who killed herself after a brief career as a sex-film star in Munich. Behind-the-scenes segments show auditions for simulated sex roles, and actors, would-be actors, and a first-time director are interviewed and shown at work. Anybody who can stay interested should wait until after the End for an added segment showing "a director of snuff films," talking with a paper bag over his head (!), who proceeds to show footage from his "real snuff film," actually gory footage (usually missing from prints) from The Last House on the Left(!).

Jill St. John oversees prisoner abuse in The Concrete Jungle.

CONFESSIONS OF A HITMAN

(Hemdale, 1991) D/S: Larry Leahy
S/P: Tony Cinciripini

James Remar stars as a Mafia hitman, dying from a brain tumor, who robs the mob and heads for Vegas in a limo. With Emily Longstreth as a hitchhiker and Michael Wright as the driver. The score by Billy Talbot (of Crazy Horse) includes Neil Young. Bill Murray and Steven Paul were executive producers.

CONFESSIONS OF A PEEPING TOM:

See HI, MOM!

CONFESSIONS OF A SERIAL KILLER

(New Horizons, 1985) D/S: Mark Blair
P: Cecyle Osgood Rexrode

Robert Burns, the production designer for The Texas Chainsaw Massacre, The Hills Have Eyes, Reanimator, and other horror hits, stars as killer Daniel Ray Hawkins, a forgettable nobody with glasses and a mustache. The character is based on real serial killer Henry Lee Lucas, and this excellent film follows what really happened much more accurately than Henry did. Daniel is seen at 15, with a crippled father and a slutty mother. His hooker sister (Eleese Lester) helps him kill, and they move around Texas and Louisiana with Ol' Moon, a "queer." They take Polaroids of victims. Daniel Ray's last words in a local jailhouse are "Can I get another chocolate milkshake?" The music by William Penn is excellent. Roger Corman released this low-budget movie, made in Austin, Texas, in 1992 with ad art that made it look like The Silence of the Lambs!

CONFESSIONS OF A SORORITY GIRL

(1994) D: Uli Edel S/P: Debra Hill S: Gigi Vorgan

This Showtime Rebel Highway movie is a remake of Corman's Sorority Girl (1957), which was itself a teen remake of The Strange One (also 1957) which was based on a novel by Calder Willingham. Jamie Luner stars as the new sorority member who ruins the lives of other students. With Alyssa Milano. By the German director of Last Exit to Brooklyn.

CONFESSIONS OF A VICE BARON

(Fang, Hollywood Confidential, 1937) (Skid Row)

Reusing old footage is a Hollywood tradition, but this road-show classic (without any credits) went to new extremes. Apparently Willy Castelo was typecast playing oily con men in 30s movies (just as Timothy Farrell was in the 50s). Here he stars as Lucky Lombardo, death-row inmate #1452, telling his story to the warden, who tells him, "Make it snappy!" The rest of the movie is scene after scene from Mad Youth, Smashing the Vice Trust, The Wages of Sin, and other earlier features that all starred or featured Castelo! If you didn't recognize, say, the hard-to-forget Dead Rat Cafe scene from The Cocaine Fiends, you'd probably never figure out the flashback editing scam, because Willy always looked pretty much the same. His snappy confession reveals that he posed as a count, ran an escort service (there's a bit of nudity in this segment), posed as a doctor, performed illegal abortions, sold babies, posed as a respectable businessman, kidnapped schoolgirls, was named "king of the red lights," and fell in love. After he tells all, he gives a warning speech directly to You before going to the chair. Wonderful stuff, originally presented by Real Life Dramas.

CONFESSIONS OF TOM HARRIS

(UAV, 1966) D: David Nelson D/C: John Derek
S/P/A: Don Murray (Childish Things; Tale of the Cock)

Don Murray (who also narrates) is a no-good, alky Nam vet who tries amateur boxing in Vegas, then takes a job collecting debts for gangsters. Eventually he's born again, after he rapes Linda Evans (offscreen), then follows her to her father's sanctuary for alcoholics, where he's cast as Judas at a Last Supper picnic. The inspired cast includes David Brian, Logan Ramsey, Gary Clarke, future porno actress Angelique Pettyjohn, Gypsy Boots talking in rhyme, and former teen star Rod Lauren (The Crawling Hand) as himself. Evans, who was Derek's pre-Bo wife, gets a lot of closeups. Jonathan Haze was the production manager, and yes, the codirector was Ricky's brother. This Hollywood misfire was first released in 1969 then again in 1972. Murray went on to It Won't Rub Off, Baby and The Viking Queen. He was also in The Cross and the Switchblade (1970) and other religious redemption features.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT

(Criterion, 1955) D/S/P/A: Orson Welles
UK (Mr. Arkadin)

In a film with obvious Citizen Kane touches, the wealthy Gregory Arkadin (Orson Welles) hires an American cigarette smuggler (Robert Arden) to reconstruct his life before 1927. Arden talks to odd characters all over the world who are always killed afterwards. The cast includes Paola Mori, Michael Redgrave, Patricia Medina, Akim Tamiroff, and Mischa Auer. It was filmed all over Europe and in Mexico. The first US release was in 1962 (cut), and it was released on laserdisc in 1992.

THE CONQUERED CITY

(1962) D: Joseph Anthony S: Guy Elmes, Eric Bercovici, Marc Brabdel Italy (La Citta à Prigioniera)

AIP released this WWII drama, set in Greece during the Nazi retreat. David Niven stars, with Lea Massari, Ben Gazzara, Michael Craig, and Martin Balsam.

THE CONQUEROR

(MCA, 1956) D/P: Dick Powell S: Oscar Millard

John Wayne is Genghis Khan in this RKO/Howard Hughes $6 million fiasco that's fascinating on several levels. The script and the miscast Wayne make the 110-minute Cinemascope and Technicolor epic great for laughs, but no other film has had such a horrible and long-lasting effect. It was shot in Utah, in an area still contaminated by atomic tests conducted in 1953 at Yucca Flats, Nevada. Then sand from the location was brought back to the studio to be used in retakes and additional scenes. In the years since the production, at least 91 members of the cast and crew have contracted cancer, and at least 46 have died of it. Besides Wayne and director Powell, the following actors died of cancer: Susan Hayward (who played a red-haired Tartar princess), Agnes Moorehead, Lee Van Cleef, Thomas Gomez, John Hoyt, Ted De Corsia, and William Conrad. Pedro Armendariz committed suicide after hearing the diagnosis. Leo Gordon, Billy Barty, and at least some of the 300 American Indians who played Tartar horsemen are still with us. Hughes later paid $12 million to buy back the rights to this film (and Jet Pilot), and kept it out of circulation until 1974.

CONQUEST

(Media, 1984) D: Lucio Fulci S: Gino Capone, José Antonio de la Loma P: Giovanni Di Clemente
Italy/Spain/Mexico (El Bárbaro)

Jorge Rivero stars in a gory Conan copy. He fights his own double, an ape man, zombies, killer bats, and "mummy men." Sabrina Siani (from Ator) is the evil, brain-eating queen. She wears a gold mask and sleeps covered with snakes, wearing only a spiked G-string. With Andrea Occipinti (Bolero), lifesaving dolphins, and music by Claudio Simonetti (of Goblin). Much of the gore was cut from the US version. The most complete version is available on tape in Venezuela.

CONQUEST OF THE EARTH

(MCA, 1980) D: Sidney Hayers, Sigmund Neufeld Jr., Barry Crane S: Glen A. Larson
P: Jeff Frelich, Frank Lupo, Gary B. Winters

This feature version (made for overseas theatrical release) of the "new" Battlestar Galactica TV series (Battlestar 1980) is about another Cyclon attack. With series star Lorne Greene, Kent McCord, Barry Van Dyke, Robyn Douglas, Robert Reed, and Wolfman Jack (as himself).

CONRAD BROOKS MEETS THE WEREWOLF

(1993) D/A: David "The Rock" Nelson

Everything about this tape is terrible, but watching three Brooks (Biedrzycki) brothers (they all appeared in Jailbait) is an experience. Henry is 84 and Ted also appeared in Female Trouble. In Baltimore, Conrad chases a werewolf (the overbearing director) through a Jewish cemetery. He says "This gun don't have no effect," then repeatedly runs over a werewolf dummy with a car while laughing and repeating the same lines. All the bad takes are left in and still more outtakes are at the end. With interviews (complete with multiple bad takes).

CONSUMING PASSIONS

(1987) D: Giles Foster S: Paul D. Zimmerman P: William P. Cartlidge UK

This black comedy was based on the play Secrets, by Michael Palin and Terry Jones of Monty Python. Tyler Butterworth accidentally knocks three workers into a vat of chocolate, and chocolate sales soar. Jonathan Pryce is the evil candy-company manager. With Vanessa Redgrave (overacting), Sammi Davis, and Freddie Jones.

CONTAGION

(Sony, 1988) D: Karl Zwicky S/P: Ken Methold P: Leo Barretto Australia

In a film influenced by The Shining, a young traveling saleman (John Doyle), trapped in a mansion overnight, is offered immortality and wealth if he kills for the mysterious owner.

CONTAMINATION: See ALIEN CONTAMINATION

CONTEMPT

(Embassy, 1963) D/S/A: Jean-Luc Godard
P: Carlo Ponti France/Italy (Le Mépris)

This is the Godard film most likely to show up on American TV, so watch for it. Its "about" the planning of a film version of Homer's epic The Odyssey to be made in Rome and it shows what Godard thought about mainstream producers like the ones who backed this fascinating film. The Odyssey is to be produced by a crude American (Jack Palance) and directed by the great Fritz Lang, who plays himself. Brigitte Bardot and her screenwriter husband (Michel Piccoli) are invited to the producer's villa on the Riviera. The characters planning to make the troubled international production all speak in various languages. The movie was condemned by the Catholic Church's Legion of Decency. The 103-minute feature, shot in color and Cinemascope, is available subtitled or dubbed.

CONTROL

(1987) D: Giuliano Montaldo
Italy/Canada/France (The Waiting Room)

Burt Lancaster stars in this nuclear-disaster movie, whose plot was rewritten after Chernobyl. With Ben Gazzara, Kate Nelligan, Andrea Occhipinti, Erland Josephson, Zeudi Araya, Ingrid Thulin, and Kate Reid. It was an HBO debut in America.

CONVICTED WOMAN

(1940) D: Nick Grinde S: Joseph Carole P: Ralph Cohn

A Columbia studios women-in-prison movie with extortion and suicide. Rochelle Hudson is the innocent women who is sent up. Glenn Ford is the reporter who exposes the corruption. With Freda Inescort and Lola Lane.

CONVICT WOMEN

(SW, 1970) D: John Hayes S: Edward M. Kingfield P: C. Roger Hiller (Bust Out)

A very wimpy devout Christian takes his wife and four young women on a picnic. Rene Bond constantly sneaks off to run around naked in the woods and have sex with her boyfriend. In one scene she crosses a log bridge naked on her knees. Two killer escaped cons show up saying they're geologists, and all the girls have sex in the woods. Later on, the wife is raped (in a ghost town) but likes it, and the tied-up husband has to watch. This brainless movie has lots of pretty imaginative (very near porno) sex.

THE COOK, THE THIEF, HIS WIFE, AND HER LOVER

(Vidmark, 1989) D/S: Peter Greenaway
P: Kees Kasander, Dennis Wigman
C: Sacha Vierney Holland/France

Four (!) video versions of this controversial film were released: uncut, NC-17, 123 minutes; letterboxed, uncut but cropped, 95 minutes; R-rated version; and R-rated and letterboxed. During a week at La Hollandaise, a restaurant owned by a loud, brutal London gangster (Michael Gambon), there's sex, violence, and (unrealistic) cannibalism. Helen Mirren is the wife, Richard Bohringer is the cook, and Alan Howard is the book-reading lover. With Tim Roth and Ian Dury. Various rooms are in different colors like in Corman's Masque of the Red Death.

THE COOL AND THE CRAZY

(1994) D/S: Ralph Bakshi
P: Lou Arkoff, Debra Hill

Alicia Silverstone (star of The Crush and some popular rock videos) is a bored young wife who has an affair with a hoodlum (Matthew Flint). This Showtime cable Rebel Highway series movie takes its name from the classic 1958 teen/drug movie of the same name. Maybe Bakshi was hired to make this because he had recently directed Cool World. With Christine Harnos and Jared Leto.

COOL AS ICE

(MCA, 1991) D: David Kellogg
S: David Stenn P: Carolyn Pfeiffer

In one of the more embarrassing results of the rap craze, Vanilla Ice, stars as a musician/student with a motor scooter who falls for an honor student (Kristen Minter) in a new town. With Candy Clark and Michael Gros as the parents, Sidney Lassick, Dody Goodman, and Naomi Campbell. Universal released this PG flop.

COOL BREEZE

(1972) D/S: Barry Pollack P: Gene Corman

This is a remake of John Huston's classic The Asphalt Jungle (1950), which had already been remade as a western Badlanders, (1958) and as Cairo (1962). Thalmus Rasulala stars as an ex-con who plans a diamond heist, with Jim Watkins, Judy Pace, Margaret Avery in the Marilyn Monroe role, Paula Kelly, Raymond St. Jacques, Pam Grier as Mona, and Robert Shayne. Solomon Burke is heard on the MGM soundtrack.

COOLEY HIGH

(Orion, 1975) D: Michael Schultz
S: Eric Monte P: Steve Krantz

This is a sort of more serious black American Graffiti (it even tells what happened to all the main characters at the end) set on the South Side of Chicago in 1964. Glynn Turman (JD's Revenge) as Preach and Lawrence Hilton-Jacobs as Cochise join two others and steal a car for joyriding. The results are tragic, but the movie has comedy and great music and is a classic of its kind. With Garrett Morris as an understanding teacher, Cynthia Davis, and future director Robert Townsend in a small part. Great Motown oldies fill the soundtrack. Writer Monte later created the Good Times TV series. The TV show What's Happening!! was loosely based on this movie. Schultz did Car Wash (1976) next. The film was released by AIP.

THE COOL ONES

(1967) D: Gene Nelson S: Joyce Geller P: William Conrad

This show-biz comedy features Roddy McDowall, doing a parody of Phil Spector, as a young, self-made rock millionaire who tries to create and manipulate a new hit singing duo. He arranges for a young has-been pop star (Gil Peterson) to have a public affair with a go-go dancer (Debbie Watson) while both are on Wiz Bam, a Shindig-type TV show. The film could have been much better but it's still a fun piece of the 60s by the director of several mediocre Elvis movies. Watch for appearances by the Leaves (who do "Dr. Stone"), Mrs. Miller, Glen Campbell, and the Bantams. The choreography is by Toni Basil, the music is by Billy Strange and Ernie Freeman, and the songs were written by Lee Hazelwood. With Nita Talbot, Phil Harris, and Robert Coote.

COOL WORLD

(Paramount., 1992) D: Ralph Bakshi S: Michael Grais, Mark Victor P: Frank Mancuso Jr.

Gabriel Byrne stars as a confused cartoonist (painfully) transported to a parallel "toon" world that he created. Sex with "doodles" is forbidden there, so most of the plot is whether he'll do it with Holli Wood, a sexy blond toon (the voice of Kim Basinger). They do (it's PG-13 rated), and she becomes human for the real-world ending. Brad Pitt costars as an ageless live-action WWII vet trapped as a detective. The best characters, though, are the hyperactive, violent cartoon figures who constantly intrude. The film is packed with mind-blowing 30s-style cartoon effects, background details, and gags, but the interaction between live and animated chacters should have been better. With Frank Sinatra Jr. (as himself) and Carrie Hamilton. David Bowie provided the end theme. It was Bakshi's first in over 9 years, his 12th feature in all.

Gil Peterson is one of The Cool Ones.

COOTIE GARAGES

(1990) D/S/P: Marcy Hedy Lynn

Cootie Garages (the title is explained at the end) is an excellent color-coordinated/comedy/fantasy/horror film by a filmmaker from Detroit. It's about wigs that change ordinary people into exotic characters. Parts are inspired by the grave-robbers Burke and Hare, H. G. Lewis' The Gruesome Twosome, and The Gorgon. Other reference points are early John Waters (but better-looking) and Devo videos. The effects (animation, decapitation, bugs 'n' blood) are good, and the soundtrack is perfect. It's 54 minutes long and was made in New York City.

COP

(Paramount, 1988) D/S/P: James B. Harris P/A: James Woods (Blood on the Moon)

Woods is a cop with marriage problems who goes after a serial killer, in this surprising movie based on the novel Blood on the Moon, by James Ellroy. Lesley Ann Warren costars as a feminist bookstore owner, with Charles Durning, Charles Haid, and Randi Brooks. It was the first film from one-time Kubrick partner Harris since Fast Walking (also with Woods).

COP IN BLUE JEANS

(VSOM, 1975) D/S: Bruno Corbucci S: Mario Amendola Italy (Squandra Antisciopo)

Tomas Milian stars as Nico, an undercover cop who's after a gangster (Jack Palance), in this violent action crime movie.

COP KILLER: See CORRUPT

COP KILLERS

(TWE, 1973) D: Walter Cichy P/A: Bill Osco P: Howard Ziehm Canada

Jason Williams and Bill Osco (both of Flesh Gordon fame) star as guys who botch a coke deal, which leads to a kidnapping and a murder spree on the road.

CORNBREAD, EARL, AND ME

(HBO, 1975) D/P: Joe Manduke S: Leonard Lamendorf

This drama about Chicago ghetto kids is based on the novel Hog Butcher, by Ronald Fair. Larry (Lawrence) Fishbourne is the real star, as the 12-year-old "me" of the title, who is traumatized by the murder of his friend, Cornbread, a basketball player (former UCLA star Keith Wilkes). Tierre Turner is Earl. With Moses Gunn, Rosalind Cash, Bernie Casey, Antonio Fargas as One Eye, Logan Ramsey, Thalmus Rasulala, and the Blackbyrds. The film was released by AIP and rated PG.

ROGER CORMAN

Corman is the number one psychotronic producer of all time. With one exception (Frankenstein Unbound), he stopped directing in 1971. At that time he left AIP and formed his own New World, the drive-in movie company of the 70s. The company staggered on without him after he sold it in 1981 and formed Concorde and later New Horizons video. Several books have been published about Corman and his movies, and his autobiography, How I Made a Hundred Movies in Hollywood and Never Lost a Dime, was published in 1990.

These are my top 10 personal favorites among all the movies directed by Corman:

1. The Masque of the Red Death (1964)
2. Bucket of Blood (1959)
3. Not of This Earth (1956)
4. Bloody Mama (1970)
5. The Little Shop of Horrors (1960)
6. The Intruder (1962)
7. The Trip (1967)
8. The Wild Angels (1966)
9. Attack of the Crab Monsters (1957)
10. It Conquered the World (1956)

CORRUPT

(HBO, 1981) D/S: Roberto Faenza S: Ennio De Concini, Hugh Fleetwood P: Elda Ferri Italy (Cop Killer, Order of Death)

Harvey Keitel stars as a corrupt New York City cop with a very expensive empty apartment who keeps Leo Smith (John Lydon) prisoner. He beats and humiliates him, but the strange young man ends up breaking him down. Veteran actress Sylvia Sidney plays Lydon's mom. The film is based on Order of Death, by Hugh Fleetwood. This was the only acting role for former Sex Pistols lead singer Johnny Rotten (John Lydon). Ennio Morricone wrote the score. The 113 minute film had 15 minutes cut by New Line for its 1983 US release.

THE CORRUPTION OF CHRIS MILLER

(1972) D: Juan Antonio Bardem S: Santiago Moncada P: Xavier Armet Spain (Behind the Shutters)

Jean Seberg is the stepmother of a traumatized young woman (Marisol). They take in a drifter, they both fall in love with him, and then they kill him. Meanwhile, a killer dressed as a monk with a sickle terrorizes the countryside. With Barry Stokes and Gerard Tichy.

THE CORRUPT ONES

(Nelson, 1966) D: Bill Catching S: Brian Clemens P: Arthur Brauner France/Italy/W. Germany (Il Signo di Pechino)

Robert Stack is a photographer in Macao who becomes involved in murder and a search for treasure in an underground tomb. Nancy Kwan is the evil Tong leader Tina, and Elke Sommer is a widow who is kidnapped. Christian Marquand is also featured. Dusty Springfield sings the theme song. Clemens was a major writer for the TV series The Avengers.

CORVETTE SUMMER

(1978) D/S: Mathew Robbins Hal Barwood E: Amy Jones

Mark Hamill, in his first movie after Star Wars, goes after Las Vegas car thieves who have his Corvette. Annie Potts is a hooker who helps him in this PG comedy. With Danny Bonaduce, Brion James, and Dick Miller.

THE COSMIC MAN

(Rhino, 1958) D: Herman Green S: Arthur C. Pierce P: Robert A. Terry

This talky pro-science movie is full of good terms like "photon chamber," "anti-gravity," "cyclotron," and "sonic boom." It also stars John Carradine as a chess-playing phantom alien who arrives in what looks like a big, floating golf ball. Bruce Bennett, who began his career as a star of 30s serials (Tarzan, The Lone Ranger), is Dr. Carl Sorenson, a famous physicist who was responsible for the A bomb. His opponent is an air force colonel who wants to blow things up. Sorenson says, "There's only one team now, ever since Hiroshima." Lyn Osborne (Space Patrol) looks miserable as an enlisted man. They all go to a lodge owned by a blond widow whose crippled genius son, Kenny, only has 6 months to live. It takes Kenny and his mom forever to figure out that the mysterious guest with weird glasses and a hat is really the alien, even though they both speak with the unmistakable Carradine voice! Kenny says, "Sure looks bad for Dr. Sorenson and the cosmic man, doesn't it, Mom?" Pierce went on to write lots of silly but fun science-fiction movies, including The Human Duplicators, Women of the Prehistoric Planet (which he also directed), and Dimension Five.

COSMIC SLOP

(HBO, 1994) D: Reginald Hudlin, Warrington Hudlin, Kevin Rodney Sullivan S: Trey Ellis P: Ernest Johnson

You could call this thought-provoking fantasy trilogy by the makers of the House Party movies a black Twilight Zone but it's no imitation. In "Space Invaders" an alien (who looks like Ronald Reagan) make a deal with the government to take all the black people away. "The First Commandment" involves voodoo and a living female saint. "Tang" is based on a Chester Himes story. With Robert Guillaume, Michele Lamar Richards, Jason Bernard, Brock Peters, Kasey Kasem, Nicholas Turturro, Paula Jai Parker, and Chi McBride. The HBO movie hosted by a three-eyed George Clinton was shown both as a feature and in three separate parts.

COSMOS: WAR OF THE PLANETS

(1977) D: "Al Bradley"/Alfonso Brescia
Italy (Cosmo 2000; L'Invasion degli Extracorpi)

John Richardson stars in another cheap Italian space movie. A spaceship investigates an out-of-control planet, finding a robot and an underground civilization. The heroes help the inhabitants destroy a computer.

COTTON CANDY

(1978) D/S: Ron Howard S/A: Clint Howard P: John Thomas Lenox

This NBC-TV movie is about a 60s garage band. Too bad it's so damn light. Charles Martin Smith stars, with Clint Howard, Manuel Padilla Jr., and Alvy Moore. The Howards' dad, Rance, coproduced and acted too.

COTTON COMES TO HARLEM

(MGM, 1970) D/S: Ossie Davis P: Samuel Goldwyn Jr.

The "first really successful black action feature" was based on a pretty complicated novel by Chester Himes, who grew up in Cleveland and spent time in jail. (His novels were first published in France.) Gravedigger Jones (Godfrey Cambridge) and Coffin Ed Johnson (Raymond St. Jacques) are plainclothes Harlem cops investigating a "back to Africa" preacher (Calvin Lockhart) who is really out for money (which is hidden in a bale of cotten). With Judy Pace, Redd Foxx as Uncle Bud, Cleavon Little, and Lou Jacobi. It was shot in Harlem. The soundtrack is on UA. Come Back, Charleston Blue (1972) is the sequel. A Rage in Harlem (1990) is also based on a novel by Himes.

COTTONPICKIN' CHICKENPICKERS

(SW, 1967) D/S/P: Larry E. Jackson
S: Robert Baron P: Dick Randall

Country singers Del Reeves and Hugh X. Lewis star as two guys who get caught stealing chickens on the way to Miami and have to do road-clean-up-duty. This dumb, overlong hillbilly-moonshine musical has terrible editing, mixed day/night shots, and visible mike shadows. Guest stars include Tom Noonan and Mel Tillis (who sings "You Dirty Ol' Egg-Suckin' Dog") as copter pilots, Greta Thyssen as herself (in a polka-dot bikini), Sonny Tufts as a drunk telling jokes, Maxie Rosenbloom as a mailman, and Lila Lee (from the original Blood and Sand). My favorite song is "Comin' on Strong," sung by the big David Wilkins. The associate producer was David Puttnam (Chariots of Fire). Jackson also made Las Vegas Hillbillies. The color tape is presented by Johnny Legend.

THE COUNTERFEIT TRAITOR

(Paramount, 1962) D/S: George Seaton
P: William Perlberg

William Holden stars in a long (140-minute) but rewarding feature about an American-born Swedish citizen who sees nothing wrong with selling oil to the Nazi government in Germany during the war. He's forced to work as a double agent for the British, is branded a traitor by his anti-Nazi friends, and eventually learns just what is going on after he falls in love with a German woman active in the underground (Lilli Palmer). With Hugh Griffith, Eva Dahlbeck, Wolfgang Preiss, and Klaus Kinski (who spends part of the movie as a corpse). Based on a true story and shot on location in Europe, it's available on two cassettes.

COUNTERFORCE

(IVE, 1987) D: Anthony Loma S: Douglas Burton P: Carlos Vasallo

A special-mission team is hired to protect a Middle Eastern leader (Louis Jourdan) from a dictator (Robert Forster). The international guest stars include George Rivero, George Kennedy, Andrew Stevens, Isaac Hayes, Hugo Stiglitz, and Kabir Bedi.

THE COUNT OF MONTE CRISTO

(1974) D: David Green S: Sidney Caroll P: Norman Rosemont

Richard Chamberlain stars in a version (at least the seventh) of the famous Alexandre Dumas story. It was made for TV but played in theaters in Europe. With Tony Curtis as the evil Mondego, Trevor Howard, Louis Jourdan, Donald Pleasence, Kate Nelligan, and Taryn Power.

COVERGIRL

(1981) D: Jean-Claude Lord S: Charles Dennis P: Claude Heroux Canada (Dreamworld)

Jeff Conaway (from Taxi) tries to make model Irena Ferris "the face of the 80s." This New World release about the fashion industry was shot in Toronto but is set in NYC. The cast also includes Michele Scarabelli.

COVER GIRLS

(1977) D: Jerry London S: Mark Rodgers P: David Gerber

In this NBC series pilot, Jayne Kennedy and Cornelia Sharpe are secret agents who are also fashion models. With George Lazenby, Vince Edwards, Don Johnson, and Ellen Travolta.

COVER ME, BABE

(1970) D: Noel Black S: George Wells P: Lester Linsk (Run Shadow Run)

Robert Forster is a student filmmaker in LA who stops at nothing in this R-rated film (later rated PG-13) from 20th Century–Fox about underground filmmaking. He makes a documentary on human depravity and is rejected by his live-in girlfriend (Sondra Locke) and the studio. With Sam Waterston, Michael Margotta, Floyd Mutrux, Jeff Corey, Regis Toomey, and Susanne Benton. Some of the music is by Bread, a bad sign. Forster had just starred in Medium Cool, and Black had directed Pretty Poison

COVER UP

(IVE, 1990) D: Mannu Coto S: William Tannen P: Jacob Kotzky, Sharon Harel

The US government blames fictitous Iraqi terrorists as an excuse to go to war against Iraq. Dolph Lundgren stars as a journalist in Tel Aviv. With Lou Gossett Jr. and missing chemicals that kill in seconds. This timely release went directly to video.

CRACKDOWN

(MNTEX, Front Row, 1975) D: Barry Shear S: Roger O Hirson P: Philip D'Antonio, Barry Weitz (Strike Force, Crack)

Joe Spinell is the bad guy in this NBC-TV pilot for a New York City cop show about drug busts. Cliff Gorman stars, but costar Richard Gere is featured on the video box.

CRACKDOWN

(1990) D: Louis Morneau S: Ross Bell, Daryl Haney P: Luis Llosa

Cliff DeYoung stars as a wired US drug enforcer, and Robert Beltran (from Eating Raoul) is a Peruvian cop after a major South American dealer. With Jamie Rose. This Lethal Weapon copy (from executive producer Roger Corman) was filmed in Peru.

CRACK HOUSE

(Warner, 1989) D: Michael Fischa S: Blake Schaefer P: Jim Silverman, Joan Weidman

Cheryl Kaye becomes an addicted hooker after her boyfriend goes to jail. Top-billed Jim Brown is a woman-beating drug kingpin, Anthony Geary is a school guidance-counseler/dealer, Richard Roundtree is a cop, and Angel Tompkins is Kaye's alcoholic mom. This downbeat tale of black and Chicano gangs includes a SWAT tank attack.

CRACKING UP

(1977) D: Rowby Goren, Chuck Staley
S: The cast P: C. D. Taylor, Rick Murray

AIP released this improv comedy movie about TV coverage of a California earthquake (including spoofs of commercials), was written by stars Phil Proctor, Peter Bergman, the Ace Trucking Company, the Credibilty Gap, and Neal Israel. With Fred Willard, Harry Shearer, and the Tubes performing their hits. Not to be confused with the 1983 Jerry Lewis movie of the same name (from Warner).

CRASH AND BURN

(Paramount, 1990) D: Charles Band S: J.S. Cardone P: David DeCoteau, John Schouweiler

In 2030 a giant robot is killing people stuck at Ralph Waite's local TV station (sounds like The Slime People). The characters include two porno stars. David Allen's FX are the only reason to watch. With Paul Ganas as the hero, Megan Ward as the teen granddaughter, and Bill Moseley.

THE CRAVING

(Vestron, 1980) D/S/A: "Jacinto Molina"/ Paul Naschy P: Modesto Pérez Redondo Spain (El Retorno del Hombre Lobo)

Horror star Paul Naschy directed himself as "el Hombre Lobo" (a role he had played many times) in this retread of The Werewolf vs. the Vampire Women from 10 years earlier. The werewolf fights vampires in the 16th century, in this good-looking movie with some gore and nudity. Silvia Aguilar is Countess Bathory. The film was not successful in Spain, and Naschy had to seek funding in Japan for future projects.

CRAWLERS

(Columbia/Tri Star, 1990) D/S: "Martin Newlin"/ Fabrizio Laurenti, "David Hills"/Aristide Massaccessi S: Daniel Steele, Albert Lawrence Italy (Troll III; Contamination Point 7)

Radiation in Alaska causes killer vines. Tentacles plunge through a dummy head and clichéd fast POV shots abound. The awful, phonetic line readings of the Italian actors make it even worse. The costumes are by Laura Gemser.

THE CRAWLING HAND

(Video Gems, Rhino, 1963) D/S/E: Herbert L. Strock S: William Edelson P: Joseph F. Robertson

This is the movie that introduced "The Bird," by the Rivingtons, so it's historically important, besides being a classic of its kind. In Florida an astronaut returning from the moon is seen on a TV monitor yelling, "Kill! Kill!" The scientists (Peter Breck and Kent Taylor) push a button and blow him up. Their secretary is Allison Hayes. Meanwhile, in Palms, California, the owner of a malt shop talks about a meteor and tells his teen customers, "Eat, drink, and be merry. Tomorrow you die!" (three times) but warns them not to dance. When "The Bird" plays on the jukebox, they can't help themselves. Paul (Rod Lauren), a handsome young "lone wolf" medical student, takes a beautiful Swedish exchange student (Sirry Stephan) to the beach. She changes into a bikini, them screams when she spots the astronaut's arm in the sand. At night Paul takes the arm home and hides it in the fridge. It slithers out, hides under the pillow of Mrs. Hotchkiss, the landlady, and strangles her. It also attacks Paul. He wakes up next to Mrs. Hotchkiss' corpse in an ambulance. The arm takes over Paul's mind, making him into a teen Hands of Orlac killer with blackened eyes. He confesses to his portable tape recorder. The sheriff is played by pre–Gilligan's Island Alan Hale Jr. Incredibly, the fingerprints from the scene of the crime match the blown-up astronaut's, so the Florida cops show up to investigate. My favorite scene is when Paul attacks the malt-shop owner at night. He pushes him against the jukebox and strangles him while strobe lights go on and off and "The Bird" plays ("Tweet! Tweet!"). Some cats in a junkyard eat the flesh off the arm at the end. Strock is best known for I Was a Teenage Frankenstein. This one's better.

CRAWLSPACE

(Vestron, 1986) D/S:David Schmoeller P: Roberto Bessi

Ex-Nazi voyeur Karl Gunther (a very intense Klaus Kinski) takes in female boarders. His home is equiped with secret passageways and rooms, torture devices, and killing contraptions. He works on his memoirs every night and plays Russian roulette. One woman, kept in a cage, has no tongue. With Talia Balsam, Barbara Whinnery, and Sally Brown. The music by Pino Donaggio is on Varese Sarabande. The Empire production was filmed in Italy. (Crawlspace is also the name of an LA band.)

CRAZY FAT ETHEL II

(Video City, 1987) D/S/P/E: "Nick Phillips"/ Steve Millard P: Frances Millard

This unbelievable 70-minute sequel to Criminally Insane (1974) includes lots (about 50 percent) of gory footage from the original feature used as flashbacks. It was shot on video. The laughing, always-eating Priscilla Alden is released from the asylum and goes to a halfway house. Death Nurse, produced the same year, is even more of the same.

CRAZY JOE

(1974) D: Carlo Lizzani S: Lewis John Carlino P: Dino De Laurentiis US/Italy

Peter Boyle stars as the (real) New York gangster Crazy Joe Gallo. He makes friends with black inmates while in prison and is eventually gunned down in a Little Italy clam house. Fred Williamson costars, with Paula Prentiss, Rip Torn, Luther Adler, Eli Wallach, Henry Winkler, Sam Coppola, and Hervé Villechaize as Samson. The Columbia release was based on a story by Nicolas Cage.

CRAZY JOE

(1992) D: Steve Carver S: Stephen Peters P: Menahem Golan, Ami Artzi

Justin Lazard is a street-killer forcefully retrained by a black-belt fighter (Rachel York) working for the government. With Krista Shook, Eb Lottimer, David Carradine (who had been directed by Carver several times in the past), and R. G. Armstrong. From 21st Century.

THE CRAZY RAY

(Sinister, 1923)D/S/E: René Clair France (Paris Qui Dort; Le Rayon Invisible; At 3:25)

Klaus Kinski peeking out of his Crawlspace.

A mad scientist, Dr. Bardon, uses a ray to immobilize the people of Paris. Only six people in an airplane and on the Eiffel Tower, remain normal. This rare silent film is 61 minutes long. It was the first film made by the great director.

CRAZY SAFARI

(VSOM, 1990) D: Lo Weng-Tung S: Barry Wong P: Charles Leung, Jimmy Leung Hong Kong/S. Africa

The two The Gods Must Be Crazy movies were international hits and "hopping vampire" movies had been popular in Asia for years, so someone decided to combine both concepts. A Chinese magician/priest (Lam Ching Ying, from the Mr. Vampire series) and his young assistant buy the mummy of a Chinese vampire in London. On the way back their plane goes down in Africa and the vampire becomes a god to local natives. Nixau (from the Gods movies) plays a native chief who fights the slave-trader villains with the help of the spirit of Bruce Lee (!). With lots of animal comedy, a Lugosi film clip, pretty racist dialogue, and Coke plugs. The silly letterboxed, dubbed feature is in several languages.

CRAZY WILD AND CRAZY

(SW, 1965) D/P: Barry Mahon

Bob Meyer (the cinematographer) introduces himself and talks about shooting nudes, while showing us his short films. With topless baseball (in fast motion), naked women walking (in slow motion), multiple image "mistakes," and lots of nudist-colony scenes (volleyball, topless diving, and nude aerobics). It's all accompanied by comic piano and xylophone music and sound FX and is a pretty clever way to make a feature from pieces of film. It's in color and is 65 minutes.

CREATED TO KILL = EMBRYO

CREATOR

(HBO, 1985) D: Ivan Passer S: Jeremy Leven P: Stephen Friedman

An eccentric scientist (Peter O'Toole) tries to clone his wife, who has been dead for 30 years, in this comedy. With Mariel Hemingway as a nymphomaniac, Vincent Spano as Boris, the lab assistant, Virginia Madsen, Rance Howard, Ellen Geer, Jeff Corey, John Dehner, Ian Wolfe, and David Ogden Stiers. From Universal.

CREATURE

(Media, 1984) D/S/P: William Malone S: Alan Reed P: William G. Dunn (Titan Fiend)

In this Alien copy set on an American spaceship, Klaus Kinski shows up as strange astronaut Hans Rudy Hofner from the rival West German spaceship. Stan Ivar, Lyman Ward, Wendy Schaal, Marie Laurin, and Diane Salinger costar. Victims of the cannibal monster become zombie slaves with mind-control blobs on the backs of their necks. There's some nudity and exploding heads.

CREEPAZOIDS

(Urban Classics, 1987) D/S/P: David DeCouteau
S: Buford Hauser P: John Schouweiler

It's 1998, post-nuke teen time, again, as five army deserters wander around in the acid rain until they settle in an abandoned building, complete with everything they need. An Alien-style creature and a pretty bad giant-rat puppet terrorize them. The fifth-wheel computer guy dies first, Lianna has a nude shower-sex scene, and characters run down endless corridors. At the end an effective baby monster (copied from It's Alive) is the only scary part. DeCouteau is another director who started at Corman's old New World studios, and had, at 26, already directed a half-dozen features. This one, from Empire, is only 71 minutes. With porno star Ashlyn Gere.

THE CREEPER

(1978) D/A: Peter Carter S: Ian Sutherland
P/A: Lawrence Dane Canada (Rituals)

Hal Holbrook stars in another Deliverance copy. Some doctors rough it on vacation, and the expected things happen.

THE CREEPERS (1971) = IN THE DEVIL'S GARDEN

CREEPERS

(Media, 1983) D/S/P: Dario Argento S: Franco Ferrini P: Angelo Jacono Italy (Phenomena)

American Jennifer Connelly enrolls at an expensive private school in Zurich. The plot is similar in some ways to Argento's Suspiria, but this time the girl star solves a series of grisly murders with the help of a crippled scientist (Donald Pleasence), his intelligent chimp, and insects that she can communicate with. With Dario Nicoldi, Dalila Di Lazzaro (Andy Warhol's "Frankenstein"), Patrick Bauchau, and Argento's daughter Fiore as a victim. Michele Soavi was assistant director and appears in the film. It was made in Switzerland. The heavy-metal soundtrack (Bill Wyman, Iron-Maiden, Motorhead) is on Enigma. New Line released a cut version in 1985. Even the cut version remains a well-made, unique horror movie full of surprises. The 82-minute tape is missing 20 minutes. A longer version is on Japanese laserdisc. Argento's next was Terror at the Opera.

CREEPSHOW 2

(Starmaker, 1987) D: Michael Gornick
S: George A. Romero P: David Ball

This is a pretty bad sequel to Romero's 1982 film. Animated segments are inserted between the three Stephen King stories (with Tom Savini and the voice of Joe Silver playing "the Creep"). In "Old Chief Wood'nhead" a cigar-store Indian avenges the deaths of general-store owners George Kennedy and Dorothy Lamour. Lois Chiles is terrorized by a dead hitchhiker who keeps saying, "Thanks for the ride, lady!" in "The Hitchhiker," with Stephen King as a truck driver. Pot-smoking students are attacked by a living oil slick in "The Raft," with Page Hannah. The director was Romero's cinematographer. From New World.

CREEPY CLASSICS

(Fox, 1987) D: Pamela Page

Vincent Price, in a movie theater, hosts a half-hour of trailers and scenes from many AIP horror movies, including the original Night of the Living Dead, and Invasion of the Body Snatchers (1956).

Jennifer Connelly in Argento's Creepers

CRIME AND PASSSION

(Vestron, 1976) D: Ivan Passer S: Jesse Lasky Jr., Pat Silver P: Robert L. Abrams (Ace Up Your Sleeve)

Omar Sharif convinces his secretary/mistress Karen Black to marry the vengeful tycoon (Bernhard Wicki) to whom he's heavily in debt. This comedy drama from AIP costars Joseph Bottoms. Black had also been in Passer's films Born to Win and Law and Disorder .

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT, USA

(1959) D: Dennis Sanders S: Walter Newman P: Terry Sanders

George Hamilton made an impressive debut in this modern version of the Dostoevsky classic with a beatnik setting. He's a law student in Santa Monica who has gotten away with a murder and is hounded by a police detective (Frank Silvera, who is excellent). With Mary Murphy (from The Wild One) and Barry Atwater. Roger Corman was the executive producer for Allied Artists. Sanders later made Elvis: That's the Way It Is and Invasion of the Bee Girls. There have been at least ten film versions of Crime and Punishment made in various countries. A 1935 American version starring Peter Lorre was directed by Josef von Sternberg. A 1946 low-budget American version is called Fear.

CRIMELORDS

(Academy, 1991) D/S: Wayne Crawford
S: Rand Ravich, Gregory Small P: Arthur Payne, Frank Notaro South Africa

Crawford is Elmo, a burned-out cop, and Martin Hewitt (Endless Love) is his Cockney partner. The action is set in LA and Hong Kong. With James Hong as a crook and Susan Byun (from Sgt. Kabukiman NYPD). It's all pretty ridiculous, but the action is pretty good.

CRIME OF CRIMES

(VCI, 1988) D/S/P: Alfred Zacharias

Richard Yniguez (Boulevard Knights) stars as a poor family man new to LA. He's blamed for a murder and arrested, his pregnant wife passes out and ends up in a hospital, and his little girl is kidnapped. Aldo Ray (!) is a child-molester who drives an ice-cream truck so that he can lure children and deliver them to doctors for body parts. The whole thing seems to be a nightmare for Hispanics in America. This is "A David Carradine Presentation," but he spends most of the time in an office as a cop. Also with Al Adamson movie regular Kent Osborne. The soundtrack is good. By the Mexican maker of Demonoid. Anthony Cardoza (The Beast of Yucca Flats) was the executive producer.

THE CRIME OF DR. CRESPI

(Sinister, Silvermine, 1935) D/P: John H. Auer S: Lewis Graham, Edwin Olmstead

Erich von Stroheim was a great director and a fascinating personality. I'd watch anything he was involved in at least once. Liberty Pictures made this 63-minute movie in one week, in the Bronx, only a few years after his directing career had been destroyed (he continued to act and write screenplays until his death in 1957). Republic released it. Poe's story "The Premature Burial" was the inspiration. Stroheim, as Dr. André Crespi, spends most of the movie behind a desk smoking and yelling at people. He's glad when his former assistant (who married the woman he's obsessed with) has a car crash. When the man is brought to his clinic, Crespi drugs him so that he appears dead and has him buried alive. The only humor is about an Italian man finding out that his wife has had quintuplets (a reference to the famous Dionne quintuplets). It's fun to see Dwight Frye as a good-guy doctor, but after the opening there's no music and the print is pretty jumpy. The director (from Budapest) went on to make lots of movies for Republic and RKO. Silvermine video put this into their ill-conceived two-for-one "Worst of Hollywood" series with Fugitive Road (1934), starring Stroheim. The box claims Crespi is hilarious. It might be a bargain, except that the tape wasn't long enough for two features! I was watching Crespi, trying to stay awake, dozed for a few seconds, and was startled awake by the whirring of the VCR rewinding. I've read that the ending is the best part. It's not on the damn tape, though.

CRIMES AT THE DARK HOUSE

(Sinister, 1940) D/P: George King UK

The CRIME DOCTOR Series

Warner Baxter starred as Dr. Robert Ordway in 10 Columbia features (1943–49) based on a popular radio program. The medical detective, who had once been a criminal, had lapses of amnesia. He used his knowledge of psychiatry to capture killers. William Castle directed Crime Doctor's Warning (1945), Crime Doctor's Manhunt (1946), Just Before Dawn (1946), and Crime Doctor's Gamble (1947). Shadows in the Night (1944) was about a ghost and featured George Zucco.

Tod Slaughter stars as a maniac who impersonates Sir Percival Glyde and manages to claim an inheritance from a mysterious mansion. He's haunted by the rightful heiress, whom he put into an asylum. The dialogue includes lines like "Betray me and I'll feed your entrails to the pigs!" This 61-minute film, based on Wilkie Collins' novel The Woman in White (also filmed in 1929, and in 1948 with Sydney Greenstreet), was released in the US by Exploitation Pictures. Many scenes were copied from earlier Slaughter melodramas (all of which he first starred in on the British stage).

CRIME SCHOOL

(1938) D: Lewis Seiler S: Crane Wilbur, Vincent Sherman

This Warner Brothers follow-up to United Artists' hit Dead End (1937) is actually a remake of the James Cagney movie The Mayor of Hell (1933). Humphrey Bogart is a social worker who becomes the warden of a reform school and puts a stop to beatings and bad food. The Dead End kids (all with new names), sent there for stealing, are Billy Halop (Frankie), Bobby Jordan (Squirt), Leo Gorcey (Spike), Huntz Hall (Goofy), Bernard Punsley (Fats), and Gabriel Dell (Bugs). With Gale Page and Milburn Stone. The music is by Max Steiner. Angels with Dirty Faces was next.

CRIME SMASHER

(United American, 1943) D: James Tingling S: Michael L. Simmons, Walter Gering P: Lindsay Parsons

Professor Cosmo Jones (Frank Graham) is an inept amateur detective who does voice impersonations. When an heiress is kidnapped during a crime wave, Jones and a janitor (Mantan Moreland) try to help. As usual, Moreland steals his scenes and says things like "Well, dog my cat!" With Edgar Kennedy as the comical police captain leading bumbling Irish cops, Richard Cromwell, Gale Storm, Herbert Rawlinson, and Tristam Coffin. The Monogram release, just over one hour, was based on a CBS radio program.

THE CRIMES OF DR. MABUSE: See THE TESTAMENT OF DR. MABUSE

CRIMES OF PASSSION

(Starmaker, 1984) D: Ken Russell S/P: Barry Sandler P: Donald P. Borchers

Russell's first movie after Altered States (1980) had critics scratching their heads. Kathleen Turner stars as a fashion designer who spends her nights as China Blue, an expensive hooker. Anthony Perkins goes over the top again as the psychotic reverend who sings "Get Happy." With Annie Potts, Bruce Davison, Louise Sorel, and John Laughlin. The music is by Rick Wakeman. Released by New World, it's available in an R-rated or unrated, uncut version (with the cop and nightstick scene). Russell explored some of the same themes in Whore (1991).

THE CRIMES OF STEPHEN HAWKE

(Sinister, 1936) D/P: George King UK (Strangler's Morgue)

Tod Slaughter, in his third feature, plays a mad killer, "the Spine-breaker," and also a kind moneylender who helps his foster daughter. With Marjorie Taylor and Eric Portman. Slaughter appears as himself in the intro to this 65-minute film.

CRIMES OF THE BLACK CAT

(VSOM, 1972) D/S: Sergio Pastore S: Sandro Continenza, Gianni Simonelli Italy (Sette Scialli di Seta Gialla)

A maniac uses the poisoned claws of a black cat to kill models. Sylva Koscina stars, and Anthony Stephen is a blind composer whose girlfriend was a victim. With Giacomo Rossi-Stuart. If you've seen Bava's Blood and Black Lace (1964) you can probably guess who the killer is.

CRIMES OF THE FUTURE

(Nightmare, 1970) D/S/P/C/E: David Cronenberg

Only men are left in the world, and there's an attempt to develop new means of sexual release at the House of Skin and the Institute of Neo-Venereal Disease. A young physician narrates. People bleed colored liquids. Cronenberg's second film is 63 minutes and cost only $20,000. It's on tape with Stereo, his first, featuring many of the same actors.

CRIME STORY

(1993) D: (Kirk) Wong Che Keung S: Cheun Tin-nam, Chan Man-keung P: Leonard K. C. Ho Hong Kong (Chung On Tsuo; Police Story IV)

Jackie Chan stars as a burned-out cop hired to protect a millionaire real-estate developer who is kidnapped. This is a more serious John Woo–influenced movie with lots of gunshot action, set in Hong Kong and Taiwan. Ken Cheong costars as a bad cop.

CRIMEWAVE

(Charter, 1985) D/S: Sam Raimi S: Joel and Ethan Coen P: Robert Tapert (XYZ Murders; Broken Hearts and Noses)

Brion James and Paul L. Smith are hilarious as Coddish and Crush, crazed rat exterminators with cartoonish voices who are hired to kill people. The colorful, hard-to-classify PG-13 comedy with cartoon sound effects, wild action scenes, and Three Stooges gags was filmed in Detroit. It's the only major collaboration by the then not-too-well-known Sam Raimi and the Coen brothers. They all seem to hate it but you might like it as I do. Reed Birney is sort of the star as an idiot about to go to the electric chair. With Louise Lasser, Bruce Campbell as the Heel, Edward R. Pressman, Emil Sitka, and Ted Raimi. James used his own voice by the way. Not to be confused with a 1986 Canadian film of the same name. The next time the Coens and Raimi made a movie together was The Hudsucker Proxy (1994).

CRIME ZONE

(MGM, 1988) D/P: Luis Llosa S: Daryl Haney

In a smoky, post-WWIII world of darkness, cigar-smoking David Carradine (also the associate producer) is a US goverment agent. He gives young "subgrade" lovers Sherilyn Fenn and Peter Nelson a chance to escape if they do certain tasks for him. It's a futuristic Bonnie and Clyde, made in Peru, from Roger Corman's Concorde. The plot includes televised executions and a rejuvenation center.

CRIMINAL ACT

(Prism, 1988) D: Mark Byers S/P: Daniel Yost (Tunnels)

Catherine Bach and Charlene Dallas are a newspaper reporter and photographer who discover that a greedy real-estate developer is killing homeless people. With Nicholas Guest, John Saxon, and Vic Tayback as an exterminator of giant rats (which never show up).

CRIMINAL LAW

(1989) D: Martin Campbell S: Mark Kasdan P: John Daley, Derek Gibson

Gary Oldman, playing an American attorney in Boston, is after a very disturbed serial killer who turns out to be his client (Kevin Bacon). With Karen Young, Joe Don Baker, Tess Harper, and Elizabeth Sheppard. The confrontation scenes at the end of this outrageous feature are pretty amazing. Jerry Goldsmith wrote the score. Campbell is also the director of Cast a Deadly Spell.

THE CRIMINAL LIFE OF ARCHIBALDO DE LA CRUZ

(Water Bearer, 1955) D/S: Luis Buñuel
S: Eduardo Ugarte P: Alfonso Patino Gómez Mexico (Ensayo de un Crimen)

The rich Archibaldo de la Cruz (Ernesto Alonso) is a would-be serial killer. Because of memories of a childhood incident that a music box brings back, he thinks he's destined to kill women. Every time he tries to kill one, she dies, but from other causes. He becomes obsessed with a model for store dummies (Miroslava Stern). When he tries confessing to the police, they're uninterested. With Rita Macedo and Adriadna Welter (The Brainiac). Watch this black comedy if you liked Jodorowsky's Sante Sangre. The film was released in the US in 1962. It's subtitled.

CRIMINALLY INSANE

(World, 1973) D/S: "Nick Phillips"/ Steve Millard P: Frances Millard

Priscilla Alden is Ethel, a 250-pound compulsive eater with a bad temper, in this one-hour 16mm horror oddity influenced by John Waters. Ethel is let out of the asylum to live with her grandma. She kills her, but her hooker sister shows up. The producer is the director's mother and the wife of showman S. S. "Steamship" Millard. This was released on a homemade double bill with Millard's Satan's Black Wedding. Incredibly, Alden returned 14 years later in Crazy Fat Ethel II and Death Nurse.

CRIMSON

(TWE, Wizard, 1974) D/S/FX: "John Fortune"/ Juan Fortuny S/A: Paul Naschy Spain/France (Las Ratas no Duermen de Noche)

Despite the title and video-box art, this is a gangster movie. Paul Naschy is a jewel thief who is shot and spends most of the movie in a coma. He receives a brain transplant and another gangster, called "the Sadist," is decapitated by a train. In France, porno inserts were added.

THE CRIMSON GHOST

(Republic, 1946) D: William Witney, Fred C. Bannon
S: Albert Demond, Basil Dickey, Jesse Duffy, Sol Shore

This 12-chapter Republic serial stars Charles Quigley as the criminologist hero and Linda Stirling as his assistant. The Crimson Ghost (I. Stanford Jolley provided the voice) steals the cyclotrode, a device that can short-circuit all electricity. He also has control collars for his henchmen. When the collars are pulled off they're killed by an electric shock. The ghost is one of the greatest serial images, a mystery man in a cape with a skull face and glaring eyeballs. An 80s New York City band, the Misfits, used the ghost as their symbol. With Clayton Moore, Keene Duncan, and Eddie Parker. The 1966 condensed feature version is called Cyclotrode X. On cable TV it's been shown colorized and cut.

CRIPPLED MASTERS

(Ocean Shores, 1984) D: Ho Wang Muri Hong Kong

An evil medieval king has the arms chopped off one man and the legs cut off another. His victims join together (one on the other's shoulders) for revenge, and an old master trains them to fight. It's a sequel to Crippled Heroes (1983). Anthony Quinn once starred in a western called Deaf Smith and Johnny Ears (1972), about a deaf and blind gunfighter team, but these movies use real armless and legless men! Unique thrills for jaded viewers.

CRISIS IN THE KREMLIN

(New Horizons, 1992) D: Jonathan Winfrey
S: Jonathan Fernandez, Daryl Haney
P: Steven Rabiner (Red Target)

Executive producer Roger Corman made use of some actual footage of the failed Soviet coup in this exploitation/action movie. Robert Rusler stars as a CIA agent in Vilnius, Lithuania, who stops a plot to kill Gorbachev. With Denise Bixley, Stephen Danilov, and Theodore Bikel. It was shot in Russia, Bulgaria (mostly), and Germany. From Concorde.

CRITTERS

(RCA, 1985) D/S: Stephen Herek
S: Dominic Muir, Don Opper
P: Rupert Harvey

This science-fiction story, set in a farming community called Grover's Bend, Kansas, is exciting, funny, and imaginative. Alien bounty-hunters arrive and assume human form. One looks like a rock star (Terrence Mann) and the other takes over various bodies. They're after Krites, lethal, rolling fur-ball aliens with sharp teeth. Scott Grimes is Brad, the farm-kid hero, and Dee Wallace Stone and Billy Green Bush are his parents. With M. Emmet Walsh as the sheriff, Billy Zane, and Don Opper. It's from the makers of Android. Herek went on to direct Bill And Ted's Excellent Adventure. The David Newman soundtrack is on Enigma. This film and its sequels, all from New Line, are rated PG-13.

CRITTERS 2: THE MAIN COURSE

(RCA, 1988) D/S: Mick Garris
S: D.T. Twohy P/A: Barry Opper

The alien Krites come back on Easter Sunday, and there's more comedy. Scott Grimes returns as Brad, and Don Opper (as Charlie, a character who was taken over by a bounty-hunter in the first movie) and two other aliens show up. With Liane Curtis, Barry Corbin, Eddie Deezen, and Roxanne Kernohan. The FX for all the Critters movies are by the Chiodo Brothers (Killer Klowns from Outer Space).

CRITTERS 3: YOU ARE WHAT THEY EAT

(RCA/Columbia, 1991) D: Kristine Peterson
S: David S. Schow P: Barry Opper, Rupert Harvey

This entry sucks. It looks good only next to a Ghoulies sequel. Most of it takes place in an apartment where some people are trapped, and features the supposedly funny, furry, rubbery monsters. They kill off a few characters and eat beans and fart. The stars are cute preteens. Charlie (Don Opper) is back (too briefly), and there's a long, confused "best of" flashback to Part 1. With Leonardo DiCaprio.

CRITTERS 4

(New Line, 1991) D/P: Rupert Harvey
P/A: Don Opper S: Joseph Lyle, David J. Schow

This time it's Critters in space, and it's a huge improvement over the previous entry. The dim-witted but fun bounty-hunter Charlie (series regular Opper) ends up (with critter eggs) on an abandoned futuristic space station with the small crew of a salvage ship. Gum-chewing Brad Dourif, as the thoughtful and intelligent Al Bert, stars, with the soon-to-be-famous Angela Bassett as a tough, intelligent, and sexy black woman, Anders Hove (from the Subspecies movies) as a mean, stupid captain with a Neil Young look, Eric DaRae, who's after a stash of drugs, a teen boy stowaway, Terrence Mann (from the first two movies) as the now evil Og, and Martine Beswick as the voice of the computer. This was shot back to back with Part 3.

One of the scariest-looking serial villains, The Crimson Ghost.

CRO-MAGNON

(1974) D: Richard A. Colla
S: Lane Slate P: George Eckstein

A Cro-Magnon family battles Neanderthals during the last Ice Age. Some people thought this TV pilot with Victor French and Henry Wilcoxon (star and coproducer of several Cecil B. DeMille epics) would become a hit series.

CRONOS

(Vidmark, 1993) D/S: Guillermo del Toro
P: Bertha Navarro, Arthur Gorson Mexico

Federico Luppi (from Argentina) stars as Jesús, an old antique-store owner who discovers a mechanized gold object (with an insect inside) created by a 16th-century alchemist. It restores youth, but the user needs blood to survive. A sadistic American named Angel (Ron Perlman) is sent by his dying industrialist uncle (Claudio Brook, from Buñuel's Simon of the Desert) to steal the object. With Margarita Isabel, and Tamara Shanath as the little grandaughter. The 29-year-old director first made short films, studied makeup with Dick Smith, and did FX for other Mexican productions. This was an expensive feature by Mexican standards and won awards there. Available dubbed or subtitled.

THE CROOKED CIRCLE

(Sinister, 1932) D: H. Bruce Humberstone
S: Ralph Spence P: William Sistrom

ZaSu Pitts is the housekeeper of an old dark house with a phantom violinist, secret passageways, skeletons, and a Hindu mystic named Yoganda. The Sphinx Club, a group of amateur detectives, try to expose the Crooked Circle, a hooded occult sect. This comic mystery was scripted by the writer of The Gorilla (a popular play that had been filmed twice) and was made by the independent World Wide company. Ben Lyon co-stars, with James Gleason as a cop, Irene Purcell, Raymond Hatton, and Roscoe Karns. This is one of the most atmospheric of the many "forgotten horrors" that have resurfaced on videotape. Early horror/mystery/comedy talkies were common on local TV stations in the 50s, and I can barely remember watching several with ZaSu Pitts in my pre–elementary school days.

THE CROSS AND THE SWITCHBLADE

(Vanguard, 1970) D/S: Don Murray
S: James Bonnet P: Dick Ross

Pat Boone is (real) ghetto preacher David Wilkinson, from Pennsylvania. Erik Estrada (in his film debut) is (real) Mau Mau gang member and junkie Nicky Cruz. This inspirational PG film, made on location in New York City, includes scenes of preparing a heroin fix and shooting up. Though laughable to many, it played at church-backed drive-in shows for many years, and the real Cruz gave lectures around the world. The soundtrack on Light records features the Young People singing and Bible readings by Boone. Don Murray continued acting, and in 1977 he directed an unreleased movie about Father Damien, "the leper priest" (not to be confused with the 1980 TV movie). By the late 80s, former TV star Estrada was appearing in four or five direct-to-video action and horror titles a year. This was Boone's last film. Later he was a GM spokesman, did Japanese ads for toupees, campaigned for Bush, and released an exercise video.

CROSS COUNTRY

(Charter, 1983) D: Paul Lynch S: Logan N. Danforth, William Gray P: Pieter Kroonenberg Canada

Richard Beymer stars as a psycho killer ad executive on a road trip with a topless dancer (Nina Axelrod) and a musician (Brent Carver). Michael Ironside is the corrupt cop after him. It's based on a novel by Herbert Kastle.

CROSSED SWORDS

(1978) D: Richard Fleischer S: George MacDonald Fraser P: Pierre Spangler (The Prince and the Pauper)

Mark Lester stars in this comic all-star version of Mark Twain's famous novel, with Oliver Reed, Racquel Welch, Ernest Borgnine, George C. Scott, Rex Harrison, David Hemmings, Harry Andrews, and Charlton Heston as King Henry VIII. Sybil Danning is the top-billed female! Several of the cast members had been in the popular films The Three Musketeers and The Four Musketeers, which obviously inspired this, and Lester and Reed had starred in Oliver! together. This Warners release runs 121-minutes and was shot by Jack Cardiff. (A 1954 Errol Flynn movie made in Italy has the same title.)

CROSSING THE LINE

(RCA, 1990) D: Gary Graver S: Rick Marcus P: Jonathan R. Vanger S. Africa

Teen dirt-bike racing doesn't sound very interesting, but at least this movie has a solid exploitation cast, inlcuding Paul L. Smith, Vernon Wells, Cameron Mitchell, and John Saxon.

CROSS OF THE DEVIL

(VSOM, 1970) D/S: John Gilling S: Jaquinto Molina Spain (La Cruz del Diablo)

A British novelist (Ramiro Oliveras) travels to Spain and finds out that his sister has been killed by a gang of robbers called the Devil's Cross. He smokes hashish while experiencing writer's block and has visions of a woman (Emma Cohen) from the past. Based on Leyendas (legends), written by the 19th-century Spanish poet and novelist Gustavo Adolfo Bécquer, this was the last film by the British director. The letterboxed tape is subtitled.

CROSSROADS

(RCA, 1986) D: Walter Hill
S: John Fusco P: Mark Carliner

Ralph Macchio (The Karate Kid) is a teen guitar prodigy who stops an old bluesman friend (Joe Seneca) of the legendary Robert Johnson from making a deal with the Devil. With Jami Gertz and music by Ry Cooder, Steve Vai, and Sonny Terry.

CROSSROADS AVENGER

(Sinister, 1953) D/S/A: Ed Wood Jr.

This 25-minute color TV western pilot made the same year as Woods Glen or Glenda, stars Tom Keene. The series was to be called The Adventures of the Tucson Kid and a second pilot was reportedly shot too. With Tom Tyler, Lyle Talbot, Keene Duncan, and Wood himself as a Pony Express rider. The tape adds a short with Keene Duncan demonstrating trick rifle shots plus trailers.

THE CROW

(Mirimax, 1994) D: Alex Proyas S: David J. Chow, John Shirley P: Edward R. Pressman

28-year-old Brandon Lee stars as Eric Draven, a rock musician who returns from the grave as a ghoulish superhero out for revenge. This dark, uncompromising fantasy based on comics by James O'Barr is filled with bad weather, drugs, and hopelessness. It takes place on Devil's Night in what's left of Detroit (actually elaborate sets in North Carolina). Michael Wincott is the long-haired villain with a sadistic sister/lover (Bai Ling). With Ernie Hudson as a cop and Rochelle Davis as the little girl. Made by an Australian video director, this could have been a hit even if Lee hadn't died (March 31, 1993) during production. The scene in which Lee was actually shot was removed, the script was reworked (Michael Berryman's Skull Cowboy character was cut out), and convincing state-of-the art computer technology was used to put Lee in scenes that were filmed after his death. His face was even put on another actor's body. It's a major contrast to the way his father Bruce Lee's after-death movie Game of Death was handled. The hit Atlantic rock soundtrack features Helmet, Nine Inch Nails, My Life With the Thrill Kill Kult, Henry Rollins and others. Varèse Sarabande released the Graeme Revill score. Paramount made The Crow but Miramax (which had recently been purchased by Disney) released it. The video also includes Lee's last interview.

CRUISING

(Warner, 1980) D/S: William Friedkin
P: Jerry Weintraub

Al Pacino goes underground looking for a homosexual killer and maybe discovers his own homosexuality and becomes a killer in the ambiguous ending. There were protests while it was being filmed in New York's Greenwich Village and more protests at the opening, but not too many people bothered to see it. The extras in a leather bar are real. The actors include Paul Sorvino as the police chief, Karen Allen, Richard Cox, Joe Spinell,

James Remar, Barton Heyman, Powers Boothe, and Don Scardino (from Squirm). The Jack Nitzsche soundtrack is on UA. Friedkin also made The Boys in the Band.

THE CRUSH

(Warner, 1993) D/S: Alan Shapiro
P: James G. Robinson

A 14-year old blonde (15-year-old Alicia Silverstone) falls bad for a magazine writer (Cary Elwes) who rents the guestroom of her parents's mansion. She secretly helps him with his writing but when he rejects her she turns wasps loose on his girlfriend (Jennifer Rubin) and cleverly ruins his relationship, credit, job, and even his chance to move. The younger-cast Fatal Attraction–type movie is pretty frightening. Kurtwood Smith and Gwynyth Walsh are the oblivious parents. The score is by Graeme Revill (Hand that Rocks the Cradle). The Warners release was filmed in Vancouver. Not to be confused with Crush (1994) from New Zealand.

CRY-BABY

(MCA, 1990) D/S: John Waters P: Rachel Talalay

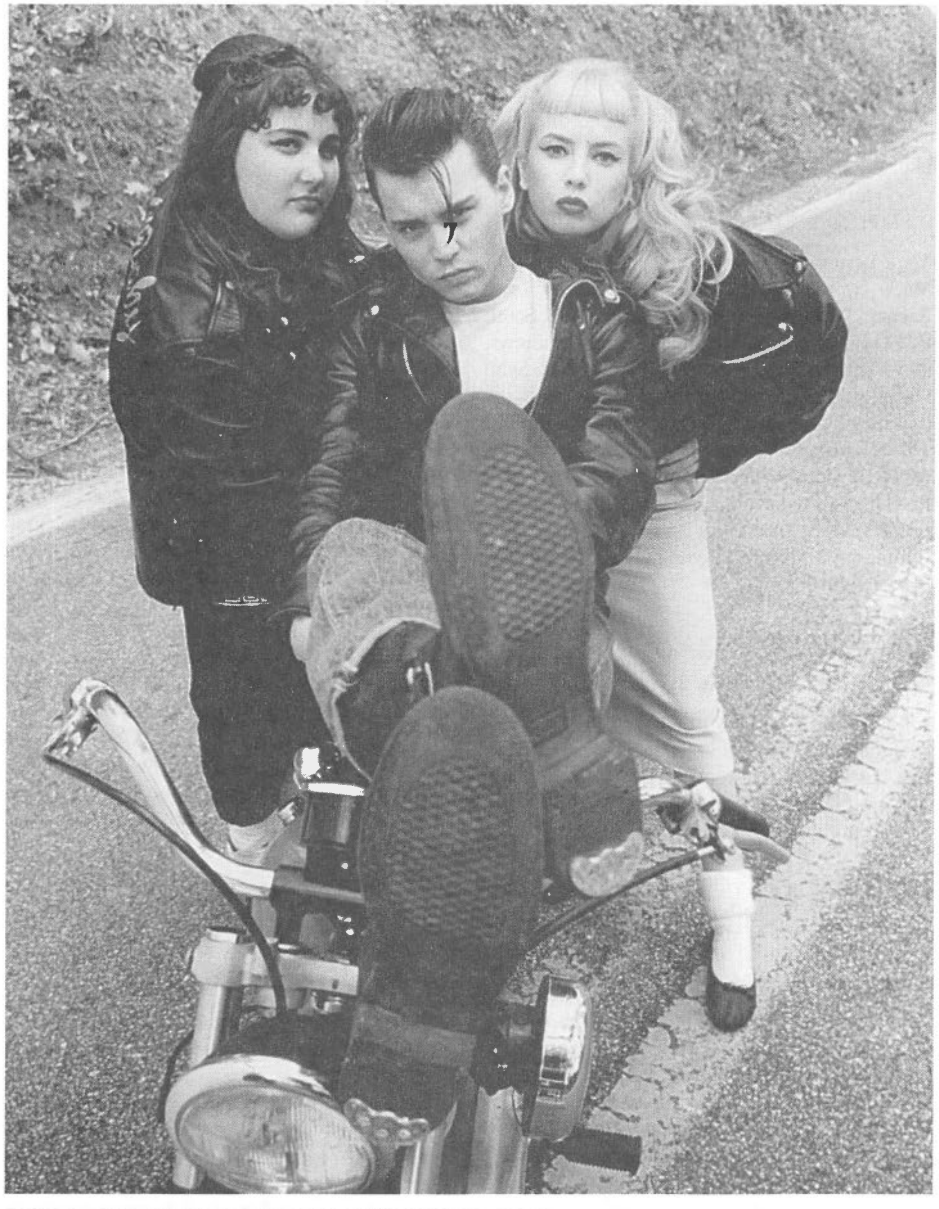
Johnny Depp, a kid from the wrong side of the tracks, falls for Amy Locane, goes to jail, wins a chicken run, and sings. The PG-13 musical follow-up to Waters' Hairspray is set in 1954 Baltimore, where the squares battle the "drapes." Susan Tyrrell and Iggy Pop are Cry-Baby's white-trash parents. Ricki Lake, Traci Lords, and Kim McGuire as Hatchetface are drape girls. With Willem Dafoe (just after playing Jesus) as a prison guard and Polly Bergen as the rich grandmother. Susan Lowe and Mary Vivian Pearce are still around from the old days. And check out these odd couples: Patti Hearst and David Nelson, Joe Dallesandro and Joey Heatherton and Troy Donahue and Mink Stole. The Elvis-style dance numbers were choreographed by Lori Eastside. This Waters film, his most mainstream and least effective, was from Universal, and Ron Howard (!) was an executive producer. Rachel Sweet is on the soundtrack. The tape is letterboxed.



Ricki Lake, Johnny Depp, and Traci Lords in John Waters' Cry-Baby.

CRY BLOOD, APACHE

(UAV, 1970) D/A: Jack Starrett S: Sean McGregor
P/A: Jody McCrea P: Harold Roberts

This R-rated hippie western features Joel McCrea (who coproduced with his actor son) in his next-to-last film. Jody McCrea and other prospectors slaughter a group of Indians to steal some gold. The surviving Indians track and kill all but one of the prospectors (Joel, playing Jody's character years later), who tells the story in flashback. With Don Henley and Robert Tessier, who was also the second-unit director. Starrett directed after Run, Angel, Run and The Losers.

A CRY IN THE NIGHT

(Republic, 1992) D/S/P: Robin Spry
P: Jamie Brown Canada

Carol Higgins Clark stars in this PG-13 movie based on a modern-gothic novel by her mother, Mary. A woman leaves New York City to marry a rich, eccentric artist (Perry King) in Montreal, then has nightmares about a serial killer and the death of her baby. It has too many false scares and an ending all too familiar to Psycho fans. With Annie Girardot as a crazy servant and Chris Wiggins (from the Friday the 13th TV series).

CRYSTAL FORCE

(Vista, 1990) D: Laura Keats S: Jerry Daly, Jared Brady P: Craig Suttle

A girl (Katherine McCall) buys a crystal from an antique dealer (the Devil himself) that unleashes a soul-collecting demon (a man in a monster suit). This no-star obscurity is available in R and unrated versions.

CRYSTAL HEART

(1987) D: Gil Bettman S: Linda Shayne P: Carlos Vassallo US/Spain

Tawny Kitaen is a rock singer who falls for a wealthy young Spaniard (Lee Curreri) who makes music while confined to a controlled environment because of a rare, fatal illness. With Lloyd Bochner and Marina Saura. There's some sex and a nightmare sequence.

CRY TOUGH

(1959) D: Paul Stanley S/P: Harry Kleiner

A young Puerto Rican ex-con (John Saxon) tries to go straight but gets involved with his former gang in this downbeat teen-crime movie. Saxon and Linda Cristal, as his girlfriend, were advertised as "the hottest teen stars on the screen today!" In Europe the film had a sex scene, and photos ended up in American men's magazines, creating lots more publicity. Saxon, who had been playing teens since Running Wild (1955) and was about to graduate to more adult roles, tries to act like Brando. Joseph Calleia, Don Gordon, Perry Lopez, and Harry Townes costar.

CRY UNCLE!

(Troma, 1971) D/E: John Avildsen
S: David Odell P: David Jay Disick

Donald Pleasence in Polanski's Cul-de-Sac.

Avildsen made this sex-and-bad-taste comedy for Cambist after the success of Joe. Allen Garfield, as a slob New York City detective, is hired by a man being blackmailed by the women he acted with in a porno movie. With Madeline de le Roux, Debbi Morgan, Paul Sorvino, and a necrophilia scene that people were talking about. Lloyd Kaufman acts and was the production manager, and his company, Troma, later became the distributor. Garfield/Goorwitz had been in other adults-only movies like Orgy Girls and Roommates (both 1969).

CRY WILDERNESS

(1987) D/P: Jay Schlossberg-Cohen S/P: Philip Yordan

A Bigfoot creature (an actor in an ape suit) befriends a student. His father, an Indian, and a big-game hunter think the creature is an escaped tiger. With Faith Cliff from Cataclysm. The often out-of-focus PG release is very low-budget.

CTHULHU MANSION

(Republic, 1990) D/S/P: Juan Piquer Simón
P: José G. Maesso Spain

This is supposed to be based on H. P. Lovecraft, but don't be fooled again. Frank Finlay stars as Chandu, a stage illusionist whose assistant is his daughter (Marcia Layton). A group of obnoxious, drug-dealing delinquents (including Melanie Shatner) hold them hostage in their own remote house and the captors die in various supernatural ways. It all has something to do with Chandu's wife, his former assistant, who burned to death during a show. Her demise is shown in b/w several times. You can see the microphone and watch for continuity problems to pass the time.

CUJO

(Warner, 1983) D: Lewis Teague
S: Don Carlos Dunaway, Lauren Currier
P: Daniel H. Blatt, Robert Singer

A killer-dog Stephen King adaptation that starts like a long soap opera. Eventually a woman who has been having an affair (Dee Wallace after E.T.) and her kid (Danny Pintauro) are in a car being attacked by a vicious, rabid Saint Bernard. The dog had been bitten by vampire bats. The dog FX are excellent (they used several mechanical and real dogs). With Christopher Stone and Ed Lauter. Teague followed this with King's Cat's Eye (1985)

CUL-DE-SAC

(Nightmare, 1966) D/S: Roman Polanski
S: Gerard Brach P: Gene Gutowsky

Look for this odd early Polanski comedy/drama, his last in b/w. Donald Pleasence is a retired businessman living in a castle on a remote island with his bored French wife (Françoise Dorleac). Two wounded gangsters (Lionel Stander and Jack MacGowran) arrive by car during the low tide and insist on waiting for an important phone call. Former model Jacqueline Bisset has her first speaking role. Original prints run 111 minutes. Polanski had already directed Dorleac's sister, Catherine Deneuve, in Repulsion (1965), which was also co-scripted by Brach and backed by Tony Tenser of Tygon Films.

CULT OF THE DAMNED

(1969) D/S: Robert Thom P: Jerome F. Katzman (Angel, Angel, Down We Go)

This very 60s movie (full of flashbacks, flashforwards, collages, dream sequences, and in-jokes) partially copies Pasolini's Teorema (1968) but with a Hollywood setting. It would make a good double bill with Beyond the Valley of the Dolls. Jordan Christopher is a singer in black leather named Bogart (he looks like Jim Morrison) who seduces all the members of a rich, decadent family, causing their destruction. Future lesbian folk singer Holly Near (who also narrates) is Tara, the "fat and dopey," suicidal, Christina Crawford-like daughter. Top-billed Jennifer Jones is the former-movie-star mother, and Charles Aidman is the Howard Hughes–like bisexual masochist father. Bogart's new group includes Lou Rawls and Roddy McDowall. The music is mostly pretty lightweight, and the lyrics are stupid, but my favorite scene is Bogart doing a gospel-inspired number while breaking glass. Thom also wrote Wild in the Streets and Bloody Mama, and both are better than this. AIP retitled this from Cult of the Damned to cash in on the Manson murders. Tower released the soundtrack by Mann/Weill. This has been shown (cut) on the USA Network.

CULT OF THE DEAD

(MPI, Unicorn, 1968) D/P: Juan Ibáñez D/S: Jack Hill S/P: Luis Enríquez Vergara US/Mexico (La Muerte Viviente; Snake People; Isle of the Snake People)

Boris Karloff is Count Carl von Molder who dresses like Colonel Sanders and owns a sugarcane plantation on an island off Haiti in this period voodoo/zombie movie. Molder's servant has a Bride of Frankenstein streak in her hair, can start fires with her eyes, and does some wild snake dances. His niece (Juliassa) arrives from the mainland with a sadistic French captain intent on enforcing law and order, against the wishes of a local soldier (Carlos East). When questioned about voodoo and murders, Molder says, "Zombies? Oh, really!" Meanwhile, his niece dreams that she wakes in a coffin next to a duplicate of herself. The identical women kiss each other. Rafael Múñoz (aka Santanón), a dwarf actor (who had been in Puss n Boots and three Little Red Riding Hood movies distributed by K. Gordon Murray), has flowers painted on his bald head and a walking stick with a shrunken head on the end. He brutally whips a woman to death. Molder later beats his foreman with his cane because the man fell in love with a black zombie (and was trying to have sex with her). Other female zombies attack soldiers and drink their blood. Eventually we discover that Molder is the mysterious, Satanic, cigar-smoking priest Damballa! Karloff/Molder/Damballa is played by a double most of the time but is a good horror character. At the end, explosions kill most of the cast. This is, overall, the best of the four Mexican features Boris was in. It has good music, a pretty coherent plot, and effective voodoo-ceremony scenes. The Unicorn video box "guarantees an orgy of terrifying images!"

CULT PEOPLE

(Cine Phile, 1989) P: David Del Valle, Kevin M. Glover

This is a one-hour tape of interviews in which seven actors and directors discuss their psychotronic credits. It looks like a (very professional) public access cable-TV show on a simple studio set. All the interviews are interesting, but most are too short! The best is with Cameron Mitchell, who has a great memory and a good sense of humor about his career. He says interesting and very flattering things about Mario Bava and talks about how he was typecast as a rapist in many features. Film clips are used for his segment only, and posters for his movies are on the wall. Other actors on the tape are James Karen (who talks about doing Shakespeare with John Carradine and shows a photo of himself with Marilyn Monroe) and Patrick Macnee (who discusses The Avengers and says, "Most of my friends are dead"). Michael Sarne talks about Myra Breckenridge and Waris Hussein (from India) talks about the 1963 Dr. Who TV pilot he directed. Curtis Harrington discusses working with Dennis Hopper and Simone Signoret. Russ Meyer tells a story about Fritz Lang pretending to marry Miriam Hopkins! Producers DelValle and Glover compiled the material and DelValle hosts.

CURB SERVICE

(Majestic, 1978) D: Barbara Peeters S: Dallas Meredith
P: John B. Kelly, Robert D. Frintzman (Starhops)

Three carhops try to save a failing drive-in theater. Dorothy Burnham and Jillian Kesner costar with Dick Miller. Stephanie Rothman was going to direct (she wrote the script but received no credit). Peeters, one of the only women making drive-in movies, directed only one more, Humanoids from the Deep.

CURFEW

(Starmaker, 1988) D: Gary Winick
S: Kevin Kennedy P: Julia Phillips

Wendell Wellman and John Putch are deranged brothers who escape from death row, take the DA's family hostage, and employ mental and physical torture. Kyle Richards is the daughter. From New World.

CURFEW BREAKERS

(SW, 1956) D/S: Alexander Wells
P: Charles E. King (Narcotics Squad)

A 17-year-old heroin addict commits a holdup murder and goes cold turkey ("ten days' torment") in a cell. A cop narrates and tells us about police procedures. One undercover narc works as a carhop. At the Melody Mill, a band with an upright bass, a sax, and a standup female drummer (!) plays. The female lead scat-sings ("Baby, baby"). It's a great scene. Alex Wells and Sheila Urban are the young stars. Most of the actors have southern accents and use hip lingo (cat, pad, dig; cops are called rag-pickers). Paul Kelly (who died after production) is the top-billed police lieutenant and Regis Toomey is a concerned school coach. Cathy Downs (The She Creature; The Amazing Colossal Man) is the aunt, and Byron Foulger has one scene. This must have been produced just after The Man with the Golden Arm (1955) broke the drug taboo in films. The tape is hosted by Johnny Legend.

THE CURIOUS DR. HUMPP

(SW, 1967/70) D/S: Emilio Vieyra P: Orestes Trucco Argentina (La Venganza del Sexo)

You won't believe this bizarre b/w horror/sex movie. A mad scientist (Aldo Barbero) has women kidnapped, gives them aphrodisiac shots, and watches the results ("veritable screwing machines") on closed-circuit TV with his blond assistant. The kidnapper is a black-faced monster with a light in its head, and the scientist takes orders from a talking brain (from Italy). Some added sex scenes were shot in New York City (for the 1970 US version), but the original ones are the best. In one sequence we hear strange, hypnotic music and see a pretty explicit lesbian scene. The camera sweeps around the misty grounds as zombielike patients roam around, reveals that the bizarre monster is playing the music, then returns to the bedroom. There's a reporter hero, strippers, drugs, burning bodies, and a decapitation. It's a Frank Henenlotter Sexy Shocker release.

THE CURIOUS FEMALE

(SW, 1969) D/P: Paul Rapp S: Winston R. Paul

In the year 2177 everything in LA is run by a master computer that encourages promiscuous sex. 20th-century sex movies are banned because they show relationships (!). A couple break the law by watching a film from 1969 called The Three Virgins. Angelique Pettyjohn, in her only top-billed appearance, is one of the virgins. Jazz musician Slim Gaillard plays. This soft-core sex comedy with orgy and lesbian scenes was from Fanfare.

CURIOSITY KILLS

(MCA, 1990) D: Colin Bucksey S: Joe Batteer, John Rice P: Alan Barnette

C. Thomas Howell, as an apartment-house handyman and a photographer, suspects a tenant has been killed when Jeff Fahey moves into a loft. This USA network movie "in the Hitchcock tradition" features Rae Dawn Chong as a sculptor, Courteney Cox, and Paul Guilfoyle.

THE CURSE

(Media, 1987) D: David Keith S: David Chaskin
P: Olividio G. Assonitis (The Farm)

Strange growths and maggots appear on an isolated Tenesseee farm after a meteor falls. The locals become mutant, pus-filled killers. It's based on the same H. P. Lovecraft story as Die, Monster, Die (1965). Wil Wheaton and his real-life sister Amy star, with Claude Akins as their religious-fanatic stepfather, John Schneider, and Cooper Huckabee. Director Keith (usually an actor) has a bit part. It was partially filmed in Rome. Lucio Fulci was the associate producer.

CURSE II: THE BITE

(TWE, 1988) D/S: "Fred Goodwin"/Federico Prosperi S: Susan Zelouf P: Ovidio G. Assonitis, Kenichi Tominaga Italy/Japan (The Bite)

Because of an incorrect injection after a snake bite, J. Eddie Peck's hand mutates into a giant snake head and he vomits snakes. When he cuts the snake off, it grows back. This retitled feature has no relation to The Curse but is much better. It's a surprising horror/road movie set in New Mexico. Some Asian horror ideas are used, and Screaming Mad George provided the FX. Jill Schoelen is the horrified girlfriend. With Savina Gersak, Jamie Farr, Bo Svenson as a sheriff, and Sydney Lassick. It was filmed in New Mexico.

CURSE III: BLOOD SACRIFICE

(RCA, 1990) D/S: Sean Barton S: John Hunt
P: Christopher Coy S. Africa (Panga)

The business of unrelated "sequels" has gone too far. This movie was called Panga. Review copies were even circulated using that title. Some genius decided at the last minute to retitle it, so now it's part of a "series." By any name, it sucks. It's set in East Africa in 1950 and concerns a pregnant American woman (Jenilee Harrison) who's cursed by a witch doctor. It's full of irritating false scares, offscreen killings, plot inconsistencies, and scenes that are too dark to make out. A briefly seen monster (created by Chris Wallas) looks suspiciously like the fish man from Screamers. One black character who seems like a hero for a few seconds is immediately decapitated. The positive parts are (I guess) gray-haired Christopher Lee as a doctor in a white suit who knows more than he lets on, a topless scene, and some bloody bodies.

CURSE IV: THE ULTIMATE SACRIFICE

(Columbia, 1988) D: David Schmoeller
S: Giovanni DiMarco, R. Barker Prince
P: Hope Perello (Catacombs)

This long-shelved Empire feature, made in Italy, was later sold as a "sequel." It's better than average, with interesting characters and dialogue. "The Beast," a muscular guy with long white hair who was locked in a cell in an abbey in 1506, comes back to life. There are nightmares, flashbacks, and several standout scenes. A crucified Christ statue comes to life, pulls out the nails, and kills a monk. One possessed character walks on the ceiling. Jeremy West stars as the very strict new brother superior, with Laura Schaefer as a visiting American Catholic-school teacher, and Timothy Van Patten as a young monk who's losing his faith. The soundtrack is by Pino Donaggio.

THE CURSED MEDALLION = NIGHT CHILL

CURSE OF DEMON MOUNTAIN: See SHADOW OF CHIKARA

THE CURSE OF HER FLESH

(SW, 1968) D/S/P: Julian Marsh
P/C: "Anna Riva"/ Roberta Findly

In the twisted b/w immediate sequel to The Touch of Her Flesh (1967), the one-eyed Richard Jennings (Robert West) is now posing as the owner of a strip club. He uses a sword, an arrow, a switchblade, and poison ropes to kill people (mostly strippers). Eventually he kills his late wife's actor lover in an open-top truck with a machete. With topless dancers, a nude S&M lesbian stage show ("the red-hot scandal of 1968") with whips, a stag film called Squash Crazy, and lots of talk about how fucked up the world is. The end titles say, "Has this ended the bloody career of Richard Jennings? Don't fail to see The Kiss of Her Flesh, coming soon to this theatre."

CURSE OF THE BLUE LIGHT

(Magnum, 1988) D/S/P: John H. Johnson

In this amateur-looking Lovecraft-inspired movie shot in Colorado, teens battle oozing zombies and creatures that live underneath a graveyard. They were only trying to resurrect an ancient stone creature. Available in R and unrated versions.

CURSE OF THE CRYSTAL EYE

(New Horizons, 1989) D: Joe Tornatore S: Mikel Angel P: Robert Patterson, Maurice Smith

Jameson Parker searches for the treasure of Ali Baba in Bombay, in the desert, and in some caverns. He also falls for an ambassador's daughter (Cynthia Rhodes, who smiles a lot). The light adventure features lots of extras and horses, and since it's a Corman production those scenes are mostly likely from another movie. Also with a ridiculous and useless floating carpet, unconvincing quicksand, and Parker in blackface. Mike Lane is Hashim. It was filmed in Mauritius.

CURSE OF THE EVIL SPIRIT: See BLOOD SHACK

CURSE OF THE HEADLESS HORSEMAN

(VSOM, 1971) D/S/P: "John Kirkland"/ Leonard Kirkman

This was made back to back with the awful Carnival of Blood. It's set at a western theme park. Ultra Violet has a bit part. Kirkman also directed porn movies as Leon Gucci.

CURSE OF THE HIDDEN VAULT

(1964) D/S: F. J. Gottlieb S: R. A. Stemmle W. Germany (Die Gruft mit der Ratselschoss)

Based on Edgar Wallace's Angel Esquire, which had been filmed in England in 1919. With Judith Dornys, Harold Leipnitz, Werner Peters, and Klaus Kinski as George. It was released directly to American TV.

CURSE OF THE LIVING DEAD: See NIGHTSTALKER

CURSE OF THE PINK PANTHER

(MGM, 1983) D/S/P: Blake Edwards S: Geoffrey Edwards P: Tony Adams

The Plan 9 of detective comedies, part II. This film consists of outtakes from Trail of the Pink Panther (1982) made at the same time and also featuring Peter Sellers (who had died in 1980), combined with new footage. David Niven's voice, weakened by the disease he died of in 1984, was dubbed by impressionist Rich Little. Herbert Lom, as Inspector Dreyfus, hires a New York cop (Ted Wass, the real star), who talks to Niven, Capucine, and Robert Wagner. At the end, Clouseau turns out to be Roger Moore "after plastic surgery" (!). With Bert Kwouk, Joanna Lumley, Robert Loggia, and Harvey Korman. Yet another Pink Panther movie was made in 1992.

CURSE OF THE QUEERWOLF

(Raedon, 1987) D/S/P/E: Michael Pirro

This pun-filled Super 8 Wolfman parody, filmed in Santa Monica, is more silly than offensive and has some funny moments. It makes fun of gays and also homophobic, macho bachelors. Larry Smallbutt (Michael Palazzolo) becomes a queerwolf (or dickanthrope) after being bitten on the ass by a woman he picked up in a bar (who turns out to be a man but is played by an actress). After the transformation, Larry suddenly has an earring, limp wrists, and a red hanky in his back pocket. He wakes up in a gay bathhouse. All the werewolf clichés (the full moon, the Gypsy,) are here, but this Larry has to be killed by a silver dildo. Deliverance, The Beverly Hillbillies, The Exorcist, and John Wayne are also parodied. Forrest J. Ackerman has his strangest bit part so far as a patient who is force-fed alcohol until he expands and explodes, and Ed Wood Jr. regular Conrad Brooks is also in the cast. Pirro also made (and starred in) A Polish Vampire in Burbank (1983) and Death Row Gameshow (1987).

CURSE OF THE SCREAMING DEAD

(Mogul, 1982) D/P: Tony Malinowsky S: Lon Huber

Hunters and their girlfriends find a diary that brings back Confederate-soldier zombie cannibals. This was shot in Maryland and has some gore and some bad makeup.

CURSE OF THE YELLOW SNAKE

(Video Yesteryear, 1963) D/S: Franz-Josef Gottlieb S: Janne Furch W. Germany (Der Fluch der Gelben Schlange)

Joachim Fuchsberger is a millionaire who owns a legendary ancient artifact called "the Yellow Snake." His evil part-Asian brother, Fing Tsu (Pinkus Braun), wants it and uses a Chinese terrorist gang to steal it. The odd camera angles and lighting make this one to look for. It's based on a novel by Edgar Wallace.

CURTAINS

(Vestron, 1982) D: "Jonathan Stryker"/Richard Ciupka S: Robert Guza Jr. P: Peter R. Simpson Canada

Samantha Eggar goes undercover in an asylum to research a film role but her director husband (John Vernon) arranges for her to stay there. Then he brings six young actresses to his country estate for auditions to replace his wife in film. Somebody in a mask starts killing them off. With Linda Thorsen and Maury Chaykin. The director of the film within the film has the same name as the one that the real director hides behind in the credits.

CUT AND RUN

(Starmaker, 1984) D: Ruggiero Deodato S: Cesare Frugoni P: Alessandro Fracassi Italy (Amazonia: La Jungle Blanche; Amazon: Savage Adventure)

This New World release, shot in Venezuela and Miami, concerns the missing son of a rich American and a jungle cocaine factory. Lisa Blount and Leonard Mann star as a Miami reporter and a student cameraman. Richard Lynch is the drug-dealing ex–Green Beret colonel who was behind the Jonestown massacre (!), seen in flashbacks. Michael Berryman, as the scary, bald Indian leader Quecho, attacks with a group of (real) Indians using blowguns and machetes. The beautiful Valentina Forte costars, with Willie Aames (Eight Is Enough), Gabriele Tinti, John Steiner, and the briefly seen Karen Black. The music by Claudio Simonetti (of Goblin) is excellent. The American release was drastically cut for an R rating, but Inferno in Direta (Video Search of Miami) is an uncut, dubbed version (in French) featuring Quecho decapitating nude women and some more gore.

CUTTER

(1972) D: Richard Irving S/P: Dean Hargrove

Peter De Anda (Come Back, Charleston Blue) stars as a post-Shaft black private eye in Chicago looking for a missing quarterback. With Barbara Rush, Stepin Fetchit, Cameron Mitchell as a coach, Gabriel Dell, and Robert Webber. From NBC.

CUTTER'S WAY

(MGM, 1981) D: Ivan Passer S: Jeffrey Alan Fiskin P: Paul R. Gurian (Cutter and Bone)

Two forgotten lowlifes expose the corrupt rich. Jeff Bridges is gigolo and beach bum Bone. John Heard is crippled, alcoholic, one-eyed Nam vet Cutter, who sees a a wealthy man dump the body of a high-school cheerleader in the trash. With Lisa Eichhorn as Mo, Stephen Elliot, Ann Dusenberry, and Nina Van Pallandt. It's based on the novel by Newton Thornburg and was shot in Santa Barbara. The music is by Jack Nitzsche. From United Artists.

THE CUTTHROATS

(American, 1969) D/S/P: John Hayes P: Daniel Cady (She Devils of the SS; SS Cutthroats)

This one starts like a western, with a theme song "The Ballad of Jimmy Johnson," but Jimmy turns out to be a cowboy/soldier in Germany (looking an awful lot like Southern California) at the end of WWII. The first scene is a roadside rape (this seems to be common in Hayes' movies). Six soldiers kill a bunch of Germans (on a golf course!) and end up with (surprise!) six remaining fräuleins, who put on a silly burlesque show. Everybody has (faked) sex (in a steam room, in a room with a swastika bedspread), plots against each other, and fights over jewels. Uschi Digart (Supervixens) in a military uniform, strips and pours wine over her breasts to celebrate the end of the war. This played on 42nd Street in 1984(!).

CUTTHROATS NINE

(Liberty, 1973) D/S: Joaquín Romero Marchent
Spain/Italy (Condenadores a Vivir)

In possibly the most violent Eurowestern ever made, seven chained prisoners are escorted by a cavalry guard (Robert Hundar) and his daughter (Emma Cohen). When this played in some American theaters, "terror masks" were given to patrons so that they could hide their eyes during brutal scenes.

CUTTING CLASS

(Republic, 1989) D: Rospo Pallenberg S: Steve Slavkin, P: Rudy Cohen, Donald R. Beck

Donovan Lietch (the son of the singer) was in an asylum because he was blamed for axe murders. Now in school, he wants A student Jill Schoelen. An art teacher is baked in a kiln, a head is smashed in a vise, and there's death by Xerox machine and power tools, in this better-than-average slasher spoof from a director who wrote John Boorman films. Wall of Voodoo provides some music. With Roddy McDowall as the principal, future star Brad Pitt, Martin Mull, and Dirk Blocker (son of Dan).

CYBER C.H.I.C.

(Hemdale, 1990) D: Ed Hansen D/S: Jeff Mandel
P: Mark Paglia, Douglas Grimm (Roboc.h.i.c)

Playboy Playmate Kathy Shower was associate producer of this overlong dumb comedy but she quit after the shooting started and the credited director was replaced too. Another woman was called in to impersonate Shower for most of the movie. The show must go on. . . . Without the awful gags, and pimp/hooker biker/drug dealer subplot it could have been an OK kids movie. She acts like Data on Star Trek as a heroic robot with curly blonde hair. She wears a body stocking for a brief "nude" scene. Burt (Robin) Ward is embarassing as a pudgy, nerdy, nervous terrorist and so are Jack Carter as a mad scientist in a wheelchair and the Firesign Theatre's Phil Proctor (fast becoming a regular in bad movies) as the police chief.

CYBEREDEN

(VSOM, 1993) D/S/P: Mario Orfini S: Grazia Giardiello, Roberto Iannone Italy (Jackpot)

Adriano Celentano (a comedian and rock singer) stars as a gardener who helps rescue a kid from a computer-generated world. Kate Verson costars, with Christopher Lee and Carroll Baker. It was a major release in Italy.

CYBERNATOR

(Vista, 1991) D/S/A: Robert Rundle
S/P/A: Edward Sanchez

Lonnie Schuler is a hero cop in LA of the future. His (black) partner is killed, and he uncovers a conspiracy concerning cyborgs. His blond stripper girlfriend (Christina Peralta) looks a lot like Hillary Clinton, and she makes some hilarious faces while trying to act. Most of the time is taken up with talking, shooting, strippers in a bar, and some out-of-focus sex. With Michael Foley (Divine Enforcer) as a white-faced martial-arts-fighting cyborg with tubes in his head, William Smith (with hair), Jay Richardson, and an obese belly dancer.

CYBERTRACKER

(Image, 1993) D/P: Richard Pepin
S: Jacobsen Hart P: Richard Merhi

Don "the Dragon" Wilson stars as a futuristic secret-service agent who is framed for murder. He's pursued by cyborgs and joins the rebels. With Richard Norton, Stacie Foster, Steve Burton, John Aprea, and Jim Maniaci.

CYBORG

(Warner, 1988) D: Albert Pyun
S: Kitty Chalmers P: Golan/Globus

Jean-Claude Van Damme stars as Gibson, who goes from futuristic Atlanta to New York with a cure for the plague. This Mad Max copy was made with remains of the unfinished Masters of the Universe II. There's a revenge plot, flashbacks, torture, crucificxion, and lots of action, but it was cut for an R. With Deborah Richter (Miss California 1975), Dayle Haddon as Pearl Prophet, a robot, Rolf Muller, and Vincent Klyn as the leader of the Flesh Pirates gang. Characters are named after electric guitars (Fender, Rickenbacker). It was filmed at the DEG studios in Wilmington, North Carolina, by Cannon

CYBORG II

(Vidmark, 1993) D/S:Michael Schroeder
S: Ron Yanover, Mark Goodman P: Raju Patel, Alain Silver (Glass Shadow)

An impressive copy of the city in Blade Runner shows us that this is the future. Elias Koteas falls for the very nice-looking Angelina Jolie, an acrobatic, kung-fu-fighting creation of corporate bad guys, and they go on the run "topside." Some parts are slow or corny, but this is an impressive-looking movie with a fun cast. Jack Palance hovers over everything as the loud, helpful, philosophical Mercy. He narrates ("I am the voice of God Almighty!"), his mouth shows up on TV screens, and during a sex scene he watches and cries. Billy Drago is memorable as a pale drug-addict killer who loses it when his face is destroyed, Karen Shepard is a torturing villainess, and a gray-bearded Allen Garfield is a corporate villain. With Tracey Walter, Renée Ammann, and a brief flashback of Cyborg star Jean-Claude Van Damme. Peter Allen wrote the music. The FX are by KNB. Cyborg III, by the same director, followed.

CYBORG COP

(Vidmark, 1993) D: Sam Firstenberg
S: Greg Latter P: Danny Lerner

David Bradley stars as a former cop who goes to the Caribbean and finds that his former partner (Todd Jensen) is now a cyborg. With John Rhys-Davies and Alonna Shaw (topless). It was shot in South Africa.

CYBORG COP II

(Vidmark, 1994) D: Sam Firstenberg
S/P: Danny Learner

David Bradley returns, and this time a psycho killer named Starkraven (Morgan Hunter) becomes a cyborg. Jill Pierce costars. Cyborg Cop III (without Bradley) and Cyborg Soldier (with Bradley) followed, both by Firstenberg.

CYBORG: THE SIX MILLION DOLLAR MAN = THE SIX MILLION DOLLAR MAN

CYCLE PSYCHO: See SAVAGE ABDUCTION

CYCLE VIXENS

(Simitar, 1977) D/P: Peter Perry D/S: John Arnoldoy
C: Ron Garcia (Young Cycle Girls)

Three bored, underage Colorado girls in cutoffs decide to ride their motorcycles to California. The bearded dad of two of them actually says okay. Their friend has to sneak out. After some comedy hijinks and riding in their bikinis for a while, they meet a drugged-out couple. This leads to rape and stolen bikes. They recover, determined to make it to the Coast, but once they get there they are all shot dead! Now, that's exploitation. Lorraine Ferris is top-billed. It's a cut version. Cinematographer Garcia shot Coppola's One From the Heart not long after this.

CYCLONE

(RCA, 1986) D/A: Fred Olen Ray S: Paul Garson, T. L. Langford P: Paul Hertzberg

Secret agents are after a supercharged motorcycle. Heather Thomas (The Fall Guy) stars, with Jeffrey Combs as her brainy boyfriend and Martin Landau as the main villain. There are lots of chase scenes. With Martine Beswick, Robert Quarry, Huntz Hall, Troy Donahue, Russ Tamblyn, Dawn Wildsmith, Michael Reagan (the ex-president's adopted son!), and Tim Conway Jr. Also with Ashley Ferrare, Michelle Bauer, and Pamela Gilbert in a shower, and Ray himself.

CZECH MATE

(1984) D: John Hough S: Jeremy Burnham UK

The first of 13 Hammer "House of Mystery and Suspense" TV movies. Susan George and her former husband (Patrick Mower) go to Prague, he disappears and she's arrested as a spy. It was filmed in Vienna.

DADDY-O

(RCA, 1958) D: Lou Place S: David Moessinger
P: Elmer Rhoden Jr. (Out on Probation)

Singer Dick Contino is hired by gangsters to drive a getaway car. Sandra Giles costars in this AIP teen movie, originally released on a double bill with Road Racers. With Bruno Ve Sota and Gloria Victor. The music is by John Williams, who went on to become the most successful film composer in the business.

DADDY'S BOYS

(RCA, 1987) D: Joe Minion S/A: Daryl Haney P: Roger Corman

A psychotic widower (Raymond J. Barry) and his three sons go on a crime spree. Jimmy (Daryl Haney) joins up with a hooker (Laura Burkett), and they become "Adam and Eve" criminals. With Dan Shor and Linda Shayne. Minion, who wrote Scorsese's After Hours, was given one week's notice by Corman to shoot this in a matter of days on sets left over from Big Bad Mama II. From Concorde.

DADDY'S DEADLY DARLINGS

(Paragon, 1972) D/S/P/A: Marc Lawrence (Pigs)

A psychotic woman (Toni Lawrence) takes a job as a hired hand at a pig farm. She lures men to their death (and castrates them with a razor). Zambrini (Marc Lawrence), her boss, feeds the bodies to his pigs. Jesse Vint is the sheriff. Aquarius released this odd (and too dark-looking) family project made by character actor Lawrence (whose real name is Max Goldsmith) in 1984.

DAGGER EYES

(VSOM, 1983) D/S: Carlo Vanzina
S: Enrico Vanzina Italy

Assassins try to kill a hooker (Carole Bouquet) for a lighter containing negatives showing a politician's assassination. With Janet Angren as another hooker, John Steiner, and Gabrille Tinti.

DALI

(1989) D: Antonio Ribas S: Miguel Sanz, Enrico Goma, Temistocles López P: Vito, Ricardo Di Bari Spain/Italy

Lorenzo Quinn (Anthony's son) stars as Dali, and Sarah Douglas is his muse, Gala. The film centers on their much-publicized time in New York in 1940. Flashbacks show the eccentric, self-promoting artist's early days in Spain and his work with Buñuel on films. Some easier-to-find documentary tapes are Salvador Dali: A Self-Portrait (Pacific Arts), narrated by Orson Welles, and The Definite Dali (Kulture).

THE DALTON GIRLS

(Fang, 1957) D: Reginald LeBorg
S: Maurice Tombragel P: Howard Koch

The late-50s teen explosion affected every kind of movie. This is a juvenile-delinquent western with female gunslingers. When the Dalton gang is killed off, their female relatives take over. Merry Anders is the leader. With John Russell, Lisa Davis, and Penny Edwards. LeBorg also directed Voodoo Island at United Artists the same year.

DAMAGED GOODS

(SW, 1937) D: Phil Stone
S: Upton Sinclair P: Irving Starr

The script (by the author of the famous exposé The Jungle) is based on the 1903 play about venereal disease by Eugène Brieux. Pedro De Cordoba plays a doctor.

DAMAGED GOODS

(T&A, 1961) D/S: Haile Chace P: Sid Davis (VD)

This movie about high-school seniors in trouble borrows an old title and features a five-minute US Public Health Service documentary on the evils of venereal disease at the end. The school's star athlete gets VD after a drunken night with a hooker in a seaside town. The instrumental theme song is by the Ventures. The video box makes this tame film appear to be a porno movie.

DAMAGED LIVES

(1933) D/S: Edgar G. Ulmer S: Don Davis

This "adults-only" VD movie was Ulmer's first film in the US. The 70-minute drama about the dangers of fooling around was made for the Canadian Social Health Council by Columbia. It was originally followed by a filmed 10-minute lecture on venereal disease (one for men and a different one for women) presented by a doctor (actor Murray Kinnell, the carnival barker in Freaks). The actors include Diana Sinclair, Lyman Williams, and Jason Robards Sr. The feature was from the Weldon Picture company.

DAMNED RIVER

(Fox, 1989) D: Michael Schroeder S: John Crowther, Bayard Johnson P: Lance Hool

Deliverance strikes again. Stephen Shellen is a very psychotic killer who guides a group of yuppies on a river adventure in Africa. With John Terlesky. Schroeder also made Out of the Dark.

DAMSELVIS

(Big Broad, 1994) D/S/P: John Michael McCarthy

This one-hour underground-style (altered video footage, b/w/color) feature shows a rural schoolgirl (Sherry Lynn Garris) who is killed, then reborn, on a motorcycle wearing white leather fringe. Others follow her to a pyramid in Tupelo, where a monster Elvis fights a black Jesus. It's pretty interesting, with some gore and the star and her killer (Ghetty Chasum) are both naked in the woods. The music is mostly one guitar with some feedback. Hugh Gallagher, who made Gorotica with some of the same cast (also in Memphis), was the cameraman. McCarthy, a cartoon- ist, also created a fumetti (Italian photo comic strip) version.

DANCE HALL RACKET

(Hollywood Confidential, 1953) D: Phil Tucker
S/A: Lenny Bruce P: George Weiss

The ill-fated standup comedian and social commentator Lenny Bruce appears in his only feature as Vinnie, a murdering bouncer with a switchblade at Scali's Dance Emporium. The racket is run by Ed Wood Jr. movie regular Timothy Farrell as Umberto Scali. The cast includes Honey Harlowe (Bruce's real-life stripper wife) and Sally Marr (his mother), who does the Charleston. The adults-only feature, by the director of Robot Monster (1953) and the producer of Glen or Glenda, features a little nudity. It's only 55 minutes long. Farrell played basically the same character in The Devil's Sleep and Pin Down Girls. Bruce had also written the script for The Rocket Man (1954), an RKO film about a boy with a space gun that makes crooked people honest.

DANCE MACABRE

(Columbia, 1991) D/S/A: Greydon Clarke
P: Menahem Golan

Argento fans might get a few laughs out of this stupid Suspiria ripoff filmed in Saint Petersburg (!) Robert Englund (with a beard and facial scar) stars as an American choreographer at a Russian dancing school. He also plays a ridiculous-looking crippled lady ballerina. Englund in drag (with a fake nose) speaking with a voice box is not a pretty (or convincing) sight. Blond Michelle Zeitlin (from Lambada) does not look anything like a ballerina, and her acting is worse than Englund's. Of course there are murders, flashbacks, dreams, nude scenes, and that surprise (!) ending. All I could think of was what the Russian actors thought of their new freedom to act in international junk like this. Harry Alan Towers backed the 21st Century release, which was called Phantom of the Opera II in some countries.

DANCE OF DEATH

(MPI, Unicorn, 1968) D: Juan Ibáñez
D/S: Jack Hill S/P: Luis Enríquez Vergara
US/Mexico (Macabre Serenade; House of Evil)

In 1900 in Europe Boris Karloff (with mutton-chop whiskers) plays spooky music on a pipe organ in his mansion. He cheerfully insults all his relatives (including Julissa), who arrive for the reading of a will, and talks of his brother Hugo, who plucked out his eyes after "his brain shrank." Boris dies early in the movie, and Hugo's diabolical "toys" begin killing people. One is shot by a toy cannon, another by a suit of armor, others by jerky, life-size dolls. At the end we discover that Boris is still alive (!), playing a special hidden organ that shoots flames, and everything burns up. The worst of the last four Karloff movies, both boring and senseless, this wasn't released until 1978!

DANCE OF THE DAMNED

(Virgin, 1988) D/S: Katt Shea Ruben S/P: Andy Ruben

This vampire movie uses the same Venice, California, sets used in Stripped to Kill II, also by executive producer Roger Corman and Ruben. At Cafe Paradise, where topless dancers seem to be in Flashdance outtakes, Cyril O'Reilly, a young, ultrahip long-haired vampire (who sees everything in monochrome), watches a very thin stripper (Starr Andreef). He offers the suicidal young woman $1000 to talk. They take a bus, go to the beach, then go to his pad. The caring vampire, who has an exercise bike and hates cigarette smoke, cries and talks about his bitter life. She says her best friend as a child was her Barbie Doll. Except for scenes of bullets popping out of his chest and a skinhead attack on the bus, this is actionless and bloodless. With Maria Ford. Corman had it remade as To Sleep with a Vampire.

DANCE OR DIE

(City Lights, 1987) D/S: Richard Munchin
P: Richard Pepin, Joseph Meri

This was called a horror movie, but it's a story about a guy (Ray Kieffer) trying to stay away from drugs while he choreographs a musical in Las Vegas. Lots of people are shot.

DANCE WITH DEATH

(HBO, 1990) D: Charles Philip Moore
S: Daryl Haney P:Mike Elliot

Roger Corman and his Concorde company reuse everything. This is a remake of Stripped to Kill, from only four years earlier, based on the story (and film) by Katt Shea Ruben and Andy Ruben. It uses some of the music from Corman's Naked Obsession and In the Heat of Passion. A reporter (Barbara Alyn Jones) goes undercover as a stripper to find the serial killer who preys on the dancers. With Maxwell Caulfield as the prime suspect, Martin Mull as the strip-club owner, Catya Sassoon as a lesbian, Maria Ford, and Kelly Crosby.

DANGER MAN

(MPI series, 1961) UK

Patrick McGoohan stars as security investigator John Drake in a b/w series filmed on location around the world. 4 half-hour volumes are available. McGoohan later returned as Drake twice, in two better-known series, Secret Agent and The Prisoner. The star, often considered British, was born in New York City.

THE DANGEROUS

(Orion, 1994) D/S: Rod Hewitt
P: David Winters (Divine Wind)

This revenge thriller received attention because its costar, Paula Barbieri, was O. J. Simpson's girlfriend. The cast includes Robert Davi, Michael Pare, Joel Grey, John Savage, Cary-Hiroyuki Tagawa, and Elliott Gould. It was shot in New Orleans.

A DANGEROUS AGE

(Sinister, 1959) D/S: Sidney J. Furie Canada

An underage girl runs away from boarding school to be with her lover. It's pretty boring. With Ann Pearson, Ben Piazza, and Kate Reid. This was the first film by Furie, who later worked in England (Dr. Blood's Coffin, The Snake Woman, The Ipcress File) and the US.

DANGEROUS ASSIGNMENT

(Sinister series, 1952)

Brian Donlevy stars as secret agent Steve Mitchell in a syndicated series filmed on location around the world. Donlevy, who also starred in the radio version, went on to play Professor Quatermass in two Hammer films. 17 volumes, each containing 2 half-hour shows, are available.

DANGEROUS GAME

(Academy, 1988) D: Stephen Hopkins S: Peter West P: Judith Est, Basil Appleby Australia

A psychotic Irish cop (Steven Grives) on suspension stalks punk-look teens who break into a department store. With Kathryn Walker and Miles Buchanan. Similarities to Die Hard were played up on the video box. Hopkins went on to direct Nightmare V, Predator II, and others in the US.

DANGEROUS GAME

(MGM, 1993) D: Abel Ferrara S: Nicholas St. John P: Mary Kane (Snake Eyes)

Harvey Keitel (who had just starred in Ferrara's Bad Lieutenant) is Eddie Israel, a Ferrara-like New York director. He goes to LA to make a movie called Mother of Mirrors, starring an acting couple (Madonna and James Russo). The director and his female star have an affair. Ferrara's real-life wife plays Israel's wife. Both of the falling-apart relationships are affected by the characters in the movie being made (and lots of drugs are taken). There's a clip from Burden of Dreams, with Werner Herzog. Like most movies with Madonna, this was a commercial flop. R and unrated versions are available.

DANGEROUS HEART

(MCA, 1994) D: Michael Scott
S: Patrick Cirillo P: Harvey Frand

Tim Daly stars as a drug-dealing killer who pretends to be a businessman and has an affair with a cop's wife (Lauren Holly). Joe Pantoliano costars.

DANGEROUS LOVE

(Media, 1988) D/S: Marty Ollstein
P: Brad Krevoy, Steven Stabler

Women using a video dating service are killed by a psycho who videotapes the murders. A detective (Elliott Gould) is on the case. With Lawrence Monoson, Brenda Bakke, Teri Austin, and soap-opera star Anthony Geary. From Roger Corman/Concorde.

DANGEROUSLY CLOSE

(Media, 1986) D: Albert Pyun S/A: John Stockwell S: Scott Field P: Harold Sobel

In another inferior copy of Massacre at Central High, a Nazi-like gang of psycho yuppies called the Sentinels (led by John Stockwell) scare poor kids at school. Violence and death result. The hero is J. Eddie Peck, and the cast includes Carey Lowell, Dedee Pfeiffer, Angel Tompkins, and Karen Witter. The various artists soundtrack is on Enigma.

DANGEROUS OBSESSION

(AIP, 1986) D/S: Lucio Fulci S/P: Vincenzo Salviani S: Ludovica Marineo, Jesús Balcazar
Italy (Il Miele del Diavolo; Devil's Honey)

This erotic revenge movie copies 9 1/2 Weeks and even has a sax-player character who tries to look like Mickey Rourke. The star, though, is Bianca Marsillach, as Jessica, who takes her clothes off at every possible opportunity. Her boyfriend, an abusive, kinky, bisexual, exhibitionist musician, dies on the operating table after a motorcycle accident. She blames Dr. Simpson (Brett Halsey), a surgeon who is turned on by the color red and cheats on his wife (Corinne Clery) with hookers in the office. Jessica kidnaps the doc, smashes his car with an axe, and keeps him tied up naked at a beach house, feeding him dog food, while she walks around naked and recites poetry ("the Devil's honey pot"). She also drops molten wax on him and says, "My name is fear!" All the while, we see on/off flashbacks showing how the sax man messed with her mind and got her pregnant. Halsey, the star of The Return of the Fly (1959), moved to Europe in the 60s and married actress Luciana Paluzzi. The US video is cut (of course).

DANGEROUS TO KNOW

(1938) D: Robert Florey S: William R. Lipman, Horace McCoy

In this adaptation of On the Spot, by Edgar Wallace, Anna May Wong (who had been in a Broadway version) stars as Madame Lan Ling, the mistress of a wealthy crime boss (Akim Tamiroff). She seeks revenge when he gets interested in another woman (Gail Patrick). With Lloyd Nolan, Anthony Quinn, Roscoe Karns, and Hedda Hopper.

DANGER WOMAN

(1946) D: Lewis D. Collins S: Joseph Michael P: Morgan B. Cox

Don Porter stars as a scientist working on atomic energy. His long-missing wife (Patricia Morison) shows up with some crooks out to steal his formula. Brenda Joyce costars, with Milburn Stone and Samuel S. Hinds. This 59-minute Universal B movie was part of the original TV "Shock" (horror films) package in the 50s.

DANGER ZONE

(MGM, 1986) D: Henry Vernon S/P/A: Jason Williams S/P: Tom Friedman S: Karen Levitt

Flesh Gordon star Jason Williams is Wade Olson, undercover narc. The Reaper (Robert Canada) and his coke-dealing biker gang terrorize the Skirts, a female rock band, in the desert outside Las Vegas. With Michael Wayne (son of John and producer of The Green Berets) and Suzanne Tara.

DANGER ZONE II: REAPER'S REVENGE

(M.C.E.G., 1988) D: Geoffrey G. Bowers P/A: Jason Williams S: Dulaney Ross Williams P: Tom Friedman

In this western-on-motorcycles sequel, the Reaper is released from prison and kidnaps the girlfriend (Jane Higgenson) of hero Wade Olson (Jason Williams).

DANGER ZONE III: STEEL HORSE WAR

(Premiere, 1990) D: Douglas Bronco S/P/A: Jason Williams S: Gregory Poirier

Jason Williams returns again as a bike-riding ex-cop whose girlfriend was killed by the Reaper (Robert Canada) in Part II. Danger Zone IV: Bad Girls, Mad Girls followed on cable TV, and Death Riders (Monarch, 1993) featured the same characters.

DANTE'S INFERNO

(1924) D: Henry Otto S: Cyrus Wood, Edmund Goulding

Ralph Lewis is a mean slumlord and businessman who drives a man to suicide. He's tried for murder and executed, but demons take him to Hell (represented by red-tinted footage from the Italian silent film Dante's Inferno). At the end it's all revealed to have been a dream. The 20th Century–Fox film is one hour long. A better-known 1935 version (with the same great silent footage) starred Spencer Tracy. In 1937, Dan Sonney used the Italian footage again for his roadshow movie Hellavision!

THE DAREDEVIL

(1972) D: Robert W. Stringer P: K. Gordon Murray

George Montgomery stars as a race-car driver who works for drug dealers on the side. Terry Moore and Gay Perkins costar, and Cyril Poitier is the (black) mortician villain. It was the last production of 60s showman Murray. The music is by the Brooklyn Bridge.

DAREDEVILS OF THE RED CIRCLE

(Stokey, 1939) D: William Witney, John English S: Barry Shipman, Franklyn Adreon, Rex Taylor

This action-packed 12-chapter Republic serial stars Charles Quigley, Herman Brix (in 1940 he became Bruce Bennett), Dave Sharp, and Carole Landis. Charles Middleton is the crazy ex-con #39013 who uses poison gas and other means to try to kill off the members of the Daredevils, a trio of athletes who perform at an amusement center when not battling bad guys. Mysterious messages from the Red Circle help the Daredevils (who wear big zeros on their chests). With Miles Mander and C. Montague Shaw. Snowflake, a Stepin Fetchit type of comedian, appears as himself.

DARIO ARGENTO: MASTER OF HORROR

(VSOM, 1991) D/S: Luigi Cozzi Italy

Argento's more recent features are examined behind the scenes in this 80-minute sequel to Dario Argento's World of Horror (1985). Pino Donaggio, Michelle Soavi, Cozzi, and of course Argento are interviewed. You see how the bullet FX were achieved in Opera and how melons and meat are stabbed for sound effects. Argento poses at Poe's grave in Baltimore and says that producers "are like rampaging demons born in my brain but raised by someone else." Two Evil Eyes, The Church, and Devil's Daughter are also covered. The Italian-language tape has been subtitled in English.

DARIO ARGENTO'S WORLD OF HORROR

(Vidmark, 1985) D/S: Michelle Soavi Italy

This excellent documentary includes interviews with Argento (the man loves violence) and behind-the-scenes footage of the making of every feature he directed from The Bird with the Crystal Plumage (1970) to Creepers (1985). Films he produced (Dawn of the Dead and Demons) are covered too. Viewers who have seen only the US versions of Argento's movies will be amazed by the many uncut scenes revealed here. This tape is easier to find than some of the films themselves and is a good introduction to Europe's premier horror perfectionist.

THE DARK

(Imperial, 1993) D: Craig Pryce S: Robert C. Cooper P: Robert Bregman, Craig Pryce Canada

A barely seen carnivorous rodent lives in dark tunnels under a graveyard and pulls victims under (as in Blood Beach). Stephen McHattie stars as a brooding widower scientist in leather on a motorcycle. He picks up a small-town blond waitress (Cynthia Belliveau) and later has himself buried alive (with no air supply!) as bait for the creature. Brion James is a sadistic cop, Jaimz Woolvett is a young gravedigger, and Neve Campbell is a pretty deputy sheriff. It was made in Ontario and at least is better than the director's awful Revenge of the Radioactive Reporter. It could be rated PG.

DARK AGE

(Charter, 1986) D: Arch Nicholson S: Sonia Borg P: Basil Appleby Australia

A giant killer crocodile is loose in Queensland, and poachers are after it. John Jaratt and Nicki Coghill star, and David Gulpilil (The Last Wave) leads a crocodile cult.

DARK ANGEL: THE ASCENT

(Paramount, 1993) D: Linda Hassani S: Mathew Bright P: Vlad Paunescu, Oana Paunescu

Before it turns into a love story, this unique Full Moon feature is pretty good. It's impressive and laughable at the same time. Veronica (Angela Featherstone), a pretty she-devil with wings and horns (and boots and a miniskirt), argues with her sweaty, slobbering devil father (Nicholas Worth!), who works cutting out tongues and torturing the damned in Hell (great sets!). She runs away and emerges (naked) from a sewer on a city street. The now normal-looking and clothed Veronica hypnotizes a young doctor (Daniel Markel) but gets depressed watching TV news, so she goes out for some vigilante work. She hangs a rapist and rips the spine from another, and she and her German Shepherd partially eat another. The film is supposed to be set in America but was obviously made in Romania. Charlotte Stewart is the demon mom. Bright also wrote the Drew Barrymore film Gun Crazy.

THE DARK BACKWARD

(RCA/Columbia, 1991) D/S: Adam Rifkin P: Brad Wyman, Cassian Elwes

The influence of John Waters and David Lynch on young directors (this one was 24) becomes more apparent every year. The fact that this got made (and released in some theaters) can only be due to the name stars who were brave (or desperate) enough to be in it. Judd Nelson stars as a greasy, sweaty garbage man who becomes "Desi, the three-armed wonder comic," in this warped post-everything show-biz fable. Bill Paxton takes the acting honors as his always cheerful accordion-playing partner, Gus. Wayne Newton is a riot as a small-time agent, and King Moody (who was in Teenagers from Outer Space) is pretty great as the host of The Twinkle Doodle Show. There's an incredible b/w cat-and-mouse gore cartoon, a human xylophone, and a hard-to-believe sex scene with Paxton and three of the largest women imaginable. Also in the cast are James Caan, Lara Flynn Boyle, Claudia Christian, and Rob Lowe. Producer Elwes (brother of actor Cary Elwes) also backed Jack's Back and White of the Eye. The signs for Blimps products (Weaselroni, Pork Juice) seen everywhere in the film were confusing people all over New York City in 1990, when they were posted as teaser ads. As odd as this movie is, those signs intruding into real life were even more effective.

THE DARK CRYSTAL

(Buena Vista, 1982) D/P: Jim Henson D: Frank Oz S: David Odell P: Gary Kurtz UK

In a fantasy world ruled by flesh-eating Skeksis, two remaining Geflings try to mend a magic crystal that will restore peace. This dark PG fantasy with ILM FX was made by Henson and Oz between their Muppet movies. British actress Billie Whitelaw provides one of the voices, Jim Henson and Frank Oz provide others.

DARKER THAN AMBER

(Chiron, 1970) D: Robert Clouse S: Ed Waters P: Walter Seltzer, Jack Reeves

This was the first of a planned series based on the Travis McGee books, by John D. MacDonald (who also wrote Cape Fear). Rod Taylor (the same year as Zabriske Point) stars. Bill Smith is a psychotic blond bodybuilder, and they have an incredible arm-breaking fight on a ship, done without stuntmen. Some say that Bruce Lee chose Clouse to direct his Enter the Dragon after seeing it (the scene is censored in the TV and video version). The plot concerns prostitution and drug smuggling in the Florida Keys and the Caribbean. With Suzy Kendall (The Bird with the Crystal Plumage), Theodore Bikel, Ahna Capri, Chris Robinson, and Jane Russell (in her last role) as a hooker called the Alabama Tigress. From National General Pictures.

Sam Elliott played McGee in a 1983 ABC-TV movie. Smith was also in Clouse's Ultimate Warrior (1975).

DARKEST AFRICA

(Republic, 1936) D: B. Reeves Eason, Joseph Kane S: John Rathmell P: Nat Levine

This was the very first of 66 Republic serials. The 15 chapters star real-life animal trainer Clyde Beatty as himself. In some ways it resembles Flash Gordon, from the same year. There are cool flying bat men from the lost city of Joba, tiger men, a large gorilla, and a giant lizard. With blond Elaine Shepard and the strange looking Manuel King ("the world's youngest animal trainer") as Baru, the jungle boy. Stuntman Ray Corrigan plays a bat man and a gorilla. Parts were filmed at Jungleland, a tourist park owned by King's father near Brownsville, Texas. Curly-haired Beatty, who did not look like a leading man, had already been in The Lost Jungle (1934) produced by Levine. King of Jungleland and Bat Men of Africa are condensed feature versions of this serial. The same team made Republic's second serial, The Undersea Kingdom, too.

DARK FORCES = HARLEQUIN

THE DARK HALF

(Orion, 1991) D/S: George A. Romero P: Declan Baldwin

Timothy Hutton stars as a writer using the pseudonym George Stark for his best-selling slasher novels. When he's blackmailed, his alter ego emerges and kills with a razor. The writer is blamed for the killings, and his wife (Amy Madigan) and a local sheriff (Michael Rooker) try to help clear him. Hutton's characters are obviously inspired by Stephen King and (an evil) Elvis. The 50s jd–look Stark wears all black and whistles, "Are You Lonesome Tonight?" Twins are important to the plot. With Julie Harris as a helpful, pipe-smoking professor, Robert Joy as a blackmailer, Rutanya Alda as the publisher, Royal Dano (in his last role) as a gravedigger, and "4,500" soul-transferring sparrows. It's based on King's 1989 book, set in Maine, but was shot around Pittsburgh. Romero's best film in years, it is (like his others) too long (122 minutes). The Orion release was delayed until 1993. The soundtrack is by Christopher Young.

DARK HERITAGE

(Cornerstone, 1989) D/P: David McCormick

After some campers are killed, some guys spend the night in an old mansion to try to videotape something. Later on some other guys dig a tunnel and discover the killers, people in tights and masks who jump around like monkeys. There are a few good laughs if you can stay awake through all the talk and scenes leading nowhere. A b/w dream sequence was inspired by Carnival of Souls. Filmed in Atlanta, Baton Rouge, and Geismar, Louisiana.

DARK HORSE

(Live, 1992) D: David Hemmings S: J. E. MacLean P/A: Tab Hunter

This is the uplifting story of a girl (Ari Meyers) in the Rockies and her horse. It's here simply because of the producer (who also wrote the story) and the cast. With Ed Begley Jr., Mimi Rogers, Donovan Leitch, and Samantha Eggar.

THE DARK HOUR

(Sinister, 1936) D: Charles Lamont S: Ewaet Adamson P: George R. Batcheller

Ray Walker stars as a detective in this old-dark-house murder mystery from the independent Chesterfield company. The cast includes Irene Ware (from The Raven, 1935), Hedda Hopper, E. E. Clive, William V. Mong, and Miki Morita as Choong, the butler. The 64-minute film ends with the surprise that the killer is a man in drag, a traditional cheat ending that filmmakers continue to use.

DARK INTRUDER

(Shocktoons, 1965) D: Harvey Hart S: Barre Lyndon P: Jack Laird

This atmospheric 59-minute period horror movie was a TV pilot for a projected series to be called The Black Cloak but was released to theaters by Universal instead. Another TV pilot shown in theaters, Chamber of Horrors (1966), used the same idea of a turn-of-the-century crime-solver with a dwarf assistant. They simply changed the San Francisco location to Baltimore and had the detective own a wax museum instead of being unemployed and rich. Leslie Nielsen isn't really very good as the man of leisure with a secret crime lab, but Dark Intruder has a great plot and lacks a typical happy ending. It's about a growling, hunchbacked Sumerian demon and features misty scenes in Chinatown and in a graveyard. A plot twist about an evil, deformed Siamese twin will surprise fans of Basket Case. Werner Klemperer is Professor Malaki.

DARKMAN

(MCA, 1990) D/S: Sam Raimi S: Chuck Pfarrer, Ivan Raimi, Daniel Goldin, Joshua Goldin P: Robert Tapert

Raimi's Phantom of the Opera–derived, comic-book-type movie was more successful than the more expensive Batman or Dick Tracy (both released first) in many ways. Irish actor (and future Oscar nominee) Liam Neeson is very good as the tragic scientist who develops synthetic skin that lasts only 100 minutes. After mobsters destroy his face and lab, he becomes Darkman, with a new secret headquarters. Frances McDormand (from the Coen brothers' films) is his lawyer girlfriend, and the LA mobsters are led by Larry Drake (who collects severed fingers). With Nicholas Worth, Colin Friels as a corporate villain, and Professor Tanaka. Bit parts went to John Landis and Jenny Agutter (seen briefly as doctors), Theodore Raimi, and Bruce Campbell. The stunt work is excellent, the very good FX are by Tony Gardner and Larry Hamlon, and it has another Danny Elfman score (available on MCA).

Liam Neeson, star of Darkman, with Nicholas Worth.

There were two direct-to-video MCA sequels, Darkman II: The Return of Durant and Die Darkman Die, both starring Arnold Vosloo.

DARK MANSIONS

(1986) D/P: Jerry London S: Robert L. McCullough

This TV pilot is a modern-gothic drama about a haunted estate near Seattle. Linda Purl moves there to write about the family. With Joan Fontaine, Michael York, Paul Shenar. Lois Chiles, Raymond St. Jacques, Dan O'Herlihy, Nicollette Sheridan, and Melissa Sue Anderson.

THE DARK MIRROR

(Republic, 1946) D: Robert Siodmak
S/P: Nunnally Johnson

Olivia De Havilland stars as twins Terry and Ruth Collins (one is evil) in this psychological murder mystery released by Universal, with Lew Ayres as a psychiatrist who specializes in twins (and uses ink-blot tests), Thomas Mitchell as a cop, and Richard Long. Siodmak had just made The Spiral Staircase. De Havilland returned in The Snake Pit. Jane Seymour starred in a 1984 TV remake.

DARK MISSION

(Media, 1988) D/S: Jesús Franco
P: Daniel Lesoeur France

The plot involves opium harvesting and smuggling. The stars are Christopher Lee, Brigitte Lahaie, Christopher Mitchum, and Richard Harrison. It was filmed in Portugal. Lahaie and Mitchum are also in Franco's Faceless.

DARKNESS

(Film Threat, 1992) D/S/P: Leif Jonker

Zombies (that can run) show up in a convenience store, an abandoned house, and a car wash (!) and kill local teens. Guns, a chainsaw, the sun, and holy water in a soda bottle are all used as weapons. The hero (Gary Miller) is also credited with the bloody FX. The scene of mass zombie deaths is the best. There's a synthesizer score with some heavy-metal and punk music added. The Super 8, all-teen-cast, Wichita production took 3 years to complete. Jonker claims he sold his own blood to pay the bills. That's impressive, and it's a good start, but Darkness (most of it is too dark to see) is really not as outstanding as some would have you believe.

DARK NIGHT OF THE SCARECROW

(Fox, 1981) D: Frank De Felitta
S: J. D. Feigelson P: Bobbi Frank

This CBS-TV movie is often shown on Halloween. A small-town postman (Charles Durning) reluctantly leads a vigilante group stalking a harmless retarded man (Larry Drake) blamed for the killing of a young girl. His ghost returns. With Claude Earl Jones, Lane Smith, and Jocelyn Brando. The director is a horror novelist.

DARK OBSESSION

(Prism, 1989) D: Nicholas Broomfield S: Tim Rose Price P: Tim Bevan UK (Diamond Skulls)

Amanda Donohoe and Gabriel Byrne star in a murder mystery with sex scenes and plot twists. With Michael Hordern and Sadie Frost (Bram Stoker's Dracula). R and NC-17 tapes are available. The director usually made documentaries (including Chicken Ranch).

DARK OF THE NIGHT

(Vestron, 1985) D/S/P: Gaylene Preston
S: Geoff Murphy, Graeme Tetley
New Zealand (Mr. Wrong)

A single working woman (Heather Bolton) buys a used Jaguar haunted by the ghost of the previous owner, a woman who was murdered. The ghost eventually saves her from a psycho hitchhiker, in this feminist ghost story.

THE DARK POWER

(Magnum, 1985) D/S/P: Phil Smoot

Toltec Indians, an extinct Mexican tribe, attack some college students in a house. Lash La Rue stars as the friendly, bearded ranger who eventually saves the day with his trademark whip: "Feel my whip, son of a bitch!" This fun obscurity, set in the Southwest (but made in North Carolina), includes nudity, some extreme (laughable) gore, a fat janitor who farts, and racist jocks who die while a black student lives. The tall Indian spirits have scary monster faces, but they mostly just stand around and shoot arrows. It's stupid and has a bit too much comedy, but I liked it. Great accents, several likable characters, and Lash (a star of low-budget 40s westerns) is cool. I need to see his earlier movies, directed by Ron Ormond! Lash was also in Smoot's Alien Outlaws.

DARK RIDER

(AIP, 1991) D/S: Bob Ivy S/A: Chuck Williams

Doug Shanklin stars as a small-town, motorcycle-riding Nevada sheriff who breaks the law to catch toxic-waste-spilling mobsters led by Joe Estevez. With Heidi Floria.

DARK ROMANCES, Volume I

(1986) D/S/P/C: Mark Shepard P: Patricia Miller

If you enjoy horror-anthology movies but find them too tame (or too silly), these low-budget tapes offer sex, drugs, and violence. "The Black Veil" opens with a quote from She and is about Justine (Julie Carson), star of the Grand Guignol theater in Paris. Her friend Meg tells the slow, somber, talky story from an asylum. Several characters become addicted to drinking a mixture of opium and alcohol, and the film attempts to illustrate their altered states. There are lots of optical effects, clips from Méliès films, flashbacks within flashbacks, an exorcism, and a slimy puppet monster. Nearly everything is filmed in closeup. A standout FX scene shows the skin being cut off a woman's face. The shorter tale on this tape is "Listen to Midnight," about an incubus. After a surprising quote from JFK's diary, it's narrated by a hateful, drunken young LA photographer. At one point he watches Corman's The Little Shop of Horrors in a bar. The lasting images here include a dragonfly tattoo, nipple rings, and big breasts. With Dawn Wildsmith. Both stories feature Brinke Stevens.

DARK ROMANCES, Volume II

(1986) D/P: Mark Shepard and others
P: Patricia Miller

This tape offers 5 stories by different directors. "Scream queen" Brinke Stevens is in nearly every one. In the comic horror tale "She's Bad, She's Blonde, She's Lunch" (by Shepard) the late, great Fox Harris recreates his weird-atomic-scientist role from Repo Man. A busty blonde and her dumb boyfriend go on a convenience-store robbery and murder spree (for rent money) and make the mistake of trying to hustle Dr. Howard in a lovers' lane. My second-favorite episode, it features shocking violence, sex, gore, and great special effects. "Cardinal Sin" (by Bryan Moore) is a clever look at religious repression at home and the dangers of masturbating. A young guy keeps a copy of Hustler hidden in his drawer and becomes obsessed with Brazilian porno star Elle Rio (who plays her own mean-eyed, snarling, sexy self). His mother makes him read at Bible meetings and forces him to kneel and pray at home. He's very distracted by visions of sex with Elle. The ending is shocking and surprising. This is the most unique and memorable segment. "Pet Shop of the Month" (by Rodd Matsui) is about a pathetic man who is a slave to his mean blond wife, a large woman in S&M garb. This comic episode features clips of Lugosi in The Devil Bat, a fast punk version of "Time Has Come Today," and another puppet monster. Matsui did the makeup for all seven stories. "Last Love" (by John Strysik) involves a ghost and a female psychiatrist. It has a freak-out sequence with lots of white light, some sex, a monster, and hypodermic needles. It didn't make too much sense to me. "What Goes Around" (by Patricia Miller), in black and white, features a divorced, ex-alcoholic piano-bar musician whose family died in a car crash. He's picked up by a blonde (Stevens) who collects art (and artists). He becomes happy and starts writing serious music again but has to pay a price.

DARK SANITY

(Prism, 1978) D: Martin Green S: Philip Pine, Larry Hilbran P:Ben Brothers (Straitjacket)

A newly married alcoholic woman has visions of severed body parts. A retired cop (Aldo Ray) tells her he had the same visions when he was investigating an axe murder. There's gore and a clichéd, Poe-inspired black cat. A lawsuit charged the Cinevid company with "selling or losing" the film.

DARK SHADOWS

(MPI series, 1966–71)

It's strange to think that a daytime horror soap opera set in three time periods was so popular. You have to like (or be able to tolerate) soap operas to enjoy it, because it's slow, and very cheap-looking. Talk about video overkill—196 (!) volumes of 5 episodes each are available. The series was created by Dan Curtis and taped in New York City. You can also find The Resurrection of Barnabas Collins, two "best of" tapes (30 minutes each), Dark Shadows: The 25th Anniversary (with interviews and Jonathan Frid reading Poe's "The Tell Tale Heart"), and the ridiculous Dark Shadows Music Videos tape. The stars were Jonathan Frid as vampire Barnabas Collins, Joan Bennett, Grayson Hall, Kathryn Leigh Scott, David Selby, John Karlen, Kate Jackson, Thayer David, and many others who came and went over the years.

DARK SHADOWS BLOOPERS

(MPI, 1993)

This is the perfect tape for those who never liked the original daily Dark Shadows much (including me). Countless embarrassing and funny mistakes (which have been seen for years in syndication and on tape) are crammed into 45 minutes. Actors trip, hit their heads, and try to ignore flies on their faces. Stagehands, cameras, and microphones intrude everywhere. Visual and audio FX go wrong in every possible way. You can hear directors feeding lines to confused actors. Kid actors and the many real candles used provide endless problems. Doors refuse to open, and walls and gravestones move. It's no wonder that so many characters' names were mangled, since many actors played as many as 5 (!) different people in alternate time periods. The tape is very well edited and includes footage from the early b/w years. Recommended!

DARK SHADOWS

(MPI, 1991) D/S/P: Dan Curtis S: Hall Powell, Bill Taub, Steve Feke

After making the most expensive miniseries in history (The Winds of War and War and Remembrance), Curtis returned to his first concept. This was the NBC-TV pilot for a prime-time series that was canceled after only two months. It was a lot better-looking and much sexier than the original. Barbara Steele (in her first major acting role in many years) is Dr. Julia Hoffman, trying to cure vampire Barnabas Collins (Ben Cross). The series borrowed some ideas from the then-current Twin Peaks. With Jean Simmons, Roy Thinnes, Joanna Going, Lysette Anthony, Barbara Blackburn, Ely Pouget as a psychic, and Jim Fyfe as Willie Loomis. The tape has 15 additional minutes. The other 11 episodes were often preempted by the Gulf War, but they're all on tape.

DARKSIDE

(Vidmark, 1987) D/P: Constantino Magnatta S: Alan Magee, Matt Black P: Philip Good Canada

A Toronto cabdriver (Tony Galeti) picks up a porno star (Cyndy Preston) who has filmed proof that the people she works for are making snuff films. With David Hewlett. The video box compares it to the previous year's Blue Velvet.

THE DARK SIDE OF MIDNIGHT

(Prism, 1984) D/S/P/A: Wes Olsen

Cops hunt for the "Detroit Creeper," a long-haired serial killer, in Fort Smith, Arkansas. The high point is a kid wearing a Tor Johnson mask. A Troma release.

DARK SIDE OF THE MOON

(Vidmark, 1989) D/P: D. J. Webster S: Carey W. Hayes, Chad Hayes

An Alien copy about an evil presence that rips its way through humans on a spacecraft orbiting the moon in the year 2002. It has some gut-busting gore and zombies and an explanation for the Bermuda Triangle. With Will Bledsoe as the hero, Wendy McDonald as the Sigourney Weaver character, John Diehl, Camilla Moore as a humanoid, and Joseph Turkel as the science officer.

DARK TIDE

(Vidmark, 1993) D: Luca Bercovici S/P: Sam Bernard S: Robert L. Levy P: Nathan Zahavi

Brigitte Bako is a woman who goes to an island, where they worship snakes, with an unhappy snake expert (Chris Sarandon). She has sex with him, makes a local girl dance with her in public (which leads to an offscreen rape), then has sex in an underground pool with a beefy local half-breed (Richard Tyson). A lot of this forgettable unrated tape looks like outtakes from a Jacques Cousteau special. The two lesser-known stars were both in Zalman King movies. The director (Ghoulies) often acts in bad movies too.

DARK TOWER

(Forum, 1987) D: "Ken Barnett"/Freddie Francis and Ken Weiderhorn S: Robert J. Averech, Ken Blackwell, Ken Weiderhorn P: John R. Bowey, David M. Witz Spain

A supernatural force kills people in a new high-rise in Barcelona. Jenny Agutter, as the architect of the Único Plaza, claims that an invisible force threw a window washer to his death. An elevator kills people. Michael Moriarty investigates and discovers a ghost with no eyes. With Carol Lynley, Theodore Bikel, Kevin McCarthy, and Anne Lockhart. Weiderhorn replaced director Francis on this troubled Sandy Howard production, filmed in Barcelona.

DARKTOWN STRUTTERS

(Charter, 1975) D: William Witney S: George Armitage P: Gene Corman (Get Down and Boogie)

This musical comedy/action movie set in the LA ghetto used to astound unprepared viewers on late-night TV. Trina Parks (from Diamonds Are Forever) stars as Syreena, leader of a group of singing biker women. The main villain is a double for Colonel Harlan Sanders. He sells overpriced rib dinners, wears a Devil costume, and clones black leaders in his dungeon. The wild 70s costumes alone are enough to make this worth watching. With Edna Richardson, Bettye Sweet, Shirley Washington, Roger E. Mosley (later on Magnum, P.I.), Frankie Crocker, and Dick Miller as one of the stupid racist cops. It was the last feature by the veteran director of 23 (!) serials (and The Cool and the Crazy) and was scripted by the writer of Roger Corman's Gassss. The Dramatics do "What You See Is What You Get" in a jail cell. From Corman's New World.

DARK UNIVERSE

(Curb, 1993) D/P Steve Latshaw S/P/A: Pat Moran

This movie, made in Orlando, is a sort of remake of First Man into Space (1959). An astronaut crashes in the swamp and mutates (some morphing FX are used) into a T. Rex–look monster. Blake Pickett stars as a reporter, Bentley Tittle is a guide for a group of archaeologists, and Joe Estevez (mostly heard and not seen) is the guy who backed the space flight. With Cherrie Scott, Steve Barkett, and William Grefe. Fred Olen Ray and Jim Wynorski were the executive producers and Ray did the 2nd-unit directing and scored a Carnosaur prop for the monster. Jim Danforth provided some matte paintings. Latshaw did better on his own (Vampire Trailer Park).

DARK WATERS

(VSOM, 1994) D: Mariano Baino
S: Andy Bark UK/Italy

Louise Salter is a British girl who discovers a cult on an island. This was made in Russia and in the Ukraine on the Black Sea, by Italian and British filmmakers.

D.A.R.Y.L.

(Paramount, 1985) D: Simon Wincer
S: David Ambrose, Allan Scott, Jeffrey Ellis
P: John Heyman, Burt Harris, Gabrille Kelly

Ten-year-old Daryl (Barret Oliver) is adopted by Mary Beth Hurt and Michael McKean after surviving a bad accident. He turns out to be a perfect son but is really a government-developed robot scheduled to be terminated. With Colleen Camp. Rated PG.

DATE WITH AN ANGEL

(HBO, 1987) D/S: Tom McLoughlin
P: Martha Schumacher

In this PG comedy/fantasy, a beautiful angel (French actress Emmanuelle Beart) breaks her wing on an earthly mission and ends up falling for the dying young musician she was sent to help (Michael E. Knight). His rich fiancée (Phoebe Cates) doesn't understand. With David Dukes and Bibi Besch. It was one of the last features from DEG.

DAUGHTER OF DARKNESS

(Vidmark, 1989) D: Stuart Gordon
S: Andrew Laskos P: Andras Hamori

Mia Sara goes to Bucharest, Romania, and uncovers a group of vampires led by Anthony Perkins as Anton Crainiac. These vampires have strange split tongues. This CBS-TV movie invents new and different vampire lore. It was filmed in Hungary and was hardly worth the expense. With Jack Coleman.

DAUGHTER OF DEATH

(Raja, 1982) D: Paul Nicholas/Lutz Schaarwaechter S: Maurice Schmidt W. Germany/US
(Julie Darling; Bad Blood)

A 14 year-old-girl (Isabelle Mejias) feeds rats to her pet snake and has sex dreams featuring her father (Anthony Franciosa). She sees a delivery man kill her mother, so she blackmails him, then plots to kill her new stepmother (Sybil Danning, who has an expected nude scene) and her young stepbrother. Mejias (also in the 1979 movie Girls, with Anne Parillaud) is pretty good. By the director of Chained Heat.

DAUGHTER OF DRACULA

(Nightmare, 1972) D/S/A: Jesús Franco France/Portugal (La Fille de Dracula)

Britt Nichols is Luisa Karlstein and Daniel J. White is Max Karlstein, in a horror movie set on the coast of Portugal. It's a remake of a movie Franco had done ten years earlier, with vampires added. With Howard Vernon as Dracula (a role he also played in The Screaming Dead), Anne Libert, Fernando Bilbao, and Lina Romay.

DAUGHTER OF SHANGHAI

(1937) D: Robert Florey S: Gladys Unger

Anna May Wong as Lan Ying Lin searches for the mobsters who killed her father. She poses as a dancer in a Central America dive run by Charles Bickford and is helped by a federal agent (Philip Ahn). This 67-minute Paramount film features J. Carrol Naish, Buster Crabbe, and Anthony Quinn as villains who smuggle illegal aliens, Paul Fix, and Mae Busch. Quinn was in six features with Wong. Next was Dangerous to Know, also by Florey.

DAUGHTER OF THE DRAGON

(Joe Franklin's Collectibles, 1931) D/S: Lloyd Corrigan S: Monte M. Katterjohn, Sidney Buchman

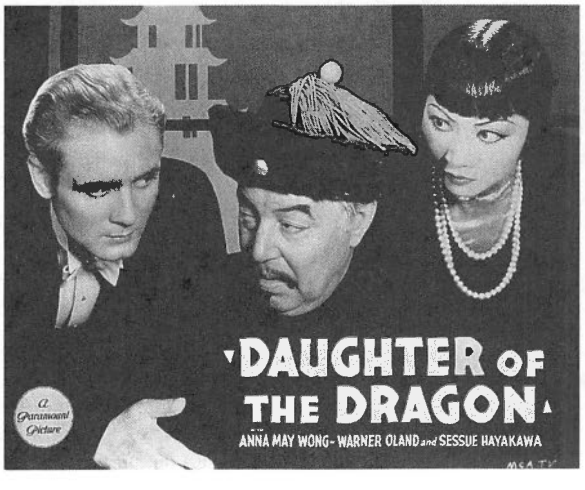
The last of three Paramount features with Warner Oland as Fu Manchu, this actually stars Anna May Wong (who was also in Von Sternberg's Shanghai Express with Oland in 1932). What makes it a true Hollywood rarity is that Japanese Sessue Hayakawa, early Hollywood's only male Asian star, plays a Chinese detective who falls in love with the Chinese-American Wong, early Hollywood's only female Asian star. As usual, Fu is after the Petrie family in London. While dying from a bullet wound, he summons his daughter, dancer Princess Ling Moy, and makes her swear to avenge him. He calls her his "man-daughter," and she quickly learns to be an evil dragon lady vowing, "I will be your son!" Throughout the movie, Fu's mysterious voice reminds her, "You must kill!" She loves Bramwell Fletcher (who was also in The Mummy and Svengali at about the same time) but must kill him. Hayakawa (who uses some martial-arts moves) loves her, until he discovers the diabolical plot. Paramount features from the early 30s always look impressive and usually have a special edge to them. This one has sliding doors, a zombie, a comic-relief gay secretary, and acid thrown in a woman's face. Great stuff, even though they got Chinese, Japanese, and Korean names mixed up!



DAUGHTER OF THE JUNGLE

(1949) D: George Blair S: William Lively P: Franklin Adreon

A plane with two cops escorting two gangsters goes down in the African jungle. A white jungle goddess named Tokoora (Lois Hall) saves them from hostile natives. This ridiculous Republic movie uses scenes from Jungle Girl (1941), features Caucasian actors speaking cartoon broken English as the natives, a man in a gorilla suit, and a witch doctor. James Cardwell is the hero, and Sheldon Leonard is the main gangster. By the director of The Hypnotic Eye (1959).

DAUGHTER OF THE SUN!

(SW, 1962) D/C: Herschell Gordon Lewis
P: David F. Friedman

This was Friedman and Lewis' first Miami movie. Rusty Allen stars as teacher Pamela Walker. She defends herself during an emergency school-board meeting (in a suburban living room) convened because she posed for Nudist Life Magazine. One impressed younger teacher (Jerry Eden) joins her at the Sunshine Nature Camp, where there's "no immorality or lewdness," and the b/w movie miraculously turns to full color. Pamela strips in a room (but leaves her high heels on), then introduces him to other nudists, who play volleyball, and lounge on rubber rafts. They fall in love and play golf (with clothes on). Back at the camp, they shower, swim, and play volleyball in the water. After she learns that she can continue teaching, keep him, and stay a nudist, everything turns to full color again. Friedman, who also did the sound, says Allen was a gorgeous 17-year-old lesbian brought to him by famous photographer Bunny Yeager.

DAUGHTER OF THE SUN GOD

(1962) D/S: Kenneth Herts P: Edward A. Biery

Explorers encounter quicksand, snakes, crocodiles, and an Inca godess (Juanita Llosa) in this color feature from the original distributors of Carnival of Souls. William Holmes stars, with Lisa Montell (from World Without End and She Gods from Shark Reef). Partially shot in Brazil and Peru, it features music by Les Baxter.

DAUGHTERS OF THE FRESH FLESH

(Video Search, 1974) D/S: "Michel Gentil"/Jean Rollin
S: Natalie Perrey France (Bacchanales Sexuelles)

Females in tights and masks kidnap blonde Sophie from a friend's Paris apartment and take her to a mansion where the blonde High Priestess Medina smokes a hookah. Sophie is tied up and whipped in a torture chamber while a couple fuck. With maids fighting, a lesbian scene (to avant garde jazz), and a threesome. Eventually a masked ceremony becomes an orgy. Joelle Couer, Marie-France Morel, and Anne Brilland star in the (soft core) sex movie and posters for Rollin's horror movies are on a wall. It's letterboxed and subtitled.

DAVID CRONENBERG: LONG LIVE THE NEW FLESH

(1986) D: Laurens C. Postma P: Chris Rodney UK

Great clips are used in this 50-minute documentary on Canada's most famous director. Cronenberg is heard ("A virus is only doing its job"), Stephen King is interviewed, and Scorsese says, "Cronenberg is late 20th century." Critic Robin Ward says his movies are "unpleasant, distasteful, and totally negative." Cronenberg says, "An artist has no social responsibility whatsoever." Everything from They Came from Within to The Fly is covered, with special attention given to Videodrome.

Lisa Montell in Daughter of the Sun God.

DAWN: PORTRAIT OF A TEENAGE RUNAWAY

(1976) D: Randal Kleiser S: Darlene Young P: Douglas S. Cramer

The drive-in comes to America's living rooms in this NBC-TV movie. Eve Plumb (from The Brady Bunch) is 15-year-old Dawn, who runs away to the big city and ends up working as a hooker. With Leigh McCloskey as Alexander, Lynn Carlin, Joan Prather, William Schallert, Anne Seymour, Anne Ramsey, and Bo Hopkins as Swan. Shaun Cassidy is on the soundtrack, and the Runaways are heard doing "Cherry Bomb." Alexander: The Other Side of Dawn (1977) was the sequel.

THE DAY AFTER

(Embassy, 1983) D: Nicholas Meyer
S: Edward Hume P: Robert A. Papazian

The Day After is (and will probably remain) the top-rated TV movie of all time. Over 100 million viewers tuned in to ABC on November 20, 1983, and saw Lawrence, Kansas (where Carnival of Souls was filmed!) nuked. Various residents are seen before and after the bombing. The Reagan White House had Secretary of State George Shultz go on TV afterward and assure the country that no war was planned. Jason Robards stars, with JoBeth Williams, Steve Guttenberg, John Lithgow, Bibi Besch, Amy Madigan, Dennis Lipscomb, Stephen Furst, and Arliss Howard. The score, by David Raksin, includes Virgil Thomson's The River. The film received 11 Emmy nominations. It was 135 minutes when first shown but was cut down for reruns and overseas theatrical release.

DAY DREAM

(1966) D/S: Tetsuji Takechi, Joseph Green
P: Toyojiro Nagashima Japan (Hakujitsumo)

Joseph Green, who made The Brain That Wouldn't Die, created color dream sequences and added them to a controversial b/w 1964 Japanese movie, which he then released. An art student has dreams involving naked women in masks and a vampire, while under sedation in a dentist's office. One scene has a naked woman going through a car wash.

THE DAY IT CAME TO EARTH

(Paragon, 1977) D: Harry Z. Thomason
S: Saul J. Fisk P: John Braden

In the 50s a meteor reactivates a corpse in a lake. The growling, skull-faced zombie kills the gangsters who dumped him there and goes after the glowing meteorite some kids took. This fun movie from Little Rock is filled with fake 50s rock ballads, but the monster is scary and the college-kid stars are likable. The girls are played by blond Delight De Bruine and Rita Wilson (who later married Tom Hanks). Former TV comedian George Gobel is a professor who helps investigate the meteorite. Some scenes take place in a haunted house and a movie theater. Thomason also made Visions of Evil (1973), Encounters with the Unknown (1975), and Revenge of Bigfoot (1979). He and his wife, Linda Bloodworth-Thomason, later became TV producers and helped their friend Bill Clinton win the presidential election.

A DAY OF JUDGMENT

(HBO, 1980) D: C.D.H. Reynolds
S: Tom McIntyre P: Earl Owensby

Red-eyed Death (complete with a scythe) arrives in a North Carolina town during the 30s and sends sinners to Hell. He also decapitates some of them. At the end, it all turns out to have been a dream, so the sinners can reform. William T. Hicks and Harris Bloodworth star in this southern drive-in movie.

DAY OF THE DEAD

(Media, 1985) D/S: George A. Romero
P: Richard A. Rubinstein

After Night of the Living Dead (1968) and Dawn of the Dead (1979) Romero returned for another, less satisfying look at flesh-eating zombies, this time set in an underground missile silo in Florida where some of the last humans study the undead. Lori Cardille stars as Sarah, a scientist who has to fight macho army men and zombies (she's the daughter of Pittsburgh horror host Chilly Billy, who had played a TV reporter in NOTLD). Day has some good shocks and some spirited acting, and it delivers the gore, but it has too much talk. With Joseph Pilato as a frantic commando who is disembowled, Howard Sherman as a likable zombie named Bub who's being studied and trained, Terry Alexander, Richard Liberty, John Amplas, and many writers (including Bob Martin) and musicians (made up by Tom Savini and his crew) as zombie extras. It's 102 minutes long. The John Harrison soundtrack is on Saturn. The original plot had the mind-control zombies fighting the normal zombies, but Romero couldn't raise the budget to film the whole script.

DAY OF THE DOLPHIN

(Nelson, 1973) D: Mike Nichols
S: Buck Henry P: Robert E. Relyea

George C. Scott studies dolphins that are being used in an attempt to assassinate the president. The dolphins eventually talk to him (using the voice of Buck Henry). Scott's character is based on the life of the real Dr. John Lilly, who developed the Sensory Deprivation Tank. (Altered States was also inspired by him.) With Trish Van Devere, Paul Sorvino, Edward Herrmann, Severn Darden, and Phyllis Davis. The Avco Embassy release was a financial flop but has many fans.

George Romero and zombies from his Day of the Dead.

DAY OF THE LOCUST

(Paramount, 1975) D: John Schlesinger
S: Waldo Salt P: Jerome Hellman

This incredible movie, based on Nathanael West's book, looks at various losers in 30s Hollywood. Karen Black stars as Faye Greener, "part-time whore" and star. With Donald Sutherland, William Atherton, Burgess Meredith (who was nominated for an Oscar), Geraldine Page, Bo Hopkins, Billy Barty, Nita Talbot, Paul Jabara, Richard Dysart, and William Castle as a director (he also played one in Shampoo the next year). It's 144 minutes long.

DAY OF THE MANIAC: See THEY'RE COMING TO GET YOU

DAY OF THE NIGHTMARE

(SW, 1965) D: John Bushelman
S: Leonard Goldstein P: Leon Bleiberg

Jonathan Crain (Cliff Fields) is an artist who ties up his model "my way" and whips her after she dances topless for him. Later on, he pays to watch a lesbian couple, has a blurry flashback of his mother having sex with a stranger, and cries, "Whip me, Mama!" His shrink father (John Hart) has his own flashback. Oh, yeah—Jonathan (who has a split personality) likes to kill women while in (extremely unconvincing) drag. There's also a sequence with blindfolded swingers. John Ireland (who was a regular on Rawhide at the time!) is top-billed as the police detective who says, "Every day people go crazy." Also with Elena Verdugo (from The House of Frankenstein), an unbilled Liz Renay, and Foreman Shane. Ted V. Mikels was the cinematographer. Bushelman usually worked as an editor for Bert I. Gordon. This movie (originally from Herts Lion) was featured in a 1974 Adam Film World magazine, making me think that much of the nudity was added years later to spice up this incredible (if overlong) movie. The b/w tape is presented by Frank Henenlotter.

DAY OF THE PANTHER

(1987) D: Brian Trenchard-Smith
S: Peter West P: Damien Parer Australia

Edward John Stazak is Jason Blade, a martial-arts hero in Hong Kong and Perth. He was trained by a Chinese cult, "the Panthers," and battles a drug kingpin. Blade returned in Fists of Blood (1989), by the same director.

DAY OF THE TRIFFIDS

(1981) D: Ken Hannam
S: Douglas Livingston P: David Maloney Australia

Most readers familiar with John Wyndham's 1951 novel about killer plants didn't much like the 1963 film version (available on UAV). This 290-minute BBC-TV production tries to be truer to the source. Killer plants attack after nearly everyone has been blinded during a meteor shower. John Duttine and Emma Relph star. It was shown on PBS in three parts in 1987.

DAY OF WRATH

(Sinister, 1943) D/S/P: Carl Theodor Dreyer
S: Poul Knudsen, Mogens Skot-Hansen
Denmark (Vredens Tag)

A 17th-century minister is cursed by a woman before she's burned as a witch. His young wife falls in love with his son, the minister dies of a stroke, and she's condemned as a witch. Religious fanaticism, repressed sexuality, and witchcraft are the themes of this dark film, made during the German occupation by the director of Vampyr. There are long silent segments. It was 110 minutes long when first released. US prints are subtitled.

DAY OF WRATH

(Imperial, 1967) D/S: Tonino Valerii
S: Ernesto Gestaldi, Renzo Genta
P: Alfonso Sansone Italy/W. Germany
(Day of Anger; I Giorni Dell'ira)

Young Giuliano Gemma follows gunfighter Lee Van Cleef on a donkey, becomes his apprentice, and eventually is better than the master. With Walter Rilla, Crista Linder, and Yvonne Sanson. It was filmed in Spain. Valerii later directed My Name Is Nobody (1973), produced by Sergio Leone. The original rating for the National General release was M.

THE DAY THAT SHOOK THE WORLD

(VidAmerica, 1977) D: Vejiko Bulajic
S: Paul Jarrico Yugoslavia

This AIP release attempts to show how WWI was started. Christopher Plummer stars as Archduke Franz Ferdinand, assassinated in Sarajevo. With Florinda Bolkan and Maximilian Schell. The screenwriter was blacklisted in 1951, settled in France, and never worked in the US again.

DAYS OF FURY

(1979) D/S: Fred Warshofsky
P: Doro Vlado Hreljanovic

Vincent Price is the onscreen host and narrator of this documentary look at disasters both natural (fires, volcanoes, floods) and not (plane crashes, sports deaths).

DAZED AND CONFUSED

(MCA, 1993) D/S/P: Richard Linklater
P: Jim Jacks, Sean Daniel

Jason London stars as Randall "Pink" Floyd, a pot-smoking quarterback who refuses to sign the coach's no-drug pledge. It's the last day (and night) of the school year at a suburban high school in 1976 in Austin, and this movie does an excellent job of recreating the feel and look of the period. It's very funny, nostalgic, and scary in ways that American Graffiti was not. The $6 million Universal film was made by the 31-year-old director of Slacker. Rights to the original 70s hits on the soundtrack (Kiss, Alice Cooper, Foghat, Sweet, Black Oak Arkansas) took up one-sixth of the budget. 30 characters have recurring roles. With Wiley Wiggins as the kid who is initiated, Rory Cochrane, Sasha Jenson, Michelle Burke, Parker Posey, and Milla Jovovich (who had starred in Return to the Blue Lagoon).

D.C. CAB

(MCA, 1983) D/S: Joel Schumacher P: Topper Carew, Cassius Vernon Weathersby

Adam Baldwin and his cabdriver friends save the kids of an ambassador from kidnappers in Washington. With Max Gail as the Nam vet who owns the cab company, Mr. T. as Samson, Timothy Carey as the Angel of Death (!), Paul Rodriguez, Charlie Barnett, John Diehl, the Barbarian Brothers, Jill Schoelen, and Irene Cara (as herself). The Universal comedy has a Giorgio Moroder score. The various artists is soundtrack on MCA.

DEAD AGAIN

(Paramount, 1991) D/A: Kenneth Branagh S: Scott Frank P: Lindsay Doran, Charles H. Maguire

This romantic, gothic mystery thriller with a reincarnation theme gets frantic and gory, with scissor stabbings at the end. It borrows a lot from Hitchcock (especially Rebecca) and from Citizen Kane and is full of plot twists. In LA, amnesiac Emma Thompson is tormented by memories of a concert pianist (also Thompson) who was murdered in the 40s. A private detective (Branagh) and an eccentric antique dealer/hypnotist (Derek Jacobi) become involved. The 40s sequences are b/w. This box-office hit was advertised as a horror film (with great posters). With Robin Williams, Andy Garcia, Hanna Schygulla, and Campbell Scott.

Lee Van Cleef in Day of Wrath

The Patrick Doyle soundtrack is on Varèse Sarabande. Branagh and Thompson (The Tall Guy), who were married in real life, starred in Branagh's productions of Much Ado About Nothing and Henry V.

DEAD AIR

(MCA, 1994) D: Fred Walton S: David Amman P: Oscar L. Costa

Gregory Hines is a small-town late-night radio dj whose girlfriend has been murdered. More characters die in this mystery by the maker of the When a Stranger Calls movies. Debrah Farentino co-stars with Beau Starr, Gloria Reuben, and Laura Herrington. It debuted on Showtime.

DEAD ALIVE

(Vidmark, 1992) D/S: Peter Jackson S: Stephen Sinclair, Frances Walsh P: Jim Booth New Zealand (Brain Dead)

After The Feebles, thirty-year-old Jackson returned with live actors in this very outrageous and gory horror comedy about zombies in 1957. Lionel (Timothy Balme) is the nerdy hero whose awful mother is bitten by an (animated) rat/monkey from Sumatra. Soon the zombism spreads and there's a house full of zombies, including a kung-fu zombie priest and a zombie baby. The unending, over-the-top, comic carnage includes decapitations, gut-munching, and Lionel's incredible power-lawn-mower defense. An unrated version or a 12-minute-shorter R version is available on tape.

DEAD-BANG

(Warner, 1989) D: John Frankenheimer S: Robert Foster P: Steve Roth

Alcoholic LA police detective Don Johnson goes after black bikers who have killed a cop but ends up teaming up with a black deputy sheriff (Tim Reid) for a violent confrontation with well-organized white supremacists who plan to cause race riots and take over the country. In one scene Johnson throws up on a suspect. With Frank Military, Penelope Ann Miller, William Forsythe as a Christian FBI agent, Bob Balaban, Danielle Quinn, and Ron Jeremy. It's supposed to be based on real events.

DEAD BEAT

(Live, 1994) D/S: Adam Dubov S: Janice Shapiro P: George Moffly, Christopher Lambert

In mid-60s New Mexico, Bruce Ramsey is Kit, a limping, Elvis-look con man and womanizer who is convinced to go on a murder spree by a rich girl (Natasha Wagner). It's loosely based on a real serial killer who some say inspired Manson. A follower (Balthazar Getty) tells the story. With Meredith Salinger, Deborah Harry, Sara Gilbert, and Alex Cox. It was shot in Arizona.

DEADBEAT AT DAWN

(Ketchum, 1987) D/S/A: Jim Van Beeber P/C: Mike King

Jim Van Beeber is Goose, leader of the Ravens. Paul Harper is the psychotic leader of the Spiders. Goose quits his own gang and plans to settle down after he's made enough money selling junk. When his Ouija-board-using girlfriend (Megan Murphy) is beaten to death by Ravens with golf clubs, he hides out with his crazed junkie father in a derelict apartment. After the rival gangs combine to attempt an armored Brinks-truck robbery, Goose is reduced to taking orders, while seeking revenge. The nothing-to-lose young people in this movie are mostly very believable. They wear ripped jeans and boots and have long, messy hair. They smoke pot, drink beer, take pills, snort coke, and drink hard liquor, sometimes all in one night, then make big plans. An especially dumb one called Bonecrusher does Rush and yells, "I don't give a shit about nuthin'!" There are graveyard knife and gun battles, some martial-arts fighting, stolen motorcycles, fingers bitten off, a decapitation, the bloody ghost of the dead girlfriend, some pretty warped music, and a man ordering breakfast for himself and God. I could have done without some of the kaleidoscopic segues and red lights, but otherwise this is one of the most downbeat, unpretentious, independent action movies I've seen. It was made by talented film school guys based in Cincinnati.

DEADBOLT

(New Line, 1992) D: Douglas Jackson S: Frank Rehwaldt, Maria Trafficant P: Pierre David, Thomas Berry Canada

Justine Bateman is a divorced medical student who lets a man (Adam Baldwin) move into her condo with her. He turns out to be a manipulating psycho who holds her captive. With Michelle Scarabelli and Chris Mulkey. The same people made The Paperboy next.

DEAD BOYS CAN'T FLY

(VCI, 1992) D/P: Howard Winters S: Anne Wolfe

A trio of guys terrorize, rob, rape, and kill people working in a New York City office building on a holiday. Goose (Brad Friedman) is a crazed blond in drag who says, "I'm a sociopath lady!" The others are the quieter psycho Buzz (Jason Stein) and Jojo (Daniel L. Johnson). A (way too young) grizzled Nam-vet janitor (David John) tries to stop them. There's some good cinematography, actual Nam footage, and heavy-metal music, but a lot of this is more laughable than disturbing. Bennett Theissen (director of the early 80s New York play Grind House) plays a suicidal lawyer. With Ruth Collins (in a Marilyn imitation scene), Delia Sheppard, Sheila Kennedy, and Jennifer Delora. It's available in R and unrated versions.

DEAD CALM

(Warner, 1989) D: Philip Noyce S/P: Terry Hayes P: George Miller, Doug Mitchell Australia

After a shocking car crash at the start, this settles into a suspensful, three-character, psycho-on-a-boat movie. Nicole Kidman and Sam Neill have to fight for their lives when the intense Billy Zane shows up. It's a great-looking, clever movie with good horror elements and a nude scene that helped Kidman become a star in the US. The film is adapted from a novel by Charles Williams that was also the basis of an unfinished Orson Welles film (The Deep). Producer Miller also directed the second unit scenes.

DEAD CERTAIN

(Hemdale, 1990) D/S/P: Anders Palm P: Mark Cutforti Canada

Anthony Quinn's dull son Francisco stars as a divorced, unshaven, sweaty Toronto cop (who uses hookers and junk) looking for a psycho killer. Brad Dourif, who lives in a big loft with banks of TVs tuned to static, is the prime suspect. Karen Russell is the cop's ex-wife. Despite flashbacks, flashforwards, and arty cinematography, it's still boring. The music by Charlie Mole is good.

DEAD CONNECTION

(Polygram, 1993) D/M: Nigel Dick S: Larry Golin P: Steve Golin, Gregg Fineberg (Final Combination)

Michael Madsen is a (blond) LA police detective who teams up with a freelance reporter (Lisa Bonet) to catch a British necrophiliac serial killer named Welton (Gary Stretch). The killer tells his victims that he's a rock manager, uses the names of real boxers, and calls phone-sex lines. This moody film attempts to be like a 40s film noir detective movie. Dick also made Deadly Intent (1988).

DEAD END

(Embassy, 1937) D: William Wyler S: Lillian Hellman P: Samuel Goldwyn

One of the great social-problem films, this Warner Brothers production is based on Sidney Kingsley's play. An early juvenile-delinquent movie, it was the launching pad for the Dead End Kids/Bowery Boys. Sylvia Sidney and Joel McCrea star, with Humphrey Bogart as Baby Face Martin, Allen Jenkins as Hunk, and Claire Trevor. The kids are Billy Halop as Tommy (the leader), Leo Gorcey as Spit, Bobby Jordan as Angel, Gabriel Dell as T. B., Huntz Hall as Dippy, and Bernard Punsley as Milty. They had been in the play since it opened in 1935. The great sets recreate NYC's Sutton Place as luxury housing was going up next to slums. The cinematography is by Gregg Toland. Alfred Newman wrote the music. Bogart and most of the gang returned the next year in Crime School.

DEAD END

(1992) D/P/E: Robert Tiffe S/P/A: Martin King

In a very effective supernatural road movie, Frank (Martin King), a big, long-haired killer, dominates his sometimes reluctant partner, Harold (Robert Restaino), from back East. They pay for their acts of senseless violence on a seemingly endless desert road going through an Indian reservation, as victims show up in different forms to torment them. The two stars, who have a lot of dialogue, are very convincing. There are b/w sex/murder flashbacks, some freak-out editing, and some great-looking women. There's a good rock theme, and the soundtrack by Legal Weapon is on Triple XXX.

DEAD END CITY

(AIP, 1989) D/S/P: Peter Yuval S: Michael Bogart

Dennis Cole (from the 60s TV series Felony Squad) is the police chief, and Robert Z'Dar is a street-gang leader. It's about vigilantes, corrupt cops, and a government conspiracy.

DEAD-END DRIVE-IN

(Starmaker, 1986) D: Brian Trenchard-Smith
S: Peter Smalley P: Andrew Williams Australia

In the near-future world of 1990, young people are tricked into a government drive-in/prison camp that shows kung-fu and exploitation movies. Most of the trapped teens enjoy the movies and junk food, but they can't leave. Ned Manning as Crabs (who has a red-and-white '56 Chevy convertible) tries to escape with his girlfriend (Natalie McCurry). New World released the film in the US. Trenchard-Smith made Escape 2000, also set in a futuristic concentration camp.

DEADFALL

(Vidmark, 1993) D/S: Christopher Coppola
S: Nick Vallelonga P: Ted Fox

This Grifters-inspired, all-star film noir attempt is a mess but will be talked about for years. Michael Biehn stars as a con man (and narrates his flashbacks), but Coppola's brother Nicholas Cage (in a laughable wig) steals the movie (acting as out of control as he did in Vampire's Kiss) until his face is pushed into boiling grease. James Coburn does his best, considering (in two roles), and blond Sarah Trigger is around for sex scenes. Charlie Sheen has his own pool-hustler scene, and Angus Scrimm (with a metal arm and claw hand), Peter Fonda, Michael Constantine, Micky Dolenz teamed with Clarence Williams III (!), and Renee Estevez show up. Coppola, who also made Dracula's Widow, managed to find roles for relatives Talia Shire and Marc Coppola too.

DEAD FLOWERS

(1992) D/S: Peter Ily Huemer Austria

Alex (Thierry Van Werveke), a pest exterminator who lives with his grandmother, picks up a stranded woman (Kate Valk) who claims to be the American daughter of a spy. She turns out to be a ghost, and a messenger of death takes her back. Alex takes a ferryboat to the underworld (a warehouse) to try and find her. Obviously inspired by recent Wim Wenders movies, this is a well-made romantic fantasy. Music includes Brian Ferry's "In Your Mind" and some American 60s garage rock from Pebbles albums. In German with subtitles.

DEAD GIRLS

(Raedon, 1990) D: Dennis Devine
S: Steve Jarvis P: Eugene James

The Ozzy Osbourne "Suicide" song controversy probably inspired this teen horror movie. A Dead Girls song ("Life is a total bummer, death ends all") inspires a wrist-slashing group suicide. The sister of band member Birtha Beirut (or Gina) is the only survivor. The group (four girls and Marky the drummer) go to a remote cabin with the recovering sister to rest and avoid bad publicity. The cast is killed off by a person in a rubber skull mask, from Gina's lyrics. There's also a pushy Oriental manager, a bodyguard, a nurse, Elmo, a retarded, stuttering handyman, a weird female groupie, and a hostile black sheriff: "I burned my daughter's collection of your albums!" Gina has nightmares. Characters are killed with a nail gun, by stabbing, fire, axe—all the things that Gina wrote about! This film holds some kind of record for false endings.

DEAD HEAT

(Starmaker, 1988) D: Mark Goldblatt S: Terry Black P: Michael Meltzer, David Helpern

Treat Williams is LA cop Roger Mortis and musclebound Joe Piscopo is his wisecracking partner, in a horror-gore comedy so bad that the video tries to pass it off as a serious action movie! The plot concerns a conspiracy to keep old rich people alive. Williams becomes a zombie cop, there's a zombie biker, and in one scene meat in a butcher shop comes to life. The FX are by Steve Johnson. With Lindsay Frost, Darren McGavin as a corrupt coroner, a tired-looking Vincent Price (wasted in a nothing role), and Keye Luke, Professor Tanaka, and Martha Quinn. The Ernest Troost soundtrack is on Varese Sarabande. Blue Jean Monster (1990) was a Hong Kong copy of this feature.

DEAD IS DEAD

(Tempe, 1992) D/S/P/E/A: Mike Stanley

Eric, a coke addict with a beard and a dumb-looking Renaissance haircut, is given a life-restoring drug and goes on a vengeance spree that takes him to Manhattan. Others use the drug and keep returning to life. Needles go into arms in slow motion. There are lines like "You look like a penis with the dry heaves," a boring synthesizer score, and really bad FX. It was shot (on tape) in Michigan (where the creator/star produced a local TV show), with a few New York location shots added.

DEAD KIDS = STRANGE BEHAVIOR

THE DEADLIEST ART: THE BEST OF MARTIAL ART FILMS

(Fox, 1990) D: Sandra Weintraub
P: Fred Weintraub US/Hong Kong

John Saxon hosts a letterboxed documentary about features from Hong Kong's Golden Harvest company. Samu Hung, Jackie Chan, Yuen Biao, and Cynthia Rothrock are interviewed, and many action clips are shown. There's also a look at Bruce Lee (of course). Weintraub produced Enter the Dragon.

DEADLINE FOR MURDER: See THE NAKED FLAME

DEADLOCK

(Fox, 1991) D: Lewis Teague S: Broderick Miller P: Bramko Lustin (Wedlock)

In a change-of-pace role, Rutger Hauer is strong and intelligent but not a tough guy. In the near future, he's framed by his girlfriend (Joan Chen) and James Remar after planning a diamond robbery with them. He's sent to Camp Holiday, a prison where inmates can wander around. The problem is that they're linked electrically with unknown other prisoners, and if they stray too far from each other they blow up. Several head-exploding scenes are as good as in the Scanners movies. Hauer is tortured by the corrupt warden (Stephen Tobolowsky) and escapes with Mimi Rogers, in a mixture of The Defiant Ones and a revenge plot. It's pretty good, but for some reason Graffiti Bridge is still showing at a theater in "the future." With Basil Wallace. Hauer and Chen were also in Blood of Heroes.

THE DEADLY AND THE BEAUTIFUL= WONDER WOMEN

DEADLY BET

(PM, 1992) D: Richard W. Munchkin S/P: Joseph Merhi S: Robert Tiffe P: Richard Pepin

Jeff Wincott bets his girlfriend (Charlene Tilton) in a kickboxing match in Las Vegas and loses. He has to stop drinking, train hard, and win her back from the bad guy (Steven Vincent Leigh). With Sherrie Rose, Gary Daniels, and Ray Mancini.

DEADLY BREED

(Raedon, 1989) D/S: Charles T. Kanganis
P: Richard Pepin, Joseph Merhi

A racist police captain (William Smith) secretly uses a gang of skinheads to kill minorities. A parole officer (Blake Bahner) discovers the plot. With Allison Randall and Rhonda Grey.

DEADLY COMPANION

(Ace, 1979) D: George Bloomfield
P: Jerome Simon, David Main S: Thomas Headley, Jr. Canada (Double Negative)

A mental patient (Michael Sarrazin) tries to solves his wife's murder. Anthony Perkins seems to be responsible. With Susan Clark, Howard Duff, Kate Reid, John Candy (featured on the video box), and Pita Oliver.

DEADLY DAPHNE'S REVENGE

(AIP, 197?) D/S: Richard Gardner S: Tim Bennett P: Dick Horton, Mark Castor

Cindy (Laurie Tait Partridge) is a blond hitchhiker who goes to a lawyer after being picked up and raped by some weekend hunters at a summer lodge. This movie shows how the lives of the hunters are ruined before the trial even happens. In the laughable ending, Charlie, the racist trucking-company owner who egged the others on (he looks like Kenny Rogers), is killed by Daphne, a black woman who escaped from an asylum. Everyone wears bellbottoms and has bad haircuts. Troma picked up this 70s movie, had it copyrighted, and retitled it in 1987.

DEADLY DREAMS

(1988) D: Kristine Peterson
S/A: Thom Babbes P: Matt Leipzig

A writer (Mitchell Anderson) whose parents were killed by a psycho dreams that the killer is after him. With Juliette Cummins, Stacy Travis, and Beach Dickerson. The director started out with Roger Corman.

DEADLY EMBRACE

(Prism, 1989) D/S/P: "Ellen Cabot"/ David DeCoteau S/P: Richard Gabai

In a flashback-filled film noir attempt made in five days, a rich Beverly Hills woman (Ty Randolph aka Windsor Taylor Randolph) hires a young handyman (Ken Abraham) while her husband is away and is killed. Jan-Michael Vincent is the spying husband. With Jack Carter, Albert Popwell, Ruth Collins, and Linnea Quigley for topless scenes. Michelle Bauer (in the spirit of old Russ Meyer movies) is "the female spirit of sex."

DEADLY EXPOSURE

(Atlantic, 1993) D/P: Lawrence Mortorff
S/A: Asher Brauner

After a man leaves a synagogue he's lynched in an LA park by a gang of masked white supremacists. His unemployable, alcoholic, formally famous journalist son (a bearded, still young-looking Robby Benson in all-black clothes) investigates. Benson takes time out to have sex scenes with a reporter who's a fan of his work (Laura Johnson) and to read Answer Me! magazine. The neo-Nazi group turns out to be a cover for an assassination attempt, but we learn that "Nazis were into psychedelics, sacrifices, the whole nine yards." With 70s drive-in star Andrew Prine as the leader of the Brotherhood, Isaac Hayes as a police lieutenant, Paul Hampton (They Came from Within) as a senator, Jeff East, and Bentley Mitchum. The executive producer was Steven Paul (Slapstick of Another Kind).

DEADLY EYES

(Warner, 1982) D: Robert Clouse S: Charles Eglee
P: Jeffrey Schectman, Paul Kahert (The Rats)

Sam Groom, Sara Botsford, Scatman Crothers, and Lisa Langlois are all in a movie about giant, intelligent rats in New York City. The rats even attack a baby in a baby chair. The problem is, they're really dogs (just like in Attack of the Killer Shrews). I liked Of Unknown Origin (1983) better, as far as 80s giant-rat movies go. The Golden Harvest production was based on a James Herbert novel.

DEADLY FORCE

(Nelson, 1983) D: Paul Aaron S: Ken Barnett, Barry Schneider P: Sandy Howard

An LA psycho working for a guru with a past kills girls and carves Xs on their foreheads. Sadistic, on the edge, ex–New York City cop Stoney Cooper (Wings Hauser, just after Vice Squad) is called in to catch him. With Joyce Ingalls as Stoney's ex-wife, a TV reporter, and Paul Shenar. Marilyn Chambers is seen on a TV screen. At one point Sam Peckinpah was supposed to direct, and Embassy even planned a series.

DEADLY FRIEND

(Warner, 1986) D: Wes Craven S: Bruce Joel Rubin P: Robert M. Sherman, Robert Crawford

A kid scientist (Matthew Laborteaux) puts the microchip brain of his robot into the pretty girl next door (Kristy Swanson) after her drunken father beats her to death. The strong robot girl goes out for vengeance and even kills some bikers. With Anne Ramsey. A bloody scene with a head smashed by a basketball was added by the producers. The Charles Bernstein soundtrack is on Varèse Sarabande. The film is based on the novel Friend, by Rubin, who went on to write the hit Ghost.

DEADLY GAME

(Paramount, 1991) D: Thomas J. Wright
S: Wes Claridge P: Johanna Persons

A mysterious masked millionaire with a group of black and Asian hunters and killer dogs watches seven people on his misty island with video cameras as they're killed off. Each character's background and crime is revealed through flashbacks that keep things interesting. Michael Beck and Jenny Seagrove star, with Marc Singer. Soon-Tech Oh as a tattooed yakuza has the best flashback, with multiple decapitations. With Roddy McDowall, Mitchell Ryan, and Professor Tanaka. The USA Network movie was filmed near Mount Hood, in Oregon. The ending is a hoot.

DEADLY GAMES

(Fires, 1980) D/S: Scott Mansfield Canada

A black-gloved stranger kills in a small town while characters talk and play a horror board game. Alexandra Morgan stars, with Sam Groom as a cop, Jo Ann Harris as a reporter, Steve Railsback, Colleen Camp, Dick Butkus, June Lockhart, and Denise Galik.

DEADLY ILLUSION

(RCA, 1987) D/S: Larry Cohen D: William Tannen P: Irwin Meyer (Love You to Death)

Cohen, who was replaced as director, wrote this as a Mike Hammer movie. He had purchased the rights to several Mickey Spillane novels for a possible series, but it fell through after the failure of the I, the Jury remake (1982). Billy Dee Williams is Hamburger, a wisecracking New York City private detective who causes a lot of accidental deaths while unraveling a double-cross plot. Cohen's trademark locations (the Rockefeller Center ice-skating rink at Christmas, Shea Stadium, Times Square) are put to good use in some amazing action scenes. Joe Spinell opens this comic action movie with a shootout in a gun-permit line. Vanity is Rina, the sexy Velda substitute. With Morgan Fairchild, Joe Cortese, John Beck, and Michael Wilding Jr. (son of Elizabeth Taylor) as the main villain.

DEADLY IMPACT

(Vestron, 1983) D/S/P: "Larry Ludman"/ Fabrizio De Angelis S: David Parker Jr. Italy

Fred Williamson is a helicoptor pilot, and Bo Svenson is a cop investigating a mob murder in Vegas. A couple have been scamming the slot machines using a computer. With John Morghen and Marcia Clingan. Filmed at the Golden Nugget, in Las Vegas, and in Phoenix.

DEADLY INNOCENCE

(Quest, 1988) D/S/P: Hugh Parks D: John D. Patterson S: Joseph Tankersley

Amanda Wyss plays Andy, a sad girl who runs a remote gas station. Her best friend is Pee Wee, a nice retarded girl, and she has eyes for the local sheriff (busy Andrew Stevens). After her strict, religious father (John Anderson) dies, leaving her confused and alone, a strange woman (Mary Crosby, who shot J. R.) shows up and moves in. Wyss has the nude scene, but Crosby really gets to show off, playing a devious, seductive, schizophrenic man-killer on the run who has crazed conversations with her other self. This odd, low-key psycho movie (filmed in Florida) is pretty good until the dumb ending.

DEADLY INTENT

(Fries, 1988) D: Nigel Dick S: John Goff
P: Thomas Fries, Jackelyn Giroux

After an archaeologist is murdered, various characters go after his widow for the jewels he brought back. With Lisa Eilbacher, Steve Railsback, Maud Adams, Lance Henriksen, Fred Williamson, and Persis Khambatta.

DEADLY LOVE

(Complete, 1987) D/S: Michael O'Rourke
P: Sally Smith

One of the worst. Nothing is right about this idiotic horror movie. It's loaded with confused flashbacks, closeups, dreary synthesizer music, and POV camera shots. A young woman inherits the house where her aunt, Crazy Annie, committed suicide. Lots of people are killed by a crazed caretaker, or a biker ghost from the 60s, or a blackmailing imposter. Who cares? Filmed in Utah (I think).

DEADLY MESSAGES

(1985) D: Jack Bender S: William Bleich P: Paul Pompian

Kathleen Beller receives deadly messages from a Ouija board, and a murder is commited.This ABC-TV movie features Michael Brandon, Dennis Franz, Kurtwood Smith, and a clip from The Tingler.

DEADLY NEIGHBORS

(VCI, 80) D/S/E: Don Dohler (Fiend)

Mr. Longfellow (Don Leifert, from Alien Factor), a suburban music teacher who teaches in his bare basement, is really a resurrected corpse! The large, sweaty, bug-eyed, rude man with a mustache and all-black clothes makes the neighbors suspicious as he kills off local women (and even a little girl). He sometimes glows red, and he talks to his cat and Mr. Frye (George Stover), manager of the music academy. They constantly say "Mr. Longfellow" and "Mr. Frye." There are several plugs for Dohler's Film Magic book. This was filmed in Milford, Delaware.

DEADLY OBSESSION

(Republic, 1987) D/S: Jeno Hodi S: Paul Wolansky, Brian Cox P: Anant Singh

John Doe (Joe Paradise), an animal-rights activist and college janitor, threatens to kill coeds if he doesn't receive a million dollars. He lives in tunnels, puts rat poison in ice cream, and stalks Darnell Martin. It doesn't make a whole lot of sense.

DEADLY POSSESSION

(Vestron, 1988) D/S: Craig Lahiff
S/P: Jerry Jennings Australia

Two female students in Adelaide try to find out who the masked psycho killer on campus is. Penny Cook and Anna-Maria Winchester star. Some parts are copied from older horror classics.

DEADLY PREY

(Sony, 1987) D/S: David A. Prior P: Peter Yuval

Ted Prior is the Nam-vet hero in a ripoff of The Most Dangerous Game set in a secret California mercenary camp. Prior (brother of the director) rips off a man's arm and beats him with it. With name guest stars Cameron Mitchell and Troy Donahue, Fritz Mathews, William Zipp, and Suzanne Tara.

DEADLY REACTOR

(AIP, 1989) D/S/A: David Heavner
P: Fritz Mathews (Reactor)

David Heavner stars as Cody, a gunslinger and preacher in the futuristic Wild West. He's made sheriff and battles post-nuke bikers. It all copies Eastwood westerns. With Alyson Davis and Stuart Whitman as Duke.

DEADLY RIVALS

(MCA, 1992) D/P/C: James Datson
S: Redge Mahaffrey

Andrew Stevens is a government laser weapons expert in Miami in this story about spies (including Margaux Hemingway), gangsters (Joseph Bologna and Francisco Quinn, who narrates), torture, and rival sisters. With Cela Wise, Randi Inmgerman, and Richard Roundtree as an FBI agent.

DEADLY SANCTUARY=JUSTINE

THE DEADLY SECRET

(AIP, 1994) D/P: Jason Hammond
S/A: Douglas Stalgren P/M: Erik Hansen

A rich real-estate man who helped kill a girl when he was a college student is blackmailed. With Joe Estevez, Tracy Spalding, and Reggie Cale.

DEADLY SPAWN: See RETURN OF THE ALIENS: DEADLY SPAWN

DEADLY SPY GAMES

(Unicorn, 1989) D/S/P/A: Jack Sell
S/P: Adrianne Richmond

Jack Sell is a government agent who can prevent WWIII in this James Bond spoof. With Tippi Hedren, Troy Donahue as Python, and footage from Sell's Outtakes.

DEADLY STRANGERS

(Paragon, 1974) D: Sidney Hayers
S: Philip Levine P: Peter Miller UK

Hayley Mills picks up a hitchhiker (Simon Ward), and they go to a town where an asylum inmate is loose. With Sterling Hayden. Mills has one of her first topless scenes.

DEADLY SURVEILLANCE

(Republic, 1989) D/S: Paul Ziller S: Hal Salwen

Susan Almgren is a psychotic hooker who kills cops, and Michael Ironside is the tough cop after her. With Christopher Bundy as her boyfriend, Michael McGill as a junkie, David Carradine in a small role as a cop, drug smugglers, and violence. It was made for cable TV.

DEADLY TRACKERS

(Warner, 1972) D: Barry Shear, Samuel Fuller S: Lukas Heller P: Fouad Said

Richard Harris (after A Man Called Horse and Man in the Wilderness) stars as a sheriff who tracks bank robber Rod Taylor to Mexico after his wife and son are killed. With William Smith as a retarded muscleman, Isela Vega, and Neville Brand. Fuller, the original director, also wrote the story. He started shooting in Spain but didn't get along with Harris, so the film was reshot in Mexico. Some of the music was from The Wild Bunch (1969).

DEADLY TREASURES OF THE PIRANHA = KILLER FISH

DEADLY TWINS

(Prism, 1985) D/S/P: Joe Oaks

Judy and Audrey Landers (real-life sisters, but not twins) are twin singers who are raped and beaten in Cologne by the son of a mob boss. It's revenge time.

DEADLY VENGEANCE

(Active, 1970) D/P/E/C: Amin Chaudhri
S: Joel O'Brien (Sweet Vengeance)

This tape, claiming to star Grace Jones, is a New York City crime/sex movie originally rated X. The story concerns a woman who goes after gangster Big Mike after he kills her boyfriend. She lets a gay photographer paint her body and take her picture (for Freakout magazine) in exchange for martial-arts lessons in Central Park. She poses as a hooker, slits some gangsters' throats, then dies in flames after her car crashes. The producers must have decided to try to deceive black action movie fans a few years later, because they added several scenes with Shaft-style music, two black characters, and more explicit (soft-core) sex. Near the beginning, a very young-looking Grace Jones (with short natural hair) greets her boyfriend, Slick Jones. They have almost-porno sex, ruined by the cameraman, who usually focuses on the guy's butt. Slick leaves and does it with Big Mike's woman, then gets shot in the head when they're discovered. No more Grace, on with the "real" movie. By the director of Tiger Warsaw (1987).

DEADLY VISION

(Elecktra, 1979) D: Ivan Nagy
S: Robert Carrington P: Jay Benson
(Mind over Murder; Are You Alone Tonight?)

A psycho killer who blows up planes is mentally in touch with housewife Deborah Raffin. With Andrew Prine, Bruce Davison, and Robert Englund.

DEADLY WEAPON

(TWE, 1987) D/S: Michael Miner P: Peter Manoogian

Rodney Eastman (Nightmare on Elm Street III) stars as an Arizona kid who thinks he's from outer space. He finds an antimatter gun and blasts his enemies and his father until the army shows up to stop him. Kim Walker (Heathers) is his girlfriend. With Gary Frank, Michael Horse, William Sanderson, and Ed Nelson. Miner cowrote Robocop, but this Empire release sounds a lot like Laserblast, a 1978 Charles Band production

DEADLY WEAPONS

(SW, 1973) D/P: Doris Wishman S: Judy J. Kushner

"See the mob get busted when Chesty takes her revenge." "73-32-36" Chesty Morgan stars as Zsa Zsa in her first movie, and with Doris Wishman directing you know it's at least unique. I can't think of a worse actress. She literally smothers bad guys with her enormous breasts. Porno star Harry Reems (Deep Throat) costars. Some of the music was stolen from an Italian western. Chesty (really Lillian Wilczkowsky, born in Poland) returned in the slightly better-known Double Agent '73. Deadly Weapons was released by Hallmark (an AIP offshoot) in 1975, and those who saw it will never forget the experience. Earlier tapes include a Joe Bob intro.

DEAD MAN'S REVENGE

(MCA, 1994) D: Alan J. Levi S: Jim Byrnes, David Chisolm P: Ed Lahti

Bruce Dern is an evil railroad baron who kills the family of a homesteader (Michael Ironside) and frames him. This western features Keith Coulouris and singer Randy Travis.

DEAD MAN WALKING

(Republic, 1987) D/P: Gregory Brown S: John Weidner, Rick Marx P: John Thurman Suttle

"Zero men" with a life expectancy of only a few years track each other across a wasteland in plague-ridden 1997. A chauffeur (Jeffrey Combes) hires a a bounty hunter (Wings Hauser) to help rescue an heiress (Pamela Ludwig). With Brion James as the crazed, orange-haired maniac villain, Sy Richardson, and Nancy Locke (Hauser). This action satire includes chainsaw Russian roulette and a human torch nightclub act at Cafe Death. From one of "the Dark Brothers" of New Wave Hookers fame. The same main cast was also in his Street Asylum.

DEAD MATE

(Prism, 1988) D/S: Straw Weisman P: Lew Mishkin

An ex-hooker working as a truck-stop waitress (Elizabeth Mannino) has nightmares and impulsively marries a rich man. Her new mortician husband turns out to be a necrophiliac who killed his other wives. Everyone else in the small town likes dead bodies too. The director started out working on Andy Milligan movies.

DEAD MEN DON'T DIE

(Academy, 1990) D/S: Malcolm Marmostein P: Wayne Marmostein

Elliott Gould is a TV newcaster who is shot by drug dealers and revived by a voodoo priestess and cleaning lady (Mabel King). She announces, "I be his manager." He continues to deliver the news on the air, but she magically reads the copy to him, which he says in her broken English. Hilarious! Gould spends part of the movie as a zombie in a dress. With Melissa Anderson and George "Buck" Flower. Marmostein wrote some of the other movies that helped destroy Gould's career (Whiffs and *S*P*Y*S*). This actually played in New York City theaters!

THE DEAD NEXT DOOR

(Electro, 1989) D/S/P/A/E/M: J. R. Bookwalter

This one, from Akron, has been called "the most expensive Super 8 feature ever made." It cost nearly $100,000 and took the then teenage Bookwalter almost 4 years to complete. Basically it's a gory, plotless, blatant copy of Romero's Living Dead sequels, with in-joke character names. Zombie Squad cops use rifles and machetes to battle the fast-moving zombies (first seen in a video store). The zombie-rights protest group is a funny idea. Some brief scenes were shot near famous buildings in Washington, DC. Scott Spiegel appears as a cop, some of the dialogue was dubbed by Bruce Campbell, an Evil Dead clip is used, and it was partially financed by Sam Raimi, who "disowned" it. Bookwalter later made many shot-on-video features.

DEAD OF NIGHT

(1987) D: Deryn Warren S: Gerry Daly P: Jessica Rains

Sara (Julie Merrill), a repressed woman abused by her boyfriend, performs a ritual and is possessed by Sura, an evil sorceress. Now sexy, she picks up men, takes them home for sex, and rips their throats out. There's nudity and gore. Not to be confused with the classic British horror anthology of the same name (available from HBO).

DEAD OF WINTER

(MGM, 1987) D: Arthur Penn S/P: Marc Shmuger S: Mark Malone P: John Bloomgarden

In a plot based on a B movie, My Name Is Julie Ross (1945), Mary Steenburgen is an actress hired by Roddy McDowall for a movie to be filmed in his old mansion. She's held prisoner there, and thanks to flashbacks and a multiple plot twist we discover that she's really . . . (It's not a great movie, but it's suspenseful enough that you should find out for yourself.) With Jan Rubes.

DEAD ON

(Orion, 1993) D: Ralph Hemecker S: April Wayne P: Stu Segall

Strangers on a Train provides the plot of this "erotic thriller." Shari Shattuck is a blond painter married to an attorney (David Ackroyd). Matt McCoy is a pilot who hates his rich wife (Tracy Scoggins) and wants her killed. R and unrated versions are available.

DEAD ON SIGHT

(Paramount, 1994) D: Ruben Preuss S: Lewis Green P: Roxanne Messina Captor

Jennifer Beals is a college student who has nightmares and premonitions about a serial killer in a ski mask. Daniel Baldwin costars, with Kurtwood Smith and William H. Macy.

DEAD PIGEON ON BEETHOVEN STREET

(VSOM, 1972) D/S: Sam Fuller P: Joachim von Mengershausen W. Germany
(Tote Taube in der Beethovenstrasse)

Glenn Corbett goes to Germany to avenge the killing of his partner and encounters drugs, blackmail, and porno. With Christa Lang (Fuller's wife), Anton Diffring, Stephane Audran, Alex D'Arcy, Barry Jones, and Fuller himself as an American senator. The music is by Can. Little seen outside of Germany, it was the first feature that Fuller had control of after The Naked Kiss. The title was similar to Fuller's Pickup on South Street, from twenty years earlier.

DEAD PIT

(Imperial Entertainment, 1988)
D/S/P/E: Gimel Everett
S/E: Brett Leonard

"Jane Doe" (Cheryl Lawson) is in a dark, smoggy asylum full of clichéd wackos because she can't remember her identity. She usually wears the standard patient clothes, bikini panties and a short undershirt. She dreams about a nurse spraying her with a hose while she's hung by her wrists topless. Top-billed Jeremy Slate (a 60s biker-movie regular) is Swan, the gray-haired doctor who hypnotizes her, causing frightening flashbacks. A spiral staircase leads to "the dead pit," where a mad young doctor sticks syringes into victims' heads and performs lobotomies. A patient gets a dental drill stuck in his eye, a head is thrown into Jane's room, and the mad doctor possesses her. The doc's victims (lots of spastic, bloody, brain-eating zombies) all emerge from the pit (like in The Sentinal) and attack. A British patient tries to help ("For dead people they sure are smart!"), and the ending is pretty good. There's typical sleep-inducing synthesizer music. This tape has a great box with green eyes that glow when you push it in the right spot. Porno star Shauna McCullough was used for the topless scene.

THE DEAD POOL

(Warner, 1988) D: Buddy Van Horn
S: Steve Sharon P: David Valdes

Dirty Harry movie number 5 is an anti-horror movie movie. San Francisco cop Harry Callahan (Clint Eastwood) is teamed with a Chinese partner (Evan C. Kim) who, of course, dies. He then (reluctantly at first, of course) works with a TV reporter (Patricia Clarkson). Liam Neeson is a low-budget horror-movie director making Hotel Satan and is a prime suspect when actors, celebrities, and a film critic on a hit list are killed by a psycho serial-killer horror-movie fan (and writer). Film clips from It's Alive III, Cujo, and Time After Time are used. Also with Jim Carrey. Eastwood was mayor of Carmel at the time. The year this was released, Eastwood directed Bird, did anti-drug TV ads, and campaigned for George Bush.

DEAD RINGERS

(Media, 1988) D/S/P/A: David Cronenberg
S: Norman Snider P: Marc Boyman Canada

After his remake of The Fly became a mainstream hit, Cronenberg turned to a more believable and upsetting story. It was adapted from the novel Twins, by Bari Wood and Jack Geasland, which was based on the true story of twin New York City doctors who died in 1975. Jeremy Irons is incredible playing both twins. Brilliant and eccentric Toronto gynecologists Beverly and Elliot Mantle conduct fertility experiments and trade women.

Jeremy Irons in Cronenberg's Dead Ringers.

When one falls for a movie star (Genevieve Bujold) their routine falls apart, and things get very disturbing. With Stephen Lack and some amazing gynecologist's tools. It's 116 minutes long. Cronenberg returned with Naked Lunch (1991).

DEAD SLEEP

(Vestron, 1990) D: Alec Mills S: Michael Rymer, P: Stanley O'Toole Australia

Linda Blair is Maggie, an American nurse on the night shift in a Brisbane mental hospital. The head doctor (Tony Bonner) uses electroshock treatments, lets patients die, and has (offscreen) sex with female patients. He keeps a special ward of topless patients prisoner. Linda quits, then returns to expose the electronic sleep/drug treatment deaths. A subplot involves Linda's catatonic ex-boyfriend, a bad artist. The director was a cinematographer. The music is by Brian May. The movie is dull.

DEAD SPACE

(RCA, 1990) D: Fred Gallo
S: Catherine Cyran P: Mike Elliott

This is a cheap, boring, mild remake of Corman's Forbidden World (1982), itself an Alien copy, with more music and FX taken from Battle Beyond the Stars (1980). Marc Singer is the hero, with an awful wisecracking robot sidekick. A mutant creature enters a woman's nose. It grows and goes into the vents of the foggy spaceship. The full-grown creature is really bad! Laura Tate costars. From Concorde, the recycling champ of the film business.

THE DEAD TALK BACK

(Sinister, 1957) D/S/P: Merle S. Gold

Henry Krasger (Aldo Farnese, with pretty fake-looking hair and beard) looks into the camera and says, "My philosophy is metaphysics." He (and a police lieutenant) narrate the "true" story of how Henry helped solve a murder case. Rene (Laura Brock), a model who sits around in her negligée, is pinned to a wall with a crossbow at the rooming house where she, Henry, and the various suspects live. Henry has a radio that can communicate with the dead, and during a spooky séance items float around and Rene, dead in a tank, talks! The Headliner production, filmed in Hollywood, features a jazz band and a brief look at a 50s record store. The supernatural part is a cheat, but it's a sort of charming, low-budget feature and is a welcome release after being shelved for 36 (!) years. There's also a great Carnival of Souls trailer.

DEADTIME STORIES

(Cinema Group, 1985) D/S: Jeffrey Delman
S: Charles F. Shelton, J. Edward Kiernam
P: William Paul (Freaky Fairy Tales)

Three comic-horror versions of fairy tales are told to a kid by a babysitting uncle. There's a killer witch, a werewolf version of Little Red Riding Hood, and Cathryn de Prume as Goldi Lox. Ed French created the (pretty good) gore FX. It was filmed from 1982 to 1985 and released in 1987. With Scott Valentine, Melissa Leo (Streetwalkin'), and Matt Mittler as the werewolf. Executive producer William Links also backed Deep Throat.

DEAD WOMEN IN LINGERIE

(Monarch, 1990) D/S/P: Erica Fox S/A: John Romo

An LA private eye (John Romo) is hired to track down a serial killer who preys on mistreated immigrant garment workers. Maura Tierney costars, with Jerry Orbach, Dennis Christopher, June Lockhart, and Lyle Waggoner. It played in LA theaters after the video came out.

THE DEAD ZONE

(Paramount, 1983) D: David Cronenberg
S: Jeffrey Boam P: Debra Hill Canada

One of the few really good Stephen King adaptations deals with political assassination and the possible end of the world. Christopher Walken awakens from a coma with psychic powers. He can save lives and predict the future, and he has a clear apocalyptic vision. Martin Sheen is the dangerous political candidate Greg Stillson ("the voice of the people"). With Brooke Adams, Tom Skerritt, Herbert Lom, Anthony Zerbe, and Colleen Dewhurst as the mother of deranged killer Nicholas Campbell. The flashback and flash-forward scenes are powerful, and the acting is excellent (especially Walken and Dewhurst). The music is by Michael Kamen and is on Milan Records. Released the same year as Cujo and Christine, it was a Dino De Laurentiis production.

DEAF SMITH AND JOHNNY EARS

(VSOM, 1973) D/S: Paolo Cavara S: Harry Essex, Oscar Saul P: Joseph Jani Italy (Los Amigos)

Anthony Quinn is a Civil War hero and gunfighter who is a deaf-mute. Franco Nero is his partner, Johnny Ears. They're sent to the republic of Texas by the president to stop a colonel who plans to become dictator. This "spaghetti western" costars Pamela Tiffin as a whore and Ira Fürstenberg. Rated PG.

DEALING: OR THE BERKELEY-TO-BOSTON FORTY-BRICK LOST-BAG BLUES

(1972) D/S: Paul Williams S: David Odell P: Edward R. Pressman

A Harvard grad (Robert E. Lyons) takes a load of grass to Berkeley, in this counterculture comedy. Barbara Hershey flies to Boston with 40 kilos and is busted. A cop takes half of it and sells it himself. With John Lithgow as a dealer, Charles Durning, Joy Bang, and Buzzy Linhart. It was based on a novel by Michael Crichton (Westworld, Looker, Jurassic Park) and was barely released by Warner. Williams also made Out of It and The Revolutionary.

DEAL OF THE CENTURY

(Warner, 1983) D: William Friedkin
S: Paul Brickman P: Bud Yorkin

Chevy Chase and Sigourney Weaver star in a failed black comedy about international arms dealers. Chase sells a secret superweapon to a South American dictator. With Gregory Hines, Vince Edwards, Graham Jarvis, and Wallace Shawn.

DEATH BECOMES HER

(MCA, 1992) D/P: Robert Zemeckis
S: Martin Donovan, David Koepp

In Beverly Hills, an aging actress (Meryl Streep) and an author (Goldie Hawn) both want a plastic surgeon (Bruce Willis). They both drink an eternal-life drug obtained from a priestess (Isabella Rossellini), return from the dead, and go after each other with shovels in this dark comic fantasy about greed and vanity. It includes advanced ILM FX, an old castle, and lots of exaggerated thunder and lightning. The doctor becomes an alcoholic "mortician to the stars." In surprising scenes, Streep walks around with her head on backwards and Hawn appears extremely fat or with a giant hole through her stomach. With Sydney Pollack, Ian Ogilvy, Michelle Johnson, and Kathy Long. Warhol, Elvis, and Marilyn also appear. Alan Silvestri provided the score. The FX are by ILM and Dick Smith. The ending of this very expensive PG-13 Universal release was reshot at the last minute.

DEATH BEFORE DISHONOR

(Starmaker, 1986) D: Terry Leonard
S/P: Lawrence Kubik S: John Catliff

Fred Dryer (former LA Rams football player and Hunter TV series star) is a Rambo-type marine sergeant fighting evil, torturing, kidnapping Arabs. With Joanna Pacula, Sasha Mitchell, Brian Keith, and Paul Winfield. The director is a stuntman. The co–executive producer of the New World release was Frank Capra Jr.

DEATH BY DIALOGUE

(City Lights, 1988) D/S: Tom Dewile
P: Richard Pepin, Joseph Merhi

This one's about a haunted movie script. A guy and four friends visit his crippled taxidermist uncle and his harsh housekeeper, who live next to a movie set. People start to die according to the script, so finally some of the survivors try to rewrite the script to save themselves (a good idea that is dropped). Some of the dream sequences are memorable, if pointless. A heavy-metal band appears playing outside and a head is smashed with a guitar. A topless girl decapitates some guy. Other parts are botched, like a man on fire, obviously a stuntman in an asbestos suit. The black kid is a typical clichéd third wheel hanging out with two couples, but as the soundtrack reminds us, "Party down and lose control!"

DEATH CAR ON THE FREEWAY

(1979) D/A: Hal Needham
S: William Wood P: Stan Shpetner

A maniac on the LA freeway attacks women in cars with his van. A TV reporter (Shelley Hack) tracks him down. This CBS-TV movie also features George Hamilton, Frank Gorshin, Peter Graves, Dinah Shore, Harriet Nelson, Barbara Rush, Abe Vigoda, Morgan Brittany, Sid Haig, and director Needham.

DEATH CHASE

(AIP, 1988) D/S: David A. Prior S: James L. Hennessy Jr., Craig L. Hyde P: Peter Yuval, Yakov Bentsvi

William Zipp stars as a guy caught up in a corrupt businessman's game of death. With Paul Smith and Jack Starrett.

DEATH COLLECTOR

(Raedon, 1988) D/P: Tom Gniazowski S: John McLaughlin P: Jean Bodon, Paul Falcone, Leopard Wurm (Tin Star Void)

This was made in New Haven by an NYU grad. In the future, a directionless, grinning, muscular singer in a cowboy hat (Daniel Chapman) goes to prison when his sheriff brother is murdered. After being released, he battles bad guys in a high-security building. Characters drive 50s cars in this pretty dry attempt at mixing science fiction and westerns. With horror novelist Philip Nutman as the villain's right-hand man, Ruth Collins, and Debi Thibeault. The star was in Exquisite Corpses and some Chuck Vincent movies. Apparently he died of AIDS.

DEATH DIMENSION

(Movietime, 1978) D: Al Adamson S/P: Harry Hope (Black Eliminator; Kill Factor; Freeze Bomb; Icy Death)

Jim Kelly (from Paris, Kentucky) became the first black martial-arts star, in Enter the Dragon. Later he starred in movies made in Italy and Hong Kong and, worst of all, two in America, directed by Adamson. The first was called Black Samurai. This was the second, and you can find it under at least four different names from different video companies. You might even rent it several times by mistake, and that should make you pretty damn mad. Almost worth seeing for the crazed cast, this typical Adamson mismash has bad sound and is too dark (thank cinematographer Gary Graver) but has some pretty good music. As Detective Ash, Kelly teaches kung-fu kicking and drinks malt liquor, "the black man's beer." His police-captain boss is one-time James Bond George Lazenby. A doctor on an island is forced to develop and demonstrate a "freeze bomb." Four men forced to stand by the bomb when it detonates are covered with snow and die. The doc implants a microdot with the formula under the scalp of his female assistant, then kills himself. Guest-star villains who are after the valuable dot include a very angry Aldo Ray and Harold Sakata (from Goldfinger) as the Pig. Another guest star, Terry Moore, says, "Oh, God, if you just knew how cruel the Pig was!" Kelly and Myron Bruce Lee (!) are the heroes with nunchucks. A "Haitian" villain who hides out at an LA whorehouse threatens people with a big, ugly snapping turtle. Some scenes were filmed in Las Vegas, a favorite location of the director. One of the executive producers was Dick Randall. My favorite scene is a long closeup of the turtle eating grapes.

DEATH DREAMS

(New Line, 1991) D: Martin Donovan S: Robert Glass P: Roni Weisberg

Marg Helgenberger, the wife of Christopher Reeve, sees the ghost of their dead child. With Cec Verrell and Fionnula Flanagan. Dick Clark was the executive producer of this movie.

DEATH DRUG

(Academy, 1978) D: Oscar Williams S: Roland S. Jefferson, M.D. P: Demetrius Johnson

Philip Michael Thomas is an LA musician who makes a good living installing heating systems. Suddenly he's signed to a record label and told, "You'll be as big as Donna Summer!" He's also given a free joint ("Stick with the kick! The tower of power!") which immediately leads to angel-dust use and paranoid, hostile, violent, wack behavior. He hallucinates (his hairbrush becomes an alligator!), freaks out in a PCP ward, and sees monster masks in slow motion. His funeral is televised! With Rosalind Cash as a doctor, Vernee Watson as the scared wife, DJ Frankie Crocker, and the Gap Band doing some funk tunes. When this PG-13 film was released on tape to cash in on Miami Vice, an even more overblown Venice Beach angel-dust freak-out attack prologue and Thomas music videos were added. Williams also made The Final Comedown (1972).

DEATH FEUD

(Southgate, 1987) D/S/A: Carl Monsoon P: Mardi Rustam

This story of white slavery and revenge stars Frank Stallone as a merchant seaman in love with a drug-addicted hooker (Karen Mayo-Chandler). With Anthony Caruso as the main villain, Christopher Mitchum, Lisa Loring (Wednesday on the TV series The Addams Family) as a helpful hooker, Greta Blackburn as a topless dancer, Nicholas Worth, Gail Thackray, and Charles Dierkop. Monsoon, who plays a gay motel clerk, made Please Don't Eat My Mother. Rustam backed many other exploitation wonders.

DEATH FROM A DISTANCE

(Sinister, 1936) D: Frank R. Strayer S: John M. Kraft P: Maury M. Cohen

Invincible Pictures used props from Universal's The Invisible Ray for this 68-minute murder mystery with a science-fiction theme, set at an astronomical observatory. Ted Mallory stars as a police detective, with Russell Hopton, Lola Lane, and Wheeler Oakman. There's a weird scientist, a psycho killer, and a "ghost."

DEATH GAME

(United, 1974) D/P: Peter Traynor S: Anthony Overman, Michael Ronald Ross P: Larry Spiegel (The Seducers)

A San Francisco architect (Seymour Cassel) whose family is away on his birthday lets two girls into his home during a thunderstorm. Colleen Camp and Sondra Locke, who claim to be underage, seduce him in the bathtub (a scene worth the rental), then tie him up. They eat like pigs, put on grotesque makeup, scream, have food fights, smash furniture, and kill a delivery boy. Much of the action is captured with a hand-held camera. The cast is excellent, and both female stars have nude scenes, a rarity for the underrated Camp (recently in Sliver). It's better than any recent "erotic thriller," and the end is priceless! The only part I didn't like was the overused, irritating "My Dad" song. This claims to be based on a true story! Sissy Spacek (who was also involved with Phantom of the Paradise and Eraserhead) was one of the art directors.

DEATH HOUSE

(AIP, 1988) D/A: John Saxon S: William Selby, David S. Freeman, Kate Whitcomb P: Nick Marino

So, after being in movies since 1955, Saxon got to direct a prison/horror movie! He stars as an evil government man using behavior-modification drugs in a botched attempt to create an army of superstrong fighters. It's pretty dumb, but it has its moments. Inmates become killer zombies, and there's some gore, a topless dream sequence, and a Dead Kennedys song, and it all ends at Bronson Canyon! Dennis Cole is the blond hero, a Nam-vet chauffeur who is set up and sent to prison, where he teams up with Tane McClure, a blond nurse. Anthony Franciosa is a gangster whose gay brother (Michael Pataki) is also in prison. Ron O'Neal shows up for one scene. Fred Olen Ray (who helped direct) and David DeCoteau are thanked in the credits.

DEATH JOURNEY

(Unicorn, 1976) D/P/A: Fred Williamson S: Abel Jones

In a follow-up to his No Way Back, Fred Williamson is rich LA playboy and detective Jesse Crowder. He's hired to transport a criminal witness (Bernard Kuby) to New York City. They manage to pass through Kansas City, Saint Louis, and Chicago while gangsters try to kill them. With D'Urville Martin and Sam Coppola.

DEATH MACHINE

(Vidmark, 1994) D/S: Steve Norrigton P: Dominic Anciano UK

Brad Dourif is Jack Dante, a crazy scientist working for a big corporation in the future who creates a killer robot. With former model Ely Pouget and William Hootkins. The first-time director, known for doing makeup in the Aliens sequels, was 29. The producer had backed Reflecting Skin.

DEATH MAGIC

(Domino Theatre, 1992) D/S/P: Paul Clinco

Time jumps from 1875 to the present and back in this ambitious first-effort horror movie. Five young people who are followers of a Satanist manage to conjure up a laughing 19th-century killer corporal with a saber. Hanged for leading a massacre, he always appears in a red light. Parts are laughable, but you get guts and lots of nudity during various ceremonies. A naked couple are skewered and blood spurts during a decapitation. The lady police captain is a nice touch. It was made in Tucson.

DEATHMASK

(Prism, 1983) D/S: Richard Friedman S: Jeffrey Goldenberg P: Louis K. Sher (Unknown)

Farley Granger is a grim New York City medical investigator trying to identify a dead four-year-old boy. This depressing movie features Ruth Warrick as a psychic, Danny Aiello as a cop, and some porno people: Veronica Hart, Kelly Nichols, and R. Bolla. Friedman (then an NYU student) went on to make Scared Stiff, Doom Asylum, and other 80s horror obscurities.

DEATH MATCH

(Monarch, 1994) D: Joe Coppoletta S: Curtis Gleaves, Robert Wyatt P: Mike Meyer

A former kickboxing champ (Ian Jacklin) and a reporter (Renee Ammann) look for a missing man and encounter illegal matches run by an arms dealer. With Martin Kove, Richard Lynch, and many martial-arts champs like Matthias Hues, Benny Urquidez, Danny Lopez, Jorge Rivera, and Nick Hill.

DEATH MERCHANT

(AIP, 1990) D: Jim Winburn S: Karl Holman

Ivan J. Rado and Andrew Singleton star in this cheap, plot-heavy film about a stolen missile-guidance microchip. With Lawrence Tierney as an arms dealer and Martina Castle.

DEATHMOON

(Media, 1978) D: Bruce Kessler S: George Schenck P: Jay Benson

An executive (Robert Foxworth) has a recurring nightmare about a wolf man. He goes to Hawaii to forget and becomes involved with France Nuyen, but a native curse interferes. This CBS-TV movie features Joe Penny, Debralee Scott, and Charles Haid. It's by the director of Simon, King of the Witches.

DEATH NURSE

(Video City, 1987) D/S: "Nick Phillips"/ Steve Millard P: Frances Millard

This shot-on-video marvel was made at the same time and in the same house as Crazy Fat Ethel II. It has the same star (Priscilla Alden) and uses footage from that film. It also reuses footage from Criminally Insane, showing the same axe-murder scene (now a "dream") twice! As a matter of fact, the credits on all three films are identical. Alden, as nurse Edith Mortley, runs a charity hospital with her brother. She kills people, then feds them to rats in the basement. The patients are all old and/or ugly. Does your video store stock these titles!?

DEATH OF A CENTERFOLD: THE DOROTHY STRATTEN STORY

(1981) D: Gabrielle Beaumont S: Donald L. Stewart P: Paul Pompian

Jamie Lee Curtis stars in this NBC-TV movie, televised more than a year before Star 80 was released. After a half-dozen horror movies, it was a career move for Curtis (who doesn't look anything like Stratten). With Bruce Weitz as her killer husband, Mitchell Ryan as Hugh Hefner, Robert Reed as the Bogdanovich character, Tracy Reed, Bibi Besch, and Luca Bercovici.

THE DEATH OF OCEAN VIEW PARK

(1979) D: E. W. Swackhamer S: John Furia Jr., Barry Oringer P: Michael Trikilis

An amusement park is demolished by a hurricane during the 4th of July weekend in this cut-rate disaster movie, a Playboy production for ABC-TV. The real 80-year-old Ocean View Park in Norfolk, Virginia, set for demolition, was actually destroyed. Mike Connors stars, with Diana Canova, Perry Lang, Mare Winningham, Martin Landau, and Mel Welles.

DEATH PROMISE

(Paragon, 1977) D: Robert Warmflash S: Norbert Albertson Jr. P: Serafim Karalexis

"Charles Bonet" stars as a Hispanic kung-fu master who battles evil New York City slumlords after his boxer father is killed. His buddies are a black guy and an Oriental guy. The fights are pretty hilarious, and everyone yells a lot. Boom mikes are visible, and when the characters go to China the scene is filmed in a backyard.

DEATH RAGE

(VidAmerica, 1976) D: Antonio Margheretti S: Guy Casals Italy (Blood Reckoning, Con la Rabbia Agli Occhi).

Yul Brynner is an American hitman in Naples. Barbara Bouchet and Martin Balsam costar in this crime film.

DEATH RIDES A HORSE

(High Desert, 1967) D: Giulio Petroni S: Luciano Vincenzoni P: Alfonso Sansone Italy (Da Uomo a Uomo).

John Phillip Law, whose family was massacred by outlaws, spends his childhood planning revenge. He eventually teams up with an ex-con gunfighter (Lee Van Cleef) who is after the same outlaws (his former partners) because they framed him. The score is by Ennio Morricone. The violent 2 hour film was rated M when released by United Artists. It was popular (in Europe, anyway) and was remade as Viva Django (1971).

DEATH RIDES TO OSAKA

(United, 1983) D: Jonathan Kaplan S: Carole and Michael Raschella P: Claude Binyon Jr. (Girls of the White Orchid)

Jennifer Jason-Leigh, a singer in a Tokyo nighclub, is sold into slavery by the yakuza. With Mako, Soon-Teck Oh, Ann Jillian, and Leslie Wing. It's one of the movies Kaplan made after the box-office failure of Over the Edge, and it debuted on NBC-TV. The video, cable, and overseas theatrical versions had added nudity.

DEATH RING

(New Line, 1992) D: Robert J. Kizer S: George T. LeBrun P: Gary M. Bettman

Mike Norris stars as a Nam-vet hero whose girlfriend (Isabel Glasser) is kidnapped and taken to an island. The millionaire villain (Billy Drago) holds private manhunts for rich men. The softspoken, long-haired Drago, who never looked more like Michael Jackson, is the reason to watch, as he kicks a man to death after stabbing hin with a fork. His assistant is Miss Ling (Elizabeth Fong Sung), and other relatives of famous actors (Chad McQueen and Don Swayze) are in the movie too. Parts were fimed at Bronson Canyon, and there are a few good gore FX. Kizer also made Hell Comes to Frogtown (1987).

DEATHROW GAMESHOW

(Media, 1987) D/S: Mark Piro P: Brian J. Smith

On the Live or Die show, condemned prisoners have a chance to compete and live. This Running Man–inspired low comedy from Crown includes a Blue Velvet parody, sex, religion, and fart humor. With John McCafferty as the host, "Beano," and Debra Lamb eating fire.

DEATH SCENES

(1989) D/S/P: Nick Bougas

Dr. Anton Lavey shows LA-area-true-crime photos from the 30s and 40s and tells the stories behind various grisly murders. The deaths of actors and criminals are also covered. Ray Atherton was the executive producer.

DEATH SCENES II

(Wavelength, 1992) D/S/P: Nick Bougas

This disgusting tape features actual footage of people dying, including wars, mass murders and the helicopter crash that occurred during the production of Twilight Zone: The Movie. There are also stills from the scene of the Manson murders and Signal 30 car-crash footage. Unlike many Mondo movies, this is all too real.

DEATH'S ECSTASY = THE BEAST

THE DEATH'S HEAD VIRGIN

(1972) D: Norman Foster S: Ward Gaynor P/A: Larry Ward, Jock Gaynor Philippines

A treasure-hunting diver (Ward Gaynor) removes an amulet from a skeleton and unleashes a skull-faced sea siren who uses him for revenge. He looks for women to scalp on an island. The story is told to the man's wife (Diane McBain) by a cop (Vic Diaz).

DEATH SPA

(MPI, 1987) D: Michael Fischa S: James Bartruff, Mitch Paradise P: James Beardley-Jones

Another stupid, bloody gore movie, this time set at a computerized health spa. The late Merritt Butrick stars (sometimes in drag), with Rosalind Cash (The Omega Man) as a police sergeant, a wasted Ken Foree, Brenda Bakke, Shari Shattuck, Alexa Hamilton, and Chelsea Field. Characters are killed by excessive steam, flying shower tiles, exercise machines, and a locker. It's filled with false scares, and a big party is thrown after countless characters have been killed. Beatles completists: a scene from A Hard Day's Night is on a TV screen. Available in R and unrated versions.

DEATHSTALK

(World, 1974) D: Robert Day S: Stephen Kandel, John W. Bloch P: Richard Caffey

Convicts escape, kidnap two married women, and take off on rubber rafts. Vic Morrow, Vince Edwards, Carol Lynley, Anjanette Comer, Neville Brand, and Norman Fell are in this NBC-TV movie.

DEATHSTALKER

(Vestron, 1983) D: John Watson
S: Howard R. Cohen P: James Sbardellati

Self-centered blond hunk Richard Hill is Deathstalker, and Barbi Benton is a kidnapped princess. There's lots of nudity, raping, blood, mud-wrestling, decapitations, dwarfs, and an ugly, boar-headed beast man. The villain magically turns into Barbi at one point, and Lana Clarkson has a topless swordfighting scene. Benton, former Playboy model and country singer, was last seen doing half-hour how-to-play-the-piano "infotainment" commercials. This entertaining New World release was filmed in Argentina. Sequels followed.

Barbi Benton and the boar man in Deathstalker.

DEATHSTALKER II: DUEL OF THE TITANS

(Vestron, 1987) D: Jim Wynorski
S: Neil Ruttenberg P: Frank Asaac Jr.

This sword-and-sorcery parody is full of in-jokes and references (to Hammer films, James Bond, Conan, and executive producer Roger Corman). It's also padded with footage and outtakes from the first film, scenes from Corman's The Terror, and even bloopers at the end. John Terlesky is Deathstalker this time. Penthouse Pet Monique Gabrielle is the princess (and her vampire clone) and John La Zar (from Beyond the Valley of the Dolls) is an evil sorcerer. The evil twin drinks the blood of peasant boys. With Maria Socas, Toni Naples as Sultana, wrestler Queen Kong/Deanna Booher, a mandolin-playing dwarf, and topless scenes (of course!). It was filmed in Argentina and released by Concorde.

DEATHSTALKER III: THE WARRIORS FROM HELL

(Vestron, 1988) D/P: Alfonso Corona
S: Howard R. Cohen P: Antonio de Noriega

After the outrageous first movie and the ridiculous-on-purpose second one, this is pretty dull. John Allan Nelson is Deathstalker, and Thom Christopher is the evil wizard with a zombie army. With Carla Herd as the princess (and her twin sister) and Terri Treas. The Mexican director of the Concorde release also made World of the Vampires (1960).

DEATHSTALKER IV: MATCH OF TITANS

(Vestron, 1990) D/S: Howard R. Cohen
P: Steven Rabiner

Richard Hill (who had been away making bad movies in the Philippines) returns from the first movie, and many warriors arrive for a tournament. With Maria Ford, Brett Baxter, Michelle Moffet, and Brett Clark.

DEATH: THE ULTIMATE MYSTERY

(1975) D/S/P: Robert Emenegger, Allan Sadler

A bearded man driving a car hosts this documentary look at death, with shocking footage and many experts (doctors, gurus, museum curators) interviewed. Cameron Mitchell's voice was used for the narration, and the filmmakers try to make you think it's him onscreen too. It was part of the Gamma Chronicles series and was later copied by the more famous Faces of Death.

DEATH WARMED UP

(Vestron, 1984) D/S: David Blyth
S: Michael Heath P: Murray Newey
New Zealand (Death Warmed Over)

The hero (Michael Hurst) killed his parents on the orders of a mad hypnotist/brain surgeon (Gary Day). He's released from the asylum and goes to the island hospital where the doc is creating a race of mutant warriors. With motorcycles, zombies. nudity, gore FX, and Bruno Lawrence as a hunchback.

DEATH WARRANT

(Warner, 1990) D: Deran Sarafian
S: David S. Goyer P: Mark DiSalle

Jean-Claude Van Damme stars as a Canadian undercover mountie/kickboxer in prison. A psycho called Sandman (Patrick Kilpatrick) is killing convicts, and an organ-selling scam is uncovered. With Robert Guillaume (TV's Benson), Cynthia Gibb, Art LaFleur, and Joshua Miller.

DEATH WATCH

(1966) D/S/P: Vic Morrow P/A: Leonard Nimoy

Years before Poison (1991), Vic Morrow and Leonard Nimoy made this arty (of course), low-budget Jean Genet adaptation while one was starring in the Combat TV series and the other was about to become Mr. Spock. Nimoy, Michael Forest, and Paul Mazursky play prisoners who spend the whole movie talking in a French prison cell. The ads promised "homosexual outlaws on a rampage." With Gavin McLeod (from The Love Boat).

DEATHWATCH

(Embassy, 1979) D/S/P: Bertrand Tavernier S: David Rayfiel France/W. Germany (La Morte en Direct)

In the near future, a reporter (Harvey Keitel) with a camera implanted in his brain is sent by an exploitative TV station to film a terminally ill woman (Romy Schneider). This sad (and long) film was shot around Glasgow (in English) and was based on a novel by David Guy Compton. It also features Harry Dean Stanton, Max von Sydow, Bernhard Wicki, and Robbie Coltrane. Schneider did die soon after (in 1982).

DEATH WISH

(Paramount, 1974) D: Michael Winner
S: Wendell Mayes P: Hal Landers, Bobby Roberts

After years of being the biggest box-office draw in the world (except for America), it took this controversial revenge movie to finally make Charles Bronson a star in his own country. He's Paul Kersey, a liberal Manhattan architect who turns vigilante after his daughter is raped and his wife is killed. A typically intense Jeff Goldblum (in his film debut) is the main killer/rapist. With Hope Lange as Bronson's wife, Vincent Gardenia, Christopher Guest, Olympia Dukakis, and Kathleen Quinlan. The Herbie Hancock soundtrack is on Columbia. Dino De Laurentiis was the executive producer. Winner had already directed Bronson in Chato's Land, The Mechanic, and The Stone Killer.

DEATH WISH II

(Warner, 1982) D: Michael Winner
S: David Englebach P: Golan/Globus

This more violent sequel, made eight years later, is set in LA. Bronson's daughter (in a coma from the first movie) is raped (again), then impaled on an iron fence. With Jill Ireland, Anthony Franciosa, Silvana Galardo, Roberta Collins, and the return of Vincent Gardenia. The hit film was released by Filmways (formerly AIP), which became Orion in 1982.

DEATH WISH III

(MGM, 1985) D: Michael Winner
S: Michael Edmonds P: Golan/Globus

Kersey (Charles Bronson) is back in New York City. This ridiculous sequel has gay bikers and a multiracial street-punk gang (led by Gavan O'Herlihy) who terrorize an apartment complex. Bronson himself is busted, but he gets out and helps old people, using machine guns and rocket launchers. With Martin Balsam, Deborah Raffin as Bronson's new girlfriend, Ed Lauter, Marina Sirtis, and Alex Winter. It was cut for an R rating. The music by Jimmy Page (!) was issued as a soundtrack album, and a "making of" tape was produced.

DEATH WISH IV: THE CRACKDOWN

(Media, 1987) D: J. Lee Thompson S: Gail Morgan Hickman P: Pancho Kohner

Bronson is the architect crusader again, in the least violent sequel. He pits rival crack-dealing LA gangs against each other. With Kay Lenz, John P. Ryan as the millionaire who backs him and turns out to be the drug kingpin, Perry Lopez, and Soon-Teck Oh. It features a roller-rink gun battle and lots of drugs. This Cannon release was the seventh Bronson movie directed by Thompson.

DEATH WISH V: THE FACE OF DEATH

(Warner, 1993) D/S: Allan A. Goldstein P: Damien Lee

Bronson, now 72 years old (!), is in love with fashion designer Lesley-Anne Down, who is (surprise!) killed. There's death by acid, shrink wrap and poisoned cannoli. Michael Parks is a killer garment-district mobster (and the ex-husband of Down), Robert Joy is his transvestite right-hand man, and Saul Rubinek is the DA. The 21st Century production is set in Manhattan but was shot in Toronto.

DEATH WISH CLUB

(Regal, "1983") D: John Carr S: Philip Yordan P: Edmund J. Bodine (Carnival of Fools)

Greta (Meredith Haze), a woman who sells popcorn at a carnival, leaves with a decadent millionaire. A student (Rick Narnes) at a frat party falls in love with her while watching her in a stag film (she wanted to be an actress). He finds her, and they both end up in her mentor's "death club" where variations of Russian Roulette are played. People die in imaginative ways—crushed by a contruction ball, burned to a crisp by a computer, and strangest of all, stung to death by a giant (badly animated) winged beetle. Screenwriter Yordan also shows up as a man in a porno theater. The Carnival of Fools tape uses Carnival of Souls ad art! This very odd feature includes nudity and is also part of the trilogy Night Train to Terror.

THE DECAMERON

(Water Bearer, 1970) D/S/A: Pier Paolo Pasolini Italy/France/W. Germany (Il Decamerone)

Eight of Boccaccio's bawdy tales are told in this film, the first part of a trilogy. Several are fantasy-oriented, concerning ghosts, a miracle, heaven and hell, and a woman turned into a donkey. It was rated X in the US but was an art-house hit anyway. With Silvana Mangano as the Madonna, Monique Van Vooren, and an Ennio Morricone score. It was a commercial hit in Europe, and "sequels" were made in Italy. Decameron III (1973), for instance, was directed by Antonio Margheretti. United Artists also released Pasolini's The Canterbury Tales (1971) and Arabian Nights (1974).

DECEIT

(Columbia, 1989) D: Albert Pyun S: Kitty Chalmers P: Tom Karnowski

This is the most irritating, pretentious, and cheap movie from a major distributor in years. It might appeal to those who like off-Broadway plays, though. A man (Norbert Weisser) who claims he's "an alien sex fiend" spends most of the movie in a room talking to an unimpressed captive woman (Samantha Phillips) in her underwear. He plans to blow up the world, but fails to get her to take the rest of her clothes off. Another "alien" shows up, and they all talk and yell.

THE DECEIVERS

(Warner, 1988) D: Nicholas Meyer S: Michael Hirst P: Ismail Merchant, Tim Van Rellim UK/India

Pierce Brosnan as a British officer goes undercover in 1825 India to catch thugee-cult killers. It was based on a novel by John Masters but is similar to the notorious Hammer film The Stranglers of Bombay (1959). The killers worship Kali and fill mass graves with wealthy travelers. With Saeed Jaffrey, Shashi Kapoor, and Helena Mitchell. The John Scott soundtrack is on RCA. It's PG-13.

THE DECLINE OF WESTERN CIVILIZATION

(Media, 1981) D: Penelope Spheeris P: Gordon Brown, Jeff Pettyman

This documentary (with one of the best titles ever) takes an unflinching look at the LA punk scene. It includes band performances and interviews with Lee Ving, the late Darby Crash (of the Germs), Billy Zoom, and others. Black Flag, Circle Jerks, Bags, Fear, and X perform. It all looks even more ridiculous with age. Spheeris had acted in Naked Angels and went on to direct Wayne's World (1992).

THE DECLINE OF WESTERN CIVILIZATION PART II: THE METAL YEARS

(Columbia, 1988) D: Penelope Spheeris S/P: Jonathan Dayton, Valerie Faris

This documentary makes a perfect double bill with This Is Spinal Tap. Many music celebs and would-be celebs are interviewed, some play onstage, and the editing is great. Alice Cooper, Kiss, Ozzy Osbourne, Poison, Megadeth, and Lemmy (from the mighty Motorhead) are featured. Steve Tyler of Aerosmith says, "Millions went up my nose." Common themes are money, groupies, booze, drugs, rehab, and musicians as prostitutes. With Teri Weigel. New Line released the Miles Copeland III production, and the soundtrack is on Capitol. Spheeris followed with Thunder and Mud (1989) about professional wrestling.

DEEP COVER

(New Line, 1992) D: Bill Duke S: Michael Tolkin S/P: Henry Bean P: Pierre David

Lawrence Fishburne stars as an honest LA undercover cop who poses as a pusher and gets way too involved with sex, drugs, easy money, and killing. Jeff Goldblum is an attorney who is also a coke-snorting, drug-dealing psycho, Gregory Sierra is a sadistic dealer, and Sydney Lassick is his flunky. The government drug agents are useless or worse. With Victoria Dillard, Charles Martin Smith as the DEA director, Clarence Williams III as a born-again cop, Kamala Lopez, and Glynn Turman. Duke made this action-packed film after A Rage in Harlem.

DEEP END

(VSOM, 1970) D/S: Jerzy Skolimowski S: J. Gruza, B. Sulik P: Helmut Jedele UK/W. Germany

John Moulder-Brown stars as Mike, an unexperienced London teen working in a public bath. Things go from light and funny to perverse as he becomes obsessed with, fantasizes about, and accidentally kills Jane Asher, an "older" red-haired coworker. The music is by Can and Cat Stevens. Also with Diana Dors. Paramount released this strange feature on a double bill with the unbearable preteen movie Friends. The director later made The Shout.

DEEP RED

(MCA, 1994) D: Craig R. Baxley S: D. Brent Note P: Timothy Marx

Michael Biehn as a PI with a clichéd 40s-look office narrates a movie with killer milkmen. His ex-wife, also a detective (Joanna Pacula), is protecting a little girl whose blood heals and reverses the aging process (thanks to a close encounter). John De Lancie is a shape-shifting (morphing) evil scientist. With Michael Des Barres and a rare pro-smoking plot device. Baxley's I Come in Peace was much better than this film with its unoriginal name, which debuted on the Sci-Fi Channel.

DEEP SPACE

(TWE, 1987) D/S/P: Fred Olen Ray S: T. L. Lankford P: Alan Amiel

In another Alien-inspired movie from Ray (Biohazard), monsters escape from a space lab on earth. Cops Charles Napier and Ron Glass (from Barney Miller) go after a man-eating space bug in California. Napier eventually battles a monster with a chainsaw. With Ann Turkel, James Booth, Bo Svenson, Anthony Eisley, Julie Newmar, and Peter Palmer (both from L'il Abner), Fox Harris, Elizabeth Brooks, and Dawn Wildsmith. It was Ray's most expensive feature as director (at $1.5 million), and he appears in it too.

DEEPSTAR SIX

(IVE, 1988) D/P: Sean Cunningham S: Lewis Abernathy, Geof Miller P: Patrick Markey

This was made to beat the big-budget Abyss to the nation's screens. Neither one is too great. Greg Evigan stars, with Miguel Ferrer (who is pretty good when he loses it), Nancy Everhard, Taurean Blacque, Nia Peeples, and Cindy Pickett. There's a barely seen Chris Walas and a mutant crab monster designed by Mark Shostrom and Walas. The score is by Harry Manfredini.

DEF BY TEMPTATION

(Southgate, 1990) D/S/P/A: J. James Bond III

Bond stars as a very naive divinity student from the South visiting his brother (Kadeem Hardison) in New York. He falls for Cynthia Bond as the "temptress" who kills men during sex. This was the first all-black horror movie in many years. Bond had acted in Spike Lee movies and used Lee's cinematographer, Ernest Dickerson, for this film. With Bill Nunn (Do the Right Thing), Melba

Kadeem Hardison and Bill Nunn in Def by Temptation.

Moore, Samuel L. Jackson, a man-eating TV set, and stockings that put themselves on. It was released by Troma. The soundtrack, featuring various artists, is on Orpheus.

DEF-CON 4

(Starmaker, 1983) D/S/P: Paul Donovan
P: Maura O'Connell, Michael Donovan Canada

Three astronauts return to post-nuke Earth. The only survivor (Tim Choate) fights off cannibal mutants, survivalists, and Mad Max punks from a slave-labor camp. With Kate Lynch, John Walsch, Lenore Zann, Maury Chaykin. Tony Randall was the film "doctor" for this New World release, filmed in Nova Scotia.

DEFENDING YOUR LIFE

(Warner, 1991) D/S/A: Albert Brooks P: Michael Grillo

After an ad exec (Brooks) dies in a car crash he arrives in Judgment City. Rip Torn counsels him on how to defend himself, and then selected, mostly embarrassing parts of his life are evaluated. He falls for Meryl Streep, who seems to have been perfect. With Lee Grant, Buck Henry, and Shirley MacLaine in an appropriate bit part. This PG comedy was Brooks' fourth film as director and star, after Real Life, Modern Romance and Lost in America.

DEFENSE PLAY

(TWE, 1988) D/A: Monte Markham S: Aubrey Soloman, Steven Greenberg P: Wolf Schmidt

A couple of teens just out of high school (David Oliver and Susan Ursitti) battle Commie agents. A killer infiltrator is trying to stop the Star Wars program. The federal budget and common sense were probably what stopped Star Wars in real life.

DEFIANCE

(Vestron, 1980) D: John Flynn S: Thomas Michael Donnelly P: William S. Gilmore

Blue-collar worker Jan-Michael Vincent takes on New York City street gangs. Theresa Saldana costars, with Art Carney, Fernando Lopez, Rudy Ramos, Danny Aiello, Lenny Montana, Sonny Landham, and Fred Lincoln. The PG-rated film "caused" an obsessive fan to stab Saldana in real life, and she went on to play herself in a TV movie based on the incident, Victims for Victims: The Theresa Saldana Story (1984). This was one of the last AIP releases before it briefly became Filmways.

THE DEFIANT ONES

(MGM, 1958) D/P: Stanley Kramer
S: Nathan E. Douglas, Harold Jacob Smith

This maverick b/w prison-break movie about race relations has been imitated many times in exploitation movies. Tony Curtis and Sidney Poitier were both nominated for Oscars as the handcuffed prisoners on the lam. Cara Williams is a white-trash widow, Theodore Bikel is the sheriff who has to hear rock and roll during the chase, and Lon Chaney Jr. (in a good role) is a former chain-gang prisoner who helps them. Also with Charles McGraw, Whit Bissel, Claude Akins, Kevin Coughlin, and Carl "Alfalfa" Switzer (shortly before he was killed). Kramer's next was On the Beach. "Nathan E. Douglas" was the pseudonym of blacklisted screenwriter Nedrick Young.

THE DEFIANT ONES

(1986) D: David Lowell Rich S: James Lee Barrett P: Robert Lovenheim

This updated but unnecessary TV remake is based on the original script. Robert Urich and Carl Weathers star and were coproducers. With Laurie O'Brien, Barry Corbin, Ed Lauter, and Thalmus Rasulala.

THE DEFILERS

(SW, 1965) D/C: Lee Frost S/P: David F. Friedman

This b/w variation of The Collector was considered the first of the "roughies," adults-only movies that added violence to the nudity and/or soft core sex. Byron Mabe (who later directed She Freak and others for Friedman) and Jerome Eden (from Friedman's nudist colony movies) are two guys bored by beach parties, beer, pot, and sex. They kidnap a woman (Mai Jansson) and keep her in the basement. The way-too-young actor playing Mabe's father wears a fake mustache. From Sonney Amusements.

THE DEGENERATES

(1967) D/S/P: Andy Milligan

Before making a series of low-budget horror movies, Milligan made this b/w post-nuke obscurity. In the year 2000 three surviving guys (one is called Go-Go) intrude on five sisters (one is insane) in a farmhouse. Some of the women fight back, and characters are killed by fire and a pitchfork through the chest. Other Milligan titles from the same period are The Depraved!, Kiss Me Kiss Me, and Tricks of the Trade.

DÉJA VU

(MGM, 1984) D: Anthony Richmond
S: Ezra D. Rappaport P: Golan/Globus UK

Jaclyn Smith and Nigel Terry are reincarnations of a couple who died in a fire 50 years earlier. This Cannon release, directed by Smith's husband, is also a murder mystery. Smith plays two roles. With Shelley Winters and Claire Bloom.

THE DELICATE DELINQUENT

(Paramount, 1957) D/S: Don McGuire
P/A: Jerry Lewis

Jerry Lewis stars in his first movie without Dean Martin. It's a spoof (based on the Damon and Pythias story) of all the 50s juvenile-delinquent films. Jerry is a janitor arrested along with a group of slum teens. Darren McGavin (in a role planned for Dean Martin) is a friendly rookie cop. With Martha Hyer and Horace McMahon. It was a box-office hit for Paramount, which released Mr. Rock and Roll and Elvis in Loving You the same year.

DELICATESSEN

(Paramount, 1991) D/S: Marc Caro, Jean-Pierre Jeunet S: Giles Adrien France

This stylish post-nuke cannibal black comedy ("presented" by Terry Gilliam) was a cult hit in France and played midnights in New York. Dominique Pinon (from Diva) is a once-famous clown who becomes a handyman at a deli in an apartment building where transients end up in the soup. Vegetarian terrorists live in the sewers below. With Marie-Laure Dougnac, Jean-Claude Dreyfus as her butcher father, Sylvie Laguna as a woman who can't seem to commit suicide, Howard Vernon (who eats snails), and Chick Ortega. The filmmakers had prieviously made short features and cartoons.

DELINQUENT DAUGHTERS

(Sinister, 1944) D/P: Albert Herman
S: Arthur St. Claire P: Donald C. McKean

In this PRC release, the crooked owner of a cafe forces some teenagers who were involved in a hit-and-run accident to commit crimes for him. With June Carlson and Fifi D'Orsay (from Nabonga).

DELINQUENT SCHOOLGIRLS

(Vestron, 1974) D/S: Gregory Coratio
S/P: Maurice Smith S: John Lamb
(Bad Girls; Carnal Madness)

In this sex/action comedy, three escaped lunatics invade a school where John Alderman is the principal. Michael Pataki goes over the top, using different bizarre voices throughout the film. His companions are Stephen Stucker (from the Airplane movies) as a former dress designer and a black guy (Bob Minor, from Coffy) who always talks about being horny. With Sharon Kelly as a student who knows karate and Buck Flower.

DELIRIOUS

(MGM, 1992) D: Tom Mankiewicz S/P: Lawrence D. Cohen, Fred Freeman P: Doug Claybourne

John Candy is the head writer for a soap opera who is magically transported to the fictional small town he created. While trapped as a Wall Street villain character he uses his typewriter to alter events and try to win the girl (Mariel Hemingway). With Emma Samms (in a dual role), Raymond Burr, Charles Rocket, David Rasche, Jerry Orbach, Renee Taylor, Marvin Kaplan, and Robert Wagner (as himself). It's rated PG.

DELIRIUM

(Academy, 1979) D/S: Peter Maris
S: Richard Yalem P: Sunny Vest

An impotent Nam-vet killer (Nick Panouzis) is hired for vigilante work by local-government right-wingers to clean up criminals and street scum. He flips out and starts killing everybody. This 16mm film includes Nam flashbacks.

DELIVERANCE

(Warner, 1972) P/ D: John Boorman
S/A: James Dickey

Although it was a hit, it took a while for this story of modern man out of his element to become the effective but much-copied cliché it is now. When today's exploitation filmmakers need action ideas they often look to this or Straw Dogs (1971). Jon Voight stars, with Burt Reynolds and Ned Beatty (who has to squeal like a pig in his film debut), as Atlanta businessmen on a canoe trip. Ronnie Cox plays the guitar on the hit "Dueling Banjos." With Billy McKinney, Ed O'Neill, and Charley Boorman. It was based on Dickey's 1970 novel and was filmed on location in Georgia by Vilmos Zsigmond. The soundtrack is on Warner. Boorman did Zardoz next.

DELIVERY BOYS

(1984) D/S: Ken Handler P: Craig Horall, Per Sjosted

Pizza delivery boys enter a breakdancing contest in this sex comedy. Joss Marcano, Jim Soriero, and Tom Sierchio star. Mario Van Peebles has a small role. With porno stars Samantha Fox, Veronica Hart, Taija Rae, and Kelly Nichols.

THE DELPHI BUREAU

(1972) D: Paul Wendkos S/P: Sam H. Rolfe

Laurence Luckinbill stars as a government agent with a photographic memory, in this TV pilot for a short-lived series. He has to find a fleet of Air Force planes that vanished. With Celeste Holm, Dean Jagger, Cameron Mitchell, Bradford Dillman, Bob Crane, Joanna Pettet, Dub Taylor, and Pamelyn Ferdin.

THE DELTA FACTOR

(1970) D/S/P: Tay Garnett

Mickey Spillane himself backed this adaptation of his then-recent novel. Christopher George stars as an international thief forced by the CIA to marry an agent (Yvette Mimieux), pose as a drug dealer, and rescue a scientist from a Caribbean fortress. With Diane McBain, Yvonne De Carlo, Sheri Spillane (from all those Mike Hammer book covers), Ralph Taeger, Ted De Corsia, and an animated sequence from Hanna Barbera. The original rating was R. Spillane also starred in one movie, The Girl Hunters (1963). Garnett, who had begun as a screenwriter in silent movies, died in 1977.

THE DELTA FORCE

(Media, 1986) D/S/P: Menahem Golan
S: James Bruner P: Yoram Globus

This starts as an accurate re-creation of the actual TWA highjacking in Athens, then becomes a laughable all-star disaster movie (and what a group of stars!). Chuck Norris (with a customized James Bond–style motorcycle) and Lee Marvin (in his last role) star as the hero commandos. The evil Arabs are led by Robert Forster as Abdul. With Airport series vet George Kennedy as a Catholic priest, Shelley Winters, Martin Balsam, Joey Bishop, Lainie Kazan, Susan Strasberg, Bo Svenson, Robert Vaughn, Hanna Schygulla as the German stewardess, Steve James, and Kim Delaney. It was filmed in Israel. In 1987 Chuck Norris Karate Commandos, a cartoon series, debuted on Saturday-morning TV. The soundtrack is on Enigma.

Chuck Norris in the all-star Delta Force.

DELTA FORCE II: OPERATION STRANGLEHOLD

(Media, 1990) D: Aaron Norris S: Lee Reynolds
P: Yoram Globus, Christopher Pearce

Five people died in a helicopter crash while making this feature in the Philippines (and see Braddock: Missing in Action III). The scene they died for was left in the film. Chuck Norris and US Marines battle the Medellín drug cartel in Colombia. Billy Drago (who rapes a woman, then kills her husband and baby) is the main villain. With John P. Ryan, Richard Jaeckel, and those great skydiving sequences.

DELTA FORCE III: THE KILLING GAME

(Warner, 1991) D: Sam Firstenberg
S/P: Boaz Davidson S: Greg Latter
P: Christopher Pearce (Young Commandos)

Evil Arabs plan to blow up America with some missing nukes, so lots of sons of famous actors (and one director) save us. With Mike Norris, Nick Cassavetes, Eric Douglas, Matthew Penn, and John P. Ryan (from Delta Force II) as Sergei. Harry Alan Towers was the executive producer of this Cannon release.

DELTA FORCE COMMANDO

(Vista, 1987) D: "Frank Valenti"/ Pierluigi Ciriaci
S: David Parker Jr. P: Alfred Nicolaj Italy

Brett Clark is the hero out for vengeance. It's set in Nicaragua (where the heroes destroy the Sandinista government) but was shot in Nevada and Wisconsin. With Fred Williamson, Bo Svenson (also in the real Delta Force), and Mark Gregory. Delta Force Commando II (Live, 1991) followed, with Williamson, Richard Hatch, and Van Johnson.

DELTA FOX

(1975) D/S/P: Ferd and Beverly Sebastian

Priscilla Barnes is kidnapped by an antihero hitman (Richard Lynch) who discovers that he's the target of another hitman. Barnes goes topless, and Lynch shows his (real) badly scarred neck and chest. With Stuart Whitman, Richard Jaeckel, and John Ireland. The film wasn't released until 1983.

DELTA HEAT

(Academy, 1991) D: Michael Fischa
S: Sam Scribner P: Richard L. Albert

Lance Henriksen as an ex-cop who helps LA cop Anthony Edwards solves a series of drug-related killings in New Orleans, in this action comedy. With Betsy Russell, swamp scenes, and a Rockin Doopsie soundtrack.

DELUSION

(RCA, 1991) D/S: Carl Colpaert
S: Kurt Voss P: Daniel Hassid (Mirage)

Jim Meltzer embezzles money, then picks up a Vegas showgirl (Jennifer Rubin) and her hitman boyfriend while driving through the desert. With Jerry Orbach, Tracey Walter, and a pet lizard. I.R.S. produced this Lynch-like feature by the director of In the Aftermath.

DEMENTED

(Media, 1980) D: Arthur Jeffries S: Alex Rebar P: Arthur Jeffries, Mike Smith

Sally Elyse leaves a mental hospital where she's been a patient since being raped. Her husband (Bruce Gilchrist, aka Harry Reems) cheats on her, she hallucinates, and some boys put on masks to scare her. She fights back, torturing and killing with a meat cleaver. In one scene a man's balls are sliced off with a wire. Written by the star of The Incredible Melting Man.

DEMENTED DEATH FARM MASSACRE: THE MOVIE

(Troma, 1986) D: Donn Davison
D/P: Fred Olen Ray

John Carradine as the judge of Hell watches damned people. Most of this sad project is footage from the unreleased Shantytown Honeymoon (1972), by Davison, a magician, spookshow promoter, and hustler. Ray bought the film for around $5000, added some new scenes with Carradine, and sold it to Troma.

DEMETRIUS AND THE GLADIATORS

(Fox, 1954) D: Delmer Daves
S: Philip Dunne P: Frank Ross

The sequel to The Robe (1953) is a lot like a big-budget Hercules movie. Victor Mature stars as a freed slave who hides the holy robe of Christ and is forced to become a gladiator. With blonde Debra Paget, Michael Rennie, William Marshall as a Nubian gladiator, Susan Hayward as Messalina, Richard Egan, Ernest Borgnine, and Jay Robinson as Caligula. Franz Waxman wrote the score. The video is letterboxed.

DEMOLITION MAN

(Warner, 1993) D: Marco Brambilla
S: Daniel Waters, Robert Reneau, Peter M. Lenkov P: Joel Silver, Michael Levy

Sylvester Stallone is John Spartan, a cop in 1996 LA who's after a laughing, blond psycho killer (Wesley Snipes). Both are sent to a Cryoprison and frozen, only to unthaw in sterile, "perfect," clean 2032, and the chase continues. Sex, violence, alcohol, swearing, and caffeine are all outlawed, and people of the future listen to old TV jingles instead of songs. This movie has enough violent action, though, and works pretty well as a social comedy. Spartan has virtual-reality sex with a future cop (Sandra Bullock) who is fascinated by 20th-century culture. Eventually he helps the underground fighters (led by Denis Leary) against the corrupt rulers. Many were fired (some behind the camera and the original female lead) before this expensive ("$70 million") movie was finished. The director had made TV commercials in Europe. The title is from a Police tune.

THE DEMON

(VidAmerica, 1981) D/S/P: Percival Rubens S.Africa

Cameron Mitchell stars with Jennifer Holmes in this horror mystery. A maniac with steel claws on his gloves kills some sexy nursery-school teachers. Mitchell plays a psychic investigator with ESP and gets to act out of control again, providing the only memorable scenes.

DEMON COP

(AIP, 1990) D/S: Rocco Karege
D: Hal Miles D/P: Fred Olen Ray

Another unreleased feature (The Curse of Something Bestial) with new footage by Ray. Cameron Mitchell stars.

DEMON HUNTER

(Camp, 1965) D/S: Massey Cramer
P: Bob Hadley S: Bob Corley (Blood Demon; The Legend of Blood Mountain)

When's the last time you saw a horror comedy from Georgia about a troglodyte? George Ellis plays Bestoink Dooley, an overage, balding copy-boy who resembles a burlesque comic, with a dumb haircut and spats on his shoes. He tries to get promoted by writing a scoop about a monster. In a scene that seems to last for hours, Bestoink eats cookies in bed, then has a long, silent dream with two elegant women catering to him. The monster is a man with a mask and big teeth, very white skin, patches of hair, two tails, and a big, awkward ass. He's supposed to be funny, I guess. I've seen a lot of stupid creatures in movies but almost fell off my chair when this one appeared. The women have beehive hairdos (courtesy of the Decatur University of Cosmetology), there's a bikini beach party at a lake (where a teen who was warned about the creature says, "Bad scene if this cat's for real!"), and the local accents are great. It all ends with a long comic chase scene. It's a must for fans of movies like The Creeping Terror, and it features Erin Fleming (Groucho Marx's controversial 70s companion) and Kenny Rogers' wife!

DEMONIAC

(Wizard, 1974) D/S/A: Jesús Franco
Spain/France/Belgium (Exorcism; The Ripper of Notre Dame)

A religious maniac cuts the "impurity" out of women in Paris and writes about his exploits for Dagger and Garter magazine. A European hardcore sex version is called Exorcism et Messes Noir. It was also released with new footage and a different plot as Il Sadico di Notre Dame. The US video is the most cut version.

DEMONIC TOYS

(Paramount, 1992) D: Peter Manoogian
S: David S. Goyer P: Anne Kelly

After a police shootout, characters are trapped in a warehouse by a shape-shifting little boy with an echo voice. He can possess others, cause hallucinations (like Kristine Rose as a big-chested blonde who strips), and make toys with big, ugly teeth kill. A bear bites off fingers, there's a robot, and there's one "good" toy, an animated soldier (actually another kid). An absurd flashback shows a woman giving the dead body of the demon baby to unsuspecting trick-or-treaters. There's some gore, lots of swearing, and dumb wisecracks. When a killer baby doll burns it says, "Oh, you're getting me hot, you prick!" Tracy Scoggins stars as an undercover cop, and Bently Mitchum is a young chicken deliveryman. Dollman vs. Demonic Toys was a sequel.

A DEMON IN MY VIEW

(Vidmark, 1992) D/S: Petra Hafter
P: Theo Hinz Germany

Anthony Perkins is a mysterious lodger in London who watches the other tenants. He also dresses up a mannequin in the basement. Through flashbacks we learn that he was brought up as a girl by his aunt and probably strangled two women 20 years earlier. When his beloved mannequin is burned on Guy Fawkes Day he flips out again. With Sophie Ward and Uwe Bohm. The music is by Pino Donaggio. Perkins made only one more film, In the Deep Woods.

DEMON KEEPER

(New Horizons, 1993) D/P/E: Joe Tornatore
S: Mikel Angel P: Cheryl Latimer

Attention, fans of Grotesque. Tornatore is back with more inept but entertaining nonsense! Dirk Benedict is pretty funny trying to play an English supernatural expert with a goatee. He attends a séance given near New Haven by a con artist (Edward Albert). While ten people are "trapped" by a storm, a horned, winged demon (Mike Lane) that looks like it belongs onstage with Gwar is conjured up and possesses them. Dirk's advice to the survivors is to "avoid vice and passion." Some of his dialogue is completely missing! Narrated flashbacks try to sort things out, and the demon (who I suspect is also the screenwriter) has a scene with the naked and extremely large-breasted 1992 Pet of the Year, Katrina Maltby. The FX are by David Hewitt. It was filmed in Zimbabwe!

DEMON MASTER=CRAZE

DEMON MOUNTAIN: See SHADOW OF THE CHIKARA

THE DEMON MURDER CASE

(1982) D: William Hale S: William Kelly P: Len Steckler

A boy (Charlie Fields) is possessed. With Cloris Leachman as a psychic, Andy Griffith as a demonologist, Eddie Albert as a priest, Kevin Bacon, Joyce Van Patten, and the voice of Harvey Fierstein as the demon. Dick Clark was the executive producer of this NBC-TV movie, filmed in Newport.

DEMON OF PARADISE

(Warner, 1987) D/P: Cirio H. Santiago
S: Frederick Bailey

A fake-looking man in a sea-lizard suit kills people in Hawaii. The plot copies Jaws (or maybe Piranha), but it's a remake of Corman's Up from the Depths (Vestron, 1979). With Leslie Huntley and Kathryn Witt as a herpetologist. From Roger Corman's Concorde.

DEMON OF THE LAKE: See CREATURE FROM BLACK LAKE

DEMON POSSESSED

(AIP, 1989) D/P: Christopher Webster S: Julian Weaver

An old woman in the future narrates this horror movie about couples in an isolated, snowbound cabin, remembering "the nightmare back in the 1990s." A Ouija board conjures up a hooded Satanist (seen in shadows), and a guy in a coma becomes possessed. There are very discreet sex scenes and an icicle through an eyeball. It was made in Chicago.

DEMON QUEEN

(All American, Mogul, 1987) D/S/P: Donald Farmer
P: David Reed

This is similar to Fred Olen Ray's The Tomb but with more nudity, jokes, and blood, and it's much cheaper. It's a very bad first new release from Jeffrey C. Hogue, who started by marketing old bad films. With Mary Fanaro.

THE DEMONS

(Unicorn, 1972) D/S: "Clifford Brown"/ Jesús Franco P: Victor de Costa

This is sort of a sequel to Franco's Night of the Blood Monster (1969). A witch-killing noblemen is cursed by a sorceress burned at the stake. Her two daughters become nuns and tempt other nuns with lesbianism at a castle. Their death kiss turns men into skeletons. There's lots of torture, rape, suicide, masturbation, and nudity. Howard Vernon stars, with Anne Lipert, Britt Nicols, and John Foster as the witch-torturer. The soundtrack is heavy-metal music! It was released (cut) in the US by Hemisphere.

DEMONS

(Starmaker, 1985) D/S: Lamberto Bava S/P: Dario Argento S: Dardano Sacchetti, Franco Ferrini Italy (Demoni)

In Munich people receive free tickets to watch what seems to be a teen version of Black Sunday at the large Metropol theater. Echoing events in the movie on the screen, characters in the theater become infected and mutate into pus-oozing, cannibalistic zombies. Nobody can get out of the theater. While the patrons panic or kill each other some stoned teens try to get in, and, incredibly, a heliocopter crashes through the roof of the building. A hooker and her black pimp are the best characters in this silly but wild gorefest. With Urbano Barberini, Nicoletta Elmi, Michelle Soavi, and a heavy-metal soundtrack (Billy Idol, Motley Crue). New World released it in the US.

Zombies in a movie theater from Demons.

DEMONS 2

(Imperial, 1986) D/S: Lamberto Bava S/P: Dario Argento S: Franco Ferrini, Dardano Sacchetti Italy (Demoni 2: L'Incubo Retorna)

This time zombies emerge from a TV set in an apartment during a teen birthday party, and everyone is trapped in the building. It's a virtual remake of the original, also filmed in Munich, with a new setting. Some of the same actors even show up in different roles. Acid blood goes through floors, and there's a zombie dog and zombie bodybuilders. With David Knight and Asia Argento. Six minutes were cut for an R rating, and it was released directly to tape in the US. The title Demons 3 was used for a Bava movie (The Ogre) in 1988 and an Umberto Lenzi movie (Black Demons) in 1991. Demons 4 is The Church and Demons 5 is La Maschera del Demonio.

THE DEMONS OF LUDLOW

(TWE, 1983) D/P/C: Bill Rebane S: William Arthur, Alan Ross

A haunted harmonium causes bloody deaths during the bicentennial of a New England town. The town's founder, whose hands had been cut off, appears and kills. It was filmed in Wisconsin at about the same time as The Devonsville Terror, which had a similar plot and some of the same production people. Cheri Cafaro was an associate producer.

DEMONSTONE

(Fries, 1989) D: Andrew Prowse S: John Trayne, David Phillips, Frederick Bailey P: Andrew Prowse Philippines (Heartstone)

Flashbacks show how the descendants of some bandits were cursed hundreds of years ago by a Chinese priest. An American reporter (Nancy Everhard) goes to an archeological dig but doesn't realize she's become possessed. Her eyes glow, the image goes negative when she kills, and victims' hearts are "half-eaten." A former captain called Andy Buck (Jan-Michael Vincent, who narrates) is blamed. This one has political intrigue, lots of battles, chases, machine-gun fire, and even spearfighting and swordfighting. The location work is great. With Lee Ermey as a foul-mouthed Marine major ("I support half the whores in Manila!") and Peter Brown. Brian Trenchard-Smith was the executive producer.

DEMONWARP

(Vidmark, 1987) D: Emmett Alston S: Jim Bertges, Bruce Akiyama P: Richard L. Albert

A Bigfoot monster controlled by aliens attacks camping teens in Demon Woods. The creature decapitates people, the aliens rip out hearts, and zombies show up. There's plenty of gore and topless scenes from starlets like Pamela Gilbert and Michelle Bauer. George Kennedy is the dad of a victim, and Shannon Kennedy is in the cast. John Buechler created the monster. From the director of New Year's Evil and Nine Deaths of the Ninja.

DEMON WIND

(Prism, 1990) D/S: Charles Philip Moore P: Paul Hunt, Michael Bennett

If you loved the Evil Dead movies, you might sit through this movie filled with flashbacks, dreams, and altered reality problems. A bunch of teens go to an old, isolated, farmhouse. Corey (Eric Larson) has been dreaming about the house, where his demon-worshipping ancestors lived. Only one wall is left, but when they pass through the door it's a whole house. One guy is an obnoxious blond asshole, another is a showoff karate-kicking magician. The females (including X star Tiffany Million) have no character, but they know how to appear topless. When one girl is suddenly turned into a doll nobody seems to care, and they continue to argue about unrelated personal problems. A tongue from a cow skull kills one girl, wet, lumpy-faced demons with echo voices show up, and various cast members become Night of the Living Dead–type zombies and attack the house. When one zombie is stabbed by a magic dagger it becomes younger, a baby, then a dove. In the comic-book ending all the zombies become one big demon monster, Corey turns into a creature that looks like an extra from Alienation, and they fight. It comes in a 3-D box.

THE DEMON WITHIN = THE MIND SNATCHERS

DERANGED

(Moore, 1973) D/S: Alan Ormsby D: Jeff Gillen P: Tom Karr, Bob Clark Canada

This uncut version of a movie once released by AIP is worth checking out. It remains the most realistic feature based on the famous Wisconsin farmer who was a grave-robber and cannibal, Ed Gein, here called Ezra Cobb (the wonderful Roberts Blossom). Deranged is a very strong (and very funny) ghoulish horror classic. During a séance, Ezra hears that he "misses the carnal aspects of marriage." He says, "Carnival?" Restored scenes show Cobb opening the head of a Sunday-school teacher and spooning out the brains. This and other impressive FX scenes were created by Tom Savini. The country music is by Stompin' Tom Connors. Bob Clark (who did not codirect) had his name removed. The tape includes a very good Wisconsin TV 26-minute documentary, Ed Gein: American Maniac (1981). Gein, the inspiration for Psycho, The Texas Chainsaw Massacre, and other films, died in a minimum security prison hospital in 1984. Karr also offers a new Making of Deranged tape and the original shooting script.

DERANGED

(Republic, 1987) D/P: Chuck Vincent S: Craig Horrall

Vincent made many films (porno and sex comedies) but this disturbing Repulsion copy shot in New York City has one of those pretentious reality-vs.-fantasy plots that allow the director to get away with all kinds of nonsense. A pregnant woman (Jane Hamilton, aka Veronica Hart) is attacked by a burglar in her apartment and has a miscarriage. She hides the body, puts a pillow under her dress, and pretends nothing happened. Visitors, real and imagined, arrive, the body stinks, and her father (Jamie Gillis), who committed suicide, keeps showing up in the bathtub. It's pretty unwatchable. With a porno-star cast, including Jennifer Delora and Jerry Butler.

LE DERNIER COMBAT

(RCA/Columbia, 1982) D/S/P: Luc Besson S/P/A: Pierre Jolivet France

The director of Subway and La Femme Nikita made this stark, nearly silent b/w post-nuke movie. There's only one word of dialogue. A nice guy (Jolivet) and a big brute are survivors. There's a rain shower of fish.

A bad dream from Chuck Vincent's Deranged.

DE SADE

(Nightmare, 1969) D: Cy Endfield, Roger Corman, Gordon Hessler S: Richard Matheson, Peter Berg US/W. Germany (Das Ausschweifende Leben des Marquis de Sade)

Few people have seen this interesting, ambitious "head" movie, branded with an X when first released in America (by AIP offshoot Trans Continental). It wasn't released in England at all. Sam Arkoff said it was "AIP's biggest flop until Meteor." Young Michael Reeves (The Conqueror Worm) was set to direct, but after he died Cy Endfield was hired. Endfield soon ended up in the hospital with flu, so executive producer Louis M. Heyward got Hessler and Corman to film most of De Sade without credit. Cleveland-born star Keir Dullea had just been in 2001, and De Sade was obviously conceived as a lavish major international production, sort of a combination of The Trip and the Poe movies Matheson had scripted. You're never sure if what you see is part of a play, "real," or a (false?) memory. It all tries to show how your mind is a prison. John Huston, perfect as de Sade's uncle, hovers over everything as he manipulates characters. De Sade is a fascinating 60s artifact, with music by Billy "Batman" Strange and the Berlin Symphony, a Bond-like theme, and bongo music (the soundtrack was on Tower). De Sade's downfall is told out of sequence, in flashbacks. The frequent scenes of whipping probably bothered reviewers more than the tame sex scenes shot with distorted, tinted lenses. The interesting cast includes Senta Berger, Lilli Palmer, and Anna Massey (Peeping Tom). The German uncut, original version ran 113 minutes.

DE SADE '70

(Video Search, 1970) D/S/C/A: Jesús Franco P: Karl-Heinz Mannchen Liechtenstein (Eugenie)

Soledad Miranda stars as a Berlin teen in love with her widowed writer father (Paul Muller), who is a secret voyeur and sadist. They eventually kidnap models and hookers together, but she falls for a jazz musician. Franco appears in this soft-core movie as a director. It's subtitled.

DESERT KICKBOXER

(1992) D/S: Isaac Florentine S: Jim Lofti P: William G. Dunn Jr. (Desert Hawk)

John Haymes Newton (the original star of the Superboy TV series) is Hawk, a part-Indian ex-cop and kickboxer who battles coke smugglers in Arizona, led by Paul L. Smith. With Judie Aaronson, Sam DeFrancisco, and Michael M. Foley.

DESERT WARRIOR

(Prism, 1988) D/P: Jim Goldman S: Bob Davies, Carl Kuntze Philippines (Sand Wars)

Zerak (Lou Ferrigno) has sword battles in cages, gets radiation poisoning, and rides a motor tricycle, in this PG-13 post-WWIII action movie. Shari Shattuck costars.

DESIRE AND HELL AT SUNSET MOTEL

(Fox, 1990) D/S: Allen Castle P: Donald P. Borchers

Here's an odd, comic film noir attempt set in the early 60s at a three-story pink California motel with a pool. Characters insult and plot against each other endlessly. It's hard to second-guess what exactly is going on, because several times someone wakes up and "it was all a dream." Flashbacks explain everything at the end, after amnesia drops are used! Sherilyn Fenn is married to a jerk salesman (Whip Hubley) and becomes involved in various ways with David Johansen and David Hewlett as a bop-talking beatnik. Paul Bartel is the voyeur motel owner, and Kenneth Tobey is a cop. There's lots of talk about Commies and the bomb. Pierre David was an executive producer.

DESPERADOS

(Private Screenings, 1969) D/S: Lee Frost P: R. W. Cresse (Hot Spur)

A Mexican named Carlo is the hero out for revenge in this S&M sex western with Virginia Gordon, Wes Bishop, and John Alderman.

THE DESPERADOS

(RCA, 1969) D: Henry Levin S: Walter Brough, Clarke Reynolds P: Irving Allen

Jack Palance shines as crazed parson Josiah Galt, who seeks vengeance for the death of his Indian wife by killing and looting with his three sons. This post–Civil War western stars Vince Edwards as the son who rebels against the violence, George Maharis, Neville Brand, Sylvia Sims, and Kate O'Mara.

THE DESPERADO TRAIL

(1965) D: Harold Reinl S: Harold G. Peterson, Joachim Bartsch P: Horst Wendlandt W. Germany/Yugoslavia (Winnetou III)

Lex Barker and Pierre Brice return as Old Shatterhand and his Apache friend, Winnetou. Winnetou (a very popular character in Germany) dies in this installment, about an Indian war instigated by white men. With Rik Battaglia and Sophie Hardy. The characters were created by the popular late-19th-century writer Karl May.

DESPERATE CRIMES

(AIP, 1991) D/S: Andreas Marfori S: Billy Damota P: Agnese Fontana Italy (Il Ritmo del Silenzio; Mafia Docks)

Van Quattro is the dull and moody hero from New Jersey in this grim, flashback-filled movie. He wants to know who killed his nice girlfriend (Elizabeth Kaitan, star of the flashbacks) and ends up falling for a German whorehouse owner (Rena Niehaus) and trying to get information from a hooker with spike heels (Denise Crosby). Most of the sex scenes involve minor characters (a couple in a shower, two lesbian hookers). Meanwhile, a sadistic black man and a creepy, skinny guy with a ponytail kill for a musclebound crime boss (Franco Columbu). Traci Lords (featured on the video box) is seen briefly as a junkie hooker who dies.

THE DESPERATE HOURS

(MGM, 1990) D/P: Michael Cimino S: Lawrence Kohner P: Dino De Laurentiis

Mickey Rourke plays the Bogart role in this remake of the 1955 movie (adapted from a novel and play by Joseph Hayes, and based on an actual incident). Three escaped convicts invade a house and take hostages. Anthony Hopkins is the wealthy Nam-vet lawyer with an underage daughter (Shawnee Smith), Mimi Rogers is his estranged wife, Kelly Lynch is his lawyer girlfriend, Lindsay Crouse is the hostage negotiator, and David Morse and Elias Koteas are thugs. Year of the Dragon is a better Cimino/Rourke movie.

DESPERATE LIVES

(USA, 1982) D: Robert Michael Lewis S/P: Lew Hunter

CBS-TV brought us this "just say no" movie about students and drugs. A brother and sister (Doug Keir Dullea stars in De Sade.

McKeon and Helen Hunt) score from Sam Bottoms. Their student counselor (Diana Scarwid) tries to help, but paralysis and death occur anyway. Diane Ladd and Tom Atkins are the parents. With William Windom, Art Hindle, and Dr. Joyce Brothers. Rick Springfield sings the title song.

DESPERATE LIVING

(New Line, 1977) D/S/P/C: John Waters

Waters' first film without Divine had a self-imposed X rating and was a financial flop. It's a grim fantasy with cannibalism, revolution, and sex changes, filmed mostly on weird-looking sets. Mink Stole and her black maid, Grizelda ("400-pound" Jean Hill), flee town after Grizelda kills her husband by sitting on him. They end up in Mortville, a land for criminals ruled by Edith Massey as wicked Queen Carlotta. Waters hired Liz Renay (who had a mobster boyfriend, had been in jail, had been a stripper, and had written two amazing books) to costar as Muffy. Renay had also acted for Ray Dennis Steckler and A. C. Stevens and had been in some X features. The cast also includes Waters regulars Susan Lowe, Mary Vivian Pierce, Cookie Mueller, and George Stover. The screenplay was published in 1988 as part of the book Trash Trio. Waters didn't direct again until Polyester (New Line, 1981).

Mink Stole in John Waters' Desperate Living.

DESPERATELY SEEKING SUSAN

(HBO, 1985) D: Susan Seidelman
S: Leora Barish P: Sarah Pillsbury

Rosanna Arquette stars as a bored suburban New Jersey housewife who has a Manhattan adventure when she's mistaken for a hip con woman (Madonna). It's the only Madonna movie that's good, and she's only in parts of it. With Anne Carlisle, Ann Magnuson, Aidan Quinn, Robert Joy, Mark Blum, Laurie Metcalf, John Turturro, Airto Lindsay, and Rockets Redglare. Many actual location are used, including Love Saves the Day on 2nd Avenue.

DESPERATE TEENAGE LOVE DOLLS

(Hollywood Home Theatre, 1984) D/S/P: Dave Markey S/P/A: Jordan Schwartz S/A: Jennifer Schwartz

Filmed in and near Hollywood, this is the story of the rise and fall of Bunny (Hilary Rubens), Kitty (Jennifer Schwartz, the producer's sister), and Patch, a likable female gang/rock group who record a hit single ("Come on Up to Me") but end up killing several people. An original member, Alexandria, escapes from a mental hospital after killing her doctor with a a guitar, starts shooting up, and has to be replaced. The She Devils, a murdering rival gang led by Tanya Hearst (Tracy Lea), cause trouble, and the Love Dolls drug their sleazy manager (Steve McDonald of Redd Kross), who has a bad trip and is attacked by Felix the Cat. One of the best lines is "Gee, thanks for killing my mom!" The original soundtrack apparently included lots of actual famous records by Blue Cheer, Sweet, the Seeds (singer Sky Saxon also acts), and others. Nobody bothered to pay for the right to use them, so the records were replaced by other new songs (or cover versions), but many of the familiar original intros remain, a great disorienting (accidental) concept. A soundtrack album (on SST) features Redd Kross (their theme song is a classic!), who also back the Love Dolls, Black Flag, and others. The original cost of this hour-long, do-it-yourself, 8mm-to-videotape movie was said to be $250! The sequel was Lovedoll Superstar.

DESTINATION FURY

(1961) D: Giorgio Bianchi S: Clarence Weff
France/Italy (Mani in Alto)

AIP-TV released this Eddie Constantine spy-adventure spoof. He stars as Eddie, an international narc in Paris. The American-born star was in dozens of similar European films. With Renato Rascel and Dorian Gray.

DESTINATION MOONBASE ALPHA:

See SPACE 1999

DESTINY

(Video Yesterday, 1921) D/S: Fritz Lang
S: Thea von Harbou Germany
(Der Müde Tod)

In this silent fantasy set in the early 19th century, a woman (Lil Dagover, from The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari) drinks poison and visits Death (Bernard Götzke), begging him to spare the life of her lover. She's given three opportunities to save a life (each is represented by a burning candle) in three different periods of history. First she's reincarnated as a caliph's sisiter in 9th-century Bagdad, then in Renaissance Italy, and finally in ancient China, where she's the daughter of a court magician. The cast includes Rudolf Klein-Rogge (later in Metropolis). This 80-minute film, produced by Decla-Bioscop, was Lang's seventh, and it was his most ambitious work up to that time. Buñuel said that it inspired him to direct. Lang continued to top himself, with Dr. Mabuse (1922), The Nibelungen (Part I: Siegfried; Part II: Kriemhild's Revenge, both 1924), and Metropolis (1926).

DESTINY TO ORDER

(Off Hollywood, 1988) D/S: Jim Purdy P: Seaton McClean, Jonathan Goodwill, John Kramer Canada

A young writer meets (and becomes) his own creations, in this droll hip fantasy. Stephen Ouimette stars as the everyman writer J. D. and narrates in the pulp noir style. Destiny goes all over the place, since the studded-leather-jacket-wearing villain (the great Michael Ironside, from Scanners) steals the computer disc containing a detective novel and controls J. D.'s life. The confused guy "becomes" an alcoholic detective, a skateboard kid, and even a hooker. Ironside makes him/her rap. The model of his dreams (Alberta Watson) becomes a stripper, and a big, menacing biker sings opera. Some characters speak French (which is normal, since this movie is set in Montreal). It could have been better, but it's different enough to be fun. With Victoria Snow and Michelle Bauer.

DESTROYER

(Virgin, 1987) D: Robert Kirk
S/P: Rex Hauck, Peter Garrity

Lyle Alzado (who died of steroid abuse in 1992) is Ivan Moser, a mass murderer on death row. He goes to the chair during a prison riot. A director (Anthony Perkins) shows up months later to make Death House Dolls in the now-closed prison. Deborah Foreman, as a movie stunt woman, has nightmares, and Ivan, now a ghost, kills again. This prison/horror movie has imaginative murders, dream sequences, a film within the film, nudity, and another Psycho nod. With Jim Turner, Katt Shea, and Lannie Garrett. It was followed by The Chair (which was made first) Prison, Shocker, Horror Show, Ernest Goes to Jail and Guilty as Charged, all horror movies with electric chairs.

THE DESTRUCTORS

(Vestron, 1974) D: Robert Parrish
S/P: Judd Bernard (The Marseille Contract)

Michael Caine stars as a hitman in this drug-smuggling thriller. Anthony Quinn is a drug agent, and James Mason is an international drug dealer. With Catherine Rouvel and former presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger. It was filmed in Paris and released by AIP.

DETONATOR

(New Line, 1992) D/S: David S. Jackson
P: Peter Snell (Death Train)

This is an excellent action movie that should have been released theatrically. Ted Levine (The Silence of the Lambs) is a ruthless American terrorist who hijacks a train in Germany full of plutonium for a renegade Russian general (Christopher Lee in his best role in a long time) who plans to rebuild the Soviet Union. An egotistical special agent (star Pierce Brosnan) is brought in by a UN official (Patrick Stewart) and teamed with a markswoman and translator (Alexandra Paul). Characters have language problems (subtitles are used) as the train barrels through Europe headed for Iraq. It's based on Alistair MacLean's novel Death Train and was shot in Slovenia and in a Zagreb, Croatia, studio. The music is by Trevor Jones.

DETOUR

(Video Dimensions, 1945)
D: Edgar G. Ulmer S: Martin Goldsmith P: Leon Fromkess

PRC released this all-time cult favorite just after WWII ended. It was based on Goldsmith's 1938 novel. Tom Neal stars as down-and-out nightclub pianist Al Roberts. He hitches from New York to LA to be with his waitress girlfriend (Claudia Drake). The things that happen to him (in only 69 minutes) will amaze any viewer ("Whichever way you turn, fate sticks out a foot to trip you"), and you won't believe Ann Savage as Vera. This public-domain film, available from many video companies, was the first "poverty-row" movie chosen by the Library of Congress for preservation (in 1993). In real life, Neal made headlines in 1951 when he beat up actor Franchot Tone over starlet Barbara Payton (who later became a hooker). The incident ended Neal's film career. In 1965 he went to jail for six years for shooting his third wife. He died soon after his release. Ulmer made 11 features for PRC in five years, including Girls in Chains (1943) and Bluebeard (1944). Detour is said to have been made in four days for $20,000.

DETOUR

(1989) D: Wade Williams
S: Roger Hull P: Bennett Mossman

Tom Neal Jr. (who resembles his late father) stars in this obsessive but bad remake featuring terrible acting. It was shot with the same-model 40s camera and obsolete Cinecolor. It also uses the same Arizona road with the same '41 Lincoln convertible! The original script is followed, and subplots from the novel that Ulmer didn't have time or money to shoot are included. With Lea Lavish in the Ann Savage role, Susanna Foster, and Ann Robinson. Williams also created much-publicized altered versions of Rocket Ship X-M and The Hideous Sun Demon that few people ever saw.

DETROIT 9000

(HBO, 1973) D/P: Arthur Marks S: Orville Hampton

The ads said, "It's the murder capital of the world—Motortown, where the honkies are the minority race." Hari Rhoades, as the detective-sergeant hero, is paired with a white detective (Alex Rocco) to solve the robbery of a black congressman. With Vonetta McGee as a hooker, Ella Edwards, Scatman Crothers, June Fairchild, and Detroit police commisioner John Nichols (as himself). Holland, Dozier, Holland wrote the songs.

THE DEVASTATOR

(MGM, 1985) D/P: Cirio H. Santiago
S: Joseph Sugarman (The Destroyers)

Pot farmers battle a Nam vet (Richard Hill) who has nightmares. Future director Katt Shea Ruben is his gas-station-attendant girfriend. From Concorde.

THE DEVASTATOR (1988): See HOSTILE TAKEOVER

THE DEVIL

(Video City, 1981) D: Chang Jen Chieh S: Luk Pak Sang P: C.H. Wong, Mao Hung Chi Hong Kong

A witch cures a screaming possessed man covered with boils by cutting open his chest and letting all the (real) snakes, worms, and centipedes out. He pukes up lots of snakes. She warns him, "No drinking for three days and no women for seven weeks." He drinks and starts puking up green slime, pus, and more snakes and insects. Meanwhile Ding Dong, a meddling little kid/bellboy, coaches a young man in how to impress Miss Chang. The man marries her and laughs as he takes her money and sells the family hotel. A woman he killed, now a green-faced floating ghost in a white robe with a half-mutated face, is after him. She does impressive somersaults and leaps while weird singing that sounds like Yoko Ono is heard. When the ghost catches up with him he cuts off his own hand and pukes snakes, worms, and bugs right into the camera. There's a suprise ending. The dubbing was (obviously) done in England. During a bar scene Billy Joel Muzak plays.

DEVIL GIRL FROM MARS

(Rhino, 1954) D: David MacDonald
S: John C. Mather, James Eastwood
P: Edward and Harry Lee Danziger UK

People will tell you how terrible this science fiction invasion movie is. Watch it anyway! A diverse group of people at the remote Bonnie Prince Charlie Inn in the Scottish Highlands are terrorized by the mean, sexy, indestructible alien Naya (Patricia Laffan) and her clunky robot, Chani (with a built-in death ray). Naya lands in a loud, spinning flying saucer ("It's white hot!") looking for some strong Earthmen to help repopulate her planet. She resembles a model in an incredible black leather outfit with a cape. She can blur and disappear (into the 4th dimension), puts an invisible wall around the inn, and has a paralyzer ray. She even blasts a cripple ("a hopeless specimen"). Hazel Court is gorgeous, in an early role, as a woman from London. Adrienne Corri works at the inn and is the girlfriend of an escaped killer. The score is very emotional, and everything is played very serious and very British: "While we're still alive, we might as well have a cup of tea." It was based on a play. The Danzigers were known in England for their many low-budget features.

DEVIL IN THE HOUSE OF EXORCISM = HOUSE OF EXORCISM

THE DEVIL MASTER

(Regal, 1976) D/S/P: Donald Jackson, Jerry Younkins (The Demon Lover)

This is really a gem of its kind. Big, long-haired Levol Blessing (Chris Robbins) is a martial-arts student and devil-worshipper who has booze and dance parties at his "castle" and tries to get the kids to help with his ceremonies. He actually conjures up an impressive horned, red-eyed demon. Pamela, a blonde, rebels ("I'm not doing anything so disgusting") and is later found dead. A kid says, "It's a dead body, just like on TV!" A detective in plaid pants investigates the deaths and says, "I'm talking about blood city, ghoul." Almost everybody has flares and long hair. The look and some of the dialogue can be excused by the time and the place (Detroit). One guy looks like Frank Zappa, and a "geeky" one does the bump. Gunner Hansen (The Texas Chainsaw Massacre, Leatherface) plays Professor Peckinpah, and Howard the Duck cartoonist Val Mayerik plays Damian. The Demon Lover Diary was an (unflattering) documentary about making this. Jackson still directs.

THE DEVIL MONSTER

(Sinister, 1946) D/S: Edward Graham
P/E: Adrian Weiss

A man (Barry Norton) goes out on a fishing boat to search for a missing sailor on a Pacific island. It's only one hour long, and that's mostly narrated stock footage of sea animals and men fishing. Scenes of topless native women made this a (very cheap) adults-only road-show release. An octopus vs. eel fight is pretty good but was obviously shot in a tank. In one scene all the natives pass out from drinking. The "monster" is a manta ray that's harpooned at the end.

THE DEVIL ON WHEELS

(Loonic, 1947) D/S: Crane Wilbur P: Ben Stoloff

This postwar teens-in-trouble movie from P.R.C. is a classic of its kind. Daryl Hickman stars as a teen who likes to race his hopped-up car. Extreme tragedy results. The parents are to blame. Terry Moore (then known as Jan Ford) costars with Noreen Nash and James Cardwell. Only 67 minutes long. Wilbur had a long and incredible career as an actor in silent films, a screenwriter as early as The Monster (1925), and a director of features going back to Tomorrow's Children (1934).

DEVIL RIDER!

(VSOM, 1970) D/S/P: Brad Grinter S/P: Charles G. Ward S: Carol McGowan (Master's Revenge)

Kathy, a young blonde (Sharon Mahon), leaves the beach with a biker gang ("Why not?" she says), smokes a "happiness bomb," and becomes their captive. Her mother hires a detective, who finds her older alcoholic hooker sister. She proceeds to narrate a flashback about how bikers raped her. The middle-aged detective then goes undercover (with a wig!), and Kathy's karate-teacher boyfriend comes to the rescue before she becomes a "mama." The bikers wear ponchos and vests, and the acting is laughable. There's a cat fight to the death ("I think this chick is snuffed out!"), a snake's head bitten off, and some brief nudity. The hippie/garage band seen playing is called Heroes of Cranberry Farm. Mahon is the daughter of director Barry Mahon, who shot this in Florida. The tape has Spanish subtitles. Grinter went on to make the incredibly bad Blood Freak (1972).

DEVIL'S AGENT

(1961) D/S: John Paddy Carstairs
S: Robert Westerby P: Emmett Dalton
UK/W. Germany/Ireland (Im Namen des Teufels)

Peter Van Eyck stars as a double agent who falls for an escapee from Hungary (Marianne Koch). This spy story takes place mostly on an East German estate but was filmed in Dublin. With Christopher Lee as Baron von Staub, Macdonald Carey, Billie Whitelaw, and Niall MacGinnis. Peter Cushing played a role too but was cut out before the film's release.

DEVIL'S CANYON

(1953) D: Alfred L. Werker S: Frederick Hazlitt Brennar P: Edmund Grainger

A 3-D western with Stephen McNally as a psychotic killer who breaks out of an Arizona jail and goes after Dale Robertson. Virginia Mayo is an outlaw's girlfriend. With Arthur Hunnicutt, Jay C. Flippen, Whit Bissell, Morris Ankrum, Earl Holliman, Paul Fix, and Glenn Strange. The film was released about a year before Howard Hughes sold RKO.

DEVIL'S COMMANDMENT

(Dark Dreams, 1956) D/S: Riccardo Freda S: Piero Regnoli Italy (I Vampiri)

Mario Bava shot this early Cinemascope European horror film (and supposedly directed some scenes). Headlines say, ANOTHER BLOODLESS CORPSE! after a woman's body is found in the river Seine (in modern-day Paris). Antoine Balpetre is the professor with a crippled assistant, but the duchess Giselle (Gianna Maria Canale) turns out to be the ageless vampire who needs blood to survive. Her transformation scene is very good, and this movie has lots of skulls. Wandisa Guida costars, and Paul Muller (later in Franco movies) is the journalist hero. Canale is better known for Hercules and Goliath and the Vampires. The tape is letterboxed. In the US it was released as an adults-only film because of the opening bath scene.

THE DEVIL'S DAUGHTER

(Reel Images, 1939) D/P: Arthur Leonard
S: George Terwilliger (Pocomania)

This very rare 65-minute black-cast zombie movie, filmed in Jamaica, is a remake. Terwilliger directed the original 1935 version, called Ouanga (or Crime of Voodoo). Miss Isabel feels cheated out of a banana plantation, so she uses drugs and superstition to put the owner in a trance. This movie has lots of dancing and singing as well as dice-shooting ("put and pay"), a cockfight, and a voodoo ceremony with a "blood dance" ("Come forth, omnipotent one!"). There's a tough, handsome black hero, a weak white villain, and comedy relief from New York City ("I lived in Harlem, on Sugar Hill, for 25 years. Don't pull that jive on me!"). One character thinks his soul has been transferred into a piglet that others want to eat. Nina Mae McKinney (star of the 1929 Hallelujah, the first black-cast Hollywood film, and once billed as "the black Garbo") stars, with Hamtree Harrington. An old Capitol Film 16mm rental catalog I found in Richmond, Virginia, offered this as well as 39 other "all-Negro" titles, including She Devil, Murder with Music, and Son of Ingagi.

DEVIL'S DAUGHTER

(Republic, 1990) D/S: Michele Soavi S/P: Dario Argento Italy (La Setta; Demons 4)

After a massacre by bikers and "the faceless ones," Satanists in 70s California ("A Horse with No Name" is heard), this slow-moving horror/fantasy movie settles into a present-day house in Frankfurt. A teacher (Kelly Curtis, Jamie Lee's stepsister) with pet rabbits meets Herbert Lom, who puts a scarab in her nose. It lives in her brain, making her dream of a poppy field. She discovers a gate to Hell in the basement, and hooks in skin pull a face off (like in Hellraiser). In the confusing cosmic ending, a giant pelican rapes her, and an egg is hatched. With Daria Nicoldi. Pino Donaggio wrote the score.

DEVIL'S 8

(1969) D/P: Burt Topper S: James Gordon White, Willard Huyck, John Milius

A federal agent (Christopher George) goes undercover as a southern road-gang convict. He plans an escape and leads the convicts in an attack on a moonshine operation run by Ralph Meeker. With Ross Hagen, Fabian, Tom Nardini, Leslie Parrish, Cliff Osmond, Joseph Turkel, and Lana Edmund Jr. Mike Curb provided the music. The film was rated M. Topper's AIP days went back to movies like Diary of a High School Bride (1959). It was the first credit for Milius and Huyck, who went on to work with George Lucas.

DEVIL'S FEMALE

(CIC, 1974) D: Michael Walter S: August Rieger
W. Germany (Magdalena von Teufel Besessen)

A cheerful blond orphan (Dagmar Hedrich) at a boarding school is possessed by an invisible demon. The loud sound of flies is heard when she has her "seizures," sometimes furniture flies around, and she says things like "You dirty nun fucker!" Psychiatrists hypnotize her. She speaks in many voices, and eventually she throws up snakes and is okay. The star, a former model, is naked a lot and is extremely enthusiastic in the role. It was produced the same year as The Tempter, Beyond the Door, Demon Witch Child, and other possession movies and played (as Beyond the Darkness) in US theaters. The out-of-print tape is from Canada.

THE DEVIL'S HAIRPIN

(1957) D/S/P/A: Cornel Wilde S: James Edmiston

Cornel Wilde is Nick, a tyrannical retired racing champ who runs a restaurant but returns for one last race after the death of his brother. Wilde's real-life wife, Jean Wallace, costars, with Mary Astor, Paul Fix, and Arthur Franz. There's pretty good 50s-car footage. It's been called an uncredited remake of Howard Hawks' The Crowd Roars (1932), which was officially remade as Indianapolis Speedway (1939).

THE DEVIL'S HAND

(1942) D/S: Maurice Tourneur S: Jean-Paul le Chanois
France (La Main du Diable; Carnival of Sinners)

Pierre Fresnay is a poor painter who sells his soul to the devil. A withered living hand is a symbol of the contract. Previous owners of the hand (from various time periods) show up in masks and tell their stories. The film, made during the German occupation, was released in the US in 1947. Maurice Tourneur worked in the US from 1911 to 1926. His son, Jacques Tourneur, spent most of his career in the US. Both are considered masters of fantasy, mystery, and horror.

THE DEVIL'S HAND

(SW, 1959) D: William Hole Jr.
S: Jo Heims P: Alvis K. Bubis

Robert Alda has frequent dreams of a woman (Linda Christian) dancing on clouds. Neil Hamilton (Commisioner Gordon in the Batman TV series) is "the high executioner" with a mute Tibetan servant. He runs a doll shop, a front for voodoo dancing and ceremonies in the basement. The dream girl convinces the hero to join in. A wheel of swords is used for a sacrifice. He says, "You're a she devil, evil, but beautiful, fascinating!" Soon his luck increases. With Bruno Ve Sota. The instrumental rock theme is pretty good. Crown International released the film.

DEVIL'S HARVEST

(Hollywood Confidential, 1942) D: Ray Test

Satan is superimposed whenever "reefer" is shown in this WWII-era anti-drug movie. An investigator goes after pushers for 52 minutes.

DEVIL'S ISLAND

(Sinister, 1926) D: Frank O'Connor S: Leah Baird

Richard Tucker is Jean Valyon, a Paris surgeon serving time in a brutal penal colony. Pauline Frederick, Marian Nixon, and George Lewis are also in this rare prison movie from the independent Chadwick company. It was remade with Boris Karloff in 1940.

THE DEVIL'S JOINT

(SW, 1969)

This pro-pot documentary features unidentified scenes from many old drug-scare movies and newsreel clips. The narrator talks of the early anti-drug "propaganda war" and explains how prohibition created more drug use. Some old drug songs and comic title cards are added. It's interesting but seems too long to endure. Trailers for some classic exploitation movies are at the end of the tape.

THE DEVIL'S MESSENGER

(SW, 1962) D/S: Curt Siodmak D: Herbert L. Strock
S: Leo Guild P: Kenneth Herts Sweden

Lon Chaney Jr. as the Devil links 3 episodes of a pretty good Swedish TV horror-anthology program Siodmak made in 1959, called Number 13 Demon Street. In Hell, Chaney looks in a rotary file and says, "Next!" as he sends his messenger, Satanya (Karen Kadler), to participate in the supernatural tales. The first (and by far the best) concerns a fashion photographer (John Crawford). He kills a woman, but she shows up in photos and in his studio to haunt him. In the other eposodes, a miner discovers a woman frozen in a block of ice, and a fortune-teller convinces a man he will die at midnight. At the end Lon points at the camera and a 500-megaton bomb goes off, destroying the world! The "new" footage is by Strock, whose next project was The Crawling Hand.

THE DEVIL'S MISTRESS

(Sinister, 1966) D/S: Orville Wanzer
P/A: Wes Moreland

In this odd 66-minute color horror/western, four cowboys on the run go to a cabin, kill the religious husband, and rape his half-Indian wife, Liah (Joan Stapleton). The men all die in mysterious ways, and the husband is still alive. It was filmed in New Mexico.

THE DEVIL'S PET

(1994) D/S/P/C: Donald Jackson
S: Mark Williams P: Michael Miller

Gini Dante and Jeff Conaway star as low-budget horror directors eating in a restaurant (actually in Hell). With Julie Strain.

THE DEVIL'S POSSESSED

(All Seasons, 1974) D: Leon Klimovsky S/A: Paul Naschy Spain/Argentina (El Mariscal del Infierno)

Paul Naschy is Field Marshal de Lancre, in 13th-century France, who goes mad seeking the magical "philosopher's stone." An alchemist who needs virgin blood to make gold teams with the marshal's evil wife. There are swordfights, a peasant revolt, torture scenes, and a chopped-off head that talks.

THE DEVIL'S SLEEP

(Sinister, 1949) D: W. Merle Connell

Umberto Scali (Timothy Farrell) uses his health spa for "fat society dames" as a front for his illegal drug ring. He cleverly blackmails a philosophical female judge (Lita Grey-Chaplin) with naked photos of her daughter (Tracy Lynne). There's a long comic scene with a cute overweight woman named Tessie Tesse. Scali's comic assistant says "Those blimps really line your pockets!" Hopped up high school kids take "goofies" and "bennies." With a laughable fight, characters tied up, some near nudity, and a doctor talking about "hypnotics." William Thomason is the hero police sergeant and George Eiferman (Mr. America 1948) is "Mr. America." Grey had been Charlie Chaplin's "child bride." John Mitchum (just after his brother Robert was busted!) is also in the "brilliant cast." William C. Thompson was the cinematographer. The print is jumpy (and may be cut in some spots) but is still an exploitation must. Scali and his perfect pencil thin mustache returned in Pin Down Girls.

THE DEVIL'S SON-IN-LAW

(Interglobal, Active, 1977) D/S: Cliff Roquemore
(Petey Wheatstraw; The Devil's Son-in-Law)

After Petey Wheatstraw (comedian Rudy Ray Moore) is born (full grown) on a stormy night in a shack, he beats up his father for disturbing his sleep. Later Petey becomes a nightclub comedian and dies when evil Mr. White blasts a funeral. He goes to Hell (a red spotlight is the special effect) and meets Satan. If he marries the Devil's ugly daughter he can return to Earth for revenge. You won't believe it! His magic cane can turn men into dogs and make fat people thin. With Leroy and Skillet as rival comics and Sy Richardson. There was even a soundtrack album (on Magic Disc), featuring Nat Dove and the Devils. Roquemore directed Rudy in The Human Tornado too. Leroy and Skillet were also real nightclub comedians and "party album" stars.

THE DEVIL'S UNDEAD = NOTHING BUT THE NIGHT

THE DEVIL TIMES FIVE

(Sinister, 1974) D: Sean McGregor S: John Durrea P: Dylan Jones, Michael Blowitz
(People Toys; Horrible House on the Hill)

Five psychotic kids (one disguised as a nun!) escape from a mental hospital and terrorize and kill people at a remote mountain ski lodge. Lengthy slo-mo, b/w scenes of kids killing with hammers, chains, and a piranha are pretty memorable. They burn a woman alive and put a man inside a snowman. Future teen idol Leif Garrett kills with an axe. With a cat fight, brief sex scenes, a Lenny-like worker who likes rabbits, and bizarre synthesizer music. Gene Evans stars as the mean, bearded Papa Doc, and Sorrell Booke is a pathetic doctor. From Jerry Gross' Cinemation.

THE DEVIL WALKS AT MIDNIGHT = THE DEVIL'S NIGHTMARE

DEVIL WOMAN

(SW, 1970) D: Albert Yu, Felix Villar
S/P: Jimmy L. Pascual Philippines

A girl (Rosemarie Gil) born during a thunderstorm can control snakes and has snake hair (!) hidden under a scarf. Villagers kill her parents, so she grows up seeking revenge. She lives in a cave and uses a local gang to help. A new Chinese doctor (Alex Fang Lee) becomes a reluctant kung-fu hero. There are lots of fight scenes, some involving snakes and fireballs. American military music is played at a boxing match, since this takes place in the 19th century. Other sources give different credits. The music (probably lifted from another movie) is good. The color tape is letterboxed.

THE DEVONSVILLE TERROR

(Nelson, 1982) D/S/P/C: Ulli Lommel
S: George T. Lindsay

Three women arrive in a New England town on the 300th anniversary of the burning of three witches. One, the new schoolteacher (Suzanna Love, Lommel's real-life wife), says that God is a woman and is accused of witchcraft. After some unusual deaths, the town reenacts its past. The best effects are worms coming out of the face of Donald Pleasence as a cursed doctor. With Robert Walker Jr. The FX are by David L. Hewitt. The associate producer was Bill Rebane. It was filmed in Wisconsin.

DIAGNOSIS: MURDER

(1974) D: Sydney Hayers S: Philip Levene P: Peter Miller UK

Christopher Lee as a psychiatrist, Dr. Haywood, plots to kill his wife so that he can be with his mistress (Judy Geeson). Then his wife disappears. With Jon Finch, Jane Merrow, and Dilys Hamlett. This British TV movie also played in some theaters.

DIAL HELP

(Prism, 1988) D/S: Ruggiero Deodato S: Joseph Cavara and Mary Cavara P: Galiano Juso, Giovanni Bertolucci Italy (Ragno Gelido)

Charlotte Lewis (after Pirates and The Golden Child) stars as a sexy model with a possessed phone. There's also a killer ceiling fan and other household appliances, and many people die. The music is by Claudio Simonetti. William Berger costars.

DIAL M FOR MURDER

(1981) D: Boris Sagal S: John Gay P: Peter Katz

Angie Dickinson plays the Grace Kelly role in this NBC-TV remake. Frederick Knott's play became a Hitchcock film, and there were two TV versions before this one. Christopher Plummer has the Ray Milland role, and the cast includes Michael Parks, Anthony Quayle, and Ron Moody. Sagal (father of actress Katey Sagal) later died in a helicopter accident.

THE DIAMOND TRAP

(Vidmark, 1988) D: Don Taylor S: David Peckinpah P: Neil T. Maffeo

Brooke Shields stars in this TV comedy movie. Howard Hesseman is a New York City detective who follows her to London. With Darren McGavin and Ed Marinaro. Taylor, an actor (Battleground, Stalag 17), began directing in 1961.

THE DIAMOND WIZARD

(1953) D/A: Dennis O'Keefe D: Montgomery Tully P: Steven Pallos UK

O'Keefe is a US Treasury agent helping Scotland Yard find a missing atomic scientist. This is the only 3-D film made in England in the 50s. It was released here by United Artists. With Margaret Sheridan and Philip Friend.

DIARY OF A BACHELOR

(1964) D/P: Sandy Howard S: Ken Barnett

William Traylor stars in a b/w AIP comedy about a fiancée finding her future husband's diary. With Dagne Crane, Joe Silver, Dom DeLuise, Arlene Golonka, Paula Stewart, and, at the end of the cast, Nai Bonet. It was filmed on location in New York City. Howard, who still produces exploitation movies, is best known for A Man Called Horse (1970).

DIARY OF A CHAMBERMAID

(Cinematheque, 1964) D/S: Luis Buñuel S/A: Jean-Claude Carrière France/Italy (Le Journal d'une Femme de Chambre)

Jeanne Moreau stars as a servant, Célestine, who works for a decadent family on a Normandy estate in 1928. The father (Michel Piccoli) has a shoe fetish, and the brutal, fascist gamekeeper seems to be a child-murderer. This unsettling b/w film has no music and is subtitled. An earlier version of Octave Mirbeau's novel had been directed by Jean Renoir in 1946 (available from Republic Video).

DIARY OF A HITMAN

(Columbia, 1990) D: Roy London S: Kenneth Pressman P: Amin Q. Chaudhri

Forest Whitaker stars as a hitman on his last job. He's supposed to kill Sherilyn Fenn (and her new baby). This was advertised in 1992 as being a new Sharon Stone feature (after Basic Instinct was a hit). She has only a small role, and most of it is like a bad play. With James Belushi and Lois Chiles.

DIARY OF A MAD HOUSEWIFE

(MCA, 1970) D/P: Frank Perry S: Eleanor Perry

Carrie Snodgress has an affair with an author (Frank Langella) while her attorney husband (Richard Benjamin) climbs the Manhattan ladder of success. It's pretty dreary, but the original Alice Cooper band plays at a party and Peter Boyle has a very small role.

DIARY OF A NUDIST

(SW, 1961) D/P: Doris Wishman S: Melvin Stanley (Nature Camp Confidential)

An angry newspaper editor ("This is outrageous, and I'm going to do something about it!") sends Stacy, a blond reporter (Davee Decker), to a nudist camp to write an exposé. Instead of telling how sinful it is she writes about how great it is. He eventually shows up at the camp (in his shorts) after firing her, and they fall in love. All the naked women walk with strategically placed towels, purses, or papers. During a volleyball game, the team facing the camera wear shorts! The lounging nudists look like the Eloi in The Time Machine. The underwater swimming scenes were also in Wishman's Blaze Starr: The Original. This timid color nudist feature was shot at the Sunny Palms Lodge in Homestead, Florida, and in Palmerton, Pennsylvania. (the different footage is obvious). Decker was also in Orgy at Lil's Place (1963). The Joe Bob intro version went out of print real fast.

DIARY OF FORBIDDEN DREAMS

(TWE, 1972) D/S/A: Roman Polanski S: Gerald Brach P: Carlo Ponti Italy (Che?; What?)

Sydne Rome (from Ohio) stars as an innocent, unquestioning young woman who finds herself at an Italian mansion owned by an eccentric millionaire (Marcello Mastroianni) who likes to be whipped and claims to have been a pimp. She writes in her diary and spends most of the movie walking around naked, which is why this movie wasn't shown much in the US. Hugh Griffith is a dying old man, and Polanski is Mosquito, a character with a spear gun. Polanski made this odd, rarely seen comic Alice in Wonderland for adults between Macbeth and Chinatown. The dubbed 112-minute film was cut to 94 minutes in the US.

DICK AND JANE DROP ACID

(Surf Reality, 1991) D/A: Matt Mitler S/A: Jeff Eyres P: Robert Pritchard

In the tradition of old road-show movies, this opens with an anti-LSD lecture, has flashbacks, and shows how innocents are led astray. Longhairs smoke pot in a basement, and electric Kool-Aid is served at a "cube" party. Undercover cops get high and freak out. The British pusher/villain has to deliver three new addicts a month. The music is by a Thousand Tiny Fingers. It was shot on tape in the East Village. Mitler was in Basket Case 2, Spring Break, and others.

DICK BARTON, SPECIAL AGENT

(Sinister, 1948) D: Alfred Goulding S: Alan Stranks P: Henry Halstead UK (Dick Barton, Detective)

A mad scientist plans to destroy London with germ warfare, in this early Hammer film. Don Stannard is Dick Barton. This was the first of a series of films based on a BBC radio series.

DICK BARTON STRIKES BACK

(Sinister, 1949) D: Godfrey Grayson S: Ambrose Grayson UK

Don Stannard returns, only to be thrown into a cage of poisonous snakes. Sebastian Cabot is one of the criminals with an atomic device that can destroy cities. Dick Barton at Bay (1950) followed. It was the last of this Hammer series, because the star died in a car crash.

DICK TRACY

(Rhino, Sinister 1937) D: Ray Taylor, Alan James S: Barry Shipman, Winston Miller P: Nat Levine

Chester Gould's newspaper comic strip (which debuted in 1931) was the basis for this 15 chapter Republic serial, one of the best serials ever made. Ralph Byrd stars as the FBI agent fighting the Spider Gang. The "Lame One" has a very modern and impressive futuristic flying wing and a hunchbacked mad scientist assistant named Moloch. They kidnap Tracy's brother, operate on him, and make him a mindless slave. With Kay Hughes as Gwen, Smiley Burnette, Francis X. Bushman, and Lee Van Atta as Junior (the only other character used from the comic strip). Byrd, who also debuted as Tracy on radio in 1937, returned as Tracy in three more Republic serials and two forties features. He was still playing Tracy in an early fifties TV series until he died in 1952. The old Dick Tracy movies and serials were on sale everywhere while the Beatty version was in release.

DICK TRACY

(Touchstone, 1990) D/P/A: Warren Beatty S: Bo Goldman, Jim Cash, Jack Epps Jr.

This was supposed to be as big a hit as Batman, but it didn't help that Beatty had been in only the commercial flops Reds (1981) and Ishtar (1987) in the 80s and that costar Madonna can't act. Al Pacino (better than in The Godfather III, from the same year!) is Big Boy Caprice and Dustin Hoffman is funny as Mumbles. The cast includes Glenne Headly, Charlie Korsmo, and an amazing arena of underused villains (in extreme makeup) and guest stars: William Forsythe as Flattop, R. G. Armstrong as Pruneface, Charles Durning, Paul Sorvino, Mandy Patinkin, Seymour Cassel, Dick Van Dyke, Mary Woronov, Kathy Bates, Henry Jones, Catherine O'Hara, Henry Silva, James Caan, Estelle Parsons, Alan Garfield, Michael J. Pollard, Mike Mazurki, James Tolkan, and Hamilton Camp. Even Luann Lee and Rebekka Armstrong from Playboy are in it. The cinematography is by Vittorio Storaro (The Last Emperor, Reds). It was the first feature made in digital sound, and Danny Elfman wrote the score. Chester Gould had died in 1985, so he didn't live to see his creation looking confused in a yellow raincoat.

William Forsythe is Flattop in Dick Tracy.

DICK TRACY'S G-MEN

(VCI, 1939) D: William Witney, John English S: Barry Shipman, Franklin Adreon, Donald Davidson

In the third Dick Tracy serial from Republic, Ralph Byrd has to battle Irving Pichel as Zarnoff, head of a spy ring. This time Gwen and Junior are absent. With Phyllis Isley (later known as Jennifer Jones). The 15 chapters are 270 minutes.

DICK TRACY RETURNS

(VCI, 1938) D: William Whitney, John English S: Barry Shipman, Franklin Adreon, Donald Davidson

Ralph Byrd returns in the second Dick Tracy serial from Republic. It has the extra attraction of Charles Middleton (from the Flash Gordon serials) as the villain, Pa Stark, head of a notorious criminal family. With Lynne Roberts as Gwen and Jerry Tucker as Junior. The 15 chapters are 260 minutes.

DICK TRACY VS. CRIME INC.

(VCI, 1941) D: William Witney, John English S: Donald Davidson, Norman S. Hall, William Lively

Ralph Byrd, in the fourth and final Dick Tracy serial, battles "the Ghost," a criminal who wears a great immobile, full-head mask. This time New York City is destroyed, thanks to footage from the movie Deluge (1933). Byrd later returned in the 1947 features Dick Tracy's Dilemma and Dick Tracy Meets Gruesome. This 15-chapter Republic serial runs 270 minutes.

DIE HARD

(Fox, 1988) D: John McTiernan S: Jeb Stuart, Steven de Souza P: Lawrence Golden, Joel Silver

As far as action/disaster movies go, this one delivers and has been copied many times. A 40-story LA high-rise office building is destroyed while German terrorists take it over during a Christmas party and hold everybody for ransom. A wisecracking New York City cop named John McClane (Bruce Willis) battles the terrorists (Alan Rickman and Alexander Godunov). With Bonnie Bedelia, Reginald VelJohnson, William Atherton, James Shigeta, Robert Davi, Hart Bochner, and Terri Lynn Doss and Kim Malin (from Playboy). It's 131 minutes.

DIE HARD 2: DIE HARDER

(Fox, 1990) D: Renny Harlin S: Doug Richardson, Steven de Souza P: Lawrence Gordon, Joel Silver

Here's a very expensive, all-out sequel that made much more than the original. This time Willis is in a Washington, DC airport, and new terrorists have to be stopped. With Bonnie Bedelia and William Atherton from the original, Franco Nero, John Amos, William Sadler, Dennis Franz (providing unwanted comedy relief), John Leguizamo, Art Evans, Robert Patrick, and Watergate lawyer Fred D. Thompson. It copies Bond films in many ways and was cited as having a record number of "acts of violence" (200). A whole planeload of Brits is blown up in midair. Some of the ILM FX are awesome, but knowledgeable viewers can still spot models. Harlin, director of Prison and Nightmare on Elm Street IV, did The Adventures of Ford Fairlane the same year. Die Hard: With a Ven-geance followed in 1995.

DIE LAUGHING

(Warner, 1980) D: Jeff Werner S/P/A: Robby Benson S: Jerry Segal P: Mark Canton

Cabdriver Robbie Benson is accused of killing a scientist who made a bomb out of nuclear waste. Russian spies are also involved in this failed black comedy. With Charles Durning, Peter Coyote, Elsa Lanchester (in her last role), Bud Cort, and Linda Grovenor. Benson later turned director with White Hot (1988).

DIEN BIEN PHU

(1992) D/S/P: Pierre Schoendorffer P: Jacques Kerschner France

Donald Pleasence stars as an American reporter during the 57-day battle that drove the French from Vietnam in 1954. The film was made in Tonkin. The director was an army cameraman and prisoner of war in real life. It's considered historically important and was very expensive. Schoendorffer also narrates.

DIE, SISTER, DIE!

(MPI, 1978) D/P: Randall Hood S: Tony Sawyer (The Companion)

Jack Ging plots to kill his sister for money. Antoinette Bower (Superbeast) is his nurse accomplice. This obscure movie features Hollywood veterans Edith Atwater and Kent Smith (they were married in real life, and this is his last known role) and Richard Emhardt. There's a dream sequence in a pool of blood.

DIE WATCHING

(Triboro, 1992) D: Charles Davis S: Kenneth J. Hall P: Nanda Rao

Christopher Atkins stars as Michael (instead of Mark) in a very blatant ripoff of Peeping Tom. He videotapes a series of women with oversize, inflated breasts, then ties them up and kills them. It's complete with disturbing childhood flashbacks and strip sequences to rock songs sung by a Jim Morrison imitator. Vali Ashton (also a producer) costars as the artist neighbor who loves and trusts him. Tim Thomerson is an LA police detective. This New World release was writen by the guy who made Evil Spawn (1987).

DIGGIN' UP BUSINESS

(Monarch, 1989) D/P/A: Tom Pardew D: Mark Byers S: Tim Minear P: Rick Eye

Lynn Holly Johnson works in a mortuary. She devises gimmicky funerals (a corpse shot out of a cannon, a dead stripper in a cake) to make money, in this PG comedy. With Murray Langston ("the Unknown Comic"), Billy Barty, Yvonne Craig, Linnea Quigley, and Dawn Wildsmith, plus Ruth Buzzi and Gary Owens from Laugh-In.

DIGITAL DREAMS

(Media, 1983) D: Robert Dornhelm S/A: Richard O'Brien P/A: Bill and Astrid Wyman UK

Wyman (who quit the Rolling Stones in 1992) made this 16mm, 72-minute film for TV. James Coburn plays several characters, and Wyman's (now former) Swedish wife complains a lot. Some animation and Stones concert footage are used, and Wyman visits his neighbor Marc Chagall. He also plays a song with Muddy Waters, Buddy Guy, and Junior Wells.

Ralph Morgan is the Ghost in Dick Tracy vs. Crime, Inc.

DIRECTORS
(MOST PROLIFIC)

These are some directors who made the most psychotronic movies (not necessarily the best). All of them have their fans (believe it or not). The list does not include Italians or serial directors.

1. Jesús Franco (Spain)
2. Fred Olen Ray
3. Cirio H. Santiago (Philippines)
4. Al Adamson (murdered in 1995)
5. William Beaudine (last in 1962)
6. Sam Newfield (last in 1958)
7. Terence Fisher (UK; last in 1973)
8. Fred Sears (last in 1958)
9. Jim Wynorski
10. David DeCoteau

THE DIRT BIKE KID
(Nelson, 1986) D: Hoite C. Caston S: David Brandes, Lewis Collick P: Julie Corman

Peter Billingsley with his Yamaha bike that flies, fights bikers and an evil banker (Stuart Pankin). This PG film, "inspired" by parts of E.T. is from Roger Corman's Concorde.

THE DIRT GANG
(MPI, 1972) D: Jerry Jameson S: William Mercer, Michael C. Healy P: Joseph E. Bishop

One of AIP's later biker movies stars Paul Carr, Michael Forest, and Michael Pataki. A biker encounters a film crew in the desert. This Roger Corman production, by the director of Airport '77, features typical sex (Uschi Digart is in it) and violence.

DIRTIEST GAME IN THE WORLD
(1975) D: James Bryan

Titus Moore (Titus Moody) is a candidate for California state representative. He wants the hippie vote, so he runs on a legalize-marijuana platform and checks out their life-style. This leads to pot-smoking and lots of sex and nudity. After an outdoor lesbian sex scene, his alky wife loses it and starts whipping the hippies during an orgy. This is followed by an extremely bloody and gross suicide scene. Then most of the characters are shot. The acting is awful. This sick "soft-core" sex movie has several surprisingly extreme scenes. Jean Stone costars with Coleman Francis (The Beast of Yucca Flats). Moody filmed new wraparound sequences on Hollywood Boulevard. He assures us that this is "a cult classic" and ends by saying he was Sam Peckinpah's roommate.

THE DIRTY GAME
(1965) D: Terence Young, Christian-Jacque, Carlo Lizzani S: Jo Eisinger France/Italy/W. Germany (Guerre Secrete)

AIP released this b/w Cold War spy drama. Robert Ryan as the US intelligence chief in Europe recalls three past operations he supervised. Henry Fonda, Vittorio Gassman, Annie Girardot, Bourvil, and Peter Van Eyck are in the cast. A soundtrack recording was released on Laurie.

DIRTY GAMES
(AIP, 1989) D/S: Greg Hofmeyr P: Albie Venter, Roy Sargeant S. Africa

Valentina Vargas, in Africa to avenge the death of her scientist father, blames her ex-lover Jan-Michael Vincent, a molecular scientist. The confusing, boring "thriller" is totally without merit.

DIRTY HARRY
(Warner, 1971) D/P: Don Siegel S: Harry Julian Fink, Rita M. Fink, Dean Reiser

Clint Eastwood as San Francisco police inspector Harry Callahan goes after Andrew Robinson as Scorpio in a ski mask. The maniac killer was inspired by the real San Francisco Zodiac killer. He demands ransom money or he'll commit a murder a day. He buries a girl alive and hijacks a school-bus full of kids. The cast includes Reni Santoni, Harry Guardino, John Vernon, and Debralee Scott as a nude corpse. This is one of the best action/cop movies ever made. It was a big hit and was called "fascist" by the New York Times. The star was originally supposedly to be Paul Newman, then Frank Sinatra. Eastwood returned as Harry in Magnum Force (1973) and more sequels, all from Warner.

DIRTY MARY, CRAZY LARRY
(Magnetic, 1974) D: John Hough S: Leigh Chapman, Antonio Santean P: Norman T. Herman

Peter Fonda is a former stock-car driver who turns to crime with his mechanic (Adam Roarke) and Susan George. A sheriff in a helicopter (Vic Morrow) pursues them. With Roddy McDowall, William Campbell, Kenneth Tobey, and Lynn Borden. There's some excellent stunt work. The 20th Century release was to have been produced by James Nicholson (who had just left AIP), but he died.

DIRTY O'NEIL
(1974) D/S: Howard Freen D: Lewis Teague P: John C. Broderick

AIP released this feature about the sex life of a small-town California cop. It stars Morgan Paul, with Art Metrano, Pat Anderson, and Liv Lindeland. Teague made The Lady in Red (1979) and Alligator (1979) next.

DISASTER AT SILO 7
(Triboro, 1988) D: Larry Elikann S: Douglas Lloyd McIntosh P: Julian Krainin

Michael O'Keefe is an Air Force technician who prevents an apocalypse. This TV movie is based on a 1980 Titan II missile accident near Little Rock and was filmed in an actual Titan II silo. With Peter Boyle, Patricia Charbonneau, Perry King, and Joe Spano.

DISCONNECTED
(Active, 1978) D/S/P: Gorman Bechard S: Virginia Gilroy

A shy psycho (Mark Walker) makes silent phone calls, and a detective investigates. Frances Raines has a double role as good and bad twins. One works in a video store. This was filmed in Waterbury, Connecticut, by the maker of Psychos in Love.

DISCREET CHARM OF THE BOURGEOISIE
(Cinematheque, 1972) D/S: Luis Buñuel S: Jean-Claude Carrière P: Serge Silberman France

In a twist on the "plot" of Buñuel's The Exterminating Angel, some people try to enjoy a planned dinner that is always interrupted. Rich, powerful characters have disturbing dreams and always end up walking endlessly on a road while remaining oblivious to the chaos around them. One dream about a dead man is better than most entire horror movies. This movie is in a class of its own and will make you forget most other obvious "anti-establishment" movies you might have seen. The South American ambassador (star Fernando Rey) carries a cocaine stash in his diplomatic pouch. With Delphine Seyrig, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Stephane Audran, and Bulle Ogier. It's subtitled. The film received an Oscar as best foreign film. Buñuel said it was his last, but went on to make The Phantom of Liberty (1974) and That Obscure Object of Desire (1977).

DISORDERLIES
(Warner, 1987) D/P: Michael Schultz S: Mark Feldberg, Mitchell Klebanoff P: George Jackson, Mitchell Jaffe

Andrew Robinson is Scorpio in Dirty Harry.

DIKA: MURDER CITY

(Moore, 1995) D: Michael Moore

Dika Newlin is a woman in her 70s who performs in several different styles. She sounds awful backed by a rock band in a club singing Elvis songs in black-leather male drag. She's very strange doing rambling originals and playing a keyboard and is charming and funny doing her songs (and playing kazoo) with just a guy playing acoustic guitar. Dika is interviewed and also meows one whole song. This documentary from Richmond, Virginia, includes a NOTLD scene.

Warren Oates stars in Dillinger, with Harry Dean Stanton, Geoffrey Lewis, and John Ryan.

DILLINGER

(Key, 1945) D: Max Nosseck S: Philip Yordan P: Maurice and Franklin King

This was the biggest hit Monogram ever made. It was considered brutal and controversial when released (just before WWII ended in Europe) and was banned in Chicago! It made Lawrence Tierney a star. The robbery sequence was "borrowed" from Fritz Lang's You Only Live Once. The cast was great for a Monogram film: Edmund Lowe, Anne Jeffreys as "the lady in red," Eduardo Ciannelli, Elisha Cook Jr., and Marc Lawrence. Nosseck (born in Poland) also directed Tierney (who was in and out of jail a lot in real life) in Shakedown and The Hoodlum. Tierney also had a small role in a mediocre 1991 TV version of Dillinger.

DILLINGER

(Vestron, 1973) D/S: John Milius P: Buzz Feitshans

Warren Oates looks perfect for the title role in this version of the Dillinger legend, released by AIP. The supporting cast is even better than in the 1945 version: Ben Johnson as Melvin Purvis, Michelle Phillips, Cloris Leachman, Richard Dreyfuss (as Baby Face Nelson), Harry Dean Stanton, Geoffrey Lewis, John Ryan, and Steve Kanaly. It was the first movie directed by Milius and was filmed in Oklahoma. The Barry Devorzon soundtrack is on MCA. Corman's New World later made The Lady in Red (1979), with Robert Conrad as Dillinger.

LA DINASTIA DRACULA

(Eagle, 1978) D: Alfredo B. Crevenna Mexico

Fabian as Dracula in 18th-century Mexico doesn't sound very promising, but I saw this in an Upper West Side Manhattan theater (now long gone, of course) and was very impressed. It had a bigger budget than most Mexican horror movies. There's an impressive cavern hideout, and Fabian (dubbed into Spanish) isn't bad at all.

DINOSAUR ISLAND

(New Horizons, 1993) D/P: Jim Wynorski, Fred Olen Ray S/A: Bob Sheridan, Christopher Wooden

This is like a 50s lost-world movie, plus some nudity and outdoor sex. A group of comic enlisted men (led by Ross Hagen) encounter an often topless female tribe (led by Toni Naples) on an island. Blond Antonia Dorian is the main attraction in her standout sex scene, and Naples fights Michelle Bauer. With Richard Gabai, Becky LeBeau, Steve Barkett, and Peter Spellos as Turbo. Oh, yeah, there's also a pretty good triceratops, the busy Carnosaur prop monster, some awful puppet dinos, and scenes filmed at Bronson Canyon. Gary Graver (One Million AC/DC) shot it. The longer Image laserdisc has both directors commenting on their 12-day feature.

DINOSAUR MOVIES

(Simitar, 1993) D: Donald F. Glut

Glut hosts a 2-tape compilation set with Forrest J. Ackerman, Ray Harryhausen, and Jim Danforth talking and lots of rare clips going back to the silents. With the cartoon Gertie the Dinosaur (1914) and Willis O'Brien's short The Dinosaur and the Missing Link (1915).

THE DION BROTHERS

(1973) D/A: Jack Starrett S: Bill Kerby, Terrence Malik P: Jonathan T. Taplin (The Gravy Train)

Stacy Keach and Frederic Forrest are West Virginia brothers who become criminals, in this comic action movie. With Margot Kidder, Barry Primus, Denny Miller, and Richard Romanus. Starrett (who had just done Cleopatra Jones) replaced the original director, Malik.

DIPLOMATIC IMMUNITY

(Fries, 1991) D/P: Peter Maris S: Randall Frakes, Jim Trombetta, Richard Donn

The daughter of Bruce Boxleitner is raped and killed by a German psycho who the police release. He goes to Paraguay, where his evil dominatrix mother (Meg Foster) rules from an island fortress. The dad goes after him with help from Robert Forster as a CIA agent and Billy Drago as an arms dealer. With Fabiano Udenio as a hooker and Christopher Neame.

DIRECT HIT

(PM, 1994) D/P: Joseph Merhi S: Jacobsen Hart P: Richard Pepin

William Forsythe is a hitman in Hollywood with one last assignment, to kill exotic dancer Jo Champa. He decides to protect her instead. With Richard Norton as a bad assassin, John Amprea as a corrupt politician, George Segal as the boss, Juliet Landau, and Steve Garvey.

DIRECTING MOVIES FROM ACTION TO RAP

(1993)

Ted V. Mikels discusses making 11 features, and trailers (or film clips) are shown for each one, in this amusing self-promotion tape. Mikels, a jolly, likable eccentric who sometimes acts in his own creations, really seems to love making his low-budget features. Shanti (or Dr. Wendy Altamura), Mikels's stern-looking British-accented companion, pretends she doesn't know the answers to the (scripted) questions she asks, and a bored-looking guy (said to be a writer) is there mostly to stop the star from talking too long and ask, "Do you like being called a cult hero?" It's kind of like Mikels took over The Joe Franklin Show. Features covered go back to the b/w Black Klansman and Strike Me Deadly and include Astro Zombies, The Corpse Grinders (he's planning a sequel!), The Doll Squad ("total entertainment for all ages!"), and more recent (and less interesting) direct-to-video action movies that are "coming to a theater near you soon!" He even discusses producing The Worm Eaters.

DIRECTORS
(BEST)

Even though they might not be considered psychotronic, check out their filmographies.

1. Luis Buñuel
2. Alfred Hitchcock
3. Fritz Lang
4. Stanley Kubrick
5. Orson Welles
6. Tod Browning
7. Sam Peckinpah
8. Samuel Fuller
9. Nicholas Ray
10. Martin Scorsese

Kool Rock, Buffy, and Markie (the Fat Boys) are hired by evil Anthony Geary to care for his elderly, rich uncle (Ralph Bellamy) who hopes the situation will kill him. The Fat Boys do rap remakes of songs like "Louie Louie," "The Twist," and "Wipeout." Bellamy received an honorary Oscar the year this was released. The soundtrack is on Polydor.

DISTORTIONS

(Academy, 1987) D: Armand Mastroianni
S: John Goff P: Jackelyn Giroux

Piper Laurie stars as an evil aunt in an old mansion who drugs her recently widowed niece (Olivia Hussey). This Diabolique copy has double and triple crosses, flashbacks, and a society of lesbians. With Steve Railsback, June Chadwick, Edward Albert, Rita Gam, and Terence Knox.

DISTURBANCE

(1989) D/P: Cliff Guest S: Laura Radford P: Ron Cerasuola

Timothy Greeson stars as a psycho who kills women.

DISTURBED

(Live, 1990) D/S: Charles Winkler
P: Brad Wyman S: Emerson Bixby

Dr. Russell (white-haired Malcolm McDowell) runs a mental hospital where he occasionally drugs and rapes female patients. A new patient, Sandy (model Pamela Gidley), is an angry, suicidal ex-model who doesn't like him much ("You lousy, motherfucking, cocksucking prick!"), With the help of a faithful patient (the always good Geoffrey Lewis) he kills her, but she seems to come back and haunt him. McDowell has his moments: an impressive, spinning freak-out scene and a great sex nightmare, where the naked woman on top has no head! Some Evil Dead–style tricks (like a hypodermic needle flying through the air) and good cinematography help, but this movie is filled with clichéd nuts (and, of course, a midget) and has an ending that doesn't make sense. Clint Howard plays a crazy, bearded, comic-relief flasher, and the head nurse is played by Amy Irving's mother, Priscilla Pointer (Steven Spielberg's former mother-in-law). Director Charles Winkler, the son of Rocky producer Irvin Winkler, made the film in Colorado. The irritating "it's only a movie" ending features the director's voice yelling, "Cut it!"

THE DIVINE ENFORCER

(Prism, 1991) D/S: Robert Rundle
S: Tanya York P: Scott Pfeiffer

Here's an all-star classic of bad filmmaking. Father Daniel (Michael Foley), a new LA priest, is also a limb-breaking kickboxer vigilante with psychic powers. A very disturbing Don Stroud (who looks awful) is Otis, a psychotic "vampire" serial killer who drains the blood of his (topless) female victims. Skulls light up and talk to him: "Kill the bitch!" He rants and cries and goes to confession naked. A psychic girl (Carrie Chambers) has visions of Otis (and of sex with her father). Erik Estrada and Jan-Michael Vincent are priests who sit at a dinner table looking bored while being served by Judy Landers in a miniskirt. Jim Brown and Robert Z'Dar show up (briefly) as drug dealers, and a singer named Hiroko imitates Madonna. The avenging priest says, "Open the gates of Hell, for I am the right hand of God!" It ends with a rap theme. Don't miss this!

THE DIVORCEE

(Nite Flight, 1969)
D/S/P/A: A. C. Stevens/Steven Apostoloff (Frustrations)

Bett Brent (Marsha Jordan), "a free woman," has sexual adventures, talks to her doll (Orphan Annie), and drinks too much. One man whips her with branches in a sauna. She makes another bark like a dog. She confesses all during a psychodrama session at a party that soon becomes an orgy. She ends up clutching her doll, and sobbing for help. One of the actors, Bill Williams, was also in Tickle Me and Rio Lobo. The Divorcee and Lady Godiva Rides both star Jordan (who was in Count Yorga at around the same time) and feature Liz Renay (Desperate Living), plus many of the same cast members.

DIXIE DYNAMITE

(VCI, 1976) D/S: Lee Frost S/P: Wes Bishop

Jane Anne Johnstone and Kathy McHaley are southern sisters whose moonshiner father is killed by a stupid deputy. Warren Oates is a car racer and their only friend, in this PG rural action movie. Christopher George and R. G. Armstrong costar, but the real surprise is (an unbilled) Steve McQueen. The music is by Duane Eddy, Dorsey Burnette, and the Mike Curb Congregation. From Dimension and the makers of lots of sleazy adult movies (and The Thing with Two Heads).

DJANGO

(Magnum, 1965) D/S: Sergio Corbucci
S: Bruno Corbucci, Franco Rossetti
P: Manola Bolognini Italy/Spain

Franco Nero stars as the gunfighter Django in a bizarre, violent, comic western that was as influential as A Fistful of Dollars (at least in Europe). He keeps a machine gun in a coffin and battles KKK members in a cemetery. A man is forced to eat his own ear. The widescreen film, shot in Eastmancolor, was banned in some countries but spawned sequels and countless imitations and ripoffs. With Django Came Death (1967) also stars Nero and features Klaus Kinski.

DJANGO KILL

(VSOM, 1967) D/S/P: Giulio Quest
S: Franco Arcalli Italy (Sei Sei Vivi, Spara!)

In one of the strangest and most violent westerns ever made, Django (Tomas Milian) and two Indians battle two rival groups in a western town. One man is shot with gold bullets, so gang members tear him apart for the gold. A man is roasted on a spit and a talking parrot comments on the action. Viva Django (1968) starred Terence Hill.

DJANGO STRIKES AGAIN

(1987) D/S: "Ted Archer"/Nello Rossatti
S: Franco Reggiani P: Spartaco Pizzi
Italy/Spain/W. Germany (Djangos Rückkehr)

More than 20 years after the original film, the name Django still sold tickets (or tapes) in Europe. Franco Nero returned in this late sequel, with Donald Pleasence, William Berger, and the late Chris Connelly.

D.O.A.

(Roach, VCI, 1949) D: Rudolph Maté S: Russell Rouse, Clarence Greene P: Harry M. Popkin

Businessman Edmond O'Brien reports his own murder to the cops at the beginning of this film noir classic and tells the rest in flashback. He searches San Francisco and LA for the person who slipped him a slow poison. With Pamela Britton, Neville Brand (in his first film) as a psycho killer, Luther Adler, Beverly Garland, and Lurette Luez (from Prehistoric Women). The music is by Dimitri Tiomkin. Most of this United Artists film was shot on location. Maté was the cinematographer of Vampyr (1932). Few people realize that D.O.A. was based on a 1931 German film, Der Mann der Seinen Mördet Sucht, directed by Robert Siodmak, who later specialized in film noir in America. The Hal Roach video is colorized.

D.O.A. II

(1969) D/P: Eddie Davis S: Russell Rouse, Clarence Greene Australia (Color Me Dead)

Nobody seems to remember this R-rated remake filmed in Sidney using the original D.O.A. script (uncredited), but it showed up on tape in the US, retitled, after the 1988 remake was released. Tom Tryon stars as Frank Bigelow, with Carolyn Jones and Rick Jason.

D.O.A.

(TVH, 1988) D: Rocky Morton, Annabel Jankel S: Charles Edward Pogue P: Ian Saunder, Laura Ziskin

You know things have changed when Disney (!) makes a remake of a downbeat 40s classic about a dying man. It was written by the guy who wrote the remake of The Fly and Psycho III. The directors (husband and wife) created Max Headroom. Dennis Quaid stars as a professor poisoned in New Orleans. Meg Ryan is the student who reluctantly helps him. There's a nail-gun murder and people get stuck together with Crazy Glue. Charlotte Rampling, Daniel Stern, Jane Kaczmarek, Brion James, and Christopher Neame are in the cast. Look for the 1949 version. It's ten times better (and cheaper to buy). This is actually the fourth version of D.O.A. I guess we can expect another version in about 2008.

D.O.A.: A RIGHT OF PASSAGE

(Lightning, 1981) D/P: Lech Kowalski

The Sex Pistols are seen playing and self-destructing on their 1978 US tour. There are lots of interviews and footage of other bands playing in England. With the Clash, Dead Boys (with Stiv Bators), X-Ray Specs, Generation X (with Billy Idol), and Sham 69. The most memorable interview is with that fun, soon-to-be-dead couple Nancy Spungen and Sid Vicious, later recreated in Sid and Nancy.

THE DOBERMAN GANG

(Fox, 1972) D: Byron Chudnow P: David Chudnow

Trained Doberman pinscher dogs rob banks in the first of a PG series. Byron Mabe (who directed nudie movies for David F. Friedman), Hal Reed, and Julie Parrish star. The Daring Dobermans (1973), also from Dimension, and The Amazing Dobermans (1976), with Fred Astaire (!), followed, all by Chudnow.

DR. ALIEN!

(Paramount, 1988) D/P: David DeCoteau S: Kenneth J. Hall P: John Schouweiler (I Was a Teenage Sex Mutant)

A professor (Judy Landers) who is really an alien makes a college-student nerd (Billy Jacobi) irresistible to women, in this pretty ridiculous sex comedy. A snakelike gland grows out of his forehead. There are lots of topless scenes and lots of "scream queens." With Troy Donahue, Edy Williams, Olivia Barash, Michelle Bauer, Julie Gray, Elizabeth Kaitan, and Karen Russell. Ginger Lynn Allen, Laura Albert, and Linnea Quigley all show up in a dream sequence.

THE DOCTOR AND THE DEVILS

(Fox, 1985) D: Freddie Francis S: Ronald Harwood P: Jonathan Sanger UK

The first film directed by former Hammer and Amicus regular Francis since 1975 is historical horror based on a 40s screenplay by poet Dylan Thomas. It's about the 19th-century grave-robbers Burke and Hare and is similar in many ways to Mania/The Flesh and the Fiends (1960). It had been performed as a play, and Fritz Lang, then Nicholas Ray, had planned to film it. Mel Brooks was the executive producer (Francis had shot his production The Elephant Man in 1980). Timothy Dalton stars as Dr. Rock, and Jonathan Pryce and Stephen Rea are Fallon and Broom, the body-snatchers. The film shows blood-splattered operations and the hopeless squalor of the lower classes. With Twiggy (very good as a prostitute), Julian Sands, Beryl Reid, and Sian Phillips. 20th Century–Fox barely released it in the US.

DOCTOR BLOODBATH = HORROR HOSPITAL

DR. CALIGARI

(Southgate, 1989) D/S: Stephan Sayadian S: Jerry Stahl P: Joseph F. Robertson

Some of the images (a giant tongue, a woman masturbating in front of a TV, people eating sheep's legs, yellow and pink clothes) in this drug-and-dream filled "remake" are inspired, but it all resembles a dreary, pretentious off-Broadway play. A very sexy Laura Albert stars as Mrs. Van Houten, with the scene-stealing late Fox Harris (the film is dedicated to him) and Jennifer Miro (former lead singer of the San Francisco group the Nuns). Madeleine Reynal is Dr. Caligari's granddaughter. The film is different. Sayadian is the guy who made the post-nuke porno movie Cafe Flesh. Robertson produced The Crawling Hand.

DR. CRIPPEN

(1962) D: Robert Lynn S: Leigh Vance P: John Clein UK

Donald Pleasence stars as the real Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen, a London physician charged in 1910 with murdering his wife with an overdose of tranquilizers. During the trial he tells how his unfaithful and alcoholic wife (Coral Browne) was blackmailing him and how he accidentally killed her, then dismembered the body. He and his mistress (Samantha Eggar), disguised as a boy, then tried to escape to Canada. Donald Wolfit is the crown prosecutor. Earlier versions of the story had been filmed in 1942 and 1957. Nicolas Roeg was the director of photography. Warner released the b/w feature in America.

DOCTOR DEATH, SEEKER OF SOULS

(Prism, 1972) D/P: Eddie Saeta S: Sal Ponti

Fred (Barry Coe), a guy with thick sideburns, wants his wife, Laura (who died in a car crash), back. He goes to a fake séance. He visits the Society of the Dead, but they're crazy. Then he answers an ad about reincarnation and meets Tanya, an expert (Florence Marley, from Queen of Blood). She sends him to Dr. Death (John Considine with a beard), who practices "selective reincarnation." During his stage act he asks for a volunteer, and gray-haired Moe Howard (!!) comes up to confirm that there is a dead body onstage. Moe gives the body the once-over: "Why, certainly, she's dead, all right!" Dr. Death then saws a woman with a horribly burned face in half, and her soul (a dancing ghost in a dress) enters the dead woman. During the rest of the movie Dr. Death fails to bring back Fred's wife, but he is obsessed with his failure and refuses to give up. Considine, later a regular in Robert Altman and Alan Rudolph movies, gives an all-out performance, killing one woman after another with help from his assistant, Thor, and screaming, "Enter that body! Why do you resist these beautiful souls?" When somebody stabs him blood, spurts from the doctor's body into the face of the attacker, who disintegrates, then bursts! A bloody head with guts attached is delivered in a box. Dr. Death is a very strange movie. Also in the cast are Cheryl Miller (from the Daktari TV series) and West Coast TV horror host Seymour.

DOCTOR DOLITTLE

(Fox, 1967) D: Richard Fleischer S/M: Leslie Bricusse P: Arthur P. Jacobs

Rex Harrison stars in this animal-rights musical fantasy. It lost so much money that 20th Century–Fox was almost ruined. Samantha Eggar costars, with Anthony Newley, Richard Attenborough, Peter Bull, and Geoffrey Holder. It's based on novels by Hugh Lofting. Filmed partially in the British West Indies, it was shot in Todd-AO and was originally 152 minutes long. Jacobs did better with his next animal-theme film, Planet of the Apes.

DR. DRACULA

(1981) D/S: Paul Aratov D: Al Adamson S: Cecil Brown, Gary Reathman P: Lou Sorkin

A magician/hypnotist/author with a pointy beard (Larry Hankin) is the reincarnation of Svengali. His evil publisher (who is also reincarnated) tells him what to do. This is a reworked version of a feature called Lucifer's Women (1975), with the addition of a vampire/psychiatrist (Geoffrey Land). It's a real effort to make sense of it all, but there are some bizarre and interesting things going on. After an exorcism two identical Svengalis discuss life. With John Carradine as a Satanist, Donald Berry as a worried father, Jane Bruntel Cohen as "a pure soul," and Regina Carrol. Anton Lavey (!) was the technical adviser for the Black Mass scenes (complete with animal noises). Sam Sherman provided additional dialogue, and Gary Graver has a cinematography credit. The film has been on the USA Network, and the tape was released in Europe.

DOCTOR FRANKEN

(1980) D: Jeff Lieberman, Marvin J. Chomsky
S: Lee Thomas P: Robert Berger

Robert Vaughn stars as a modern-day descendant of Dr. Frankenstein in New York City who creates John Doe (Robert Perrault) from body parts. John seeks out various people who have lost limbs and organs, an idea later used in Body Parts (1991). This TV series pilot also features David Selby and Teri Garr.

DR. FRANKENSTEIN'S CASTLE OF FREAKS = HOUSE OF FREAKS

DR. GIGGLES

(MCA, 1992) D/S: Manny Coto
S: Graeme Whifler P: Stuart Besser

Larry Drake (from Darkman) stars as the son of a doctor who was lynched for cutting victims' hearts out. He escapes from a mental hospital and returns to his small-town family home. He makes silly remarks and giggles while killing stupid teens. In one absurd, sick flashback a little boy breaks out of his naked mother's corpse (KNB did the bloody FX). Holly Marie Combs (from the TV series Picket Fences) costars as a young girl with a heart problem. With Keith Diamond as a cop, Glenn Quinn, Cliff DeYoung, John Schuck, Sara Melson, and Michelle Johnson. The music is by Brian May. This Universal release, based on a Darkhorse comic series, was filmed outside Portland, Oregon.

DR. GORE

(United, 1972) D/S/P/FX/A: J. G. "Pat" Patterson
(The Body Shop)

Dr. Brandon (Patterson), a plastic surgeon whose wife has died, creates a tall blonde for himself. The operation scenes, with severed body parts, are very gory. Paterson also did the makeup. He makes the new woman's mind "a complete blank," but after endless, clichéd scenes (without dialogue) showing their "perfect" love, she (Jenny Driggers) comes on to his grunting, mute, hunchbacked servant and takes to the road in a bikini in search of more men. The doc ends up in an asylum, where he has flashbacks of this entire hard-to-endure, slow-moving movie. Bill Hicks and the Rainbows play in a club. Patterson (who died in 1974) had worked for Herschell Gordon Lewis, was a Charlotte, North Carolina, TV horror host for a while, and presented live spook shows (which much of this movie resembles). The late William Girdler is credited with the awful, irritating music and sound. In the 80s a very serious intro by Lewis was added to the tape, replacing the title song.

DR. HACKENSTEIN

(Forum, 1987) D/S: Richard Clark
P: Renza Mizbani, Megan Barnett

During the 20s a pleasant-seeming but mad young doctor (David Muir) keeps his wife's head alive at his remote home. Two bitchy sisters who drink, a voyeuristic kid brother, and a nice female cousin crash a Model T nearby and end up spending the night. The doc cuts off various body parts from the girls for his wife after they try to seduce him. The cast includes Stacey Travis and Phyllis Diller, who has one comic scene as the mother, reporting the missing kids to the police. Hollywood odd couple Logan Ramsey and his late wife, Anne, are grave-robbers. Anne Ramsey died after receiving an Oscar nomination for Throw Momma from the Train. Her tongue cancer was so bad that you can't understand her at all in this misfire horror comedy. Nobody seems to mention that her career took off only after part of her tongue was removed. I think her last-minute fame is in the tradition of Rondo Hatton. The high point of comedy here is a deaf maid who uses signs to communicate.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE

(Sinister, Video Yesterday, 1920) P: Louis Meyer

This rare film, set in contemporary New York City, was made to compete with the John Barrymore version. The whole story is revealed as a nightmare. Star Sheldon Lewis was a villain in silent serials too. It's 40 minutes long, with the original organ score recreated on the tape (from Video Yesterday). Nobody even knows who directed it. An even earlier Universal version (Sinister, 1913) stars King Baggot. The 26-minute tape of that film is missing some footage. Robert Louis Stevenson's famous story had already been filmed many times.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE

(Kino, Republic, Goodtimes, 1920) D: John S. Robertson S: Clara S. Bernanger P: Adolph Zukor

John Barrymore stars in the classic American silent version. The same year two illegal, unauthorized versions were made, one in the US by Louis Meyer (see above) and one in Germany (Der Januskopf) by Murnau, which is lost. This was filmed at Paramount's Long Island studios. Barrymore appears in one scene as a giant spider. With Nita Naldi, Brandon Hurst (as a character borrowed from The Picture of Dorian Gray), and Louis Wolheim. The Republic and Kino versions are tinted, and the Kino tape also includes the rare 10-minute 1912 James Cruze version, directed by Lucius Henderson. Various video versions have different organ scores, some different scenes, and various running times (65 minutes is the most complete). Other silent Barrymore films that are available include Beau Brummel (1924) and Don Juan (1926).

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE

(Sony, 1973) D/P: David Winters
S: Sherman Yellin UK

Kirk Douglas, in his first dramatic TV role, is a singing Jekyll and Hyde! Originally aired on NBC as a Timex special, this was filmed in England and has a solid Brittish cast, including Michael Redgrave, Donald Pleasence, Susan George, Susan Hampshire, and Stanley Holloway. Winters (Weizer) went on to direct The Last Horror Film (1981) with Joe Spinnell, produce Linda Lovelace for President (1976), and create AIP (one of the most prolific and trashiest direct-to-video companies).

DR. JEKYLL'S DUNGEON OF DEATH

(Magnum, 1979) D/P/E/C: James Wood
S/A: James Mathers

This obscurity turns out to be a martial-arts/horror movie. Always ranting ("Love is painful!") and laughing, the bearded great-grandson of the famous doctor injects people (kidnapped by his mute black assistant, Boris) with a "rage serum," then films them beating each other up. The rest of the mimimal plot concerns a lobotomized sister and an outraged professor. Headlines say, "Citizens in terror!" It's supposed to be the 50s, but everything has a 19th-century look, except for the flared pants and afros! Five fights (two black guys, two women, a black woman and a white woman) in a room take up much of the time. Made in San Francisco with actual black-belt fighters.

DR. LAMB

(VSOM, 1992) D/A: Danny Lee
S: Law Kam Fai Hong Kong

Simon Yam stars as a cabdriver who's a necrophiliac serial killer. Danny Lee is the detective who arrests him. When the killer finally confesses, the last half of the movie is flashbacks. The man kills "bad" women, photographs their naked bodies, then dismembers them. Lee was also in The Killer.

DR. MABUSE, THE GAMBLER

(Sinister, 1922) D/S: Fritz Lang S: Thea von Harbou Germany (Dr. Mabuse, der Spieler)

The first (two-part) silent Mabuse film mirrors the decay of post-WWI German society. It uses some expressionistic and cubist sets and deals with cocaine addiction, occultism, and jazz. Rudolf Klein-Rogge is Dr. Mabuse, a criminal, hypnotist, and master of disguises. He kidnaps a countess and ruins her millionaire husband while the prosecutor, Wenk (Bernhard Goetzke), tries to track him down. The total running time is 165 minutes (the original total time was 242 minutes). It's also available as The Fatal Passion of Dr. Mabuse, an 88-minute version. Lang returned to the character in The Testament of Dr. Mabuse (1933) and The Thousand Eyes of Dr. Mabuse (1960).

DR. MABUSE VS. SCOTLAND YARD

(Sinister, 1963) D: Paul Ostramayer
S: Ladislav Foder P: Arthur Breymer
W. Germany (Scotland Yard Jagt Dr. Mabuse)

The new Dr. Mabuse (the original one transfers his soul to new bodies every once in a while) plans to control mankind with a stolen telepathy ray. The ray gun (disguised as a camera), which turns the film negative while it's on, makes one man into an instant violin virtuoso, a friendly postman into a killer zombie, a hangman hang himself, and a duke steal Princess Diana's (!) jewels. Peter Van Eyck plays Major Turn of Scotland Yard. He lives with his cigar-smoking mystery-fan mother when not traveling back and forth between Munich and London. Klaus Kinski (who was appearing in as many as ten films a year back then) is Joe Right (!), a British inspector who seems pretty dull until Dr. Mabuse turns the ray on him and he becomes a double-agent killer. Since the ray's effects last only 24 hours, Kinski gets to snap out of it a few times. The 5th in a series of 6, this Mabuse film was based on the writings of Bryan Edgar Wallace, son of the famous mystery writer.

DR. MINX

(Continental, Wizard, 1975) D/S/P: Hikmet Avedis

Edy Williams (famous for Russ Meyer films and for posing on the beach at Cannes) stars as a rich doctor who becomes involved with a young boy. William Smith, Randy Boone, and Alvy Moore costar. It's a sex comedy with a tragic ending. Marlene Schmidt is in the cast and was also the executive producer for Dimension. The music is by Shorty Rogers.

DOCTOR MORDRID

(Paramount, 1991) D/P: Albert and Charles Band S: C. Courtney Joyner

Jeffrey Combs stars as a 4th-dimensional fighter in a blue suit and cape who poses as a wealthy New York City man who has a huge apartment with a wall of TV monitors and a raven named Edgar. The animated dinosaur fight in a museum (created by David Allen) is cool, but "the demons from the other side" are glimpsed for only a few seconds. The half-assed film rips off Dr. Strange comics, Highlander, and Warlock. Like many other Band features, it seems aimed at young kids but includes nudity (Julie Michaels) and characters saying stuff like "Don't fuck with me, lady, I'm on a mission for the master!" Yvette Nipar is a police-consultant neighbor, and Brian Thompson is a long-haired bad guy.

DR. OTTO AND THE RIDDLE OF THE GLOOM BEAM

(KnowhutIMean, 1985) D/S/P: Don Cherry S/P: Coke Sams

Jim Varney plays Dr. Otto and four other roles, including his own aunt, in his first feature. Varney later had some success in his Ernest movies (also by Cherry), but this independently produced mad-doctor spoof remains pretty obscure.

DR. SEX

(SW, 1964) D/S/P/A: "Theo Mikacecci"/Ted V. Mikels S/P: "Juan Rogero"/Wayne Rogers

Dr. Ludwig von Sex (Victor Sandor), a psychiatrist with a thick Bela Lugosi–type accent, relates five strange cases, for his new book, to his assistants. This bizarre fantasy/sex comedy, in color, has some good-looking naked women, a jazz music score, and flashbacks inside of flashbacks. For some reason, the opening titles are in Spanish. One patient tuns out to be a dog, a psychiatrist turns into a mannequin, and there's a house "haunted" by naked women (including Marsha Jordan) doing household chores. Parts of this tape are scratchy, and a brief part in the middle is missing, but it's still a worthwhile and rare find for fans of "nudie cutie" movies. Actor Wayne Rogers (from the *M*A*S*H* TV series) also wrote Astro Zombies (1968)!

DR. WHO

(CBS/Fox series, 1963–88) UK

This series was a TV phenomenon, outlasting changing times and stars. It debuted on November 23, 1963 (the day after JFK died). It looks even cheaper than the American series Dark Shadows, but has a certain charm (and a great theme tune). At least 40 volumes (92 minutes each), featuring Patrick Troughton (1966–70), Jon Pertwee (1970–74), and Tom Baker (1974–81) as the doctor, are available, and more are being released. The Five Doctors (Image, 1983) was a 90-minute special on the program's 20th anniversary. Dr. Who: The Tom Baker Years (Fox) is another documentary. William Hartnell was the first (1963–66) doctor and Peter Davison was the fifth (1981–84). Peter Cushing played him in two 60s features, and two other doctors followed in the 80s; the show lasted until 1988.

DOCUMENT OF THE DEAD

(Studio Entertainment, 1989) D/S/P: Roy Frumkes

Back when Romero was filming his first Night of the Living Dead sequel, Dawn of the Dead, in a Pittsburgh-area shopping mall, film student Roy Frumkes arrived from New York with a School of Visual Arts crew. He interviewed Romero and filmed him (and Tom Savini) working, cut in scenes from other Romero projects, and got Susan Tyrrell to narrate the finished documentary. For various reasons, Frumkes (who went on to produce and write Street Trash) couldn't get Document of the Dead distributed or shown in public. Ten years later he went to the set of Two Evil Eyes, and the complete results are a must for Romero and Savini fans and those interested in special effects and low-budget film production. In the older footage the very friendly and thoughtful Romero discusses rating problems, says Hawks' The Thing was a major influence, and explains that they could shoot Dawn in the mall only from 11 P.M. until 7 A.M. Savini is shown applying makeup and doing stunt work. A rare highlight is a Fantastic Voyage takeoff advertising Calgon soap that Romero's company made. In the new footage the director wears the same plaid scarf and explains that his yo-yo is "a nicotine substitute." There are also scenes from Martin and Monkey Shines.

DOG EAT DOG

(Sinister 1963) D: Ray Nazarro, Gustav Gavrin, Albert Zugsmith S: Robert Hill, Michael Elkins P: Ernst Beuback, Carl Szokol Italy/W. Germany (Einer Frist den Anderen; La Morte Vestita di Dollari)

In my opinion, any movie with Jayne Mansfield is worth watching, and one with her and Cameron Mitchell is essential. This grim b/w crime film made in Yugoslavia is not disappointing. It opens with Darlene (Mansfield) writhing in bed as paper money falls on her. She bites and kisses the bills, kicks her legs, then gets up and dances. Meanwhile, her laughing goon husband chases Corbet (Mitchell) in a car, gets out, kicks him in the face and pushes him over a cliff. Despite all the cash, Darlene, who calls everybody Crackers, says, "Right now, I'd settle for a fresh lipstick and panties in Teaneck, New Jersey!" The manager of the hotel and his girlfriend (whom he calls his sister) find out about the stolen loot. All of them end up on a remote island where a crazy, dying madam lives in her ex-bordello villa with a scheming, bald servant (Pinkas Braun). Everybody plots against everybody else, and they have violent fights. Jayne does the twist. After a few murders, Corbet, who spends the whole movie with a bloody face, cracks up, yelling, "No gas, no money, no gas, no money!" and starts tearing up all the furniture. At the end, only Darlene is left, drowning in the ocean while grabbing at bills.

DOGS OF HELL

(Media, 1983) D: Worth Keeler III S: Tim McIntyre P/A: Earl Owensby (Rottweiler)

Earl Owensby stars as the sheriff in this 3-D movie about vicious killer dogs trained by the army that escape in a mountain retreat. It was the first of several 3-D films from the EO studios in North Carolina. The 3-D FX are pretty good, and other FX were done by Fred Olen Ray.

DOIN' IT: See THE FIRST TIME

DOIN' TIME ON PLANET EARTH

(Warner, 1987) D: Charles Matthau S: Darren Star P: Golan/Globus

The 23-year-old son of Walter Matthau directed this PG comedy about an alienated teen (Nicholas Strouse) who thinks he's from another planet. Adam West and Candice Azzara believe him and encourage him to help other aliens return to their home planet. With Hugh O'Brian, Maureen Stapleton, and Roddy McDowall as a minister.

DOLEMITE

(Xenon, 1974) D/A: D'Urville Martin S: Jerry Jones P/A: Rudy Ray Moore

Rudy Ray Moore's first film was a phenomenon in inner-city theaters. The flashback-filled movie (from Dimension) had to be cut to avoid an X rating. Dolemite (Moore), a club owner who usually talks in rhyme (and likes to call people things like "rat-soup-eatin' honky muthafucka!") is set up by his evil, drug-dealing rival Willie Green (Martin). Say what? He gets out of jail with the help of whorehouse madam Queen Bee (Lady Reed) and recruits an all-ho kung-fu "army" to seek revenge and clear his name. Right on! Dolemite raps two funny stories, one about the Titanic and one about the monkey and the lion. Moore's influence on many current rappers and comedians is obvious. Can ya dig it? Rudy's fight double is obvious, and mike shadows are visible, but you won't care. Lady Reed toured with Moore and recorded her own Black Angel party records. James Ingram sings.

DOLLMAN

(Paramount, 1991) D: Albert Pyun S: Chris Roghair P: Cathy Gesuald

Tim Thomerson (from the Trancers movies) is blond Brick Bardo, a futuristic Dirty Harry clone who takes a space ship to the Bronx. On Earth he and his ship are tiny, so most of the movie is filled with laughable sub–Bert I. Gordon optical FX. A little kid brings him home, but he has to fight an ugly talking head who blows people up. With Kamala Lopez, Nicholas Guest, and Jackie Earl Haley (Damnation Alley) as a killer punk. I fell asleep. The opening hostage scene is the best part. Pyun used to work for Cannon, and his best was probably The Sword and the Sorcerer (1982).

DOLLMAN VS. DEMONIC TOYS

(Paramount, 1993) D/P: Charles Band
S: Craig Hamann

Here's a new low in sequels, using scenes from Demonic Toys, Dollman, and Bad Channels as time-killing narrated flashbacks. Tiny alien cop Tim Thomerson teams up with Ginger (Melissa Behr), an incredibly shrunken blonde in a polka-dot bikini. The main new part features the demonic baby doll (who looks and sounds like Uncle Fester on speed) saying things like "Split him a new asshole!" The doll ties up the tiny Ginger in a bed and threatens to rape her and also has a flashback! Also with Tracy Scoggins, Full Moon's resident dwarf, Phil Fondacaro, and songs by Quiet Riot.

DOLLS

(Vestron, 1986) D: Stuart Gordon
S: Ed Naha P: Brian Yuzna

An elderly couple (Guy Rolfe and Hillary Mason) judge unwanted visitors to their remote London mansion. When obnoxious teens and a hateful couple arrive, dolls attack them. Most of them obviously deserve to die. Carrie Lorraine is the innocent little girl who dreams of a giant killer teddy bear. Carolyn Purdy-Gordon is the very wicked stepmother. There's some stop-motion animation. It was the second feature by Gordon but wasn't released until after From Beyond. The killer-doll idea was later reused for Band's Puppetmaster series.

DOLLY DEAREST

(Vidmark, 1991) D/S: Maria Lease P: Daniel Cady

Sam Bottoms, Denise Crosby, and their kids move to Mexico to reopen a doll factory. Spirits released by an archaeologist (Rip Torn) possess the dolls. A girl doll comes alive and controls their cute little girl. The child has a demon voice, and the killer dolls have scary faces and can run. The father is really dense, and my fave line, spoken by Crosby is "I'm not losing my daughter to a goddamn 900-year-old goat head!" It's a lot better than Child's Play III. The director was the wife of producer Cady (an adults-only vet). Lee Frost was the production manager. Pierre David was an executive producer.

DOMO ARIGATO

(1972) D/S/P: Arch Oboler Japan

It seems impossible to see, but this G-rated boy-meets-girl movie was shot in 3-D Spacevision (like Oboler's The Bubble). It was filmed in Japan and stars Bonnie Sher, whose parents ran Sherpix, the company that released The Stewardesses. It's said to have some of the finest 3-D effects ever filmed.

DON QUIXOTE

(1955) D/S/A: Orson Welles P: Oscar Dansigers, Alessandro Tasca, Francisco Lara Spain

Welles started this film in 1955 and worked on it for many years, but only 40 minutes were finished. In 1992 Jesse Franco did postproduction and editing and added new dubbing by Spanish actors. The results were shown at film festivals. Welles relates the famous tale to little Patty McCormack (The Bad Seed). Francisco Reiguera stars, with Akim Tamiroff as Sancho Panza. Franco also did second-unit work on Welles' Chimes at Midnight (1966) and Treasure Island (unfinished).

DON'T BOTHER TO KNOCK

(1952) D: Roy Ward Baker
S: Daniel Taradash P: Julian Blaustein

Here's Marilyn Monroe in an early dramatic starring role as a psychotic babysitter in a NYC hotel. It's based on a novel by Charlotte Armstrong. Richard Widmark costars with Anne Bancroft (in her film debut), Jeanne Cagney, Donna Corcoran, Elisha Cook Jr., and Jim Backus. 20th Century–Fox had put Monroe under contract (for the second time) in 1950 and was steadily enlarging her roles. A 1991 Fox-TV remake was called The Sitter.

DON'T GO IN THE WOODS (ALONE)

(Vestron, 1979) D/P: James Bryan S: Garth Eliasson P: Roberto and Suzette Gomez

In Utah a survivalist mountain man in a Viking costume rips people's arms off. He uses a machete, hooks, or an axe. There's lots of gore and Buck Carradine in a very cheap production. It was banned on tape in England. The end theme is "The Teddy Bear's Picnic."

DON'T GO NEAR THE PARK

(Direct, 1979) D/S/P: Lawrence D. Foldes S: Linwood Chase (Nightstalker; Curse of the Living Dead)

A brother and sister are cursed by their hag mother "12,000 years ago" (at Bronson Canyon). Then, "16 years ago," the brother still looks young because he kills kids (by ripping open their chests). He rents a room from, hypnotizes, then marries Linnea Quigley (who has a shower scene). They have a baby girl named Bondie who grows up and runs away when she (Tamara Taylor) turns 16. Bondie has a magic amulet, so she can blow up a van full of rapists, and she ends up at a ghost town with other runaways and a strange woman with an eye patch (her ancient cave aunt!). Dad plans to sacrifice Bondie to break the curse. This absurd movie has many flashbacks, nightmares, gore, zombies, laser-ray eyes, transformation scenes, and pot-smoking. All this, and Aldo Ray appears as a writer studying "the Griffith Park curse." The acting, lighting, FX, and editing are all awful. It was "based on actual occurrences"! Caution: Do not watch this one while intoxicated!

DON'T GO TO SLEEP

(Unicorn, 1982) D: Richard Lang
S/A: Ned Wynn P: Richard Lang

A girl killed in a car crash returns from the grave to take her family with her. With Ruth Gordon, Dennis Weaver, Valerie Harper, and Robert Webber. This ABC-TV movie, which copies Poltergeist, was written by the son of actor Keenan Wynn.

DON'T LOOK BACK

(Warner, 1967) D: D.A. Pennebaker
P: Albert Grossman, Don Court

Bob Dylan is seen in his 24-year-old-prime, during his 1965 British tour, in a fascinating b/w 16mm. documentary. People try to interview him, and behind-the-scenes plans and confrontations are shown. The performance footage is excellent, and there's a great early "rock video" for "Subterranean Homesick Blues." With Joan Baez, Alan Price, Donovan, and Allen Ginsberg. Dylan had the film withdrawn during the mid 70s. Another Dylan documentary, Eat the Document (covering his 1966 European tour), was also directed by Pennebaker. It was shot as a TV special but was seen only in underground movie theaters in the early 70s.

DON'T LOOK IN THE ATTIC

(Mogul, 1981) D/S/P: Charles Austin
P: Michael Peyers Italy

Jean-Pierre Aumont stars in this story of a cursed house in Turin where people are after an inheritance. A killer's face changes. It's letterboxed.

DON'T MAKE WAVES

(1967) D: Alexander Mackendrick S: Ira Wallace, George Kirgo P: John Calley, Martin Ransohoff

Tony Curtis is a con man having an affair with Claudia Cardinale by the California shore. The last film by the director of Sweet Smell of Success does a good job of making fun of LA life-styles. Sharon Tate plays Malibu, a surfer and skydiver, and the cast also includes Robert Webber, Joanna Barnes, Mort Sahl, Jim Backus (as himself), and Edgar Bergen as a female astrologer. The Byrds do the title song, which was available on an MGM soundtrack recording.

DON'T MESS WITH MY SISTER!

(VidAmerica, 1984) D/S/P/E: Meir Zarchi
(American Junkyard)

Steve (Joe Perce) works for his brother-in-law at a car parts junkyard, lives on West 101st Sreet in Manhattan, and takes accounting classes at night school. After a surprise birthday party thrown by his wife, he becomes involved with the paid entertainment, Anika, a beautiful but intellectual blond belly dancer (Jeannine LeMay). Trying to defend her one evening leads to murder. His wife finds out about the affair and runs to her Italian goon brothers, and Steve gets beaten up a lot. Zarchi directed the controversial I Spit on Your Grave, but this is closer to a New York Scorsese movie, especially After Hours. It's very well made, with good unknown local actors, and has surprising plot twists, humor, violence, and an ironic non-ending. It was released in 1988.

DON'T OPEN 'TIL CHRISTMAS

(Vestron, 1983) D/A: Edmund Purdom S: Derek Ford P: Dick Randall, Steve Minasian UK

Somebody in London is killing department store Santas. Turns out it's a masked psycho newspaper reporter who saw his mom killed by a Santa when he was a kid. Star Alan Lake was once the real-life husband of Diana Dors. With Edmund Purdom as a Scotland Yard inspector, Belinda Mayne, and Caroline Munro, who has a small part as a rock singer. This movie has topless scenes (Pat Astley). Santas are dismembered, strangled, burned, and slashed, and one Santa is castrated in a public toilet.

DON'T PANIC: See SATAN'S BLOOD

DON'T TELL DADDY

(Fries, 1972) D: Franz Antel S: Hans Billian, Greta Lowinger W. Germany/Swiss (Blutjüng und Liebeshungrig; Naughty Nymphs; Spanish Fly; Passion Pill Swingers)

In a typical 70s European sex comedy, two experienced sisters try to get their virgin sister (Sybil Danning) on the pill. When aphrodisiac sleeping pills are given to patients at a hospital, everybody (except two gay guys) chases the nurses. The dumbest characters are Italian. Danning (who isn't even billed on the video box) has a nude swim and a nude run through the woods. Meanwhile, an aunt has sex outdoors a lot. Eva Garden costars.

DON'T TORTURE THE DUCKLING

(Nightmare, 1972) D/S: Lucio Fulci S: Roberto Gianviti, Gianfranco Clerici P: Renato Laboni Italy (Non si Sevizia un Paperino; The Long Night of Exorcism)

Young boys are found mutilated and killed in a Sicilian mountain village. Many locals are suspects. With Tomas Milian as a reporter, Barbara Bouchet as a hooker, Florinda Bolkan as a Gypsy witch, and Irene Papas. The movie shows eyeless children and decapitated animals.

DON'T WORRY, WE'LL THINK OF A TITLE

(1966) D: Harmon Jones S: John Hart S/P/A: Morey Amsterdam

This plotless b/w spy comedy (barely) released by UA is filled with Ernie Kovacs–type visual gags, slapstick, backwards and slo-mo scenes, and even Chinese subtitles. Morey Amsterdam is mistaken for a defecting cosmonaut, or something like that. Mr. Big is played by a midget. Rose Marie costars, and Richard Deacon and Carl Reiner show up too (The Dick Van Dyke Show ended the year this was made). Whichever TV stars and comedians happened to be around at the time show up in brief gag scenes. In one scene that borders on subversive, Moe Howard has a totally serious role as a lawyer! Also with January Jones as Magda, Joey Adams, Percy Helton, Nick Adams, Steve Allen, Milton Berle, Forrest Tucker, Maxie Rosenbloom, Cliff Arquette, and Arlene Hunter. Irene Ryan even shows up as Granny in the Clampett truck.

DOOM ASYLUM

(Academy, 1987) D/S: Richard Friedman S: Rick Marx P: Steve Menkin

A couple drinking and driving while listening to a bad version of "The House of the Rising Sun" crash. Badly burned and thought to be dead, the guy kills the autopsy doctor and "ten years later" the rotting, lovesick killer makes dumb Freddy-type wisecracks while killing teens (usually off-screen) in an abandoned asylum. Made in New Jersey, this horror/comedy has a few laughs and interesting characters. Tina and the Tots, a female band in leather skirts, play tape loop/scream/noise music in the old building. Tina is Ruth Collins. Patty Mullen is the best band member, though. She's a vicious fighter, and has an incredible laugh (and a topless scene). Both of them were in Playboy or Penthouse, a fact pointed out on the video box. The contrasting victims include a shrink's daughter, a baseball-card-collecting nerd, and an indecisive guy. The movie must have been less than an hour long before they added repeated slo-mo shots of the black band member's romantic fantasy and scenes from Tod Slaughter movies on a TV. Slaughter was a unique, old-fashioned British horror star of the 30s and 40s. Some of his movies are out on Rhino tapes, but if you want a good sampler this movie includes long clips (the best scenes) from five of his movies!

DO OR DIE

(RCA/Columbia, 1990) D/S: Andy Sidaris P: Arlene Sidaris

Pat Morita is the bald crime lord trying to take over the world (he even has a sex scene with Carolyn Liu). In a plot like The Most Dangerous Game, he hires teams of assassins to chase former centerfolds Dona Spier (in her fifth Sidaris movie) and Roberta Vasquez. The chase continues with helicopters, dune buggies, boats, and bikes from Hawaii through Texas, Las Vegas, and the Louisiana Bayou and ends with ninja fights in the woods. Erik Estrada (also in Guns) is the hero. There are fake comic Cajuns, lots of changing-clothes scenes, hot-tub scenes, sex in the water, and some huge tits. Bruce Penhall costars, with Cynthia Brimhall, Ava Cadall, and Stephanie Schick.

THE DOORS

(LIVE, 1991) D: Oliver Stone S: J. Randall Johnson P: Sasha Harari Stone, responding to understandable fascination with the 60s, made this fantasy bio in between the more serious Born on the Fourth of July and JFK. Unlike most rock bios, it deals with politics, change, and drugs (in a positive way). The music (original and recreated) sounds great, and the visual ideas are good (some of the ILM FX are similar to those in Ken Russell's Altered States). Even the unrealistic concert footage is impressive. Val Kilmer is okay as the late Jim Morrison, but the facts are twisted and the actors picked to play the band (Kyle MacLachlan, Kevin Dillon, and Frank Whaley) just seem ridiculous, as does Meg Ryan as a girlfriend. Some of the best scenes involve Kathleen Quinlan as a "witch" who does a daring nude scene and Wes Studi as an Indian spirit. It's also fun to see actors trying to play people like Warhol (Crispin Glover!), Edie Sedgwick (Jennifer Rubin), Ed Sullivan (Will Jordan), and Nico (Kristina Fulton). With Michael Madsen, Mimi Rogers, Billy Idol, Paul Williams, William Kunstler, Eric Burden, Annie McEnroe, Bill Graham (also a producer), Charlie Spradling, Debi Mazur, and Delia Sheppard. The Pioneer laser version includes interviews and behind-the-scenes footage. Real Doors videos are around, including The Doors: Soft Parade, Dance on Fire, and Live at the Hollywood Bowl (all from MCA). Ron Howard was an executive producer.

THE DOORS TO SILENCE

(VSOM, 1991) D/S: "H. Simon Kittay"/ Lucio Fulci P: "Joe D'Amato"/Aristede Massaccesi Italy (Le Porte del Silenzio)

John Savage is a man in Louisiana who discovers that he's actually dead (Carnival of Souls style) from a car crash. It was shot on location in the swamp.

DOPEMANIA

(Rhino, 1987)

Newsreel footage, film clips, school films, and a silent-serial chapter (The Weed of Death) are combined in a fascinating 60-minute look at how America exploited, lied to, or tried to educate people about drugs. It was compiled by Johnny Legend. Rhino's Guide to Safe Sex is a companion release.

DOPPELGANGER

(Fox, 1992) D/S: Avi Nesher S: Donald Borchers

Pat Morita and Dona Spier in Do or Die

Drew Barrymore stars as Holly Goodis, who may have killed her mother in New York City. She goes to LA and becomes the roommate of a struggling writer (George Newborn), has sex with him, then says she didn't. Barrymore is crucified in a nightmare sequence and is seen naked in a blood shower. Newborn and Leslie Hope (as his girlfriend) are very good, and Drew is better than expected. The mysterious double plot and the surprise (!) ending (complete with bloody KNB FX monsters) almost make this worth seeing just to find out how stupid movies can be. Post-production tampering can't explain it all away, either. Dennis Christopher is pretty bad here, and the mostly wasted guest stars are Dan Shor, Sally Kellerman, George Maharis, Nicole Hansen, and Luana Anders. The ITC production premiered (cut) on the Sci-Fi Channel. The director also made Time Bomb.

THE DORM THAT DRIPPED BLOOD

(Media, 1981) D/S/P: Jeff Obrow D/S: Stephen Carpenter S: Stacy Giachino (Pranks; Death Dorm)

This forgettable Friday the 13th copy was made by UCLA students for $90,000. It's a teen slasher movie about the last students in a condemned 7-story dorm. Daphne Zuniga appears in a small role, having her head crushed under a car. A Chris Young soundtrack was issued on Citadel. Obrow and Carpenter got better and followed this with The Power and The Kindred.

DOUBLE AGENT 73

(Strand, 1974) D/S/P: Doris Wishman

Chesty Morgan stars in a follow-up to Deadly Weapons. This one is even worse but is more unique and fascinating in a depressing, unpleasant kind of way. A camera implanted in her (73-inch!) chest will explode if she doesn't do a spy job. All through the movie she undresses, lifts her breasts, and a loud, exaggerated shutter click is heard as she photographs somebody. She looks miserable and has to wear ugly platform shoes. There are no sex scenes, despite the presence of porno star Harry Reems. Chesty does oil herself, though. Joe Bob introduces some copies of the tape. Chesty was also in Fellini's Casanova (1976), in a scene with Donald Sutherland.

DOUBLE BLAST

(Vidmark, 1993) D: Tim Springs S: Paul Joseph Gulino P: David Hunter Philippines

Two kid kickboxers go after two crooks who have kidnapped a professor (Linda Blair) and are trying to grab a treasure. With Dale "Apollo" Cook as the kids' father, Ron Hall, Robert Z'Dar, and Joe Estevez. This PG-rated comedy copies the popular Three Ninjas movies.

DOUBLE-CROSSED

(HBO, 1991) D/S: Roger Young P: Albert J. Saltzer

Dennis Hopper stars as Barry Seal, a Louisiana drug-smuggling pilot who turns informer against Medellín drug cartel members for the DEA. With Robert Carradine as the agent, Edward Edwards as Oliver North, Richard Jenkins, and Adrienne Barbeau as Seal's wife. This HBO movie is based on a true story and does a good job of exposing the Reagan/Bush support for the Contras in Nicaragua.

DOUBLE DOOR

(1934) D: Charles Vidor S: Gladys Lehman, Jack Cunningham

This rare old-dark-house mystery, based on a Broadway play, is set in a 5th Avenue mansion complete with a hidden torture chamber. Mary Morris is a wealthy old woman who threatens to put her sister (Ann Revere) back into the secret chamber, and she also ruins the lives of relatives she doesn't like. The two female leads were also in the play. With Kent Taylor and Evelyn Venable. From Paramount.

DOUBLE DRAGON

(MCA, 1994) D: Jim Yukich S: Michael Davis, Peter Gould P: Alan Schecter

Orphan brother heros (Hawaiian-born part-Asian Mark Dacascos and Scott Wolf) have half of an ancient Chinese talisman medallion. This PG-13 action/fantasy/comedy is based on a series of video games set in post-nuke, partially underwater 21st-century Hollywood. With Robert Patrick as the bearded villain, Julia Nickson as their mentor and guardian, and Alyssa Milano (with short hair) as a gang leader. Also with Kristina Malandro Wagner, Al Leong, and bits with Vanna White, George Hamilton, and Gilbert Gottfried. The Jay Ferguson soundtrack (Milan) features various rock artists. Yukich was known for his Phil Collins and Whitney Houston videos.

DOUBLE EXPOSURE

(Vestron, 1982) D/S/P: Byron Hellman (The Photographer)

Models are being killed, and a photographer (Michael Callan), who dreams of the killings, is the prime suspect. With James Stacy (who lost an arm and leg in a 1973 motorcycle crash) as his brother, a former stuntman. The rest of the cast is impressive, considering the low budget: Pamela Hensley as a cop, Joanna Pettet, Cleavon Little, Seymour Cassel, Robert Tessier, Sally Kirkland, Terry Moore, Misty Rowe, Victoria Jackson (later on Saturday Night Live), Kathy Shower, and Jeana Tomasino from Playboy. The Crown International release also features some mud-wrestling.

DOUBLE EXPOSURE

(Prism, 1993) D/S: Claudia Hoover S: Christine Colfer, Bridget Hoffman P: Joanne Watkins

Ian Buchanan is a businessman who hires a PI (Ron Perlman) to kill the lover of his wife (Jennifer Gatti). With Dedee Pfeiffer.

DOUBLE FACE

(Unicorn, 1969) D/S: "Robert Hampto"/ Riccardo Freda S: Paul Hengge Italy/W. Germany (La Doppa Faccia; Lis and Helen)

A wealthy industrialist (Klaus Kinski, who also narrates) learns that his wife (Margaret Lee) is having a secret lesbian affair. She dies when a bomb goes off in her Jaguar, and he becomes involved with a mysterious blonde (Christiane Kruger) who takes him to swinging LSD parties and shows him a porno movie that seems to costar his late wife. Lucio Fulci worked on the screenplay. The cast also includes Sidney Chaplin. Most of the nudity was removed for TV screenings in the US and has not been restored to the video. In the mid-70s new sex footage was added in Europe (featuring Jesse Franco star Alice Arno), and the film was rereleased as Chaleur et Jouissance. Based on an Edgar Wallace novel filmed previously in England as The Diamond Man (1924) and The Malpas Mystery (1960), it was the last Wallace adaptation for Kinski, who had played memorable supporting roles in many made in the early 60s.

DOUBLE IMPACT

(RCA, 1991) D/S: Sheldon Lettich S/P/A: Jean-Claude Van Damme P: Ashok Amritraj

Van Damme stars as twins whose parents were shot. The mean smuggler brother with a cigar was raised in Hong Kong, and the strong-but-naive one was raised in Hollywood by a bald Geoffrey Lewis. They hate each other but team up in Hong Kong for revenge. They fight evil, drug-dealing gangsters and fight each other over a blonde (Alonna Shaw). With Bolo Yeung as a powerful bodyguard with a scar, Corey Everson, Julie Strain, and Simon Rhee. This movie has too many explosions, guns, and slow-motion scenes and not enough martial arts. It ends with a rap song and was made for Michael Douglas's production company.

DOUBLE JEOPARDY

(Fox, 1993) D: Lawrence Schiller S: Craig Tepper

Bruce Boxleitner is a married Salt Lake City private-school headmaster. An ex-lover (Rachel Ward) hires his attorney wife (Sela Ward), seduces him, and sets him up for a murder. Sally Kirkland plays a police detective. It was made for Showtime.

THE DOUBLE McGUFFIN

(1977) D/S/P: Joe Camp

Michael Gerard and Vincent Spano are teens who discover an assassination plot, in this PG movie. Orson Welles explains the Hitchock-derived title, and Elke Sommer, Ernest Borgnine, George Kennedy, and Ed "Too Tall" Jones appear.

DOUBLE OBSESSION

(Columbia, 1992) D/S: Eduardo Montes

Margaux Hemingway is a psycho killer who kidnaps Beth Fisher. She's seen from 1980, as a college student, to the present day. With Frederic Forrest, Maryam D'Abo as her college roommate, and Scott Valentine.

DOUBLE-O KID

(Prism, 1992) D/S: Duncan McLachlan S: Andrea Buck P: Steven Paul

Corey Feldman (who also narrates) becomes a teen spy for the CIA on a courier mission in LA in this forgettable PG-13 comic adventure. The villains, led by Brigitte Nielsen, who uses various disguises, are after a computer key-card. Feldman falls for Nicole Eggert. With Wallace Shawn, John Rhys-Davies, Anne Francis, Basil Hoffman, and Karen Black as the mother. The director also made Scavengers (1988).

DOUBLE REVENGE

(Republic, 1988) D: Armand Mastroianni S: Brian Tobin, John Sharkey P: T. J. Castronolo, John S. Curran

Survivors of a bungled bank robbery seek revenge. Joe Dallesandro (20 years after his underground/Warhol days) stars, with Theresa Saldana, Leigh McCloskey, Richard Rush, and Nancy Everhard.

DOUBLE TARGET

(VSOM, 1987) D/E: "Vincent Dawn"/Bruno Mattei S: Claudio Fragasso P: Franco Guadenza Italy

Former Ator-series star Miles O'Keeffe is in this Vietnam adventure movie, with busy Donald Pleasence, Bo Svenson, Alan Collins, and Kristine Erlandsson.

DOUBLE THREAT

(AIP, 1992) D/S: David S. Prior P: Kimberly Casey

Sally Kirkland stars as an aging movie star who becomes violent when her new leading man (Andrew Stevens) has an affair with her body double (Sherrie Rose). This "erotic thriller," presented by David Winters, was filmed in Mobile, Alabama. It features movie in-jokes and Kirkland fondling her large silicone breasts and masturbating while watching Stevens pump up. Richard Lynch costars as a cop. With Anthony Franciosa, Chick Vennera, and Ted Prior. Available in R and unrated versions.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

(RCA, 1992) D: Joe Paragon S: Jeffrey Kerns, Kurt Wimmer P: Brad Krevoy, Steve Stabler

This comedy stars the Barbarian Brothers (Peter and David Paul) as identical twins Peter and David. One is a cop, the other is a long-lost playboy and thief. Both have shaggy hair. They're teamed up by the police chief (James Doohan) to expose an LA smuggling ring led by Roddy McDowall. With Bill Mumy (!) as a hitman, Collin Berensen as an FBI agent, Steve Kanaly, Troy Donahue, and David Carradine.

DOUBLE VISION

(Republic, 1992) D: Robert Knights S: Tony Grisoni P: Steve Walsh UK/Canada

Kim Cattrall stars as an American who goes to London, where she has nightmares and flashbacks concerning her sister drowning as a little girl. Meanwhile, her missing identical twin (also Cattrall) is the mistress of Christopher Lee and is also having an affair with an Indian cabdriver. When the wild sister really is killed, the quiet, nice one impersonates her to capture the killer. This slow-moving mystery is based on a Mary Higgins Clark novel, The Anastasia Syndrome.

DOWN THE DRAIN

(RCA, 1989) D: Robert C. Hughes S: Moche Hadar P: Ronnie Hadar

This heist comedy stars Andrew Stevens as a lawyer who plans to rob a bank. With Teri Copley (who has a memorable nude scene, possibly using a double), Don Stroud as a villain, Stevens' real-life mom Stella, John Matuszak, Joseph Campanella, Ken Forree, Buck Flowers, Pedro Gonzalez-Gonzalez, Benny "the Jet" Urquidez, and the former Beaver, Jerry Mathers.

DOWN TO EARTH

(Columbia, 1947) D: Alexander Hall S/P: Don Hartman S: Edwin Blum

Rita Hayworth stars as Terpsichore, the muse of song and dance, who comes down to Earth because a producer (Larry Parks) is planning a jazz musical about her and the other eight muses. This color musical from Columbia is a semi-sequel to their Here Comes Mr. Jordan (1941) and features James Gleason and Edward Everett Horton repeating their roles from the earlier fantasy hit. Also with Roland Culver as Mr. Jordan, George Macready, and Adele Jergens. It was later remade as Xanadu (1980).

DRACULA

(MCA, 1931) D: George Melford S: Garrett Ford, Dudley Murphy P: Carl Laemmle Jr.

In the days of early talkies some films were shot several times with different actors using the same script for foreign markets (with silent films, only the intertitles had needed to be changed). This Dracula was shot in Spanish during 22 nights at Universal. Melford used the same sets as the Lugosi version but redressed and relit them. He incorporated some unused footage shot by Tod Browning (even a long shot of Lugosi), but everything else is his. This Dracula is familiar but also very different, 29 minutes longer (104 minutes), and occasionally better. When Dracula (Carlos Villarias) strangles Renfield ("Si, Maestro! No, Maestro! Por favór!") he throws him off the high stairs. When Dr. Van Helsing pounds in a very long stake, the vampire groans a lot. Eva (Lucy) was played by a teenage Lupita Tovar, who had also been in Medford's Spanish-language version of The Cat Creeps. (She later married agent Paul Kohner and became the mother of Susan Kohner.) The actors are from Spain, Mexico, and other countries, so the accents vary quite a bit. The film was still playing in Spanish-language theaters in the 50s. A complete print was discovered in Cuba and was released on tape (with an intro by Tovar) in 1992. "Yo no bebo . . . vino."

Renfield in the Spanish version of Dracula

DRACULA BLOWS HIS COOL

(Private Screenings, 1979) D/S: Carlo Ombra S: Grunbach and Rosenthal W. Germany (Graf Dracula Beisst Jetzt in Oberbayern)

A men's-magazine photographer and his models go to a Bavarian castle. Gianni Garko stars as both the hero and the vampire count. It's a comedy, inspired by Love at First Bite, but with lots of nudity.

DRACULA CINEMATIC SCRAPBOOK

(Rhino, 1991) D/S: Ted Newsom

This is one of a series of trailer compilations with (rather blandly read) historical narration plus select scenes. Only a collector who has everything could complain about the contents. There's every Universal and Hammer vampire trailer, plus scenes from the original Nosferatu and more. My faves are the Mark of the Vampire trailer in which Lugosi speaks to the audience, a scene from Uncle Was a Vampire with Christopher Lee, and trailers from Blacula, The Seven Brothers Meet Dracula, the Billy the Kid/Jesse James horror double bill, and One More Time, with Christopher Lee. There are just too many vampire movies for any compilation to attempt to be complete (the tape goes only to the early 70s, a wise move), but I did miss Mexican vampires and The Vampire (1957). Dracula: Fact or Fiction (Worldvision, 1993) is a 40-minute TV program with film clips and interviews, and Dracula in the Movies (Goodtimes, 1992) is mostly trailers.

DRACULA EXOTICA

(TVX, 1980) D: Warren Evans P: Ken Schwartz

Jamie Gillis (from Dracula Sucks) returns as the count in his second porno vampire movie. For some reason this one is set in the future (1990) and Dracula is in New York City, where Samantha Fox is an FBI agent who thinks he's a Communist. She becomes a vampire on a train, and so does Vanessa Del Rio, so there's blood with the sex again. With Erik Edwards and Bobby Astyr.

DRACULA RISING

(New Horizons, 1992) D: Fred Gallo S: Rodman Flender, Daniella Purcell P: Roger Corman

Christopher Atkins is extremely bland as Vlad the vampire in this slow, romantic horror movie (with funny love songs). Long flashbacks reveal that he was a monk during the plague. He was tempted by a woman (Stacy Travis) who was burned as a witch. She's reincarnated as an LA art restorer (Travis again, of course). Doug Wert is the bad former monk/vampire who used to whip him. It's nice to see Travis (Hardware) in something else, but a body double was used for her underwater sex scene.

DRACULA SUCKS

(Unicorn, 1978) D/S: Philip Marshak
S/P: Daryl Marshak (Lust at First Bite)

This porno vampire movie used to be pretty easy to find (Media put out a cut, soft-core version), so a lot of people must have seen it. It's set in an asylum and is really pretty horrifying. Jamie Gillis is pretty good as a red-eyed Dracula, and Reggie Nalder (usually in "real" movies) plays a dried-up-looking Dr. Van Helsing. The mixture of mostly bad acting, comedy, sex, blood, and semen doesn't really work. Even in the "soft" version you see the late John Holmes' penis being bitten, and somebody plays Hitler. The all-star porno cast includes Annette Haven as Mina, Serena as Lucy, Seka, Kay Parker, Pat Manning, Nancy Hoffman, John Leslie, Paul Thomas, and Bill Margold. A theater was busted for showing the R-rated version in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada. Gillis returned as a vampire in Dracula Exotica (1980) and Princess of the Night (1990).

DRACULA'S VIRGIN LOVERS = DRACULA'S GREAT LOVE

DRACULA'S WIDOW

(HBO, 1988) D/S: Christopher Coppola
S: Kathryn Ann Thomas P: Stephen Traxler

A few years before Francis Ford Coppola made his Dracula, two of his nephews made vampire movies (Vampire's Kiss was the other one). A young guy (Lenny Van Dohlen) runs a wax museum on Hollywood Boulevard and spends his spare time watching an 8mm. print of the silent Nosferatu. Sylvia Kristel (the original star of the Emmanuelle films) plays the vampire lady (with a black wig) who is delivered (just like in Abbott and Costello Meet Frankenstein), wakes, and bites him to use as a servant: "Who's your husband?" "Dracula, you fool!" Usually she just kills people, becoming an ugly-faced monster ripping bodies apart, and sometimes she becomes a bat. They go to a Satanic Mass (which looks too much like some gay S&M ritual), and she slaughters everybody. A cop (Josef Sommer, who also narrates), his dumb assistant (Marc Coppola), and an old man named Helsing hunt for the killer. The film has very somber music, some gore, a strange mechanical bat, and too many trendy blue and red lights. With George Stover. It was made for Dino De Laurentiis just before his company went bust.

DRACULA: THE BLOODLINE CONTINUES

(All Seasons, 1972) D: Leon Klimovsky
S: Lazarus Kaplan P: José Pérez Giner Spain
(La Saga de los Dracula; Saga of Dracula)

A pregnant woman and her new blond-hunk husband go to Transylvania to visit her grandfather, Vlad Tepes. The whole family turn out to be vampires who drink blood in wine glasses, and the baby is to be the family heir. The woman has dreams of an outrageous bat face, but they put a little too much Vaseline on the camera lens. The vampire women always take their tops off before they bite somebody. The baby vampire drinks blood from his mom (a scene duplicated in Grave of the Vampire, an American movie from the same year). The most memorable character is a mutant hunchback boy with one huge eye (!) locked in the attic. Klimovsky is known for making movies starring Paul Naschy. The year 1972 was a big one for vampire movies (over a dozen).

DRACULA THE DIRTY OLD MAN

(SW, 1969) D/S/P: William Edwards

Alucard (Vince Kelly) is a bearded vampire living in a cave (Bronson Canyon). He goes through walls and can become a bat (on a wire), but he needs help, so he hypnotizes a reporter (Bill Whitton), who becomes Irving Jeckleman, a werewolf. The same awful mask and three-clawed paws were used in The Mummy and the Curse of the Jackal! He kidnaps women, and the vampire ties them up in his cave and magically zaps their clothes off. It's a crude movie with some surprising gore and a necrophilia scene, made worse by dubbed-in "funny" Yiddish accents. The reporter's red-haired girlfriend (Ann Hollis) runs all over the cave naked, but pants are left on during sex scenes. It was presented by Whit Boyd.

DRACULA VS. FRANKENSTEIN: See ASSIGNMENT TERROR

DRAGNET

(MCA, 1987) D/S: Tom Mankiewicz S/A: Dan Aykroyd
S: Alan Zweibel P: David Permut, Robert K. Weiss

Aykroyd doing an impersonation of Jack Webb as Sergeant Joe Friday led to this comedy about a pagan cult led by an evangelist (Christopher Plummer). He wears a goat head, virgins are sacrificed, and there's a giant snake. I'd like it better if it weren't also a spoof of the real Dragnet. Aykroyd is supposed to be Friday's cop nephew. With Tom Hanks, Alexandra Paul, Jack O'Halloran, Elizabeth Ashley, Dabney Coleman, and Harry Morgan as Captain Bill Gannon. From Universal. MCA released the soundtrack.

DRAGON AGAINST VAMPIRE

(Saturn, 1985) D: Lionel Leung Hong Kong

Some bored Brits partially ruined this one with smart-ass dubbing, calling characters Elton, Martin, or Fanny. It's a comic horror movie that starts out with three Chinese stooges as starving grave-robbers. They eat a dog. When a character is scared by a vampire he wets his pants (as a person would do in real life but seldom in Western movies). After the two dumber ones are dead the hero battles a vampire with the help of an old teacher in an underground cave who practices Shaolin sorcery. A restaurant owner is decapitated and his daughter is possessed, talking with a man's voice and drinking chicken blood. A Buddhist symbol (the one that the swastika was copied from) is protection against vampires. The vampire sometimes behaves and looks like the European model but has his secrets tattooed on his back. It's too bad the print is so dark. You can hardly see the dream sequences. The soundtrack is all "borrowed" Tangerine Dream music.

DRAGON AND THE COBRA: See FIST OF FEAR, TOUCH OF DEATH

DRAGONARD

(Warner, 1987) D: Gerald Kikoine S: Rick Marx S/P: Harry Alan Towers S. Africa

This has the same setting as Russ Meyer's Blacksnake. Patric Warburton stars as a slave in the 18th-century Caribbean. Eartha Kitt (who was also in Uncle Tom's Cabin) runs a brothel. Oliver Reed is the Scottish Captain Shanks. Dragonard is a whipping post. Kikoine made dozens of French porno movies and later did the incredible Edge of Sanity. With Claudia Udy and Annabel Schofield. Master of Dragonard Hill was the sequel.

DRAGON FIGHT

(WB, 1990) D/A: Warren Stevens
S: Budd Lewis P: Kenneth Dalton

This stinker, filmed mostly in the Arizona desert, debuted on HBO. Paul Coufus (who looks like a mutant Harrison Ford) is a tortured corporate-backed fighter who doesn't want to fight. His opponent, Robert Z'Dar (in silly-looking medieval armor) will kill anybody and has "a magic lady" (Fawna MacLaren, Playboy's 35th-anniversary Playmate) around to heal him. Meanwhile, Michael Pare, James Hong, and Joe Cortese somehow watch all that happens (not much) on TV monitors in an office. George "Buck" Flower provides narration, even after his character dies! Also with Alexa Hamilton (from Death Spa), Charles Napier as a ranger, and Aki Leong. The only good part is the guitar soundtrack.

DRAGON FIRE

(New Horizons, 1993) D: Rick Jacobson
S: Bentley Gray, Kevin Ingram P: Mike Elliot

This film has lots of good fights and good fighters. Dominic Labanca is the (Blade Runner-look) 21st-century LA martial-arts hero whose brother's death must be avenged. Battles to the death take place in "the Pit," for money, and frequent trips to a bar showcase some good nude dancers. The best character is Eddie (Harold Hazledine), a laughing, long-haired hippie/con-man/fighter. Eddie's blonde stripper sister (Pamela Rund) proves that they're still using silicone in the future. Michael Blanks (brother of Billy) has an echo voice and is supposed to be the scariest fighter. Space footage is from Corman's Battle from Beyond the Stars. The video box copies the ad art for the Bruce Lee biopic Dragon very closely.

DRAGONFLY: See ONE SUMMER LOVE

DRAGONFLY SQUADRON

(Sony, 1953) D: Lesley Selander S/P: John Champion

Bet you didn't know Monogram ever made a 3-D movie. The company (called Allied Artists by then) didn't bother to release it in 3-D, even though they had made it that way. John Hodiak stars in this Korean War story, with Barbara Britton, Bruce Bennett, Gerald Mohr, Harry Lauter, Benson Fong, Fess Parker, Chuck Connors, and Pamela Duncan.

DRAGON INN

(Long Shore, 1992) D: Raymond Lee S/P: Tsui Hark S: Carbon Cheung, Xiao Wu Hong Kong

This historical action fantasy, set during the Ming dynasty, features a swordfighting couple (Tony Leung Fai, from The Lover, and Brigitte Lin/Ching Hsia) who have to protect two royal children from the eunuch villains who have seized power. Donnie Yen is an evil acrobatic eunuch, and Maggie Cheung runs the inn in the desert where much of the action takes place. It's filled with secret passages, and pastries made with human flesh are served there. This is a remake of Dragon Gate Inn (1966).

DRAGONS FOREVER

(1986) D/A: Samo Hung Hong Kong

In this all-star film, a gangster uses a chemical factory to process illegal drugs. A widow (Pauline Yeung) whose lake is being polluted hires a lawyer (Jackie Chan) to sue. He falls for her cousin (Deanie Yip), and eventually Chan, Hung and their crazy friend (Yuen Baio) are battling the gangsters. The male stars of this action comedy were all members of the Peking Opera school as children.

DRAGON: THE BRUCE LEE STORY

(MCA, 1993) D/S: Rob Cohen S: Edward Khmara, John Raffo P: Raffaella De Laurentiis

This biopic is very good, but it sanitizes Bruce Lee's life and totally leaves out his childhood acting career. Jason Scott ("no relation") Lee (from Hawaii) stars as the legendary Lee. The film was inspired by his widow Linda Lee's book The Bruce Lee Story. Lauren Holly plays blond Linda. The couple faced racial prejudice, and Lee is seen having nightmares about a huge demon. One good early-60s fight scene is backed by "Green Onions." Lee is shown on the TV series The Green Hornet (Van Williams plays the director). The cast also includes Robert Wagner as a producer, Nancy Kwan, Michael Learned, Paul Mantee and a Breakfast at Tiffany's clip with Mickey Rooney as a stereotyped "oriental." John Badham was the executive producer of this PG-13 Universal film, shot partially in Hong Kong and Macao. The soundtrack, released by MCA, is by Randy Edelman. Brandon Lee (portrayed as a little kid here) died just before this was released. The laserdisc includes audio commentary by the director and Lee's widow.

DRAGON WORLD

(Paramount, 1994) D: Ted Nicolaou S: Suzanne Glazener Naha P: Charles Band

Sam Mackenzie stars as an American orphan who grows up in a castle in Scotland. He befriends a (Dave Allen–animated) friendly dragon as a kid and later has to defend him from money-hungry bad guys as a teen. Brittany Powell costars with John Calvin and Andrew Kier. The PG-rated fantasy was shot in Romania.

DRAGSTRIP GIRL

(1994) D: Mary Lambert S: Jerome Gary P: Lou Arkoff, Debra Hill

Natasha Gregson Wagner (the daughter of Natalie Wood) falls for Mark Dacascos, who steals cars. This Showtime remake also features Traci Lords and Anthony Edwards. The original 1957 AIP movie is available from RCA/Columbia, but this is more a copy of West Side Story.

DREAM A LITTLE DREAM

(Live, 1989) D: Marc Rocco S: Daniel Jay Franklin P: D. E. Eisenberg

Corey Feldman and Jason Robards Jr. somehow switch bodies. Meredith Salinger is the object of the teen's affection. With Corey Haim, Piper Laurie, Harry Dean Stanton, Alex Rocco, Victoria Jackson, and Susan Blakely. The music for this PG-13 comedy is by John Williams. Dream a Little Dream 2 (Columbia, 1995) with the two Coreys followed.

DREAMANIAC

(Wizard, 1986) D/P: David DeCoteau S: Helen Robinson

Frat teens are killed by a succubus who makes Freddy Krueger–inspired wisecracks. With Kim McKamy and Thomas Burns. This was the first non-porno feature by a director who went on to make many direct-to-video releases.

DREAMCHILD

(Warner, 1985) D: Gavin Millar S: Dennis Potter P: Rick McCallum, Kenith Trodd

Coral Browne (Mrs. Vincent Price, in her last role) stars as Alice Liddell Hargreaves, the inspiration and model for Alice in Wonderland. She's 80 years old and is in NYC in 1932 for the Lewis Carroll centennial celebration. Troubling flashbacks and memories of her odd childhood are brought on by a pushy reporter (Peter Gallagher). It's a great idea and is very well done. Ian Holm is a tormented, stuttering Lewis Carroll. Jim Henson created the dream sequences, which include Alice in Wonderland characters. With Amelia Shankley as little Alice, Jane Asher as her mother, and Imogene Boorman.

Jason Scott Lee as Bruce Lee, in Dragon.

DREAM DEMON

(Warner, 1988) D/S: Harvey Cokliss S: Christopher Wicking P: Jonathan Olsberg, Nik Powell, Peter Watson-Wood, Timothy Woolford UK

Jemma Redgrave is an English socialite with narcoleptic dreams about people dying. Then they really do. Kathleen Wilhoite is her American punk friend. There are lots of "is it real?" fantasy FX and music by Bill Nelson (from BeBop Deluxe) in this movie, which seems to have been inspired by Nightmare on Elm Street. Tim Spall and Jimmy Nail costar. The US release wasn't until 1993.

DREAMER OF OZ: THE L. FRANK BAUM STORY

(1990) D: Jack Bender S: Richard Matheson P: Erv Zavada

John Ritter is the struggling writer L. Frank Baum. The true story of his attempt to support his family is interspersed with fantasy scenes from his Oz books. With Annette O'Toole, Rue McClanahan, Courtney Barilla as Dorothy, and Charles Haid as the Cowardly Lion. This was a TV movie.

DREAM LOVER

(MGM, 1986) D/P: Alan J. Pakula S/P: Jon Boorstein

Kristy McNichol is treated by a New York dream researcher (Ben Masters) in an attempt to stop her recurring nightmare. With Gayle Hunnicutt, Paul Shenar, Matthew Penn, and Joseph Culp. It was shot in London by Sven Nykvist. Dream Lover was also the name of a 1986 Chow Yun Fat movie made in Hong Kong.

THE DREAM MACHINE

(Live, 1989) D: Lyman Dayton S: Eric Hendershot P: Fenton Terry, Michael Wergler

Corey Haim has a dead body in the trunk of his Porsche turbo car, and the killer stalks him on a college campus. With Evan Richards and Jeremy Slate. It's PG.

DREAM NO EVIL

(Star Classics, 1971) D/S/P: John Hayes P: Daniel Cady (Now I Lay Me Down to Die)

Brooke Mills (The Big Doll House), who dives off 30-foot towers as part of a traveling revival show, wants to find her father (Edmond O'Brien). He's dead, but he rises from an embalming table and resumes being a loud, hard-drinking, squeeze-box-playing Irishman. She starts killing people (with a knife, an axe, a scythe). The story is held together by constant overkill narration. Some parts are like a play, but it's pretty creepy. Marc Lawrence is a pimp/undertaker, Michael Pataki is a theatrical faith-healer, and Arthur Franz is a shrink who explains things in a Psycho-inspired ending. It's from Boxoffice International. Hayes made Garden of the Dead and Grave of the Vampire next.

DREAMSCAPE

(HBO, 1984) D/S: Joseph Ruben S: Chuck Russell, David Loughery P: Bruce Cohn Curtis

Telepathic Dennis Quaid is part of an experiment to project psychics into people's dreams. It's really part of a plot to assassinate the president (Eddie Albert). This movie has some great stop-motion FX in nightmare segments. The president has nuclear-war nightmares, there's a dragon, and zombies are on a subway. With Kate Capshaw, Max von Sydow, Christopher Plummer, and George Wendt. The Maurice Jarre soundtrack is on Sonic Atmospheres. For the record, this was the first film rated PG-13.

DREAMSLAYER: See BLOOD SONG

DRESSED FOR DEATH = STRAIGHT ON TILL MORNING

THE DRIFTER

(MGM, 1988) D/S/A: Larry Brand P: Ken Stein

Fashion designer Kim Delaney is married to Timothy Bottoms but has a one-night stand at a motel with a mysterious hitchhiker (Miles O'Keeffe). People in her apartment building are killed, several psychos are suspects, and she takes her clothes off. It was inspired by Fatal Attraction. Roger Corman was the executive producer of this Concorde release.

DRIVE, HE SAID

(1970) D/S/P: Jack Nicholson S: Jeremy Larner P: Steve Blauner

Jack Nicholson directs for the first time. The script was based on Larner's novel about college roommates in the early 60s but was updated to the very different late 60s. William Tepper is an Ohio college basketball player, and Michael Margotta is a student activist and draft dodger. With Bruce Dern (also in Psych-Out and The Trip, which Nicholson wrote) as a basketball coach, Karen Black (Easy Rider) as his wife, Robert Towne, Henry Jaglom, June Fairchild, and Mike Warren (later a Hill Street Blues regular). Some sex scenes and surprising male locker-room nudity resulted in an X rating, later changed to an R. It's from BBS (the same year as Five Easy Pieces), also with Black.

DRIVE-IN

(RCA, 1976) D: Rod Amateau S: Bob Peete P: Tamara Asseyev, Alex Rose

A Texas drive-in is the setting as star Lisa Lemole leaves her gangster boyfriend for a nice guy (Glenn Morshower) and other subplots unfold. The fun part of this comedy is the lengthy scenes from (the fictional) movie hit Disaster '76, featuring an earthquake, a tidal wave, and ship and planes disasters. Also with Trey Wilson and Ashley Cox from Playboy. Allthough little remembered today, this low budget PG Columbia feature made over four million dollars in North American rentals. Drive-In Massacre was released the same year. The director's next was Seniors.

DRIVE-IN FOLLIES

(Audubon, 1989)

Radley Metzger himself compiled and narrates this compilation of more than 30 trailers for most of his own classy European sex movies, various Audubon adults-only releases from Europe with stars like Elke Sommer, Essy Persson, and Agnes Laurent, and several from Japan. Some trailers are letterboxed, and one is in French. You won't find a lot of these elsewhere. My faves are Vibration, I Spit on Your Grave, Lickerish Quartet, and The Artful Penetration of Barbara.

DRIVE-IN MADNESS!

(Imagine Inc., 1987) D/S/P: Tim Ferrante

Most of the trailers here are from the dregs of the exploitation business, but they're rare and outrageous. A lot of them were made by producer Sam Sherman for Hemisphere (the Bloodorama Shock Festival is incredible!) or his own Independent International (Girls for Rent, Satan's Sadists, Horror of the Blood Monsters, with the voice of Brother Theodore). Others are from Charles Band's Empire (From Beyond, Psychos in Love). Some favorites are the Queen of Blood/Bloodbath double bill, The Green Slime, and Vampyres. You also get on-camera interviews with James Karen, Sherman, Forrest J. Ackerman, Bobbie Bresee, Linnea Quigley, George Romero and Tom Savini, and John Russo and Russell Steiner from Night of the Living Dead (plus its original trailer). A 38-minute version is called Screen Scaries (Simitar).

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

(Embassy, 1973) D: Giuseppe Patroni Griffi S: Muriel Spark P: Franco Rossellini Italy (Identikit; Psychotic)

Elizabeth Taylor stars in her weirdest movie as Lisa, a suicidal woman who goes to Rome and has a series of encounters. It's probably the only feature where Taylor is tied up and raped. Rumor has it that Liz tried to keep it from circulation, but it's out on tape now under several names. With Ian Bannen, Mona Washbourne, and Andy Warhol. The screenwriter wrote The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie. The cinematographer was Vittorio Storaro. Liz's next stop was the USSR, where she starred in The Blue Bird (1976).

DRIVING FORCE

(Academy, 1988) D: A. J. Prowse S: Patrick Edgeworth P: Howard Grigsby, Rod Confessor Australia

In the post-nuke near future, rival tow-truck drivers cause fatal pileups to get business. With Americans Sam Jones, Catherine Bach, Don Swayze (who leads the Black Knights), and Billy Blanks.

Drive-in

DRIVING ME CRAZY

(RCA/Columbia, 1992) D/S: Jon Turtletaub S: David Tausik, John London P: Brad Kevoy, Steven Stabler (Trabi Goes to Hollywood)

Comic Thomas Gottschalk stars as an eccentric East German inventor trying to sell his turnip-fueled Trabant car (Trabi for short). He goes to LA, where gangsters (Dom DeLuise and James Tolkan) steal it. He hires Billy Dee Williams to get it back. With Michelle Johnson, Steve Kanaly, George Kennedy, Milton Berle, Celeste Yarnall, Richard Moll, Starr Andreef, Tiny Lester Jr., and Morton Downey Jr. as a spiritualist.

DROP DEAD FRED

(IVE, 1991) D: Ate De Jong S: Carlos Davis, Anthony Fingleton P: Paul Webster

Phoebe Cates, divorced and living with her mom, is visited by her imaginary childhood friend (British comedian Rik Mayall, from the TV series The Young Ones). The fantasy character helps her deal with life again. With Marsha Mason, Carrie Fisher, Tim Matheson, and (an uncredited) Bridget Fonda. The director of this PG-13 comedy also made six features in Holland and Highway to Hell.

DROP DEAD, GORGEOUS

(1991) D: Paul Lynch S: Thomas Baum P: Julian Marks

Somebody is trying to kill a model (Jennifer Rubin). With Peter Outerbridge, Sally Kellerman, and Michael Ironside. This was a cable-TV movie.

DROP ZONE

(Paramount, 1994) D: John Badham S: Peter Barsocchini P: D. J. Caruso, Wallis Nicita

Wesley Snipes (back in planes after Passenger 57) stars as a U.S. marshal who goes undercover to capture drug cartel members who escape from a 747 with parachutes in Florida. The major action scenes involve freefalling. With Gary Busey (also in the skydiving movie Point Break) as the main bad guy and Yancy Butler (Hard Target) as a skydiving ex-con who teaches Snipes to parachute. Also with Claire Stansfield, Grace Zabriske, Lyle Secor, Malcolm-Jamal Warner, Michael Jeter, Corin Nemec, and Luca Bercovici.

DRUGSTORE COWBOY

(IVE, 1989) D/S: Gus Van Sant S: Daniel Yost P: Nick Wechsler, Karen Murphy

Matt Dillon, his wife (Kelly Lynch), and his best friend (James LeGros) and his girlfriend (Heather Graham) rob pharmacies to get drugs in the early 70s, in Portland, Oregon. With James Remar as a cop, Grace Zabriske, and William Burroughs as Tom, an addicted priest. It's an excellent, believable movie showing the junkie life-style. The good oldies soundtrack (on Novus) is perfect and features a great use of "Psychotic Reaction." Van Sant's first feature was Mala Noche, and he followed this one with My Own Private Idaho.

DRUM

(Vestron, 1976) D: Steve Carver S: Norman Wexler P: Ralph Serpe

Ken Norton returns in a 20-years-later sequel to Mandingo (1975). Warren Oates buys him from bordello madam Isela Vega. With Pam Grier, Brenda Sykes (also in Mandingo), Paula Kelly as a lesbian maid, Cheryl "Rainbeaux" Smith, Fiona Lewis, Roger Mosley, and Royal Dano. Norton and Yaphet Kotto are hung upside down naked and whipped, but they revolt at the end. Original director Burt Kennedy was replaced by the maker of the exploitation hits The Arena and Big Bad Mama. United Artists released the Dino De Laurentiis production after Paramount refused to. Originally given an X rating (thanks to nudity, whipping, and castration), it was later heavily edited.

DRUMS OF FU MANCHU

(Stokey, 1940) D: William Witney, John English S: Franklyn Adreon, Morgan B. Cox, Ronald Davidson

Henry Brandon is the bald Dr. Fu Manchu in LA's Chinatown, and William Royle is Sir Nayland Smith in this 15-chapter Republic serial. Most serials were named after heroes. This was one of the few where the villain isn't even captured or killed. There are some imaginative torture scenes and some pretty scary-looking henchmen. Even the titles are great: "Satan's Surgeon," "Revolt!" and "The Pendulum of Doom," for example. With Gloria Franklin as Fah Lo Suee, Philip Ahn, Luana Walters, and Dwight Frye. Fu Manchu later returned as a TV series from Republic (1955–56) and a series of 60s features starring Christopher Lee.

DRUMS OF JEOPARDY

(Sinister, 1931) D: George B. Seitz S: Florence Ryerson

This rare independent production from the old Tiffany studios is a remake of a 1923 silent movie and is based on a novel of the same name. Warner Oland plays a Czarist Russian scientist named Boris Karlov, which, believe it or not, was also the character's name in the original and was not used to capitalize on the then new star Boris Karloff. Oland is first seen looking scary in a typically atmospheric mad-lab setting, but we soon discover he's a good guy—until his daughter commits suicide over a playboy prince and his mind snaps. He vows to destroy the whole Petrov family. After the Revolution, Karlov and his assistant (Mischa Auer) follow the Petrov sons to New York and, using disguises, spies, and the small drums on a cursed necklace as a warning, proceed to kill them. This film has no music and has awkwardly dubbed sound effects, but Oland is great as the cool, relentless, ingenious killer, and it's fun to see the serial-style perils, like the secret room filling up with water, and speeded-up fight scenes.

DRUMS OF TAHITI

(1953) D: William Castle S: Douglas Hayes, Robert Ekert P: Sam Katzman

Dennis O'Keefe (also in the 3-D The Diamond Wizard) stars with Patricia Medina. The 3-D highlights include a volcano and a hurricane. From Columbia.

DRUMS O' VOODOO

(Sinister, 1934) D: Arthur Hoerl S/A: J. Augustus Smith P: Louis Weiss (She Devil)

An all-black cast stars in this rare feature, adapted from a short-lived Broadway play, Louisiana, by J. Augustus Smith and featuring the stage performers. Actress and singer Laura Bowman stars as old Aunt Hagar, a voodoo priestess who puts a spell on a pimp who "works for Satan" and runs a juke joint. The evil one is struck by lightning and dies in quicksand. With Lionel Monages and Edna Barr. The 70-minute Sinister print is full of splices.

DRUNKEN MASTER II

(VSOM, 1994) D: Lau Kar-leung D/A: Jackie Chan S: Tseng King-Sang, Yun Kai-chi Hong Kong (Tsui Kun II)

After years of modern-day gangster hits, Hong Kong started a revival of the kind of comic period kung-fu movies that were so popular in the 70s. Chan stars as Wong Fei-hong in a more elaborate "sequel" to his 1979 hit, complete with early-20th-century British bad guys, comedy, and a plot about smuggling ginseng (with a jade seal hidden inside). Action highlights are a fight on a train and an encounter with a large gang with axes. With Ti Lung as the father, singer Anita Mui as the stepmother, and Ho Sung Pak. Chan replaced the original director.

du-BEAT-e-o

(Fox Hills, 1984) D/S/P: Alan Sachs

In 1979 Joan Jett (and some substitute Runaways) starred in a movie, We're All Crazy Now. It was never released, but here is where the footage ended up. The late Ray Sharkey (who says he was a junkie at the time) stars (and narrates) as an in-your-face director in hock to gangsters. He holes up in a studio to finish a feature starring Joan Jett. He forces his editor (Derf Scratch, from Fear) to work around the clock at gunpoint while he has sex with an innocent blonde (Nora Gaye). He rants over the Jett concert footage, so you can't hear the songs. That's the whole plot. You also get lots of real fast editing, Gary Panter art, Mondo death footage, WWII propaganda, puking, gore, Joanna Went performance art (presented as a nightmare), and onscreen songs by Tex and the Horseheads and the Mentors. One song is by Rainbeaux Smith (seen in the old footage). This thing is nuts! It played in theaters!

DUDES

(IVE, 1987) D: Penelope Spheeris S: J. Randal Johnson P: Herb Jaffe, Miguel Tejada-Flores

NYC punk rockers on the way to LA battle redneck killers in the Utah desert. With Jon Cryer dressed as a cowboy, Daniel Roebuck dressed as an Indian, Catherine Mary Stewart, Lee Ving as a biker, Pamela Gidley, and Flea from the Red Hot Chili Peppers. The heavy metal soundtrack is on MCA.

THE DUMMY TALKS

(Sinister, 1943) D: Oswald Mitchell S: Michael Barringer P: Wallace Orton UK

Jack Warner stars in this murder mystery, with stage variety acts taking up most of the running time. The best part is the séance at the end, where a dummy lying on a table (actually a midget) gets up and walks out the door.

DUNE

(MCA, 1984) D/S: David Lynch S: Eric Bergren, Christopher De Vore P: Raffaella De Laurentiis

Giant sandworms produce a mind-expanding spice that prolongs life, and good and evil families battle for control of a desert planet. Jodorowsky started directing the epic novel by Frank Herbert in 1975, but the production was closed down. Ridley Scott was going to make it too. Lynch eventually made it, and the audience scratched their heads (or stayed away). The 140-minute PG-13 film was first shown in 70mm. Many more people saw it on network TV in 1989. The two-part TV version, by "Allan Smithee" (it was disowned by the director), has 50 extra minutes, is missing 10 from the theatrical version, and has different narration. More viewers will discover the drug-induced industrial look of the confusing epic in days to come. It was shot in Mexico by Freddie Francis (who had also shot The Elephant Man). The music is by Toto (and Eno and Daniel Lanois), and Carlo Rambaldi was in charge of FX. Kenneth McMillan is memorable as floating, pus-filled Baron Harkonnen, who pops his zits. This character (and others) were actually marketed as plastic dolls! It's easy to forget the cast, but Kyle MacLachlan stars (in his film debut), and some of the others are Sean Young, Jack Nance, Virginia Madsen, Patrick Stewart, Francesca Annis (from Polanski's Macbeth), Brad Dourif, José Ferrer, Dean Stockwell, Max von Sydow, Linda Hunt, Freddie Jones, Richard Jordan, Silvana Mangano, Sian Phillips, Jurgen Prochnow, Paul Smith, Sting, and Everett McGill.

DUNE WARRIORS

(RCA/Columbia, 1991) D/P: Cirio H. Santiago S: T. C. McKelvey P: Christopher R. Santiago

David Carradine stars as the wise, older wandering warrior Michael in yet another Road Warrior copy (from the Philippines), set in "New California, 2040 A.D." Luke Askew is William, leader of the heavily armed bad guys who want the water that the peaceful desert villagers have. Jillian McWhirter (nice but determined village woman) and Isabel Lopez (Oriental warrior) show up for brief topless and nude scenes. Characters fight with swords and/or guns, and lots of things blow up. I wondered why the director would bother to hire dozens of dwarfs just to have them run through one unimportant scene, then realized the scene was simply taken from his earlier Stryker (1983). The music score is awful, and Carradine's martial-arts fight scenes must have been edited by a blind man. It's a Roger Corman/Concorde production.

THE DUNGEONMASTER

(Lightning, 1984) D/P: Charles Band D: Rose Marie Turko, John Buechler, David Allen, Stephen Ford, Peter Manoogian, Ted Nicolaou S: "Allen Actor" (Ragewar)

An evil wizard wanders the galaxy and holds a girl hostage. For some reason, seven directors were assigned to various segments, making it a monumental mess. The Dungeons and Dragons game was the plot inspiration. With Jeffrey Byron, Leslie Wing, Richard Moll, the band W.A.S.P., and some David Allen animation.

DUNGEON OF TERROR = CAGED VIRGINS

DUPLICATES

(Paramount, 1992) D: Steven Sandor
S: Andrew Neiderman

Gregory Harrison and Kim Griest see duplicates of their lost son and his uncle. Cicely Tyson and Kevin McCarthy are the scientists behind the confusing plot. This USA Network movie is by the makers of Pin.

DUST DEVIL

(Paramount, 1992) D/S: Richard Stanley
P: Joanne Sellar

Chelsea Field is a South African woman taking an aimless journey in her Volkswagen over desert highways after leaving her husband. She picks up a supernatural killer (Robert Burke) "from the other side of the mirror." He photographs and has sex with his female victims, removes fingers, paints walls with blood, and nails a heart to a door. This serious, atmospheric horror movie has well-done gore, sex, some surreal scenes, an effective feeling of dread, and excellent music by Simon Boswell. Zakes Mokae (The Serpent and the Rainbow) is a cop suffering from nightmares (inside of nightmares), and Marianne Sagebrecht has a small role as a coroner. This 87-minute US version of the UK production was redubbed and has a new voiceover. Miramax did a really good job. The British theatrical version was 108 minutes, and the film was originally 125 minutes. It was shot in Namibia and South Africa. Stanley (from South Africa) also made Hardware and is planning a Dr. Moreau remake.

DUSTY AND SWEETS McGEE

(1971) D/S/P: Floyd Mutrux

This pseudo-documentary look at a straight LA couple who become heroin addicts includes interviews with dealers, junkies, and hustlers. The couple commit suicide at the end. Billy Gray (from the Father Knows Best (!) TV series) shows up as a dealer. The Warner soundtrack consists of good oldies and Van Morrison's "Into the Mystic."

THE DYBBUK

(Ergo, 1937) D: Michael Waszynsky
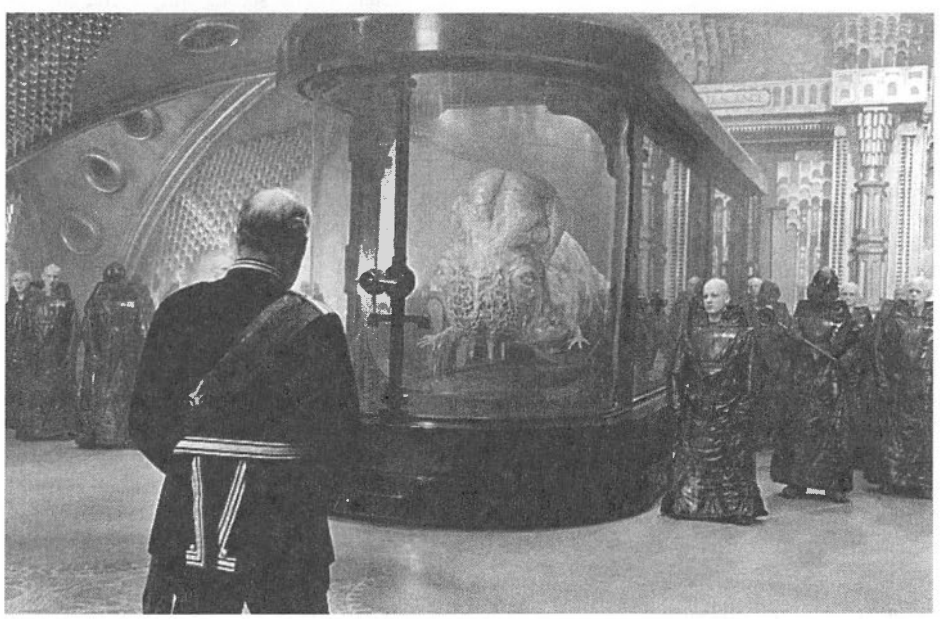
S/P: Alter Kacyzne, Andrzej Marek Poland

Here's a real rarity, featuring the first screen exorcism. Shot in Yiddish in Warsaw, it was rediscoved and restored to 122 minutes, and new subtitles were added, for screenings in 1989. It's adapted from a play that was based on a Yiddish legend. A bride (Lilli Liliana) is possessed by the soul of a young man who secretly dabbled in Cabala (a mystical form of Judaism) before he died.



Dune

DYING TRUTH

(Cornerstone, 1984) D: John Hough S: Martin Woth P: Roy Skeggs UK (A Distant Scream)

A photographer (David Carradine) takes his married lover (Stephanie Beacham) to an old British seaside hotel. She sees a mysterious old man (also Carradine) lurking around. He can predict what will happen and turns out to be a convicted killer from the future. Carradine even gets to talk to himself. This interesting, moody Hammer TV movie has a twist ending.

DYNAMITE BROTHERS

(1973) D: Al Adamson S: John D'Armato
P: Jim Rein, Marvin Lagunoff (Stud Brown)

Former football star Timothy Brown is hero Stud Brown, who teams up with a Chinese kung-fu expert (James Hong) to fight a drug lord (Alan Tang) in LA. Carol Speed is a mute. The Charles Earland jazz score was released on Prestige. Cinemation made it but went bankrupt, so it was released by Independent International. They actually used ad lines like "He has what every woman wants—he packs the biggest rod in town!"

DYNAMITE CHICKEN

(Monterey, 1969) D/S/P: Ernest Pintoff

Comedy material by the Ace Trucking Company and Richard Pryor is edited around a collage of footage of media and rock people. The very dated feature includes frustrating, brief glimpses (or just the sounds) of Jimi Hendrix, Muddy Waters, John and Yoko, Allen Ginsberg, The Velvet Underground, and Lenny Bruce, mixed with some animation, newsreel footage, and lots of naked women (including some bondage) scenes. Leonard Cohen recites a poem. It was rereleased in the 80s to capitalize on Pryor's fame.

DYNASTY

(Best, 1976) D: Mei Chung Chang S: Liu Kuo Hioung
P: Frank Wong Hong Kong (Sora Tobu Jujiken)

Mike Findlay (Snuff) was the 3-D supervisor of this bloody martial-arts hit, in "Real-a-Rama and Super 3-D!" and originally with quadraphonic sound. Bobby Ming stars and battles an evil warlord. Everything protruded from the screen: horses, swords, arrows, spears, and decapitated heads. The TV version is very cut and will make you wish you had caught it in a theater. It was shot in Taiwan.

THE EAGLE HAS LANDED

(1977) D: John Sturges S: Tom Mankiewicz
P: David Niven Jr., Jack Winer UK

Nazis plot to kidnap Churchill. Michael Caine stars, with Donald Sutherland, Robert Duvall, Jenny Agutter, Donald Pleasence as Heinrich Himmler, Anthony Quayle, Jean Marsh, Judy Geeson, Treat Williams, Larry Hagman, and Siegfried Rauch. It was based on Jack Higgins' bestseller. AIP released a cut (123-minute) version of the 134-minute film.

EARTH ANGEL

(1991) D: Joe Napolitano S: Nina Shengold P: Ron Gilbert

Cathy Podewell star as Angela, an airhead-blonde high-school prom queen who dies in a car crash in 1962, and returns 20 years later as an angel to do good deeds. With Rainbow Harvest, Dustin Nygren, Roddy McDowall as the angel who assigns her, Mark Hamill, Cindy Williams, Garrett Morris, Alan Young, and Erik Estrada. Some of them appear in both the 60s and 90s scenes. It's an ABC-TV movie full of former TV stars.

EARTHBOUND

(1940) D: Irving Pichel S: John Howard Lawson P: Sol Wurtzel

Warner Baxter is murdered in Europe and returns as a ghost to help the man who is blamed (Henry Wilcoxon). Andrea Leds is his helpful wife, and Lynn Bari is the jealous former girlfriend who killed him. The 67-minute 20th–Century Fox release was a remake of a 1920 movie.

EARTHBOUND

(1979) D: James L. Conway S/P: Michael Fisher

The Sunn Classics people invaded network TV (NBC) with this series pilot (it was also screened in theaters). Burl Ives and his grandson befriend Christopher Connelly, Meredith MacRae, and their alien family. Conway also made Hangar 18.

EARTH GIRLS ARE EASY

(Vestron, 1988) D: Julien Temple S/A: Julie Brown
S: Charlie Coffey, Terrence E. McNally P: Tony Garnett

After Absolute Beginners and lots of rock videos, Temple made this PG-rated MTV-style science-fiction musical comedy. Three brightly colored hairy and horny aliens in LA learn English, lose their hair, and become California guys. Geena Davis and Jeff Goldblum star, and Damon Wayans and Jim Carrey are the other aliens. With Michael McKean, Julie Brown, Charles Rocket, Larry Linville, and Angelyne. It was one of several features with Goldblum and Davis, who were married at the time. Nile Rodgers wrote the score, and Brown wrote and sings "'Cause I'm a Blonde." The movie is based on her song of the same name. It was made for DEG.

THE EARTHLING

(Vestron, 1980) D: Peter Collinson S: Lanny Cotler
P: Elliot Schick, John Strong Australia

After AIP became Filmways, Sam Arkoff presented this PG drama. William Holden stars as a terminally ill man who teaches an orphan (Ricky Schroder) to survive in the bush country. With Jack Thompson.

EARTH'S FINAL FURY = WHEN TIME RAN OUT

EASTERN CONDORS

(Paragon, 1986) D/A: Samo Hung Hong Kong

This large-scale, subtitled action movie shot in the Philippines, borrows ideas from The Dirty Dozen, The Deer Hunter, The Guns of Navarone, and even Dr. No, so there's a lot going on. Set in 1976, it's about a Chinese/American S.Q.U.A.T. team (led by the director, a comic costar of some of Jackie Chan's best movies) sent to destroy a secret US arsenal left behind in Vietnam before the Vietcong can use it. They take their pick of prisoners, then team up with three Cambodian female guerrillas, led by Joyce Godenzi (a former Miss Hong Kong). Yuen Biao, an impishly handsome, comical young fighting star, is a black-market hero who defects and joins them. Biao (and others) use martial arts, but most of the fighting is with machine guns and explosives. The Oscar-winning Haing S. Ngor (The Killing Fields) plays a shell-shocked local. My favorite of many insults is "Nonsense, masturbator!" and there's some surprising (anti-US) political humor.

EASY WHEELS

(Fries, 1988) D/S: David O'Malley S: Ivan Raimi, Celia Abrams P: Dimitri Villard (Women on Wheels)

Eileen Davidson (from The Young and the Restless) is She Wolf. Raised by wolves as a baby, she leads a tough, man-hating group of female bikers who steal babies to be raised by wolves. A group of bikers, led by Paul Le Mat, are the heroes, and they can sing doo-wop gospel. With Barry Livingston (from My Three Sons) as a reporter who rides with the bikers, Karen Russell, Roberta Vasquez (from Playboy), Ted Raimi as a bartender, and George Plimpton. Bruce Campbell was an executive producer of this odd comedy.

EAT AND RUN

(Starmaker, 1984) D/S: Christopher Hart
S: Stan Hart P: Jack Briggs (Mangia)

Ron Silver is a 40s-style New York City detective narrating a comic tale of a 300-pound alien named Murray (R.L. Ryan from The Toxic Avenger). Murray eats Italians in New Jersey. From New World.

EATEN ALIVE = DOOMED TO DIE

EATING RAOUL

(Fox, 1982) D/S/A: Paul Bartel
S: Richard Blackburn P: Anne Kimmel

Paul Bartel and Mary Woronov star as Paul and Mary Bland, squares who start advertising in sex papers and killing the obnoxious people who show up. Raoul (Robert Beltran) muscles in on their racket by selling the bodies to a fast-food restaurant. It's a very funny social comedy with a cult following. Bartel presented an off-Broadway stage version in 1992. With Buck Henry, Ed Begley Jr. as a fake hippie, and Billy Curtis. A soundtrack was released, including a great Spanish version of "Devil with a Blue Dress." Bartel and Woronov (who some assumed were married in real life) went on to play variations of the same couple as guest stars in several other features.

Robert Beltran and Ed Begley Jr. in Eating Raoul.

EAT MY DUST!

(1976) D/S: Charles B. Griffith P: Roger Corman

Ron Howard is Hoover Niebold, who steals a racing car to impress his girlfriend (Christopher Norris). This PG drive-in hit also features Dave Madden, Corbin Bernsen, Paul Bartel, and Ron's dad and brother, Rance and Clint Howard. Barbara Peeters was the second-unit director and the score is by David Grisman. It was one of the top-grossing features from Roger Corman's New World, so Howard got to direct himself the next year in the similar Grand Theft Auto.

EAT THE DOCUMENT

(1972) D/P/A: Bob Dylan
D: D.A. Pennebaker P: Howard Alk

This rare, 55-minute "anti-documentary" of Dylan's 1966 European tour has become a bootleg-tape favorite. It features some great Royal Albert Hall live electric concert footage of Dylan, the Band, and (for one song) Johnny Cash. Best of all, though, are long scenes of a nearly incoherent Dylan in the backseat of a car with John Lennon. Both are pretty out of it, and Dylan keeps threatening to puke. Young Robbie Robertson occasionally adds to the rambling conversation from the front seat.

EAT THE RICH

(RCA/Columbia, 1988) D/S: Peter Richardson
S: Pete Richens P: Tim Van Pellin UK

After being fired from a restaurant where they serve fried baby panda, a transsexual (Lanah Pellay) takes it over and puts rich people on the menu. This cannibal comedy features Robbie Coltrane, Angie Bowie, Koo Stark, Fiona Richmond, Miranda Richardson, Rik Mayall, Bill Wyman, Paul and Linda McCartney, and Nosher Powell. Lemmy and Motorhead appear in the film and play the theme song, which shoulda been a hit.

EBB TIDE

(Paramount, 1994) D/P: Craig Lahiff
S: Robert Ellis, Peter Goldsworthy
P: Paul Davies, Helen Leake Australia

Harry Hamlin is a lawyer who falls for a murder suspect (Judy McIntosh). This "erotic thriller" also features John Waters and Sue Lyons.

EBONY, IVORY, AND JADE

(VCI, 1976) D/P: Cirio H. Santiago
S: Henry Barnes Philippines (Foxforce; Foxfire; American Beauty Hostage; She Devils in Chains)

This PG adventure is about three American women in Hong Kong for Olympic track games who are stalked by killers, then kidnapped by slavers and held for ransom. President Ford is quoted more than once about his concern. Colleen Camp plays a stuck-up heiress, and Roseanne Katon (also in Santiago's The Muthers) gets some pretty good flips in during martial-arts fights. Sylvia Anderson is a tall, bitter black runner. The title and ad art are misleading, because Jade, the Asian woman, dies early. "Ebony, Ivory, and Ebony" would be more accurate. There's a battle in an old, aboveground cemetery. Unfortunately, the sound stinks, the photography is too dark, and nobody bothered to dub long conversations in the Tagalog language! It was originally released by Dimension.

EBONY, IVORY, AND JADE

(1979) D: John Llewellyn Moxey D/P: Jimmy Sangster

Sangster (a crime novelist who worked on many Hammer films) copied both the 1976 film of the same name and Charlie's Angels for this CBS-TV pilot film. A Las Vegas dance team, Debbie Allen (Ebony) and Playboy centerfold Martha Smith (Ivory), work for Nick Jade (Bert Convy) as secret agents on a case in the Middle East, protecting scientist Nina Foch and her fomula for a deadly new explosive. With Claude Akins, Ji-Tu Cumbuka, David Brenner, and Frankie Valli (as himself).

ECCO

(SW, 1963) D: Gianni Proia P: Francesco Mazzei Italy (Mondo di Notte Tre)

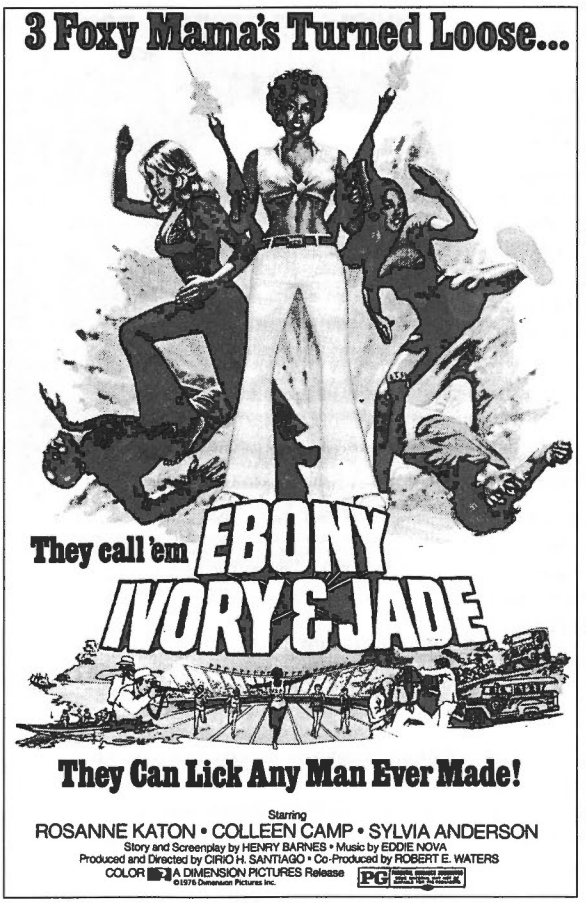
The condescending narration read by George Sanders gives this mondo documentary a special edge. Some highlights of the "sequel" to World By Night are the last performance of the famous Grand Guignol theater in Paris, complete with gore FX and a man who sticks long needles through his body (he was featured in the ads). Also with karate, twisting, lesbians, strippers, juvenile delinquents, artificial insemination, and reindeer castration. Presented by Dick Randall. It was one of only three features shot in "Panorama" wide screen (the video is letterboxed). R.W. Cresse re-edited and wrote a new script for the 1965 American release. The original World By Night (1960), from the same producer, was released in America by Warners.



ECHOES

(VidAmerica, 1980) D: Arthur Allan Seidelman
S: Richard J. Anthony P: George R. Nice

A New York City art student (Richard Alfieri) has nightmares about his evil unborn twin and thinks he's reincarnated. Mercedes McCambridge (in her last role) is an art-gallery owner, Gale Sondergaard (in her last known role) is a psychiatrist, and Ruth Roman is his mother. The plot was ripped off for Dead Again and Deja Vu.

ECHO PARK

(Kartes, 1986) D: Robert Dornheim S: Michael Ventura P: Walter Shenson US/Austria

Susan Dey is an actress (and single mother) working as a Strip-o-gram girl. Tom Hulce is her songwriter roommate working as a pizza delivery man. Various characters in a bad part of LA want to be in show biz. With Cheech Marin, Cassandra Peterson (Elvira) as his wife, Michael Bowen as a would-be Arnold Schwarzenegger, and Timothy Carey.

THE ECSTASIES OF WOMAN

(1969) D/C: Herschell Gordon Lewis
P: Thomas D. Dowd

Lewis made this nudie movie in Hollywood using pseudonyms. On the eve of his wedding, a guy enjoys his all-night bachelor party on a yacht. During the party he remembers past conquests. It was advertised as "a total experience in shameless pleasure." Walter Camp, Bonnie Clark, and Forman Shane are featured.

ED AND HIS DEAD MOTHER

(Fox, 1992) D: Jonathan Wacks
S: Chuck Hughes P: William Christopher Gorog
(Bon Appetite, Mama)

Steve Buscemi (Reservoir Dogs) stars as a depressed guy running a small-town hardware store. He pays a devious cryogenics salesman (John Glover with white hair) to resurrect his late mother (Miriam Margolyes). She sleeps in the refrigerator, eats live bugs to keep alive, and eventually needs human flesh. The PG-13 black comedy doesn't exactly "work," but I can't hate a movie starring Buscemi and Glover, and Sam Jenkins as a very sexy neighbor is another plus. With Ned Beatty as the voyeur uncle, Rance Howard as a homicidal preacher, and Gary Farmer. KNB provided the FX (including a chainsaw decapitation in a graveyard and a talking head), and the Golden Palominos and They Might Be Giants did some of the songs. Wacks also made Powwow Highway and Mystery Date.

EDDIE AND THE CRUISERS

(Avid, 1983) D/S: Martin Davidson S: Arlene Davidson P: Joseph Brooks, Robert K. Lifton

Reporter Ellen Barkin tries to find out what happened to members of a 60s New Jersey rock band, in a movie that takes place in two time periods. Michael Paré (making his debut) is the group's leader, Eddie Wilson, whose body was never found after a 1964 car accident. Tom Berenger is the real star as the songwriter. With Joe Pantoliano, John Stockwell, and Helen Schneider. John Cafferty and the Beaver Brown Band provided the (too polished and modern) music. This PG-13 movie was popular on cable TV, so a sequel was made. Davidson also directed The Lords of Flatbush.

EDDIE AND THE CRUISERS II: EDDIE LIVES!

(IVE, 1989) D: Jean-Claude Lord S: Charles Zev Cohen P: Stephane Reichel Canada

Michael Paré returns as Eddie Wilson. It seems he's been working on a construction job in Montreal for 18 years. With Marina Orsini, Kate Lynch, and bits by Larry King, Bo Diddley, and Martha Quinn (as themselves). The Beaver Brown Band did the music for this PG-13 sequel.

EDDIE PRESLEY: A TRIBUTE TO THE KING

(1992) D: Jeff Burr S/A: Duane Whitaker P: Bill Burr

An overweight Hollywood security guard and former Elvis impersonator living in a van has flashbacks of his life and a mental breakdown. It's based on a play by star Duane Whitaker. Stacie Bourgeois costars, and a number of cult names appear: Roscoe Lee Browne, Clu Gulagher, Lawrence Tierney, Daniel Roebuck, Willard Pugh, Ted Raimi, Ian Ogilvy, Quentin Tarantino, Tim Thomerson, John Lazar, and Kitten Natividad. Burr made the 16mm independent film after his Leatherface was cut beyond recognition by New Line.

THE EDGE

(1989) D/S: Nicholas Kazan D: Carl Shenkel, Luis Mandoki S: Alan Sharp P: Christopher Morgan

A better-than-average anthology is hosted by a face called the Watcher. The 3 dark stories about sex and death debuted on HBO. The stars are Brad Davis and Kelly Lynch, Rutger Hauer and Michael Rooker, and Christian Slater and Bridget Fonda.

EDGE OF HONOR

(1991) D/S: Michael Spence S: Mark Rosenbaum P: Jay B. Davis, Peter Garrity

Corey Feldman stars in a story about Boy Scouts in the Pacific Northwest who fight the Mafia and redneck killers in the woods over some rocket launchers. With Scott Reeves, Meredith Salinger, Don Swayze, and Christopher Neame.

EDGE OF SANITY

(Virgin, 1989) D: Gérard Kikoine S/P: Harry Alan Towers S: Ron Raley, Ewars Simons P: Edward Simons UK/Hungary

A little kid watches a couple having sex in a barn. The woman watches the kid. The man spanks the kid, then the woman dies. It's only a childhood trauma relived by Dr. Jekyll, played this time by Anthony Perkins. The rich doctor, limping and using a cane, becomes Hyde after experiments with anesthesia. Hyde looks like an 80s Iggy Pop punk, turns green when he smokes cocaine from a glass pipe, and is obsessed by bare asses. He announces himself, "Hi, Jack Hyde!" He humiliates people (and himself) and kills women, usually by slitting their throats. He masturbates while watching a black pimp and a hooker have sex, then keeps the pair as slaves. Meanwhile, his selfless wife (Glynis Barber) helps hookers at a church. Perkins has never acted stranger or more out of control (and that's saying a lot). His laughing, nervous, psychotic behavior is unbelievable. This movie looks like a sleazier-than-usual Ken Russell version of the Jack the Ripper story. Cameras tilt and circle around while everything turns pink. An interesting continuity error occurs when Hyde cuts off a woman's panties and they magically reappear. With Sarah Maur-Thorp and Claudia Udy. The director made many French porno movies, then erotic movies for Playboy TV for Harry Alan Towers. This is available in an R and an unrated version. There is also a sell through Making of Edge of Sanity (UAV) which was sold in Woolworth stores!

EDGE OF THE AXE

(Forum, 1987) D: "Joseph Braunstein"/ José Larraz S: Joaquin Arnichatis, Javier Morrieta Spain

Former inmates of an asylum are being killed in Paddock, Texas. Some are decapitated or have fingers cut off. Patty Shepard and Jack Taylor (also both in the director's Rest in Pieces) costar.

EDIE IN CIAO! MANHATTAN

(Pacific Arts, 1971) D: John Palmer, David Weissman

Edie Sedgwick pretty much plays herself as a speed-freak heiress living in a tent in an empty pool. Allen Ginsberg is in this near-documentary underground film, and Roger Vadim shows up as a doctor when she gets sex and shock treatments. Flashbacks are from a b/w 1967 film with Viva. Richie Havens, John Phillips, and Skip Battin from the Byrds are on the soundtrack. Edie, a marginal Andy Warhol "superstar," died at 28, three months after filming, and was later the topic of a best-selling book. This played in the 80s, with newer footage added. Weissman also put together Shogun Assassin.

EDWARD SCISSORHANDS

(Fox, 1990) D/P: Tim Burton S: Caroline Thompson P: Denise di Novi

Edward Scissorhands (Johnny Depp) is created in a great spooky old mansion sitting at the edge of a fantasy 60s-style suburb with brightly colored houses. The kindly mad doctor (Vincent Price) dies before he's finished, and the awkward boy with large scissors for hands and all-black clothes is taken home by suburban Avon lady Dianne Wiest. A blond Winona Ryder is her daughter, and Alan Arkin is her husband. With Kathy Baker, Anthony Michael Hall, Stuart Lancaster, Robert Oliveri, and Conchata Ferrell. They painted real houses in Florida for this PG-13 modern fairy-tale comedy. Stan Winston was in charge of FX. 20th Century–Fox threatened the makers of Edward Penishands, a porno parody, which was supposedly withdrawn.

ED WOOD

(Touchstone, 1994) D/P: Tim Burton S: Scott Alexander, Larry Karaszewski P: Denise di Novi

Be glad that Burton had the clout to make this wonderful look at the late and ridiculed cult figure Ed Wood Jr. and to do it in b/w. Johnny Depp stars (he's better than you'd think) as the eager young eccentric dress-wearing director, and Martin Landau is great as Bela Lugosi, down and out and addicted but always a pro. Wood works on three of his 1950s movies (Glen or Glenda, Bride of the Monster, and Plan 9 from Outer Space), and we see loving recreations of scenes from each one. With Patricia Arquette as Kathy Wood, Sarah Jessica Parker as girlfriend Dolores Fuller, Jeffrey Jones as Criswell, Bill Murray as Bunny Breckinridge, Lisa Marie as Vampira, Ed Starr as producer George Weiss, and George "the Animal" Steele as Tor Johnson. Also with G. D. Spradlin, Juliet Landau, Conrad Brooks, and Vincent D'Onofrio as Orson Welles. The old Brown Derby restaurant was remodeled for scenes. Partially based on Rudolph Grey's Nightmare of Ecstasy book, the Touchstone release runs 124 minutes. The score by Howard Shore is on Hollywood Records.

ED WOOD: LOOK BACK IN ANGORA

(Rhino, 1994) D/S/P: Ted Newsom

This documentary uses scenes from movies Wood directed and wrote plus interviews with his sad widow Kathy Wood, WWII friend and director Joe Robertson, Steven Apostoloff, Conrad Brooks, and Dolores Fuller. Color footage from the unfinished Crossroads Avenger; a behind-the-scenes clip of the Orgy of the Dead set (note T.V. Mikels), and the revelation that Fred Olen Ray's unfinished Beach Blanket Bloodbath used a script by Wood are high points. The many lines of dialog used out of context to comment ironically on Wood's life are too much like (irritating) current TV series promo spots. The 50 minute running time is padded with non-Wood Lugosi clips and some ill-advised "facsimile footage" scenes and for some reason there are no scenes from Night of the Ghouls (a Rhino release!). I enjoyed hearing the familiar voice of narrator Gary Owens recommending Psychotronic magazine at the end. The Haunted World of Ed Wood was another 1994 documentary.

THE ED WOOD STORY: THE PLAN NINE COMPANION

(MPI, 1992) D/S/P: Marck Carducci (Flying Saucers over Hollywood)

This tribute to Ed Wood Jr. and his "anti-masterpiece" Plan 9 from Outer Space has lots of interviews (and lots of toupées) and covers most of the bases. Plan 9 fans won't be disappointed. Vampira, Paul Marcos, Valda Hanson, Gregory Walcott, and Stephen Apostoloff are here, along with fans and experts like Drew Friedman, Rudolph Grey, Harry Medved, Joe Dante, Sam Raimi, Scott Spiegel, Vincent Price creates Edward Scissorhands.

FJA, and Eric Caidin. Conrad Brooks leads a tour of the old Quality studios. Also with a tribute to Tor, a look at the Don Post studios, silent footage of Wood directing, and the Chiller Theatre animation opening. At 111 minutes, it's 32 minutes longer than the feature it documents.

EERIE MIDNIGHT HORROR SHOW = THE TORMENTED

18 AGAIN!

(Starmaker, 1988) D: Paul Flaherty S: Josh Goldstein, Jonathan Prince P: Walter Colblenz

George Burns (92 but playing an 81-year-old) somehow becomes his own 18-year-old grandson (star Charlie Schlatter). This PG body-switch comedy costars Miriam Flynn and features Tony Roberts, Anita Morris, Jennifer Runyon, Red Buttons, George DiCenzo, and Pauly Shore.

800 LEAGUES DOWN THE AMAZON

(New Horizons, 1993) D/P: Luis Llosa S: Laura Schiff, Jackson Barr

Daphne Zuniga travels downriver in Brazil with a "river rat" bounty hunter (Adam Baldwin), her father (Barry Bostwick), her doctor fiancé (Tom Verica), and a comedy-relief singing servant. Her father is accused of murder so there's a race to prove his innocence and save his life. With an Aguirre-inspired Indian attack and gators and piranha. Roger Corman was executive producer of this PG-13 Jules Verne adaptation.

8 MILLION WAYS TO DIE

(Fox, 1986) D: Hal Ashby S: Oliver Stone, David Lee Henry P: Steve Roth

Jeff Bridges is an alcoholic ex-cop involved with drugs. Rosanna Arquette is his high-priced call-girl girlfriend. This adaptation of a novel by Lawrence Block was Stone's last script for another director's film. Robert Towne worked on it too. With Andy Garcia as the sadistic pimp, Alexandra Paul, and Randy Brooks.

EL

(Hen's Tooth, 1952) D/S: Luis Buñuel S: Luis Alcoriza P: Oscar Dancigers Mexico (This Strange Passion)

Francisco Arturo De Córdova, a wealthy and religious man, lives alone with his servants in his art-nouveau villa. He finds his dream woman in a church, marries her, but becomes insanely jealous and even has visions of strangling a priest. Eventually he has a breakdown and enters a monastery. The Cannes Film Festival jury called this a bad B movie. Not to be confused with Buñuel's El Bruto, made the same year.

EL CONDOR

(Warner, 1970) D: John Guillerman S: Larry Cohen, Steven Carabatsos P: André De Toth

Jim Brown and Lee Van Cleef (as Jaroo) escape from a chain gang, join up with some Apache Indians (led by Iron Eyes Cody), and attack the Mexican fort El Condor for the gold inside. This R-rated National General release included some nudity during love scenes with Marianna Hill and Brown. The cast also includes Patrick O'Neal and Elisha Cook Jr. The music is by Maurice Jarre.

ELECTRA GLIDE IN BLUE

(MGM, 1973) D/P: James William Guercio S: Robert Boris

Robert Blake plays a naive Nam-vet motorcycle cop involved in a murder investigation, in this downbeat film with hippie murder suspects and an ending "borrowed" from Easy Rider. With Mitchell Ryan, Jeannine Riley, Billy Green Bush, Royal Dano, and Elisha Cook Jr. Madura, the Marcels, and Chicago are seen in concert footage. Director Guercio was the manager, the producer, and a writer for Chicago, so their long song "Tell Me" is heard in its entirety, and Terry Kath (who later killed himself playing Russian roulette in real life) is the killer. A double United Artists soundtrack was released.

ELECTRA LOVE 2000

(1994) D/S/E: Jay Raskin P: Vicky Prodromidou

Robin O'Dell stars as a hooker in "a modern version of the Greek classic" by the director of I Married a Vampire. It features Gregory Pitts and Susie Owens.

THE ELECTRIC CHAIR

(SW, 1972) D/S/P/FX/A: J. G. "Pat" Patterson

After a young married minister and the woman he was having an affair with are found bloody and dead ("The tongue was ripped out of her head!") this very entertaining North Carolina movie becomes a courtroom drama with detailed exploitable scenes of people in the electric chair. Mose Cooper (Patterson), a religious fanatic, is found guilty and sent to the chair but is reprieved at the last minute. Just when you think it's all over, the sheriff arrests

80s FAVES

(TOP 25, IN ALPHABETICAL ORDER)

1. Basket Case (1982)
2. Blade Runner (1982)
3. The Blob (1988)
4. Brazil (1985)
5. The Dead Zone (1983)
6. The Evil Dead (1983)
7. Flesh + Blood (1985)
8. Hellraiser (1987)
9. The Hitcher (1986)
10. The Lair of the White Worm (1988)
11. Near Dark (1988)
12. A Nightmare on Elm Street (1984)
13. Reanimator (1985)
14. Repo Man (1984)
15. The Road Warrior (1981)
16. Robocop (1987)
17. Rumblefish (1983)
18. Sonny Boy (1987)
19. The Stepfather (1987)
20. Street Trash (1987)
21. The Terminator (1984)
22. They Live (1988)
23. The Thing (1982)
24. Videodrome (1982)
25. White of the Eye (1987)

The early 80s saw a new wave of anti-Communist and 3-D movies. It all had something to do with having an ex-actor president who managed to use mass hypnosis on a national scale. After a while, a record number of end-of-the-world and post-nuke movies were being made all over the world. E.T. (1982) was (and probably still is) far and away the top-grossing film of all time. It was the first to break over $200 million in US/Canada rentals and is also the top selling video of all time. Spielberg gets "$5 per tape" (!). Sears paid $40 million to show it on network TV in 1991, then offered it cheap in their stores. It was uplifting family science fiction, but at least "Papa Oom Mow Mow" was used in it. Nine other features earned over a hundred million. They are (in descending order) Return of the Jedi, Batman, Home Alone, Ghostbusters, Raiders of the Lost Ark (followed by its two sequels), Beverly Hills Cop, and Back to the Future. These are the movies that the most people watched as the country faced the horrors of AIDS, crack, and rising crime.

ELLERY QUEEN

The writer and master detective was created by Frederic Dannay and Manfred Bennington Lee, two Brooklyn cousins who used the pen name Ellery Queen, and gave the same name to their fictional detective. On the screen, Donald Cook starred as Ellery Queen in The Spanish Cape Mystery (1935), and Eddie Quillan starred in The Mandarin Mystery (1937), both for Republic. A popular radio series led to a series of four Columbia films (1940–41) starring Ralph Bellamy as a comic crime-solver, with Charley Grapewin as his inspector father. William Gargan took over the role for three films more in 1942. Some guest stars were Anna May Wong (Ellery Queen's Penthouse Mystery), George Zucco (Ellery Queen and the Murder Ring), and Gale Sondergaard (Enemy Agents Meet Ellery Queen). The TV series The Adventures of Ellery Queen (1975–76), starring Jim Hutton and David Wayne, was better than most of the movies.

Crazy Billy, a new trial begins, more flashbacks are shown, and it all gets wilder than you'd expect. There are visual shocks (no gore, though), nudity (in a black club), Patterson's scary-looking real-life wife, local accents, and some decent experimental music. If that isn't enough, you get some flubbed lines and unintentional humor, and the soft-rock background music includes a cover of the Pretty Things' "I Can See You" (!). Patterson and future director Worth Keeter worked on the makeup. It's a Frank Henenlotter Sexy Shocker release. Akira Fitton created the 1975 ad campaign.

ELECTRIC DREAMS

(MGM/UA, 1984) D: Steve Barron
S/P: Rusty Lemorande P: Larry DeWaay

Lenny Von Dohlen stars as a guy in San Francisco who loves his neighbor (Virginia Masden). The big trouble is his sophisticated computer (Bud Cort's voice), which is in love with the same girl and sabotages everything. This PG fantasy includes scenes from movies like Madame Satan, The Giant Claw, and Forbidden Planet. Giorgio Moroder scored the soundtrack. Maxwell Caulfield and Koo Stark are also featured. Barron made rock videos for Michael Jackson and Fleetwood Mac and later directed Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles.

THE ELEMENT OF CRIME

(Unicorn, 1984) D/S/A: Lars von Triers S: Niels Voersel Denmark (Forbrydelsen Element)

A cop is hypnotized to help solve a series of murders in a sepia-tone post-nuke Europe where dead horses float in a river. The cast includes Me Me Lei (from cannibal movies) as a hooker. It was filmed in English. The director returned with Zentropa.

ELIMINATORS

(Fox, 1986) D: Peter Manoogian S: Paul De Meo, Danny Bilson P: Charles Band

A vengeful "mandroid" is played by R.J. Reynolds tobacco heir Patrick Reynolds. This PG movie throws in everything: a lesbian river queen, a flying robot, a prehistoric tribe, kung fu. Andrew Prine as a riverboat pilot costars with Denise Crosby as a scientist and Conan Lee as Ninja. It was shot in Spain but is set in South America.

ELLIE

(Vestron, 1984) D: Peter Wittman
S: Glen Allen Smith P: Francine Rudine

Shelley Winters and her three sons kill off her wealthy husbands, in this black comedy. The daughter of one of the victims (played by Penthouse Pet of the Year Sheila Kennedy, who has nude scenes) seeks revenge. With Edward Albert, George Gobel as a preacher, and Pat Paulsen as a sheriff. Wittman also made Play Dead.

ELSTREE CALLING

(1930) D: Adrian Brunel, Alfred Hitchcock, André Charlot, Jack Hulbert, Paul Murray S: Val Valentine P: Walter C. Mycroft UK

A variety of unrelated sketches make up this early talkie, the first British musical-comedy film. In one segment, a family tries to watch the first broadcast on television (a concept then still five years in the future). Alfred Hichcock directed Anna May Wong and Donald Calthrop in a broadly comic rendition of a scene from Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew.

ELVES

(AIP, 1989) D/S: Jeff Mandel S: Mark Griffith, Bruce Taylor P: Mark Paglia

A young fast-food waitress in an old department store (Julie Austin) is chosen to be mated with an elf as part of a Nazi plan. She discovers that her grandfather is an ex-Nazi and that he's really her father: "I impregnated my own daughter to create an offspring who would be suitable to mate with an elf!" Her hateful, cat-killing mother (Deanna Lund, from the Land of the Giants show) is busy being naked in the tub when an elf throws in an electric radio. A lecherous, coke-sniffing store Santa is castrated by elves and replaced by a chain-smoking, homeless ex-detective (Dan Haggerty). A professor trying to explain the Nazi master-elf plan says, "If you could ignore their brutality, they were just crackpots." Besides the choice bad and hateful dialogue, the seldom-shown elf faces are pretty effective and spooky, but it's too bad we mostly see their rubber hands and feet. This tape is too dark, most of the FX (and the accents) are awful, and the blurry point-of-view "monster vision" is headache-inducing. It was filmed in Colorado.

ELVIRA, MISTRESS OF THE DARK

(Starmaker, 1988) D: James Signorelli
S: Sam Egan, John Paragon, Cassandra Peterson P: Eric Gardner, Marc Pierson

TV horror-movie hostess Cassandra Peterson/Elvira stars as a TV horror-movie hostess who inherits a haunted house in the old fashioned New England town of Falwell. This comedy has a strong anti-moralistic message and is filled with dumb sex jokes, silly FX, and one-liners. It Conquered the World and Attack of the Killer Tomatoes clips are also thrown in. The movie didn't do much business, but I liked Elvira on the big screen a lot more than on the small screen making fun of other movies. She's sexy and funny. Edie McClurg and Jeff Conaway are also in this New World release. Cassandra Peterson has also hosted other video releases from various companies over the years.

ELVIS AND THE BEAUTY QUEEN

(1981) D: Gus Trikonis S: Julia Cameron P: Charles B. Fitzsimons

Cassandra Peterson as Elvira, Mistress of the Dark.

Linda Thompson of Memphis was NBC's "program consultant" for this, the second Elvis TV movie, and Stephanie Zimbalist plays her. Thompson was a post-Priscilla girlfriend. Don Johnson (!?) plays Elvis. With Ann Dusenberry, Ruta Lee, and Ken Foree. Ronnie McDowell did the dubbed-in singing. In the future, every Elvis girlfriend, date, and pickup will have a TV movie based on her experiences.

ELVIS AND THE COLONEL

(1993) D: William A. Graham S: Phil Penningroth P: Daniel A. Sherkow

NBC aired this around the time of the much-publicized Elvis postage stamp. Beau Bridges stars as "Colonel" Tom Parker, shown to be vulgar but not a villain. Rob Youngblood as Elvis narrates from beyond the grave. It's considered the worst of the Elvis TV movies.

ELVIS IN HOLLYWOOD

(BMG, 1993) D: Frank Martin P: Jerry Schilling

Elvis's pre-musical and pre-army acting period (Love Me Tender, Loving You, Jailhouse Rock, and King Creole) is explored with home movies, film clips, and interviews. The 65-minute tape was authorized by his estate.

ELVIS IN THE MOVIES

(Goodtimes)

I bought this at a shopping mall, and I'm glad I did. It's a complete compilation, with trailers for all 33 movies (1956–72). Plugs for soundtracks end many of them, and some are letterboxed. It shows how the King's acting career paralleled Godzilla's (going from threatening tough guy to nice guy who hung out with little kids) and just how ridiculous his Sam Katzman movies were.

ELVIS ON TOUR

(MGM, 1972) D/S/P: Robert J. Abel, Pierre Adidge

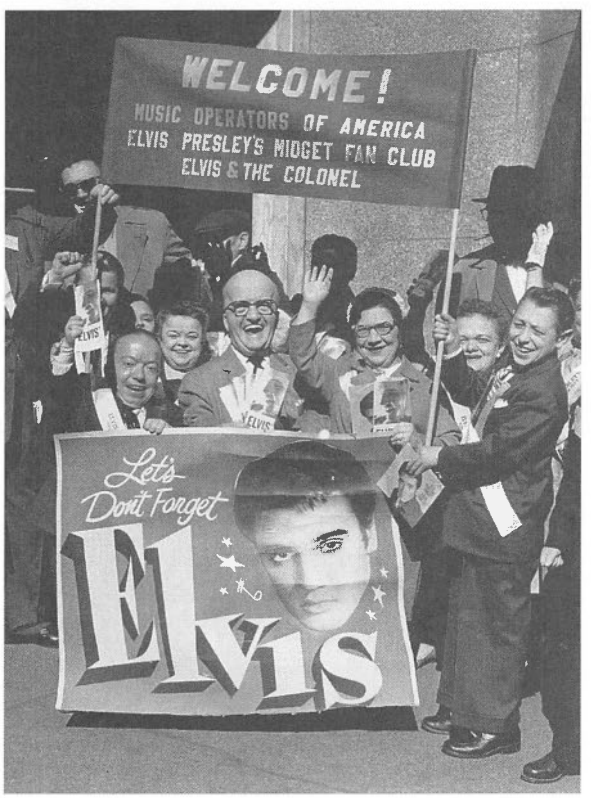
The King performs 29 songs in his rhinestone jumpsuit during his 1971 cross-country tour. With spilt-screen effects and Dolby sound, plus some early Ed Sullivan Show clips. James Burton plays and The Sweet Inspirations provide backup vocals. Martin Scorsese was an editor and "montage supervisor." Shortly after it was released Elvis was divorced. He spent the rest of his life doing live shows and getting more out of touch with reality. This was the last Elvis movie released during his lifetime.



Elvis in Hollywood

ELVIS STORIES

(Rhino, 1987) D: Ben Stiller

It's a half-hour spoof of tabloid Elvis stories, with the King being spotted in a supermarket and a writer claiming that Lennon and Elvis were the same person. The Elvis Is Everywhere video by Mojo Nixon is the best part. With John Cusack and Mike Myers. The director (son of Anne Meara and Jerry Stiller) later made Reality Bites.

ELVIS: THAT'S THE WAY IT IS

(MGM, 1970) D: Denis Sanders P: Herbert F. Solow

Elvis performs 27 songs (everything from "Little Sister" to "Polk Salad Annie") at the International Hotel in Las Vegas at the beginning of his first tour since 1957. The Sweet Inspirations provide the backup vocals. Some celebs shown in his audience include Cary Grant, Sammy Davis Jr., and Xavier Cugat. The year this was released, Elvis received his special-drug enforcement badge from President Nixon. Elvis' last film as an actor, the ridiculous Change of Habit, was released the same month (November). The next Elvis feature, Elvis on Tour, was live too. Sanders did Soul to Soul next.

EMANUELLE

The first Emmanuelle movie was such an international hit that, along with its sequels, a long-running "fake series" of soft-core sex adventures was created with star Laura Gemser. Gemser (or Moira Chen), a dark-skinned beauty from Java, was a major box-office draw in much of the world in the 70s. Although none of these movies did much theatrical business in the US, many are on tape under various titles. Because the Italian "Joe D'Amato" was the most frequent director, many of them are extremely twisted. There were also non-Gemser ripoffs, spoofs, and unrelated features with Emanuelle added to the titles. (And see Black Emanuelle, Caged Women, Daughter of Emanuelle, Trap Them and Kill Them, and Women's Prison Massacre.)

EMANON

(Nelson, 1986) D/S/A: Stuart Paul P: Dorothy Koster Paul, Hank Paul

The Messiah (Stuart Paul) arrives in New York City wearing rags and lives with homeless people. A crippled boy asks him for a miracle to help his mom's dress business. Read the title backwards. With Cheryl M. Lynn. Paul also made and starred in Fate (1990) with Lynn. The Paul family seems to have a (confused) mission. They also produce movies directed by Steven Paul (like Eternity). Their movies might be considered a cross between those of Frank Capra, Tom Laughlin, and Ed Wood Jr.

EMANUELLE IN AMERICA

(VSOM, 1976) D: Joe D'Amato/Aristide Massaccesi S: Maria Pia Fusco Italy

Laura Gemser is a photographer who goes from New York City to California, DC, Venice, and the Carribbean, where she visits a millionaire's mansion with a harem and uses her secret camera. This movie is so extreme that David Cronenberg was inspired by it to make Videodrome. The original 100-minute uncut version (available from Venezuela with Spanish subtitles) features Mondo and snuff movie footage (all incredible fakes), gore, hardcore sex (with extras), and horse masturbation. With Paola Senatore and Gabrielle Tinti. Gemser returned in Emanuelle Around the World, Emanuelle and the White Slave Trade, and the infamous Trap Them and Kill Them (all 1977, all by D'Amato).

EMANUELLE IN BANKOK

(VidAmerica, 1976) D/C: "Joe D'Amato"/ Aristide Massaccesi S: Maria Pia Fusco Italy (Black Emanuelle Goes East; Black Emanuelle II)

This one features the usual sex and orgies, and a snake and a muskrat fight. With Debra Berger, Ivan Rassimov as Prince Sanit, and Gabrielle Tinti. Alan Shackleton released it in America.

EMMANUELLE

(RCA, 1973) D: Just Jaeckin
S: Jean-Louis Richard France

Sylvia Kristel stars in this international erotic hit based on the autobiographical book by Emmanuelle Arson (who was in The Sand Pebbles with Steve McQueen). The liberated jet-setter has sex in an airplane, in an opium den, on a squash court with a woman, and with a couple. The character was first played by Erica Blanc in 1971, but this is the hit. It cost under a half-million and grossed more than $100 million worldwide. The biggest hit in France when it was first released, it played in one Paris cinema until 1985! It spawned an official series and even more parallel copy movies and they're still making them! Columbia released it here ("X was never like this!"), and it made nearly $5 million in North American rentals. Guitarist Fripp sued over use of his music and won. With Marika Green and Alain Cuny.

EMMANUELLE IV

(MGM, 1984) D: Francis Giacobetti S: Francis Leroy, Iris Letans P: Alain Siritzky France

Seven years after Goodbye Emmanuelle, Sylvia Kristel goes to Brazil for an operation and becomes 23-year-old Swedish model Mia Nygren, and she's in 3-D! The same ridiculous plot was used in The Resurrection of Eve (1973), a Marilyn Chambers porno movie. With Christian Marquand and Sophie Berger. It was from Cannon, but Roger Corman's Concorde added new dream scenes (including Brinke Stevens) and released it to US theaters in 2-D. Various versions were filmed, with different amounts of sex, for TV, video, and foreign markets.

EMMANUELLE V

(New Horizons, 1986/92) D/S: Walerian Borowczyk D: Steve Barnett S: Alex Cunningham, Howard R. Cohen

American beauty Monique Gabrielle stars in another "sequel." She's a (very popular) movie star who is abducted from her yacht by an Arab sheik while promoting her new hit, Love Express. Producer Roger Corman again added new and different footage for the US version and cut much of the sex (and most of the black characters) out. Heidi Payne, Michelle Burger, and Roxanna Michaels are members of the topless harem. The French version is uncut. It was filmed on the African island of Réunion. Borowczyk directed Immoral Tales (1980).

EMMANUELLE VI

(1988) D: Bruno Zincone S: Jean Rollin P: Alain Siritzk

Natalie Uher stars in this one, set in the Amazon jungle. It was made in Venezuela. Jean Rollin shot additional scenes. Sylvia Kristel returned again in Emmanuelle VII (1992), directed by Francis Leroy. A French Emmanuelle TV series starring Marcela Walerstein debuted in 1994 on Cinemax. Sylvia Kristel related sexual flashbacks filmed in various exotic locations.

EMMANUELLE, THE JOYS OF A WOMAN

(Paramount, 1975) D/S: Francis Giacobetti
S: Robert Elia France (Emmanuelle II)

Sylvia Kristel stars in the first legitimate sequel, with Umberto Orsini, Catherine Rivet, and Laura Gemser who became "Black Emanuelle" in her own series as a masseuse. The music is by Francis Lai. It was rerated NC-17 in 1991. The next in the series was Goodbye, Emmanuelle, a title as believable as Friday the 13th: The Final Chapter.

EMMA MAE: See BLACK SISTER'S REVENGE

THE EMERALD JUNGLE

(Continental, 1980) D: Umberto Lenzi
S: Rederico Zanni P: Antonio Crescenzi Italy
(Mangiati Vivi; Doomed to Die; Eaten Alive)

A blowgun assassin in New York City leaves behind an atrocity film. Janet Angren (who spends time walking around 42nd Street) and Nam deserter R. Bolla/Robert Kerman (also in Make Them Die Slowly) search for her lost sister (Paola Senatore). They go to New Guinea, where a Jim Jones type (Ivan Rassimov) lives in a village surrounded by a jungle with cannibals. He even conducts a Kool-Aid mass suicide. Animal slaughter, nudity, castration, and rape are all shown in this movie, which "borrows" scenes from Lenzi's own Man from Deep River and Deodato's Jungle Holocaust. With Me Me Lai and Mel Ferrer in a small role as a New York City professor. It was filmed in Sri Lanka. The US video title is a ripoff of John Boorman's The Emerald Forest.

(EMPEROR) CALIGULA: THE UNTOLD STORY

(TWE, 1981) D/S: "David Hills"/ Aristide Massaccesi
S: Richard Franks P: Alexander Sussman Italy

This is an attempt to outgross the more expensive Caligula (1980). Tongues are ripped out, swords go up asses, and there are many sex scenes. Laura Gemser wants to kill Caligula (David Cain Haughton) for causing the death of her girlfriend but falls for him. With Gabrielle Tinti. Michele Soavi worked on the script. An uncut hard-core version includes sex with a horse.

THE EMPEROR JONES

(Sinister, VY 1933)
D: Dudley Murphy S: Dubose Heyward P: John Krimsky-Gifford

This is Paul Robeson's second film. He plays Pullman Porter Brutus Jones, a fugitive from a chain gang who shoots dice, sings spirituals, and manages to become a Haitian ruler. He convinces the locals that he's indestructable, and becomes an emperor in a mirrored palace, surrounded by fawning courtiers. Ultimately he has to flee to a swamp filled with ghosts, where he goes mad and is killed by a silver bullet. The film is based on Eugene O'Neill's (1920) Broadway play, which had starred Robeson. The cast includes Dudley Digges, Fredi Washington, Frank Wilson, and Jackie "Moms" Mabley in a bit part! It was filmed on Long Island. Murphy had cowritten the script for Dracula (1931). Herman Rosse designed the sets for this film, Dracula, and other Universal horror classics.

ENCINO MAN

(Hollywood, 1992) D: Les Mayfield
S: Shawn Schepps P: George Zaloom

Sean Astin discovers a Cro-Magnon man (Brendan Fraser) frozen in ice while digging a swimming pool. He and a friend (MTV's Pauly Shore) clean him up and try to pass him off as a transfer student at school, and the "cool" caveman is a hit with the girls. Shore, playing a character at least ten years younger than he was at the time, is the real star. I understand the appeal of Jim Carrey, Jim Varney, Pee-wee Herman, and Wayne's World, but not Shore. The dumb PG teen comedy from Buena Vista features Megan Ward, Robin Tunney, Renee Ammann, Michael DeLuise, Mariette Hartley, and Richard Masur.

ENCORE = THE COMEBACK

ENCOUNTER AT RAVEN'S GATE

(Hemdale, 1987) D/S: Rolf De Heer
S/P: Marc Rosenberg Australia
(Incident at Raven's Gate)

Although the video box says "the best since Mad Max," this odd, unique movie is nothing like that action classic. During a drought in the outback, the red sky rains dead birds, family pets attack, ghosts are seen, and people go mad. The star is a blond punk-look guy living with his older brother and his sexy sister-in-law. An asshole opera-fanatic cop becomes a killer, and a short nuclear scientist snoops around. The clever, obscure script never explains anything, but it seems as though unseen aliens are to blame. The cinematography is excellent, and things get real strange when characters start talking in speeded-up voices. The Easybeats' "Friday on My Mind" is used twice. Check it out.

ENCOUNTERS OF THE SPOOKY KIND

(VSOM, 1981) D: Samo Hung P: Raymond Chow
Hong Kong

The world is ending in Australia again—Encounter at Raven's Gate.

A man invokes spirits (and the monkey king) when his wife cheats on him. Ten years later Hung directed and starred in Encounters of the Spooky Kind II (1990) about the ghost of a little girl.

ENDANGERED

(Academy, 1994) D/S: Nick Kellis P: Frank Kostenko Jr.

While camping, Sandra Hess is raped by four drug runners. She escapes and seeks revenge. With Rick Aiello, Martin Kove, and Rene Estevez.

ENDANGERED SPECIES

(MGM/UA, 1982) D/S: Alan Rudolph
S: Joel Bender P: Carolyn Pfeiffer

The CIA (not UFOs) turns out to be behind germ-warfare experiments responsible for cattle mutilation. Robert Urich stars as a New York detective, with JoBeth Williams, Paul Dooley, Hoyt Axton, Peter Coyote, Dan Hedaya, Harry Carey Jr., John Considine, and Heather Menzies. Zalman King was executive producer.

ENDGAME

(Media, 1983) D/S: "Steven Benson"/Aristide Massaccesi S: Alex Carver Italy (Bronx Lotta Finale)

In this Mad Max copy, the hero helps a group of telepathic people fight bikers. With Moira Chen/Laura Gemser as a telepathic mutant, Pier Luigi Conti/Al Cliver as the warrior hero, Luigi Montefiori/George Eastman, and Gordon Mitchell. Michele Soavi was the assistant director and appears in the film.

ENDLESS DESCENT

(LIVE, 1989) D/S/P: Juan Piquer Simón P: José Escriva, Francesca De Laurentiis Spain/US (The Rift)

In another Abyss ripoff, a near-future nuclear sub searches for a lost sub. They discover an air-filled world under the ocean with mutant eels, fish, and bug monsters caused by genetic experiments. Jack Scalia is the hero, Ray Wise is the villain, and R. Lee Ermy is the captain. With Deborah Adair, Ely Pouget, and Edmund Purdom.

ENDLESS LOVE

(MCA, 1981) D: Franco Zeffirelli
S: Judith Rascoe P: Dyson Lovell

Martin Hewitt is obsessed with Brooke Shields (who used a body double for love scenes), and he likes to start fires. Shirley Knight and Don Murray play her concerned parents. This pretty hilarious troubled-teen movie, based on a novel by Scott Spencer, has some interesting cast members: with James Spader (in his debut) as her brother, Tom Cruise (in his debut) as an arsonist, Jami Gertz, Richard Kiley, Beatrice Straight, and Penelope Milford. The theme is by Lionel Richie singing duet with Diana Ross. Hewitt later became a minor direct-to-video star.

THE ENDLESS SUMMER

(1966) D/S/P/E/C: Bruce Brown

Three surfers search for the perfect wave in this 16mm low-budget documentary shot in Australia, New Zealand, Tahiti, Nigeria, and Hawaii in 1963–64. They find what they're looking for in South Africa. The PG film made "$30 million" and helped spread the sport of surfing. Brown also narrates. The Sandals provided the music, and an album was released on World Pacific. Brown also made the motorcycle-racing film On Any Sunday (1971).

ENDLESS SUMMER II

(New Line, 1994) D/S/E: Bruce Brown
S/E: Dana Brown P: Ron Moler, Roger Riddell

Surfers Pat O'Connell (who uses a short board) and Robert "Wingnut" Weaver (who uses a long board) hit the big waves in Alaska, France, Fiji, Java, and Bali, in this PG sequel. Brown also narrates.

THE END OF AUGUST AT THE HOTEL OZONE

(1967) D: Jan Schmidt S: Pavel Juracek Czechoslovakia (Konec Sprna v Hotelu Ozon)

A group of survivalist women on horseback roam the post-nuke world. The only man they find is an old guy with a hotel, a phonograph, and one record of "The Beer Barrel Polka." Some actual animal-slaughter scenes are included. New Line released this minor cult film in 1970. It's subtitled.

END OF THE ROAD

(Fox, 1970) D/S/A: Aram Avakian S/P: Terry Southern S: Dennis McGuire P: Stephen F. Kesten

An English teacher (Stacy Keach) loses his mind at the clinic of Dr. D. (James Earl Jones). Inmates are encouraged to live out fantasies, and one man has sex with a chicken. With Harris Yulin, Dorothy Tristan, Grayson Hall, James Coco, Graham Jarvis, and M. Emmet Walsh. The Allied Artists release, based on a 1958 novel by John Barth, received an X rating, which is why you probably never saw it.

END OF THE WORLD

(SW, 1930/34) D/S: Abel Gance S: Andre Lang P: Ivanoff France (La Fin Du Monde)

Martial Novalic (Victor Francen, who later starred in J'Acusse) predicts a comet will destroy earth. He has an observatory and a large staff and arranges a meeting of scientists from various countries to plan a better future world. Meanwhile there's a stock market panic, martial law is declared, and Novalic is charged with treason. The common man either prays a lot or panics while the filthy rich have drunken parties. In the end, not all is lost but we get to see creative montages of mass destruction. Gance's 105-minute 1930 epic was cut to only 54 minutes and played on the American roadshow circuit in 1934 as Paris After Dark. This is the condensed verion, leaving out the main character of Novalic's Christ-like brother (played by Gance himself) and the more revealing orgy scenes. America was spared the nudity, serious politics, and blasphemous crucifixion scene, but got to see a new, long stage-bound introduction (very much like the one used for the 1930 Dracula) by Dr. Clyde Fisher. This is a real rarity.

ENEMY AGENT

(1940) D: Lew Landers S: Sam Robins, Edmund L. Hartmann P: Ben Pivar

Richard Cromwell stars as a draftsman mistaken for a spy. G-men are trying to recover some stolen security plans. This one-hour Universal B movie features footage from Radio Patrol, a 1937 serial, and was part of the original Shock TV package. With Helen Vinson, Robert Armstrong, Marjorie Reynolds, Jack Arnold, and Jack LaRue.

ENEMY GOLD

(Prism, 1993) D/P: Drew Sidaris
S: Wess Rahn, Christine Sidaris

Suzi Simpson stars (with a high-tech crossbow), and Bruce Penhall and Mark Barriere are federal agents. Hitwoman Jewel Panther (Julie Strain) and some Bolivian drug dealers are after a stash of Confederate gold in East Texas and Louisiana. With Tai Collins. There are lots of topless scenes, guns, and bikinis. It was a family affair. Parents Andy and Arlene Sidaris were the executive producers.

ENEMY MINE

(CBS/Fox, 1985) D: Wolfgang Petersen
S: Edward Khmara P: Stephen Friedman

Remember Robinson Crusoe on Mars? Well, here's an expensive version of the same idea with elements from The Mole People and modern ILM FX. Dennis Quaid and Lou Gossett Jr. (as a hermaphrodite "Drac") are both stranded on a barren planet. Gossett (with amazing makeup by Chris Walas) has escaped from space slave traders. With Brion James and Lance Kerwin. The film (based on a story by Barry B. Longyear) was started by Richard Loncrane, who shot millions of dollars worth of footage. It was all scrapped, the locations were changed, and Petersen was hired. The $33 million cost includes all of the footage shot.

ENEMY TERRITORY

(Empire, 1987) D: Peter Manoogian S: Stuart Kaminsky, Bobby Liddell P: Cythia DePaula, Tim Kincaid

Insurance agent Gary Frank is sent to the worst possible Bronx housing project, where he faces the Vampires, a black street gang. The NAACP prevented the screening of this movie in NYC, calling it racist. With Stacy Dash, Jan-Michael Vincent as a wheelchair-bound psycho Nam vet, singer Ray Parker Jr., and Tony Todd as the Count. Guest star Vincent was in the middle of his worst drug-and-alcohol abuse when he appeared.

ENEMY UNSEEN

(AIP, 1991) D/P: Elmo De Witt S/A: Greg Latter P: Desiree Markgraaf S. Africa

Vernon Wells and a multi-racial mercenary group save Roxy (Angela O'Neill) the daughter of a wealthy American industrialist from a black tribe that worships crocodiles. They sacrifice women to the croc and have subtitles when they talk. Most of the time is spent on an Apocalypse Now–style river journey. With Stack Pierce and Ken Gampu.

THE ENEMY WITHIN

(HBO, 1994) D: Jonathon Kirby S: Darryl Ponnnicssan, Ron Bass P: Robert Papazian

Forest Whitaker stars in a cable TV remake of Seven Days in May (1964) which was scripted by Rod Serling. It's about a military coup in America led by Jason Robards. With Sam Waterston and Dana Delaney.

THE ENFORCER

(Warner, 1976) D: James Fargo S: Dean Reiser, Sterling Silliphant P: Robert Daley

In the third Dirty Harry movie, Clint Eastwood is teamed with a female cop (Tyne Daly) in San Francisco. They argue and go after an underground terrorist group of Nam vets who kidnap the mayor and bomb police headquarters. With Harry Guardino, Bradford Dillman, Albert Popwell, and John Mitchum. Not to be confused with the 1951 Bogart film of the same name.

ENFORCER FROM DEATH ROW

(Lightning, 1978) D: Efron C. Pinon, Marshall M. Bordon P: Michael Badway, Michael Sullivan C: Frank Harris Philippines (Ninja Nightmare; Ninja Assassins)

Leo Fong is a kung fu fighter on death row, who is released to save the world from bad guys with a deadly bacteria in the Philippines. With bad ninjas, torture scenes, and expolsions. Cameron Mitchell has a small role. Mitchell and Fong were also in Kill Point and Low Blow, both by this feature's cinematographer.

ENTER THE DEVIL = THE TORMENTED

ENTER THE DRAGON

(Warner, 1973) D: Robert Clouse S: Michael Allin P: Fred Weintraub, Paul Heller

Bruce Lee stars in his last real movie (as Lee). It was a huge international hit, was released the year he died, and made more than $11 1/2 million in North American rentals alone. This is the most famous, most copied, and most spoofed of all kung-fu hits. It has some of the best fight scenes of all time. Many of its stars launched careers by appearing in it. John Saxon as Roper and Jim Kelly as Williams are the costars, forced to fight at a secret island fortress. Kelly spends too much time with women and is beaten and tortured. With martial-arts star Angela Mao (Ying), Shih Kien/Master Bong Soo Han (with a lethal hand attachment), Anha Capri, and Marlene Clark. Samo Hung, Jackie Chan, and other future martial-arts stars are seen briefly. Yang Sze (later billed as Bolo Yeung or "the Chinese Hercules") was still playing bad guys in martial-arts movies in the 90s. The Lalo Schifrin soundtrack is on Warner.

ENTER THE NINJA

(MGM/UA, 1981) D/S: Menahem Golan S/P: Judd Bernard S: Dick Desmond P: Yoram Globus

Franco Nero as Cole goes to the Philippines to help his friend Alex Courtney save his plantation. Susan George costars, Sho Kosugi is the bad ninja, and Christopher George is the main villain. People scoffed at Nero as a martial-arts fighter (this was years after he starred in Italian westerns) and this movie is pretty silly, but it was popular, and Kosugi (not Nero) returned in more Cannon ninja movies.

THE ENTITY

(CBS/Fox, 1982) D: Sidney J. Furie S: Frank De Felitta P: Harold Schneider

Barbara Hershey stars as a suburban single mom who is repeatedly raped by an invisible demon. Nobody believes her, of course, until she's isolated at a university and the supernatural being shows up and is frozen. Scenes of Hershey naked and being molested were done with special effects and fake body parts (by Stan Winston). The 42nd Street audience went wild. With Ron Silver, Alex Rocco, and Jacqueline Brooks. It was adapted from De Felitta's novel, which was supposedly based on an actual case (!?). He also wrote Audrey Rose. It was released by 20th Century–Fox.

EPITAPH

(City Lights, 1987) D/S/P: Joseph Merhi P: Richard Pepin

An LA detective (Jim Williams) covers up the murders committed by his wife (Delores Nascar). She uses many imaginative, sick ways to kill (mostly) men.

EQUALIZER 2000

(MGM/UA, 1986) D: Cirio H. Santiago S/A: Frederick Bailey P: Leonard Hermes Philippines

The title refers to a gun. This is a dumb Mad Max clone set in Alaska "100 years after the nuclear winter." Penthouse Pet of the Year Corinne Alphen (later Wahl) was Miss Nude Massachusetts of 1987. She stars with the bearded Australian Richard Norton as Slade, who lives in a cave equipped with a metalworking shop. With Robert Patrick and Filipino character actor Vic Diaz.

Jim Kelly, John Saxon and Bruce Lee in Enter The Dragon.

EQUINOX

(Columbia, 1993) D/S: Alan Rudolph P: David Blocker

Identical twins (both Matthew Modine) in the near-future city of Empire live parallel lives. One is a gangster, one is a shy garage mechanic. Sometimes Rudolph tries to make easy-to-follow hits. This isn't one of them. With Tyra Ferrell as a morgue attendent trying to solve a mystery, Marisa Tomei, Lara Flynn Boyle, Lori Singer, Fred Ward, M. Emmet Walsh, Kevin J. O'Connor, and Tate Donovan. Not to be confused with the 1967 film of the same name.

ERIKA'S HOT SUMMER

(SW, 1970) D/P/C: Gary Graver P: Paul Hunt

A playboy photographer takes nude shots of a woman outdoors, goes to a hippie dance where the strobe lights never stop, and has sex with another woman. All the while, he remembers the one who got away (Vixen star Erica Gavin). Erica is the reason this Box Office International release did business. She strips and runs on the beach naked, falls in love, and frolics with the photographer in frequent flashbacks. The soft-rock music and romantic tone make it seem like an attempt at a "couples movie." The ending is memorable.

ERIK THE VIKING

(Orion, 1989) D/S/A: Terry Jones P: John Goldstone UK

Tim Robbins (a few years before audiences realized who he was) stars as the dumb but sensitive Erik, at the battle of Ragnarok. He sails to the end of the world (and to Atlantis, to Hell, and over the rainbow). This PG-13 comedy from the co-director of Monty Python and the Holy Grail features Mickey Rooney as the grandfather, John Cleese as Halfdan the Black, Eartha Kitt, Freddie Jones, and a dragon. The Norse gods are revealed to be little kids. It was filmed in Norway and Malta. The music is by Neil Innes.

ERNEST GOES TO CAMP

(Touchstone, 1987) D/S: John Cherry S: Coke Sams P: Stacy Williams

A lot of stars do commercials, but this is a case of a guy who did successful (local) TV commercials becoming a movie star (for a while at least) because of them. Jim Varney (from Lexington, Kentucky) had been on Fernwood 2-night and other TV shows since 1976. Cherry had directed nearly 4,000 Ernest P. Worrell commercials (compiled on the Ernest Film Festival and Hey, Vern! It's My Family Album videos) and the obscure Dr. Otto and the Riddle of the Gloom Beam. This PG comedy hit was filmed in Nashville. Ernest is a very dumb janitor put in charge of summer-camp misfits. With John Vernon, Iron Eyes Cody, and Lyle Alzado. It made nearly $10 million in North American rentals, so sequels followed, from Disney's Touchstone.

ERNEST GOES TO JAIL

(Touchstone, 1990) D/S: John Cherry P: Stacy Williams

There were so many prison/horror/electric-chair movies in the late 80s that this PG parody was inevitable. Jim Varney as Ernest P. Worrell ends up in jail. Varney plays Ernest and his evil lookalike too. With Charles Napier as the warden, Randall "Tex" Cobb, and the actress with the topical name, Barbara Bush.

ERNEST RIDES AGAIN

(Monarch, 1993) D/S: John Cherry
S: William A. Akers P: Stacy Williams Canada

Ernest helps a Virginia college professor (Ron K. James) find a Revolutionary War cannon with the British crown jewels hidden inside. This Indiana Jones–inspired PG chase comedy was shot in British Columbia by an independent production company. Ernest Goes to School (Monarch), by a different director, followed.

ERNEST SAVES CHRISTMAS

(Touchstone, 1988) D: John Cherry S: B. Kline, Ed Turner P: Stacy Williams, Doug Claybourne

Christmas movies have always been a sure box-office bet. Enough people will always send their kids to watch them. Jim Varney as Ernest, a Florida cabdriver, picks up Santa, who is looking for a successor. With Douglas Seale, Oliver Clark, and Billie Bird.

ERNEST SCARED STUPID

(Touchstone, 1991) D/S: John Cherry P: Stacy Williams

In the fourth and last of the PG series made by Disney's Touchstone, a witch accidentally releases an indestructible, evil, giant troll in Missouri on Halloween. It turns kids into wooden voodoo dolls and unleashes other trolls and monsters. Jim Varney (who plays several characters) stars, with Eartha Kitt and a truck-driving dog.

EROTICA

(1961) D/S/P/C/E/A: Russ Meyer P: Peter D. Cenzie

This rare, early Russ Meyer film is nothing but a series of six shorts presented by an onscreen film editor. They have names like Bikini Busters and Nudists on the High Seas. It's 65 minutes.

THE EROTIC ADVENTURES OF PINOCCHIO

(American, 1971) D/S: Corey Allen S/P: Chris Warfield

A fairy godmother (blond Dyanne Thorne, looking great) strips and introduces this dumb sex-comedy version of the familiar children's story, which should have been on a double bill with Lady Frankenstein. Cepeta (nudie regular Monica Gayle) works naked, carving "the perfect man" (Alex Roma). The naive "wooden" man is led astray by Jojo and ends up satisfying all the women at a whorehouse. In a lesbian scene Uschi Digart and her friend have dubbed-in male voices. Pinocchio even performs in a live sex show. His penis (never shown without covering) grows "three feet" long. Women throw wreaths on it, walk on it, and ride it. A running gag is that Thorne waves her magic wand and accidentally makes her clothes disappear. This was the first film by former teen actor Corey Allen, from Cleveland (Rebel Without a Cause), who went on to direct Avalanche (1978) and TV's Star Trek: The Next Generation (1987). Ray Dennis Steckler was the cinematographer, and his wife Carolyn Brandt has a small role watching the sex show. Back in 1971, Adam Film World magazine put out a Pinocchio photo comic (just like the great Horror of Party Beach magazine) for $1. Try and find a copy now!

EROTIC ADVENTURES OF SUPERKNIGHT

(Academy, 1976) D/S/P: Raphael Nussbaum (The Amorous Adventures of Don Quixote and Sancho Panza)

This unique R-rated American musical/sex comedy set in Spain has good (dubbed) singing and some pretty outrageous and funny lyrics (a woman sings "You Come Too Soon," for instance). With Patrick Wright and Haji, from Russ Meyer films. It almost seems like an attempt at making a period rock musical with lots of nudity. The assistant director was Henning Schellerup (In Search of Historic Jesus).

THE EROTIC ADVENTURES OF ZORRO

(SW, 1971) D: Robert Freeman S/P: David F. Friedman

After a nice photo-comic-book come-to-life credit sequence, a narrator takes us back to LA 150 years ago. It's the usual Zorro story with lots of dumb gags and jokes plus sex and full nudity. The sex-in-the-straw scene is pretty hot, and there are the expected lesbian and whipping scenes and masturbation by foot. Douglas Frey stars as Don Diego/Zorro, who puts on a gay act. Costar Robyn Whiting (real name Jackie Giroux) later married Steve Railsback. With John Alderman as Esteban and Bob Cresse as Sergeant Phil Latio. It was filmed on the old Selznick lot used for Duel in the Sun and has high production values. French and German producers put up two-thirds of the money (about $75,000 total!). The color print is very good. There was also The Erotic Adventures of the Three Musketeers, from West Germany, the same year.

EROTIC EVE: See BLACK COBRA

EROTIC ILLUSION: See THE LICKERISH QUARTET

EROTIC INSTINCT: See THE LICKERISH QUARTET

EROTIC NIGHTS OF THE LIVING DEAD

(VSOM, 1980) D/C: "Joe D'Amato"/Aristide Massaccessi Italy (Le Notte Erotiche dei Morte Viventi)

A man buys the supposedly uninhabited tropical cat island and goes there with a woman and the owner of a boat. A mysterious woman (Black Emanuelle series star Laura Gemser) is there with her grandfather (who can't be photographed), lots of cats (seen in frequent closeups), and (finally) slow-moving maggot-faced zombies in rags. Meanwhile, the main part of this movie is one (unfinished) sex scene after another (on a boat, in the water, on the beach) and some nude dancing. The sex-crazed survivor (George Eastman) is seen in a mental hospital at the beginning and end of the movie, which has been subtitled in English for the first time. Porno Holocaust is the same movie with hard-core inserts. The full-length Italian version runs 103 minutes.

THE EROTIC RITES OF FRANKENSTEIN

(Nightmare, 1972) D/S: Jesús Franco
P: Victor de Costa Spain/France
(La Maldición de Frankenstein)

Cagliostro (Howard Vernon) has Dr. Frankenstein killed and kidnaps his daughter, Vera (blond Britt Nichols), and the monster (Fernando Bilbo). He keeps her chained in the basement, holds a coven with masked, naked zombie women, and creates a (naked) woman. In the most outrageous scene Vera and a man are tied up (naked) back to back over poison spikes while the monster flogs them. Anne Lipert plays an interesting (naked) bird woman with blue feathers, lethal claws, and psychic powers. Vernon's fake goatees change from scene to scene. Dennis Price appears in one scene as the doctor, and Franco is his assistant. This ridiculous (but imaginative) movie has some jazz on the soundtrack. It was made in Portugal. Letterboxed copies are around. They same cast appeared in Franco's The Screaming Dead the same year.

EROTIC TALES

(1994) D/S: Bob Rafelson, Susan Seidelman, Ken Russell, Melvin Van Peebles, Paul Cox, Mani Kaul

6 mostly comic stories make up this international compilation film, much like similar ones from Europe in the 60s but with more nudity. Rafelson's stars Arliss Howard and Cynda Williams.

Seidelman's is a fantasy with a woman who enters the world of a Dutch painting and Van Peebles's features a motorcycle that becomes a woman.

THE EROTIC TOUCH OF HOT SKIN

(Video Dimensions, 1964) D/S: Max Pecas
S: Maurice Cury, Robert Torolt

A young couple become involved with a murder (and a younger woman). Fabienne Dali (later in Kill, Baby, Kill), Sophie Hardy (who strips her clothes off several times), and Jean Valmont star in this b/w dark, adult crime film. Radley Metzger shot and added new footage in America, and his Audubon company released the film in the US. Several strip sequences seem to have been added.

EROTIKILL

(Force, 1973) D/S/A: "J. P. Johnson"/ Jesús Franco S: Gerard Brissard P: Marius Lesoeur France (La Comtesse Noir; The Bare-Breasted Countess; The Loves of Irina)

Lina Romay stars as (the mute) Countess Irina Karlstein, a cursed vampire who can become a bat. She falls for a poet (Jack Taylor). Franco plays a forensic surgeon, and Dr. Orloff shows up as a blind hippie. With Monica Swinn and Alice Arno. Erotikill is the 72-minute horror version. The Loves of Irina (Private Screenings) is a much longer sex/horror version without the vampire angle. A European version includes hard-core deep-throat sex scenes. It was shot on a Portuguese island. Video Search of Miami offers the ultimate subtitled composite version for Franco collectors.

ESCAPADE IN JAPAN

(1957) D/P: Arthur Lubin S: Winston Miller

Jon Provost (from Lassie) and Roger Nakagawa are the kid stars of this light Technicolor film made on location in Japan. Cameron Mitchell and Teresa Wright are the parents, and Clint Eastwood is Dumbo, a helpful American pilot. Eastwood was in three earlier Arthur Lubin films: Francis in the Navy, Lady Godiva, and The First Traveling Saleslady. This was made by RKO but released by Universal after Howard Hughes sold his studio.

THE ESCAPE ARTIST

(Vestron, 1980) D: Caleb Deschanel
S: Melissa Mathison, Stephen Zito
P: Doug Claybourne, Buck Houghton

Griffin O'Neal stars as the son of a magician killed by corrupt local politicians. He investigates on his own and does some Houdini-inspired escapes. Francis Ford Coppola was the executive producer. The director had shot The Right Stuff and Being There. Mathison cowrote E.T. (and married Harrison Ford). Few people saw the film when it was finally released by Orion in 1982. I liked it for the cast, the fact that it was partially shot in Cleveland, and a scene in a magic store owned by Jackie (Uncle Fester) Coogan (in his last role). The store's walls are covered with rare items from the collection of magician Bill Weldon (my father). With Raul Julia, Desi Arnaz (in his last role) as the mayor, Teri Garr, Joan Hackett (in her last role), John P. Ryan, M. Emmet Walsh, Huntz Hall, and Gabriel Dell.

ESCAPE FROM BLOOD PLANTATION

(Marathon, 1982)
D/S/A: Kurt Raab W. Germany
(Insel der Blutigen Plantage)

"Bloody Olga" runs a Philippine island prison with the help of three horny dwarfs. With spiders, voodoo, and female inmates. Udo Kier and Barbara Valentine star, with the director. All of them had been in Fassbinder features, so don't expect action. The theme song is The Island of the Bloody Plantation.

ESCAPE FROM CELL BLOCK 3: See WOMEN UNCHAINED

ESCAPE FROM HELL: See SAVAGE ISLAND

ESCAPE FROM PLANET EARTH = DOOMSDAY

ESCAPE FROM SAFEHAVEN

(Sony, 1988) D/S: Brian Thomas Jones, James McCalmont P: Steven Mackler

A punk-look post-nuke NYC bomb shelter is the setting. The villains are British, and there's a topless blond dominatrix. It was shot in Brooklyn by the makers of Rejuvenator.

ESCAPE FROM SURVIVAL ZONE

(AIP, 1990) D: Chris Jones S: Mark Talbot-Butler
P: Geoff Griffiths, John E. Eyres

Terence Ford (brother of Harrison) stars as an alcoholic news photographer who discovers a scandal at a survivalist training camp.

ESCAPE FROM TERROR

(1960) D: George Coogan D/A: Jackie Coogan S/P: Egon C. Nielsen

"It's Yankee ingenuity vs. ruthless red-agent cunning!" The future Uncle Fester (Coogan) stars as MVD agent Petrov (and directs!). Mona Knox and Mike Stokey escape from the Baltics to Copenhagen. Gabriel Dell and Lynn Merrick also appear. The Coogan Film production is in b/w and color. Coogan was in Sex Kittens Go to College the same year.

ESCAPE FROM THE BRONX

(Media, 1983) D: Enzo G. Castellari
S: Dardana Sachetti Italy (Fuga dal Bronx)

Mark Gregory returns as Trash in a violent post-nuke sequel to 1990: The Bronx Warriors. With Henry Silva as the head of the goverment extermination squad and Timothy Brent.

ESCAPE FROM WOMEN'S PRISON

(VGB, Lettuce, Continental, 1974) D: Conrad Buegnel S: Giovanni Brusatori S/P: Bruno Fontana P: Aldo Baglietta Italy (Mujer Contra Mujer)

Four women on the run (including a revolutionary and a lesbian drug addict) hijack a bus full of tennis players. They hold them hostage and abuse them in a mansion. A Dick Randall presentation, it was on a tape with Sweet Sugar.

ESCAPES

(Prism, 1986) D/S/P: David Steensland
P: Angela Sanders

Vincent Price, as a mailman, introduces 6 mediocre Twilight Zone–type short stories. At the beginning, he delivers an Escapes tape to a kid, who then watches it. The end concept is copied from Dead of Night. With John Mitchum. Price wasn't choosing his projects with much care at this point.

ESCAPE 2000

(Nelson, 1980) D: Brian Trenchard-Smith
S: Jon George, Neill Hicks P: Anthony I. Ginane, William Fayman Australia (Turkey Shoot)

In the future (1995), a fascist government puts rebel "deviants" in a concentration camp. Star Steve Railsback is tortured in a cage. Olivia Hussey takes showers and is nearly gang-raped. Michael Craig runs the camp, where prisoners are allowed to escape, then are tracked down. Australian critics chose it as the worst movie ever made in their country. With Lynda Stoner, Carmen Duncan, and a killer female midget. The extreme violence (and some nudity) was cut for the 77-minute New World US release, but there were rating problems anyway. Brian May provided the soundtrack.

ESMERALDA BAY

(VSOM, 1989) D/S/A: Jesús Franco S/P: Daniel Lesoeúr France/Spain (La Bahia Esmeralda)

A corrupt colonel, Madero (Brett Halsey), runs the Central American republic of Puerto Santo. This spy story features Robert Foster as a rebel leader, Fernando Rey as the president, George Kennedy as a rich arms dealer, Ramón Sheen (Estevez), and Lina Romay.

ETERNAL EVIL

(Vestron, 1985) D: George Mihalka S: Robert Geoffrin P: Pieter Kroonenburg Canada (A Blue Man)

Winston Rekert stars as a TV commercial director who sees killings in his sleep. The story involves astral projection and ancient couples who inhabit young bodies. The disorienting special effects, from an out-of-body-experience point of view, and some erotic scenes make this pretty interesting. With Karen Black as a lesbian and Lois Maxwell (from James Bond movies). By the director of My Bloody Valentine.

ETERNITY

(Academy, 1989) D/S/A: Stephen Paul S/A: Jon Voight S: Dorothy Kostner Paul (Avator)

It's hard to figure why, after years away from the screen, Oscar winner Jon Voight would cowrite and star in this preachy, illogical, flashback-filled feel-good fantasy movie, which tries to be the new Billy Jack. I'd consider the concept of reincarnation, but all the characters in the medieval British scenes somehow show up in modern-day America reincarnated as similar characters! Voight plays an honest, cosmic morning-TV host and studio owner. He's a friend to the Indians, rides a white horse, and says, "Let's live in peace and harmony." At one point his old self gets to comfort and advise his modern self. Armand Assante and John P. Ryan are the villains. Voight's reincarnated true love (Eileen Davidson) is naked in the flashbacks and has sex standing up (with her clothes on) with Assante. It all ends with religious imagery as the whole country rises up against rampant corruption. The oddball cast includes Wilford Brimley ("It's the right thing to do"), Kaye Ballard, Lainie Kazan, Charles Dierkof, Frankie Valli as Guido, and Jilly Rizzo. Young do-it-all Paul also made Slapstick of Another Kind (1982), starring Jerry Lewis. His parents back movies made by him and his brother, Stuart.

EUREKA

(MGM, 1983) D: Nicolas Roeg S: Paul Mayersberg P: Jeremy Thomas UK

Gene Hackman stars as a prospector who, after many years, strikes gold. He buys a tropical island, but gangsters show up and want it for a gambling resort. As his life and family fall apart, a voodoo ceremony/orgy takes place (resembling some scenes from the later Angel Heart). It all ends in a trial for murder and Citizen Kane–inspired flashbacks. This complex, troubled,129-minute film was (barely) released in theaters by United Artists. Theresa Russell costars as the daughter, with Rutger Hauer, Ed Lauter, Joe Pesci, and Mickey Rourke.

EUROPE IN THE RAW

(1963) D/P/C: Russ Meyer

You may never see this early Mondo-style sex documentary by Meyer, because he later used footage from it, featuring Denise Duvall, Heidi Richter, and other beauties, for his Mondo Topless (1966). Strippers and prostitutes are shown in various European cities.

EVE AND THE HANDYMAN

(RM, 1960) D/S/P/C/E: Russ Meyer

Meyer's second feature stars his wife, Eve, in all the major female roles. She also narrates. Dressed as a detective, she follows the comic handyman (Anthony James-Ryan) as he encounters artists, hitchhikers, and nude sunbathers. The 65-minute film, shot in San Francisco, was shown with a 10-minute Meyer short called The Naked Camera. Meyer released this on tape for the first time in 1992. He did not direct Eve and the Merman, a 1965 nudie.

EVEL KNIEVEL

(1971) D: Marvin Chomsky S: John Milius, Allan Caillou P/A: George Hamilton

When you think of George Hamilton's hits, there's Love at First Bite (1979) and this one. He plays the real-life motorcycle daredevil and 70s media star, and there's lots of stunt work. With Vic Tayback, Dub Taylor, Sue Lyon, Bert Freed, Judy Baldwin, Rod Cameron, and Cheryl "Rainbeaux" Smith. The real Evel was in Viva Knievel! (1978). Milius also cowrote The Devil's Eight (1969).

EVEN COWGIRLS GET THE BLUES

(New Line, 1993) D/S: Gus Van Sant P: Lauir Parker

This rambling feminist fantasy road movie was based on Tom Robbins' "unfilmable" 1976 novel. Uma Thurman (who narrates) stars as the wide-eyed hitchhiking virgin model Cissy Hamkshaw (with extra large thumbs). In 1973, Countess (John Hurt) sends her to the Rubber Rose Ranch where she meets a band of renegade lesbian cowgirls who use peyote. With Rain Phoenix as Jellybean, and Lorraine Bracco. Keanu Reeves is an Indian, Pat Morita is a wise man in a cave, and Buck Henry is a doctor. Other small roles are played by Angie Dickinson, Sean Young paired with Crispin Glover, Ed Begley Jr. paired with Carol Kane, Udo Kier, Roseanne Arnold, Ken Kesey, and singer Victoria Williams. William Burroughs is seen crossing a street. The U.S Fine Line premiere was delayed for the director to reedit and the narration by Robbins was added. k.d. lang is on the hit soundtrack. The FX are by Steve Johnson.

EVEN DWARFS STARTED SMALL

(1969) D/S/P/M: Werner Herzog W. Germany (Auch Zwerge Haben Klein Angefangen)

Of all of Herzog's unusual films, this might be his most extreme statement. It's also the first movie since The Terror of Tiny Town with a cast of "little people." Some of the dwarfs and midgets who are inmates at the "institution" stage a revolt, trash the place, torment other (blind) dwarfs and midgets, fight one another for power, and crucify a monkey.

EVEN HITLER HAD A GIRLFRIEND

(Scorched Earth, 1991) D/S/M: Ronnie Cramer

A soft-spoken depressed, voyeuristic security guard eats beef jerky and watches cable TV in his underwear. He also narrates and/or thinks out loud throughout the whole film. He worries that he looks like a serial killer, and his father shows up on TV to criticize him. He starts calling for hookers (and bargains them down on the phone), gets a video camera, and tapes the paid-for sex. He also catches crab lice and has even more problems. The music (by Cramer's Alarming Trends) is fine, and most the the movie is pretty believable, but it sure isn't much fun to watch. Star Andy Scott was later shot to death while working at a convienence store. It was made in Omaha. A sequel is The Hitler Tapes.

EVE OF DESTRUCTION

(Nelson, 1991) D/S: Duncan Gibbons S: Yale Udoff P: David Madden

Dutch actress Renee Soutendijk stars as Dr. Eve Simmons and her lookalike android creation, Eve VIII. The lethal robot (with a nuclear device) escapes and lives out some of her divorced creator's fantasies. She kills whenever a man calls her a bitch and picks up a guy in a bar and bites off his cock (offscreen). Gregory Hines as an antiterrorist specialist tries to stop the confused, out-of-control robo-woman. With Kevin McCarthy as the abusive father, Michael Greene, and Nancy Locke. It starts in San Francisco, moves to a small town, and has a senseless ending involving a baby in a New York City subway station. It's not very good. The Philip Sarde soundtrack is on Colossal. It's from Orion.

EVERYBODY LOVES IT

(SW, 1964) D: Phillip Mark S/P: Edward Everitt

Alfred E. Newman, Hitler, and Ben Casey show up in this color nudie comedy. A comic voice narrates, and a TV-studio janitor is the main character. The topless and nearly nude scenes were the selling points, but the comedy dominates. Combat, The Naked City, and Marlboro cigarette TV ads are other targets of spoofs. In the best scenes women do the twist outdoors. With Little Jack Little (from Not Tonight, Henry) as the Dr. Zorba character.

EVERY BREATH

(Columbia, 1992) D/S: Steve Bing S/A: Judd Nelson S: Andrew Fleming P: Steve Stabler, Brad Kevoy

Nelson is pretty uninteresting as a broke, unemployed actor who is beaten up twice in one day. He follows Joanna Pacula to a lesbian club, then to her home. She's afraid of her rich arms-dealer husband (Patric Bachau), who likes to bury people alive and watch them on a wall of TVs. It all turns out to be dangerous game-playing by the bored couple. John Pyper Ferguson costars in this dull movie. The music is by Nils Lofgren.

EVERY MAN FOR HIMSELF AND GOD AGAINST ALL

(1974) D/S/P: Werner Herzog (Jeder, Fur Sich und Gott Gegen Alle; The Mystery of Kaspar Hauser)

A wild boy (Bruno S.) found in the 1820s near Nuremberg learns to read and write quickly. He claims he was kept in a hole for 16 years and some think he's the heir to the Dukedom of Baden. Hauser was later murdered. One of Herzog's greatest films, it's based on a German legend/mystery. A new version was made in 1993.

EVIL ALTAR

(Southgate, 1988) D: Jim Winburn
S: Bred Friedman P: Robert A. Miller

Now, here's a plot. In the small town of Red Rock, big and bald William Smith is Reed Weller, a (French?) Satanist wearing all-black clothes and Chinese slippers. He orders "the collector," his one assistant, "Bring me 103 victims. The last must be a virgin, and they must not be from this town." 30 years later, the collector, looking like a demented bum in mirror sunglasses and a stocking cap, is still at it, stuffing bodies in a dirty sack. Weller also changes the future for locals who cooperate with him. Robert Z'Dar (from Maniac Cop), a strange-looking actor nearly as big as Smith, plays an asshole cop who helps cover up the disappearances of all the missing children. At one point the collector dies, then shows up on a TV set. A floating killer baseball threatens a young girl. This ridiculous movie has lots of nonsense dialogue and some serious continuity problems. The synthesizer score goes, "Aahhhhh!"

THE EVIL BELOW

(Raedon, 1989) D: Jean-Claude Dubois S: Art Payne P: Barrie Saint Claire South Africa

Wayne Crawford, as Max Cash, and June Chadwick dive for sunken treasure. There are shark attacks, a cursed island, and lots of nightmare scenes.

EVIL CLUTCH

(Rhino, 1988) D/S: Andreas Marfori
P: Agnes Fontana Italy (Notte nel Bosco)

A young couple on vacation in a small town are warned of danger by a strange man on a motorcycle who talks with a voice box. A young woman who asks them for help is really some kind of demon. The filmakers must have seen the Evil Dead movies a few times, because the rest of the movie is nonsense dismemberment, chainsaws, and gore, taken to absurd extremes. There's a lot of pointless and irritating POV camera work. The title is from an early scene, where a guy's crotch is clawed. It was made in Italy (in and around a nice-looking old town) but everyone speaks English with very strong accents. The director returned with Desperate Crimes.

EVIL COME, EVIL GO

(Luna, 1972) D/S: Walt Davis P: Robert C. Chin

Sister Sarah Jane Butler (Cleo O'Hara, using a hillbilly accent) has her own religion on the streets of LA. She sings hymns, plays an accordion, and preaches against "pleasurable sex" and "love-generation men" in front of Grauman's Chinese Theater. Penny (Sandra Harrison) takes her in ("I'm a lesbian, but I'll stop it") and becomes her disciple and servant, luring men to be killed, robbed, then buried in the yard. This odd adult movie has some bloody scenes, some (near-X) sex scenes (lesbian and straight), and comic sound effects. In the non-ending, a folksinging hippie, seen in the background earlier, follows the women. O'Hara is pretty convincing. With porno stars Rick Cassidy and John Holmes (playing pool!). Chin directed some of Holmes' best-known features, and Holmes was the assistant director of this one!

THE EVIL DEAD

(HBO, 1982) D/S: Sam Raimi P: Robert G. Tapert

This first-time, low-budget horror movie not only led to a successful career for its creator but was one of the most original features of the 80s. It was started in 1979 (as Book of the Dead), shot in 16mm in Tennessee. Effects shots were added in Franklin, Michigan. It was eventually completed for $90,000. That money came from Detroit-area dentists and doctors (who got a 350 percent return on their investment). It hit in the UK first, and a Stephen King quote helped spread the word. New Line released it in the US in 1983. The whole cast, five students in a remote cabin, open a book they shouldn't, are possessed, mutate, and attack one another. The plot is the same as Equinox (1967), itself a recommended cult film. The innovative "shakycam" camerawork has been imitated a lot (especially in Hong Kong). Future director Joel Coen was the assistant editor. Bruce Campbell stars as Ash. Two not-so-cheap sequels followed. The Joseph DeLuca soundtrack was released on Varèse Sarabande.

Bruce Campbell is Ash in The Evil Dead.

EVIL DEAD II: DEAD BY DAWN

(Vestron, 1987) D/S: Sam Raimi
S: Scott Spiegel P: Robert G. Tapert

Raimi got more money and made a more gory, outrageous, and relentless comedy remake of The Evil Dead. It starts with a refilmed, condensed recap of the first film, covering the whole plot in ten minutes. It was backed by De Laurentiis and DEG, who released it unrated. Steve Wang designed some of the mind-boggling FX. Bruce Campbell returns as Ash, and Sarah Berry is the daughter of the archeologist who originally unleashed the demons. Ash battles his own hand (which laughs at him), and there's the incredible flying eyeball (!). Some of the humor is Three Stooges–inspired, and the surprise cosmic ending set the scene for Army of Darkness (1992). The cast includes Theodore Raimi. The Joseph DeLuca soundtrack was released on Varese Sarabande.

EVIL DEAD TRAP

(VSOM, 1991) D: Seishu Ikeda
Japan (Shiryo No Wana)

The TV-hostess star (Miyuki Ono) of Nami's Late Night receives a snuff video in the mail. She and four young female coworkers and one guy go to what seems to be an abandoned former American army base to investigate and most of them (and a nearby rapist) are killed (decapitation, impalement). The influence of Dario Argento is strong in this nearly plotless gore movie, and the music even sounds like Goblin. The mystery killer, in a touch of Peeping Tom, listens to tapes of his mother's accusing voice. A few scenes are impressive, but there are way too many false scares. The letterboxed tape is subtitled. The Japanese title means "creation of a ghost." Hideki: Evil Dead Trap II (1993), directed by Isou Hashimoto, features a haunted female movie projectionist. More sequels followed.

EVIL IN THE SWAMP

(Chivron, 1974) D: Burt Kennedy S: Clyde Ware
P: Roger Lewis (All the Kind Strangers)

Seven orphans, in a remote farm house with killer dogs, trap people to be their new parents. Stacy Keach and Samantha Eggar star, with John Savage, Robby Benson (who also sings the theme song), and Arlene Farber. It was filmed in Tennessee and it debuted on ABC-TV.

EVIL JUDGMENT

(Media, 1984) D/S/P: Claudio Castravele S: Victor Montesana
P: George Amssellem Italy

A waitress (Pamela Collyer) joins her hooker friend (Nanette Workman) at a secluded mansion to be with a rich old man. Meanwhile, a psycho slasher who has escaped from an asylum shows up. This bloody movie was filmed in Canada.

THE EVIL OF DRACULA

(Paramount, 1975) D: Michio Yamamoto S: Ei Ogawa, Masaru Takasue Japan (Chio o Suu Bara)

Like some then-recent Hammer vampire movies, this is set at a remote girls' school. Toshio Kurosawa stars as a new professor who is bitten by the vampire wife of the vampire principal. Flashbacks to 200 years earlier show how a European sailor arrived and spread the terror because he had been forced to renounce Christianity. The third and last of Toho's western-style vampire movies by the same director, it was released to TV in the US. The Vampire Doll (1970) and The Lake Of Dracula (1971) were the others.

EVIL ROY SLADE

(1972) D/A: Jerry Paris S/P: Garry Marshall, Jerry Belson

John Astin stars as a man who was raised by wolves in a western comedy pilot for a series (Sheriff Who?) that would have shown good guy guest stars being killed every week. The villains would be the regulars. The series never happened, but the NBC pilot (actually two episodes) developed a small cult following and Salvador Dali reportedly said it was his favorite film. With Mickey Rooney, Dick Shawn, Pam Austin, and Dom DeLuise. Also with Milton Berle, Henry Gibson, Edie Adams, Luana Anders, Pat Morita, Penny Marshall, and John Ritter.

EVILS OF THE NIGHT

(Lightning, 1983) D/S/P: Mardi Rustam S: Philip Dennis Connors

If you want a good example of inept filmmaking created just to supply product and like to see once-popular stars degraded, this is for you! A "space vampire" doctor (John Carradine) is seeking blood for his dying planet. The all-star cast of this mind-numbing movie from the Rustam brothers, Mardi and Mohammed (Psychic Killer, Eaten Alive), is outstanding. The plot is recycled from Rustam's Evil Town. Julie "Catwoman" Newmar and Tina Louise are the doc's assistants. Louise ("the movie star" on Gilligan's Island) replaced Newmar as Stupefyin' Jones in Lil' Abner on Broadway back in the 50s. Here they are together! The dumb and sadistic garage mechanics are played by Aldo Ray and Neville Brand (!), who were both in Rustam's production The Psychic Killer (1975) and died in the early 90s. Brand also starred in Tobe Hooper's amazing Eaten Alive (1976), produced by Mardi, but this was his last known role. The fourth most decorated soldier in America's history unfortunately developed a very bad drug and drinking problem. You might wonder how this tape managed to avoid an X rating, especially the parts with porno stars Amber Lynn, Jerry Butler, and Crystal Breeze. The cast also includes Dawn Wildsmith.

EVIL SPAWN

(Camp, 1986) D/S: Kenneth J. Hall P: Anthony Brewster, Frank Bresee

Bobbie Bresee (Mausoleum) is a faded blond star who injects a youth serum that backfires and turns her into an insect monster, all because she wants the lead in Savage Goddess. John Carradine appears for a few minutes. He's the feeble Dr. Zeitman, who tells crazy, evil Donna Shock (Dawn Wildsmith, with really stiff hair), "Carry on with my plan." Bresee has an eye-catching nude shower scene, then looks pretty funny when her teeth grow and her eyes turn red and later when she has a rubber face. She dreams that she wins an Oscar. Forrest J. Ackerman, who helped make Bobbie Bresee a "cult figure," is seen cleaning a pool. This movie has laughable special effects, lots of nudity, and a script obsessed with the making of cheap movies. Choice bad dialogue is repeated over and over in the deranged actress's mind. Despite everything, Evil Spawn is nonstop fun in a sort of desperate way. The best part is when stunning Pamela Gilbert, as the monster woman's secretary, goes for a nude swim. Uncredited executive producer Fred Olen Ray shot the Carradine footage, did rewrites, and shot additional footage. He later prepared a new version called The Alien Within (1990).

EVIL SPIRITS

(Prism, 1990) D/C: Gary Graver S/A: Michael Angel P: Sidney Niekerk

Deranged Karen Black owns a boardinghouse where tenants die. She cashes their government checks, turns them into meat loaf, and talks to her husband's mummified corpse. The Psycho-derived horror comedy features Arte Johnson, Michael Berryman, Martine Beswick, Robert Quarry, Anthony Eisley, Bert Remsen, and Debra Lamb (who dances naked). Virginia Mayo and Yvette Vickers make their first appearances in many years. Graver also shot many Fred Olen Ray movies with many of the same actors.

EVIL STALKS THIS HOUSE

(1981) D: Gordon Hessler S: Deke Heyward (A Tale Of Evil)

Jack Palance stars in a cheap-looking TV pilot for a series that never happened called Tales of the Haunted. The host is Christopher Lee.

THE EVIL THAT MEN DO

(RCA/Columbia, 1984) D: J. Lee Thompson S: David Lee Henry, John Crowther P: Pancho Kohner

Charles Bronson is a retired hitman living on a tropical-paradise island. He's hired to eliminate a British doctor (Joseph Maher) who tortures his victims and uses shock treatments. This movie, featuring beatings and rape, was Bronson's most depraved. With Theresa Saldana, José Ferrer, John Glover, and Raymond St. Jacques.

EVIL TOONS

(Prism, 1990) D/S/P: Fred Olen Ray P: Victoria Till

Four young women are hired (by Dick Miller) to clean up an old house. There's a cartoon monster (designed by Chas Balun) that looks like the Tasmanian Devil from Warner cartoons, but it appears only briefly, so don't be tricked into thinking this is a horror version of Who Framed Roger Rabbit. The real star is gorgeous Monique Gabrielle, playing the "shy" one with glasses. She has the best topless-in-front-of-a-mirror scene in recent memory. Madison Stone (usually in porno movies) "becomes" the monster after a while. David Carradine is a long-haired ghost with an evil (but silly-looking) talking book who lurks around just like Lugosi in some old Monogram movie. Miller sits down and watches a long clip from A Bucket of Blood on TV, and Michelle Bauer shows up as his wife. With Susanne Ager, porno star Barbara Dare, and Arte Johnson. Mike Curb, former lieutenant governor of California, was one of the producers.

EVIL TOWN

(TWE, 1984) D: Edward Collins D/S/P: Peter S. Traynor D/S: Larry Spiegel D/P: Mardi Rustam, William D. Sklar S: Richard Benson

As you can see from the confusing credits, this is a paste-up job of old and older footage, from as far back as 1972, finished in 1984, and released to an unsuspecting public in 1987. It's mostly a film called God Damn Dr. Shagetz, starring old Dean Jagger as a mad scientist who experiments on young people to keep a small town's old people alive forever. Two couples camping out are the starring victims. James Keach is the hero. Robert Walker Jr. (around the time he starred in Son of the Blob) is the other name camper. Familiar-looking older actors (including Regis Toomey) drug the unsuspecting visitors. A lot of time is spent showing newer, more exploitative scenes with two idiot garage mechanics terrorizing female teens before delivering them to the secret clinic. The cast also includes action star Jillian Kessner (Firecracker) and a topless Lynda Wiesmeier from Playboy in scenes added later. One of the directors, Mardi Rustam, liked the story so much that he remade it on his own as Evils In The Night!

EVIL WITHIN

(A-pix, 1989) D/S: Alain Robak P: Ariel Zeitoun France (Baby Blood)

Bianca (Emmanuelle Escourrou, who is naked a lot), a sexy gap-toothed woman with a French circus in Africa, returns home and becomes a waitress. She has a wisecracking unborn baby in her womb that commands her to "Feed me with blood!" Its comments about men make her laugh. People are stabbed and decapitated and a blood bank truck is stolen. She has a nightmare of the baby's birth and when it finally arrives, it resembles an octopus. The feature is pretty amusing, but I think the director must have seen Brain Damage a few times. We saw it subtitled (from Video Search) but it's available now dubbed. The soft voice used in the dubbed version is Gary Oldman!

THE EWOK ADVENTURE

(MGM, 1984) D: John Korty S: Bob Carrau P: Thomas G. Smith

This Return of the Jedi TV spinoff features the furry Ewoks, with Emmy-winning ILM FX, and is narrated by Burl Ives. Warwick Davis is Wicket. With Fionnula Flanagan, Guy Boyd, Dan Fishman, and Debbie Carrington. In Europe it played theatrically (as Caravan of Courage), but we got it on ABC. George Lucas was the executive producer.

EWOKS: THE BATTLE FOR ENDOR

(MGM, 1985) D/S: Jim and Ken Wheat P: Thomas G. Smith

Wilford Brimley stars as a hermit, Sian Phillips is a witch, and Warwick Davis returns as Wicket. There are a cave monster and giants. George Lucas was the executive producer of this ABC-TV movie. The ILM FX received another Emmy.

EXCESSIVE FORCE

(New Line, 1993) D: John Hess S/P/A: Thomas Ian Griffith P: Erwin Stoff, Oscar L. Costo

Thomas Ian Griffith, a 6'4" black belt (from Karate Kid III) stars as a kickboxing, jazz-piano-playing Chicago cop out for vengeance. With Lance Henriksen as his mean boss, Charlotte Lewis as his ex-girlfriend, Burt Young as a sadistic, drug-dealing gangster, James Earl Jones as the owner of a jazz club, and Tony Todd. This violent movie was made in Chicago. A sequel followed.

THE EXECUTIONER

(Video Gems, 1974) D/S/A: "Dominic Micell"/Duke Mitchell (Mafia Massacre; Like Father, Like Son)

Mitchell's semi-autobiographical gangster movie is more like a crude Goodfellas than like The Godfather. At least it's just as violent. After everyone in an office is gunned down, the crippled boss is electrocuted in a urinal. A finger is sent through the mail ("That's his finger, all right—I've seen it a million times"), a black pimp is crucified, a man is impaled on a meat hook (through his eye), a porno movie is made on a boat, a poodle is served to its owner, and more bloody shootouts occur at a funeral and at a dinner party. A headline says, 13 LA BOOKMAKERS AND PROCURERS SLAIN! Mitchell also narrated and provided Barney Rubble's singing voice! Matt Cimber distributed this for a while.

THE EXECUTIONER, PART II

(Marquis, 1980) D: James Bryant
S/P/A: Renee Harmon

Christopher Mitchum as an LA cop and Renee Harmon as a reporter go after a mysterious hooded Nam-vet vigilante killer. Aldo Ray has a small role as the police commisioner. This has no relation to The Executioner or to the Exterminator movies, but the deceptive title fooled a lot of people when it was released by 21st Century. It was on a tape with Frozen Scream, also produced by and starring Harmon.

EXECUTIVE ACTION

(Warner, 1973) D: David Miller
S: Dalton Trumbo P: Edward Lewis

Nearly 20 years before Oliver Stone's JFK made headlines, this movie (with an original screenplay by Mark Lane and Donald Freed) was ignored at the box office and by the media. It uses actual footage and reenactments (just like JFK) and was initially developed by Donald Sutherland (who's in JFK). Burt Lancaster, Robert Ryan (in his last role), and Will Geer star as the very convincing, influential right-wing conspirators. The film shows how a team of disposable assassins could have been trained, while Oswald was chosen to take the rap, and also explains why the president was killed, using actual speeches by Kennedy. The original newspaper ads for the National General release featured an incredible list of all the people connected with the assasination who had mysteriously died in the years since (the list is much longer now). With John Anderson, Paul Carr, Ed Lauter, and Dick Miller.

EXILED IN AMERICA

(Prism, 1990) D/S/P: Paul Leder P: Ralph Thornberg

Edward Albert plays a Central American freedom-fighter hiding out in the US and pretending to have died. Maxwell Caulfield falls for his wife (Kamala Lopez), who works at a diner owned by Stella Stevens. Wings Hauser is a sheriff.

EXORCISM

(All Seasons, 1974) D/S: Juan Bosch
S/A: Paul Naschy Spain (Exorcismo)

Paul Naschy plays the exorcist priest in this early Exorcist copy (Naschy said this was written first). A young woman possessed by the ghost of her father does all the Linda Blair moves and even twists heads off. Naschy tries to put the bad spirit into a German shepherd. With Maria Perschy, Grace Mills, and lots of badly dubbed talking.

EXORCIST III: LEGION

(CBS/Fox, 1990) D/S: William Peter Blatty
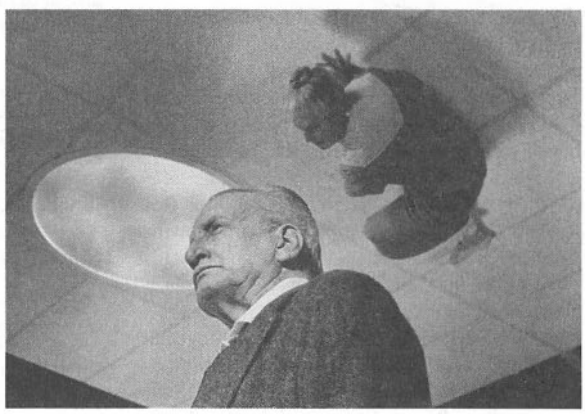
P: Carter DeHaven Jr.

The original 1973 feature remains the highest-grossing horror movie of all time, so despite the first flop sequel (which is ignored here) Part III was made. There's more talk about God and evil than anything the audience expected and wanted to see. Members of the first-night Times Square audience yelled, "Don't waste your money!" to people in line outside. I agree. This movie is nuts! It was adapted from Blatty's novel Legion (1983), which was based on the real zodiac killer. It shouldn't even have been called an Exorcist movie. Parts were reshot in a futile attempt to make it more commercial and easier to understand. It's set 15 years after the original. George C. Scott replaces Lee J. Cobb as the atheist Jewish cop who goes to see It's a Wonderful Life a lot. Brad Dourif as the Gemini killer explains the confusing plot in a long, intense ranting scene in an asylum. Jason Miller is "patient X." With Nicol Williamson (in added scenes, as an exorcist), Scott Wilson, Viveca Lindfors, Ed Flanders as a priest, George DiCenzo, Samuel L. Jackson, Don Gordon, Harry Carey Jr., and Zohra Lampert. One bizarre scene has an old woman on a ceiling. Black people are murdered, and a kid is decapitated and crucified. There's a (literal) heaven scene with a black angel. It even features an in-joke plug for the Child's Play movies. The Ennio Morricone soundtrack is on Warners.



George C. Scott fails to notice an old lady on the ceiling in Exorcist III.

THE EXOTIC ONES

(1968) D/S/P/A: Ron Ormond P: June Ormond (The Monster and the Stripper)

The Ormonds' last pre-Jesus movie is one of the most amazing exploitation movies ever made. Because of problems with the lab that processed the prints, it was withdrawn from distribution shortly after its release and remained unseen for nearly 20 years. This one has it all: nudity, gore, drugs, a monster, music, comedy, and impossible-to-duplicate 60s New Orleans local atmosphere. The introduction (spoken by Ron Ormond) is a Mondo-style look at Bourbon Street nightclubs. Ron plays Nemo, a drug-dealing gangster who runs one of the clubs. He has amazing hair with bangs, always wears dark sunglasses, and smokes cigars. A pretty tough character, he orders his men to dump the full contents of a large spitoon down the throat of a double-crosser. June is Bunny, the most cheerful ("Okey-dokey!"), sweetest, hip grandmother type imaginable, usually seen in solo close-ups wearing wild glasses and hats while auditioning new strip acts. She even does an act of her own with an LSD reference. Sleepy LaBeef, a huge 50s rockabilly singer from Smackover, Arkansas, who once toured with Elvis and still records and tours, makes his acting debut as "the swamp thing," snorting and grunting while wearing a loincloth, fake teeth, a fright wig, and some hair pasted on his chest (sometimes). Nemo has him captured and makes him a Mighty Joe Young type of attraction. The "monster" tears off a man's arm and beats him to death with it, rips off a dancer's breast (off-screen) and, as part of the stage show, actually geeks a (real, live) chicken and drinks its blood: "The screams from these living animals will make the strongest man vomit!" Tim Ormond plays Tim, a backwoods boy who becomes the monster's trainer, and sings a hard-to-forget prerecorded song ("The hurt goes on and on and on and on and on and on") in a double-tracked voice. The monster falls for the nice girl singer ("Some idiot dame trying to break into this crazy rat race they call show business!"), who does an excellent job lip-syncing to a very soulful song (actually by a high-pitched black singer). The best of the many bizarre and entertaining strip acts is Titania, a mean-looking wild woman with lots of eye makeup who does an incredible acrobatic act (twirling flaming tassels), eats fire, and dances. She also starts a good cat fight backstage. More fun characters, like an undercover cop in a straw hat, and great dialogue ("That big peckerwood!") help make The Exotic Ones a must-see item by the incredible Ormonds. It was shot (partially) on location in New Orleans and in the Okefenokee Swamp. The interiors were shot in the same Nashville studio where Elvis recorded "Heartbreak Hotel," owned at the time by the United Methodist Church!

EXPLOITATION CLASSICS
(Sinister)

This compilation consists of 22 trailers in almost chronological order. The early exploitation trailers for adults-only movies like Maniac ("There is chills!"), Assassination of Youth ("Tragic orgies!"), and Slaves in Bondage are long, badly edited, and without the music and hyper announcers' voices that later became common, but they're fascinating to watch. The tape continues with Striporama (with Betty Page in a bubble bath), She Shoulda Said No!, 50s juvenile-delinquent movies, and 70s drive-in classics (Switchblade Sisters!, Bury Me an Angel!). You also get great trailers for classics like Freaks (a reissue with jazz music) and Ed Wood's Glen or Glenda.

EXPLORERS
(Paramount, 1985) D: Joe Dante S: Eric Luke P: Edward S. Feldman, David Bombyk

Some kids blast off in their own spaceship. Ethan Hawke, River Phoenix (making his film debut), and Jason Presson create the spaceship from a rebuilt carnival-ride car. They meet funny aliens who watch Earth TV and sing TV commercials and series theme songs. With Amanda Peterson, Dick Miller, Brooke Bundy, and Bradley Gregg. This PG science-fiction comedy has Rob Bottin FX. Dante also supervised the special video and TV versions.

EXPLOSION
(1969) D/S: Jules Bricken S: Alene Brickman P: Julian Roffman Canada

Don Stroud stars as a hippie who teams up with a draft dodger (Gordon Thomson). They steal a car and head for British Columbia. By the time they get to Vancouver, the draft dodger, upset over his brother's death in Vietnam, has killed several cops. Stroud was also in Bloody Mama, Angel Unchained, and others released by AIP.

EXPOSED
(MGM, 1983) D/S/P/A: James Toback

Nastassja Kinski stars as a small-town American girl who becomes a model in Paris and gets involved with Rudolf Nureyev. He's a concert violinist plotting to kill an Argentinian terrorist (Harvey Keitel). With Bibi Andersson, Ian McShane, Pierre Clementi, Ron Randell, James Russo, and Iman. Toback made this after Fingers (starring Keitel) and Love and Money (with Klaus Kinski).

EXPOSURE
(HBO, 1991) D: Walter Salles Jr. S: Rubem Fonsea P: Albert Flaksman (High Art)

Peter Coyote stars as a photographer in Rio who specializes in scenes of death. When a hooker he befriended is killed by a ponytailed coke and arms dealer, he takes extensive knife-fighting lessons from a mysterious specialist (Tcheky Karyo, from La Femme Nikita). Obsessed with seeking revenge, he alienates his girlfriend (Amanda Pays) and takes a train to Bolivia and back. This Miramax release is based on a novel by the screenwriter. It has some great cinematography, excellent South American location work, some music by Peter Glass, a dream sequence, and a dwarf.

EXQUISITE CORPSES
(Monarch, 1988) D/S/P: Temistocles Lopez P: Ken Schwenker

An East Village murder and spies are featured in this arty indy comedy with musical numbers, starring Gary Knox as a trombone player from Oklahoma who makes it in transvestite nightclubs. With Zoe Tamerlaine Lund (Tamerlis) from Ms. 45 as a hooker and Ruth Collins. Lopez made Chain of Desire (1992) next.

EXQUISITE TENDERNESS
(1994) D: Carl Shenkel S: Bernard Sloane, Patrick Cirillo P: Alan Beattie, Chris Chesser Canada

Isabelle Glasser stars as an assistant head of surgery who is blamed for a death caused by a doctor (Malcolm McDowell). James Remar helps her investigate. With Charles Dance and Peter Boyle. It was filmed in an actual Vancouver mental hosptal. Steve Johnson did the FX.

EXTERMINATING ANGEL
(Hen's Tooth, 1962) D/S: Luis Buñuel P: Gustavo Alatriste Mexico (El ángel Exterminador)

Silvia Pinal (from Viridiana) stars in this brilliant and disorienting social allegory with repeating and overlapping sequences. After the servants leave the house, the guests at a fancy dinner party find that they can't leave. Characters fight, make love, cook a sheep, die, kill themselves, and even practice witchcraft and plan a sacrifice in order to get out. Buñuel made his next film, Diary of a Chambermaid (1964), in Europe and then made one more film in Mexico (Simon of the Desert, 1965) before ending his long exile and returning to Europe permanently.

THE EXTERMINATOR
(Nelson, 1980) D/S: James Glickenhaus P: Mark Buntzman

This made $4 million in North American rentals, a lot for a lowly exploitation movie at the time. Nam vet Robert Ginty becomes a vigilante in New York and uses a flamethrower to kill. He also has flashbacks. Characters die in many various ways, but the gangster-in-a-meat-grinder scene is a highlight. Christopher George is a police detective with a hot dog grill on his desk. With Steve James as the Nam-vet friend who dies and Samantha Eggar. Stan Winston did the FX. An Avco Embassy release.

EXTERMINATOR II
(MGM/UA, 1984) D/S/P: Mark Buntzman, William Sachs

Robert Ginty returns with his flamethrower. Armored-garbage-truck attacks are the highlight of this inferior sequel. With Deborah Gefner as the erotic dancer girlfriend, Mario Van Peebles as "X," leader of a multiracial gang, and Irwin Keyes. John Turturro and Ayre Gross have early roles. From Cannon.

EXTERMINATORS OF THE YEAR 3000
(HBO, 1983) D: "Jules Harrison"/Giuliano Carnimeo S: Elisa Briganti, Dardano Sacchetti P: Camillo Teti Italy/Spain (Gli Sterminadori dell'Anno 3000)

Alan Collins (real name Luciano Pigozzi) and Fred Harris (real name Fernando Bilbo) star with Beryl Cunningham in yet another Italian Mad Max/Road Warrior copy.

THE EXTRAORDINARY SEAMAN
(1967) D: John Frankenheimer S: Rock Dresner P: Edward Lewis

David Niven is a failed British WWI lieutenant who returns as a ghost to redeem himself in the Pacific in WWII. Eventually he and his old gunboat ram a Japanese ship during a peace-treaty signing, and he has to wait for another war to prove himself again. Faye Dunaway costars in this anti-war comedy, with Alan Alda, Mickey Rooney, Jack Carter, and Juano Hernandez. The MGM release (which includes WWII-era news footage of famous people) was shelved for two years and was a critical and commercial disaster.

EXTREME JUSTICE
(Vidmark, 1993) D: Mark Lester S/P: Frank Sachs S: Robert Boris

An LA cop (Lou Diamond Phillips) joins his former partner (Scott Glenn) in a secret police hit squad to eliminate dangerous criminals. The group has been corrupted by Glenn and also kills innocent people. The film is said to be based on fact. With Chelsea Field and Yaphet Kotto. It premiered on HBO.

EXTREME PREJUDICE
(Avid, 1987) D: Walter Hill S: John Milius P: Buzz Feitshans

Nick Nolte, a Texas Ranger, goes after his former best friend, Powers Boothe, a coked-up drug lord with a private Mexican army. Michael Ironside is a corrupt CIA man, Maria Conchita Alonso is Nolte's woman, who used to be with Boothe, and Rip Torn is Nolte's sheriff friend, who is killed off early. With William Forsythe, Clancy Brown, and Tiny Lister. There's lots of action, Nam-vet commandos, and a violent end that rips off The Wild Bunch. Jerry Goldsmith did the soundtrack.

EXTREME VENGEANCE
(AIP, 1994) D/S/M: Roger Zahr P: Sam Rose

David A. Cox (who resembles Charles Bronson a bit) stars as an ex-cop who's after some Hollywood gangsters who killed his son, in this bad Death Wish copy. Tanya George costars. This was probably produced years before the video-release date.

EYEBALL

(Prism, 1974) D/S: Umberto Lenzi
S: Felix Tusell Italy/Spain (Gatti Rossi nell'un Labirinto di Vetro; The Devil's Eye)

A psycho in a red cape kills women and takes their eyes. The flashback-filled giallo (whodunit) stars John Richardson and Martine Brochard.

AN EYE FOR AN EYE

(Embassy, 1981) D: Steve Carver S: William Gray, James Bruner P: Frank Capra Jr.

Chuck Norris as San Francisco cop Sean Kane quits the force after his partner is killed by drug dealers and takes revenge. With villain Christopher Lee, Richard Roundtree, Matt Clark, Mako, Maggie Cooper, Terry Kiser, Richard Norton, and Rosalind Chao. There's lots of slo-mo kicking.

EYE OF THE DEMON

(Vidmark, 1987) D: Carl Schenkel
S: R. Timothy Kring P: Michael Rhodes

Bay Coven was a boring, made-for-TV occult movie that also played on TV as Strangers in Town. Now it has another title, and you can pay to see it! There's a witch conspiracy against Pamela Sue Martin after she and her husband move to an island off the shore of Massachusetts (obviously California). Barbara Billingsley is really 300 years old. With your other favorite TV stars, Woody Harrelson and Jeff Conaway. A church blows up. You'll fall asleep. The executive producers were Jon Peters and Peter Guber.

EYE OF THE DRAGON

(1988) D: Leo Fong S: James Bellamesari P: George Chung

Blond Cynthia Rothrock (from Pennsylvania) stars in her first feature shot in the US, with Richard Norton, Troy Donahue, and Bill "Superfoot" Wallace. Rothrock started her martial-arts acting in Hong Kong. Director Fong starred in his own martial-arts movies.

EYE OF THE EAGLE

(MGM, 1987) D/P: Cirio H. Santiago
S: Leonard Hermes Philippines

Santiago made yet another bad Nam adventure movie for executive producer Roger Corman. It's about a Special Forces team fighting the North Vietnamese. Robert Patrick stars, with Brett Clark and Cec Verrell. Patrick returned in a sequel, Behind Enemy Lines.

EYE OF THE EAGLE II: INSIDE THE ENEMY

(MGM, 1989) D/S: Carl Franklin S: Dan Gagliasso P: Catherine Santiago

The survivor of an ambush falls for a Vietnamese girl, but she's sold into prostitution by a drug-dealing American officer. With Todd Field, William Field, and Andy Wood. Cirio H. Santiago was the executive producer.

EYE OF THE STORM

(New Line, 1992) D/S: Yuri Zeltser S: Michael Stewart P: Carsten H. W. Lorenz, Oliver Eberle US/Germany

A blind teen (Bradley Gregg, star of Class of 1999) is protected by his older brother (long-haired Craig Sheffer). They live at a remote motel in the desert, where their parents were murdered ten years earlier. The customers are usually killed, and Sheffer sells their cars. A wild, hard-drinker (Dennis Hopper) and his trashy young wife (Lara Flynn Boyle) show up when their car breaks down on the way to Vegas. Boyle comes on to the older brother, and Hopper gets the young one drunk and lets him drive his car. It's more of a dreary character study than a horror movie, but Hopper, as usual, brightens things up when he's onscreen. Roland Emmerich was an executive producer.

EYE OF THE STRANGER

(Monarch, 1993) D/P/A: David Heavner

Do-it-all Heavner is a black-leather stranger out for revenge (patterned after Clint Eastwood in Italian westerns) who arrives in a modern-day small town run by a corrupt mayor (Martin Landau). Sally Kirkland costars, with Joe Estevez as the drunken sheriff, Don Swayze, Stella Stevens, Sy Richardson, and Sydney Lassick. Not to be confused with Eyes of a Stranger (1981), with Jennifer Jason Leigh.

EYE OF THE TIGER

(Avid, 1986) D: Richard Sarafian
S: Michael Montgomery P: Tony Scott

Ex-con Nam vet Buck (Gary Busey) is framed by the sheriff and unjustly jailed. Later he goes home to fight small-town drug-dealer bikers led by Blade (William Smith). He uses a customized armored RV with cannons, and friend Yaphet Kotto drops grenades from a plane. Bikers are decapitated by wires (an idea copied from She Devils on Wheels!). Bikers dig up Busey's dead wife and put her on his doorstep. A biker gets TNT up his ass. With Seymour Cassel, Bert Remsen, and Denise Galik. By the director of Vanishing Point. The title song from Rocky III (!) is used again.

EYES OF FIRE

(Vestron, 1983) D/S: Avery Crouse
P: Philip J. Spinelli (Crying Blue Sky)

This extraordinary movie, set in 1750 in the French territories of North America, is a slow but fascinating and unique horror fantasy. Demons, Shawnee Indians, and possessed characters live in the wilderness. Souls are trapped in trees and in the land itself. Dennis Lipscomb stars as a preacher who survives a lynching, and Karlene Crocket is Lean, a character with special powers (and nude scenes). Some call it too arty, others criticize the optical effects. I love it. Made in Missouri with a $1 million budget, it was 106 minutes. 16 minutes were cut by Aquarius, which released it to puzzled Times Square moviegoers.

EYES OF THE BEHOLDER

(Columbia, 1992) D/S/E: Lawrence L. Simeon
P: David Henderson

Lenny Von Dohlen is an artist who escapes from a (clichéd) mental asylum and shows up to terrorize his rich doctor at a remote house during a raging thunder-and-lightning storm. He rants, smashes things, and shoots, punches, and humiliates his captives. Flashbacks reveal his experimental surgery. Joanna Pacula (whose body double takes a shower), Matt McCoy (who is forced to walk on broken glass), blond Australian Kylie Travis (who has a topless scene), and one-time Aussie James Bond star George Lazenby (!) are the victims. Charles Napier is a police detective and Vivian Schilling has a small role as a cop. The Greg Turner score copies Bernard Herrmann.

EYES OF THE JUNGLE

(1953) D: Paul Landres S: Barry Shipman, Sherman L. Lowe P: Rudolph Flothow

Jon Hall stars in this Columbia film, based on his TV series Ramar of the Jungle. He and his assistant go to India and stop a slave-trading ring that deals in women. There's a plant that causes "wasting sickness." With Edgar Barrier, Robert Shayne, Raymond Montgomery, and lots of stock footage.

EYES OF THE SERPENT

(Academy, 1992) D/C: Ricardo Jacques Gale
S: Stewart Chapin P: Stephen Lieb
(In the Time of the Barbarians II)

This is a medieval story of an evil woman (Lenore Andriel) after some magic swords. Her good blond sister (Lisa Toothman) has a good daughter (Diana Frank, the star), and the bad cousin (Carlton Lynx) uses a whip. If you're in the right mood it's pretty funny, especially when the scholar's hand is cut off by an electric zap. Tom Schultz costars as Galen, the musclebound swordsman with an eye patch who calls a bad guy with a helmet "spitoonhead." With a topless dance, a romantic sex scene, and idiot Siamese twins. Most of it takes place in the woods, where filming is cheap.

EYEWITNESS TO MURDER

(New Horizons, 1992) D/E: Jag Mundhra
S: Michael Potts P: Ashok Amritraj

Andrew Stevens is an angry LA cop whose wife was blown up trying to protect an artist (Sherilyn Wolter, from General Hospital) blinded by a drug dealer (with a junkie assistant) at an art opening. Stevens falls for her at a remote artists'-colony hideout. With Adrian Zmed as his partner, Carl Strano as a killer, and even Karen Elise Baldwin (who cowrote the story) as a kickboxing nurse. This is boring!

THE FABULOUS ADVENTURES OF BARON MUNCHAUSEN

(American Video, 1961) D/S: Karel Zeman
S: Joseph Kainar Czechoslovakia (Baron Prasil; The Original Fabulous Adventures of Baron Munchausen; The Fabulous Baron Munchausen)

Animation and glass paintings based on Gustave Doré's etchings from a 19th-century edition of the novel are used in this classic fantasy. It opens with the history of flight, as an astronaut lands on the moon and discovers that the Baron (and other historical figures) have already been there. The Baron (Milos Kopecky) calls the astronaut Moonman and takes him to earth on a nautical ship drawn by flying horses. There's a battle against the Turks, a giant fish that eats ships, a beautiful princess, and some anti-government messages. This influenced Terry Gilliam's film The Adventures of Baron Munchausen (1989).

THE FACE AT THE WINDOW

(Kino, 1939) D/P: George King UK

This is an adaptation of a play (by F. Brooke Warren) that had been the basis of two silent films and a 1932 film starring Raymond Massey. Tod Slaughter stars as the devious, lecherous, and wealthy Chevalier del Gardo, in 1880 Paris. In the outrageous ending, a crazed scientist uses his invention to probe the brain of a dead victim and discover who the killer, called the Wolf (the face at the window), is.

FACE IN THE FOG

(Sinister, 1936) D: Robert Hill P: Sam Katzman

A mad hunchback called the Fiend murders members of the cast of a play called Satan's Bride, using bullets made of "frozen poison." This very rare and cheap forgotten horror from the independent Victory Pictures features June Collyer and Lloyd Hughes.

FACE OF MARBLE

(Fang, 1946) D: William Beaudine
S: Michael Jacoby P: Jeffrey Bernard

John Carradine stars as a kindly brain surgeon trying to revive the dead in this convoluted Monogram film. He brings Brutus, a great Dane, back to life, and the dog becomes a vampire/zombie/ghost that can walk through walls and that "drains the blood of livestock" (offscreen). Then he turns his young wife (Claudia Drake) into a transparent companion for the dog. Half the movie seems to consist of Carradine and his assistant, Robert Shayne, sitting at a table by a picture of the ocean outside the window. Willie Best is wasted as Shadrach, "the boy," and the voodoo-priestess maid is totally from left field. At the end Carradine contemplates suicide, the maid kills herself, and the wife and the dog kill themselves.

FACE OF THE FROG

(1959) D: Harold Reinl S: Trygve Larsen, J. Joachim Bartsch W. Germany (Der Frosch mit der Maske)

A killer wears a hood over a bizarre frog mask with big, protruding eyeballs. This film is based on Edgar Wallace's The Fellowship of the Frog, which had previously been filmed as an American serial (The Mark of the Frog, 1928) and a British feature (The Frog, 1937). With Siegfried Lowitz, series regular Joachim Fuchsberger, and veteran actor Fritz Rasp (Metropolis, Spies, Emil and the Detectives).

FACELESS

(Nightmare, 1988) D/S: Jesús Franco
S: Pierre Ripert, Jean Mazaril
S/P: René Chateau France
(Predateurs de la Nuit)

In some ways this is the ultimate Franco film, and it was shot in English. It has an all-star cast, is gory, absurd, very sleazy, and tasteless, and is full of multilayered references to earlier Euro-horror hits, especially Franco's own The Awful Dr. Orloff. Helmut Berger (Dorian Gray, 1970) stars as Dr. Flamond, a voyeur trying to restore the beauty of his sister, Ingrid, which was destroyed when a scarred woman threw acid in her face. His big clinic in Paris, where he treats silly, rich, vain older women, has TV monitors everywhere (as in The Thousand Eyes of Dr. Mabuse). One patient (Stephane Audran) has a long syringe thrust into her eye. Telly Savalas (in New York) hires a Namvet private eye (Christopher Mitchum) to find his kidnapped daughter, a coke-sniffing model (Caroline Munro), who's being held in one of the clinic's padded cells. The doc visits Professor Orloff (Howard Vernon), who sends him to a former SS officer and war criminal (Anton Diffring, in his last role) for professional advice. The doc has a threesome with his nurse (the beautiful former porno star Brigitte Lahaie) and a hooker picked up in Pigalle. Lahaie has lines comparing actresses with hookers. A facial-skin-peel scene is a direct copy of a scene in Eyes Without a Face taken to absurd extremes. A rapist servant decapitates somebody with a chainsaw, then kisses the head. Others are killed with scissors and a power drill. Mitchum fights a gay fashion designer and his muscle-bound boyfriend, Do Do. After an irritating non-ending, we hear the theme song (it was a 45rpm record in France). Nobody else shoots sex scenes through a fish tank like this. Totally incredible! The Canadian video version is cut, the French one is not.

FACE OF TERROR

(1962) D: Isidoro Martínez Ferry, William Hole Jr. S: Monroe Manning P: Gustavo Quintano Spain (La Cara del Terror)

An escaped mental patient (Lisa Gaye, later in Castle of Evil) has her disfigured face restored by a plastic surgeon (Fernando Rey). Unlike many other 60s European restored-face horror movies, the doctor is the victim and the woman is a crazed killer who has to keep using a special solution so that her face doesn't disintegrate. She takes a job in a hotel and almost gets married, but of course things go wrong. New footage was shot for the American release.

FACE OF THE SCREAMING WEREWOLF

(Sinister, 1959) D/S: Gilberto Martínez Solarz
S/P: Fernando de Fuentes S: Juan Garcia
D/P: Jerry Warren (La Casa del Terror)

Three doctors hypnotize Miss Ann Taylor with a revolving swirl on a fan. Her flashbacks ("I can see an ancient land") reveal her leading a Mayan ceremony in a pyramid. A doctor takes her to Yucatán, bringing on another (much longer) flashback, with dancing, a sacrificial-altar stabbing, and impressive Yma Sumac–style singing. Lon Chaney Jr., as the traditional Universal-look mummy, is seen briefly. A completely different growling Mexican mummy is shot. Back in civilization, the two mummies are presented to an audience, the lights go out, the doctor is shot, and Chaney disappears, only to show up in a lab (inside a wax museum?!), trapped in a pressure chamber. A mad doctor (Yerye Beirute, later in the Mexican Karloff movies) puts poor Chaney into a big, spinning machine. Later on, lightning strikes, wax figures are shown in closeup, the full moon shines, and the unbandaged Lon (looking as he did in The Indestructible Man) turns into the wolf man (!) (thanks to time-lapse photography) and kills a man. The other skinny mummy with a scary face kidnaps his reincarnated princess. Newspaper headlines scream: ANN TAYLOR KILLED! MUMMY DESTROYED! The werewolf escapes from the operating table, kills more doctors, and is put in a cage. His first line of dialogue is "No!" When he escapes (again), he climbs all the way up the outside of a building with a woman on his back, then carries her down the stairs! After a chase scene with jazz music he returns to the lab, bites a doctor on the neck, then passes out—and dies in a fire! One of the cops says, "He was just an ordinary guy." In most of the scenes, it's pretty obvious that the monster is a double. Most of the original dialogue footage was cut, and a radio announcer's voice informs us (in English) of what's going on. Mexican comedy star Tin Tan (real name Germán Valdez) as the wax-museum caretaker was also trimmed for the 1965 US release. Some parts don't make much sense, but it's short (an hour), is fairly bloody (for the time), and must be the best mummy-in-a-wax-museum-that's-really-a-werewolf movie ever made.

FACES OF DEATH

(MPI, 1978) D: "Conan Le Cilaire"
S: Alan Black P: Roselyn T. Scott

This mondo movie was a hit in Japan first, was released here by Aquarius, then later became a video rental hit and spawned sequels. Michael Carr appears as the narrator, Dr. Francis B. Gross. The Make-up Effects Lab (MEL) in Hollywood created many of the "real" scenes, including an electric-chair electrocution, a Middle Eastern beheading, a San Francisco cannibal cult, alligator and bear attacks, and monkey-brain eating. Scenes of natural disasters, airplane crashes, and autopsies are real.

FACES OF DEATH II

(MPI, 1981)

All volumes have the same phony credits and host. Unlike the others in the series, this features mostly real news footage of accidental deaths, a fatal-boxing match, and Libyan firing squads. Much of Faces of Death III (MPI, 1985) is faked, and there's even a statement at the end of the credits admitting that. In the mid-80s these tapes made the news because they were renting so well and college fraternities were reportedly using them in hazing rituals. More sequels and copies followed. The Worst of Faces of Death (Gorgon, 1989) is an hour-long tape, mostly from I and III, with a narrator ("Dr. Louis Flellis"). It was blamed for a California kid's suicide in a 1994 lawsuit.

FACES OF DEATH IV

(1990)

A new, comical narrator ("Dr. Louis Flellis") shows us worn-out duplicated footage and faked footage. This was a midnight hit in theaters in Florida and Arkansas (in 1993) but was banned in Germany, where even more unrelated sequels appeared: Faces of Death V and VI (by the makers of Faces of Torture).

FACES OF HORROR

(Fantasy, 1989)

Anything with a title like this was renting in the late 80s. Somebody took three public-domain films (all once distributed by AIP) and threw in ten minutes of one here, ten minutes of another there, and so on, then put out a tape with a skull on the box. The random scenes are from Queen of Blood (1966), Yog, Monster from Space (1970) and The Thing with Two Heads (1972)! The lazy crooks who sold this figured out how to dupe people vainly searching for more gross-out Mondo thrills. Somebody laughed all the way to the bank. It's funny to imagine a video-renter, hoping to see real people killed and tortured, getting home and seeing Dennis Hopper feeding a space-vampire woman, a giant Japanese octopus, and Bruce Dern creating a two-headed man. Along the same lines, Facing All Death (DeGregory) was a "series" of 8 unrelated, often retitled, feature films.

FAIR GAME

(Imperial, 1982) D/S: Christopher Fitchett S: Ellery Ryan P: David Barclay, Terry Gore Australia

Three private-school girls are in a desolate resort town controlled by a psycho killer. With Carrie Mack and Kim Trengrove. A different Australian Fair Game (Nelson, 1985) stars Cassandra Delaney as a woman running an animal sanctuary in the outback. Three psycho poachers kill her animals and tie her topless to the front of a truck. She eventually gets revenge. Mario Andreacchio was the director.

FAIR GAME

(Vidmark, 1987) D/S/P: Mario Orfini, Lidia Ravena Italy (Mamba)

Greg Henry (from Body Double) is a technical wizard who terrifies his estranged wife, Trudie Styler (she's married to Sting in real life), by locking her inside a big, computerized LA house with a poisonous snake that he controls. He watches her from his van outside. There are lots of snake-point-of-view shots, and Styler screams a lot. With Bill Moseley (from The Texas Chainsaw Massacre II). Giorgio Moroder scored the music.

FAIRYTALES

(Media, 1978) D: "Harry Tampa"/ Harry Hurwitz P: Charles Band

This is another example of the 70s trend of making adult sex versions of children's stories. It's an X-rated fantasy and is also a musical. It's real silly, of course, but has some clever moments. With Angela Aames as Little Bo Peep, Nai Bonet and Sy Richardson (both in Nocturna, by the same director), a young Linnea Quigley, Angelo Rossitto (again typecast as a dwarf), and Evelyn Guerrero.

FAKE-OUT

(HBO, 1982) D/S/P/A: "Matt Cimber"/ Mateo Ottaviano (Nevada Heat)

Right after Pia Zadora mania started with the publicity for Butterfly, she starred in this gangster comedy by the same director, "presented by" Meshulam Riklis, her multimillionaire husband. It's virtually a comedy remake of Cimber's Lady Cocoa (1975). Pia, as a Vegas singer and dancer, does her stuff onstage, then is arrested by Telly Savalas and his real-life brother George, both making Kojak in-jokes. She takes the rap for her Italian hood boyfriend and goes to prison, where she cheerfully leads an exercise class. After a shower attack and more women-in-prison clichés, Pia says, "I'll talk!" and is put under the protective custody of Savalas and Desi Arnaz Jr. (!) at a casino. Cimber, as a hitman, tries to kill her, Larry Storch is a loudmouth drug dealer/talent agent, and Buck Flower is a cowboy. Most of the time is used up with car chases and stupid car stunts. Pia is fun to watch—for a while. Too bad this plays like a boring TV movie.

FALL OF THE EAGLES

(1990) D: Jesús Franco S: Ilona Kunseova P: Daniel Lesoeur France (La Chute des Aigles)

Mark Hamill (in a career low) is a German Nazi in 1939. He and an anti-Nazi (Ramon Sheen) both have to join the army. Meanwhile, a Berlin cabaret singer (Alexandra Erlich) who is also the daughter of a banker (Christopher Lee) is sent to the Russian front. This romantic-triangle drama uses stock footage from a 70s Italian WWII movie.

THE FALL OF THE HOUSE OF USHER

(Sinister, 1928) D/S: Jean Epstein France (La Chute de la Maison Usher)

Luis Buñuel was the assistant director of this avant-garde film based on two stories by Edgar Allan Poe ("The Fall of the House of Usher" and "The Oval Portrait"), but he quit because of artistic differences. The cast includes Marguerite Gance (wife of director Abel Gance) and Jean Debucourt. There's a scene of copulating toads. It's available on a 55-minute tape, with a musical score, along with a forgotten American silent 1928 version, directed by James Sibley Watson.

THE FALL OF THE HOUSE OF USHER

(Sinister, 1948) D/P/C: Ivan Barnett S: Kenneth Thompson, Dorothy Catt UK

This 70-minute independent British film is said to be pretty dull, although it received an H (horrific) certificate when released in the UK. Later versions were Corman's hit The House of Usher (1960) with Vincent Price, a Sunn Classics version (1980), and a 1989 version.

FAMOUS T AND A

(Wizard, 1982) P: Charles Band

Sybil Danning hosts this long-out-of-print compilation, which simply shows nude or topless scenes of famous or good-looking actresses from various movies that were in release from Charles Band's Wizard video at the time. New footage of Danning was shot. With Cassandra Peterson (Working Girls), Vanity (Tanya's Island), Ursula Andress (Slave of the Cannibal God), Phyllis Davis in scenes cut from Terminal Island and Sweet Sugar, Edy Williams, Claudia Jennings, Uschi Digart, Laura Gemser, Brigitte Bardot, and Jacqueline Bisset. This was released after The Best of Sex and Violence, from the same company, and includes

THE FALCON series

Michael Arlen (a British novelist born Dikran Kuyumjian in Armenia) created the adventurer and crime-solver Gay Stanhope (the Falcon) in a short story. George Sanders (who had previously played the Saint) played the Falcon in four features at RKO (1941–42), then quit and was replaced by his real-life brother, Tom Conway, in nine more (1943–46). Most of these had too many comic characters and not enough mystery. The Falcon Takes Over (1942) was based on Raymond Chandler's novel Farewell My Lovely. John Calvert was in three low-budget quickies (1948–49) from the independent Film Craft company. Many actors played the character on the radio, and Charles McGraw was the Falcon in a syndicated TV series (1954–55). The Falcon's Adventure (1947) is the only video available at this time (from Turner).

some of the same scenes. Home-video and cable-TV watchers with lots of spare time created their own similar compilations. Some even sold them through the mail.

THE FAN

(Paramount, 1981) D: Edward Bianchi
S: John Hartwell, Priscilla Chapman
P: Robert Stigwood

A Broadway star (Lauren Bacall) is stalked by a psycho with a razor. Young Michael Biehn plays the obsessed nut case who works at the (real) Record City store on Broadway and 8th Street in Manhattan. Just before this film was made I worked at that (excellent, now long gone) store, and Biehn works at my station doing my job. Dick Smith gore FX were added later. Costar James Garner blasted the film and producer Stigwood in print, saying that he had only appeared in it because Bacall had asked him to. Maybe he objected to the scene in a gay bar where a throat is slit during a blow job, or lines like "How would you like to be fucked with a meat cleaver!?" With Maureen Stapleton and Hector Elizondo. Pino Donaggio wrote the score, and tunes by James Brown, Junior Walker, the Specials, and others are included. It was released by Filmways (which had been AIP a few months earlier) just after the John Lennon assassination.

FANDO AND LIS

(VSOM, 1968) D/S: Alexandro Jodorowsky
S: Fernando Arrabal P: Juan López Moctezuma
Mexico (Fando y Lis)

Jodorowsky's first (b/w) feature is based on an avant-garde play by Arrabal that he had directed. On the way to the imaginary, enchanted city of Tar, a man (Fando) pushes a paralyzed woman (Lis) in a cart. The miserable, sobbing couple remember their horrifying childhoods and encounter women in bikinis with whips, men in drag, and bodies emerging from graves. With many flashbacks, fast editing, film running backwards or burning, and many bizarre scenes, it's not an easy movie to like or even watch. It was released (cut and subtitled) by Cannon in 1970. Jodorowsky's El Topo and Arrabal's own Viva la Muerte followed in 1971.

FANGS

(UAV, 1974) D/S/P: Arthur A. Names S: John T. Wilson
(Snakes; Holy Wednesday)

Familiar character actor Les Tremayne plays Snakey Bender, an eccentric old small-town guy who raises snakes. Every Wednesday he has a John Philip Sousa march party with a friend. When the friend gets married and the townspeople turn on Snakey, it's time for revenge. But there's more. A seemingly normal lady teacher gets off on snakes ("Put that naughty little boy around my neck!"), and the town is full of strange, perverted characters. With Richard Kennedy (from the Ilsa films), Bruce Kimball, Marvin Kaplan as a preacher, the warden from Switchblade Sisters, and nudity. Another Fangs! (Pagan, 1992) is a one-hour vampire documentary by Bruce G. Hallenbeck featuring Veronica Carlson, clips, and Hammer trailers.

FANNY HILL

(Central Park Media, 1968) D/S: Mac Ahlberg
P: Tore Sjoberg Sweden

Redhead Diana Kjaer stars in a version of the famous 1749 erotic novel, this time set in Stockholm. It was presented in the US by Jerry Gross' Cinemation. Ahlberg later came here and became a very busy cinematographer. Around the World with Fanny Hill was a "sequel." The videos were from David F. Friedman.

FANNY HILL

(MGM, 1979) D: Gerry O'Hara S: Stephen Chesley
P: Harry Benn UK (Sex, Lies, and Renaissance)

Lisa Raines Foster (who has many nude scenes) stars in yet another adaptation of Fanny Hill, this time from the director of The Bitch. Shelley Winters runs a whore house. With Oliver Reed as a lawyer and Wilfred Hyde-White. International deal-maker Harry Alan Towers was the executive producer for Playboy.

FANNY HILL MEETS DR. EROTICO

(1967) D/P: Barry Mahon

Sue Evans stars in this nudie movie set in a castle. She goes to work for a doctor, and his Frankenstein monster falls in love with her. It all ends with locals carrying torches burning the monster. It was a sequel (!) to Fanny Hill Meets Lady Chatterley and was followed by Fanny Hill Meets the Red Baron. Both were by Mahon and starred Evans.

FANTASIES

(Fox, 1973) D/S/C: John Derek P: Kevin Casselman (And Once Upon a Love)

The 16-year-old Kathleen Collins (aka Bo Derek) and Peter Hooten star as a brother and sister who fall in love on a Greek island. Eventually they find out that they aren't really related, so it's not really an incest movie, but Bo is naked a lot. It was shot in Greece and wasn't released until 1981 (after the Dereks' Tarzan). Derek made the X-rated Love You (1978) next.

FANTASM

(VSOM, 1976) D: "Richard Bruce"/Richard Franklin
S: Ross Dimsey P: Anthony I. Ginnane Australia

A comic doctor and a woman narrate this dated, episodic, mostly unerotic soft-core sex movie, made for the Australian market (and shot partially in LA). Uschi Digart is in a lesbian-steam-bath sequence, and the late John Holmes (from Ashville, Ohio) is in a pool with an Asian woman. I guess they tried to appeal to everyone. The Rene Bond and Serena sequences both involve rape, and others feature a Black Mass, black men, whipping, incest, cross-dressing, and shaving. Also with Mary Gavin/Candy Samples, Sue Deloria, and Bill Margold. Franklin later directed Psycho II, F/X II, and some episodes of the Beauty and the Beast TV series!

FANTASM COMES AGAIN

(VSOM, 1977) D: "Eric Ram"/Colin Eggleston
S: Ross Dimsey P: Anthony I. Ginnane Australia

This time a man preparing a sex-help column reads letters, and we see the writers' (soft core) fantasies. Cheryl "Rainbeaux" Smith has sex at a drive-in (showing Phantasm), Serena has sex in a church, and Uschi Digart is a lesbian cowgirl. With sex (a threesome) in an elevator, under water, and on a trampoline. Candy Samples, John Holmes, Rick Cassidy, Bill Margold, and Tom Thumb are all in it too, and yes, that's Johnny Legend reading in a library. Eggleston directed many other features, including Casandra and The Wicked. Australians have their own real porno movies now.

THE FANTASIST

(Republic, 1986) D/S: Robin Hardy
P: Mark Forsater Ireland

Moira Harris stars as a country girl in Dublin. A killer starts calling her on the phone. The main suspects are Christopher Cazenove as a policeman, Timothy Bottoms as a neurotic writer, and John Kavanagh. By the director of the acclaimed The Wicker Man (1973).

THE FANTASTIC FOUR

(1993) D: Oley Sassone S: Greg Nevius P: Steve Rabiner

Mister Fantastic (Alex Hyde-White), the Invisible Girl (Rebecca Staab), the Human Torch (Jay Underwood), and the Thing (a stuntman) go into space and battle Doctor Doom (Joseph Culp). The (very) low budget Roger Corman production was made because German executive producer Bernd Eichinger had to back a quick feature to retain the rights to the Marvel Comics characters. It was promoted, then shelved (bootlegs are available). Eichinger then planned to back a much bigger budgeted Fantastic Four movie at Fox. Sassone and the stars said they knew nothing of the behind-the-scenes manipulations.

FANTASTIC PLANET

(Embassy, 1973) D: Rene Laloux France/Czechoslovakia (Planet of Fantastic Creatures)

Tiny, humanoid Ohms rebel against their zombie Drog masters. The limited but strange animation in this PG film, based on drawings by Roland Topor, is highly regarded by science fiction fans. Corman's New World released it in the US.

THE FANTASTIC PLASTIC MACHINE

(1969) D/S/P: Eric Blum, Lowell Blum

This G-rated documentary is about an American surfing team competing in Australia. They also surf in Fiji, Hawaii, and New Zealand. The "plastic machine" is a new kind of surf board. From Crown International.

THE FANTASY FILM WORLD OF GEORGE PAL

(Starmaker, 1985) D/S/P: Arnold Leibovit

This welcome one-hour documentary covers all aspects of the professional life of the late George Pal. Born in Hungary, he designed sets for UFA in Berlin, then had his own studio producing animated-puppet commercials in Holland. He came to the US in 1940 and made Puppetoon shorts for Paramount. (They're available from Loonic Video. The Puppetoon Movie is a 1987 compilation.) From 1950 to 1968 he produced and/or directed and did special effects for 13 science-fiction or fantasy features. The War of the Worlds (1953) and The Time Machine (1960) are two of the best. Choice scenes from most of his feature films and many of his shorts, and even some of his European commercials, are included here, and there are onscreen interviews with Ray Harryhausen, Ray Bradbury, Russ Tamblyn, Tony Curtis, Rod Taylor, Joe Dante, and others. It's narrated by the familiar voice of Paul Frees.

FANTASY ISLAND

(1977) D: Richard Lang S: Gene Levitt
P: Aaron Spelling, Leonard Goldberg

Ricardo Montalban as Roarke and Hervé Villechaize as Tattoo first started taking $50,000 a head to fufill rich people's fantasies in this ABC-TV series pilot. The long-running series was inspired by the success of the long-running Love Boat, from the same producers, and had the same awesome number of guest stars. Sandra Dee, Peter Lawford, Bill Bixby, Carol Lynley, Hugh O'Brian, Eleanor Parker, Victoria Principal, and Dick Sargent had the honor of being the first guests. Return to Fantasy Island followed.

FANTASY MISSION FORCE

(1983) D: Chu Yen Ping
P: Shen Hsiao Yin Hong Kong

One of the strangest kung-fu comedies ever, this involves generals from various countries being held captive by Japanese villains. It's impossible to tell in which century it takes place. A captain (Jimmy Wang Yu) with a commando squad is sent to rescue them and encounters many odd characters on the way. The film has a haunted mansion, ghosts, singing, dancing, and martial-arts fights. Jackie Chan, who is not the star, and Lin Ching Hsia play a pair of robbers.

FARAWAY, SO CLOSE!

(Fox, 1992) D/S/P: Wim Wenders S: Ulrich Ziegler Germany (In Weiter Fernem so Nah!)

Otto Sander returns as the angel Cassiel from Wings of Desire. He becomes human and turns to drinking and crime in reunited Berlin. Nastassja Kinski is his angel companion this time, and Bruno Ganz, Solveig Dommartin, and Peter Falk (as himself) return from the first film. Also with Horst Buchholz, Lou Reed (who sings), Willem Dafoe as Emit Flesti (say it backwards), and Mikhail Gorbachev (!), who talks of the need for harmony in the world. This 164-minute PG-13 film (140 minutes in the US) is in English, with subtitles for some dialogue, and is partially b/w. The soundtrack features U2, Johnny Cash, and others.

FAREWELL, MY LOVELY

(IVE, 1975) D: Dick Richards S: David Zelag Goodman
P: Jerry Bruckheimer, George Pappas UK

Robert Mitchum stars as Philip Marlowe in this excellent remake of Raymond Chandler's novel (filmed as The Falcon Takes Over in 1942. Charlotte Rampling costars as Velma, with John Ireland, Sylvia Miles, Jack O'Halloran, Anthony Zerbe, Harry Dean Stanton, Cheryl "Rainbeaux" Smith (who has a nude scene), Sylvester Stallone, and Joe Spinnell.

FAREWELL, UNCLE TOM

(VSOM, 1971) D/S/A: Gualtiero Jacopetti, Franco Prosperi Italy

The ads said, "300 years of hate explodes today!" and claimed that this was all based on truth. The filmmakers (whose previous feature was Africa Addio) appear as modern-day filmmakers who somehow take a helicopter back in time to the old South, where they interview people and show torture, rape, and branding. It's an extremely tasteless, over-the-top exploitation feature that ends with modern-day American blacks imagining slaughtering the white population. It's pretty strong stuff and received an X rating. It was filmed in Haiti and the US. The original version was 130 minutes.

FAR FROM HOME

(Vestron, 1989) D: Meiert Avis S: Tommy Lee Wallace P: Donald P. Borchers

Drew Barrymore (who also narrates), is 13-year-old Joleen. She's stuck at a run-down trailer park in Banco, Nevada, near a nuclear dump, with her writer father (Matt Frewer). Two boys (Andras Jones, from Nightmare 4, and Anthony Rapp, later in Dazed and Confused) are interested in Joleen (who wears bikinis), and meanwhile a psycho killer is on the loose. This movie has great atmosphere, a cast of interesting characters, an effective electronic soundtrack, and frequent closeups of a bug zapper. I like it a lot. Susan Tyrrell is the mean trailer-park owner (she gets electrocuted in a bathtub), Richard Masur is a Nam-vet gas-station owner, and Dick Miller is the sheriff. Also featured are Jennifer Tilly, Karen Austin, and Teri Weigel. It's based on a story by Theodore Gershuny. This was Drew Barrymore's first teen role (after she was in an alcohol-abuse clinic, at 13), and it's one of her best films.

THE FARMER

(1975) D: David Berlansky S: George Fargo, Janice Colson-Dodge P/A: Gary Conway (Killer Farmer)

After WWII, a war-vet Georgia farmer (Gary Conway) does some work for the local mob. He later seeks vengeance after his ranch hand is killed, his barn is burned, and his girlfriend (Angel Tompkins) is raped. This sick drive-in movie had to be cut to receive an R rating. With Michael Dante (who is blinded with acid) and Ken Reynard (a black man who is burned alive). Columbia released the indy production. The late Gene Clark is heard on the soundtrack. Conway had been the star of the Land of the Giants TV series.

FAR OUT MAN

(RCA, 1989) D/S/A: Tommy Chong P: Lisa M. Hansen

After the popular Cheech and Chong comedy team split up, Cheech had a pretty good acting career for a while. Chong, meanwhile, made this "home movie," playing a burnout looking for his kid and one-time old lady (his real-life wife, Shelby). The cast includes Rae Dawn Chong, C. Thomas Howell (her then real-life husband), Cheech Marin and Judd Nelson (as themselves), various Chong kids, Martin Mull as a crazy shrink, Paul Bartel, and Bobby Taylor (of the Vancouvers). One scene is repeated several times.

THE FAR PAVILIONS

(HBO, 1984) D: Peter Duffell
S: Julian Bond P: Geoffrey Reeve

This HBO miniseries is based on M. M. Kaye's novel set in 19th-century colonial India. Ben Cross stars, with Amy Irving, Omar Sharif, John Gielgud, Christopher Lee as Kakaji Rao, Rosanno Brazzi, Robert Hardy, and a primarily Indian supporting cast.

FASCINATION

(VSOM, 1979) D/S: Jean Rollin P: Joe de Lara France

In 1916 a blond guy who has stolen some gold hides out in a castle. Eva and Elizabeth, two beautiful women staying there (Brigette Lahaie and

FANZINES

Many fanzines review and discuss Psychotronic movies. American mail-order horror-movie fanzines flourished in the 60s. Zines kind of died out but reemerged with a vengeance in the early 80s. Soon they were common in many countries, and they got more specialized. By the 90s you could enjoy whole publications about Italian movies, Mexican movies, spaghetti westerns, golden-age horror movies, nudie movies, Asian action and horror movies, martial-arts movies, European horror movies, or even how exploitation movies were advertised and sold. Some (like Psychotronic) also review other zines, but there have been several that do nothing but review other fanzines. Others specialize in telling which tapes have been censored, retitled, or altered. Fanzines concerning Psychotronic movies are common in the English-speaking world and Europe (even in Greece and Finland), and I think it's only a matter of time before they appear in former communist-bloc countries.

Franca Mai), mock, deceive, and seduce him. His enemies arrive with guns, but after having sex with one of them Eva puts on a cape, picks up a scythe (very cool scene), and kills them. More women arrive during a storm for a midnight blood-drinking ceremony, and the ending is a surprise. Some of this doesn't make much sense, but the female leads are excellent, and there are plenty of sex scenes, lesbian and otherwise. Lahaie (who was also in Franco and Kikoine movies and was a major porno star for years) is fascinating. The film is subtitled.

FAST CHARLIE, THE MOONBEAM RIDER

(1979) D: Steve Carver S: Michael Gleason
P: Roger Corman, Saul Klugman

David Carradine stars as a WWI deserter competing in the first long-distance motorcycle race. Brenda Vaccaro is his fan/girlfriend, and the cast includes L. Q. Jones, R. G. Armstrong, Jesse Vint, and Noble Willingham. The film is PG.

FAST COMPANY

(Admit One, 1978) D/S: David Cronenberg
S/P: Courtney Smith P: Michael Lebowitz, Peter O'Brian, S. Phil Savan Canada

Articles on Cronenberg always neglect this car-racing film. It took a while to find a copy, and while it's no They Came from Within, it's interesting enough and has a solid exploitation cast. The title refers to Fasco, a big oil company that sponsors famous racer Lonny "Lucky Man" Johnson (William Smith). He travels around western Canada and the northwestern US in the back of a fully equipped office-apartment/truck and races custom-built cars that run on Nitro fuel. John Saxon, as the weaselly Amercian Fasco representative, makes Johnson drive funny cars (an embarrassing setback) and will resort to murder for profit. The sport of racing is shown as dangerous, overcommercialized show biz, with drivers manipulated by their sponsors. Cars explode, drivers burn. The rock soundtrack is Springsteen-influenced. Claudia Jennings, 70s B-movie queen, doesn't have a lot to do as Johnson's girlfriend in this, her last film. She died in a car crash the next year.

THE FASTEST GUITAR ALIVE

(MGM, 1967) D: Michael Moore
S: Robert E. Kent P: Sam Katzman

By 1967 the late Roy Orbison had stopped having hits and was recording inferior albums for MGM. Sam Katzman had already produced Elvis' Kissin' Cousins and Harum Scarum. Michael Moore had already directed Elvis in Paradise Hawaiian Style. I guess they figured this comedy would make the big O a movie star too. His acting is terrible, and boy, does he look weird with that shiny black hair! In his only acting role Roy is Johnny, a Confederate spy. He's also a womanizing singer, a master of disguises, is part of a Dr. Long's Elixir traveling medicine show (complete with six sexy chorus dancers), and is planning to rob the San Francisco mint. Nobody dies during the Wild West action, but Roy sings seven songs (yes, there was a soundtrack album). His singing is great, as usual, but most of the songs are forgettable or silly. During the "Medicine Man" song he plays a drum while four "Indian" women dance onstage. The dumbest song, by the chorus girls (led by Joan Freeman), is "Snuggle as a Buggle in a Ruggle." Roy's special guitar gun is just a comic prop: "I can kill you and play your funeral march at the same time." The comic Indians (led by Iron Eyes Cody) use "new, impressionistic war paint." Sam the Sham (another MGM recording artist) has a small role.

FAST FOOD

(Fries, 1989) D/P: Michael A. Simpson
S: Clark Brandon, Lanny Horn
P: Stan Wakefield

Tracy Griffith (Melanie's half-sister) stars as Sam, a cute tomboy who owns a gas station turned burger stand. Jim Varney (who usually plays Ernest) is corrupt fast-food tycoon Wrangler Bob, who wants the business for himself at any cost. Formula 9, an aphrodisiac, is added to the burger sauce, making business boom as customers get turned on. There isn't much sex in this PG-13 teen comedy with a plot that could have been used for a porno movie, but it's good dumb fun. Too many characters use catchphrases like "I'm history" and "Read my lips," though. Traci Lords guest-stars as Dixie Love, Pamela Springsteen is a sorority leader, Michael J. Pollard works at the gas station, and Kevin McCarthy is a judge. It's by the director of the Sleepaway Camp sequels.

FAST GETAWAY

(RCA/Columbia, 1990) D: Spiro Razatos
S: James Dixon P: Paul Hertzberg

Corey Haim and Leo Rossi are son and father bank robbers who have to face a kickboxing ex-partner (Cynthia Rothrock). The cast also features Marcia Strassman. The director of this PG-13 New Line release is a stunt coordinator and stuntman.

FAST GETAWAY II

(Live, 1994) D: Oley Sassone
S: Mark Sevi P: Russell D. Markowitz

Corey Haim returns as a former robber now running an insurance business with his girlfriend (Sarah G. Buxton). Kickboxer Cynthia Rothrock frames him for a break-in, and when his father (Leo Rossi) gets out of prison they go after her again. This PG-13 sequel was shot in Arizona.

FAST TIMES AT RIDGEMONT HIGH

(MCA, 1982) D: Amy Heckerling S: Cameron Crowe P: Art Linson, Irving Azoff

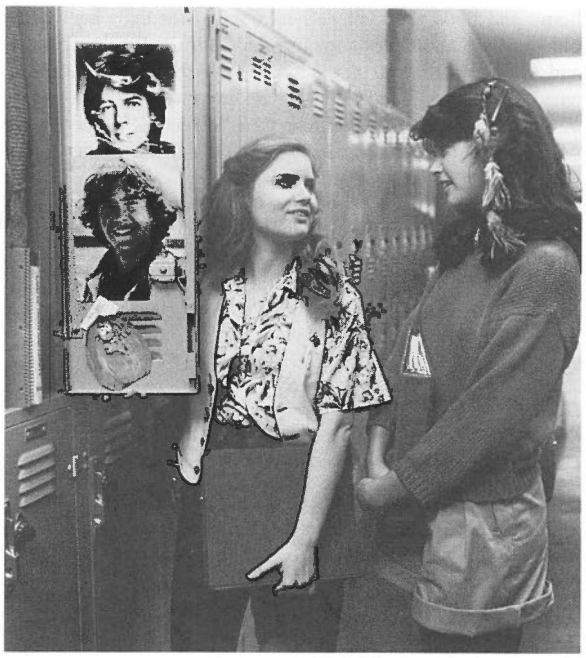
This influential California-teen hit is adapted from Crowe's book, which was based on his own experiences as an undercover high-school student. The believable characters deal with peer presure, boredom, minimum-wage jobs, and sex. Many teen stars got their start here. Sean Penn is excellent as the drugged-out Spicoli, a model for many others in the years to come. Phoebe Cates misinforms Jennifer Jason Leigh about sex. With Judge Reinhold, Tom Nolan, Forest Whitaker, Richard Romanus, Amanda Wyss, Anthony Edwards, Eric Stoltz, Kelli Maroney, James Russo, Lori Sutton, Pamela Springsteen, Nicolas Coppola (later Cage) in his debut, Lana Clarkson, Ava Lazar, and Ray Walston and Vincent Schiavelli (who were also in the 1986 CBS-TV Fast Times series, also directed by Heckerling). Crowe produced The Wild Life, a sequel. Asylum released a various artists double soundtrack.



Jennifer Jason Leigh and Phoebe Cates in Fast Times at Ridgemont High.

FAST-WALKING

(Key, 1980) D/S/P: James B. Harris

James Woods stars as Fast-Walking Miniver, a corrupt, pot-smoking guard in an overcrowded southwestern prison. This barely released gem, based on The Rap by Ernest Brawley, has enough black humor, nudity, hookers, violence, and drugs to surprise the most jaded viewer. With Kay Lenz, Tim McIntire, M. Emmet Walsh, Susan Tyrrell (who runs a whorehouse), Robert Hooks (as a black militant), Timothy Carey, and Sidney Lassick. Harris had directed The Bedford Incident and Some Call It Loving and teamed up with Woods again for Cop.

FATAL ASSASSIN: See AFRICAN RAGE

FATAL ATTRACTION

(Paramount, 1987) D: Adrian Lyne S: James Dearden P: Stanley R. Jaffe, Sherry Lansing

It copied a lot from Eastwood's Play Misty for Me, but this glossy lady-psycho movie was based on Diversion, a short 1979 film by scriptwriter Dearden. It made $70 million at the box office and was one of the most talked-about (and copied) films in years. Michael Douglas is a New York lawyer who has a one-night stand with publishing executive Glenn Close at her loft in the meat-packing district. After he rejects her, she goes to his suburban home and boils the family's pet rabbit, tries to blow up his car, and kidnaps his kid. Both Close and Anne Archer (who plays his wife) were nominated for Oscars. Ellen Foley and Fred Gwynne are also in the cast. In the letterboxed "director's series" video, the original ending (seen outside the US) is tacked onto the US ending, along with outtakes and an interview with Lyne. In the original ending, which Paramount changed for the US release, Douglas goes to jail for Close's murder/suicide. The Maurice Jarre soundtrack is on GNP. Fatal Attraction (1981) is a retitled Canadian movie (Head On) with Sally Kellerman.

FATAL BEAUTY

(MGM, 1987) D: Tom Holland S: Hillary Henkin, Dean Riesner P: Leonard Kroll

Some people don't think that comedienne Whoopi Goldberg should have starred in this violent movie, which had to be cut to receive an R rating, but that's show biz. The video version has been further cut, eliminating an interracial love scene. She's a police detective who uses disguises to go after drug dealers, Sam Elliott is a security expert, Harris Yulin is the main drug pusher, Ruben Blades is her partner, and Brad Dourif and Mike Jolly are ex-cons who shoot up a shopping mall. The cast also includes Jennifer Warren, Cheech Marin, John P. Ryan, James LeGros, Belinda Mayne, and Celeste Yarnall. It's by the director of Child's Play and Fright Night. The various artists soundtrack is on Atlantic.

FATAL BOND

(1992) D: Vince Monton S/P: Phil Avalon Australia

Linda Blair falls for a guy (Jerome Ehlers) who tells her he's wanted for parking tickets. He's really a serial killer. They go to a beach motel. He seduces and then kills a surfer girl. Her religious father searches for the killer.

FATAL CHARM

(Academy, 1989) D: "Alan Smithee"/ Fritz Kiersch S: Nicholas Niciphor P: Bruce Cohn Curtis, Jonathan D. Krane

Christopher Atkins is a "sexy and charming" guy accused of the rape and murder of six women. He's convicted, encounters violent homosexuals in San Quentin, and escapes. In disguise (sunglasses!), he looks for the high-school student (Amanda Peterson) who has been writing to him. She sent him a photo of her girlfriend, though. Peterson has frequent, blurry erotic dreams where Traci Dali has sex on her knees in a van. With Mary Frann (from Newhart), Andrew Robinson, James Remar, Peggy Lipton, Robert Walker Jr., Lar Park Lincoln, and Ken Foree as a convict who threatens to cut Atkins' dick off. It premiered on Showtime.

FATAL EXPOSURE

(Tapeworm, 1989) S/P: Peter B. Good S: Chris Painter

A Herschell Gordon Lewis fan made this one in Alabama. The killer, a young blood-drinking photographer in an old mansion, talks to the camera. He decapitates a man, then has his church-lady wife pose for negligée bondage shots before he injects her with acid. He buries bodies in an old graveyard and finds a girl to help him recruit models to kill. The characters are all incredibly stupid, and so is the script, but the cinematography is very good, there's a pretty surprising sex scene and a nightmare sequence, and everyone has very real accents.

FATAL GAMES

(1982) D: Michael Elliot P: Chris Mankiewicz

A killer using a javelin stalks schoolgirls at the Olympics. With Sally Kirkland as a transsexual killer, Melissa Prophet, Angela Bennett, Teal Roberts, and Linnea Quigley and Brinke Stevens (they're seen in a shower). It's unrated.

FATAL INSTINCT

(MGM, 1993) D/A: Carl Reiner S: David O'Malley P: Katie Jacobs, Pierce Gardner

Armand Assante stars as a cop who is also a lawyer in this mostly unfunny PG-13 spoof of Fatal Attraction. Sean Young is blond Lola Cain, Kate Nelligan is the wife trying to have him killed, and Sherilyn Fenn is his secretary. With James Remar, Tony Randall as a lawyer, and Eartha Kitt. There are on-screen sax solos by Clarence Clemons. It also spoofs Double Indemnity, Body Heat, Cape Fear (the remake), Sleeping with the Enemy, and others.

FATAL JUSTICE

(AIP, 1992) D/C: Gerald Cain S: Bret McCormick P: Denis Dodson

Suzanne Agar (also a coproducer) stars as a hit lady in a bikini. She's ordered to "retire" Mars (Joe Estevez), who turns out to be her father. Fred Olen Ray was an executive producer, and it was filmed in Texas and Louisiana.

FATAL MISSION

(Media, 1989) D/S: George Rowe S/P: Chosei Funahara S/A: Peter Fonda S: Anthony and John Gentile US/Japan

Peter Fonda stars as a CIA assassin posing as a French journalist on a mission in North Vietnam. This action movie, which was shot in the Philippines, costars Tia Carrere (Wayne's World) as a Chinese guerilla assassin, Jim Mitchum, and Mako.

THE FATAL PASSION OF DR. MABUSE: See DR. MABUSE, THE GAMBLER

FATAL PULSE

(Celebrity, 1987) D/P: Anthony Christopher S: James Hundhausen

This sorority-house-slasher movie has blood, sex, lots of ridiculous suspects, and death by LP. Martin Sheen's brother Joe Phelan/Estevez owns the frat house. With Michelle McCormick, Ken Roberts, Roxanne Kernohan, and porno star Hershall Savage as a cop.

FATAL PURSUIT: See I SPIT ON YOUR CORPSE

FATAL SECRET

(Studio, 1987) D/S: Andrew Nelson, Mats Helge P: Roger Lundgren Sweden (Animal Protector)

David Carradine stars as a drug and arms dealer in one of several films he made in Sweden. This spy story costars Camille Lunden.

FATAL SKIES

(AIP, 1989) D/S: Thomas C. Dugan P: Peter Yuval

Timothy Leary, who had done guest-star bits in other movies, stars as the villain behind toxic-waste dumping who has to battle heroic skydiving teens. The ads said, "Strap in, climb on, drop out!" With Jay Richardson, Veronica Carothers, and Melissa Anne Moore. It was made by a USC graduate.

THE FAT BLACK PUSSYCAT

(SW, 1963) D/S: Harold Lea P: Arnold Panken

This slow-moving New York City beatnik movie has a plot that's hard to follow. It starts with a headline, SHOES OF NUDE MURDER VICTIM MISSING! A jazz quartet plays (for a long time), and there's lots of beat poetry. Frank Janus stars as a nice-guy detective, but the surprise cast members are Geoffrey Lewis (father of Juliette), in Washington Square Park, Hector Elizondo, and poet Hugh Romney, later known as Wavy Gravy of Woodstock fame. The Pussycat was a real cafe and theater in Greenwich Village. M. A. Ripps wrote the story. It's a Frank Henenlotter Sexy Shocker release.

FAT GUY GOES NUTZOID!

(Prism, 1983) D/S: John Golden S: Richard Golden P: Emily Dillon

Troma released this low comedy (originally titled Zeisters). Peter Linari is a pathetic, 300-pound deaf-mute with a mohawk who's called the Mooka. He makes friends with two nerds, farts, pukes, and hides in a car. Retarded kids at summer camp start a riot, and there are Quaaludes jokes. Some parts take place in Manhattan. The guitar score is by Leo Kottke!

FATHERLAND

(Warner, 1994) D: Christopher Menaul S: Stanley Weiser, Ron Hutchinson P: Frederic Muller, Llene Kahn

The premise that Germany won WWII and Hitler still rules Europe in 1964 provides a fascinating background for what starts out as a murder mystery. We learn that the fighting with Stalin's USSR still goes on and Joseph Kennedy is the president of America, but other events stay the same (Hiroshima stopped Japan and the Beatles are an international hit). Rutger Hauer stars as an SS detective and single dad in Berlin who teams up with an American reporter (Miranda Richardson) and finds out about the big secret (the Holocaust) closely guarded by the Gestapo. This happens just when the American president arrives to resume relations with Germany on Hitler's 75th birthday. Also with Rory Jennings as the detective's son, Peter Vaughn, Jean Marsh, and Rudolph Fleischer as Hitler. The HBO alternate-history movie is based on Robert Harris' best selling book. It was shot in Prague.

FATHERS AND SONS

(SVS, 1991) D/S: Paul Mones P: Jon Kilik

Jeff Goldblum is Max Fish, an alienated, alcoholic, formerly famous movie director and widower who owns a book store and directs plays in Asbury Park, NJ, while trying to keep his teen son (Rory Cochrane, who narrates) out of trouble. Meanwhile, the mysterious "Shore Killer" is on the loose, and the local kids party and take a new drug called "chew." It's more about characters relating to each other than what the (telepathic) serial killer does, but the Jersey shore locations are a pleasant change. With Ellen Greene (Little Shop of Horrors), Famke Janssen, Spike Lee's sister Joie, and Rosanna Arquette in a very small role as a fortune teller.

FAUST

(Video Yesterday, 1926) D: F. W. Murnau S: Hans Kyser P: Erich Pommer Germany

The most famous version of the old legend (the basis of at least 17 other films made before and after this one) about a man who sells his soul to the Devil stars Emil Jannings as Mephistopheles and Gosta Ekman as Faust. The 90-minute tape of this silent film, made by UFA, features the original organ score. The German intertitles are subtitled in English. The cast includes director William Dieterle, who made an American version (All That Money Can Buy/The Devil and Daniel Webster) in 1941. (Faust was later the name of a pioneering West German 70s noise band.) Murnau went to the US in 1927, made four films, and died in a car accident in 1931, at the age of 42. Jannings, considered one of the greatest actors in the world at the time, also starred in Murnau and Pommer's The Last Laugh (1924). He remained in Germany during the Nazi era, was made head of the company that produced his films, and was honored as an "artist of the State."

FEAR

(Wizard, 1980) D/S: Riccardo Freda S: Fabio Piccioni, Cesare Antonio Corti Italy/France (L'ossessione Che Uccide; Murder Obsession)

An actor takes his girlfriend and part of his cast and crew home to visit his mother (Anita Strindberg), and people die. Laura (Emanuelle) Gemser, John Richardson, and Stefano Patrizi costar. This giallo mystery has nudity, nightmares, a sick ending, a bat attack, and a giant spider. The American tape is missing some scenes.

FEAR

(Virgin, 1988) D: Robert A. Ferretti S: Rick Scarry, Kathryn Connell P: Lisa M. Hansen

Nam vet Cliff De Young, his wife (Kay Lenz), and their kids are at an isolated cabin. He has disturbing flashbacks. Some escaped cons, led by Nam-vet mass murderer Frank Stallone and Robert Factor, take hostages, and the family fights back. This bloody movie features a cock in a rat trap.

FEAR

(Vestron, 1989) D/S: Rockne O'Bannon P: Richard Kobritz

Ally Sheedy is a South Carolina girl with ESP who "sees" a killer (played by John Agar!) so the police can show up and shoot him. Years later she's an author in LA who ends up working for the police (who don't believe in her powers) to track "the ShadowMan." This serial killer, who writes "Fear Me" on a wall with blood, talks to her and taunts her inside her head while he kills. With Lauren Hutton as her manager, Michael O'Keeffe as the guy next door, and Dina Merrill. The worst part of this mediocre movie is the constant use of irritating "Blur-o-vision." It debuted on Showtime.

FEAR CITY

(HBO, 1984) D: Abel Ferrara S: Nicholas St. John P: Bruce Cohn Curtis

After the indy Driller Killer and Ms. 45, Ferrara made this for 20th Century-Fox. There was way too much nudity, drugs, and violence for them, so it ended up being released by the exploitation specialists at Aquarius. Tom Berenger stars as an ex-boxer working as an agent for strippers in New York City. His clients are being killed by a psycho-killer karate expert, and gangsters cause more trouble. Billy Dee Williams is a cop. Melanie Griffith, as a drug-addicted stripper having an affair with Rae Dawn Chong, does an entire routine on-stage wearing just a G string. With Jack Scalia, Rossano Brazzi, Michael V. Gazzo, Jan Murray, Ola Ray, Maria Conchita Alonso (in her first US movie), Emilia Crow, Lori Eastside, and Tracy Griffith (Melanie's half-sister). The theme song is by David Johansen.

THE FEAR INSIDE

(Fox, 1991) D: Leon Ichaso S: David Birke P: John Broderick

An agoraphobic woman (Christine Lahti) rents rooms in her mansion to crazed killer Dylan McDermott and neurotic Jennifer Rubin. David Ackroyd is her husband. This made-for-cable movie is like Lady in a Cage (1964).

FEAR IN THE NIGHT

(Sinister, 1946) D/S: Maxwell Shane P: William H. Pine, William C. Thomas

Years before he was Bones on Star Trek, DeForest Kelley dreams that he has committed a murder. His brother-in-law (Paul Kelly) discovers that it's a frame-up involving a mansion and hypnosis. The movie, based on a Cornell Woolrich story called "Nightmare," features some great dream and flashback sequences. With Ann Doran and Robert Emmett Keane. Ten years later the same director remade it as Nightmare, starring Kevin McCarthy and Edward G. Robinson. The original was screened at several film festivals in 1992.

FEARLESS TIGER

(Imperial, 1990) D/S: Ron Hulme P/A: Jalal Merhi Canada (Black Pearls)

Jalal Merhi leaves his father's Toronto shopping-cart business to go to Hong Kong, learn martial arts, and avenge the drug death of his brother. Lazar Rockwood is the evil nirvana dealer. With Monika Schnarre, Jamie Farr as the father, and Bolo Yeung.

FEAR OF A BLACK HAT

(Fox, 1993) D/S/A: Rusty Cundlieff P: Darin Scott

Look for this hilarious, on-target spoof of rap music. The story of the rise and fall of the (fictional) NWH (Niggaz with Hats) rap group is told by a sociologist and filmmaker (Kasi Lemmons). The trio is leader Ice Cold (Rusty Cundlieff), Tasty Taste (Larry B. Scott, from the Revenge of the Nerds movies), and DJ Tone Def (Mark Christopher Lawrence). They record a "Kill Whitey" LP, and we see perfect videos for "Booty Juice" and "Fuck the Security Guards." The film began as a short. It's better than the similar, higher-budgeted CB4. Kurt Loder plays himself. Also with Monique Gabrielle.

FEAST OF FLESH

(1968) D: Emilio Vieyra S: Antonio Rosso P: Ortestes A. Trucco Spain

A masked killer sticks syringes into women at a resort. A police inspector and his girlfriend solve the mystery. A 66-minute version played on a double bill in the US with the Mexican film Night of the Bloody Apes.

FEDERAL FOLLIES

(Vid City series)

Here are 8 60-minute volumes presenting some of the short educational films made by the US government over the years. Many (well, all) of them are obviously designed to misinform and manipulate the population, for various reasons. These are some highlights: "Duck and Cover" (1), "Our Job in Japan" (2), "Trip To Where?" and "Your Job in Germany" (3), "Jap Zero," with Ronald Reagan! (4), "Code of Conduct," with Jack Webb (5), a Disney hygiene film (6), "Defense Against the Spy" (7), and "The More We Get Together," with Robbie Benson as a teen drunk (8).

THE FEEBLES

(MTI, 1989) D/S/P/C: Peter Jackson NZ (Meet the Feebles)

Most viewers will find this a bit much, but if you can dig it, it's really well done—sort of a mean-spirited, X-rated, bad-taste "Spluppets" musical. It's complete with sex, suicide, drugs, and body fluids. Like the Muppets, these characters are a mixture of puppets, marionettes, and people in animal suits. It's a backstage story starring "Wobert," a shy hedgehog. There's an amazing Deer Hunter–copy Nam flashback, a rat (with a Peter Lorre voice) who makes S&M porno movies, and a fly reporter who eats shit. It's funny to see a huge walrus, an even bigger crab monster, and all the tiny creatures trying to cheat, abuse, or have sex with each other, but not everybody will laugh at the rabbit with AIDS. The Michelle Scullion music was released on a picturedisc. There was an earlier American feature by Gerard Damiano called Let My Puppets Come, and the French Marquis (also released in 1989) also had puppets, sex, and violence.

FEELIN' GOOD

(1966) D/S/P: James A. Pike S: Mildred Maffei

Actual color footage of a 1966 Boston Jaycees battle of the bands was used in this independent teen drama filmed in color. The director's son, Travis Pike, stars as a ex-GI who returns to Boston, his girlfriend, and their musician friends. With the Brattle Steet East, the Montclairs, and others. Pike was a local TV director.

FELLINI SATYRICON

(MGM, 1969) D/S: Federico Fellini
P: Alberto Grimaldi Italy/France

Fellini's most shocking film shows what life might have been like in decadent, ancient Rome. Very impressive-looking, it mixes Fellini's always incredible real human faces, sex (with just about anybody or anything that moves), and magic, and is the first place many people saw (or even thought about) a hermaphrodite. Martin Potter stars, with Hiram Keller, Capucine, and Alain Cuny. It was Fellini's first film after Juliet of the Spirits (1966). The subtitled United Artists release is over two hours long, and the tape is letterboxed. The excellent Nino Rota soundtrack is also on United Artists. Tina Aumont starred in an Italian ripoff, Satyricon (1970) by Gian Luigi Polidoro.

FEMALE ANIMAL

(SW, 1970) D: Juan Carlo Grinella S: Octavio Bellini, Marcello Lazarini Italy/Spain
(La Mujer del Gato; Teenagers for Sale)

Arlene Tiger stars as Angelique, a woman from a fishing village who becomes a maid in a mansion, where she has affairs with a count and his son. She also takes LSD, has sex with the stableboy and the count's mistress, and ends up as a hooker servicing a priest. Filmed in Puerto Rico, it was rated X when released by Jerry Gross' Cinemation company and was rereleased in 1978 by Sam Sherman's Independent International.

THE FEMALE BUNCH

(Imperial, IVC, 1969) D: Al Adamson S: Jale Lockwood, Brent Nimrod P: Raphael Nussbaum

Five women on horseback (and a small plane) track a couple hiding in a cave. He asks, "How did you get into this mess?" The line is repeated over and over with a heavy echo until Sandy begins to narrate her incredible feature-length flashback. She was a suicidal Vegas waitress with a rotten singer boyfriend (wearing a silver lamé jacket). Her friend Libby (the director's wife, Regina Carrol, with incredible piled-up hair) takes her to a secret ranch with no men: "We don't give a damn about society here! It takes guts to be free!" The fascist-bitch leader (Jennifer Bishop) buries one woman alive in a coffin to test her. Lon Chaney Jr. plays Lonnie, a grizzled, hard-drinking, friendly, lovesick former stuntman who tends the horses. He has lines, but his voice is in pretty bad shape. After Bishop shoots up, there's a psychedelic lesbian scene. In Mexico the women abuse locals: "Wetback! Greaser! Don't drink the water! Ha, ha!" Russ Tamblyn (with a droopy mustache) is first seen taking a piss. He has his face branded, bites a woman on her breast, and gets stuck with a pitchfork. Lon is brained with a hammer and dragged by a horse, but he saves the day at the end! This is sort of a terrible (and too dark) nightmare mixture of The Wild Bunch and Faster, Pussycat! Kill! Kill! with sex, drugs, nudity, and violence. It was shot at the notorious Spahn Ranch, not very long before the Manson-family murders. The executive producer was Mardi Rustam, and the assistant director was John "Bud" Cardos, so you can't blame just Adamson. Chaney's last movie (he died in 1973), it didn't come out until 1971, when it was promoted by stressing the Manson connection!

THE FEMALE JUNGLE

(RCA, 1954) D/S/A: Bruno Ve Sota
S/P/A: Burt Kaiser (The Hangover)

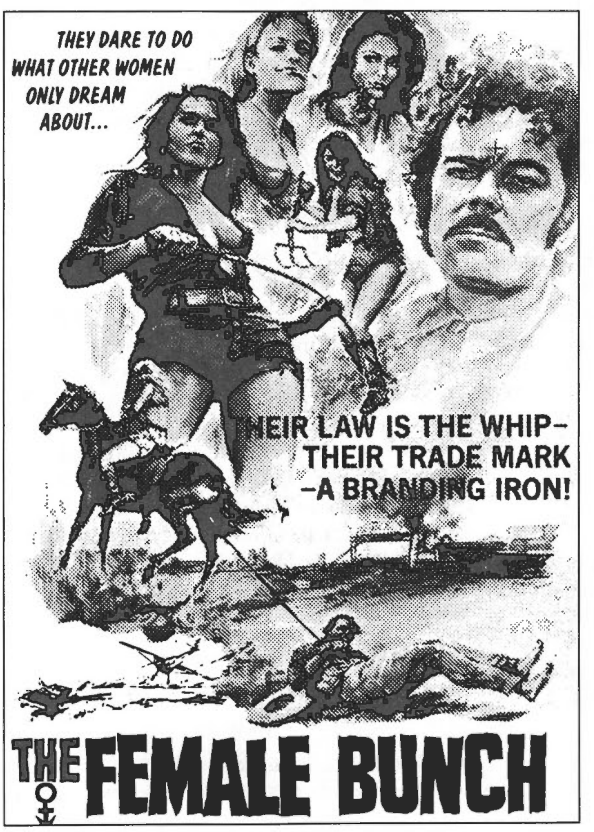
This low-budget crime film was directed by actor Bruno Ve Sota just after he was in Dementia/Daughter of Horror. Burt Kaiser, the unfamous producer/star, sold his movie to ARC (pre-AIP) which put it on a 1956 double bill with Corman's Oklahoma Woman. Actress Monica Madison has been strangled, and drunken off-duty police lieutenant Jack Stevens (Lawrence Tierney), whose only friend is a very observant young black janitor, is a suspect. The plot jumps from character to character and includes flashbacks (at the Hollywood Can Can Club) as the story unfolds. Alex (Kaiser), an alcoholic, unemployed artist with a waitress wife (Kathleen Crowley), is having an affair with Candy Price (Jayne Mansfield, in her film debut). Candy is very serious and bitter, and she talks a lot: "You're trouble, Al. You always will be. But I've come around to give you a touch of your own medicine." John Carradine has a good role as a mysterious, menacing, rich gossip columnist who escorted the dead actress to a premiere. He wears glasses and plays classical music very loud. Watching this shadowy, dark film about desperate and doomed characters makes me think that maybe Bruno really did direct the amazing Dementia/Daughter of Horror (1953). His next job as director was The Brain Eaters (1959). Jayne Mansfield was paid $150 for acting in The Female Jungle, then returned to her job selling popcorn at a movie theater.



FEMALE NEO NINJAS

(VSOM, 1993) D: Tomoyuki Kasai Japan

This wild fantasy features three nice, acrobatic, fighting teen girls in cool black-leather clothes who live with their grandfather/teacher. A confused young man arrives from the past (and in flashbacks) with a magic scroll, and they help him out. It sounds and looks like a Saturday-morning kids' show with mediocre but fun FX, but about halfway through, when there's a closeup of one girl's ass as she crawls away from some new threat, it becomes something you wouldn't see on TV (at least not in this country). One girl is tied up and whipped while wearing a see-through net top, then tied up topless with a snake on her body. After some more sexy S&M scenes there's a corrupt politician who parties with topless women and wants ultimate power from aliens with a flying saucer. The subtitled print is excellent.

FEMALE ON THE BEACH

(Universal, 1955) D: Joseph Pevney P: Albert Zugsmith

Middle-aged Joan Crawford, a former Vegas dancer, is a rich widow who falls for stud Jeff Chandler after she discovers him making breakfast in her beach house. He has already romanced (and may have killed) her former tenant. She reads the dead woman's diary but decides to marry him anyway. With Jan Sterling, Judith Evelyn, Charles Drake, Cecil Kellaway, and Natalie Schafer. This was the Crawford movie after Johnny Guitar.

FEMALE PLASMA SUCKERS = BLOOD ORGY OF THE SHE DEVILS

FEMALES FOR HIRE

(1968) D/S: Rolf Olsen W. Germany
(Der Arzt von Saint Paul; Sidewalk Doctor; Shock Treatment; Bedroom Stewardesses)

Curt Jurgens starred as a St. Pauli–area doctor in Hamburg, and Christine Rucker is a prostitute. The US version (called The Bedroom) with new scenes shot by Al Adamson in the US, was released in 1976 for people suckered into drive-in sex-movie triple bills. From Independent International.

FEMALE SPACE INVADERS = STARCRASH

Lawrence Tierney and John Carradine in The Female Jungle.

FEMALE TROUBLE

(Continental, Cinema Group, 1974)
D/S/P: John Waters

"Crime equals beauty" is the motto of Dawn Davenport (Divine) in Waters' follow-up to Pink Flamingos. First seen as a teen, she grows up, becomes famous, shoots the audience during her trampoline act, and goes to the electric chair for murder. It's Waters at his best, filled with very funny scenes and memorable lines. Mink Stole is Taffy, Dawn's illegitimate daughter, who plays car crash and joins the Hare Krishnas. Edith Massey is incredible as the "fag hag" aunt bulging out of leather bondage clothes. With David Lochary and Mary Vivian Pearce as the Dashers, Michael Potter as Gator, Cookie Mueller, and George Stover. In one scene, Divine (playing Dawn and Earl) rapes herself. It was Divine's last Waters film until Polyester (1981). Female Trouble debuted in Baltimore and was distributed by New Line. Sadly, nearly all of the stars are now dead.

FEMME FATALE

(Republic, 1990) D: André Gutfreund S: Michael Ferris, John D. Brancato P: Andrew Lane, Nancy Rae Stone

Lisa Zane (from Bad Influence) has multiple personalities. One is underground actress Maura Sade. Colin Firth is her forest-ranger husband, Lisa Blount is an LA lesbian S&M movie director, Billy Zane (the star's real-life brother) is a painter, Scott Wilson is a doctor, and Suzanne Snyder is a model with a bag on her head.

FEMME FONTAINE: KILLER BABE FOR THE CIA

(Troma, 1994) D/S/P/A: Margot Hope

An assassin (Hope) looking for her father, who disapeared in South America, discovers a porno scam in Chinatown and a neo-Nazi group. James Hong is a martial-arts master, and Catherine Dao is a dragon lady. Gary Graver was the editor and cinematographer of this comedy adventure.

LA FEMME NIKITA

(Vidmark, 1989) D/S: Luc Besson France (Nikita)

This was one of the most influential features of the late 80s. Anne Parillaud is a junkie punk-gang member who is arrested for killing a cop during a holdup and goes to prison. She's forced to go through a long government reprogramming period and is let out to commit political assassinations in a tight black skirt. Her trainers are a detatched government agent (Tcheky Karyo) and a fashion consultant (Jeanne Moreau). She blows away a lot of people and is allowed to live on her own, but she falls in love with a supermarket clerk, Jean-Hughes Anglade. The begining is very violent, but it settles into a relationship movie with spy touches. Parillaud is excellent, especially before she's "reformed." The title was changed in America, so people wouldn't think it was Russian! A Hong Kong version is Black Cat (1991). The US remake (with Bridget Fonda) is Point of No Return.

FEROCIOUS FEMALE FREEDOM FIGHTERS

(Media, 1982) D: Yuri Burman

The LA Connection comedy group redubbed a Hong Kong film with new dialogue, dialects, and sound effects (like Woody Allen years earlier with What's Up, Tiger Lily?). It includes female wrestlers. Troma released it (and a sequel).

THE FERTILICHROME CHEERLEADER MASSACRE

(Stimco, 1989) D/S/P: Patric Shawn O'Neill
P: Sam Albright

If you like slow science fiction with some good "trip" sequences this b/w feature from Seattle might do the trick. It concerns a guard at a remote nuclear power station, usually out protecting the glowing orbs in the desert. He cooks a rabbit, snake, and beer stew for dinner. A mad scientist (in a smoking jacket) and his teen gang kidnap the guard's cheerleader daughter for "fertilichrome" experiments that cause women to have one baby a month. Some of the sound effects are interesting, but the music made me pretty sleepy. With members of the Screaming Trees.

ffolkes

(MCA, 1980) D: Andrew V. McLaglen S: Jack Davies
P: Elliot Kastner UK (North Sea Hijack; Assault Force)

Roger Moore stars as a cat-loving, woman-hating mercenary hired to stop crazed (of course) terrrorist Anthony Perkins and his gang from blowing up oil rigs after they hijack a ship in the North Sea for ransom. With James Mason, Michael Parks, David Hedison, and Jeremy Clyde.

F FOR FAKE

(Home Vision, 1973) D/A: Orson Welles P: Dominique Antoine, François Reichenbach

The last film completed by Welles is a humorous, playful, fascinating documentary. Welles ("I am a charlatan") added much new footage to a French TV show (shot by Reichenbach) about art forger Elmyr de Hory. The topics explored include Welles' "War of the Worlds" radio broadcast, Clifford Irving (who wrote a fake autobiography of Howard Hughes), and deceptions and fakery in general. Nina Van Pallandt, Oja Kodar, Joseph Cotten, Laurence Harvey, and Peter Bogdanovich appear as themselves. Cinematographer Gary Graver also worked on Welles' unfinished The Other Side of Midnight (from 1970–76).

FIELD OF FIRE

(HBO, 1990) D/P: Cirio H. Santiago
Philippines (Battle Gear)

David Carradine stars as an American general leading a squadron behind enemy lines in Cambodia on a rescue mission. It was released by Concorde.

THE FIEND = BEWARE THE BRETHREN

THE FIEND WHO WALKED THE WEST

(1958) D: Gordon Douglas S: Harry Brown, Philip Yordan P: Herbert B. Swope Jr.

Here's a remake of Kiss of Death (1947), this time as a western. Hugh O'Brian is Hardy, a bank robber serving time, and future producer Robert Evans is the sadistic, giggling, psycho inmate with a mother complex (played by Richard Widmark in the original) who terrorizes Hardy's wife (Linda Cristal) and kills his friends. With Dolores Michaels, Stephen McNally, June Blair, Edward Andrews, and Ron Ely. This 20th Century–Fox release has music by Les Baxter.

FIERCE: See FIGHTING MAD

THE FIFTH MISSILE

D: Larry Peerce S: Eric Bercovici P: Arthur Fellows

Robert Conrad and Sam Waterston star as naval commanders during war games on an atomic submarine. They almost cause WWIII. With Richard Roundtree, Art LaFleur, Yvette Mimieux, and David Soul. This NBC-TV movie was filmed in Italy and on Malta.

Anne Parillaud stars in La Femme Nikita.

THE FIFTH MUSKETEER

(RCA, 1977) D: Ken Annakin S: David Ambrose P: Ted Richmond Austria (Behind the Iron Mask)

This version of Dumas' novel The Man in the Iron Mask was titled to make people think it was a sequel to Richard Lester's The Four Musketeers (1975). Beau Bridges stars as King Louis XIV and his brother who goes to prison. The musketeers (all old men this time) are Lloyd Bridges, Alan Hale Jr., José Ferrer, Cornel Wilde, and Rex Harrison. With Sylvia Kristel, Ursula Andress, Olivia de Havilland (it was her last film), Ian McShane, and Helmut Dantine. It was filmed in Austria and released by Columbia. James Whale directed The Man in the Iron Mask (1939). Richard Chamberlain starred in a TV-movie version that debuted in 1977.

52 PICK-UP

(1986) D: John Frankenheimer S: Elmore Leonard, John Steppling P: Menahem Golan

A wealthy businessman (Roy Scheider) has a brief affair with a nude model. She's videotaped being killed, and he's framed and blackmailed by sleazy John Glover with help from a crazed Clarence Williams III. They also force him to watch the snuff film they made. With Ann-Margret as his wife, Vanity, Kelly Preston, and Doug McClure. Jamie Gillis, Ron Jeremy, and other porno stars are in sex-club scenes. The same Elmore Leonard novel had been filmed as The Ambassador in 1984.

FIGHT FOR YOUR LIFE

(After Hours, 1977) D: Robert A Endelson S: Straw Weisman P: William Mishkin (Held Hostage; Stayin' Alive; Getting Even; Bloodbath at 1313; Fury Road)

A racist hillbilly (William Sanderson, from the Newhart show) and two other sadistic prison escapees (one Chinese and one Mexican) terrorize a black minister and his family. The victims fight back and eventually take a bloody revenge. The plot steals from The Desperate Hours (1957). It was filmed in upstate New York. Most viewers find this movie beneath contempt, but it was released many times under various titles by Mishkin. Sometimes it was double-billed with Snuff or a kung-fu movie, and sometimes it was advertised to make it look more like a horror movie.

FIGHTING BACK

(Paramount, 1982) D: Lewis Teague S: Tom Headley, David Z. Goodman P: Dino De Laurentiis

Tom Skerritt is an Italian-deli owner in South Philadelphia. During one day his best friend is shot, his mother's finger is cut off, and his wife has a miscarriage. So he organizes a vigilante group and seeks revenge. He also becomes a media celebrity. This movie shows the negative aspects of vigilantism while exploiting it. With Michael Sarrazin, Patti LuPone, Yaphet Kotto, David Rasche, and Pat Cooper. It was made between the director's Alligator and Cujo.

FIGHTING DEVIL DOGS

(Republic, 1938) D: William Witney, John English S: Barry Shipman, Franklyn Adreon, Ronald Davidson

Lee Powell stars as a Marine-lieutenant hero in this 12-chapter Republic serial (in real life he was killed in action in WWII). A mad scientist called the Lightning (Hugh Sothern) uses deadly electronic "fire bolts" to battle the Marines from his futuristic Wing plane. The villain wears a cool black cape and mask and has some impressive weapons. With Herman Brix (later Bruce Bennett), Eleanor Stewart, and Montague Love. The 1966 feature version was called The Torpedo of Doom.

FIGHTING FISTS OF SHANGHAI JOE

(TWE, 1973) D: Mario Caiano P: Renato Angiolini, Roberto Bessi Italy (Il Mio Nome E' Shanghai Joe; Shanghai Joe)

Here's a western ripoff of the Kung Fu TV series. Chen Lee stars as a Chinese martial-arts fighter who helps transport slave labor before fighting back. Klaus Kinski is a villain whose coat is lined with knives. With Gordon Mitchell and Giacomo Rossi-Stuart. Kinski was in Aguirre the same year.

FIGHTING MAD

(1976) D/S: Jonathan Demme P: Roger Corman E: Monte Hellman

Peter Fonda is an Arkansas farmer who uses a bow and arrow to fight a powerful, corrupt real-estate-development company that caused the deaths of his father and brother (Scott Glenn) while conducting illegal strip mining. With Lynn Lowry (from I Drink Your Blood), Philip Carey, John Doucette, and Nobel Willingham. It was one of several features Corman produced for 20th Century–Fox. Demme had directed Caged Heat and Crazy Mama at New World.

FIGHTING MAD

(Continental, 1977) D/S: Cirio H. Santiago US/Philippines (Fierce; Death Force)

James Ingleheart is a soldier left behind while fighting in Vietnam. His partners leave him for dead while smuggling gold and Japanese soldiers who don't know WWII is over (!) capture him, then train him as a samurai swordsman. He seeks revenge. Jayne Kennedy and Leon Isaac Kennedy co-star. Leon Isaac, a Cleveland DJ known as Leon the Lover, married former Miss Ohio Jayne Kennedy and took her last name. Both had been in movies (in supporting roles) since 1972. They were also in Body and Soul together. The film was produced by New World, then rereleased to capitalize on their later careers.

FILMGORE

(Wizard, 1983) D: Ken Dixon P: Charles Band

Elvira (Cassandra Peterson) hosts a compilation of film clips, all from the same (now defunct) video company. Her Movie Macabre program started on KHJ-TV in 1981. There are scenes from The Texas Chainsaw Massacre, Snuff, and several Herschell Gordon Lewis gore movies.

FILMHOUSE FEVER

(1986) D: Dominic Paris

This is an hour-long compilation of old trailers (including some good and rare ones), plus typical silly comedy skits, by the director of Dracula's Last Rites (1980).

FIFTIES FAVES

TOP 10, IN ALPHABETICAL ORDER

1. The Beast from 20,000 Fathoms (1953)
2. Black Sunday (1960; available in different US, UK, or Italian versions)
3. Dementia (1953; available with or without the added narration by Ed McMahon)
4. Horror of Dracula (1959)
5. Invasion of the Body Snatchers (1956; available colorized)
6. Night of the Demon (1957; now available in the uncut British version or colorized)
7. Peeping Tom (1960; reissued theatrically in 1979, with Martin Scorsese's backing, and available in the complete 101-minute version)
8. Psycho (1960)
9. Seventh Voyage of Sinbad (1958)
10. The Thing (1951; finally available uncut, on Criterion laserdisc)

The 50s was the first time when "teenager" meant something. Great, fun movies and classic rock songs were created just for teens. The launching of Sputnik in the USSR helped start a boom in science-fiction movies, and the "threat" of TV led to Cinemascope and 3-D movies. It was also the time when TV horror hosts (and newstand monster magazines) first showed up and the last serials were produced. Postwar film noir movies were still common, and a parallel world of adults-only and road-show movies was going strong. The 50s films that grossed more than $10 million include many Cinemascope epics, The Shaggy Dog, 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea, and Psycho (yes, it's technically a 50s movie). Cecil B. De Mille's Ten Commandments 1956 remake of his 1923 silent version of The Ten Commandments cost $43 million and was the top-grossing film, followed by 2 Disney animated movies.

FILLMORE

(1972) D: Richard T. Heffron P: Herbert F. Decker

A dozen rock groups are shown playing concerts in 1972, the final days of the Fillmore West in San Francisco, using split-screen techniques. The bands include the Grateful Dead, Santana, Jefferson Airplane, Hot Tuna, Quicksilver Messenger Service, Boz Scaggs, It's a Beautiful Day, the Rowan Brothers, and Cold Blood. Some of the groups were already way past their prime and had suffered personnel changes. Too bad the movie wasn't made in 1967. The late Bill Graham is interviewed throughout.

FINAL ALLIANCE

(RCA, 1988) D: Mario De Lio S/P: Harel Goldstein S: John T. Eubank P: Ami Artzi S. Africa

David Hasselhoff and a cougar go on a vengeance spree. With Jeanie Moore, Bo Hopkins, and John Saxon as Ghost, albino leader of the Vipers bikers. It's set in Texas.

THE FINAL ANALYSIS

(Warner, 1992) D: Phil Joanou S: Wesley Strick P: Charles Roven, Paul Junger Witt, Tony Thomas

Richard Gere (also a producer) stars as a San Francisco psychiatrist who becomes involved with two sisters (Uma Thurman and Kim Basinger). The plot copies Vertigo and several 40s crime movies. Eric Roberts is Basinger's jealous Greek gangster husband. She goes nuts if she has one drink just like her character in the comedy Blind Date. With Keith David and Harris Yulin. Dean Tavouris was the production designer. It was the first screenplay by the writer of the Cape Fear remake and Batman Returns.

FINAL APPROACH

(Vidmark, 1991) D/S/P: Eric Steven Stahl S: Gerald Laurence

You know something is wrong when a movie had to be promoted as having "the world's first all-digital sound." It's basically a two-character Twilight Zone–type cosmic science fiction story. A dazed and confused Air Force pilot with amnesia (James B. Sikking) is involved in a top-secret project. A psychiatrist (Hector Elizondo) questions him in a room. The flashback-filled story is complete with altered-reality scenes, computer graphics, and 2001-style aerial shots. It would make a good drug movie on the big screen. With Kevin McCarthy and Madolyn Smith.

THE FINAL COMEDOWN

(Bingo, 1972) D: Alan Arkush D/S/P: Oscar Williams (Blast)

Billy Dee Williams stars as an electronics expert who becomes an angry revolutionary. Flashbacks show why, in this violent but serious social-commentary film. Raymond St. Jacques is Imir, a militant leader. With Pamela Jones, D'Urville Martin, and R. G. Armstrong. When New World re-released it as Blast in 1977, Roger Corman had a half-hour of new action scenes (including Paul Bartel) added. It was originally partially backed by the American Film Institute. Director Williams, from the Virgin Islands, made the family comedy Five on the Black Hand Side (1973) next.

FINAL EMBRACE

(New Horizons, 1991) D: Oley Sassone S: R. J. Robertson, Jim Wynorski P: Roger Corman

A psycho kills a female video star (Nancy Vale), and her twin sister (also Vale) shows up. An LA cop (Robert Rusler) starts sleeping with the sister, who's a suspect, but his friendly partner and father (Dick Van Patten!) disapprove. There are many other suspects (a director, record producer, crazed fan, coked-up rival singer) and many false scares. A lot of time is spent showing video scenes, and there are several R sex scenes.

FINAL IMPACT

(PM, 1992) D/P: Joseph Merhi D/S: Stephen Smoke P: Richard Pepin

Lorenzo Lamas and Kathleen Kinmont (his then real-life wife) star in a Rocky-inspired movie set in Las Vegas. An ex-champ fighter running a bar, he trains kickboxer Michael Worth, who wants his title back. With Jeff Langton as a bad-guy fighter, Mimi Lesseos, and Gary Daniels. Lamas and Kinmont were also in Snake Eater and other action films.

FINAL JUSTICE

(Vestron, 1984) D/S/P: Greydon Clark

Joe Don Baker (in his third Clark feature) is a rural Dallas-area cop kicked off the force. He patrols the Mexican border, then has to escort a Mafia boss (Rossano Brazzi) to Rome.

FINAL ROUND

(Worldvision, 1992) D: George Erschbamer S: Arne Olsen P: Robert Vince

Lorenzo Lamas is a kickboxing mechanic who is kidnapped and becomes a human target being hunted by killers, in another variation on The Most Dangerous Game. With (his then real-life wife) Kathleen Kinmont, Anthony De Longis, Isabelle Johnson, and Clark Johnson.

THE FINAL SANCTIONS

(AIP, 1990) D/S: David A. Prior P: David Marriot

In the future (which looks just like today), after a nuclear strike, William Smith is a Russian general who trains Sergei (Robert Z'Dar) and gives him psychological tests. Meanwhile, a prisoner in America (Ted Prior) is chosen by his government to battle Z'Dar Rambo-style in the Virginia woods. After a long, not too exciting battle Smith and a US general arrive and blow them both up, proving that the whole world is really run by one big, corrupt government and that you've been tricked into seeing another lousy AIP video release. It was filmed near Mobile, Alabama.

THE FINAL TERROR

(Vestron, 1980) D: Andrew Davis S: Jon George, Neill Hicks, Ronald Schusett P: Joe Roth (Campsite Massacre; Forest Primevil)

Former AIP president Samuel Arkoff presented this horror movie, but it was also released in 1983 by Aquarius. A female psycho and her son kill campers and their ranger boyfriends. The surprising cast includes Rachel Ward, Daryl Hannah (who was in The Fury next), Adrian Zmed, Lewis Smith, and Joe Pantoliano as Eggar, a sinister handyman/killer in a bear suit. The director later went on to Chuck Norris and Steven Seagal movies. The music features guitar feedback.

FINDERS KEEPERS

(1966) D: Sidney Hayers S: Michael Pertwee P: George H. Brown

Cliff Richard and his backup group, the Shadows, are hired to play at a Spanish resort, but all the tourists have gone because the US has lost a "mighty mini" bomb in the ocean. A foreign power has bugged the hotel, and the musicians are thrown into jail. Robert Morley is Colonel Roberts, and Robert Hutton is a naval commander. It was Richard's last movie with the Shadows.

FINDERS KEEPERS, LOVERS WEEPERS!

(RM, 1968) D/P/A/C/E: Russ Meyer S: Richard Zachary

Paul Lockwood owns a Sunset Strip topless go-go club. His lover (Lavelle Roby) plans to rob his club, and his wife (Anne Chapman) has an affair with the bartender. The sex-in-a-pool scene is intercut with demolition-derby footage. This crime story was the first Meyer film to be booked into a first-run, legitimate theater (in Philadelphia).

FINGERS

(Turner, 1977) D/S/P: James Toback P: George Barrie

Harvey Keitel is Jimmy Fingers, a New York City concert pianist who collects gambling bets for his gangster father (Michael V. Gazzo). He's obsessed with the irritating 60s song "Summertime Summertime" (by the Jamies) and has proctological problems. The cast of this very unnerving movie includes Tisa Farrow, Tanya Roberts (raped in a public bathroom), Danny Aiello, Zack Norman, and Lenny Montana. Jim Brown exploits his real-life violent-bad-guy reputation by cracking two women's heads together. First-time director Toback also cowrote Brown's first book. He personally hosted the screening I saw at the old St. Marks Theatre in the East Village and criticized Brut Films for not releasing it properly.

FINISHING TOUCH

(Columbia, 1991) D: Fred Gallo S: Anthony L. Greene P: Steve Rabiner

An LA video artist (Arnold Vosloo, also in Hard Target) with short white hair seems to be a snuff filmmaker who kills patrons of a nightclub. Michael Nader (with his deep whisper voice) is a jealous detective. His clichéd ex-wife, Shelley Hack (who uses a body double for sex scenes), is a cop who becomes involved with the suspect. It all has an irritating twist ending. Ted Raimi is a comic cop and Art Evans is the lieutenant. By the director of Dead Space.

FIRE AND ICE

(RCA, 1983) D/P: Ralph Bakshi S: Roy Thomas, Gerry Conway P: Frank Frazetta

A battle beween good and evil (the sorcerer Necron) rages in mystical prehistoric times. Bakshi used live models as the basis for the animation, which was inspired by Frank Frazetta's art. The voices include those of Steve Sandor, Leo Gordon, and Susan Tyrrell. It was released by 20th Century–Fox. Bakshi did some TV work (including the new Mighty Mouse) and a Rolling Stones video before his next film, Cool World (1992).

FIRE AND ICE

(Nelson, 1987) D/S/P/C: Willy Bogner

Suzy Chafee (from Chapstick commercials) and French-Canadian skier John Eaves star in this fantasy love story. It's narrated by John Denver, who must have needed the money badly. It was a PG release from Roger Corman's Concorde.

FIREBALL JUNGLE

(Dark Dreams, 1968) D: Joseph P. Mawra S: Harry Whittington P: G. B. Roberts

The star of this violent, wacked-out car-racing movie is the crazy, hotheaded stock-car racer Cateye Mears, who looks sorta like Link Wray. Cateye and his buddies ride motorcycles, beat people, put out cigarettes on faces, use switchblades and broken bottles in fights, and steal women. An R&B crooner sings at an imitation Playboy Club, girls fight on the beach to instrumental surf music (the loser is dragged by her hair behind a motorcycle), and there's a (real) elimination race with 67 cars! A long, amazing, comedy-filler sequence is in a bizarre club where gay men and women sit on toilet seats at the bar and beer comes from a urinal. One woman has a painted-on dress, another has eyes painted on her eyelids (a great shock effect). A Tiny Tim imitator (!) with a howling dog entertains. All that, plus the nice, lame, fake-hippie group Mercy singing their real-life hit single "Love Can Make You Happy"(!) at the Have-a-Joint Club. A sign on the wall says, "LSD for lunch bunch." The soul theme song goes, "It's a fireball jungle we're living in." The video is pretty washed out, but who cares! It probably always looked that way. John Russell, who looks like a 20s villain, is Mr. Nero, a playboy gangster who likes golf. Lon Chaney Jr. plays Sammy, the unshaven, beer-drinking, Lenny-like junk-car-lot manager who talks to his dog, Herman. Joseph P. Mawra/Joseph Prieto/José Priete, who made this in Tampa, also directed the 60s Olga movies and Shanty Tramp!

FIREBIRD 2015 A.D.

(1980) D: David Robertson S: Barry Pearson, Biff McGuire, Maurice Hurley P: Merritt White

Cars are banned in the 21st century, and a government agent assigned to destroy them starts destroying their owners too. Darren McGavin and Doug McClure star.

FIRECRACKER!

(Monterey, 1981) D/S: Cirio H. Santiago S/A: Ken Metcalf P: Syed Kechico

Santiago remade his own TNT Jackson (1975), this time with blond Jillian Kessner as a karate fighter in the Philippines whose sister is murdered. With Ken Metcalfe and Darby Hinton, as mobsters, and Vic Diaz. Publicity claimed Kessner was "the winner of the 1981 North American Black Belt Olympics" (all a lie). Her one naked fight is a highlight.

FIREFOX

(Warner, 1982) D/P/A: Clint Eastwood S: Alex Lasker, Wendell Wellman

Eastwood is an American pilot who comes out of retirement to sneak into the USSR and steal a top-secret MIG-31 warplane that can be mind-controlled. He has Nam flashbacks of a napalmed girl, and there's a subplot about Soviet Jews. With Freddie Jones, David Huffman, Warren Clarke, and Ronald Lacey. This PG box-office disappointment features John Dykstra FX and originally ran a long 137 minutes. In the real world, the year this was released Eastwood financed a "military excursion" into Laos to rescue MIAs. He returned the next year in a much cheaper sure thing, Sudden Impact.

FIREHEAD

(AIP, 1990) D/S/P: Peter Yuval S: Jeff Mandel

Chris Lemmon (impersonating his father, Jack, more than ever) stars as a nice-guy scientist teamed with a brilliant CIA beauty (Gretchen Becker). A Soviet defector named Ivan (Brett Porter) has deadly laser-ray eyes, can "move molecules," and has been destroying US defense contractor's factories. Christopher Plummer is a government bureaucrat who also runs the Secret Order, a group that wants all-out war. He keeps a photo of Mussolini on the wall and plans to kill the president. Martin Landau is a retired admiral who tells Lemmon to beware. This movie has more guns and explosions than science fiction, but it's okay. Becker also sings the ridiculous theme song. A prologue is set in Estonia, but it was all filmed in Mobile, Alabama.

FIRE IN THE SKY

(Paramount, 1993) D: Robert Lieberman S: Tracy Torme P: Joe Wizan, Todd Black

From the trailers I thought this would be a boring, 70s-style speculation movie, but it's real good. It's based on Travis Walton's "true" book, embellished by screenwriter Torme (son of Mel). In 1975 everybody in a small town thinks that a group of young lumberjacks have killed the missing Travis (D. B. Sweeney), but the lumberjacks say that they saw him ascending into a space ship. James Garner is the out-of-town sheriff who tries to make them confess, as UFO buffs and reporters arrive from around the world. The nightmarish scenes of aliens experimenting on their captive in a huge, gooey, no-gravity spaceship are excellent, thanks to ILM FX. Robert Patrick (Terminator II) is the real star as Travis' best friend Mike. With Craig Sheffer, Peter Berg, Henry Thomas, Bradley Gregg, Noble Willingham, and Kathleen Wilhoite. The Neville Brothers do the excellent end theme, "Sons and Daughters" (available on the Varèse Sarabande soundtrack). This PG-13 film was made in Oregon.

FIRE MONSTERS AGAINST THE SON OF HERCULES

(Sinister, 1962) D/P: Giorgio Marzelli S: Arpad De Riso P: Alfio Quanttrini Italy (Maciste Contra i Monstri)

Reg Lewis as Maciste battles a Hydra, cave men, and a sea monster during the Ice Age. With Margaret Lee.

THE FIRE NEXT TIME

(Cabin Fever, 1992) D: Tom McLoughlin S: James Henerson P: Edwin Self

This made-for-TV future disaster/road movie is long (180 minutes) but worth your time. It borrows some ideas from The Grapes of Wrath and has the interesting notion that after a series of devastating events (fires, hurricanes, global warming) Americans will become refugees and fight to cross the closed and guarded Canadian border. Signs say, YANKEE STAY OUT! Craig T. Nelson stars as a Louisiana shrimp-boat captain who tries to keep his family together. Bonnie Bedelia costars. With Richard Farnsworth, Justin Whalen, Ashley Jones as the daughter who joins a commune, Jurgen Prochnow's "perfect" upstate New York community, Charles Haid, a bearded John Vernon in Nova Scotia, an uncredited Louise Fletcher, and singer Odetta. McLoughlin also made Sometimes They Come Back (1991), probably the best Stephen King TV movie.

FIREPOWER

(PM, 1993) D/P: Richard Pepin S: Michael January P: Joseph Merhi

Long-haired Gary Daniels and Chad McQueen are cop partners in the "Hellzone" of the L.A. of the future (2007) who go undercover as arena fighters. Joseph Ruskin runs a death ring in a smoky nightclub behind a movie theater and makes and sells a fake AIDS vaccine. More time is spent on car chases, explosions, police brutality, and shootouts than one-on-one fighting and it all gets pretty dull. With Jim Hellwig (a wrestler, known as the "Ultimate Warrior") as the silly looking, long-haired, medieval-look swordsman and Alisha Das.

FIRESTARTER

(MCA, 1984) D: Mark Lester S: Stanley Mann P: Frank Capra Jr.

Drew Barrymore has special mental powers because her parents were part of a government experiment. A lot of fire FX are used as she ignites objects (and people) at will. The cast of this Stephen King adaptation includes George C. Scott as an Indian with a ponytail, Martin Sheen and Moses Gunn as government bad guys, David Keith and Heather Locklear (making her film debut) as her parents, Art Carney, Louise Fletcher, and Freddie Jones. It was filmed at the DEG studios an North Carolina and is almost 2 hours long. The Tangerine Dream soundtrack is on MCA. Firestarter was originally slated to be directed by John Carpenter and to star Burt Lancaster. The later Spontaneous Combustion has a similar plot.

FIREWALKER

(Image, 1986) D: J. Lee Thompson S: Robert Gosnell P: Menahem Golan

Chuck Norris and Lou Gossett star as fortune hunters in this PG Raiders of the Lost Ark–copy comic action movie. Melody Anderson has a treasure map, so they go to Guatemala to look inside a Maya temple. With Will Sampson, Sonny Landham as the leader of a cult tribe, and John Rhys-Davies. Norris is not funny. It's a Golan/Globus production.

FIRST BLOOD

(IVE, 1981) D: Ted Kotcheff S: Michael Kozoll, William Sackheim P: Buzz Feitshans

Even Rambo-sequel haters should check out this superior action movie. Stallone stars (in his first non-Rocky hit) as Nam-vet Green Beret hero John Rambo, a man of few words. He's arrested in Hope, Oregon, for vagrancy, escapes, has flashbacks, and battles the local cops and the National Guard. With Richard Crenna as Rambo's former commander, Brian Dennehy as the sheriff, David Caruso, Jack Starrett, and Suzee Pai. Jerry Goldsmith wrote the score. It was the first real hit from Orion (formerly AIP). In real life, a man who killed his boss claimed he did it after watching First Blood 20 times. He was declared insane.

FIRSTBORN

(Paramount, 1984) D: Michael Apted S: Ron Koslow P: Paul Junger Witt, Tony Thomas

Two kids have to save their divorced mom from her demented druggie boyfriend, who moves in with them. Teri Garr stars, and Peter Weller is the drifter who uses and sells coke. Christopher Collet and Corey Haim are the sons who are on to his ways. With Sarah Jessica Parker and Robert Downey Jr. One of the executive producers of this PG-13 film was Sherry Lansing. Apted's great documentary 28 Up was released the same year. EMI released the soundtrack.

THE FIRST DEADLY SIN

(Warner, 1980) D: Brian G. Hutton S: Mann Ruben P: George Pappas

Roman Polanski was slated to direct this adaptation of Lawrence Sanders' novel. Frank Sinatra stars as a police lieutenant who's after a psycho killer. Faye Dunaway spends most of the movie in bed as his hospitalized wife. With David Dukes, Brenda Vaccaro, James Whitmore, Anthony Zerbe, and Joe Spinnell as a doorman. To date, this is Sinatra's only starring role in a theatrical film since 1970. It was released by Filmways, which had been AIP a few months earlier.

THE FIRST NUDIE MUSICAL

(Chiron, 1976) D/S/M/A: Bruce Kimmel D: Mark Haggard P: Jack Reeves

A dying studio is saved by making a porno musical. Cindy Williams (just before the Laverne and Shirley TV series) stars. She's not naked, but some others are. With Stephen Nathan as the director, Susan Stewart (Mantis in Lace), Leslie Ackerman, Diana Canova, and Alexandra Morgan. Williams was also in the unfunny Spaceship (1981), by the same director. The video box says that this film stars Ron Howard!

THE FIRST POWER

(Nelson, 1990) D/S: Robert Resnikoff P: David Madden

Lou Diamond Phillips stars as a very young LA police detective. Tracy Griffith (as a psychic) helps him track a Satanist killer (Jeff Kober) who inhabits other bodies (or does he just make people think he does?). A nun comes to the rescue in the end, and there are hallucination scenes. It's all confusing and unsatisfying. There aren't many FX, but there is one amazing leap from a tall building. With Dennis Lipscomb, Mykel T. Williamson, David Gale, and Melanie Shatner. Stuart Copeland did the music for this Orion release.

FIRST STRIKE

(Video City, 1984) D/S: Allen Kuskowski S/P: Dave Hanson P: Bob Nudo

The Soviets plan WWIII, in what's been called the first shot-on-video feature. Stuart Whitman stars as the captain of the submarine USS Cobra. With Persis Khambata as a double agent, Paul Mantee, Leon Askin, and Robert Clarke. It was made in West Germany and San Diego.

THE FIRST TIME

(1981) D/S: Charles Loventhal S: Susan Weiser-Finley, W. Franklin Finley P: Sam Irvin (Doin' It)

Tim Choate stars as a college-freshman film student. This comedy was directed by a 22-year-old who had studied with Brian De Palma (who appears in the film). With Marshall Efron, Jane Badler, Wallace Shawn as a film professor, Krista Errickson, and Wendie Jo Sperber.

THE FIRST TURN ON!

(Vestron, 1983) D/S/P: Michael Herz, Lloyd Kaufman S: Stuart Strutin, Mark Torgl, Georgia Harrell

Overage kids on a camping trip with their professor are stuck in a cave, so they tell each other sex stories. Supposedly Madonna tried out for this and was turned down by the producers. With Sheila Kennedy (from Penthouse) and Professor Irwin Corey. R and unrated versions of the Troma production are available on tape.

THE FISHER KING

(TriStar, 1991) D: Terry Gilliam S: Richard LaGravenese P: Debra Hill, Lyda Obst

In this overlong (137-minute) fantasy/comedy morality tale, a homeless former professor (Robin Williams) thinks he's a knight searching for the Holy Grail in New York City. A shock radio personality (Jeff Bridges) feels responsible when a listener goes into a bar with a machine gun and kills a "yuppie scum." Bridges quits his job, drinks, then gets a job at a video store run by Mercedes Ruehl. Key scenes take place in Grand Central Station and Central Park, where Williams is pursued by a red knight on horseback. With Amanda Plummer, Michael Jeter, Harry Shearer, Bradley Gregg, and Tom Waits. The film won four Oscars, and the screenplay was published. The laserdisc version includes outtakes, trailers, and an extra commentary track by Gilliam.

FISTFIGHTER

(Avid, 1989) D: Frank Zuniga S: Max Bloom P: Carlos Vasallo

George (or Jorge) Rivero stars as C. J. Thunderbird, a bare-knuckle boxer in Bolivia who ends up in jail and seeks revenge. With villain Mike Connors, Edward Albert Jr., and Matthias Hues.

A FISTFUL OF DEATH

(TWE, 1970) D: Demofilio Fidani S: Domenico Fadani Italy (Giu la Testa, Hombre!)

This is a real bottom-of-the-barrel western with Hunt Powers, Gordon Mitchell, and Klaus Kinski as Reverend Cotton.

A FISTFUL OF DOLLARS

(MGM, 1964) D: Sergio Leone S: Duccio Tessari P: Arrigo Columbo, Giorgio Papi

This was not the first modern European western, but it was the first international hit. The plot was lifted from Akira Kurosawa's Yojimbo (1961). Leone wanted Lee Marvin or James Coburn to star. Clint Eastwood was on a break from the Rawhide TV series when he got the role of "the man with no name." This influential "spaghetti western" wasn't even released in the US until 1967 (by United Artists), with fake English-sounding credits. Leone was "Bob Robertson." With Gian Maria Volonte and Marianne Koch. The score, on RCA, is by Ennio Morricone. Harry Dean Stanton is in new scenes added by Monte Hellman for the ABC-TV version. Eastwood returned immediately in For a Few Dollars More (1965).

A FISTFUL OF DYNAMITE

(MGM, 1971) D/S: Sergio Leone S: Luciano Vincenzoni, Sergio Donati Italy (Giu la Testa; Duck, You Sucker!)

This was the least successful of Leone's westerns in the US (it was released by United Artists). It's also the most political. The original version opens with a quote from Mao! James Coburn is an Irish revolutionary who has flashbacks of his early days. He joins up with a Mexican peasant/bandit (Rod Steiger) for a robbery. They end up being heroes of the revolution in 1913. Coburn's specialty is using dynamite and nitroglycerin, and he rides a motorcyle. Steiger's acting is pretty out of control. There's a Nazi-style German commander and a record number of dead bodies. Morricone provided another excellent score. Antonio Marheriti did FX work. It was originally 158 minutes in Italy, but the longest US prints and the video are 138.

James Coburn in A Fistful of Dynamite.

FIST OF FEAR, TOUCH OF DEATH

(Edde, 1980) D: Matthew Mallinson S/A: Ron Harvey P: Terry Levine (Dragon and the Cobra)

Bruce Lee is seen in some film clips talking about martial arts, Fred Williamson appears for a few minutes as a fight promoter, and Ron Van Clief is shown training. A lot of the footage of this paste-up ripoff is from a movie called Forced to Fight and from real Madison Square Garden martial-arts shows. The late Adolph Caesar also appears. He narrated many of the trailers for Aquarius, which was responsible for this.

FIST OF HONOR

(PM, 1993) D: Richard Pepin S: Charles Kanganis P: Scott McAboy

Sam Jones stars as a martial-arts boxer who gets involved in a Mafia feud in LA while collecting debts. Joey House, as his lounge-singer girlfriend, is featured in sex scenes, Harry Guardino and Abe Vigoda are rival mobsters, and Bubba Smith is a corrupt cop.

FIST OF STEEL

(AIP, 1991) D: Irvin Johnson S: Anthony Jesu P: David Hunt (Eternal Fist)

This post-nuke martial-arts movie copies The Blood of Heroes a lot. Cynthia Khan (not to be confused with Michelle Khan, whom she "replaced" in several Hong Kong sequels) stars (in two roles). Dale "Apollo" Cook (who resembles Cash Flagg!) is a skinhead kickboxer. The mass-murdering bad guys, led by Main Frame, ride dune buggies and fight over water. The fight scenes are pretty good, and Khan, as Wild, a vengeance-seeking former Christian in black, makes it worthwhile. In one scene Cook is crucified. In the next scene the holes in his hands are gone. With loud kung-fu-movie-style sound effects, flashbacks, and an H-bomb opening. I'm not sure where it was filmed, but many of the names in the credits are Spanish. Not to be confused with Fists of Steel (1989).

FISTS OF FURY

(Fox, 1972) D/S: Lo Wei Hong Kong (Big Boss)

Bruce Lee is a very naive country guy who goes to Bangkok and works at an ice factory run by the evil Big Boss (Han Ying Chieh). The boss is dealing drugs, and Lee's friend is found packed in ice. There's a big assault on all the bad guys at the end. Nora Miao costars. Just before Bruce Lee starred in this, his first, worst-dubbed, and crudest kung-fu movie, he was a regular on the short-lived TV series Longstreet and an instructor to the stars in Hollywood. His next was The Chinese Connection (the real Fists of Fury—the titles were switched in the US), which was released here first. This film is available letterboxed on laserdisc.

FISTS OF STEEL

(PDS, 1989) D/S/P: Jerry Schaefer

Real-life boxers Carlos Palomino and Alexis Arguello battle terrorist Henry Silva in Hawaii. This comic action movie features drugs, a transvestite character, a robot, and Soviet and Arab villains. With Marianne Marks, Robert Tessier, and Rockne Tarkington. The line producer was actor Rory Calhoun.

FIT TO KILL

(Columbia, 1993) D/S: Andy Sidaris P: Arlene Sidaris

Dona Spier and Roberta Vasquez are hired to protect a Chinese dignitary and "the Alexa stone," a diamond that was stolen by the Nazis, in the 8th Sidaris generic tits-and-guns series. With Bruce Penhall, Mark Barriere, Cynthia Brimhall, Julie Strain, Ava Cadell, Sandra Wild, Carolyn Liu, and villain R. J. Moore (returning from Hard Hunted). The next Sidaris movie, Enemy Gold, was by Drew Sidaris.

FITZCARRALDO

(Warner, 1982) D/S/P: Werner Herzog P: Lucki Stipetic W. Germany

Klaus Kinski stars as Brian Sweeney Fitzgerald, who wants to build an opera house in the middle of the Amazon jungle and then bring Caruso there to sing. He has an entire ship hauled over a mountain and must fight off hostile natives. The cast includes Claudia Cardinale. It's the fourth Kinski/Herzog film and, like Aguirre, features Popol Vuh's music. New World released it with subtitles, and Corman put Kinski into Android the same year. If you watch all 157 minutes of Fitzcarraldo, you have to see Burden of Dreams, by Les Blank, too. It's about the many problems encountered in the making of this movie.

FIVE BOLD WOMEN

(1959) S: Mortimer Braus, Jack Pollexfen P: Jim Ross

Merry Anders, Irish McCalla (from the TV series Sheena, Queen of the Jungle) as Big Pearl, Kathy Malone, and two others "used a weapon no bad-man could—sex!" They also take baths in a river. Jeff Morrow and Jim Ross are the male stars in this bad-girl western. Anders was also in The Dalton Girls. From Criterian Films.

FIVE CAME BACK

(Turner, 1939) D: John Farrow S: Dalton Trumbo, Nathanael West, Jerry Cady P: Robert Fisk

Although we never actually see them, this is the first major movie with cannibals, and it's a good one. A passenger plane crashes in the South American jungle, and the 12 survivors have to choose which 5 will be rescued by a tiny plane before the headhunters attack. With Lucille Ball, Chester Morris, C. Aubrey Smith, John Carradine, Kent Taylor, Patric Knowles, Allen Jenkins, and Joseph Calleia as a political prisoner. Farrow remade this as Back from Eternity (1956), also for RKO. West died in a car accident in 1940. Trumbo served a 10-month sentence in 1950 for refusing to "cooperate" with the House Un-American Activities Committee. He was blacklisted until 1960.

FIVE CORNERS

(Edde, 1986) D/P: Tony Bill S: John Patrick Shanley P: Forrest Murray US/UK

You'll be surprised by this drama set in the Bronx in the early 60s. The overlapping plots follow various characters who all interact at some point. Jodie Foster is afraid of an unpredictable psycho (John Turturro) who just got out of jail. She goes to Tim Robbins for help, but he wants to be in a southern freedom march and has decided to be nonviolent. Two German guys pick up some girls and play death-defying games in elevator shafts. A teacher is killed, an old lady is thrown out of a window, and a penguin in the zoo is beaten to death. It's funny, violent, and thought-provoking. With Elizabeth Berridge and Todd Graff. George Harrison was an executive producer, and the theme is the Beatles' "In My Life."

FIVE DAYS OF MILAN

(Nightmare, 1973) D/S: Dario Argento S: Nanni Balestrini Italy (Le Cinque Giornate)

Argento's fourth film is set in 1848, when the people of Milan revolted against the Austrian occupation. It's a serious film with some comedy, starring Adriano Celentano as a young thief who becomes caught up in the revolution. Marilu Tolo costars. It's available only in Italian.

FIVE DOLLS FOR AN AUGUST MOON

(Nightmare, 1970) D: Mario Bava S: Mario Di Nardo P: Luigi Alessi Italy (Cinque Bambole per la Luna d'Agostino)

A group of people who have come to a castle on a Mediterranean island to see an inventor's new creation are killed off, and the bodies are stored in a walk-in freezer. It's based (uncredited) on Agatha Christie's Ten Little Indians and was never released in the US. With Ira Furstenberg, Edwige Fenech, and William Berger.

FIVE EASY PIECES

(RCA, 1970) D/P: Bob Rafelson S: Carol Eastman P: Richard Wechsler C: Laslo Kovacs

Jack Nicholson stars as Bobby, an oil-field worker and classical musician. He lives in a trailer with Rayette (Karen Black). After 12 years of acting, it was Nicholson's first lead in a major film. He and Black were both nominated for Oscars. The only things Rafelson had directed previously were episodes of The Monkees and Head. With Susan Anspach, Billy Green Bush, Ralph Waite, Fanny Flagg, Sally Struthers, and Toni Basil. The soundtrack features classical music and "Stand by Your Man." Cinematographer Kovacs had also shot Easy Rider. From Columbia.

FIVE FINGERS OF DEATH

(VSOM, 1972) D: Cheng Chang Ho S/A: Lo Lieh P: Raymond Shaw, Run Run Shaw Hong Kong (King Boxer)

This was the first kung-fu hit in the US and made more money here than any other non–Bruce Lee 70s martial-arts film. Warner Brothers gave it a major release and devised an effective ad campaign. Lo Lieh stars as Chao Chi-Hao, a medieval martial-arts student who learns the secret of "the iron fist." Lieh later starred in many other films including The Stranger and the Gunfighter, with Lee Van Cleef.

555

(King, 1988) D/P: Wally Koz S: Roy M. Koz

This amateurish, shot-on-video family project (from Chicago) received some attention when it was released because it was so gory (and bad). It features a bearded-hippie killer, gore, nudity, and necrophilia.

FIVE FOR HELL

(Video Treasures, 1969) D: "Frank Kramer"/ Gianfranco Parolini S: Renato Izzo P: Paolo Moffa, Aldo Addobbati Italy (Cinque per L'Inferno)

Klaus Kinski is Captain Muller in this WWII adventure. With John Garko and Margaret Lee.

THE FIVE HEARTBEATS

(CBS/Fox, 1992) D/S/P/A: Robert Townsend S: Keenan Ivory Wayans

The rise and fall of the five members of a Temptations-like group with gangster managers is the theme of this underrated film, which is very much based on real events and singers. Townsend stars as Donald "Duck" Matthews, with Michael Wright, Leon, Diahann Carroll, Harold Nicholas, and Theresa Randle. The music is by Stanley Clarke.

FIVE LOOSE WOMEN: See FUGITIVE GIRLS

THE FIVE MAN ARMY

(VSOM, 1969) D: Don Taylor S: Dario Argento, Marc Richards Italy (Un Esercito di Cinque Uomini)

Horror great Argento cowrote this serious western about the Mexican revolution. Peter Graves stars as a Dutchman who (behaving much as he did on the then-current Mission: Impossible TV series) assembles a group of specialists and explains a gold-robbery plan. With James Daly as a dynamite expert, big Bud Spencer, Tetsuro Tambe as a silent, knife-throwing Japanese samurai, Marc Lawrence, Giacomo Rossi-Stuart, and Daniela Gioroam (Miss Italy 1967). Ennio Morricone wrote the score. Argento had also cowritten the great Once upon a Time in the West.

FIVE MINUTES TO LOVE

(Sinister, 1963) D: John Hayes S/P/A: Paul Leder S: William Norton (The Rotten Apple)

If a pretentious, downbeat off-Broadway play filmed in a junkyard sounds good to you, watch this one. The bullying junkyard owner, Harry (Paul Leder), talks nonstop. Blowhard (King Moody), a dummy who works for him, smokes pot. A corrupt cop beats people up. Rue McClanahan (from The Golden Girls!) is Pooch, "a crazy whore." Characters, each in their own world, rant, quote Nietzsche, and talk about lesbians and underage sex. The normal characters are an unhappy couple (Will Gregory and the very pretty Gaye Gordon) living in a '48 Ford with their baby. One spinning-camera scene (featuring Rue) is very impressive. The print of this b/w Headliner production is very good. Something Weird offers a version that includes a personal prologue by Leder.

THE FLAMING FRONTIER

(VSOM, 1965) D: Alfred Voher S: Fred Denger, Eberhard Keindorf P: Wolfgang Kuhnlenz W. Germany/Yugoslavia (Old Surehand)

Stewart Granger is Old Surehand in one of a series of westerns based on books by the 19th-century German writer Karl May. The plot concerns a gold mine and a train robbery. Pierre Brice as the Apache blood brother Winnetou became the real star of the popular series. With Leticia Roman and Terence Hill. The dubbing is terrible.

THE FLAMING SIGNAL

(Sinister, 1933) D: C. E. Roberts, George Jeske P: William Berke

A flyer (John David Horsely) and his German shepherd, Flash the wonder dog, are stranded on a jungle island with missionaries and bad guys after pearls. The natives hold a sacrificial ritual, and Manu, a dead witch doctor (Mischa Auer), seems to return from the grave. This 64-minute independent production also features Henry B. Walthall and Noah Beery Sr.

THE FLAMING TEEN AGE

(Sinister, 1957) D/P: Irvin S. Yeaworth Jr. D: Charles Edwards S: Jean Yeaworth, Ethel Barrett

A narrator relates a tale about a teen who drinks. The characters have strong southern accents. This soon evolves into a flashback inside of a flashback, the real movie, which has nothing to do with teens! (And, judging from a Times Square marquee seen in the film, it was made in 1945!) It's a convoluted tale (also with flashbacks inside of flashbacks!) of Fred Garland (Noel Rayburn), a no-account guy from Roanoke, Virginia, who moves to New York City and, with no experience, manages to produce a play. Booze and gambling catch up with him, though, and he drinks iodine, goes to jail, shoots up, finds God, and lectures others about the paths of evil. I think the original movie was called Twice Convicted. Yeaworth (who later made The Blob) must have been quite a hustler to sell a 12-year-old movie as the "true, unvarnished confession of a juvenile delinquent!" He also later made Way Out (1966), filmed in the Bronx, which starred real drug addicts.

THE FLASH

(Warner, 1990) D: Robert Iscore S: Danny Bilson, Paul DeMeo P: Steven Long Mitchell, Craig W. Van Sickle

John Wesley Shipp stars as the police chemist who secretly becomes the superfast costumed crime-fighter, in this film based on the DC comic-book character. With Amanda Pays, M. Emmet Walsh, Paula Marshall, Robert Hooks, Richard Belzer, Tim Thomerson, Michael Nader, and Priscilla Pointer. This CBS-TV series pilot led to a better-than-average series (staring Shipp and Pays) that lasted only one season. Flash II: The Trickster was also released.

FLASHBACK

(Paramount, 1990) D: Franco Amurri S: David Loughert P: Marvin Worth

Dennis Hopper stars as Huey Walker, a 60s radical who is still wanted for disrupting a Spiro T. Agnew rally (!). Kiefer Sutherland, the young FBI agent trying to bring him in, is the embarrassed son of hippies. Hopper is great, and the movie is funny. With Carol Kane, Cliff De Young, Paul Dooley, and Richard Masur and Michael McKean as former activists. Walker has a best-selling book at the end. The soundtrack is by Barry Goldberg, with music by Jefferson Airplane, Steppenwolf, REM, and others.

FLASH GORDON

(Stokey, 1936) D/S: Frederick Stephani S: George Plympton, Basil Dickey, Ella O'Neill

Flash Gordon is the most expensive serial ever made, and the best, as far as I'm concerned. It might not have the best stunts, but it does have the most interesting characters and perils, great costumes, and weird monsters. The 13-chapter Universal serial, based on Alex Raymond's comic strip, stars Buster Crabbe as Flash, Jean Rogers as Dale Arden, and Frank Shannon as Dr. Zarkov. Charles Middleton is the ultimate serial villain, Ming the Merciless, and Priscilla Lawson is his evil, sexy daughter, Aura. The main plot line is: Ming wants Dale, Aura wants Flash. Other important characters are Prince Barin (John Alexander) and the winged Vultan of Sky City (John Lipson). There are robots, shark men, lion men, monkey men, and a dragon monster (Glen Strange). Sets and props were borrowed from earlier Universal horror classics and from the film Just Imagine (1930). I first saw the serial (and loved every minute) on the Ghoulardi show in Cleveland. There are two sequels, condensed feature versions (including Rocket Ship and Spaceship to the Unknown), an X-rated spoof (Flesh Gordon), and a 1980 remake.

Buster Crabbe and Priscilla Lawson in Flash Gordon.

FLASH GORDON

(Sinister series, 1953)

Steve Holland starred in this unique-looking syndicated TV series, produced in West Germany. Irene Champlin was Dale Arden. Although 39 episodes were filmed, only 4 volumes with 2 episodes each are available. Some titles are "Micro-Men Menace" and "Death in the Negative."

FLASH GORDON CONQUERS THE UNIVERSE

(Stokey, United American, Sinister, 1940)
D: Ford Beebe, Ray Taylor S: George Plympton, Basil Dickey, Barry Shipman

The original screenwriters were brought back for the third and last serial. Flash goes back to Mongo to save Earth. Carol Hughes plays Dale Arden, Frank Shannon is Zarkov (as always), and Happy is (thankfully) gone. Charles Middleton is back as Ming, Anne Gwynne is the evil Sonia, and Roland Drew plays Prince Barin. There are rock men, the Robin Hood men, and new costumes for everybody. Sinister also offers the feature version of this 12-chapter Universal serial.

FLASH GORDON'S TRIP TO MARS

(Stokey, 1938) D: Ford Beebe, Robert Hill S: Ray Trampe, Norman S. Hall, Wyndham Gittens P: Barney Sarecky

This 15-chapter sequel to the Universal serial is great but not quite as good as the first. The same main stars return, but this time Beatrice Roberts plays Queen Azura, Donald Kerr is added as the unnecessary comic relief Happy Hapgood, and Dale's hair isn't blond anymore. Ming tries to take over Mars, and Prince Barin helps Flash again. My favorite new characters are the ugly clay men (led by C. Montague Shaw), who can magically fade into cavern walls. The tree men are pretty good too. There was originally a tinted sequence. Mars Attacks the World is a condensed feature version. Crabbe played Buck Rogers (in 1939) before returning as Flash one last time.

FLATLINERS

(RCA, 1990) D: Joel Schumacher S: Peter Filardi P: Michael Douglas, Rick Bieber

Ticket buyers expecting a fun fantasy movie most have been surprised by this one, adapted from a novel by Dean Koontz. It has very serious themes (suicide, racism, sexism). Medical students haunted by past events and indiscretions take turns letting each other "die" so that they can have after-death experiences. It's pretty heavy stuff, and it doesn't really work. Some humor helps, but why does the university lab look like a museum (or a set from some Fritz Lang silent movie), and why doesn't anyone interfere? The "shakycam" work gets irritating after a while too. Kiefer Sutherland (also in The Lost Boys by Schumacher) stars, with Oliver Platt, Kevin Bacon, and William Baldwin, who secretly videotapes sex. It was a modest hit because of overhyped costar Julia Roberts. Columbia made it before, but released it after, Pretty Woman.

FLAVIA THE HERETIC

(VSOM, 1974) D/S/P: Gianfranco Mingozzi S: Raniero di Giovanbattista, Sergio Tau, Francesca Vietri, Fabrizio Onofri, Bruno de Geronimo Italy (The Rebel Nun; Flavia; Priestess of Violence; La Monaca Musulmana)

Flavia (Florinda Bolkan) is sent to a 13th-century Portuguese nunnery where torture is common and a crazy tarantula cult appears. She wonders why God is a man and runs away with a Jew named Abraham. She's coached by an older rebel nun, then joins her new Muslim lover, who leads an invading army and punishes rapists. She hallucinates a female Christ, a dead nun rising, and women crawling out of a cow's carcass! Flavia is skinned alive (offscreen) at the end. Some scenes feature full nudity, whipping, castration, impaling, and torture. It's pretty strong and amazing stuff with some historical basis and feminist themes. The great music helps too. The director was known for making documentaries. The Brazilian-born star claims to have been JFK's last lover. Think about that while you watch this. It's subtitled.

FLESH

(Paramount, 1968) D/S/P/C: Paul Morrissey P: Andy Warhol (Andy Warhol's Flesh)

Joe Dallesandro stars as Joe, a hustler providing for his wife and kid on New York's Lower East Side by having sex with men. His ex-girlfriend, a topless dancer (Geri Mil-ler), lives with transvestites Candy Darling and Jackie Curtis. With Geraldine Smith, Barry Brown, and Patti D'Arbanville (said to have been 14). Made after Lonesome Cowboys and followed by Trash and Heat (all starring Dallesandro), it was a midnight-movie hit (and deserved to be).

FLESH + BLOOD

(Vestron, 1985) D/S: Paul Verhoeven S: Gerard Soetman P: Gys Versluys (The Rose and the Sword)

After years of "Hollywood" history, it's great to see a movie like this. It's the tale of a kidnapped 16th-century princess (Jennifer Jason Leigh), but there's nothing nice or simple about it. Verhoeven has plenty to say about religion and politics while telling a great story with humor, violence, sex, plot surprises, and maybe some magic. Most of the characters either are really stupid and hateful or have to debase themselves to survive. Events are complicated by the plague. A diseased dog carcass is pretty effective for germ warfare. Rutger Hauer costars as Martin, an ex-soldier with a ragged crew of looters and killers. With Tom Burlinson, Jack Thompson, Susan Tyrrell, Brion James, and Blanca Marsillach. Orion barely bothered to release it. It was the first film in English for the Dutch Verhoeven. He made Robocop next. Two classics in a row!

Brion James follows Rutger Hauer in Flesh + Blood.

FLESH AND BLOOD

(Video Yesteryear, Sinister, 1922) D/P: Irving Cummings

Lon Chaney stars as a lawyer in Chinatown who pretends to be a cripple to get even with a businessman who framed him and sent him to prison. He discovers that his daughter is in love with his enemy. This 74-minute silent film has a musical score.

FLESH AND BLOOD

(Oooomm Films, 1990) D/S/P/E: Jeff Mentges

After Ohio-born porno legend John Curtis Holmes died of AIDS in 1988, Rolling Stone printed a feature article about his drug problems and his arrest on suspicion of murder (he was involved but was acquitted). Eric Roberts and Christopher Walken said they wanted to play him in a movie (Andrew Prine would be perfect!), but meanwhile Mentges, a film student from the Baltimore/DC area, managed to make Flesh and Blood for only $15,000. The mostly b/w film plays around with facts and time (of course), but it's fun to watch, has an original jazz score and an intro by a "doctor," and is a worthy exploitation accomplishment with enough drugs and violence (but no onscreen sex). Breon stars as the pathetic part-time pimp, drug-delivery man, and thief Johnny Wade. Everybody treats him like shit, and after too much freebasing (he carries a suitcase with the works) he can't even do what he's famous for anymore. My main question is: During the brief "porno" scenes (in color), where are the camera and light people? Watching the film, I realized that these color scenes resemble Ray Dennis Steckler's 60s comedies, and that the balding Breon resembles Steckler! Coincidence?

FLESH AND BULLETS

(1985) D/S/P: Carlos Tobalina

This crime movie, with Cornel Wilde, Cesar Romero, Yvonne De Carlo, Aldo Ray, and Sharon Kelly/Colleen Brennan, is by a porno director (Mai Lin vs. Serena). It didn't play in many theaters. Maybe it's good. It was the last role for Wilde, who died in 1988. Ray was also in the X-rated Sweet Savage (1977) and was the first actor ever expelled from the Screen Actors Guild (in 1986), for acting in so many nonunion features.

FLESHBURN

(1983) D/S: George Gage S: Beth Gaso

Former porno star Sonny Landham stars as an Indian Nam vet who escapes from an asylum. He kidnaps four psychiatrists, takes them out into the desert, and leaves them there. He also uses witchcraft. From Crown International.

FLESH-EATING MOTHERS

(Academy, 1988) D/S/P: James Aviles Martin
S: Zev Shlasinger P: Miljan Peter Ilich

A sexually transmitted virus creates suburban-housewife cannibals. A corrupt cop is eaten alive. Cheating husbands and kids are victims, and a wife-beater is tortured, then eaten. This cheap gore comedy starring Grace Gawthrop is available in R and unrated versions.

FLESH FEAST

(World Video, 1970) D/S/P: Brad F. Ginter
S: Thomas Casey P/A: Veronica Lake

Brooklyn-born Veronica Lake (Constance Ockelman) was a star in the 40s (Sullivan's Travels, This Gun for Hire, I Married a Witch, The Blue Dahlia). Her career ended in 1951, with Stronghold, except for the obscure Canadian Footsteps in the Snow (1967) and this R-rated horror movie made in Miami Beach. As Dr. Elaine Fredcricks, Lake conducts "anti-aging" experiments at her home. Carl Shuman arrives from South Africa on a secret mission and begins working with her. A South American tough guy and his two hoods arrive. The one named José gets involved with one of the live-in nurses. A newspaper editor whose reporter has been killed at the airport arranges for his female assistant to pose as a nurse to investigate. Everybody waits for the mysterious Max Bauer (Bill Rogers) to arrive. Anyway, as you probably know, it's part of a plot to disguise the exiled Hitler and keep him young, but Lake is really just waiting so that she can have a chance to kill him with maggots. Psychedelic lights are used every time the magical larvae are shown, and weird music is heard. "I know it seems crazy, but so does this whole case!" Bodies are stolen for experiments (the undercover nurse helps). Body parts hang in a freezer: "This whole thing is bizarre, crazy!" This "crazy" movie is tedious and badly dubbed. Actors flub lines, and the editing is terrible. With Chris Martel (Scream, Baby, Scream). In 1989 Missouri governor John Ashcroft signed a "slasher-movie" law making "films that portray murders, sexual mutilation, cannibalism, and nudity off-limits to persons under 17." A title that cropped up in the debate was Flesh Feast!

FLESH GORDON AND THE COSMIC CHEERLEADERS

(New Horizons, 1989) D/S: Howard Ziehm
S: Douglas Frisby P: Maurice Smith Canada

Blond kickboxer Vince Murdocco stars in this very cheap-looking sequel that resembles the worst of Troma. Like the original, it's a sex-comedy parody of the old serials, but this time the animation is almost nonexistent and the nudity is minimal. "Naked" women even wear G strings. If you have to see singing turd people, a farting asteroid, and a homosexual dickhead monster, I guess they're the selling points here. The 1972 Flesh Gordon (also by Ziehm) is still around on tape, so why bother with this? It was filmed in Detroit and Canada.

FLESHPOT ON 42ND STREET

(SW, 1973) D/S/C: Andy Milligan P: William Mishkin

I liked this color drama better than most of Milligan's horror movies. The acting isn't bad, parts are funny, and, incredibly, the tape is letterboxed (!). It almost has the feel of one of Paul Morrissey's Warhol movies from the period. Diana Lewis (who is naked a lot) stars as a cheerful young woman who robs her live-in lover after he kicks her out. She moves in with a friendly drag queen (who has most of the best lines) in the East Village and starts charging for sex, but she falls for a man (porno star Harry Reems) who lives on Staten Island. There's more dialogue than sex: "We'll go to a double bill at the Lyric, Torture Dungeon and Bloodthirsty Butcher." "If Nixon gets in again, it'll probably be a police state anyway!" Milligan shot it himself with a hand-held camera and left in a few good microphone shots. Fred Lincoln is in it too.

FLESHTONE

(Prism, 1994) D/S: Harry Hurwitz P: David Sheldon

Martin Kemp (from The Krays) stars as an LA artist hooked on phone sex who is framed for a murder. Lise Cutter costars, with Tim Thomerson and Suanne Braun. By the director of Nocturna, it's available in R and unrated versions.

FLICKS

(Media, 1981) D/S: Peter Winograd
S: Larry Arnstein, David Hurwitz, Lane Sarasohn P: Bert Kamerman (Loose Joints)

This plotless film consists of parodies of old movies. The cartoon of violent, brawling cats in a retirement home is a high point. There are coming-attractions trailers, a science-fiction serial (Lost Heroes of the Milky Way), newsreels, and a horror-movie spoof (House of the Living Corpse). With Pamela Sue Martin, Joan Hackett, Martin Mull, Richard Belzer, George "Buck" Flower, and the voice of Harry Shearer. Bill Paxton was a set designer. The Chiodo Brothers created the alien masks. It's not very funny and wasn't released until 1987.

FLIGHT OF BLACK ANGEL

(1991) D: Jonathan Mostow S: Henry Dominic P: Daniel Doty, Michael C. Green

Peter Strauss is a fighter-pilot instructor. One of his students decides that he's "the angel of the Lord," uses real missiles during maneuvers, and plans to destroy Las Vegas. With William O'Leary and James O'Sullivan. From TV.

FLIGHT OF THE LOST BALLOON

(1961) D/S: Nathan Juran P: Bernard Woolner

Marshall Thompson takes Mala Powers (from The Unknown Terror) and "a Hindu" to Egypt in a hot-air balloon to search for a lost explorer and a treasure. The trio are attacked by giant condors and cannibals, and Mala is tortured on a stretching rack. This color film, produced by Woolner Brothers (released by AIP), was shot in Puerto Rico, in "Spectrascope."

FLIGHT OF THE NAVIGATOR

(Disney, 1986) D: Randal Kleiser S: Michael Burton, Douglas Day Stewart P: Robby Wald, Dimitri Villard

A kid (Joey Cramer) helps some friendly aliens. Later he falls and loses consciousness. When he wakes up (eight years later) he hasn't aged and has special navigational powers. With Veronica Cartright, Cliff De Young, Sarah Jessica Parker, Howard Hesseman, and the voice of Paul Reubens (Pee-wee Herman).

FLIGHT OF THE SPRUCE GOOSE

(1986) D/S: Lech Majewski S: Chris Burdza P: Michael Hausman

This is an obscure "action adventure" made in Pittsburgh. The cast includes Karen Black, Dennis Christopher, director George Romero, Jennifer Runyan, Betsy Blair, and Dan O'Shea.

THE FLIGHT THAT DISAPPEARED

(1961) D: Reginald LeBorg S: Ralph Hart, Judith Hart, Owen Harris P: Robert E. Kent

Three American scientists flying to Washington to discuss their new "beta thermonuclear warhead" end up on a mysterious plateau. They have to face a jury representing the people of the future. Instead of stranding them in time, "the Sage" shows them future destruction and allows them to return to Earth, where they destroy their plans. This b/w United Artists film stars Craig Hill, Paula Raymond, and Dayton Lummis. LeBorg made Diary of a Madman next.

FLIGHT TO FURY

(Warner, 1964) D: Monte Hellman S/A: Jack Nicholson P: Fred Ross US/Philippines

What kind of role would future star Jack Nicholson write for himself, back when he had nothing to lose? Here he is (with a mustache) as a psychotic diamond smuggler. After gambling in Manila he and his gang crash-land a plane in the jungle. They turn against one another and fight bandits over some stolen jewels. He kills himself at the end.

Dewey Martin stars as the hero, with Fay Spain and Vic Diaz. Made in the Philippines as part of a two-picture deal (with Back Door to Hell), it originally ran 80 minutes but was 62 when first released (by Lippert). The video is 76 minutes.

FLIGHT TO NOWHERE

(Sinister, 1946) D: William Rowland P: William B. David

This early fear-of-the-bomb movie has a plot that involves a stolen map of uranium deposits. The posters said, "Franco threatens with atomic energy!" and "The atom bomb may be used on America!" The low-budget production stars Evelyn Ankers, Alan Curtis, Jerome Cowan, former cowboy star Hoot Gibson, and Jack Holt.

FLIGHT TO TANGIER

(1953) D/S: Charles Marquis Warren
M: Paul Sawtell P: Nat Holt

Passengers bound for Tangier are after a letter of memo worth millions. Jack Palance (billed as "that Shane-shooting man") and Joan Fontaine star, with Corinne Calvet and Jeff Morrow. It was a 3-D release from Paramount.

THE FLINTSONES

(MCA, 1994) D: Brian Levant S: Tom S. Parker, Jim Jennewein, Steven de Souza P: Bruce Cohen

At least 32 (!) writers worked on the anti–big business plot, but the countless merchandising tie-ins made the message hard to take. ILM created great dinosaurs, though. The stone-age Honeymooners are John Goodman as Fred, Rick Moranis as Barney, Elizabeth Perkins as Wilma, and Rosie O'Donnell as a plump Betty. Kyle MacLachlan is Fred's embezzler boss, Halle Berry integrates Bedrock as his sexy secretary, and Elizabeth Taylor (!) is Fred's mother-in-law. The cast also includes Richard Moll, Irwin Keyes, Jonathan Winters, the voice of Harvey Korman, and Jay Leno. The Jim Henson workshop provided the FX. The B-52's play the theme song and appear; other songs are by various rock groups. Steven Spielberg was the executive producer of this expensive PG hit.

THE FLORIDA CONNECTION

(Unicorn, 1978) D/S: Robert J. Emery
S: Bill Whitlock S/P: Massey Creamer

Bad, corrupt cops cheat good marijuana dealers in the Everglades. June Wilkinson (!) is a big-chested platinum-blond charter pilot with an English accent. She's hired by a hunk dope smuggler in bellbottoms (played by her husband at the time, football star Dan Pastorini). There are air-boat rides, a dog race, chases, shootouts, a comic drunk, and a (surprise!) ending. It's pretty slow going. Bill Thurman, from Larry Buchanan movies, spys for the cops. The producer also made The Legend of Blood Mountain.

FLOUNDERING

(A-Pix, 1993) D/S: Peter McCarthy

James LeGros has a nervous breakdown, tries to kill the chief of police, and kidnaps his next-door neighbor (Maritza Rivera). Revolution occurs in post-riot LA. With Steve Buscemi, John Cusack, Ethan Hawke, Kim Wayans, Lisa Zane, Alex Cox, Dave Navarro (from Jane's Addiction), Exene Cervenka, Sy Richardson, and Olivia Barash. This was made in 16mm by the producer of Repo Man, Sid and Nancy, I'm Gonna Git You, Sucka, and other notable films. Caroline released the various artists soundtrack.

FLOWERS IN THE ATTIC

(Starmaker, 1987) D/S: Jeffrey Bloom
P: Sy Levin, Thomas Fries

New World released this toned-down adaptation of V. C. Andrews's novel by the director of Blood Beach. Sex and incest were cut out for a PG-13 rating. Victoria Tennant (at that time Mrs. Steve Martin in real life) keeps her four kids (whom grandma calls "the Devil's spawn") hidden in the attic so that she can find a rich husband. She also puts poison into their cookies. Kristy Swanson costars, with Louise Fletcher as the Bible-quoting grandma. It was originally slated to be directed by Wes Craven. Andrews, (who has a bit role as a maid) died in 1986, but new books by a ghostwriter continue to be released.

Jeff Goldblum and Geena Davis in David Cronenberg's The Fly.

THE FLY

(Fox, 1986) D/S/A: David Cronenberg
S: Charles Edward Pogue P: Stuart Cornfield

Cronenberg added incredible strength, a heightened sex drive, and increased mental powers to the original concept. This "remake" of the 1958 film was his biggest hit (it was actually the fourth Fly movie). Jeff Goldblum stars as the brilliant, intense Seth Brundle, who mutates so much that by the end he's a Chris Walas special effect. There's an inside-out baboon and other disgusting things, but an arm-wrestling scene is the most shocking. With Geena Davis, John Getz, and Joy Boushel. Walas and his crew received an FX Oscar. The director is seen as a gynecologist in a dream sequence about an abortion. The Howard Shore soundtrack is on Varese Sarabande. Brian Ferry sings "Help Me."

THE FLY II

(CBS/Fox, 1989) D: Chris Walas S: Mick Garris, Jim Wheat, Ken Wheat P: Steven Charles Jaffe

This should have been called Son of the Fly. Talk about disappointing sequels! Eric Stoltz stars as Martin Brundle, son of the Jeff Goldblum character. He grows up superfast and is a genius. He's also a prisoner in a secret corporate lab and sometimes becomes a monster who roars. With Daphne Zuniga (Spaceballs), Lee Richardson, and Harley Cross. John Getz returns from The Fly. FX expert Walas directs for the first time. It's a Brooksfilm production. The Christopher Young soundtrack is on Varese Sarabande.

THE FLYING DISC MAN FROM MARS

(Republic, 1950) D: Fred C. Brannon
S: Ronald Davidson P: Franklin Adreon

Mota (spell it backwards) the Martian (Gregory Gay, with a German accent) arrives in a flying saucer with a "thermal disintegrator" to destroy Earth. Mota had also been in The Purple Monster Strikes (1945). Walter Reed stars as the flying hero with a jet pack, with Lois Collier, James Craven, and the usual ace Republic stuntmen. The flying scenes were lifted from King of the Rocket Men (1949). This 12-chapter serial was also released as Missile Monsters, a feature version.

THE FLYING GUILLOTINE

(1975) D: Ho Meng Hua
P: Raymond Shaw, Run Run Shaw

There were so many kung-fu movies in the 70s that some inner-city theaters showed nothing but Chinese martial arts. Many were bad or forgettable, but this one (by the director of Infra Man and the Black Magic movies) stands out. The concept is absurd but entertaining. It really features a flying guillotine that lands on a person's head and decapitates him! There's also The Flying Guillotine II and Master of the Flying Guillotine.

FLYING SAUCER

(Rhino, 1950) D/S/P/A: Mikel Conrad
S: Howard Irving Young

Sam B. (Mikel) Conrad was an actor and self-promoter from Columbus, Ohio, who had been in PRC and Lippert westerns. After small roles in Abbott and Costello Meet the Killer and Francis (both 1949) he decided to make his own film. The result (the world's only anti-Communist flying-saucer movie) is a unique experience, shot partially on location in scenic Alaska. Conrad plays Mike Trent, a millionaire Manhattan playboy/sportsman/two-fisted drinker/war vet who reluctantly goes undercover to his native Alaska with a blond "nurse" to find out about a rumored saucer before the Commies can get hold of it. He falls in love, thinks an obvious spy is really the new caretaker, and gets drunk, beaten up, and shot in Juneau. The briefly-seen saucer is a film first. It makes a roaring sound as it speeds through the sky but turns out to be from Earth, and it's piloted by Denver Pyle (!). In 1949 the movie had an advance world premiere in Columbus, and it went on to play in theaters for several years. After Untamed Women and Hoodlum Empire (both 1952) Conrad's acting career ended.

FLY NOW, PAY LATER

(SW, 1969) D/P: B. H. Dial S: Gillian Vastlake

Charlotte Rouse stars as Sally, a sexy blond stewardess taken hostage by international drug smugglers. There are b/w fantasy and dream sequences, snakes, lesbians, and S&M scenes. It was made in and around New York City.

FM

(MCA, 1978) D: John A. Alonzo
S: Ezra Sachs P: Rand Holston

DJs at a progressive-rock station in LA go on strike when they're forced to use a playlist of conservative hits. The concept will be hard to follow for anybody who didn't live through the late 60s. Too bad they didn't set this PG comedy in the late 60s and use some decent music! Michael Brandon stars, with Eileen Brennan, Alex Karras, Martin Mull, Cleavon Little, Cassic Yates, Norman Lloyd, and James Keach. Tom Petty, Linda Rondstadt, REO Speedwagon, and others appear as themselves and perform songs. The hit-filled MCA double soundtrack was more popular than the movie. Alonzo shot Chinatown and Close Encounters.

FOLDS OF THE FLESH

(VSOM, 1970) D/S/P: Sergio Bergonzelli
S: Fabio de Agostini Italy

Pier Angeli and Eleonora Rossi Drago star as mother-and-daughter slashers. This movie features decapitation, Nazis, nudity, and rape. Angeli committed suicide while making her next film, Octaman. She had once thought she'd marry James Dean.

FOOD OF THE GODS II

(Avid, 1989) D/P: Damien Lee S: Richard Bennett P: David Mitchell Canada (Gnaw)

Nobody wanted a sequel to the 1976 AIP film directed by Bert I. Gordon, but Roger Corman and Concorde produced one anyway. A female doctor uses synthetic growth hormones. Some student radicals release lab animals, and giant rats attack teens on campus. There's a giant boy, a big (rubber-looking) hand, and a sex-while-growing dream scene (!). With Paul Coufos, Roy Dotrice, and Lisa Schrage.

THE FOOL KILLER

(Republic Collectibles, 1963) D: Servando Gonzalez S: Morton Fine S/P: David Friedkin Mexican/US (El Asesino de Tontos)

This high-quality movie (filmed around Knoxville, Tennessee) features Anthony Perkins in one of his most interesting roles. George, a post–Civil War orphan (12-year-old Edward Albert Jr., in his first role), runs away from his mean, strict foster parents and roams the countryside meeting various characters. He narrates his story and sometimes talks to the camera. Henry Hull (The Werewolf of London) is an eccentric widower known as Dirty who talks about the notorious eight-foot-tall "fool killer." He calls George a fool for trying to clean up his filthy shack. Perkins is a reclusive, unpredictable, shell-shocked ex-soldier with amnesia and a dead man's name, Milo Bogardus. He first appears in the woods in a series of jarring closeups accompanied by scary music. He plays a flute, takes George for a nude swim in the river, and has some choice lines: "The first thing I knew was pain." "It's like two armies in my head." "I can feel the grass grow beneath me!" Milo is against organized religion, says he's a faith healer, and in one amazing scene freaks out and yells, "I seen God!" After a scary hellfire sermon at a revival meeting, the excited, impressionable George is nearly born again ("Save me! Save me! Glory!"), passes out, and wakes to find Milo gone and the preacher dead, with an axe in his back. This great-looking b/w film has excellent cinematography, editing, and acting. It was released to theaters in 1965 and again, reedited, in 1969, gaining a (very small) cult following. Friedkin and Fine also wrote The Pawnbroker.

FOR A FEW DOLLARS LESS

(VSOM, 1966) D/S: Sergio Corbucci
S: Bruno Corbucci, Mario Guerra P: Franco Palaggi Italy (Per Qualche Dollari in Meno)

Although this has a ripoff title, Corbucci had already made six westerns. Lando Buzzanca and Raimondo Vianello star, which is why nobody bothered to release this in the US.

FOR A FEW DOLLARS MORE

(MGM, 1965) D: Sergio Leone S: Luciano Vincenzoni P: Alberto Grimaldi Italy (Per Qualche Dollari in Piu)

After the sucess of A Fistful of Dollars (nearly everywhere but in the US) Eastwood returned in a bigger and better sequel. It cost $600,000 (said to be three times what the first film cost), runs 130 minutes, and is in Techniscope and Technicolor. Gian Maria Volante costars as Indio, with the late Lee Van Cleef as Colonel Mortimer and the late Klaus Kinski as "the hunchback." Van Cleef had been playing villains since 1952. Eastwood and Van Cleef returned in The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly. All three were released here in 1967 (by United Artists). The Ennio Morricone soundtrack (on UA) is on only one side. The other side is music from other films.

THE FORBIDDEN DANCE

(Epic, 1990) D: Greydon Clark S: Roy Langsdon, John Platt P: Marc S. Fischer

Menahem Golan's 21st Century made this quickie PG-13 lambada movie, which fought it out at the box office with several other lambada movies. This one is the most absurd, has the best cast, and teaches valuable lessons about the rain forest and the ozone layer. Nisa (Laura Herring, a former Miss USA) is a Brazilian jungle princess who goes to Beverly Hills to stop a big corporation from destroying her land. She becomes a maid, has safe sex with her employers' son, teaches the lambada at a disco, becomes Xtasy, the star attraction at a fantasy whorehouse, is kidnapped by corporate villain Richard Lynch (who wears a cowboy hat and dances), and wins an audition to dance on Kid Creole's TV show. Sid Haig is hilarious as a big, ugly witch doctor who dances in his loincloth and yells, "Yi yi ya ya ya!" a lot. He also roars like a lion and follows Nisa to LA. Kid Creole and the Coconuts (who should definitely be in better movies) do two songs. The Kid's right-on closing message on TV is "Boycott their ass!"

Anthony Perkins in The Fool Killer.

FORBIDDEN ISLAND

(Columbia, 1959) D/S/P: Charles B. Griffith

Griffith was on a brief break from writing Roger Corman movies when he made this 66-minute b/w adventure. A skin diver is hired to recover a lost emerald from a sunken ship. Jon Hall stars, with John Farrow, Jonathan Haze, and Nan Adams.

FORBIDDEN MOON: See ROCKY JONES

FORBIDDEN SUN

(Academy, 1989) D: Zelda Baron S: Robin Hardy, Jesse Lasky Jr., Pat Silver P: Peter Watson-Wood UK (Bulldance)

Lauren Hutton stars in this rape-revenge movie set on the isle of Crete, where women are training for the Olympics. Viveca Davis does an ancient dance, flipping over a bull's horns. With Cliff De Young, Samantha Mathis, Renee Estevez, and Robert Beltran.

FORBIDDEN ZONE

(Media, 1980) D/S/P: Richard Elfman
S: Matthew Bright, Martin W. Nicholson

It didn't quite make it as a cult hit when new, but this is the strangest musical imaginable. Shot in b/w, it copies the look of the Fleischer brothers' 30s cartoons and includes animation. The dynamic screen team of Susan Tyrrell and Hervé Villechaize are the king and queen of the Sixth Dimension. They make out on a table, torture people, and have sex with zombielike beings. Marie-Pascal Elfman stars, with Viva, Joe Spinnell, and the Kipper Kids. It has the first soundtrack music by the director's brother, Danny Elfman (who plays the Devil) and his group, Oingo Boingo.

FORCED ENTRY

(Vestron, 1975) D/S/P: "Jim Sotos"/ Dimitri Sotirakis S/P: Henry Scarpelli (The Last Victim; The Night Killer)

An impotent, schizoid killer-rapist/gas-station attendant narrates (à la Taxi Driver) this low-key exploitation movie. Tanya Roberts is a housewife he terrorizes. Nancy Allen has a topless scene as a hitchhiking victim who is decapitated after giving the killer a blow job. Some slow-motion killings are repeated. Made in New Jersey and on Staten Island, it was reedited and released in 1980 because of the name stars. The title was also used for a 70s porno movie about a Nam-vet rapist.

FORCED ENTRY

(Subversive Propaganda, 1988)
D/S/P: Norm Orschorschki

This 45-minute parody set in Lynchburg, Virginia (the home of Jerry Falwell), is about the NVC (Neighborhood Vigilance Committee), a fundamentalist, right-wing community-action group fighting "degenerates, dope, and the Devil." To illustrate what would happen if you didn't support the NVC, a girl ("Imagine your own teen daughter!") is kidnapped by masked "dope-crazed punks running amok." The entire segment is seen from her point of view ("Victivision") as she's driven away, poked with a cattle prod, and drugged (there's a pretty amusing drug sequence). Jim "Stonewall" Jackson interrupts often to go on about Commies, homosexuals, and others who "virtually annihilate social behavior." Locals, who swear by guns, Budweiser, and Confederate flags, are seen catching mutant catfish in a nuclear-plant drainage canal. The tape is in "Shock-a-Rama," which simply means that once in a while a photo of Popeye (the freak-show attraction seen in the movie Mutations, not the sailor) is flashed on the screen and a very loud buzz is heard.

FORCED TO FIGHT: See BLOODFIST III: FIRST TO FIGHT

FORCED TO KILL

(PM, 1994) D: Russell Solberg
S/P/A: Corey Michael Eubanks

Eubanks (a former stuntman and the son of TV host Bob Eubanks) stars as a multitalented kickboxing repo man captured by a backwoods Arizona family who make him fight in bare-fist battles. With Michael Ironside as a psycho country sheriff, Don Swayze, Clint and Rance Howard, Kari Whitman, Mickey Jones, Bridget Butler, and Cynthia Blessington.

FORCED VENGEANCE

(MGM, 1982) D/S: James Fargo S: Franklin Thompson P: John W. Bennett

Nam vet Chuck Norris goes to Hong Kong and works at a casino. He takes on Michael Cavanaugh and the Asian underworld while protecting the daughter of the casino owner. Mary Louise Weller and Richard Norton costar, and Mike Norris has a small role. Fargo had directed several Clint Eastwood movies.

FORCE: FIVE

(Media, 1981) D/S: Robert Clouse P: Fred Weintraub

Joe Lewis (Jaguar Lives) leads a team of mercenaries to rescue a senator's daughter (Pam Huntington) from the island of cult leader Master Bong Soo Han. This martial-arts movie is from the director of Enter the Dragon (which featured Han in a similar role) and is a remake of Hot Potato (1976). With Richard Norton and Benny "the Jet" Urquidez.

FORCE OF IMPULSE

(Sinister, 1961) D: Saul Swimmer
S: Francis Swann P/A: Tony Anthony

Toby (Tony Anthony) is a 17-year-old high-school football player in love with rich, blond Bunny (Teri Hope, Playboy's Miss September 1958). The mumbling, defensive Toby robs his own grocer father (J. Carrol Naish) so that he can take her out. With Jody McCrea (in a standout scene when drunken gang members "take him for a ride"), Robert Alda (father of Alan) as Bunny's dad, Christina Crawford (!), and Lionel Hampton as his vibes-playing self. It was filmed in Miami Beach. Anthony (real name Roger Tony Petitto) later starred in spaghetti westerns (A Stranger in Town, The Stranger Returns), and Hope was in Pajama Party and two Elvis movies. Swimmer also directed Mrs. Brown, You've Got a Lovely Daughter (1968).

A FORCE OF ONE

(Media, 1979) D: Paul Aaron
S: Ernest Tidyman P: Alan Belkin

Chuck Norris is a Nam vet who fights cop-killing drug dealers in a California town. The karate fighter has a good supporting cast for this one: Jennifer O'Neill, Clu Gulager, Ron O'Neal, James Whitmore Jr., Bill Wallace, and Mike Norris. It was a follow-up to Good Guys Wear Black. Tidyman wrote Shaft and Shaft's Big Score!

FORCE 10 FROM NAVARONE

(Warner, 1978) D: Guy Hamilton S: S. Robin Chapman P: Oliver A. Unger UK

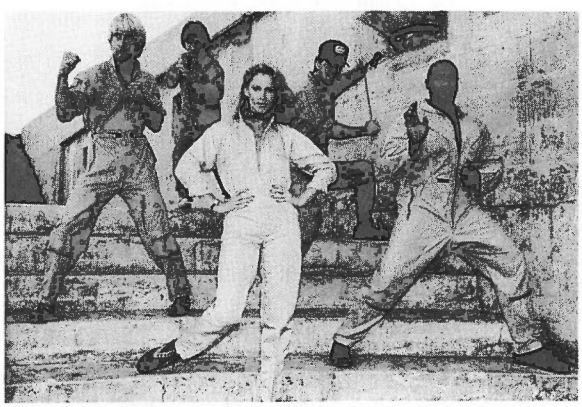
AIP released this Alistair MacLean adaptation, starring Robert Shaw (who died in 1978). It's an inferior sequel to The Guns of Navarone (1961) about an attempt to blow up a bridge the Nazis plan on using. With Harrison Ford, Edward Fox, Barbara Bach, Franco Nero, Carl Weathers, and Richard Kiel.



Richard Norton, Benny "the Jet" Urquidez, Pam Huntington, Ron Hayden, and Sonny Barnes in Force: Five.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT

(Warner, 1940) D: Alfred Hitchcock S: Charles Bennett, Joan Harrison P: Walter Wanger

Hitchcock's second American film and his first with a WWII theme stars Joel McCrea as an American reporter in England and Holland in 1939. Nazis kidnap Van Meer, a Dutch diplomat (the great German actor Albert Basserman, who had fled Nazi Germany in 1933), and some interesting things happen in a remote Dutch windmill. The war begins and seems to follow the reporter around. A meek hitman (Edmund Gwenn) tries to push him off Westminster Cathedral. The passenger plane he's on is shot down over the Atlantic. At the end, while London is being bombed, he broadcasts a stirring speech telling Americans to prepare for war. With Laraine Day, Herbert Marshall, Eduardo Ciannelli, Martin Kosleck, Harry Davenport, and George Sanders and Robert Benchley as reporters (Benchley and novelist/screenwriter James Hilton contributed additional dialogue). William Cameron Menzies was the production designer. This was the most expensive (and at 120 minutes the longest) Hitchcock film up to that time. It received six Oscar nominations. It was produced by Selznick International and released by United Artists. Hitchcock's next film was a comedy, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, followed by Suspicion (both 1941,.

THE FOREST

(Starmaker, 1981) D/P/A: Don Jones
S: Evan Jones (Terror in the Forest)

A cannibal hermit (Michael Brody) living in a cave kills campers in the woods. The ghosts of his dead kids try to help the campers! This slasher movie is by the director of The Love Butcher. It's too dark to see very well.

FOREVER

(Prism, 1992) D/S: Thomas Palmer Jr.
S/P: Jackelyn Giroux

A rock-video director (Keith Coogan) moves into the Hollywood mansion where silent-film director William Desmond Taylor (Steve Railsback) was murdered. Ghosts of silent stars emerge from a Moviola, and he falls for actress Mary Miles Minter (Sean Young). With Sally Kirkland as his agent and lover, Diane Ladd as actress Mabel Normand, Terence Knox as actor Wallace Reid, Nicholas Guest, and Renee Taylor.

FOREVER DARLING

(1956) D: Alexander Hall S: Helen Deutsch P/A: Desi Arnaz

James Mason is a guardian angel sent to help the "perfect" marriage of a socialite (Lucille Ball) and a research scientist (Desi Arnaz) who has invented a new insecticide (and sings). Lucy thinks she's losing her mind when she first sees him, but soon she learns to help and respect her husband. With Louis Calhern, John Emery, John Hoyt, Natalie Schafer, and Nancy Kulp. In real life no angel helped the failing marriage of the famous TV-star couple, who also starred in the more popular film The Long, Long Trailer (1954), also in color and from MGM. Hall had also directed the fantasies Here Comes Mr. Jordan (1941), Once Upon a Time (1944), and Down to Earth (1947).

FOREVER EVIL

(United, 1987) D: Roger Evans S: Freeman Williams P: Jill Clark, Hal Payne

Here's one from Houston, an attempt to copy The Evil Dead shot on video. At least it has great opening credits. A bunch of young people in a house are killed off in a variety of ways by a demon unleashed by a Lovecraft-inspired book. It mixes fantasy elements, gore, and a hard-to-believe attack by amateur Rambo/ghostbusters. One FX scene stands out from the rest of this overlong tape, and it's a "dream sequence." A girl rips a monster baby out of her stomach. Pretty disturbing, but it'll wake you up.

FOREVER, LULU

(Columbia, 1987) D/S/P/A: Amos Kollek

Hanna Schygulla stars as a writer in New York City who gets involved in a murder and drug deals. This comedy (by the son of the mayor of Tel Aviv) copies Desperately Seeking Susan (Deborah Harry plays the Madonna role). With Dr. Ruth Westheimer, Alec Baldwin (making his debut) as a cop, and Annie Golden. Kollek plays Schygulla's agent.

FOREVER YOUNG

(Warner, 1992) D: Steve Miner S: Jeffrey Abrahams P: Bruce Davey

Mel Gibson is a test pilot in 1939 who is supposed to be frozen for a year to test cryogenics, but ends up forgotten in a military warehouse for years. Two kids thaw him out in 1992, and he falls for their single mom (Jamie Lee Curtis). This PG romantic fantasy features Elijah Wood, George Wendt, Joe Morton, and Ava Lazar. The makeup is by Dick Smith. Jerry Goldsmith wrote the score. It was a step up for the director of two Friday the 13th movies.

FORGER OF LONDON

(Sinister, 1961) D: Harald Reinl S: Johannes Kai W. Germany (Der Falscher von London)

This is an adaptation of an Edgar Wallace story first filmed in England in 1928. An amnesiac playboy is suspected of leading a ring of counterfeiters. With Karin Dor, Hellmut Lange, and Walter Rilla. It was released directly to TV in the US.

THE FORGOTTEN ONE

(Academy, 1989) D/S: Philip Badgel P: Peter Garrity

The always excellent Terry O'Quinn stars as a widowed novelist who moves into a big old empty (and haunted) house in Denver. He has nightmares and becomes terrified and confused as a 19th century female ghost decides he's her eternal lover. Neighbor Kristy McNichol (also a writer) narrates. Although it's basically an old fashioned gothic romance, The Forgotten One features some modern nudity and an excellent scene with the ghost rising from water. With Elizabeth Brooks (The Howling). It was made in Colorado.

FORGOTTEN WOMEN

(1949) D: William Beaudine S: Scott Darling P: Jeffrey Bernard

Elyse Knox, Theodora Lynch, and Veda Ann Borg are the forgotten women (they drink too much) in this Monogram feature. With Edward Norris, Noel Neill (from the Superman TV series), and Robert Shayne. Knox (The Mummy's Tomb) soon afterward married football star Tom Harmon, retired, and had a son, actor Mark Harmon.

FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE

(1950) D/S: George Seaton P: William Perlberg

Two angels (Clifton Webb and Edmund Gwenn) are sent to Earth to help a little angel (Gigi Perreau) who has been waiting years to be born. Her future parents are a director (Robert Cummings) and his actress wife (Joan Bennett). Webb takes the form of a rich Texas rancher, and Joan Blondell is supposed to romance him so that he'll back a play. This pro-family 20th Century–Fox fantasy/comedy also features Jack LaRue, Whit Bissell, and Tommy Rettig (from Lassie) as another unborn child. Seaton and Perlberg also made Miracle on 34th Street (1947).

FOR LOVE OR MONEY

(SW, 1967) D/P: Don Davis S: James Rogers

This film is about a gang of female sex spies who work for Instant Secretaries, Inc. It was adapted from Ed Wood Jr.'s novel The Sexecutives (published as an adults-only photo-novel in 1968 by Private Editions and sold for $1.50). The plot involves blackmail photos, LSD, and body-painting. It's from Crest Films. Davis had worked on Orgy of the Dead and directed Gun Runners (1969) with a script by Wood.

FOR LOVE OR MURDER: See KEMEK

FOR MEMBERS ONLY

(SW, 1959) D: Ramsey Herrington S: Norman Armstrong P: John P. Wyler UK (The Nudist Story)

A girl (Shelley Martin) inherits a nudist colony. It was produced by The Danzigers (Edward and Harry) who made Devil Girl from Mars.

FOR MEN ONLY

(1952) D/P/A: Paul Henreid S: Lou Morheim (The Tall Lie)

Some UCLA fraternity pledges kill a dog, and a professor (Henreid) exposes their hazing practices. The Lippert release features Margaret Field, Kathleen Hughes, Vera Miles (in her second film), Douglas Kennedy, and Russell Johnson. Henreid directed two other films about teens in trouble (Live Fast, Die Young and Girls on the Loose, both 1958) and Dead Ringer (1962).

FOR MEN ONLY

(SW, 1967) D/S/P: Peter Walker UK (I Like Birds; Hot Girls for Men Only)

This was the first film by Walker, who later switched from nudie movies to horror (House of Whipcord). A London fashion columnist with a rich, jealous fiancé takes a job with a small-town moral crusader and publisher who is really a Hugh Hefner type (with a gay photographer). This silly color comedy features five screaming, naked "birds" tied up in a barn. Their nude escape scene (with bongo music) is the movie's highlight. At the end, they make their voyeur kidnappers pull a car like horses. Supposedly 18 more minutes (probably concerning two naked women in an agent's office) were added for the US release, bringing the length to 61 minutes. Note the poster for the Walker Brothers and Roy Orbison.

THE FORMULA

(MGM, 1980) D: John G. Avildsen S/P: Steve Shagan

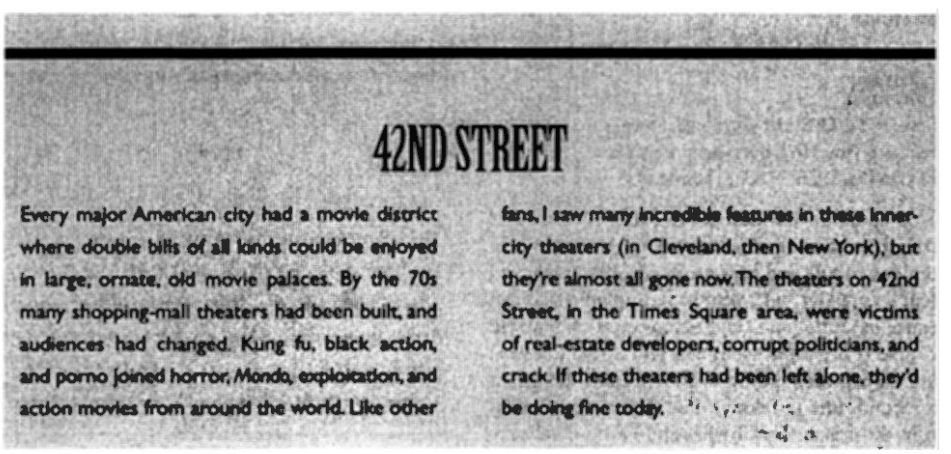
This commercial flop was based on Shagan's novel about a formula for synthetic oil and international conspiracies. George C. Scott stars as an LA policeman who's after the killer of his friend. Marlon Brando (who was paid $3 million for three scenes) costars, with Marthe Keller, John Gielgud, Beatrice Straight, G. D. Spradlin, Marshall Thompson, and Richard Lynch in a dual role.



FORTIES FAVES

TOP 10, IN ALPHABETICAL ORDER

1. Arsenic and Old Lace (CBS/Fox, 1941. This Frank Capra classic from Columbia has been colorized, so it's on TV more, which is great, but it's also been reedited and cut. They even took out the Brooklyn Dodgers intro to make more time for commercials!)
2. The Beast with Five Fingers (1946)
3. Beauty and the Beast (1946)
4. Cat People (1942)
5. Dead of Night (1945)
6. The Devil and Daniel Webster (Criterion, 1941. Made by RKO and also known as All That Money Can Buy, it's available in a fully restored 109-minute version on laserdisc, with the addition of 22 missing minutes and commentary.)
7. Mighty Joe Young (Turner, 1949. Made by RKO, it's been colorized by Turner but is available on laserdisc in b/w with the Technicolor fire sequence restored.)
8. The Picture of Dorian Gray (1945)
9. Strangler of the Swamp (1946)
10. The Wolf Man (1941)

FORT APACHE, THE BRONX

(Warner, 1981) D: Daniel Petrie
S: Heywood Gould P: Martin Richards

Paul Newman is an Irish street cop in a surprisingly downbeat and violent movie (compared to others he's been in). Ken Wahl is his partner. It was based on the real experiences of two cops. With Edward Asner, Pam Grier, Danny Aiello, Kathleen Beller, and Rachel Ticotin. It runs 125 minutes.

FOR THE LOVE OF IT

(SW, 1969) D/S: Will Tremper W. Germany
(How Did a Nice Girl Like You Get into This Business?; Nice Girl; Naughty Cheerleaders)

Barbi Benton (from Playboy) stars in this German sex comedy (shot in Florida) about a naive girl who becomes a "playgirl." With Klaus Kinski, Clyde Ventura, and Broderick Crawford. Independent International released it in the US as Naughty Cheerleaders in 1975.

FORTRESS

(HBO, 1985) D: Arch Nicholson S: Everett De Roche P: Raymond Menmuir Australia

A teacher (Rachel Ward) and her students are kidnapped by a gang in the outback. They escape and seek revenge in this violent movie, which debuted on HBO.

FORTRESS

(Live, 1992) D: Stuart Gordon S: Steve Feinberg, Troy Neighbors, Terry Curtis Fox P: John Davis, John Flock Australia/US

This is one of the best by Gordon. A futuristic, computer-automated, underground American prison uses robots and lasers to control the male and female inmates, who also have implants that can cause extreme pain (and explosions). A married couple (Christopher Lambert and Loryn Locklin) are imprisoned because she became pregnant a second time (a felony). Poe (Kurtwood Smith) runs the prison. Tom Towles and Vernon Wells are prisoners, Jeffrey Combs is a computer whiz, and Carolyn Purdy-Gordon is the voice of the computer. Originally planned for Schwarzenegger, it was filmed at the Warner studios in Queensland, Australia, and was released in Europe first. A sequel is planned.

FORTRESS OF AMERIKKKA

(Imperial, 1989) D/S: Eric Louzil P: Lloyd Kaufman, Michael Herz (The Mercenaries)

Gene LeBrock stars as a half-Indian ex-con who wants revenge for the murder of his brother. He fights female mercenaries in the woods (and at Bronson Canyon). With porno star Kasha (Le Priol) as a missing hiker and François Papilion. This senseless Troma release was filmed in California by the director of Lust for Freedom.

FORT TI

(1953) D: William Castle
S: Robert E. Kent P: Sam Katzman

George Montgomery stars as a captain during the French and Indian War. This is the first 3-D film in which an actor spits at the audience (The Charge at Feather River, released a few months later, has a similar scene). The Columbia release also used the first 3-D matte paintings, and spears, muskets, cannons, and tomahawks seem to fly out of the screen. It's not a great western but has some of the best 3-D effects. Joan Vohs costars. The Three Stooges' 3-D short Spooks originally played on the same bill.

FORTUNE AND MEN'S EYES

(MGM, 1971) D: Harvey Hart, Jules Scherwin
S: John Herbert P: Lester Persky, Lewis Allen Canada

Wendell Burton stars as a guy imprisoned for possession. He becomes the sexual slave of Zooey Hall (I Dismember Mama) to protect himself from other cellmates. Michael Greer (from The Gay Deceivers) is Queenie. It's based on an off-Broadway play (once revived with Sal Mineo), but was toned down a lot for the screen. Hart replaced Schwerin, the original director, after nine weeks of shooting in a Quebec prison.

FORTUNE DANE

(Vidmark, 1986) D: Nicholas Sgarro, Charles Correll S: Ronald M. Cohen P: Thomas Kane

Carl Weathers stars as a football star turned cop. His small friend David Rappaport is killed. This ABC-series pilot (shown in theaters in Europe) features Joe Dallesandro as Perfect Tommy, Adolph Caesar, and Sonny Landham. Weathers and Dallesandro were in the series, which lasted exactly a month.

FORTY-ACRE FEUD

(Madhouse, 1965) D: Ron Ormond S/P: Bil Packman

Del Reeves stars as Del Culpepper in this 16mm Nashville hillbilly comedy with country music. There's a plot about electing a state representative from a town called Shagbottom and some Romeo and Juliet lovers. It's mostly a valuable piece of the 60s for country fans. With Jan Moore, Ferlin Husky as Simon Crumb and as himself, and Minnie Pearl. George Jones, Ray Price, Bill Anderson, Skeeter Davis, and Loretta Lynn are just some of the stars who sing the "25 country hits."

FORTY DEUCE

(1982) D: Paul Morrissey S: Alan Browne P: Jean-Jacques Fourgeaurd

Kevin Bacon stars as a male prostitute in New York City trying to sell a runaway boy to Orson Bean to get money for a drug deal. With Esai Morales. The music is by Manu Dibango. It was based on an off-Broadway play. This and Morrissey's Madame Wang's (1979) had little or no release.

THE 40S

More B movies were made during the war than at any other time. WWII themes showed up everywhere, and after the development of the atom bomb and the end of the war, film noir flourished. The Poverty Row studios were at their peak, and serials, detective-series movies, and horror movies were released every week. Films that made more than $10 million include three Disney cartoon features (the top three of the decade), followed by the long-running road-show hit Mom and Dad (!) and Cecil B. DeMille's Samson and Delilah.

Renee Soutendijk and Jeroen Krabbe in The 4th Man.

FOR YOUR HEIGHT ONLY

(HQV, 1979) D: Raymond Jury Philippines

One of the ultimate spy spoofs stars 2'9" dwarf Weng Wang as Agent 00. He uses James Bond–type gadgets and martial arts to battle the bad guys, and he gets the girl. In real life (according to Guinness, "the shortest actor to play a leading role in films") he was a paratrooper and black belt. He also starred in Agent 00 (1981). The bad English dubbing adds unintentional humor.

FOUL PLAY

(1974) D/S: Gus Trikonis S/P/A: Ross Hagen
Philippines (Superchicken; Supercock)

Ross Hagen stars as a cowboy involved with cockfighting. Nancy Kwan costars (she was also in Wonder Women and Night Creature with Hagen). This was made the same year as Cockfighter.

FOUR BOYS AND A GUN

(1957) D/P: William Berke
S: Philip Yordan, Leo Townsend

The ads said, "These kids are going straight—to the electric chair!" Some teens attempt to hold up a fight arena and are wrongly accused of killing a cop. With Frank Sutton, James Franciscus (in his first role), and Terry Green. Berke also directed some of the Jungle Jim movies. This played on a double bill with The Wild Party.

THE FOUR DEUCES

(HBO, 1975) D: William H. Bushnell Jr.
S: C. Lester Franklin, Don Martin
P: Menahem Golan

Jack Palance stars as a Prohibition-era ganglord, in a Golan/Globus movie that mixes violence, sex, and humor. With Carol Lynley, Warren Berlinger, Adam Roarke, H. B. Haggerty, and Martin Kove.

THE 4th MAN

(Cinematheque, 1979) D: Paul Verhoeven
S: Gerard Setman P: Rob Houwer Netherlands

A bisexual writer (Jeroen Krabbe) sleeps with a blond hairdresser (Renee Soutendijk) to get to her boyfriend. Her three previous husbands all died mysteriously. This bizarre horror comedy features nightmares, hallucinations, castration, voyeurism, near-X sex, and nudity (some in a graveyard). A subtitled version is also available from Tamarelle. Verhoeven was the leading Dutch director at the time. This was made before his Spetters (1980) but not released in the US until 1984.

FOXES

(Key, 1980) D: Adrian Lyne
S/P: Gerald Ayers P: David Puttnam

Four suburban-LA teen girls face the problems of sex, drugs, and bad parents. Jodie Foster stars with Cherie Currie (from the Runaways) as a doomed party girl, Marilyn Kagan, Kandice Stroh, Sally Kellerman, Randy Quaid, Scott Baio, Adam Faith, and (in a small role) Laura Dern. The ads for this R-rated United Artists film said, "Daring to do it!" The Giorgio Moroder Casablanca soundtrack features Donna Summer's hit "On the Radio." Phoxes was a play based on this movie, starring men in drag.

FOXFIRE: See EBONY, IVORY, AND JADE

FOXFORCE: See EBONY, IVORY, AND JADE

FOXTRAP

(Orion, 1985) D/P/A: Fred Williamson
S: Aubrey K. Rattan Italy

Chris Connelly hires Thomas Fox (Fred Williamson), a cigar-smoking LA playboy/detective, to find his heiress niece (Donna Owen), who's missing in Europe. Fox goes to Venice and Rome, walks around the (real) Cannes Film Festival, and then returns to LA. There's a subplot about porno videos and drugs. A gay man sacrifices his life to help Fox. During the big shootout at the end, everybody but Fox dies. With Beatrice Palme and Arlene Golonka.

FOXY BROWN

(Orion, 1974) D/S: Jack Hill
P: Buzz Feitshans

Pam Grier stars in her fourth and last film by director Hill. She poses as a hooker for the mob to get the guys who killed her cop lover (Terry Carter). It's pretty outrageous, with decapitation by plane propeller, castration, rape, drugs, bondage, gay and lesbian characters, and lots of wigs. Actually, Grier is abused too much in this one and doesn't spend enough time kicking ass. 8 minutes had to be cut out for the UK release. With Antonio Fargas (a standout) as her drug-dealer brother Link, Sid Haig as a bearded pilot, Juanita Brown as a captive hooker, and Peter Brown. The Motown soundtrack is by Willie Hutch. It's from AIP. Feitshans went on to produce Arnold Schwarzenegger movies, including Total Recall.

FP 1 DOESN'T ANSWER

(Sinister, 1932) D: Karl Hartl S: Walter Reisch, Robert Stevenson, Peter MacFarlane P: Eberhard Klagemann
Germany (FP I Antwortet Nicht)

This big-budget film about a flying ace and a giant mid-Atlantic floating platform (FP 1) is based on a novel by Curt Siodmak. Three versions (in German, English, and French) were shot simultaneously on a Baltic island. The English-language version (which is available on tape) stars Conrad Veidt and Jill Esmond. The German version (also on tape) stars Hans Albers and Sybille Schmitz and features Peter Lorre as a journalist. The French version stars Charles Boyer. Erich Pommer, executive producer for UFA, fled Nazi Germany the year after this was released, as did Veidt, Lorre, Siodmak, and screenwriter Reisch.

FRAGMENT OF FEAR

(1971) D: Richard C. Sarafian S: Paul Dehn
P: John R. Sloan C: Oswald Morris

David Hemmings is a reformed drug addict in Pompeii who wants to know who killed his aunt (Flora Robson). The mystery is complicated by hallucinations. Gayle Hunnicutt co-stars, with Wilfrid Hyde-White, Adolfo Celi, Mona Washbourne, Daniel Massey, Roland Culver, and Zakes Mokae. This Columbia PG film is based on a novel by John Bingham. The director made Vanishing Point.

FRAMED

(Paramount, 1974) D: Phil Karlson S/P: Mort Briskin S: Joel Briskin

The people who made Walking Tall returned with another revenge tale. This time Joe Don Baker, a gambler, is set up and goes to jail, where he befriends a cockroach. When released, Baker beats people up, drags a man by his nose, and shoots his ear off. It was the last feature by Karlson, veteran of many Monogram and Columbia B movies. With Conny Van Dyke (Dick's sister), Gabriel Dell (from the Dead End Kids/Bowery Boys) as a hitman, John Marley as a Mafia boss, Brock Peters, Paul Mantee, and Hoke Howell.

FRAMEUP

(Republic, 1990) D/S/P: Paul Leder S: Reuben Leder

Wings Hauser is small-town sheriff who tries to find a boy's killer. Frances Fisher is a helpful police dispatcher and Dick Sargent is the main bad guy. With Heather Fairfield and Bobby Dicicco. A sequel followed.

FRAMEUP II: THE COVER-UP

(Republic, 1992) D/S/P: Paul Leder

John Saxon is a corrupt, murderous S&L president in a small California town. He kidnaps the wife (Frances Fisher) and daughter of the sheriff (Wings Hauser). With Margaux Hemingway as his coke-addict wife, Patti D'Arbanville, and Peter Kwong.

FRANK AND I

(MGM, 1984) D: Gerard Kikoine S/P: Harry Alan Towers France (Liberated Lady)

This is one of many erotic TV movies Towers made for Playboy. Jennifer Inch stars, with Sophie Favier.

FRANKENHOOKER

(Southgate, 1990) D/S: Frank Henenlotter S: Robert Martin P: Edgar levens

James Lorinz stars as Jeffrey, a young New Jersey inventor who lives with his mom (Louise Lasser). When his girlfriend is chopped up by a power lawn mower that he invented, he looks for body parts to remake her. He also develops "Supercrack," which makes hookers who smoke it blow up, and sticks a power drill into his head to clear his mind. Lorintz is a one-man show, saying funny lines (usually to himself) all through the movie, and this is one of Henenlotter's best movies. Patty Mullen is Elizabeth, who becomes an awkward, pieced-together monster with a hooker's memory. With Shirley Stoler, Beverly Bonner, Zacherle (as a TV weatherman), Jennifer Delora, Heather Hunter (later star of a porno tape called Frankenhunter), Charlotte Helmcamp, Kimberly Taylor, and Susan Napoli. The original video box says, "Wanna date?" when a button is pushed. Although the horror and violence are obviously cartoonlike, this got an X, but was released with a self-appointed "A." It's available as an R or unrated tape. The soundtrack by Joe Renzetti (with Basket Case II music) is on SMI.

FRANKENSTEIN

(Lightning, 1984) D: Jeremy Bear S: Victor Gialanella UK

This British TV movie, shot on tape, is based on the flop Broadway play. The US debut was on Showtime. The tape is hosted by Elvira. With John Gielgud as the blind hermit, Robert Powell as Dr. Frankenstein, Carrie Fisher, and David Warner as the monster.

FRANKENSTEIN

(Turner, 1992) D/S/P: David Wickes UK

Billed as the most faithful adaptation (I think it is, so far), this is a very good version, with Dr. Frankenstein (Patrick Bergin) duplicating his own body in a vat. The result is an angry, unfinished creature (Randy Quaid) who demands a mate and kills lots of people before Frankenstein confronts the monster by the Bering Sea. The frantic creator feels the monster's pain while everybody he cares about dies. The tale is told in flashback to a ship's captain. With Fiona Gillies as Eizabeth, Sir John Mills as the blind hermit, Lambert Wilson, and Michael Gothard (in his last role). The only weak part is a crude-looking mutant animal. It was filmed in Poland and debuted here on TNT. By the director of Jack the Ripper (1988) and Jekyll and Hyde (1990).

FRANKENSTEIN: A CINEMATIC SCRAPBOOK

(Rhino, 1991) D/S: Ted Newsom

Here you have every trailer in the Universal and Hammer series, plus other 50s and 60s American Frankenstein movies and Lady Frankenstein. Some rare scenes include Karloff in his monster makeup for a celebrity baseball game in 1941 and Glen Strange on an Abbott and Costello TV show in 1954. Trailers for the monsterthon movies House of Frankenstein, House of Dracula, and Abbott and Costello Meet Frankenstein show up here and in Dracula: A Cinematic Scrapbook and The Wolf Man Chronicles, other 60-minute compilations from Rhino.

FRANKENSTEIN '80

(MPI, 1973) D: Mario Mancini S: Fernando di Leone P: Benedetto Graziani Italy

John Richardson stars, with Gordon Mitchell as Otto. A monster called Mosaico kills strippers, hookers, and bums. This ridiculous movie features sex, gore, nudity, and decapitation. Carlo Rambaldi provided the FX. Lady Frankenstein (1971) and Frankenstein's Castle of Freaks are other Italian sex/monster movies from the same period.

FRANKENSTEIN GENERAL HOSPITAL

(New Star, 1988) D: Deborah Roberts S: Michael Kelly, Robert Deel P: Dimitri Villard

Mark Blankfield stars as Dr. Frankenstein's great-grandson, with an assistant named Iggy, in this unfunny comedy follow-up to Jekyll and Hyde . . . Together Again, also with Blankfield. The lab scenes are b/w. With Irwin Keyes as the monster, Kathy Shower, and Bobby "Boris" Pickett.

James Lorinz stars in Frankenhooker.

FRANKENSTEIN'S CASTLE OF FREAKS

(Magnun, 1973) D/S: "Robert H. Oliver"/ Dick Randall S: Mario Francini Italy
(House of Freaks; Il Castello della Paura)

Billed as a Frankenstein movie, this is really a pretty warped and funny cave man movie with lots of nudity. It was released in the US by Harry Novak and his adults-only Boxoffice International. Michael Dunn is the dwarf Genz, the lonely, misunderstood, vengeful necrophiliac/rapist/voyeur assistant of Count Frankenstein (South Pacific star Rossano Brazzi). After being mistreated and thrown out, he teams up with a short, ugly Neanderthal man named Ook (played by "Boris Lugosi"). Ook lives in a cave and says, "Ook, ook, ook." Meanwhile, the doctor's sexy daughter and her friend bathe in milk and strip in Ook's cave to enjoy the convenient hot springs every time things threaten to get dull. The doctor works on Goliath, a big Neanderthal man with Bozo-the-Clown hair. There's lots of thunder and lightning. Igor, a hunchbacked servant (Gordon Mitchell), beats a maid, Edmund Purdom shows up as the law, the "monsters" fight over a kidnapped girl, and the villagers assemble with torches. The 3'4" Dunn, an excellent actor (whose voice was dubbed by somebody else in England), died in 1974, a possible suicide. He had been nominated for an Oscar in 1965 for his film debut, in Ship of Fools.

FRANKENSTEIN'S GREAT AUNT TILLIE

(Video City, 1983) D/S/P: Myron G. Gold Mexico

Here's an unfunny period comedy set in Transylvania but filmed by an American director on a set in Mexico. Although it seems to go on forever, this is a short version of what apparently was once a miniseries! After editing, costar Zsa Zsa Gabor is seen only in a silent flashback for a few seconds. If you enjoy hearing Donald Pleasence (as Victor Frankenstein, in a stupid wig) mumble for an eternity, this tape's for you. Yvonne Furneaux (the sister in Repulsion) is Aunt Tillie, and she talks too much too. June Wilkinson (Macumba Love) is Victor's wife. Aldo Ray is the burgormaster. A blue monster in suspenders eventually shows up for some sub–Young Frankenstein yuks, Pleasence is shown in drag playing a flute, and village women hold an ERA rally. If you manage to watch till the end, you'll be rewarded with lots of outtakes from the long version. The music is by Ronald Stein, who used to score a lot of AIP movies.

FRANKENSTEIN ISLAND

(Monterey, 1981) D/P: Jerry Warren
S: Jacques Lacouter

Jerry Warren, who died in 1988, directed hard-to-believe movies like Teenage Zombies and Man Beast. This, his last ridiculous effort, is a treasure for fans of really desperate low-budget filmmaking. Four balloonists land on an island and meet characters who must have escaped from Z-movie heaven. A tribe of jungle women in leopard-skin bikinis are actually aliens. Warren regular Katherine Victor (in a great silver/white wig) is a mad doctor married to the 200-year-old, bedridden assistant to Dr. Frankenstein. John Carradine, as the ghost of Dr. Frankenstein, shows up once in a while, superimposed over the action, spouting meaningless dialogue ("The power! The power! The power!"), just like Lugosi in Plan 9 from Outer Space. Cameron Mitchell, as a sea captain, is kept in a cell to supply blood and is the father of an alien girl. A group of servant zombies wear sunglasses, sweatshirts, and black knit hats. Robert Clarke (The Hideous Sun Demon) is the hero, alongside B-movie vet Steve Brodie. At the end, the Frankenstein monster shows up, and Andrew Duggan as a military officer thinks the whole story is crazy. As one character says, "So much has happened, the mind can't catalog it!"

FRANKENSTEIN'S PLANET OF MONSTERS

(Nomad, 1993) D/P/E/C: Brad Anderson
S/P/E/A: Mike Brunelle

Three female astronauts and their floating cyborg head are tricked into landing on a barren planet run by a Frankenstein monster (Mike Brunelle, in good makeup). They befriend a wolf man, are chained up in a dungeon, and are attacked by an army of monsters (people in masks). Models are used for the castle and the spaceship, and there's some animation. This 45-minute tape from Somerville, Massachusetts, is fun and would be rated G.

FRANKENSTEIN: THE COLLEGE YEARS

(1991) D: Tom Shadyac S: Bryant Christ, John Trevor Wolff P: Richard E. Johnson, Scott D. Goldstein

William Ragsdale and Christopher Daniel Barnes star as premed students who bring a professor's creation (Vincent Hammond) to life. He becomes a football hero and defender of justice. An evil professor (Larry Miller) and his assistant try to kidnap the monster. There are lots of bad-taste jokes in this comedy, which debuted on Fox-TV.

FRANKENSTEIN UNBOUND

(Fox, 1990) D/S/P: Roger Corman S: F.X. Feeney P: Thom Mount, Kabi Jaeger

Roger Corman directed for the first time in 20 years, but his film, based on a novel by Brian Aldiss, received only a token theatrical release from 20th Century–Fox, which cut out 20 minutes. John Hurt stars as an LA scientist in in 2031. He causes a time slip and ends up in 1817 Geneva, Switzerland (with a talking car). The late Raul Julia is Dr. Frankenstein, who creates a bride for his monster (Nick Brimble). Mary Shelley and people who were close to her when she wrote the novel Frankenstein mix with characters from the novel and the man from the future. It's all kind of awkward, with several dreams and out-of-place fantasy sequences. Nobody from the past seems to notice the car! With Bridget Fonda as Mary Shelley, Jason Patric as Lord Byron, Michael Hutchence (from INXS) as Percy Bysshe Shelley, Catherine Corman, and the voice of Terri Treas. There was no reason for this movie to have an R rating. It's 82 minutes long. Julia went on to play Gomez in The Addams Family and Addams Family Values, and Corman probably shelved any further plans to direct.

FRANKENWEENIE

(Buena Vista, 1984) D: Tim Burton
S: Lenny Ripps P: Julie Hickson

Burton made this 27-minute b/w short while he was with Disney. Disney declined to release the PG-rated short even though it had cost a million dollars to produce, claiming that it was too scary for kids to see in theaters, as had been planned. It was worth the wait. Burton was 25 when he made it. It's a great-looking, cute, and clever comedy mixing the Frankenstein story with the visual style of Bride of Frankenstein (and the original Invaders from Mars). Barrett Oliver (The NeverEnding Story) is Victor, a kid who brings his dog, Sparky, back to life. Paul Bartel is a science teacher, and Shelley Duvall and Daniel Stern are the parents. Burton also made Vincent (1983), an animated b/w short, while with Disney. It's about a boy who imitates his idol, Vincent Price (who narrates). Disney let Burton go, and in a few years he was one of the most successful directors around.

FRANK HENENLOTTER'S SEXY SHOCKER REEL

(SW, 1994)

Select scenes from 31 films made in various countries (mostly in the 60s) and released as part of the Sexy Shocker series are in this mind-blowing 100 minute sampler. Some highlights are scenes from The Awful Dr. Orloff, The Bloody Pit of Horror, The Curious Dr. Humpe, Horrors of Spider Island, Mondo Balardo, Mondo Pazzo, and Sexy Prohibitismo. Since most of you wouldn't want (or couldn't afford) all 31, this is a great idea, but be prepared, because comic and/or sexy scenes with strippers, monsters, and mad doctors are mixed with disturbing Mondo scenes and some pretty strong and sick torture and rape scenes.

FRANTIC

(Warner, 1988) D/S: Roman Polanski
S: Gerard Brach P: Thom Mount France

An American doctor (Harrison Ford) and his wife (Betty Buckley) go to Paris. She disappears, and he becomes involved with Emmanuelle Seigner and political intrigue. Ford is dull, and this Hitchcockian thriller is way too long (120 minutes). A miniature Statue of Liberty is an interesting touch. Ennio Morricone wrote the score. Alexandra Stewart is in the cast, and Polanski plays a bit part. Seigner, his 21-year-old girlfriend at the time, married him and returned in his Bitter Moon (1992).

FRATERNITY VACATION

(Starmaker, 1985) D: James Frawley
S: Lindsay Harrison P: Robert C. Peeters

Stephen Geoffreys stars as Wendell, an awkward guy who becomes "cool," in this movie about Palm Springs teens trying to get laid. His friends (Cameron Dye and a pre-star Tim Robbins) are the victims of a memorable frat-joke scene with nude Kathleen Kinmont and Barbara Crampton. With Sheree J. Wilson (from Dallas), Leigh McCloskey, Amanda Bearse, Britt Ekland, Max Wright, Franklyn Ajaye, John Vernon as the police chief, and Nita Talbot as his wife. The soundtrack features various rock artists. Denise di Novi (Batman Returns) was an executive producer of this New World release.

FRÄULEIN DEVIL

(Wizard, 1977) D: "Mark Stern"/Patrice Rhom Italy (Captive Woman 4)

Melissa Longo is a hooker-turned-colonel running a WWII Nazi brothel on a train. With Pamela Stanford and Lisa Lynn Montiel. Longo was in Tinto Brass' Salon Kitty (1975), which this copies, and played a similar role in Helga, She Wolf of Spilberg.

FREAKED

(Fox, 1993) D/S/A: Alex Winter D/S: Tom Stern S: Tim Burns P: Harry and Mary Jane Ufland (Hideous Mutant Freekz)

Alex Winter is Ricky Coogan, star of the fictitious Ghost Dude series who's helping to promote poison fertilizer. He and his friend Ernie (Michael Stoyanov) go to South America and encounter a bearded sideshow owner (Randy Quaid) with a freak-making machine. Megan Ward is joined with Ernie, and Ricky's face is mutated. This fun, wacky comedy spoofs everything, from The Twilight Zone, Hollywood Squares, and Gumby to the Harryhausen cyclops. Even a hammer has a flashback. With Alex Zuckerman as Ricky's number one fan, William Sadler as a corporate villain, an unrecognizable Keanu Reeves as the dog-faced boy, Mr. T as a bearded lady, Brooke Shields, Larry "Bud" Melman, Gibby Haynes, and the voice of Bobcat Goldthwait. Steve Johnson, Screaming Mad George, the Chiodo Brothers, and David Allen all provided FX, under the supervision of Tom Rainone (who also appears). It's PG-13 and was released by 20th Century–Fox. The directors had done the Idiot Box series for MTV.

THE FREAKMAKER = THE MUTATIONS

FREAKSHOW

(1989) D: Constantino Magnatta
S: Bob Farmer P: Anthony Kramreither Canada

Four very bad horror stories are told. Audrey Landers stars as a TV newscaster in linking segments.

FREAKY FRIDAY

(Disney, 1976) D: Gary Nelson
S: Mary Rodgers P: Ron Miller

A teen (Jodie Foster) and her mom (Barbara Harris) switch personalities for a day, in this G-rated body-switch movie that's very much ahead of its time. With John Astin, Patsy Kelly, Ruth Buzzi, Marc McClure, Marvin Kaplan, Dick Van Patten, Sorrell Booke, Kay Ballard, and Charlene Tilton. The basic plot was reused in countless 80s films. Nelson went on to direct the expensive Disney flop The Black Hole.

Barbara Harris and Jodie Foster switch personalities in Freaky Friday.

FREDDY'S DEAD: THE FINAL NIGHTMARE

(RCA, 1991) D: Rachel Talalay S: Michael DeLuca P: Robert Shaye, Aaron Warner

Robert Englund stars as supernatural killer Freddy Krueger for the "last" time. This awkward movie is set in a small Ohio town in the future, when all the children have been killed off. Shon Greenblatt has amnesia and nightmares. Teen-runaway-shelter worker Lisa Zane is Freddy's daughter. Yaphet Kotto is a doctor who uses dream therapy (and 3-D glasses). Lezlie Deane fights Freddy with martial arts. The small cast mostly acts in a cramped old-house set. The disappointing 15-minute last reel is in 3-D. The look of the film is similar to The Mask (also distributed by New Line). There are nods to The Wizard of Oz and The Twilight Zone, and useless bit parts by Johnny Depp, Alice Cooper, Rosanne Barr, and New Line president Shaye don't help. The 32-year-old director was an accounting assistant for Roger Corman and a production assistant for John Waters, then produced two Waters and two Nightmare movies. A soundtrack with various rock artists is on Metal Blade, and the Brian May score is on Varèse Sarabande. The 6th and "final" movie in the series, this made more than $17 million and was followed by Wes Craven's New Nightmare.

FREDDY'S NIGHTMARES

(1988–90)

This syndicated horror-anthology series was hosted by Robert Englund as wisecracking Freddy Krueger. It was a lame attempt to cash in on the popular movies, and episodes were awkwardly filmed so that they could be syndicated as hour or half-hour shows. The show could be pretty violent for TV. The scripts were awful. It's set in Springwood. Some directors were Tom De Simone, Ken Weiderhorn, and William Malone. Five tapes lasting 47 minutes each are available. No More Mr. Nice Guy is the feature-length pilot, directed by Tobe Hooper. From Warner.

FREE FALL

(Vidmark, 1993) D: John Irvin
S/P: David Zito, Les Weldon

A wildlife photographer in Africa (Pamela Gidley) has an affair with a sportsman (Eric Roberts) who claims to be an Interpol agent assigned to protect her. Jeff Fahey is her publisher fiancé. It was shot in Venezuela (not Africa), and the video box makes you think it's like Cliffhanger (which it isn't). A USA cable debut.

FREEJACK

(Warner, 1992) D: Geoff Murphy S/P: Ronald Shussett S: Steven Pressfield P: Stuart Oken

Emilio Estevez plays a race-car driver who crashes and is somehow transported to New York City in 2009. His body is to be taken over by a rich, dying man during "psychic surgery." It's a Blade Runner–look movie filled with car crashes, shootouts, and old ideas. Mick Jagger (in his first role since Ned Kelly) is Vacendak, a grim-faced bounty hunter out to capture Estevez. Anthony Hopkins shows up once in a while on a TV screen. Rene Russo and David Johansen are characters from 1991 who somehow haven't aged at all in 20 years. With Jonathan Banks, John Shea, Vincent Schiavelli, Esai Morales, Jerry Hall (Jagger's real-life wife) as a TV reporter, and Amanda Plummer as a comic nun with a gun. There's a computer-animated ending with a theme by John Lydon. Loosely based on a novel by Robert Shekley, it was made in Atlanta by the New Zealand–born director of Uta and The Quiet Earth (who, you might say, sold out with this and Young Guns II). New York audiences even laughed at the trailer.

FREE RIDE

(IVE, 1985) D: Tom Trbovich S: Ronald Z. Wang, Lee Fulkerson P: Tom Boutross (Boarding School)

Teens borrow a car with mob money in it. This prep-school comedy stars Gary Herschberger (later on Twin Peaks). With Peter DeLuise, Frank Campanella as a gangster, Warren Berlinger, Dawn Schneider, Tally Channel, and porno star Krista Lane. Mamie Van Doren, in her only post-60s film, is the head nurse at Monroe College. Her husband, the dean (Brian MacGregor), is named Dean Stockwell. Moustapha Akkad was the executive producer.

FREEWAY

(Starmaker, 1988) D/S: Francis Delia S: Darrell Fetty P: Peter S. Davis, William Panzer

Exploiting headlines about real 1987 shootings on the LA Freeway was a natural idea, so New World did it. A nurse (Darlanne Fluegel) wants to find the man who killed her husband. James Russo is a bounty hunter, Richard Belzer is a radio-talk-show host, and Billy Drago is a psycho, Bible-quoting ex-priest waiting for Armageddon who calls the show. With Michael Callan, Kenneth Tobey, and Clint Howard. Delia had done exceptional videos for Wall of Voodoo ("Mexican Radio") and the Ramones ("Psychotherapy").

FREEWAY MANIAC

(Media, 1987) D/S/P: Paul Winters S: Gahan Wilson

Despite the then-topical title, this is a parody about a mad killer who escapes from an asylum and ends up on the set of a low-budget science-fiction movie in the desert. Loren Winters stars.

FREE, WHITE, AND 21

(All Season, 1962) D/S/E: Larry Buchanan S/P: "Hal Dwain"/Harold Hoffman S: Cliff Pope

Greta (Annalena Lund), a 22-year-old blonde from Stockholm who worked with CORE to help integrate the South, accuses Ernest Jones (Frederick O'Neal), a black Dallas businessman, of rape. In court, testimony is given, and we see her flashbacks, then his flashbacks, of what happened. He admits to having sex with her but says that she consented. In one scene she does the hobo twist in an all-black club while Joe Johnson and his orchestra play. After the closing statements, all you see for a long time is a ticking clock (this is when ushers handed out cards in the theater so that the audience could vote). Buchanan said that when the clock was shown at drive-ins, people threw things at the screen. The acting is good, especially by O'Neal (who had been in the all-black version of Anna Lucasta (1958) and was later in Cotton Comes to Harlem). It's all handled very tastefully and has a nice, unexpected ending. It was made in a Dallas studio, reportedly for $35,000, and was very profitable for AIP. The b/w print is excellent. The cast includes Bill McGhee (from Don't Look in the Basement). Buchanan directed Under Age, another courtroom drama, next.

FREEZE BOMB: See DEATH DIMENSION

THE FRENCH LINE

(Turner, 1954) D: Lloyd Bacon S: Mary Loos, Richard Sale P: Edmund Grainger

Jane Russell stars in this 3-D musical hit as a Texas oil heiress who sails to Paris (it was all shot in the studio). Incredibly, this film from Howard Hughes' RKO was denied an MPAA seal of approval and was censored in some towns. Maybe it was the ads: "J.R. in 3-D. It'll knock both your eyes out!" With Gilbert Roland, Mary McCarty, Arthur Hunnicutt, Paula Corday, and Craig Stevens.

FRENCHMAN'S FARM

(Magnum, 1986) D/S: Ron Way S/P: Larry Fishburn, Matt White Australia (Frenchman's Death Farm)

A college student drives on a back road to avoid brushfires. She sees a 1944 decapitation murder happen. The ghost of an executioner is guarding a treasure. Ray Barrett and Norman Kaye star.

THE FRENCH REVOLUTION

(1989) D/S: Robert Enrico, Richard Heffron S: David Ambrose, Daniel Boulanger P: Alexandre Mnouchkine France/W. Germany/Italy/Canada

This epic, a 2-part 337-minute miniseries, cost a whopping $50 million and was never shown in the US. Christopher Lee is the chief executioner, miniseries queen Jane Seymour is Marie Antoinette, and Klaus Maria Brandauer is Danton. Peter Ustinov, Sam Neill, Claudia Cardinale, and many, many others are also in the cast.

FRESH AIR: See NAUGHTY STEWARDESSES

FRESH KILL

(City Lights, 1987) D/S/P: Joseph Merhi P: Richard Pepin

A would-be Hollywood actor working in a meat market becomes involved with gangsters, drugs, and revenge, in this violent, senseless movie. With Robert Z'Dar.

FRESH LIVE CREAM

(Polydor, 1993) D/P: Martin Baker P: Jenne Baker

This 75-minute documentary combines new interviews with members of the short-lived 60s "supergroup" Cream and footage from their 1967–68 performances (mostly live). While their legendary jamming on blues classics seems boring and plodding, some lesser-known originals sound great (especially "We're Going Wrong"). During the interviews, the still-famous Eric Clapton seems pretty humorless, and drummer Ginger Baker is the most egotistical but the most fun to watch. Lead singer and writer Jack Bruce (who's gained a lot of weight) is the forgotten talent of the group. They're all embarrassed by the comic clip of them lip-syncing to "Anyone for Tennis" on American TV. Some of the live footage is from an easy-to-find tape, The Farewell Concert. We also see a pre-Cream Baker in Gonks Go Beat!

FRIDAY FOSTER

(Orion, 1975) D/P: Arthur Marks S: Orville Hampton

Pam Grier is Friday Foster, a fashion photographer (the character is based on a syndicated comic strip). This was a change from the sex-and-violence mov-ies she had starred in, and it failed at the box office. Yaphet Kotto is her private-detective boyfriend, Thalmus Rasulala is a billionaire targeted for an assassination, Godfrey Cambridge is a gay dress designer, and Jim Backus is a racist villain. With Eartha Kitt, Scatman Crothers, Ted Lange, Carl Weathers, and Jack Baker. Marks (son of Groucho Marx) also directed Grier in Bucktown. It was released by AIP.

FRIDAY THE 13TH: THE FINAL CHAPTER

(Paramount, 1984) D: Joseph Zito S: Barney Cohen P: Frank Mancuso

There were more victims but less blood in the 4th movie in this money-making slasher series. It made more money than the previous three and featured some actors who actually had careers. With Crispin Glover (!) as Jimmy, Kimberly Beck, Corey Feldman as Tommy (the kid who kills Jason), Judie Aronson, Joan Freeman (Panic in the Year Zero), Peter Barton (from The Young and the Restless), twins Camilla and Carey More, and Ted White as Jason. Tom Savini provided the FX, and one character is a monster-makeup fanatic. Despite the hopeful title there were many more in the series.

FRIDAY THE 13TH, PART V: A NEW BEGINNING

(Paramount, 1985) D: Danny Steinmann S: Martin Kitrosser P: Timothy Silver

This had even less blood than The Final Chapter, to avoid rating problems (and save money). John Shepard stars as the now-teen Tommy (played by Corey Feldman in flashbacks). He's released from a mental hospital and seems to have "become" Jason (who is played by Dick Wieand). With Juliette Cummins and Deborah Vorhees.

FRIDAY THE 13TH, PART VI: JASON LIVES

(Paramount, 1986) D/S: Tom McLoughlin P: Don Behrns

Offscreen killings are the best this diluted entry can offer. The director was a former mime who directed Date with an Angel next. Ron Palillo and a friend dig up a grave. Lightning revives "maggot-head" Jason (C. J. Graham). Thom Mathews as Tommy Jarvis (a survivor from the last time) and the sheriff's daughter (Jennifer Cooke) are the main characters. This has more intentional humor, in-jokes, and an Alice Cooper theme, "He's Back." Friday the 13th, an unrelated syndicated TV series (also from Paramount), debuted in 1987 and lasted until 1990.

Pam Grier stars in Friday Foster.

FRIDAY THE 13TH, PART VII: THE NEW BLOOD

(Paramount, 1988) D: John Carl Buechler
S: Daryl Haney P: Lain Paterso

A telekinetic girl (Lar Park Lincoln) goes to Crystal Lake with her mother and her irritating shrink (Terry Kiser). She accidentally releases Jason from his watery grave, and they have a confrontation at the end. Other characters are killed off. It starts with film clips of death scenes from the first 6 movies. Jason (Kane Hodder) has his hockey mask off this time. With Elizabeth Kaiten and Heidi Kozak. The director is a makeup expert.

FRIDAY THE 13TH, PART VIII: JASON TAKES MANHATTAN

(Paramount, 1989) D/S: Rob Hedden
P: Randolph Cheveldave

They just kept getting worse. A cheat ad campaign made people think it took place in a horrifying midtown Manhattan. It's actually set on a cruise ship taking high-school grads to NYC. The subway scenes were filmed in Canada. Most of the characters are killed before the boat docks. One kid videotapes everything. With Jensen Daggett, Scott Reeves (from The Young and the Restless), and Kane Hodder as Jason again, this time revived by an electric current. It was the lowest-grossing of the series but was followed by yet another one, Jason Goes to Hell: The Final Friday.

FRIGID WIFE

(SW, 1962) D: Paul Landres, Ben Parker
S/P: "John Kenlo"/Julius Weinstein S: Sam Roeca, George Wallace Sayre P: David Diamond

A doctor introduces several patients who have flashbacks about emotional disorders and impotence. This was made by Parker and "Kenlo." Then the real story begins. It was originally a 1950 Monogram movie called Modern Marriage. A newlywed (Margaret Field) runs away from her husband (Robert Clarke) on their wedding night and attempts suicide. She goes to a rest home and has a flashback to the 40s. This is followed by her husband's flashback, then her mother's (!) flashback. Reed Hadley (with his little mustache) plays a doctor. Clarke and Field (Sally's mother, known as Maggie Mahoney after she married actor Jock Mahoney) were also in The Man from Planet X (1951). Landres later directed The Vampire (1957) and The Return of Dracula (1958).

FRIGHT HOUSE

(Studio Entertainment, 1989) D/S/P: Len Anthony

Al Lewis (living off his Grandpa role from The Munsters) hosts this paste-up double-bill video. Fright House is about witches. In Abandon, a woman never ages. With Duane Jones and Jennifer Delora.

FRIGHTMARE

(Vestron, 1981) D/S: Norman T. Vane
P: Patrick Wright, Tallie Wright
(The Horror Star; Upon a Frightmare)

Members of a teen horror-film society kidnap the body of Conrad Ragzoff (Ferdy Mayne), an actor who starred in horror movies. His widow holds a séance, and the reanimated corpse kills off the obnoxious kids in an old house. It's a good idea but a bad movie. With Luca Bercovici, Nita Talbot, Jeffrey Combs, and Leon Askin.

FRIGHTMARE II = FRIGHTMARE (1974)

FRIGHT NIGHT

(RCA/Columbia, 1985) D/S: Tom Holland P: Herb Jaffe

Vampire Chris Sarandon and some followers move in next door to a teen (William Ragsdale) who tries to warn people in vain. Roddy McDowall as TV-horror-movie host Peter Vincent believes him and becomes a real-life Van Helsing type. The overacting but memorable Stephen Geoffreys is his friend Evil Ed, who becomes a vampire. With Amanda Bearse (later a regular on Married . . . with Children), who becomes a sexy vampire, and Heidi Sorenson. The first movie directed by the writer of The Beast Within and Psycho II has some good FX (by Steve Johnson) and includes clips from Scars of Dracula and Octaman (and a scene from Children Shouldn't Play with Dead Things, later cut out). The TV studio is the old Monogram studio. It was a hit, and a sequel followed. The soundtrack, featuring various artists, is on CBA.

FRIGHT NIGHT PART II

(IVE, 1988) D/S: Tommy Lee Wallace
S: Tim Metcalfe, Miguel Tejada-Flores
P: Herb Jaffe, Mort Engelberg

Roddy McDowall and William Ragsdale return as vampire hunters in a sequel that played in theaters after its video release. The vampires include a gay black guy and a muscleman. The Gene Warren FX borrowed some Chinese ideas (like bugs and maggots from bodies). With Julie Carmen as the vampire sister of the vampire from the first movie, Traci Lin, Brian Thompson, and Merritt Butrick.

FRITZ THE CAT

(1972) D/S: Ralph Bakshi P: Steve Krantz

Cinemation released the first X-rated cartoon feature, then AIP picked it up. Based on the 60s underground comic strip by R. Crumb (who did not like the results), it takes place in the East Village, Harlem, and LA, and features pigs as cops, crows as blacks, Hell's Angels, sex, drugs, and revolution. The music includes hits by Bo Diddley, Billie Holiday, and others. Bakshi had worked on Terrytoons and did the "new" Mighty Mouse TV cartoons in the 80s. A sequel, The Nine Lives of Fritz the Cat, was by another director.

FROGTOWN II

(York, 1994) D/C:. Donald Jackson P: Scott Pfeiffer

Robert Z'Dar is a bad substitute for Roddy Piper as Sam Hell in this PG-13 sequel that has little of the charm of the original, Hell Comes to Frogtown. He and Denice Duff (from the Subspecies sequels) are sent by the Texas rocketeer captain (Charles Napier) to rescue Lou Ferrigno, who spends most of the movie lying around turning green. With Brion James (using his cartoon voice in two roles), Don Stroud, and Rhonda Shear. It's got bad puppets, dumb songs, a lame western-town setting, and a waste of the Rocketeer-inspired flying concept.

FROM BEYOND

(Vestron, 1986) D/S: Stuart Gordon
S: Dennis Paoli S/P: Brian Yuzna

After the gross-out hit Re-Animator, Gordon reassembled some of the same cast for another wild movie "based on Lovecraft." It's a daring mixture of horror, science fiction, and S&M sex. A "sonic resonator" is created by the brilliant and deranged Dr. Pretorious (Ted Sorel), who wants "to see more than any man has ever seen." He unleashes 4-D demons and becomes a mutated creature who can be seen only by someone who has developed a "third eye." Jeffrey Combs has one, a pineal gland sticking out of his forehead. With the very sexy Barbara Crampton, Ken Foree, and Carolyn Purdy-Gordon. Parts of the film are amazing, but some of the special effects are shown too long and look kind of rubbery. It was shot in Rome and cut for an R rating in the US. The Richard Band soundtrack is on Enigma.

FROM HELL TO VICTORY

(UAV, 1979) D/S: "Hank Milestone"/ Umberto Lenzi
S: Gianfranco Clerici, Anthony Fritz, José Luis Martínez
Italy/France/Spain (Contro Quattro Bandieri)

Old friends from various countries meet once a year in Paris. In 1939 they're torn apart by WWII. George Peppard stars in this PG film, made up of 6 individual segments showing the experiences of the main characters. With George Hamilton, Horst Buchholtz, Capucine, Howard Vernon as an SS officer, Sam Wanamaker, Jean-Pierre Cassel, Raymond Lovelock, and Anny Duperey.

FROM THE DEAD OF NIGHT

(AIP, 1989) D: Paul Wendkos S: William Bleich

Lindsay Wagner is a fashion designer who drowns, floats through a tunnel of light (this entire sequence is shown twice), then revived. In Mexico, on the Day of the Dead, death figures appear to her, and people around her start to die. Back in LA she joins an encounter group and learns about the "walkers" (the name of the Gary Brandner novel this is based on), who are trying to finish her off. This NBC-TV miniseries is too long (200 minutes) but has some good moments, including a body in the morgue coming to life and a zombie kid on a skateboard. There's also a love triangle. With Bruce Boxleitner, Robin Thomas, Robert Prosky, Merritt Butrick (who died the year this was shown), and Diahann Carroll.

FRONTIER HELLCAT

(VSOM, 1964) D: Alfred Vohrer S: Eberhard Keinhard, Johannes Sibelius P: Horst Wendlandt
W. Germany/Italy/France/Yugoslavia
(Unter Geiern; Among Vultures)

Stewart Granger is Old Surehand (replacing usual series star Lex Barker) in this western, part of a series based on novels by the 19th-century German writer Karl May. The Vultures, a gang of robbers, disguise themselves as Indians and kidnap Elke Sommer. Pierre Brice is Winnetou the Indian, as usual, and Terence Hill has a small part. Most of the cast returned in Rampage at Apache Wells, and Granger was also in Flaming Frontier.

Fright Night

FROSTBITER: WRATH OF WENDIGO

(1991) D/S/P: Tom Chaney

Hunters unleash a demon (an animated reindeer) on a northern Michigan island. Ron Asheton (from the Stooges!) is a doctor on a hunting trip. There's a rock soundtrack and a comic-book version of this Evil Dead copy.

FROZEN SCREAM

(Platinum, 1980) D: Frank Roach S: Doug Ferrin, Michael Soney, Celeste Hammond P/A: Rene Harmon

A doctor and his nurse (Harmon) freeze people and turn them into zombies. Voiceovers try to make sense of it all. Harmon also produced The Execution, Part II.

FROZEN TERROR

(Vestron, 1980) D/S: Lamberto Bava
S: Pupi Avati, Roberto Gandus P: Gianni Minervi, Antonio Avati Italy (Macabro)

A girl sees her mother (Bernice Stegers) having sex, so she tries to drown her brother in the bathtub. On the way to the hospital the car crashes, and the mother's lover is decapitated. The mother ends up in a mental ward. Later she's released, but she's obsessed with the head of her lover, which she keeps in the freezer but takes to bed at night. Her psychotic daughter bothers her too. The first film by Mario Bava's son is "based on a true story" and is set in New Orleans. You won't believe the ending.

FRUITS OF PASSION: See THE STORY OF O, Part II

FRUSTRATION: See THE DIVORCEE

FTA

(1972) D/P: Francine Parker S: Robin Menken, Michael Alimo, Rita Martinson, Holly Near, Len Chandler, Pamela Donegan, Dalton Trumbo
S/P/A: Jane Fonda, Donald Sutherland

AIP released this period-piece documentary, which very few people saw. Fonda and Sutherland (who lived together at the time) and Holly Near went to towns near Army bases presenting an anti–Vietnam War show called Free (or Fuck) the Army. Fonda and her IPC (Indochina Peace Campaign) company produced the film. The same year Fonda was in Godard's Tout Va Bien. She and Sutherland returned in Steelyard Blues (1973).

FUEGO

(1968) D/S/P/A: Amando Bo Argentina

Isabel Sarli (who is incredible) stars as the insatiable Laura in this crazed South American sex movie, which did good business in the US. She marries a rich man but ends up in bed with other men, like the phone repairman. She goes to a shrink, decides it's all hopeless, and drives her car over a cliff. The theme song, "Fuego" (fire), is heard during scenes like the one where she reveals that she's wearing only a fur coat in the snow. This is probably the first X-rated movie I ever saw (at the Westwood Art Theatre, in Lakewood, Ohio). Bo also directed Sarli in Put Up or Shut Up (1959), Heat (1960), Woman and Temptation (1966), Mohair (1967), and Tropical Extasy (1970).

FUGITIVE GIRLS

(VEC, 1973) D/P: "A. C. Stevens"/Stephen C. Apostolof S/A: Ed Wood Jr. (Five Loose Women; Hot on the Trail; Women's Penitentiary VIII)

Cult figure Ed Wood Jr. (a forgotten man at the time) worked (often uncredited) on nudie films made by Stevens. He wrote this one and appears as Pop, who runs a remote gas station, and as a sheriff. The film was rated X and has soft-core sex scenes. An R-rated, softer version is called Five Loose Women. After a sex scene with badly dubbed-in "Oooh, aah, ooh, aah," the guy (with long thick sideburns) decides to hold up a liquor store, shoots the owner, and leaves the clichéd women's-prison-movie victim/star (Jabie Abercrombie) to take the rap. Her cellmates at the minimum- security work farm are nudie star Rene Bond as a bank embezzler with a thick southern accent ("There's only two things worthwhile for a girl—men and money!"), Cap, a manic, short-haired dyke who killed her husband ("His mistake was, he turned me on to women, and I dug it!"), and a black woman (Donna Desmond) who trades insults with the southerner ("dirty white trash!"). Cap says, "I'm getting sick and tired of this rainbow trip!" After she forces Dee into a long lesbian scene, they all escape and stay with organic hippies in the woods until Cap says, "They all smell like freaks!" A hippie says, "Good Christ, a lesbian!" and a chain fight starts. In a scene Ed borrowed from his script for The Violent Years (1956) the women steal a guy's car and rape him ("Leave me alone!"). They also ambush some bikers, fight them using martial arts, then take over the home of a paralyzed Nam vet. Fugitive Girls has a funny, recurring Hammond-organ theme and enough Wood touches to make it a must for his fans, who can't get enough (he was the assistant director). The cast includes Foreman Shane.

FULL CONTACT

(VSOM, 1992) D/P: Ringo Lam S: NamYin Hong Kong

Chow Yun Fat stars as a nightclub bouncer who gets mixed up with a gang of Thai killers. Ann Bridgewater is his dancer girlfriend, and Simon Yam is the gay ganglord in Bangkok.

FULL ECLIPSE

(HBO, 1993) D: Anthony Hickox S: Richard Christian Matheson Jr., Michael Reaves P: Peter Abrams, Robert Levy

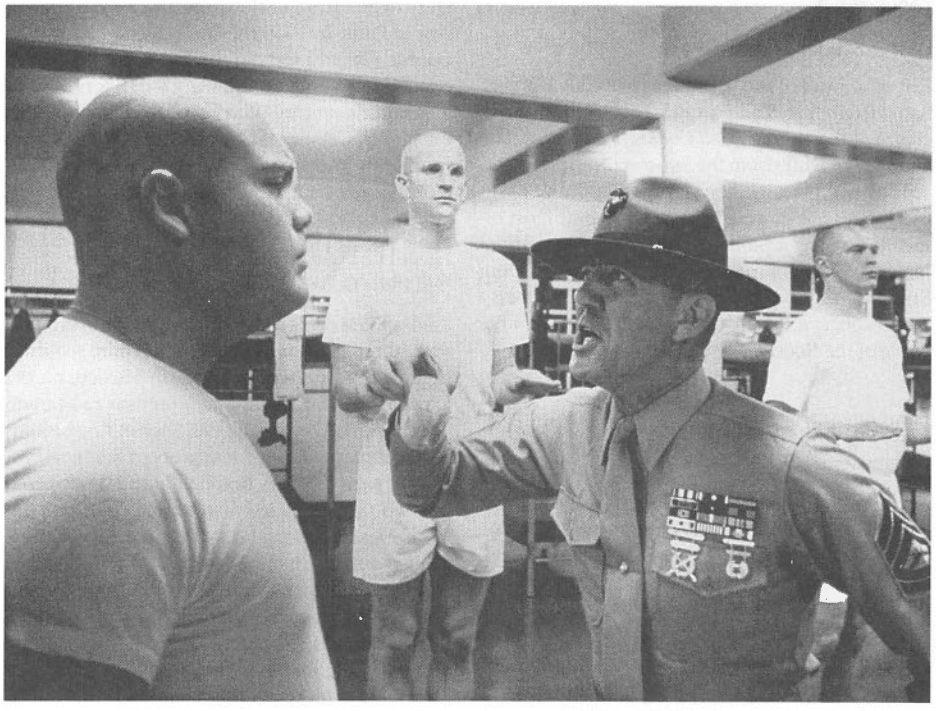
After a John Woo–style shootout in a club, a cop who was shot (Anthony Michael Denison) is revived as a supercop ("Dirty Harry on crack"). It turns out that Garou (Bruce Payne) is an ageless werewolf who uses injections to turn other cops into members of his vigilante crime-fighting "pack." Top-billed Mario Van Peebles is tricked into joining them by Patsy Kensit. They all mutate, with beast faces and long claws that come out of their knuckles (a bad idea), and go into a frenzy while killing lots of criminals. This is pretty good for a TV horror movie. R and unrated versions are available.



Vincent D'Onofrio as "Gomer" Pyle and Lee Ermey in Stanley Kubrick's Full Metal Jacket.

FULL FATHOM FIVE

(MGM/UA, 1990) D/A: Carl Franklin S: Bart Davis P: Luis Llosa

Just what we needed from Roger Corman—a cheap, boring, dated, PG-rated ripoff of The Hunt for Red October set just before the invasion of Panama. Michael Moriarty, as a US submarine captain, gets to play the piano and sing, and even seduce a Panamanian rebel (Maria Rangel). Rebels capture a Soviet nuclear submarine and assign a Cuban captain, who decides to sink a Saudi tanker and announces that he'll destroy Houston. Moriarty must have been happy to be in a successful (and good) TV series (Law And Order) after this. It was made in Peru.

FULL METAL JACKET

(Warner, 1987) D/S/P: Stanley Kubrick S: Michael Herr, Gustav Hasford UK

Kubrick's first film since The Shining is a major antiwar movie (and it includes the ultimate use of "Surfin' Bird"!). Matthew Modine stars and narrates as Private Joker, who becomes a Stars and Stripes reporter in Vietnam. The incredible first 44 minutes take place at a basic-training camp, with Lee Ermey as the gunnery sergeant and Vincent D'Onofrio as big, bald Private "Gomer" Pyle. If you want to know what military training is like, look at this movie. The second part takes place in Nam and features the earth-shattering, complete "Papa Oom Mow Mow" end of the Trashmen's classic. With Adam Baldwin as Animal Mother and Arliss Howard. In real life Ermey was a Marine drill instructor who served in Vietnam. It was all filmed in England, using lots of 360-degree camera panning. The production design is by Anton Furst. It's based on The Short Timers, by the late Gustav Hasford.

FUN

(1994) D/P: Rafal Zielinski S: James Bosley

Alicia Witt and Renee Humphrey are California teens who meet on the road and commit a senseless murder. The story is told from the juvenile-detention center. This serious color and b/w film, by the Polish-born director of teen comedies like Screwballs and Spellcaster, is based on a play.

FUNERAL HOME

(Paragon, 1980) D/P: William Fruet S: Ida Nelson Canada (Cries in the Night)

A teen (Lesleh Donaldson) goes to stay with her nice but disturbed grandmother (Kay Hawtrey) at her hotel (formerly a funeral home). People begin to disappear. Barry Morse costars in this PG-rated MPM release.

FUNLAND

(Vestron, 1987) D/S: William Vanderkloot S: Bonnie Turner, Terry Turner P: Michael A. Simpson

David Lander (from Laverne and Shirley) stars in this offbeat PG-13 action comedy about an amusement park. William Windom is a clown who fights against the new mob owners. With Robert Sacchi and Jan Hooks. It was scripted by Saturday Night Live writers.

THE FUNNIEST SHOW ON EARTH

(1954) D/S: Mario Mattoli P: Carlo Ponti, Dino De Laurentiis Italy (Il Piu Comico Spettacolo del Mondo)

Popular comedian Toto stars in a spoof of Cecil B. De Mille's then-new The Greatest Show on Earth. With Marc Lawrence, May Britt, and Anthony Quinn and Silvana Mangano in bit parts.

THE FUNNY MAN

(1994) D/S: Simon Sprackling P: Nigel Odell UK

Tim James stars as an athletic, wisecracking, supernatural killer, in this low-budget horror comedy set in a haunted house. The house is won from Christopher Lee in a poker game. With Benny Young and Paula Chan. It's an expanded version of a short called Hand of Fate. The filmmakers are former members of a punk band, and the impressive FX are by Neill Gordon (Nightbreed).

THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF TENNESSEE BUCK

(Media, 1987) D/A: David Keith S: Barry Jocobs, Stuart Jacobs P: Gideon Amir

David Keith stars as Buck Malone in this R-rated Raiders of the Lost Ark copy set in Borneo. He's an alcoholic no-good, but women can't keep away from him. Kathy Shower (from Playboy) costars, with Sydney Lassick. There are cannibals, gore, naked native women, and lots of racist and sexist jokes. It was shot in Sri Lanka.

FURY

(MGM, 1936) D: Fritz Lang S: Bartlett Cormack P: Joseph L. Mankiewicz

One day in 1933, after making The Testament of Dr. Mabuse (which the Nazis banned), Fritz Lang was summoned by Propaganda Minister Josef Goebbels and told that Hitler wanted him to head UFA and make Nazi films. That evening Lang fled to France. Spencer Tracy stars in Lang's first American film, as a man wrongly arrested in a small Illinois town for a kidnapping. An angry crowd sets fire to his jail cell. The bitter man survives but hides, pretending to be dead, so that the townspeople can be tried for his death. It was a strong start for Lang's new career in exile. Sylvia Sidney costars as Tracy's fiancée, with Bruce Cabot, Walter Abel, Edward Ellis, and Walter Brennan. Sidney returned in Lang's You Only Live Once (1937) and You and Me (1938).

THE FURY OF HERCULES

(Sinister, 1961) D: Gianfranco Parolini S: P. Parloni, Giorgio C. Simonelli Italy/France (La Furia di Ercole)

Brad Harris stars as superstrong Hercules, with Brigitte Corey, Alan Steele, and the late Serge Gainsbourg.

FUTURE FORCE

(AIP, 1989) D/S: David A. Prior P: Kimberly Case

John Tucker (David Carradine) is an LA bounty hunter working with COPS (Civilian Operated Police Systems) in the near future. He communicates with a crippled guy on his car monitor. Corporate villains put a price on his head and send out the late Robert Tessier to kill him. After a lot of driving around, the best part is a junkyard shootout, followed by a punchout battle with big, bald Tessier. Carradine makes his remote-controlled bionic hand (copied from the movie The Glove) fly through the air to punch and choke the unstoppable villain. With William Zipp and Dawn Wildsmith. Carradine and his wife, Gail Jenson, were the associate producers.

FUTURE HUNTERS

(Vestron, 1986) D: Cirio H. Santiago S: J. L. Thompson P: Anthony Maharaj Philippines (The Spear of Destiny)

Richard Norton is a warrior from 2025, who travels back to the present to find a spear "that killed Jesus." He saves Robert Patrick (later in Terminator II) and Linda Carol from bikers, but is killed, so they take up the spear and battle the bad guys. With kung fu, explosions, pygmies, Amazon women, and Mongols. It's a bad mixture of Mad Max, Indiana Jones, and many others. With Bruce Li.

FUTURE KICK

(Concorde, 1990) D/S: Damian Klaus P: Roger Corman

Don "the Dragon" Wilson is a kickboxing cyborg bounty hunter ("All you get from feelings is dead") in the future. Meg Foster is a wealthy housewife on the Moon who goes to LA to investigate the death of her husband. Ed Lottimer is Heinz, a killer who uses a triple knife to cut out his victims' organs. Christopher Penn turns out to be a machine. There are some surprising decapitations, an exploding head, and strippers hanging on poles in a topless bar (just like in a dozen other recent Corman productions). Parts of the plot copy Total Recall, the strip scenes were lifted from Stripped to Kill II, and it all turns out to be a dream (!).

FUTURE KILL

(Vestron, 1984) D/S: Ronald W. Moore P: Greg Unterberger, John H. Best

The best thing about this science-fiction/action movie made in Dallas was the poster by Giger. In the future, some frat teens break into mutant territory to rescue their leader. Two Texas Chainsaw Massacre stars are in the cast, Marilyn Burns and Ed Neal as a burned mutant in a metal mask called Splatter. He has an altered voice and steel claws.The director was 25.

FUTURE SCHLOCK

(1984) D/S/P: Barry Peak, Chris Kiely Australia

Conservatives put nonconformists into a walled-up ghetto in the post-nuke 21st century. This comedy stars Maryanne Fahey and Michael Bishop.

FUTURE SHOCK

(Hemdale, 1993) D/S: Oley Sassone, Matt Reeves D/S/A: Vivian Schilling D/P/A: Eric Parkinson

This anthology is similar to Terror Eyes, in that Vivian Schilling wrote her own segment and the other two are by UCLA students. Despite the very misleading video box, it's worth seeing, if only for Sassone's comedy "The Roommate" (made in 1988), starring Bill Paxton, in top form as a smiling, ponytailed con man who moves in with a morgue attendant (Scott Thompson). It's letterboxed (!) and also features James Karen and Rick Rossovich. In "Jenny Porter," Schilling has nightmares and paranoid visions in a high-security house. Brion James and Sydney Lassick appear, and scenes from Howling II and Return of the Living Dead are on TV. "Mr. Petrified Forest," by Reeves, is a comic tale about a photographer (Sam Clay) who worries about earthquakes and imagines different deaths. Amanda Foreman costars. In the framing sequences a shrink (Martin Kovel) hears the tales from his patients. Julie Strain plays a stripper in the stupid intro. It's available in unrated and PG-13 versions.

FUTURE WOMAN

(Sinister, 1968) D: Jesús Franco S/P: Harry Alan Towers Spain/W. Germany/USA (La Ciudad Sin Hombres; Rio 70; The Girl from Rio)

Shirley Eaton stars and gets to wear many strange plastic outfits as the evil man-hating Sumuro (or Sumitra) in a sequel to The Million Eyes of Su-Muru (1967). The Spanish detective hero (Richard Wyler) is hired by a rich banker (Walter Rilla) to go to the Amazon and rescue his daughter. With George Sanders torturing Maria Rohm. It was shot in Brazil and Spain, and AIP released a cut version direct to TV in America. Both features were loosely based on Sax Rohmer novels.

FUTURE ZONE

(AIP, 1989) D/S: David A. Prior P: David Winters, Gail Jenson (Future Force II)

Ted Prior is the son of the COPS bounty hunter played by David Carradine in Future Force. He arrives from the future to save his own parents (or something like that). Charles Napier is the police-captain corporate villain. Carradine lives with his (real-life) wife, Gail Jenson, in a small suburban house. He wipes out drug dealers ("You have a right to die"), battles a whole gang with two guns, and puts on his bionic hand when things get really rough. The car wrecks are good, and Carradine seems to be having a good time with the role.

F/X

(HBO, 1986) D: Robert Mandel S: Robert T. Megginson, Gregory Fleeman P: Dodi Fayed, Jack Weiner

There's a conspiracy plot and good New York City action in this movie about a special-effects expert (Bryan Brown) who's hired by the Justice Department to fake the death of a government-witness mobster (Jerry Orbach). Since he works on horror movies, there's Carl Fullerton makeup and I Dismember Mama jokes. Brian Dennehy costars as a cop. With Cliff De Young, Trey Wilson, Tom Noonan, Diane Venora, Angela Bassett, and Mason Adams. The movie did well on tape.

F/X 2: THE DEADLY ART OF ILLUSION

(Orion, 1991) D: Richard Franklin S: Bill Condon P: Dodi Weiner, Jack Weiner

This tamer (PG-13) retread/sequel has more comedy and lots of plot turns. There's a complex conspiracy involving the Vatican, New York City police, psycho killers, and major corporations. Bryan Brown as the FX-expert hero and Brian Dennehy as a cop return. With Rachel Ticotin, Joanna Gleason, Philip Bosco, Kevin J. O'Connor, and James Stacy as a cyborg. There's a robot clown.

GABRIEL OVER THE WHITE HOUSE

(MGM, 1933) D: Gregory La Cava
S: Carey Wilson P: Walter Wanger

Do not miss this amazing political fantasy, released at the height of the Depression. Walter Huston stars as Judson E. Hammond, an uninvolved, uninformed, corrupt, do-nothing bachelor president. After he suffers a near-fatal concussion, a heavenly presence takes over. The divinely inspired leader initiates Roosevelt-type emergency measures to help the American people, declares martial law and vows to have gangsters (including his former cronies) shot by firing squad, collects foreign debts, and gathers world leaders (including Germans and Japanese) to witness a show of force meant to convince them not to start wars. Franchot Tone is the president's secretary, and Karen Morley is his mistress. With Dickie Moore (from the Our Gang comedies), C. Henry Gordon, Mischa Auer, and Akim Tamiroff. Not a typical MGM feature (it was backed by William Randolph Hearst), it was based on a novel.

GABRIELLA

(SW, 1970) D: Mack Bing S/P/A: Jack Mattis P/M: Louis Yule Brown

This peace-and-love movie about "the bullshit this society puts you through" features full nudity, soft-core sex, and lame light rock. First we see how hateful the out-of-it parents of young Gabriella (Gabrielle Caron) are. Then a friendly couple making a sex documentary chose Gabriella and her boyfriend to "be themselves" for the camera. This means sex in a Garden of Eden setting, which is contrasted with scenes of hate, racism, and war. Then the people of the world (or at least the ones on some block in LA) are freed to dance naked and make love in the streets. Also with a slo-mo topless dancer, an onstage sex show, an interview with a gay man (Mattis), and a funk band at Gazzarri's. Producer Brown usually did the music for Jerry Lewis movies!

GALACTIC GIGOLO

(Tempe, 1987) D/P/C: Gorman Bechard
S/A: Carmine Capobianco P: Kris Covello (Club Earth)

Carmine Capobianco is an alien broccoli who arrives in Prospect, Connecticut, disguised as Elvis and uses hypnotic powers to seduce local women. Husbands fight back, and Italian mobsters want him to join the mob. This comedy features naked women. With Debi Thibeault and Ruth Collins.

THE GALAXY INVADER

(VCI, 1985) D/S/E: Don Dohler

An alien with a laser weapon lands on earth and is stalked by a group of rednecks. This PG film was shot on video in Baltimore and stars Richard Ruxton, Don Leifert, George Stover, and Dohler's relatives and neighbors.

GALAXY OF DINOSAURS

(CVH, 1992) D/C: Lance Randas
S: Jon Killough P: J. R. Bookwalter

If you've ever wanted to see James K. Shea's Planet of the Dinosaurs (1978) here's your chance. Bookwalter used all of that film's excellent animated dinosaur footage and shot new stuff as cheaply as possible on video in some woods in Mogadore, Ohio. Five human "aliens" with no costumes or anything materialize and walk around. They try to interact with and react to the older footage, get high from mushrooms, and meet a cave man who says "Ug." The comic fat guy faints, pukes, and eats a dinosaur, the black guy turns out to be gay, and the end rips off Planet of the Apes.

GALLERY OF HORROR = DR. TERROR'S GALLERY OF HORROR

THE GAMBLER AND THE LADY

(1953) D: Patrick Jenkins, Sam Newfield P: Anthony Hinds UK

Dane Clark plays an American gambler who falls in love and tries to reform in England. Kathleen Byron and Naomi Chance costar. Lippert added new scenes to the Hammer film for the US release.

GAMBLING WITH SOULS

(Video Dimensions, 1936) D: Elmer Clifton
S/P: J. D. Kennis

A young blonde marries a hardworking student and turns to prostitution for extra income. There's a cat fight and lots of women in their underwear. Tragedy follows. Scenes from this 68-minute roadshow hit were later used in Teenage (1944).

THE GAME

(TWE, 1982) D: Bill Rebane S: Larry Dreyfus, William Arthur P: Alan Rainier, Barbara Rebane

Bored millionaires bring people to an isolated resort and try to scare them away. Whoever stays gets a million dollars. They start dying, though (shot, hanged, eaten by rats), and we're supposed to figure out who the killer is. Could it be the scarred hunchback? There's a clip from Giant Spider Invasion, which (like this) was made in Wisconsin.

THE GAME

(1988) D: Cole McKay S: Peter Summers P: Tom B. Jenssen

Joseph Campanella stars in another Most Dangerous Game copy. He infiltrates a group of rich killers to avenge the death of his family. With Craig Alan and Tadashi Yamashita.

GAMERA VS. BARUGAN = WAR OF THE MONSTERS

GAMERA VS. GAOS = RETURN OF THE GIANT MONSTERS

GAMERA VS. GIGER = GAMERA VS. MONSTER X

GAMERA VS. GUIRON = ATTACK OF THE MONSTERS

GAMERA VS. VIRAS = DESTROY ALL PLANETS

GAMERA VS. ZIGRA

(1971) D: Noriaki Yuasa S: Fumi Takahashi P: Yoshihiko Manabe Japan (Gamera Tai Shinkai Kaiju Jigara)

In the last of the original seven flying-turtle movies, Zigra, the bad sea monster, has flippers, a beak, and a shark head. Two kids are the stars and there's a female alien and lots of animal tricks at a Sea World park. Gamera returned in Supermonster (1980) which was mostly stock footage. Most of the movies were released directly to TV in the US but later came out (retitled) on video. Gamera the Invincible (1965), the first in the series, was released to US theaters with additional footage featuring Albert Dekker and Brian Donlevy. The Celebrity video version lacks that footage. This was the only time the turtle was the villain. Daiei was purchased by its rival Toho in 1994, and they announced a new Gamera movie.

GANG BUSTERS

(Classic Cliffhangers, 1942)
D: Ray Taylor, Noel Smith S: Morgan Cox, Al Martin, Vic McLeod, George Plympton P: Ford Beebee

Kent Taylor stars in this 13-chapter Universal serial based on a radio program. The evil Professor Mortis (Ralph Morgan) uses a death-simulating drug to make his gang members appear to be zombies. Robert Armstrong and Irene Harvey costar.

GANG JUSTICE

(AIP, 1993) D/S: Richard W. Park S: Simon Blake Hong P: Moshe and Simon Bibyan

Joon B. Kim stars as an Asian immigrant who has to battle racism and has a crippled, alcoholic stepfather (Erik Estrada). Jonathan Gorman is his half-brother.

THE GANGSTER

(Fox, 1947) D: Gordon Wiles S: Daniel Fuchs P: Maurice King, Frank King

Barry Sullivan is a paranoid Brooklyn racketeer. English skating star Belita is his lounge-singer girlfriend. This film noir has a more impressive cast than most Allied Artists productions: Joan Lorring, Sheldon Leonard, Akim Tamiroff, John Ireland, Harry Morgan, Elisha Cook Jr., Leif Erickson, Fifi D'Orsay, Virginia Christine, Jeff Corey, Billy Gray, and in an early role, Shelley Winters. Wiles was a former art director, and this is filmed on painted sets.

GANGSTERS' LAW

(TWE, 1969) D: Siro Marcellini S: Piero Regnoli Italy (Quintero; La Legge dei Gangsters)

Maurice Poli, Susy Anderson, and Klaus Kinski star in a movie about Italian bank robbers.

GANG WARS

(Sun, 1975) D/S: Barry Rosen S/P: Niki Patton P: Steve Madoff (Black Force; Devil's Express)

This black-action/kung-fu/horror movie, made in New York City, has bad sound, bad lighting, and lifeless fight scenes, but it has a Chinese zombie killing people in subway tunnels, so it can't be all bad. War Hawk Tanzania plays See-Fu, a tall, cop-hating martial-arts teacher with an Afro. He takes Rodan, a Hispanic student, with him to Hong Kong. Rodan disturbs an ancient burial site (this is shown in a flashback), and unseen zombies attack a Chinese businessman, causing him to grow Ping-Pong-ball eyes. He takes a boat to Manhattan and mutates at the 135th Street subway station, killing people after luring them into dark passages by yelling, "Please help me! It's dark in here! I'm scared!" Meanwhile black and Chinese street gangs fight each other, coke deals go down, a woman wins a bar fight, and Brother Theodore (!) preaches outside the subway station: "Listen to those rats underground! Rats! Rats! Rats!" After an impossible-to-see slow-motion fight in the subway, we get to see "the demon," a guy in a monster suit and mask.

GANJASAURUS REX

(Rhino, 1987) D: Ursi Reynolds

Rhino rescued this homemade 100-minute comedy with a doll-like dinosaur that craves huge California marijuana plants. It was written by the entire cast and includes drug humor.

THE GARBAGE PAIL KIDS MOVIE

(Paramount, 1987) D/S/P: Rod Amateau S: Melinda Palmer

Topps Chewing Gum produced this PG movie to cash in some more on the success of their bad-taste bubble-gum trading cards. There's a prison for the ugly midget monsters and characters like Valerie Vomit and Foul Phil. Anthony Newley stars as a magician, with MacKenzie Astin, Phil Fondacaro as Greaser Greg, and Leo V. Gordon.

THE GARDEN

(1976) D: Victor Noru S: Yosef Avisar P: Isaac Shani, Yosef Diamant Canada/Israel

An old man (Shai K. Ophir) with an Eden-like garden in Jerusalem thinks mute Melanie Griffith is an angel. She flees from some bikers and helps him stand up to real-estate developers. She's also naked a lot. The director was from the USSR.

THE GARDEN OF EDEN

(SW, 1954) D/S: Max Nosseck S: Nat Tanchuck, Arch W. Johnson P: Walter Bibo

It's historically important that this color nudist-colony film from Excelsior was the first to pass the New York Board of Censors in 1960, five years after being banned. The Supreme Court had ruled that nudity "per se" was not obscene, allowing Garden of Eden to be legally shown and opening the door to other nudist "documentaries." Within a few years there were dozens of them, directed by people like Russ Meyer, Herschell Gordon Lewis, and Doris Wishman. This was the last American movie by the Polish-born director of Dillinger (1945), who settled in Germany in the late 50s. The cast includes character actor R. G. Armstrong (with a mustache and clothes), Mickey Knox, and Jamie O'Hara. It was "endorsed by the American Sunbathers Association."

GAS FOOD LODGING

(Columbia, 1992) D/S: Allison Anders P: Daniel Hassid

Fairuza Balk (from Return to Oz) and Ione Skye are the daughters of a truck-stop waitress (Brooke Adams). They live in a New Mexico trailer park and experience problems with men. Balk spends time watching old Mexican movies. With James Brolin as the absent father, Donovan Leitch (Skye's real-life brother), and Chris Mulkey. The IRS production is based on Don't Look and It Won't Hurt, by Richard Peck. The music is by J. Mascis of Dinosaur Jr. Anders, the red-haired, tattooed director, made Mi Vida Loca/My Crazy Life (1994), about a girl gang, next.

GASLIGHT

(MGM, 1944) D: George Cukor S: John Van Druten, Walter Reisch, John Balderston P: Arthur Hornblow Jr.

This gothic thriller is a remake of a 1940 British film. Both are based on Angel Street, a play by Patrick Hamilton. Ingrid Bergman (who received an Oscar) stars as the wife of crazed jewel-thief Charles Boyer. He does a good job trying to drive her insane, though modern audiences find her naiveté a little hard to take. With Joseph Cotten as a Scotland Yard detective, Dame May Whitty, and 19-year-old Angela Lansbury (making her film debut) as a maid. Lansbury was in The Picture of Dorian Gray, also from MGM, the next year. The negative of the 1940 Gaslight (directed by Thorold Dickinson and starring Diana Wynyard and Anton Walbrook) was destroyed by MGM, but several prints turned up in the 50s. It is sometimes called Angel Street.

GAS PUMP GIRLS

(1978) D: Joel Bender S/P: David A. Davies

A group of sexy girls help Uncle Joe (Huntz Hall, from the Dead End Kids/Bowery Boys) with his gas station after he suffers a heart attack. Joe E. Ross and Mike Mazurki are sent by a corporate-owned gas station to rob them. With Kirsten Baker and Sandy Johnson (from Playboy). Bender later made The Retuning and The Immortalizer.

THE GATE

(Vestron, 1987) D: Tibor Takacs S: Michael Nankin P: John Kemeny Canada

Some kids whose parents are away learn a spell from a booklet that comes with a heavy-metal record. They dig a hole in a suburban backyard, and slimy Gremlins-type trolls emerge. The excellent, surreal stop-motion creatures make this PG-13 movie worth looking for. With Stephen Dorff and Louis Tripp.

GATE II

(Columbia/Tristar, 1989) D: Tibor Takacs S: Michael Nankin P: Andreas Harvey Canada

This senseless, R-rated sequel (filmed in Toronto) stars Louis Tripp (from the original) as a kid who mixes his computer knowledge with an ancient ceremony and conjures up a small, animated "minion." Soon wishes can come true, but the false material goods requested by thick-headed teens turn to shit (literally), and the tough guys turn into monsters. Eventually the hero also becomes a monster in another dimension and dies, but everything is back to normal at the end. With Pamela Segall. It finally got a limited US theatrical release after sitting around for a few years. I, Madman, by the same director, was a lot better.

GATES OF HEAVEN

(RCA, 1978) D/P/E: Errol Morris

Yes, there is a feature-length documentary about a pet cemetery, and it's devastating. The pet owners and the cemetery owners are interviewed. Morris later made The Thin Blue Line.

GATES OF HELL

(Paragon, 1980) D/S/P: Lucio Fulci S: Danny Sacchetti P: Giovanni Masini Italy (Paura nella Citta dei Morti; Frayeurs; City of the Living Dead)

Zombies rise in Dunwich (in "New England"). This has the famous power-drill-through-a-head scene. It's one of the goriest, maggot-filled zombie movies of the period. Christopher George stars as a reporter. Katherine McColl is a psychic. Janet Angren helps to try to close the gates before All Saints' Day, but she's killed and comes back from the dead. John Morghen is Bob, the village idiot.

GATOR BAIT

(Paramount, 1973) D/S/P/M: Beverly Sebastian D/P/C/M: Ferd Sebastian

The late Claudia Jennings stars as Desiree, a Cajun poacher blamed for a murder after her sister (Janit Baldwin) is killed. She hides out in the swamp and kills men with her pump-action shotgun. This violent drive-in hit from Dimension was one of the best to star Jennings, who wears really skimpy clothes. It was filmed in the Thibodaux area of Louisiana. With Clyde Ventura and Bill Thurman. The Sebastians had previously made the sex films I Need (1967), The Love Clinic (1968), and Marital Fulfillment (1970). Beverly is from Atlanta, and Ferd is from Houston.

GATOR BAIT II: CAJUN JUSTICE

(Paramount, 1986) D/S/P: Ferd Sebastian, Beverly Sebastian

In this sequel/remake, a Cajun wedding is disrupted by scummy backwoods villains. The husband (Tray Loren) is killed, and Angelique, the bride (red-haired Jan Mackenzie) is kidnapped and raped. She escapes, which leads to boat chases and revenge. Mackenzie was aka Lucious Lisa when wrestling for G.L.O.W.

The late Claudia Jennings in Gator Bait.

THE GAY DECEIVERS

(VSOM, 1969) D: Bruce Kessler
S: Jerome Wish P: Joe Soloman

Two guys who don't want to be drafted into the army decide to pretend they're gay. They move into an apartment in a gay neighborhood together, and although they continue to see their girlfriends, soon everybody believes that the've come out of the closet. Kevin Coughlin (Maryjane) and Lawrence Casey (The Student Nurses) star in this timely comedy, with Brooke Bundy, Jo Ann Harris, and Jack Starrett as the colonel. The music is by Stu Phillips.

THE GEEK

(Class X, 1981)

Here's an abominable-snowman movie you probably missed. A cultured-sounding narrator tells us about the three couples in a van who plan to camp out. After two (unflattering) hard-core sex scenes, a hairy monster (you can see the sleeves of the suit) arrives and fucks the third (best-looking) woman doggy style. She doesn't seem to mind. He rapes another one, and the men fight. The End. It was shot in Oregon, Washington, and Alberta. There are no credits.

GEEK MAGGOT BINGO

(Penetration, 1983) D/S/P/E: Nick Zedd

Zedd's second feature (after They Eat Scum) takes place entirely on purposely cheap-looking sets (a cardboard phone, drawn-on dungeon walls). There's some kind of comic mad-doctor-and-vampire plot, with some nudity from a woman who acts brain damaged (Brenda Bergman) and simulated sex thrown in. The lighting, editing, acting, and sound are all terrible, but where else could you see Richard Hell as a drunk cowboy, Fangoria editor Bob Martin as a salesman, and Zacherle (seen falling asleep during breaks). With Donna Death. It was shot in 16mm. Ed French created a pretty good two-headed creature.

GEISHA GIRL

(Sinister, 1952) D/S/P: Ray Stahl
D/P: George Breakston

Rocky (William Andrews) and comic nerd Archie are privates on leave in Tokyo. Spies are after Archie because he unknowingly has some pills that are "stronger than the A bomb." Martha Hyer is a stewardess who becomes a spy. There's a con-man/magician called Zorro, Cold War jokes, MPs, a geisha school, and a long floor show. The music is by Albert Glasser. Breakston made The Manster, also with Tetsu Nakamura.

GENERATION

(1985) D: Michael Tuchner
S/P: Gerald Di Pego

Richard Beymer (West Side Story) is Alan Breed, an inventor and father in the year 2000. His brother is a gladiator in a Rollerball-type sport. This unusual failed pilot aired on ABC-TV. With Cristina Raines, Bert Remsen, Kim Myori, and Priscilla Pointer.

THE GENIE

(1957) D: Lance Comfort S: Doreen Montgomery P/A: Douglas Fairbanks Jr. UK

Fairbanks is a genie in one of the 3 stories in this trilogy, with Yvonne Furneaux (The Mummy, 1959) and Martin Milner. This is from the Douglas Fairbanks Presents TV series.

THE GENIUS

(1975) D/S: Damian Damiani S: Fulvio Morsella, Ernesto Gastaldi P: Sergio Leone Italy/France/W. Germany (Un Genio, Due Compari, e un Pollo)

Despite the interesting cast and the fact that Leone produced it, this comic western is not available in America. Terence Hill stars as a prank-playing rogue, with Miou-Miou, Klaus Kinski (in his last western), Patrick McGoohan, and Robert Charebois. It's 126 minutes long and features an Ennio Morricone score.

GENTLEMEN PREFER NATURE GIRLS

(SW, 1963) D/P: Doris Wishman S: Marvin Stanley

In a typical nudist-colony-movie plot, the nonbeliever decides that the nudist life is just right for him (and his business) at the end. In this case the troublemaker owns a real-estate agency and fires Tom, who is a nudist. He doesn't know that Tom is happily married to Ann, also a nudist, who also works for him. Meanwhile we get to see lots of nice, naked ladies at the Sunny Palms Lodge in Homestead, Florida.

GENUINE RISK

(RCA, 1989) D/S: Kurt Voss P: Larry Ratner, Guy Louthan, William Ewart

Peter Berg and Michelle Johnson star in a 40s-style crime story with a love triangle. It's pretty dumb but features Terence Stamp in a rare major role in the 80s. It also has violence, nudity, comedy, and Sid Haig. Voss also made Border Radio. An IRS production.

THE GEORGIA PEACHES

(1980) D: Daniel Haller S: Mick Benderoth, Monte David Stettin P: James Sbardellati, Thomas M. Hammell

Roger Corman was the executive producer of this New World/CBS-TV series pilot. Country singer Tanya Tucker stars as a southerner running a car-repair shop. She and two girlfriends are forced to become government agents. With Dirk Benedict, Terri Nunn, and Sally Kirkland.

GERMANY NINE ZERO

(1991) D/S/E: Jean-Luc Godard P: Nicole Ruelle France (Allemagne Neuf Zero)

After 26 years, Eddie Constantine returns as Lemmy Caution. He's looking for a missing girl, this time in reunified Germany. Only 62 minutes, (in French and German), it's sort of a sequel to Godard's Alphaville. Constantine, an American who died in 1993, had been a star in Europe since the 50s. He played Caution in several films.

GESTAPO'S LAST ORGY

(Video City, 1977) D: Cesare Canevani
S: Antonio Luaarella Italy (Caligula Reincarnated as Hitler; The Last Orgy of the Third Reich)

In a Night Porter–copy exploitation movie, the commandant of a concentration camp returns to the ruins years later and has flashbacks of women set on fire, whipped, and lowered into a vat of acid. Some American video company tried to pass this off as a "Caligula" movie.

THE GETAWAY

(1972) D: Sam Peckinpah S: Walter Hill
P: David Foster, Mitchell Brower

Steve McQueen is Doc McCoy, just out of a Texas prison, and Ali McGraw is his wife, Carol, in a violent (but PG-rated) bank-heist movie based on Jim Thompson's novel. With Al Lettieri and a typical Peckinpah lineup: Ben Johnson, Dub Taylor, Slim Pickens, and Bo Hopkins. Sally Struthers is kidnapped. McQueen was also in the director's less interesting Junior Bonner the same year. It was filmed in San Antonio and other southern Texas locations and released by National General.

THE GETAWAY

(MCA, 1994) D: Roger Donaldson
S: Walter Hill, Amy Jones P: David Foster

Alec Baldwin and Kim Basinger are the safecracking McCoys in this very close remake set in Ari-

GERMANY

It's easy to divide German film production into four periods. Many of the silent epics and expressionist classics that you've heard about are now on tape. Germany at the time led the film world with its horror and fantasy films. Fritz Lang was the top director. Films made after the Nazis took over and production was nationalized are either hateful propaganda or trivial musicals, comedies, and melodramas. Only historians and film scholars watch these today. There was a postwar B-movie boom, and West Germany produced Dr. Mabuse sequels, many adaptations of Edgar Wallace thrillers, some juvenile-delinquent movies, westerns, and horror movies. By the 70s a new wave of serious directors (Herzog, Wenders, Fassbinder) provided most of the country's exports.

zona. Doc is released from a Mexican prison and hired by crimelord James Woods. With Michael Madsen as the former partner, Richard Farnsworth in the Slim Pickens role, Burton Gilliam, and Jennifer Tilly (who is kidnapped). The sharpshooter wife is stronger than in Peckinpah's film, and there's more sex. R, unrated, and widescreen laserdisc versions are available.

GET CHRISTIE LOVE!

(Xenon, 1974) D: William A. Graham
S: George Kirgo P: Peter Nelson

After the success of several Pam Grier movies, ABC-TV made this series pilot, starring Teresa Graves as an LA cop who goes undercover to trap drug dealers. It's worth seeing for Graves, who is sexy, funny, and sarcastic. She wears an Afro and uses martial arts and jive talk when necessary. The gangsters talk about Japan, watch samurai movies, and smuggle heroin in reels of Japanese films. With Harry Guardino as her boss and Louise Sorel. The series, based on a novel by Dorothy Uhnak, lasted for only one season. Graves, who was also in Trouble Man and Black Eye, later became religious and retired from acting. Our loss.

GET CRAZY

(Nelson, 1983) D: Allan Arkush S: Danny Opatoshu, Henry Rosenblum P: Hunt Lowery

The Fillmore East (called the Saturn here) is the setting for this fun, underrated comedy. Lots of things go wrong before and during a big New Year's Eve show. Daniel Stern stars, with Stacy Nelkin, Allen Garfield as the Bill Graham character, and Malcolm McDowell doing a Mick Jagger takeoff. Fabian and Bobby Sherman are comic bad guys. With Ed Begley Jr., Howard Kaylan, Lou Reed (who does a great song at the end), Mary Woronov, Paul Bartel, Fred Willard, Dick Miller, Lee Ving, Clint Howard, Denise Galik, Lori Eastside, and Andy Hernandez. Arkush (Rock 'n' Roll High School) had worked on the light shows at the real Fillmore. He retreated to TV after Get Crazy failed at the box office and to date has directed only one more film, Caddyshack II (1988).

GET SMART AGAIN!

(Worldvision, 1989) D: Gary Nelson
S: Leonard Stern P: Burton Nodella

Don Adams and Barbara Feldon are now married former agents brought out of retirement to stop K.A.O.S. from using a weather machine (shamelessly copied from In Like Flint). With John De Lancie as a double agent, Kenneth Mars, and series semi-regulars Bernie Kopell, Dick Gautier, and King Moody. This pretty dull TV movie is the second reunion feature for the very funny 60s series. The other was The Nude Bomb (1980). A new Get Smart series aired briefly on Fox in 1995.

GETTING EVEN

(Vestron, 1986) D: Dwight H. Little S: M. Phil Senini, Eddy Desmond P: J. Michael Liddle (Hostage: Dallas)

Industrialist Joe Don Baker steals a deadly gas that melts flesh and threatens to kill off the population of Dallas if he doesn't receive $50 million. Edward Albert and Audrey Landers are government agents trying to stop him.There are lots of helicopter stunts in this movie, made in Texas.

GETTING LUCKY

(Raedon, 1990) D/S: Michael Paul Girard
P: Gerald Feiffer, Tony Miller

A leprechaun in a beer bottle grants wishes to a teen. He becomes an inch tall and gets into girls' underwear. Steven Cooke stars.

GETTING OVER

(Unicorn, 1976) D/S: Bernie Rollins
P/A: John R. Daniels

Daniels, star of Black Shampoo and Candy Tangerine Man, produced this one. He takes a job as head of Impossibly Funky Records owned by a big record company run by racist mobsters. His group the Heavenly Sisters (played by the Love Machine) becomes a hit, and he falls for the lead singer.

GETTING STRAIGHT

(RCA, 1970) D/P: Richard Rush
S: Robert Kaufman

Elliott Gould stars as a Nam vet who becomes a graduate student and English instructor. He has affairs with students, becomes involved in demonstrations, and gives up the academic life for the cause. With Candice Bergen, Cecil Kellaway, Max Julien, Jeff Corey, Jeannie Berlin, Brenda Sykes, Gregory Sierra, Billie Bird, and Harrison Ford. Laszlo Kovacs was the cinematographer. The Colgems soundtrack LP featured the New Establishment. This Columbia release, by the director of AIP's Psych-Out and The Savage Seven, was a box-office flop.

GHETTO BLASTER

(Prism, 1989) D: Alan Stewart S: Clay McBride
P: David DeCoteau, John Schouweiler

A young man (Richard Hatch) returns to his violent neighborhood, finds out that his father has been killed, and goes on a one-man vengeance spree using martial arts. With R. G. Armstrong, Richard Jaeckel, and Rose Marie.

GHOST

(Paramount, 1990) D: Jerry Zucker
S: Bruce Joel Rubin P: Lisa Weinstein

Patrick Swayze stars as the ghost of a banker who was shot in Tribeca. He contacts his girlfiend (Demi Moore) through a comic medium (Oscar-winning Whoopi Goldberg). He can punch villains, but he can't touch Demi. Some of the best scenes concern Vincent Schiavelli as a ghost on the subway. With Rick Aviles and Tony Goldwyn. This PG-13 romantic fantasy (with ILM FX) was a theatrical hit and an even bigger, record-breaking video hit. The music by Maurice Jarre is on Varèse Sarabande. The use of the song "Unchained Melody" on the soundtrack started a mini-revival of the Righteous Brothers' music.

Malcolm McDowell as a rock star and Stacy Nelkin in Get Crazy.

THE GHOST AND THE GUEST

(Sinister, 1944) D: William Nigh
S: Morey Amsterdam P: Arthur Alexander, Alfred Stern

James Dunn and Florence Rice are newlyweds from New York City spending their honeymoon in a haunted farmhouse. Gangsters show up looking for hidden diamonds, and there's a hangman ghost. This 59-minute PRC comedy was written by a future costar of The Dick Van Dyke Show.

GHOSTBUSTERS

(Columbia, 1984) D/P: Ivan Reitman S/A: Dan Aykroyd, Harold Ramis C: Laszlo Kovacs

This PG comedy was Columbia's biggest hit up to that time. John Belushi was originally supposed to star. It was copied a lot (especially in Asia) and spawned many products, two rival TV cartoon shows, and a sequel. It's nothing more than a cleverly scripted, big-budget, high-tech version of old comedies like Ghost Catchers (1944), Spook Busters (1946), or Ghost Chasers (1951). The giant marshmallow man threatening New York City is a high point. Bill Murray and writers Dan Aykroyd and Harold Ramis are paranormal investigators using an old fire house as their headquarters. Sigourney Weaver and Rick Moranis become possessed. With Annie Potts, Ernie Hudson as the fourth ghostbuster (with almost nothing to do), William Atherton, Joe Franklin, Kimberly Herrin (from Playboy), and porno star Ron Jeremy in a crowd scene. The FX are by ILM. The score by Elmer Bernstein (Robot Monster) and the hit title song by Ray Parker Jr. are on Arista. Reitman had directed Meatballs (1979) and Stripes (1981), both starring Murray.

GHOSTBUSTERS II

(RCA/Columbia, 1989) D/P: Ivan Reitman S/A: Harold Ramis, Dan Aykroyd

One of the least satisfying sequels in memory is another cute-baby movie (there were lots of them at the time). All the stars repeat their roles, and there are more ILM FX (including the return of the Titanic and moving the Statue of Liberty). Peter MacNicol is irritating while possessed by a 17th-century painting. Cannibal Girls (an earlier Reitman production) is on a marquee. With Christopher Neame, Harris Yulin, Page Leong, and Janet Margolin, Cheech Marin, Chloe Webb, Phoebe Legere, and Brian Doyle Murray in bit parts. The soundtrack is on MCA. Columbia released this PG box-office disappointment.

GHOST CHASE

(Virgin, 1988) D/S: Ronald Emmerich S: Roland Kubisch Germany/US

Roger Corman released this PG film made in Hollywood. It's about a movie mogul who's after some teen filmmakers for the magical trinkets they have. With Jill Whitlow, Jason Lively, and Dana Ashbrook. Corman also released Emmerich's Making Contact.

GHOST DAD

(MCA, 1990) D: Sidney Poitier S: Brent Maddock, S. S. Wilson P: Terry Nelson M: Henry Mancini

In this PG comedy made the same year as Ghost, Bill Cosby plays a widowed father of three, who dies in an accident. He returns as a ghost who can fly and go through objects to help his family. Despite his enormous TV fame, Cosby's movies around this time always flopped. This PG comedy costars Denise Nicholas, Kimberly Russell, Ian Bannen, Barry Corbin, Dana Ashbrook, and Arnold Stang.

GHOST FEVER

(Nelson, 1985) D: "Alan Smithee"/ Lee Madden S/P: Ron Rich S: Oscar Brodny, Richard Egan P: Edward Coe

Sherman Hemsley and Luis Avalos star as comical Georgia cops sent to a haunted house where they meet two female spirits. This 40s-style PG comedy includes ethnic humor and the evil ghost of a slave owner (Pepper Martin). With Myron Healey and Joe Frazier. Hemsley (from the TV series The Jeffersons) also plays the ghost of a slave. The film copies ideas from Lucky Ghost (1941). The director had his name removed after scenes were reshot for a 1987 release.

THE GHOST GOES WILD

(1947) D: George Blair S: Randall Faye

A Manhattan playboy/cartoonist (James Ellison), his fiancée (Anne Gwynne), and his butler (Edward Everett Horton) go to his haunted Connecticut farmhouse and hold a séance. Ellision later pretends to be a ghost, but a real one (Lloyd Corrigan) shows up. There's also a courtroom subplot. This Republic comedy features Ruth Donnelly, Jonathan Hale, and Holmes Herbert.

GHOSTHOUSE

(Imperial, 1988) D: "Humphrey Humbert"/Umberto Lenzi S: Cynthia McGavin, Sheila Goldberg P: Aristide Massaccesi Italy (La Casa; Ghost House)

A psychic little girl kills her parents. Twenty years later teens die in a haunted house. There's death by hatchet, fan, glass, acid, and guillotine, a maggot face, and a killer puppet. Lara Wendel and Greg Scott star. It was filmed in Boston.

A GHOST IN MONTE CARLO

(1990) D: John Hough S: Torence Feely UK

Sarah Miles, Oliver Reed, and Christopher Plummer star in this adaptation of a gothic romance by Barbara Cartland. The cast also includes Samantha Eggar, Fiona Fullerton, Lysette Anthony, and Ron Moody. It debuted in the US on TNT.

GHOST IN THE MACHINE

(Fox, 1993) D: Rachel Talalay S: William Davies, William Osborne P: Paul Schiff

A Cleveland computer-store worker (Ted Marcoux) who is also "the Address-book killer" dies in a car wreck and somehow becomes electricity. He terrorizes a single mom (Karen Allen) and her son (Wil Horneff) by entering computers, phone lines, and household appliances. Chris Mulkey is a computer hacker who tries to help. There's a crematorium nightmare and a room that becomes a microwave, but the FX segments are sparse. It should have been rated PG. With Jessica Walter. Graeme Revell wrote the music. Talalay made Freddy Krueger movies.

GHOST KEEPER

(New World, 1980) D/S: James Makichuk S: Douglas MacLeod Canada

Some people riding snowmobiles go to an abandoned inn. An old lady, her slasher son, and an unseen creature are there.

GHOSTMASTERS

(Cinemacabre, 1991)

Magician Mark Walker presents this high-quality 23-minute compilation of rare spook-show trailers. You get to see Francisco, Raymond ("He sleeps in his own coffin"), Donn Davison, Kara-Kum, Dr. Silkini, and several for Joe Karsten and Philip Morris. One trailer (for Dr. Evil) is in color. Added titles give the real names of the stars. Walker also wrote an excellent book called Ghostmasters.

GHOST OF A CHANCE

(1987) D: Don Taylor S: Hank Bradford P: Sam Strangis

Redd Foxx is a jazz pianist who is accidentally killed by a New York City police detective (Dick Van Dyke) and returns to haunt him and to help his own grandson. With Geoffrey Holder as a heavenly mesenger who gives a tour of Hell and Richard Romanus. This TV movie, which debuted on CBS, copies parts of Here Comes Mr. Jordan (1941).

THE GHOST OF RASHOMON HALL

(Sinister, 1947) D: Denis Kavanagh S: Pat Dixon P: Harold Baim UK (The Night Comes Too Soon)

Some aristocrats try to scare each other with stories. In one, a doctor rids a house of ghosts. This 59-minute film is based on a play. With Valentine Dyall and Anne Howard.

GHOST OF THE CHINA SEA

(1958) D: Fred F. Sears S/A: David Brian S/P: Charles B. Griffith

David Brian, Lynn Bernay, and Jonathan Haze star in this WWII story set in the Philippines. Griffith directed Forbidden Island (1959), also at Columbia.

GHOST PATROL

(Sinister, 1936) D/P: Sam Newfield S: Joseph O'Donnell P: Leslie Simmonds

Tim McCoy is a G-man hero who rides horses and flies a plane, in this science-fiction western released a year after the Phantom Empire serial. Villains kidnap a scientist and his "radium-tube" ray machine, which can blow airplanes out of the sky. With Claudia Dell and Wheeler Oakman. It was from Puritan Pictures and runs less than an hour.

GHOST RIDERS

(Prism, 1987) D: Alan L. Stewart S: Clay McBride, James J. Desmarais

The ghosts of some outlaws hanged in Texas 100 years earlier return. With Bill Shaw and Jim Peters. Not to be confused with Ghost Rider (1935), a Rex Lease western.

GHOSTS CAN'T DO IT

(RCA, 1990) D/S/C: John Derek P/A: Bo Derek

Anthony Quinn plays Scotty, the cantankerous billionaire husband of 5'4" Bo Derek. He's her "great one," "the great Scott." After Scotty has a heart attack, then shoots himself, he constantly shows up as a ghost. The problem is that there's no connection whatsoever between Quinn, reacting, laughing, coaching on a bare set covered by clear plastic bags, and Bo, constantly talking to nobody (and taking her clothes off a lot). A gangster forces Bo to take sleeping pills while she's naked in a pool. She plans to kill Fausto (Leo Damien) so that Scotty can take over his body. Julie Newmar shows up a few times as an angel to talk to Quinn, and Donald Trump, the world's most hated millionaire, plays himself. The dialogue is indescribable. Few people realize that this is the eighth film that former actor John Derek has directed, and only half of them star Bo, who was once a model for Kellogg's Corn Flakes boxes. Derek also directed obscure movies starring Ursula Andress, Linda Evans, and Annette Haven, and he was married to only two of them. This was the third Derek movie for Don Murray, who plays Bo's friend. It was filmed in Sri Lanka, the Maldive Islands, Wyoming, and Hong Kong, and I'm sure everybody involved had a nice time.

THE GHOST SHIP

(Fang, 1943) D: Mark Robson S: Donald Henderson Clarke P: Val Lewton

Crew members on a small boat on the way to Mexico are dying, and the new third officer (Russell Wade) thinks he knows who the killer is. Richard Dix is the soft-spoken captain who's losing his mind, Skelton Knaggs is a deaf-mute who thinks out loud, and Lawrence Tierney is a wise-guy lieutenant who is crushed by a giant anchor chain. Sir Lancelot provides calypso music during a bloody knife fight. This remains one of the hardest to see of Lewton's RKO productions.

GHOST SHIP

(VCI, Sinister, 1951) D/S/P: Vernon Sewell UK

A young Canadian couple (Hazel Court and Dermot Walsh) buy a haunted pleasure boat. A medium is consulted, and flashbacks show why the ghosts are there. The same director used the same plot, based on a French play (but set in a house), in five (!) films. The others are The Medium (1934), The Latin Quarter (1945), Ghosts of Berkeley Square (1947), and House of Mystery (1961). This was released by Lippert in the US.

THE GHOSTS OF HANLEY HOUSE

(Sinister, 1964) D/S: Louise Sherrill P: Joseph Durkin Jr.

Five people play blackjack and drink tall ones while spending the night in a haunted house. They have a séance, then attempt to leave. Hank, the lead, has too much eye makeup (and too many closeups) and a picture of lightning is used! The movie actually pays off, though, with a glowing-orb spirit, axe-murder flashbacks, and decapitated heads. I'm guessing (from the "y'alls") that this was filmed in Texas somewhere just after The Haunting (which it copies), and that the rambling, fuzzy guitar and organ instrumental music was added around 1968. This rare find was never released before the tape but played on Comedy Central's Mystery Science Theater 3000, where the writers told you where to laugh.

GHOSTS... OF THE CIVIL DEAD

(1988) D: John Hillcoat S/A: Nick Cave S: Gene Conkie P: Evan English Australia

This disturbing movie, set in the near future, is about an all-male prison in the middle of a desert where porno videos, gay sex, and drugs are tolerated. The corrupt authorities, who monitor everything, encourage violence, and a rebellion occurs. Many real ex-cons are in the cast. Cave, singer for the Bad Seeds, shows up late as a manic new inmate. The director had previously done rock videos.

GHOST STORY: See MADHOUSE MANSION

GHOST STORIES: GRAVEYARD THRILLER

(Vestron, 1986) D: Lynn Silver

This 60-minute tape is listed so that you won't make a mistake and rent it. An actor on a cemetery set tells a few stories. Nothing is shown.

THE GHOST TALKS

(1929) D: Lewis Seiler S: Frederick Brennan

An heiress (Helen Twelvetrees, who was in The Cat Creeps the next year) and an amateur detective (Charles Eaton) go to a haunted house looking for her late uncle's bonds. Crooks are after the bonds too. Stepin Fetchit is the comic caretaker. This early Twentieth Century–Fox talkie, based on a play, is only an hour long.

GHOSTS THAT STILL WALK

(VCI, 1977) D/P: James T. Flocker

A boy is possessed by an Indian spirit in Death Valley. His grandparents take him to a psychic, and boulders smash their home. This PG movie is from Gold Key.

GHOST TOWN

(Starmaker, 1988) D: Richard Governor S: Duke Sandefur P: Timothy D. Tennant

Franc Luz stars as a modern-day deputy sherriff looking for Catherine Hickland. Devlin (Jimmie F. Skaggs) and his men rule the zombies in a ghost town in a different dimension. With Bruce Glover. It's based on a story by David Schmoeller. One of the last productions from Charles Band's Empire, it was filmed in Old Tucson, Arizona (a movie-set replica). It was cut for an R rating and released by New World.

THE GHOST TRAIN

(Sinister, 1941) D: Walter Forde S: Sidney Gilliat UK

Comedian Arthur Askey stars in a story about gunrunners and a haunted train during WWII. People are trapped in a station and told they'll die if they look at the train. Nazi agents are revealed. It's based on a play filmed as a silent and again in 1931.

THE GHOST WALKS

(Sinister, 1934) D: Frank Strayer S: Charles S. Belden P: Maury M. Cohen

Some people go to an old mansion where an insane woman comunicates with the dead. It turns out to be part of a new play, but somebody is really killed, and a madman is loose in the house. John Miljan stars, with June Collyer, and Johnny Arthur. This hour-long film from Chesterfield was by the director of The Vampire Bat and Condemned to Live.

GHOST WARRIOR

(Vestron, 1986) D: Larry Carroll S: Tim Curnen P: Charles Band (Swordkill)

A frozen, 400-year-old samurai warrior (Hiroshi Fujioka) is found in a Japanese cave. He's brought to life by scientists in LA and fights again.

GHOST WRITER

(Prism, 1989) D/S: Kenneth J. Hall P: David De Coteau, John Schouweiler

Judy Landers is the ghost of a murdered 60s movie star in this PG comedy by the maker of Evil Spawn. She haunts a beach house and convinces a tabloid writer (Audrey Landers) to help reveal the killer. Joey Travolta, David Doyle, and Jeff Conaway costar. Lots of guest stars show up: Anthony Franciosa, John Matuszak, Dick Miller, Pedro Gonzalez-Gonzalez, George "Buck" Flower, the Barbarian Brothers, and Kenneth Tobey and Nels Van Patten as cops. It ends in the Hollywood Wax Museum. It's "presented by" Ruth Landers (the stars' mom) and both sisters sing.

GHOULIES

(Vestron, 1984) D/S: Luca Bercovici S/P: Jeffrey Levy

The same year as Gremlins we got Ghoulies, but we don't actually see much of them. A young guy (Peter Liapis) in the basement of an old mansion conjures up some puppet monsters, two dwarfs, and his Satanist father. Some LA teens die. With Lisa Pelikan, Michael Des Barres, Jack Nance, Mariska Hargitay, Bobbie Bresee, Jason Scott Lee, and the late Tamara De Treaux (who played E.T.) as a satanic midget. The John Carl Buechler FX are mediocre. The ads for this PG-13 movie featured a ghoulie in a toilet. This was the first feature I saw being filmed on a set (I had seen too many being filmed on the streets of Manhattan). It was made at Roger Corman's lumberyard studio in Venice. I thought having been there would make the results more interesting to me, but it didn't work that way.

GHOULIES II

(Vestron, 1988) D/P: Albert Band S: Charlie Dolan, Dennis Paoli

The puppets from Ghoulies return in "Stan's Den," a traveling carnival's spook show. This PG-13 comedy has heavy-metal music. Damon Martin stars, with Royal Dano as Uncle Ned, Kerry Remsen, dwarf Phil Fondacaro, and Starr Andreef.

GHOULIES III: GHOULIES GO TO COLLEGE

(Vestron, 1990) D: John Carl Buechler S: Brent Olson P: Ian Patterson M: Michael Lloyd

Lots of topless or naked girls and a little light bondage are the only memorable special effects in this lame fraternity/horror comedy (rated R). Those puppets come out of a toilet again, there's a Psycho shower scene, and Kevin McCarthy really hams it up as a professor who tries to control the creatures. In-jokes include a copy of the Re/Search Pranks book. With Hope Marie Carlton, Griffin O'Neal, and Marcia Wallace (from The Bob Newhart Show).

GHOULIES IV

(Columbia, 1993) D: Jim Wynorski S: Mack Sevi P: Gary Schoeler

A sexy, blond Satanist killer (Stacie Randall, from Trancers IV) in black leather sacrifices victims in an attempt to please a hooded demon. Peter Liapis returns from the first Ghoulies as a detective and also plays the demon. Barbara Alyn Woods and Bobby Di Ciccio are other cops. Two comic, wise-cracking ghoulies (dwarfs in masks) have nothing to do with the plot but at least are better than the usual puppets. There's an Art Carney/Ed Norton imitator, flashbacks from the first movie, lots of hookers, and talk about sex. It's pretty bad, but the 60s-sound theme music is good. Expect more sequels.

GHOUL SCHOOL

(CVH, 1990) D/S/P: Timothy O'Rawe

Toxic gas released in a high-school boiler room turns members of the swimming team into running blue zombies with fangs. A rock band (the Blood-Sucking Ghouls) and two nerdy horror fans are trapped in an auditorium (like in Demons). There's lots of (amateur) gore, but the best (?) part is Joe Franklin (!) in his office talking on the phone and with Jackie "the Joke Man." There's a buildup for Franklin to become a zombie too, but it never happens. The guy who plays the principal is one of the worst actors in memory. With porno star Savannah. David DeCoteau was the executive producer. It was made in Wayne, New Jersey.

THE GIANT OF THUNDER MOUNTAIN

(1990) D: James Roberson S/A: Richard Kiel S: Tony Lozito P: Joseph Raffill

Real-life giant Kiel (who was also an executive producer) stars as a legendary friendly giant hermit, in this family adventure. In a plot similar in some ways to Eegah! (in which he starred back in 1963), he's discovered by kids, shaves his beard, and comes out of hiding. With Jack Elam as a crooked carny man, Marianne Rogers, William Sanderson, Foster Brooks, George "Buck" Flower, and Bart the Bear.

THE GIANTS OF THESSALY

(Sinister, 1960) D/S: Riccardo Freda S: Giuseppe Masini, Mario Rossetti P: Virgilio De Blasi Italy (I Giganti della Thessalia)

Jason and Orpheus seek the Golden Fleece and encounter a witch who turns men into monsters. Roland Carey stars, with Ziva Rodann and Massimo Girotti.

GIDGET GOES HAWAIIAN

(1961) D: Paul Wendkos S: Ruth Brooks Flippen P: Jerry Bresler

Only James Darren returned from the original Gidget (1959), but red-haired Deborah Walley (later a regular at AIP) makes her debut in the starring role, and Carl Reiner plays her dad. It's a tame romantic comedy, of course, with Michael Callan, Peggy Cass, and Darren singing bad songs like "Wild About the Girl." From Columbia. The same director/producer/ writer team returned with Gidget Goes to Rome (1963), an even lamer entry starring Cindy Carol and James Darren. Then Gidget became a TV series (1965–66) with Sally Field. There were TV movies: Gidget Grows Up (1970), with Karen Valentine; Gidget Gets Married (1972), with Monie Ellis; and Gidget's Summer Vacation (1985), with Caryn Richman. Finally (?) there was The New Gidget (1986–88), a series with Caryn Richman. Jonathan Demme once made a short called Gidget Goes to Hell.

G.I. EXECUTIONER

(1971) D/S: Joel Reed P: Marvin Farkas (Dragon Lady; Wits' End)

Tom Keena stars as a Nam-vet nightclub owner hired by mercenaries in Singapore. With Angelique Pettyjohn as a stripper, Janet Wood, and a Chinese villain. This warped James Bond–type adventure includes lots of drugs, gay stuff, nudity, and gore. It's by the director of Bloodsucking Freaks. Troma released it in 1985.

GILDERSLEEVE'S GHOST

(1944) D: Gordon Douglas S: Robert E. Kent P: Herman Schlom

This was the last of four movies based on The Great Gildersleeve, a once popular, now forgotten 40s radio comedy show. Throckmorton P. Gildersleeve (Harold Peary) is a small-town water commissioner who is helped in a political campaign by two ghosts (both played by Peary), two mad scientists who make a sexy blonde (Marion Martin) invisible, and a gorilla (Charles Gemora). With scared black servants (Nicodemus Stewart as a chauffeur and Lillian Randolph as a maid), Frank Reicher, Jack Norton as a drunk, and many radio actors who were famous at the time. This RKO release film is 63 minutes.

GIMME AN "F"

(1981) D: Paul Justman P: Martin Poll (T&A Academy 2)

This teen movie is about a cheerleading competition. With Jennifer C. Cooke, Daphne Ashbrook, John Karlen, and Beth Miller. By the director of several Cars and J. Geils videos.

Cheri Caffaro stars in Ginger.

GIMME SHELTER

(Abkco, 1970) D: David Maysles, Albert Maysles, Charlotte Zwerin P: Ronald Schneider

This amazing 16mm rock-concert documentary would make a good double bill with Night of the Living Dead. The part before and after a man (Meredith Hunter) in the crowd of 300,000 is killed by Hell's Angels hired to patrol the stage area is devastating. The Rolling Stones do "Under My Thumb" and "Sympathy for the Devil" as the cameras zoom in on horrified, confused, stoned, and sad faces in the audience. Some bikers onstage look as if they'd like to kill the band. The film is effectively speeded up or slowed down slightly during these scenes. The footage is later replayed and discussed. Sonny Barger (on the radio) says, "I am not no peace creep." Somebody says that the people going to the Altamont Speedway for the free concert (in December 1969) are "like lemmings going to the sea." Jefferson Airplane, Ike and Tina Turner, and the Flying Burrito Brothers do only one song each. Marty Balin is knocked out by bikers, and Jerry Garcia says, "Oh, bummer." The Stones, also seen at some Madison Square Garden concerts, do seven songs in all. Another great part is "Love in Vain" with slow-motion visuals. The movie was shot by George Lucas (!), Haskell Wexler, Robert Elfstrom, and others.

GINGER

(Monterey, 1970) D/S: Don Schain P: Ralph T. Desiderio, Anthony J. Desiderio

Cheri Caffaro, a blonde with a serious tan, stars in the first of a drive-in hit series as Ginger McCallister, "the female James Bond." Hired to bust a sex-and-drug ring operating on the New Jersey shore, she has nude and bondage scenes and strangles, shoots, and castrates villains. Caffaro, who won Life magazine's Bardot-lookalike contest as a teen, was married to the director. This was followed by The Abductors and Girls Are for Loving.

THE GIRL

(Starmaker, 1986) D/P: Arne Mattsson S: Ernest Hotch UK

A 14-year-old girl (Clare Powney, who was really 23) seduces a married attorney (Franco Nero). They go to a private island but are followed by a reporter (Frank Brennan). Blackmail, a double-cross, and murder result. With Bernice Stegers and Christopher Lee in a small role. In the US New World released this erotic thriller by a Swedish director.

GIRLFRIEND FROM HELL

(IVE, 1989) D/S/P: Daniel M. Peterson P: Alberto Lensi

If you like low humor, happy endings, and bad rock soundtracks, you might go for this teen comedy. Lezlie Deane, a painfully shy girl (who keeps puking at a party), is possessed by a troublemaking demon from Purgatory (Liane Curtis). All of a sudden she has Elvira-style hair, insults everybody, and keeps talking about how "this is getting so boring." She chugs booze and has sex with guys at a party who dry up and and die afterward. Dana Ashbrook (from Twin Peaks) is a confused-looking "chaser" with a ray gun who tries to get rid of the demon. The girls at the party spend a lot of time punching people in the face. A special-effects highlight is a lobster in a restaurant coming alive. With James Karen in a small role as a slob father, James Daughton, and Christina Veronica. This played some midnight shows after the video release.

GIRLFRIENDS

(Riot, 1994) D/S/P: Wayne Harold D/P: Mark Bosko

Nina Angeloff and Lori Scarlett star as Wanda and Pearl, lesbian serial killers. This comedy was made by the Ravenna, Ohio, creators of the Killer Nerd movies.

THE GIRL FROM S.I.N.

(SW, 1966) D/S/A: C. Davis Smith S: Rick Kuehn

Agent 0069, who uses karate, is first seen stripping and sucking on a man's toes before offing him with an icepick. Dr. Sexus (a fake Oriental) has female servants and big, Tor-like guards in an apartment. A photographer (seen shooting a nude model drinking milk) is drugged and tortured. A blonde named Karen takes some invisibility pills developed by her professor boss (Smith) to spy on Sexus but reappears naked and is tied up. A narrator with a comic voice tells us that this is all happening in Chinatown. There is no dialogue. Smith was the cinematographer for many Doris Wishman moves. This 67-minute b/w film, made in New York City, is a Frank Henenlotter Sexy Shocker release.

THE GIRL FROM TOBACCO ROW

(Ormond, 1966) D/S/P: Ron Ormond
P: June Ormond

The Ormonds made three 60s country movies in Nashville. Country superstar Tex Ritter is the strict Reverend Bolton. His cute daughter, Nadine (Rachel Romen), becomes involved with an escaped con (Earl "Snake" Richards) who isn't a bad guy. Her fiddle-playing hunk-cop boyfriend objects. Gangster "Vic Naro"/Ron Ormond shows up looking for some stolen loot and tortures a guy just they way he did in The Exotic Ones: "Tic, tac, toe. Where'd ya stash the dough?" Most of the cast members sing. The older sister sings "Will the Circle Be Unbroken?" while playing an autoharp, the theme song, "Run, Bit, Run," is pretty great, and there's more (giant-sized) harmonica-playing, including "The Flight of the Bumblebee." It all ends in a big barn fight. Tim Ormond, who plays little brother Tim, later marketed these tapes himself.

THE GIRL-GETTERS

(1964) D: Michael Winner S: Peter Draper
P: Kenneth Shipman UK (The System)

Oliver Reed picks up women by taking their photographs at the beach, Jane Merrow is a model he falls for. With Barbara Ferris, Julia Foster, Harry Andrews, and David Hemmings. The Searchers do the (very good) theme song. AIP released this in the US. Reed was also in two comedies by Winner, The Jokers and I'll Never Forget What's 'is Name.

THE GIRL IN A SWING

(HBO, 1988) D/S: Gordon Hessler
P: Just Betzer, Benni Korzen UK/US

In a supernatural romance, Meg Tilly stars as a mysterious German girl in Denmark who marries a wealthy British antique dealer (Rupert Frazer). She hallucinates and takes her clothes off a lot. The film is based on the novel by Richard Adams and was made in Denmark. The title refers to a rare ceramic sculpture. Originally 2½ hours long, it was cut in England, then cut even more for the US release.

THE GIRL IN BLACK STOCKINGS

(Shock Toons, 1957) D: Howard W. Koch
S: Richard Landon

Obviously David Lynch caught this on late-night TV and planned Twin Peaks the next morning. What a movie! What hateful dialogue! It's set at a Utah resort hotel. The sheriff (John Dehner) announces, "A girl was slaughtered and cut up like a side of beef tonight!" There's an Indian deputy with one arm. Everybody seems to have been involved in some way with the dead girl, and they say she was evil. An outside investigator shows up. The suspects keep changing, and more people are murdered. A man is killed by a lumber machine. The cast of this United Artists release includes Anne Bancroft, Lex Barker, Marie Windsor, and Mamie Van Doren. She also starred in Untamed Youth and Born Reckless, by director Koch, and is fine as the sexy young mistress of a washed-up movie star. Stuart Whitman and Dan "Hoss" Blocker (before Bonanza) have small roles. Ron Randell (from Australia) takes the acting honors as the incredibly bitter, paralyzed rich man who owns the hotel.

GIRL IN HIS POCKET

(Sinister, 1957) D: Pierre Kast S: Franco Roche France (Un Amour de Poche)

Jean Marais stars as a man who shrinks his mistress (Genevieve Page) to doll size. Her nude scenes were the selling point when this was released in the US in 1960. With Jean-Claude Brialy and Agnes Laurent.

THE GIRL IN LOVERS' LANE

(Screen Gems, 1960) D: Charles R. Rondeau
S: Jo Heims P: Robert Roark

A runaway (Lowell Brown) is helped by a guy named Bix (Brett Halsey) after he's robbed by small-town juvenile delinquents. They both get jobs at a diner. A lynch mob forms after a rapist (famous bad guy Jack Elam) causes the death of Joyce Meadows. Ronald Stein provided the jazzy score. This b/w Filmgroup production (by the director of The Devil's Partner) played on a double bill with The Wild Ride (with Jack Nicholson).

THE GIRL IN ROOM 2A

(Prism, 1976) D/S: William Rose
Italy (La Casa della Paura)

Women are trapped and killed in a mansion by an old lady and her demented son. Raf Vallone leads a cult of red-hooded killers. With Rosalba Neri (star of Lady Frankenstein), Brad Harris, Daniela Giordano, and Karin Schubert. There's nudity and torture. The plot makes very little sense.

GIRL ON A CHAIN GANG

(Sinister, 1965) D/S/P: Jerry Gross

Three Freedom Rider college students (a black man, a white man, and a white woman, Julie Ange) are arrested by redneck cops. The men are killed. She's raped and put on an all-black, all-male chain gang. This b/w exploitation feature was made just a year after civil-rights workers were killed in Mississippi. There's no nudity but plenty of uneasy violence. Gross directed Teenage Mother next, then concentrated on distribution.

GIRLS ARE FOR LOVING

(Fries, 1973) D/S: Don Schain P: Ralph P. Desiderio

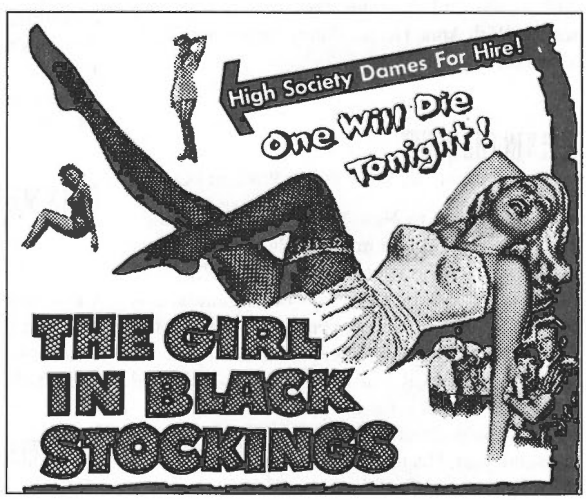
Cheri Caffaro returns in the third (and most outrageous) movie about Ginger McCallister, a martial-arts-fighting spy. There are several nude scenes. Men are castrated by a piano wire and shot in the balls. With Timothy Brown (from the Dynamite Brothers) as her partner/lover and Jocelyn Peters as the villainess with a group of muscular black henchmen. It was filmed in the Virgin Islands.



GIRLS COME TOO!

(SW, 1968) D: Larry Wolk P: Irving Klaw (How I Became a Nudist)

Maria Stinger, a (real) model with a platinum wig, stars and narrates. She starts by showing her scrapbook ("My picture has appeared in Tab, Eye, Frolic, Vue") and plugging her book. The owner of a horse ranch (where she and her model friends ride topless) takes her to Eden Sunland Paradise. Endless pro-nudity talk fades into the background as we see naked women playing volleyball, jumping rope, swimming, etc. Unlike most nudist movies, everybody is completely exposed in some scenes, including the men. Some of the men like to show off by doing back flips. Other memorable moments are two naked women on a motorcycle, naked men smoking (the healthy life!), and a fashion show where the women wear only fur coats! A clothed guard protects the furs, and a local furrier is credited at the end (so is a wigmaker). The more revealing footage was added to Nature's Sweethearts, a 1963 film made by Irving Klaw of Betty Page fame. Photographer Bunny Yeager was the technical coordinator and Joseph P. Mawra was an editor.

GIRLS IN CHAINS

(Sinister, 1943) D: Edgar G. Ulmer S: Albert Reich P: Peter Van Duinen

A new counselor at a girls' reformatory (Arline Judge) tries to bring reforms despite the corrupt superintendent and head matron. The plot involves kidnapping and murder. Ulmer had been directing Yiddish and all-black features since making The Black Cat (1934). This was the first of 11 films he made at PRC in four years (including Bluebeard and Detour).

GIRLS IN PRISON

(1994) D: John McNaughton S: Samuel Fuller, Christa Lang Fuller P: Lou Arkoff, Debra Hill

The director of Henry and the director of Shock Corridor collaborated on this Showtime Rebel Highway movie and nobody even seemed to notice. Missy Crider is framed for murder and sent to a prison where Ione Skye is a lesbian convict. It's a remake (in name only) of Edward Cahn's 1956 AIP movie and includes the expected shower scenes. With Anne Heche, Bahni Turpin, and Nicolette Scorsese.

GIRLS IN THE NIGHT

(1953) D: Jack Arnold S: Ray Buffam P: Albert J. Cohen

A family moves to New York's Lower East Side and their teen kids get into trouble. The son (Harvey Lembeck, who later played Eric von Zipper in beach movies) robs a (phony) blind man who is later found dead. Patricia Hardy is his sister, and Glenda Farrell and Anthony Ross are their parents. With Joyce Holden and Don Gordon. Universal promoted this as a follow-up to City Across the River. Arnold directed It Came from Outer Space the same year. His major juvenile-delinquent film was High School Confidential (1958).

GIRLS' NIGHT OUT

(HBO, 1982) D: Robert Deubel S/P: Andrew N. Gurvis S: Gil Spencer Jr., Joe Bolster, Kevin Kurgi (The Scaremaker)

A psycho-killer basketball-team mascot in a bear costume (!) knifes sorority girls on the Ohio State University campus at Columbus. With Rutanya Alda, Julie Montgomery, Hal Holbrook as a security guard trying to solve the murders, and his son David Holbrook as a suspect. Oldies are used on the soundtrack.

GIRLS OF THE BIG HOUSE

(1945) D: George Archainbaud S: Houston Branch

Lynne Roberts is an innocent girl who goes to prison, escapes, and finally clears her name in this Republic release. Virginia Christine and Adele Martin costar. There are several musical numbers (performed in a nightclub and in the prison rec room).

GIRLS ON PROBATION

(1938) D: William McGann, Harry Seymour S: Crane Wilbur P: Bryan Foy

This 63-minute Warner Brothers B movie costars Ronald Reagan as an assistant DA (he was in eight Warner films in 1938). Jane Bryan, a young ex-con on parole, goes to work for him, and they fall in love. She was framed for the theft of a dress from the dry-cleaning shop she worked at, and now the girl who got her into trouble shows up with a blackmail scheme. With Susan Hayward (in her fifth feature), and Sig Rumann. It was rereleased in 1956 to cash in on the then-famous Hayward, even though she had only a small role. Reagan's film career was nearly over by then.

GIRLS ON THE ROAD

(Unicorn, 1972) D: Thomas J. Schmidt S: Larry Bischof, Michel Levesque, Gloria Goldsmith

This obscure film from executive producer Joe Soloman opens with the credits on signs (and on the towel being used by Uschi Digart). Future Twin Peaks sheriff Michael Ontkean stars as a manic-depressive Nam vet who suffers from (way too many) b/w war flashbacks. Still other flashbacks are in blurred color. Two nice, rich, straight virgin girls take a vacation in Monterey "to be free," encounter Ontkean, and come to the conclusion that he's a psycho killer. Ralph Waite (from The Waltons) runs a seaside hippie village where his followers are being murdered. It's pretty tame for a Fanfare movie but good for some dated laughs.

GIRLS' SCHOOL SCREAMERS

(Vestron, 1984) D/S/P: John P. Finegan P: Pierce J. Keating, James W. Finegan Jr. (The Portrait)

Catholic-school girls hold a séance in a haunted house in Philadelphia. There are flashbacks and a ghost. Mollie O'Mara stars. Troma released it because nobody else would.

THE GIRLS THAT DO

(SW, 1967) D/S/P: Sidney Knight (Some Girls Do)

Ruth (Joanne Fair) arrives in NYC for the first time, walks around a lot, then moves in with two women who tell her, "The Village is a groovy place. You'll have a ball!" Gigi, a topless waitress, narrates her flashback, and Sylvia, a divorcée, narrates hers (about how her husband got her involved with whips). Ruth is conned out of her clothes on her first modeling job. After being tricked and abused by men, the angry women decide to teach one a lesson, so they drug his drink, tie him up, and make him watch them play strip poker. This b/w movie features a lesbian scene, sex with underwear still on, and bad acting, all backed by free-form San Francisco–style rock instumental music by The Lusty Four.

GIRLS TOWN

(1942) D: Victor Hugo Halperin S: Gene Kerr, Victor McLeod P: Lou Brock, Jack Schwartz

A beauty-contest winner (June Storey) and her ugly-duckling sister (Edith Fellows) go to Hollywood to become actresses. They find trouble. With Anna Q. Nilsson, Warren Hymer, and Paul Dubov. This PRC release was the last film by the director of White Zombie.

THE GIRL, THE BODY, AND THE PILL

(SW, 1967) D/P: Herschell Gordon Lewis S: Allison Louise Down (The Body and the Pill)

After a silly theme song with a baby crying and an intro by Mr. Price (a high-school principal who speaks directly to the camera), this becomes a soap-opera-style look at the problems Miss Barrington (Pamela Rhea), a well-meaning blonde teacher (with a red convertible), faces trying to inform her students about contraception. Her classes are cancelled, she's suspended, and she's attacked by a student. A tough "bad girl" replaces her mother's birth-control pills with saccharine pills, which results in an illegal abortion. Most of the students look as if they're over 30. With Taste of Blood star Bill Rogers and Ray Sager. A garage band called the Fly-by-Nights plays at a party. Mr. Price returns for two more serious talks. Rhea is a better actress than in most Lewis films, and this isn't really bad, just much tamer than you'd expect, even though it received an R rating.

THE GIRL, THE GOLD WATCH, AND DYNAMITE

(1981) D: Hy Averback S: George Zateslo P: John Cutts

This syndicated TV movie, a sequel to The Girl, the Gold Watch, and Everything, stars Lee Purcell and Philip MacHale. Zohra Lampert returns, and the cast includes Jack Elam, Gary Lockwood, Jerry Mathers, Richie Havens, Lyle Alzado, Tom Poston, Gene Barry, Morgan Fairchild, Larry Linville, and Carol Lawrence.

THE GIRL, THE GOLD WATCH, AND EVERYTHING

(1980) D: William Wiard S: George Zateslo P: Myrl A. Schreiberman

Robert Hays and Pam Dawber star in this syndicated TV movie about a magic watch that can stop time, with Zohra Lampert, Ed Nelson, Maurice Evans, MacDonald Carey, and Jill Ireland. It's based on a fantasy by John D. MacDonald.

THE GIRL WHO KNEW TOO MUCH

(1969) D: Francis D. Lyon S: Charles A. Wallace P: Earle Lyon

Adam West (in his first post-Batman role) stars as Johnny Cain, a retired CIA agent. This R-rated spy movie costars Nancy Kwan as his ex-mistress, now working for a gangster, with Robert Alda, Nehemiah Persoff, Buddy Greco, and bad Communist characters. Lyon also directed jaw-droppers like Castle of Evil, Cyborg 2087 (which The Terminator ripped off), and Destination Inner Space.

GIRL WITH AN ITCH

(SW, 1957) D/P: Ronnie Ashcroft S: E. Shaylor Heats, Jay M. Kude P/A: Peter Perry Jr.

A sexy, gold-digging blonde (Kathy Marlow) in a very low-cut dress and high heels shows up with an empty suitcase for some "fruit trampin'" work and immediately comes between the orchard's owner (Robert Armstrong) and his son, Orey (Robert Clarke). The theme song is about "that devil Mari Lou." There's a roll in the hay, a cat fight in water, frequent harmonica solos, and an earthquake. This enjoyable Howco production is one of three Ashcroft movies Clarke starred in (The Astounding She Monster is the best known). The Roadshow Rarities video is an excellent print.

THE GIRL WITH HUNGRY EYES

(SW, 1966) D/S/P/A/E: William Rotsler

Kitty (Vicky Dee), a girl with pigtails, is in the woods with her abusive boyfriend. Tiger Cat (Cathy Crowfoot) shows up and kills him with a rock. Kitty moves in with the jealous Hollywood lesbian but thinks, "She doesn't own me." There are flashbacks, cat fights, a whipping, Kitty's shower, and Pat Barrington dancing and stripping to rock instrumentals. The dubbed-in sound is bad, and there's too much "blurovision" for the sex scenes. It's from Boxoffice International.

GIVE MY REGARDS TO BROAD STREET

(Fox, 1984) D: Peter Webb S/A/M: Paul McCartney P: Andros Epaminondas

Paul McCartney stars in this story about the search for the missing master tapes of his new album videos. There are lots of musical segments. The cast includes Bryan Brown, Linda McCartney, Ringo Starr (as himself), his wife, Barbara Bach (they were better in Caveman), Tracey Ullman, and Ralph Richardson (in one of his last appearances). This PG ego trip didn't do too well at the box office.

THE GLADIATOR

(Starmaker, 1986) D: Abel Ferrara S/P: Bill Bleich P: Robert Lovenheim

Ken Wahl stars as a California vigilante with a souped-up tow truck who goes after reckless and drunk drivers after his brother is killed in a hit-and-run accident. With Nancy Allen as a talk-radio host, Robert Culp, Rosemary Forsyth, Rick Dees, and Linda Thorson. This New World production (by the director of Driller Killer and Ms. 45) was a failed ABC-TV pilot.

GLADIATOR

(Columbia, 1992) D: Rowdy Herrington S: Lyle Kessler, Robert Kamen P: Frank Price

James Marshall and Cuba Gooding Jr. star as young boxers and friends. Marshall resorts to illegal boxing matches in a warehouse stadium to pay off his father's gambling debts. This movie has lots of fights. With Brian Dennehy as a bad-guy promoter, Robert Loggia, Ossie Davis, and John Heard (who had his name removed from the theatrical credits).

GLADIATOR OF ROME

(Sinister, 1962) D: Mario Costa S: Gian Paolo Callegari P: Giorgio Agliani Italy (Il Gladiatore di Roma)

Former Tarzan Gordon Scott was in at least a dozen Italian movies. This time he's Marcus, a gladiator who saves some Christian slaves. With Wandisa Guida as a slave who's really a princess and Roberto Risso.

THE GLADIATORS

(Media, 1969) D: Peter Watkins S: Nicholas Gosling P: Goran Lindgren Sweden (Gladiatorerna)

In the future (1994) soldiers from various countries compete in a televised "Peace Game." This semi-documentary science-fiction movie was released by New Line (it opened in Yellow Springs, Ohio). It was the first film by British director Watkins after his excellent movie about a rock star in a fascist state, Privilege.

THE GLASS SHIELD

(Buena Vista, 1994) D/S: Charles Burnett P: Tom Byrnes, Carolyn Schroder

Michael Boatman stars as the first black cop in a bad section of LA, in this film about racism and police corruption. Lori Petty is the only female cop there. Ice Cube is arrested for the murder of Elliott Gould's wife. With Michael Ironside, Richard Anderson, M. Emmet Walsh, Bernie Casey, and Sy Richardson. It's by the director of To Sleep with Anger.

THE GLASS SPHINX

(1967) D: Luigi Scattini S: Adalberto Bolzoni P: Fulvio Lucisano Italy/Spain/Egypt (La Sfinge di Cristallo)

AIP released this Egyptian-tomb movie starring Robert Taylor and Anita Ekberg. People kill each other over a life-sustaining elixir. With Giacomo Rossi-Stuart (Jack Stuart). The US version, released by AIP, has music by Les Baxter. Ekberg was in Fangs of the Living Dead the same year.

THE GLASS TOMB

(1955) D: Montgomery Tully S: Richard Landau P: Anthony Hinds UK (The Glass Cage)

Eric Pohlmann has the key to solving a murder, but he's been "buried alive" for a carnival publicity stunt. John Ireland and Honor Blackman star, with Sidney James, Geoffrey Keene, and Ferdy Mayne. Lippert released this 59-minute Hammer mystery in the US.

GLEAMING THE CUBE

(Vestron, 1988) D: Graeme Clifford S: Michael Tolkin P: Lawrence Turman, David Foster

Christian Slater and Steven Bauer star in this PG-13 skateboard movie with a subplot about Vietnamese mobsters and the death of an adopted Vietnamese boy. With Richard Herd, Ed Lauter, Jack Riley, and a lot of Vietnamese kids. Tolkin made The Rapture and wrote the novel The Player. Clifford directed several Faerie Tale Theatre episodes.

GLITCH!

(Academy, 1988) D/S/P: Nico Mastorakis

Dick Gautier is planning a low-budget movie called Sex and Violence. Two comic burglars, posing as the producer and director, check out the auditioning bathing beauties (including Teri Weigel, Laura Albert, and Debra Lamb). With Julia Nickson and Ted Lange.

GLITTER GODDESS OF SUNSET STRIP

(1991) D: Dick Campbell S/P/A: Llana Lloyd

This fascinating, mind-numbing, feature-length video deserves a cult following. In real life, Lloyd, a California blonde who worked as a model and a reporter, grew up with a proud lesbian mother who drove in demolition derbies (!) and a schizo father. She later hit the TV-talk-show circuit (sometimes with her mom) to talk about her life. This video has all of her TV appearances (including Oprah and Phil Donahue) and actual color home movies, plus recent reenactments of events in her life. Lloyd plays herself at various ages and her own mother! Lloyd's daughter plays her as a little girl. The video looks at the lesbian underworld of the 50s with compassion, passes through the drugged-out 60s, then tries to recreate the glam-rock 70s in Hollywood. Angela Bowie appears as herself, and some guy lamely pretends to be Alice Cooper ("my mentor"). Various Ed Wood Jr. and Larry Buchanan movies came to my mind while watching this flawed but sincere tape.

THE GLOVE

(Media, 1978) D: Ross Hagen S/P: Julian Roffman S: Hubert Smith (Blood Mad; The Glove: Lethal Terminator)

Rosey Grier is an escaped convict who kills with a custom-built steel glove that was attached to his hand by his jailers. He can smash people (or solid metal) with ease but isn't really a bad guy. He wants to help a tenement-rebuilding project (and he plays the guitar and sings!). John Saxon is an ex-cop bounty hunter who's after him. The all-star cast of this bad but strangely entertaining and ahead-of-its-time science fiction/action movie includes Joanna Cassidy, Jack Carter, Keenan Wynn, Joan Blondell, Aldo Ray, Nicholas Worth, and Michael Pataki. Roffman directed the classic Canadian 3-D movie The Mask. Hagen, an actor, had produced films in the Philippines and became a Fred Olen Ray regular in the 80s. This is the last film with Grier (he campaigned for Pat Robertson in 1987).

G-MEN NEVER FORGET

(Republic, 1947) D: Fred Brannon, Yakima Canutt
S: Franklin Adreon, Basil Dickey, Jesse Duffy

Future Lone Ranger star Clayton Moore is the government-man hero of this 12-chapter Republic serial. Roy Barcroft is the villain, Murkland, and the plot concerns turning people into exact duplicates with plastic surgery. With Drew Allen, Ramsay Ames, and the usual expert stuntmen.

G-MEN VS. THE BLACK DRAGON

(Republic, 1942) D/S: William Witney S: Ronald Davidson, Joseph O'Donnell, Joseph Poland

Rod Cameron is an American agent named Rex, Constance Worth is a British agent named Vivian, and Roland Got is Chang of the Chinese Secret Service. The trio of Allied heroes in this 15-chapter Republic wartime serial battle the Japanese Black Dragon Society, led by Haruchi (played by Nino Pipitone!), which smuggles enemy agents into the US disguised as mummies. Some chapter titles are "The Yellow Peril," "Beast of Tokyo," and "Democracy in Action." C. Montague Shaw is a professor. There are robot planes that sink ships, a torture chamber, death by buzz saw, exploding paint, a raven with a poison beak, and lots of exploding miniatures. The 1943 feature version is Black Dragon of Manzanar.

THE GNOME-MOBILE

(1967) D: Robert Stevenson
S: Ellis Kadison P: James Algar

Walter Brennan and D. J. Mulrooney are gnomes in a redwood forest who are helped by the niece and nephew of a lumber baron (also played by Brennan), in a movie similar to the earlier Darby O'Gill and the Little People (by the same director). With Matthew Garber and Karen Dotrice (the kids in Mary Poppins), Ed Wynn (also from Mary Poppins, in his last film role), and Richard Deacon. This live-action fantasy was completed just after Walt Disney's death. It's based on a children's story written decades earlier by the radical author Upton Sinclair.

A GNOME NAMED GNORM

(Polygram, 1988) D/FX: Stan Winston
S/P: Pen Densham S: John Watson
P: Robert Q. Cort, Scott Kroopf (Upworld)

If you liked Ratboy you might go for this slight, PG-rated story about a hairy gnome from under the Earth who witnesses a killing. Ugly, depressed Gnorm likes big breasts and hits bad guys in the crotch. Anthony Michael Hall stars as a young cop, with Claudia Christian as his partner, Jerry Orbach as their corrupt boss, and Robert Z'Dar. A Vestron production, it was finally released in the US in 1994.

John Saxon in The Glove.

GO ASK ALICE

(1973) D: John Korty S: Ellen M. Violet
P: Gerald I. Isenberg

Teenage Alice (Jamie Smith-Jackson) freaks out from LSD on ABC. William Shatner and Ruth Roman (who were in the exploitation classic Wanna Ride, Little Girl?/Impulse around the same time) star in this favorite of fans of 70s TV movies. It features Julie Adams, Andy Griffith, Robert Carradine, Mackenzie Phillips, Charles Martin Smith, and characters identified only as pushers and sadists. From the published diary of an anonymous addict who OD'd.

GODDESS OF LOVE

(1988) D: Jim Drake S/P: Don Segall P: Phil Margo

Vanna White, for those of you who have forgotten, became a celebrity by turning letters on Wheel of Fortune. She had been in early-80s movies like Graduation Day, Looker, and Gypsy Angels. She stars in this fantasy TV movie as Venus. David Naughton falls for her. The cast includes John Rhys-Davies as Zeus, Amanda Bearse, Betsy Palmer (from Friday the 13th), Sid Haig, and Little Richard. Watch for it.

GOD FORGIVES, I DON'T

(VSOM, 1967) D/S: Giuseppe Colizzi
S: Gumersindo Mollo P: Enzo D'Ambrosio
Italy/Spain (Dio Perdona, Io No)

This is the first western starring the once very popular team of blond Terence Hill (real name Mario Girotti) and big Bud Spencer (real name Carlo Pederzoli). They play a gunfighter and an insurance detective after money from a train robbery. Frank Wolff is gang leader Bill San Antonio. AIP released it in the US.

GOD'S BLOODY ACRE

(TWE, 1975) D: Harry Kerwin S/P/A: Wayne Crawford S/P: Andrew Lane

Three hillbillies living in a lean-to in the forest attack a bulldozer (with rocks) and somehow manage to cut the driver in half. Then they go on a killing spree, attacking two vacationing couples. Thomas Wood is Monroe, the father figure ("This time we ain't leavin'."). Billy has puffed-out hair, and Ezra is the dumbest of the brain-dead group. From a distance they look like the rock group Cream! They beat, rape, and hang other characters. Wayne Crawford is an anti-violence dropout from an office job who heads out on the road on a motorcycle. Crawford (Barracuda, Crime Lords) is one of my favorite bad actors. In most movies he looks like he's in extreme pain while trying to do a Robert De Niro impersonation. This exploitation anti-classic has many flashbacks, false scares, violence, some gore, some "ramblin'" folk music, bad black dudes in a Cadillac, and some clever editing. One flashback is triggered by a Busch can.

GOD'S GUN

(Warner, 1975) D/S: "Frank Kramer"/ Gianfranco Parolini P: Menahem Golan
Italy/Israel (A Bullet from God)

Lee Van Cleef plays both a retired gunfighter and his preacher twin in this western, shot in Israel. Jack Palance costars as a gang leader, with Leif Garrett, Richard Boone, Sybil Danning, Dody Palance, and Cody Palance. Produced by Golan/Globus, it was cut in the US. The next year Van Cleef and Garrett returned in Kid Vengeance for Cannon.

GOD'S LITTLE ACRE

(UAV, 1958) D: Anthony Mann
S: Philip Yordan P: Sidney Harmon

This film about Depression-era southern white trash is based on Erskine Caldwell's controversial, best-selling novel. Robert Ryan stars as Ty Ty Walden, a man of God searching for gold on his land. His sons are Jack Lord and Vic Morrow. With Aldo Ray as his son-in law, Tina Louise (in her film debut) as Griselda, Buddy Hackett as the sheriff, Fay Spain as Darlin' Lil, Gloria Talbott, Rex Ingram, and Michael Landon as an albino. The cast is one to ponder, and the movie itself is an excellent mixture of sex, violence, and humor. In the late 60s this still played drive-ins, billed with Little Mother.

GODZILLA

(Zontarian, 1954) D/S: Inoshiro Honda
S: Takeo Murata P: Tomoyuki Tanaka (Gojira)

You've all probably seen the recut and dubbed Americanized version, but this is the real thing (from Toho), running the full 98 minutes and subtitled for the first time. Horacio Higuchi translated the dialogue and the complete credits, and Jan Arthur Johnson (from Zontar magazine!) created the easy-to-read subtitles. It's a better movie (without Raymond Burr), and the subtitles and restored footage drive home the point that this is a scary, somber postwar movie about the H bomb. It was made less than nine years after Hiroshima and Nagasaki were bombed and Japan surrendered. It's easy to see the giant, unstoppable radioactive monster ("illegitimate child of the bomb") as a symbol of the bomb (or even America). Dr. Seri-zaw (Akira Takarada) gets more screen time. He's a brilliant, tragic war hero (with an eye patch) whose true love (Momoko Kochi), a survivor of the Nagasaki bomb, loves another. The ending is a plea to stop nuclear testing.

GODZILLA 1985

(Starmaker, 1984) D: Kohji Hashimoto, R. J. Kizer S: Hidekazu Nagahara Japan

This was the first Godzilla movie in ten years, so it was some kind of event. In the US the people at New World added footage of Raymond Burr just as Warner Brothers had done with the first Godzilla, back in 1956! They also added some really bad humor (Tony Randall was the script doctor) with the dubbing and pretty much wrecked it. The Cold War plot has Godzilla destroying a Soviet submarine and almost triggering a nuclear holocaust. Tokyo is nearly destroyed again. With Keiju Kobayashi, Ken Tanaka, and Yasuka Sawaguchi. There are clips from the original film. The Burr-less Japanese original from Toho runs 20 minutes longer. The US theatrical release was a flop, and this was the last Godzilla movie (to date) to play American theaters.

GODZILLA RAIDS AGAIN = GIGANTIS, THE FIRE MONSTER

GODZILLA VS. BIOLANTE

(HBO, 1990) D/S: Kazuki Omori P: Tomoyuki Tanaka Japan (Gojira Tai Biolante)

The second of Toho's "new" Godzilla movies looks better than most and has some great, almost poetic scenes. This time scientists create a giant, scary-looking plant monster (using Godzilla's cells) that mutates, grows, sprouts vines (each has a mouth with sharp teeth), and spews green acid. The two monsters go to Osaka, but some of the most impressive scenes are not of mass destruction. The human characters are a scientist and his daughter (Megumi Odaka), a girl with ESP who can communicate with Godzilla and evil Arabs. The effective soundtrack uses the original theme and a "disco" version. There's a Godzilla-memorial cocktail lounge. The great-looking tape is letterboxed and dubbed. Godzilla returned to battle old foes (Ghidrah, Mechagodzilla, and Mothra) in the next three movies, which have not been officially released in the US.

GODZILLA VS. GIGAN = GODZILLA ON MONSTER ISLAND

GODZILLA VS. KING GHIDRAH

(VSOM, 1991) D/S: Kazuki Omori P: Tomoyuki Tanaka (Gojira Tai Hingu Gidora)

Years after Godzilla became a comical defender of Japan (and little kids) the original concept creature is back. Kazuki Omori has rewritten the character with a fascinating, confusing, and political new creation story that starts in 2204 and goes back to 1992, 1954, and 1944! During the war a "normal" dinosaur scares away invading Americans in the South Pacific, saving Japanese soldiers. In 1954 an H-bomb test turns the dino into Godzilla. In 1992 a new Godzilla wins a big battle with the three-headed Ghidrah, so aliens from the future create Mechaghidrah. They want Godzilla destroyed to stop a future when Japan will buy all other nations (!). One character says, "History has no room for sentimentality." There's also a superfast human-size American (?) robot and more unlikely plot twists. The stirring original Godzilla theme music is used, and the battle scenes are the best in many years. This movie made the US news for being "anti-American." Copies with English subtitles are around. A "making of" film was also released.

Godzilla 1985

GODZILLA VS. MECHAGODZILLA

(VSOM, 1994) D: Takao Okawara S: Wataru Mimura

The fifth in the revived series was released in Japan as a 40th-anniversary film. It features lots of battles, including Rodan vs. Godzilla in the Bering Strait. A cute baby Godzilla hatches, and big Godzilla wants it back. The UN Godzilla Countermeasure Center creates and sends a flying Mechagodzilla. Megumi Odaka returns once again as a psychic. This was followed by Godzilla vs. Space Godzilla.

GODZILLA VS. MONSTER ZERO = MONSTER ZERO

GODZILLA VS. MOTHRA = GODZILLA VS. THE THING

GODZILLA VS. QUEEN MOTHRA

(VSOM, 1992) D: Takao Okawara S: Kazuki Omori

This has the same basic plot as Godzilla vs. the Thing (1962) and was a big hit for Toho in Japan. The twins from Infant Island (now called the Cosmos) sing a Mothra song, and Godzilla battles Mothra and the winged Battra in Tokyo at the end. The stars are Kobayashi Satomi and Bessho Tetsuya. Megumi Odaka returns as the psychic from the previous two Godzilla films. I liked the original and the recent Biolante and Ghidrah movies a lot better. This is subtitled.

GO! GO! GO! WORLD

(Video Yesteryear, 1964) D: Renato Marvi D/S/P: "Marco Vicario"/Antonio Marghereti Italy (Il Pelo nel Mondo)

"We didn't make the world. We only photographed it!" Marghereti, using another pseudonym, co-directed this Mondo movie in between Barbara Steele and Christopher Lee movies. It features Bowery bums, female mud-wrestling in Germany, judo, dog-eating, Italian hookers, New Guinea child brides, Cannes bikini fashions, chastity-belt stores, strippers, snake charmers, bitchy narration, and laughable sound effects. The soundtrack was on Musicor.

GOIN' COCOANUTS

(1978) D: Howard Morris S: Raymond Harvey P: John Cutts

Donny and Marie Osmond star in their first (and last) movie. Bad guys are after Marie's necklace in Hawaii. Get the supporting cast: Ted Cassidy (in his last role), Harold "Oddjob" Sakata, Marc Lawrence, Kenneth Mars, and Herb Edelman. When it was released, the singing Mormons still had their own TV show, but their hit-making days were over. Little Jimmy Osmond starred in The Great Brain, based on John D. Fitzgeralds books, the same year. Both were backed by the Osmond family.

GOING BERSERK

(MCA, 1983) D/S: David Steinberg S: Dana Olson P: Claude Heroux Canada

In this SCTV spinoff, limousine driver and rock drummer John Candy is kidnapped by a religious sect and brainwashed to kill his future father-in-law, a congressman. It's not very funny. With Joe Flaherty, Eugene Levy, Pat Hingle, Paul Dooley, Richard Libertini, Ernie Hudson, and Dixie Carter. Strange Brew was the other SCTV feature in 1983.

GOING STEADY

(1958) D: Fred F. Sears S: Budd Grossman P: Sam Katzman

Molly Bee and Alan Reed Jr. are high school students who are secretly married in this Columbia release. She gets pregnant and their parents get worried. With Irene Hervey and Byron Foulger. In the 60s Bee (who recorded for MGM) was in The Young Swingers and Hillbillys in a Haunted House.

GOLD

(LS Video, 1934) D: Karl Hartl S: Rolf E. Vanloo P: Alfred Zeisler Germany

Hans Albers (Münchhausen) and Friedrich Kayssler are scientists trying to create gold with a huge atomic reactor. Brigitte Helm (Metropolis) and Lien Deyers (Spies) costar. Hartl directed the German version of FP 1 Doesn't Answer (1932), starring Albers. Originally two hours long, Gold was a major UFA production made in German and French versions with different male leads. Scenes of the reactor were later used in the American film The Magnetic Monster (1953), directed by Curt Siodmak (who wrote the novel on which FP 1 was based and with his brother, director Robert Siodmak, fled Nazi Germany in 1933).

THE GOLDEN CHILD

(Paramount, 1986) D: Michael Ritchie S: Dennis Feldman P: Edward S. Feldman, Robert D. Wachs

Big Trouble in Little China and this film were both Hollywood action/fantasy/comedy movies with Asian themes from the same year. Eddie Murphy stars as a detective who looks for missing children. Charles Dance (who works for the Devil) kidnaps the magical Tibetan "golden child" (who can make a Pepsi can dance). The boy is played by J. L. Reate, a girl. Kee Nang (Charlotte Lewis) recruits Murphy, who gets some help from a magic sword and a parrot. With James Hong and Victor Wong (both were also in Big Trouble, which is better), Randall "Tex" Cobb, and Eric Douglas. There are ILM FX and a score by Michel Columbier, which replaced one by John Barry, for some reason.

GOLDEN NEEDLES

(1974) D: Robert Clouse S: S. Lee Pogostin, Sylvia Schneble P: Fred Weintraub

Joe Don Baker stars in a tale about a golden statue containing magical acupuncture needles that can restore youth. The Maltese Falcon–derived plot takes place in Hong Kong and LA. Jim Kelly costars (for kung-fu fighting), with Elizabeth Ashley, Ann Sothern as a madam, and Burgess Meredith. Wayne Wang (Chan Is Missing, Slamdance) was the assistant director. Baker was also in The Pack, directed by Clouse.

GOLDEN YEARS

(Worldvision, 1991) D: Ken Fink S: Stephen King P: Mitchell Galin, Peter McIntosh (Stephen King's "Golden Years")

Keith Szarabajka and Frances Sternhagen are custodians at a secret government lab run by a mad scientist (Bill Raymond). Szarabajka gets younger because of an explosion and has to flee federal agents. The cast also includes Felicity Huffman and Ed Lauter. The credits are for the 2-hour CBS-TV series pilot. King also wrote the first 4 of the 6 episodes in the summer series, and he and Richard Rubenstein were the executive producers. The 4-hour double cassette has a new (happy) ending not seen on TV. Dick Smith did the old-age makeup. David Bowie's song of the same name is the theme.

GOLDILOCKS AND THE THREE BARES

(1963) D: Herschell Gordon Lewis P: David F. Friedman, Tom Dowd

This was planned as Singing in the Sun, a nudist musical, but most of the music was cut. It's set in a Roaring Twenties nightclub in Miami where a singer (Rex Marlow) and a comedian (William Kerwin) work. They date Vicki Miles (aka Allison Downe), and Netta Malina but can't figure out why they're never available on weekends. It's because they're nudists, and instead of just the usual nudist-camp footage this Eastman Color wonder features naked women on a yacht. With boxer Joey Maxim (as himself) and Blood Feast star Mal Arnold.

THE GOLEM

(Sinister, 1920) D/S/A: Paul Wegener D: Carl Boese S: Heinrich Galeen (Der Golem: Wie Er in die Welt Kam)

Paul Wegener plays the legendary clay statue the Golem in this silent German classic filmed at UFA using twisted, expressionist sets and clay miniatures representing the medieval Prague ghetto. Both the Golem and a knight of the emperor (Ernst Deutsch) fall in love with the rabbi's daughter (Lyda Salmonova, Wegener's real-life wife). To protect the Jewish people, Rabbi Loew (Albert Steinrück) brings the Golem to life with alchemy and magic. A servant later sends the creature on a rampage. The best scenes are when the mean-faced Golem starts fires, kills people, and drags a woman by the hair. The spirit of Ashtaroth is a great special effect, a floating head that forms letters with steam from its mouth. Ernst Lubitsch was the supervising director, Carl Freund was the cinematographer, and Edgar G. Ulmer was the assistant cameraman. Wegener and Galeen had codirected and Galeen had scripted Der Golem (1914), and Wegener had directed Der Golem und die Tanzerin (1917). Both starred Wegener. No prints of either film have survived. (Wegener remained in Nazi Germany and was honored as an "artist of the state." Galeen fled to the US in 1933, but nothing is known of his life or work after he came here. He had directed and/or scripted many expressionist classics of horror and fantasy, including Nosferatu, Waxworks, and The Student of Prague.) This impressive epic originally ran 118 minutes and was released by Paramount in the US. It's 70 minutes now and has an organ score. Two movies about the Golem were made in France in 1937 and 1966. In a modern-day version, It (1966), a museum employee (Roddy McDowall) brings the Golem to life again.

LE GOLEM

(Ergo, 1935) D: Julien Duvivier S: André-Paul Antoine P: Josef Stern France/Czechoslovakia (The Legend of Prague)

The Golem is under the control of Rabbi Jakob (Charles Dorat), but the creature is taken away by King Rudolf II (Harry Baur) and chained in a cell. The king's spiteful mistress (Germaine Aussey) releases the Golem, which destroys the palace and kills everyone in it. This version, based on a 1916 novel by the German writer Gustav Meyrinck, was filmed in Prague. It runs 96 minutes (originally 100) and has subtitles.

GOLDFACE, THE FANTASTIC SUPERMAN

(SW, 1967) D: Adalberto Albertini S/P: P. C. Balcazar Italy (Goldface, il Fantastico Superman)

A masked wrestling hero named Goldface (Spartaco B. Antoni) battles a criminal organization. This movie manages to copy Mexican wrestling movies and James Bond films at the same time.

GOLIATH AGAINST THE GIANTS

(Sinister, 1962) D: Guido Malatesta S: Gianfranco Parolini P: Cesare Seccia Italy (Goliath Contro i Giganti)

Brad Harris has to resist amazons and battle a sea creature before he can defeat the evil Bokan (Fernando Rey). With Gloria Milland and Barbara Carroll.

GONE IN 60 SECONDS

(Media, 1974) D/S/P/A: H. B. Halicki

"See 93 cars demolished!" Halicki was a stunt man who made his own movies for drive-ins. This PG car-crash movie was popular enough for him to make The Junkman (1982). Years later he made Gone in Sixty Seconds II (1989) and died while doing a car stunt. The action scenes from the first movie were reused in The Big Sweat (1990).

GONKS GO BEAT

(1965) D/P: Robert Hartford-Davis S: Jimmy Watson P: Peter Newbrook UK

An alien from Gonk is sent to Earth to stop the battle between the island of Beatland and the island of Ballad. Most of the screen time is devoted to musical acts on cheap sets, and there's a Romeo and Juliet subplot. The Nashville Teens and Lulu and the Lovers (who also do the title song) represent Beatland. Mike Leander arranged a drum-battle sequence with two rows of competing drummers (including Ginger Baker, then with the Graham Bond Organization), and the two groups go to war, with guitars instead of guns, at the end. Jazz music is used for a dream sequence. With Kenneth Connor (from the Carry On films) and Gillian French. By the director of Corruption.

GOOD AGAINST EVIL

(1977) D: Paul Wendkos S: Jimmy Sangster

This ABC-TV series pilot stars Dack Rambo as a writer who teams up with an exorcist (Dan O'Herlihy) to battle the evil Rimmin (Richard Lynch) and his group of Devil worshippers. With Elyssa Davalos and Kim Cattrall. Wendkos also directed The Mephisto Waltz (1971).

GOODBYE, EMMANUELLE

(Thorn EMI, 1977) D/S: François Leterrier S: Monique Lange France

The third in the Sylvia Kristel series was the last she starred in (but not the last she appeared in). With Umberto Orsini, Alexandra Stewart, and Olga Georges-Picot. The music is by Serge Gainsbourg. Kristel returned in Emmanuelle IV but turned into another actress through the miracle of plastic surgery.

GOODBYE, NORMA JEAN

(HBO, 1975) D/S/P: Larry Buchanan S: Lynn Shubert

"This is the way it was," claims the intro, and if Larry Buchanan says so, you can believe every word. Former Hee Haw regular Misty Rowe stars as the young Marilyn Monroe. In 1942 she goes to see Citizen Kane. After her guardian throws her out, she works at a munitions factory, is raped by a cop, becomes "Miss Whammo-Ammo," and at 16 gets married in Mexico to a munitions worker. After he's drafted she poses for scandalous pulp magazine photos while men pay to watch through holes in a wall. At one session she's bound and gagged. She gets raped several more times but knows "I'm going somewhere!" and gets down on her knees for the head of "Rampant Studios." She has flashbacks and visions of her crazy mother. A man showing stag films announces that a snuff film will be next: "If you vomit your guts out, you still have to pay!" She demands a screen test, attempts suicide, and is taken under the wing of star "Al James." After they finally have sex he dies. It ends with her screen test. The sound is bad, and the tape jumps in some places. Russ Meyer regular Stuart Lancaster has a role. Now-famous producer Debra Hill was the script supervisor! The movie was despised by critics but made money. The long-awaited "sequel" was Goodnight, Sweet Marilyn (1989).

GOODFELLAS

(Warner, 1990) D/S: Martin Scorsese
S: Nicholas Pileggi P: Irwin Winkler

Longtime fans of Scorsese's earlier, lesser-known Who's That Knocking at My Door? and Mean Streets were rewarded with this hit. It has similar great performances, great period rock music, humor, violence, and lots of drugs. Ray Liotta stars and narrates as the young Irish/Italian guy who eventually turns state's evidence against killer mobsters Robert De Niro, Joe Pesci (who received an Oscar), and Paul Sorvino. The frantic cocaine sequence is one of many highlights. With Lorraine Bracco, Gina Mastrogiacomo, Debi Mazar, Samuel L. Jackson, Henny Youngman and Jerry Vale (as themselves), and Chuck Low as Morrie the wig-maker. A key scene with Pesci was filmed in New York's (now long gone) Hawaii Kai nightclub. It all ends with Sid Vicious' "My Way." Based on Nicholas Pileggi's 1985 book about real-life mobster Henry Hill, Wiseguy (that title had been used for another movie), the film is 146 minutes long.

GOOD GUYS WEAR BLACK

(Vestron, 1979) D: Ted Post
S: Bruce Cohn P: Allan F. Bodah

Chuck Norris, in his second movie as a star, gets in a few good kicks as an ex–Green Beret trying to stop an assassination plot, but this PG political-corruption "thriller" isn't very exciting, and neither is Chuck's acting. With Anne Archer, Lloyd Haynes, James Franciscus, Dana Andrews as an evil politician, and Jim Backus as a bellboy. Post also directed several Clint Eastwood movies. Chuck returned in A Force of One.

GOOD IDEA!

(Edde, 1975) D/S: John Trent S: David Main P: David Perlmutter Canada
(It Seemed Like a Good Idea at the Time)

John Candy is all over the video box for this PG comedy, but he plays only a supporting role as a cop. Anthony Newley is the star, trying to win back his wife (Stefanie Powers). With Isaac Hayes as a sculptor, Yvonne De Carlo, Lloyd Bochner, and Lawrence Dane. Candy and Dane starred as the same cop characters in Find the Lady (1976), by the same director.

GOOD MORNING AND GOODBYE!

(RM, 1967) D/P/C/E: Russ Meyer S: John E. Moran

In one of Meyer's best sex/comedy/morality tales (this time in color) Angel (Alaina Capri) cheats on and humiliates her rich farmer husband Burt (Stuart Lancaster). Stone, a constuction worker (Patrick Wright), has affairs with Angel and Burt's young daughter. Everything turns out all right after Burt is revitalized in the woods by a sorceress (Haji). The only nudity is a woman running in a field (shown at the beginning and the end). Moran also wrote Faster, Pussycat! Kill! Kill! Joe Perrin, who narrates this and several other Meyer films, was also the control voice in the TV series The Outer Limits. Eve Meyer was the associate producer.

GOODNIGHT GOD BLESS

(Magnum, 1987) D: John Eyers S: Ed Ancoats
P: Geoff Griffith, Zafar Malik UK

A priest stabs and guns down five kids and their teacher in a schoolyard. New York City cop Joe Vanovitch is on the case and dating the mother of a little girl who was almost a victim. This movie is filled with false leads, doesn't bother to show any of the killings, has a very irritating false ending, but includes a possession (featured on the video box), so it can be classified as a horror movie.

GOODNIGHT, SWEET MARILYN

(Off Hollywood, 1989) D/S/P: Larry Buchanan

More than an hour of this movie (Marilyn's flashbacks from her deathbed) is footage from Buchanan's already flashback-filled Goodbye, Norma Jean! The new footage (all 30-some minutes of it) stars impersonator Paula Lane as Marilyn and Phyllis Coates (Lois Lane in the Superman TV series) as the ghost of her mother (!). One-time biker-movie star Jeremy Slate plays a fictional character who "took her life to save her" and tells how he did it in flashbacks. Misty Rowe is Marilyn in the older footage. Incredible.

THE GOOD SON

(Fox, 1993) D/P: Joseph Ruben
S: Ian McEwan P: Mary Anne Page

Macaulay Culkin (that Home Alone kid) stars as a psycho who tries to corrupt his cousin (Elijah Wood), who's staying with Culkin's family in Maine (great scenery) after the death of his mother. Culkin had drowned his baby brother. Now he tries to kill his little sister (Quinn Culkin), and even his mother (Wendy Crewson) is in peril. Despite the Culkin backlash, this is a very good Bad Seed type movie (even though Wood is a better actor than the star). Elmer Bernstein wrote the music. Culkin's father blackmailed 20th Century–Fox into giving his son this role (Jesse Bradford was slated to play it) by delaying his okay for Home Alone II. This film was to have been directed by Michael Lehmann, but the director of The Stepfather got the job.

THE GOOD, THE BAD, AND THE UGLY

(MGM, 1967) D/S: Sergio Leone S: Luciano Vincenzoni
M: Ennio Morricone Italy (Il Buono, il Bruto, il Cattivo)

Clint Eastwood stars as Joe in his third, best, and last "spaghetti western." He shares screen time with scene-stealing Eli Wallach as Tuco and Lee Van Cleef as Setenza. This awesome tale of a search for gold buried in a graveyard includes a trip to a prisoner-of-war camp and a vast Civil War battle. The 180-degree camera moves in the graveyard-shootout ending are lost on TV. The incredible Morricone soundtrack (featuring his best use of distorted electric guitar and voices as instruments) is on United Artists, but Hugo Montenegro had the hit cover version of the theme. With Victor Israel, Chelo Alonso, and Rada Rassimov. The double tape runs 162 minutes, but the original time was 181 minutes. United Artists released all three Leone/Eastwood movies in 1967. The next year Eastwood returned home for Hang 'Em High, and Leone topped himself again with Once Upon a Time in the West.

GOOD TIMES WITH A BAD GIRL

(Video Dimensions, 1967) D/S: Barry Mahon

A conservative millionaire is forced to land his private jet in Las Vegas. While his wife is at a garden exhibit he has an affair with Sue, a young "nymphomaniac." It's in b/w (when most films were already in color).

THE GOONIES

(Warner, 1985) D/P: Richard Donner
S: Chris Columbus P: Harvey Bernhard

Some kids from a small town find a treasure map and go on an adventure. This is based on a story by Steven Spielberg (an executive producer), who borrowed some ideas from a favorite Our Gang short, Mama's Little Pirates (1934). He also borrowed Max Steiner's music from Adventures of Don Juan (1948) and a clip from Captain Blood (1935). With Sean Astin, Josh Brolin, Corey Feldman, Ke Huy Quan, Martha Plimpton, Anne Ramsey as the evil Mama Fratelli, Joe Pantoliano, and John Matuszak as a mutant. ILM provided the FX. Cyndi Lauper sang the theme song. In one scene the kids read Mad magazine. The film is 114 minutes long.

GOR

(Warner, 1987) D: Fritz Kiersch S: Rick Marx S/P: Harry Alan Towers

A 20th-century American professor (Urbano Barberini), magically transported to the planet of Gor, helps to battle barbarians (led by Oliver Reed) who have taken the "life stones" from a peaceful group. With sword duels, a female dwarf, and torture. The cast of this fantasy, shot in South Africa and Mauritius, includes Paul L. Smith, Larry Taylor, and Rebecca Ferratti. New villain Jack Palance shows up at the end to introduce the sequel, Outlaw of Gor. Both films are based on books by John Norman.

GORDON'S WAR

(Fox, 1973) D: Ossie Davis S: Howard Friedlander, Ed Spielman P: Robert L. Schaffel

Paul Winfield is a Nam-vet Green Beret back in Harlem whose addict wife has died. He recruits three war buddies and they fight the drug dealers, who all work for a white man seen only on TV screens. This violent action movie from 20th Century–Fox features Carl Lee, David Downing, Tony King, and Grace Jones. The Buddha soundtrack features New Birth, Barbara Mason, and others. This is one of six films by actor/director Davis, who was later a regular in Spike Lee's movies.

GORE-MET ZOMBIE CHIEF FROM HELL

(Tempe, 1986) D/S/P/C/M: Don Swan
S: Jeff Baughn, William Highsmith

A 14th-century priest is still around eating flesh and running a beach-front deli. You can judge this Super 8 gore comedy by its cover (and title).

GORGASM

(1991) D/S/P: Hugh Gallagher (Main Force)

Gabriella (a biker-magazine centerfold) stars as a woman who kills men after they answer her personal ads. A detective (Rik Bullock) investigates by visiting a porno store (it charges a browsing fee) and a sleazy publisher. He has a slow-motion nightmare and watches a spanking tape. She strips for her victims before stabbing or decapitating them and also whips a dummy. He loses his mind at the end. Gallagher, who edits Draculina magazine, made Gorotica next.

GORGON VIDEO, VOLUME I

(MPI, 1989) P: Stuart Shapiro, Waleed Ali

Michael Berryman hosts this 69-minute magazine-format tape, complete with gore and nudity. It features interviews with Wes Craven ("I'm a working-class kid from Cleveland'), Linnea Quigley, Troma's Lloyd Kaufman, the KNB FX crew, and reviewer Rick Sullivan, who recommends Bad Taste and Henry. There are film clips, a big Sinister Cinema plug, trailers, the band Gwar, and an anti-censorship message. Alex Winter directed one segment. Volume II in the planned series was made (with Stuart Gordon and Penn and Teller) but never released.

GOROTICA

(Ill-Tec, 1992) D/S/P: Hugh Gallagher
(Wake of the Dead)

Carrie (Ghetty Chasun), a necrophiliac dominatrix with a multipierced body, watches the Death Scenes tape, masturbates with a skull, and in two (soft-core) scenes has sex with a body. Yes, this is the result of letting the German Nekromantic into the US of A. This film actually has its own clever (very) bad-taste subplots concerning a young thief (Dingo Jones), a valuable jewel, and a necro guy. Carrie says, "You're dying of AIDS, you're fucking dead people, and you want me to beat you!" There's effective music by Drain and White Slug. This 60-minute tape, by the editor of Draculina magazine, was shot in Memphis in five days. Donald Farmer was also involved. Gallagher made Gore Whore next.

GORP

(HBO, 1980) D: Joseph Ruben
S/P: Jeffrey Konvitz P: Louis S. Arkoff

Michael Lembeck stars as a waiter in this movie, which copies Meatballs' summer-camp and has quaaludes gags. With Dennis Quaid, Fran Drescher, David Huddleston, and Rosanna Arquette in a small role. Ruben had directed The Pom-Pom Girls and Joyride. AIP became Filmways in 1980. This was one of their last releases.

GOTHAM

(Warner, 1988) D/S: Lloyd Fonvielle
P: Gerald I. Isenberg, Keith Addis

Tommy Lee Jones is Eddie Mallard, a small-time private detective hired by a rich man (Frederic Forrest) who wants his wife (Virginia Madsen) to stop bothering him. Murdered 13 years earlier, she's now a ghost. Madsen has nude scenes, including one in a refrigerator. This attempt at a sexy, supernatural film noir debuted on Showtime.

GOTHIC

(Vestron, 1986) D: Ken Russell
S: Stephen Volk P: Penny Corke UK

Here's what might have happened at a villa in Switzerland during the summer of 1816 to inspire Mary Shelley to write the novel Frankenstein. It's like a feature-length version of the opening scene of Bride of Frankenstein, done in typical Russell fashion. The characters hold a séance, have nightmares, take opium, and drink laudanum. In one vision Miriam Cyr has breasts with eyes, and a demonic dwarf makes a brief appearance. Gabriel Byrne is Lord Byron, Julian Sands is Percy Bysshe Shelley, Timothy Spall is Dr. John Polidori, and Natasha Richardson makes her screen debut as Mary Shelley. The Thomas Dolby soundtrack is on Virgin. Haunted Summer (1988) tells the same story in a more conventional fashion.

GRAFFITI BRIDGE

(Warner, 1990) D/S/A: Prince
P: Arnold Stiefel, Randy Phillips

In this PG-13 sequel to the hit Purple Rain (1984) singers Prince and Morris Day fight for control of the Grand Slam, a Minneapolis nightclub. With Ingrid Chavez as the poetry-writing girlfriend, Jerome Benton, George Clinton, Mavis Staples, and Day's reunited group, the Time. It was the third movie directed by Prince.

THE GRAND DUEL

(Sinister, 1972) D: Giancarlo Santi S: Ernesto Gastaldi Italy/Monaco (Il Grande Duelo; The Big Showdown; Storm Rider)

Lee Van Cleef is an ex-sheriff who saves an innocent young fugitive (Horst Frank) from bounty hunters several times. An effeminate killer in all-white clothes is the brother of the sheriff. What happens doesn't make much sense, but there are b/w flashbacks, a machine-gun massacre, and kung fu movie–style leaps in the air. This is a panned and scanned cut version.

GRANDMA'S HOUSE

(Academy, 1988) D: Peter Rader
S: Peter Jensen P: Nico Mastorakis

A recently orphaned teen (Kim Valentine) and her younger brother (Eric Foster) are sent to live with their grandparents in a farmhouse surrounded by an orange grove. They discover that the kindly but strange old folks are really killers. A woman lurking outdoors (Brinke Stevens) turns out to be their mother, who has been in an asylum. Rader also made Hired to Kill (1990).

THE GRAND SILENCE

(1968) D/S/P: Sergio Corbucci S: Vittoriano Petrilli, Mario Amendola M: Ennio Morricone
Italy/France (Il Grande Silenzio)

Jean-Louis Trintignant stars as the mute gunfighter Silence in a western that takes place entirely in the snow. It's considered one of the best European westerns but had no official US release. Klaus Kinski costars as Tiger, an evil bounty hunter, with Americans Vonetta McGee and Frank Wolff.

GRAND THEFT AUTO

(Warner, 1977) D/A: Ron Howard
S/A: Rance Howard P: Jon Davison

Roger Corman let 22-year-old Ron Howard (from Duncan, Oklahoma) direct for the first time after he had starred in Eat My Dust! (1976), a drive-in hit. Howard and Nancy Morgan elope in her father's Rolls Royce, and he chases them from LA to Las Vegas. This teen comedy is another excuse to smash up a lot of cars. Marion Ross (from the then-current Happy Days TV series, which starred Howard), Dick Miller, Hoke Howell, Rance Howard, Paul Bartel, and Clint Howard are also in this PG New World release. Gary Graver was the cinematographer, Joe Dante was the editor and is credited with montage, and Allan Arkush was the assistant director. Howard did some TV movies, then Night Shift (1982).

GRAND TOUR

(Academy, 1992) D/S: David Twohy P: John O'Connor (Disaster in Time; Timescape)

A contractor (Jeff Daniels) who has been blamed for his wife's death fixes up an old house as a hotel. A group of very odd "tourists" check in to watch "spectacles." I don't want to give away what happens, but it involves a meteor, time travel, and hallucination-causing tea. It's set in a small Ohio town but was filmed in Oregon. Twohy wrote Alien III, but don't let that stop you from watching this very clever and well made science-fiction movie. With Emilia Crow, Ariana Richards, and Nicholas Guest. It debuted on the USA Network under an alternate title.

GRASS: A NATION'S BATTLE FOR LIFE

(Milestone, 1925) D/S/P/C: Merian C. Cooper, Ernest B. Schoedsack

The men who made King Kong started out making documentaries. This one, from Paramount, was their first. It shows 50,000 members of a nomadic Iranian ethnic group, the Bakhtiari, migrating (barefoot) through snow-covered mountains, with their livestock to get to seasonal grazing lands. The 70-minute video has a new score. The team made Chang (1927) next.

GRAVE SECRETS

(Southgate, 1989) D: Donald Borchers S: Jeffrey Polman, Lendre Wright P: Michael Alan Shores

Paul Le Mat, a professor who lectures on "innocent" ghosts, discovers a headless female ghost at a remote bed-and-breakfast owned by Renee Soutendijk (who should have stayed in the Netherlands if this was her best offer). They try to find the head so that the pathetic ghost can rest in peace (Wasn't that the plot of The Headless Ghost back in 1959?). It's not scary, and the minimal FX are pretty lousy. With David Warner, Olivia Barash, and Lee Ving.

GRAVE SECRETS: THE LEGACY OF HILLTOP DRIVE

(Worldvision, 1992) D: John Patterson S/P: Gregory Goodell

This overcomplicated Poltergeist-inspired TV movie is about a new suburban house where everything malfunctions and screaming, floating faces appear. It turns out that it was built on a slave graveyard. The credits claim it's a true story. Patty Duke (Amityville IV) stars, with Kirsten Warren, David Soul, and David Selby.

THE GRAVEYARD = PERSECUTION

GRAVEYARD SHIFT

(Virgin, 1986) D/S: Gerard Ciccoritti P: Michael Bockner Canada

The production crew from Psycho Girls returned with this one about a vampire cabdriver. Silvio Oliviero (he was in Psycho Girls and looks kind of like Chris Sarandon) stars in what is supposed to be Manhattan. His love interest/victim (Helen Papas) is a terminally ill TV director. In this movie vampirism is a cure for cancer. The gore was cut to avoid an X rating, but lots of nudity remains. Some may be unhappy with the rock-video-style scenes (the director started out doing TV commercials), but they helped make it a video hit, and there's a sequel, The Understudy.

GRAVEYARD SHIFT

(Paramount, 1990) D/P: Ralph S. Singleton S: John Esposito P: William J. Dunn

"The 19th adaptation for film or TV of a King novel or short story" was one of the all-time worst. David Andrews stars as a guy who gets a night job in a Maine textile mill. It's all too dark, the accents are awful, and the monster is nearly nonexistent. Stephen Macht as the mean boss has the worst accent. Brad Dourif as a Nam-vet rat catcher is the only good part. With Kelly Wolf and Andrew Divoff.

GRAYEAGLE

(1977) D/S/P/A: Charles B. Pierce

AIP released this PG western, basically a low-budget, uncredited remake of John Ford's The Searchers (1956). Ben Johnson, a veteran of several Ford westerns, stars (in the John Wayne role), with Iron Eyes Cody, Lana Wood (who was in The Searchers), Jack Elam, Alex Cord, and Paul Fix. AIP released four of Pierce's films.

GRAY LADY DOWN

(MCA, 1978) D: David Greene S: James Whitaker (and 6 others!) P: Walter Mirisch

Universal made this PG adventure, a box-office flop. Charlton Heston stars as the captain of a sunken nuclear submarine. David Carradine has a good role as the inventor of the Snark, an experimental diving vessel. With Stacy Keach, Ned Beatty, Stephen McHattie, Christopher Reeve (the same year as Superman), Ronny Cox, Rosemary Forsyth, and Priscilla Pointer.

GREASE

(Paramount, 1978) D: Randal Kleiser S: Bronte Woodward P: Alan Carr, Robert Stigwood

Carr produced this PG nostalgia musical after presenting the Mexican cannibal hit Survive! (1977). Both were released by Paramount, the Friday the 13th company. It's based on a Broadway show and includes hit songs by Olivia Newton-John and Frankie Valli. John Travolta (after Saturday Night Fever) costars with Newton-John. The supporting cast includes Stockard Channing, Eve Arden, Joan Blondell, Dody Goodman, Sid Caesar, Alice Ghostley, Fannie Flagg, and even Frankie Avalon and Edd Byrnes. The newcomers are Jeff Conaway, Didi Conn, Eddie Deezen, Dinah Manoff, Michael Tucci, Ellen Travolta, and Lorenzo Lamas. Sha-Na-Na, who had been redoing 50s rock since the 60s (they performed at Woodstock), play Johnny Casino and the Gamblers. The film was a major hit.

GREASE 2

(Paramount, 1982) D: Patricia Birch S: Ken Finkleman P: Robert Stigwood, Alan Carr

The choreographer of Grease directed the flop sequel. Maxwell Caulfield and Michelle Pfeiffer play the leads. She became a star anyway, and he ended up in direct-to-video horror movies. With Pamela Segall, Tab Hunter, Connie Stevens, Adrian Zmed, Lorna Luft, and twins Liz and Jean Sagal. Eve Arden, Sid Caesar, Dody Goodman, Didi Conn, and Eddie Deezen returned.

GREASED LIGHTNING

(Warner, 1977) D: Michael Schultz S: Kenneth Vose, Lawrence DuKore, Melvin Van Peebles P: Hannah Weinstein

Richard Pryor plays Wendell Scott, the (real) first black championship racing-car driver. After serving in WWII he drives moonshine shipments for bootleggers in Virginia, goes to jail, and faces racism while trying to make it on the southern racing circuit. Melvin Van Peebles was replaced by Schultz as director. Pam Grier (who was engaged to Pryor at the time) plays his wife. With Beau Bridges, Cleavon Little, Richie Havens, Vincent Gardenia, Noble Willingham, and Julian Bond. It's PG.

GREASER'S PALACE

(1972) D/S: Robert Downey P: Cyma Rubin M: Jack Nitzsche

Allan Arbus stars as a Christlike drifter who parachutes into the Old West in a zoot suit, walks on water, and heals people. This underground western parody features Luana Anders, Hervé Villechaize, Toni Basil, and Don Calfa. It was Downey's last film until Up the Academy (1980).

GREAT ACTORS OF THE 20th CENTURY, Volume II

(Rhino)

This compilation consists of 3 half-hour TV dramas with horror stars. Boris Karloff stars in "The Vestris" (1958) as a ghost who warns a sea captain's wife. Vincent Price stars in "The Brainwashing of John Hayes" (1955) set in Communist China. Lon Chaney Jr. stars in "The Golden Junkman" (1956). They're all from forgotten b/w TV anthology shows.

THE GREAT ADVENTURE

(Media, 1974) D: Gianfranco Baldanello S: Juan Logar, Jesús Rodríguez Italy/Spain (Il Richiamo del Lupo)

Jack Palance stars as town boss "Bet a Million" Bates in this adaptation of a Jack London story about a boy and his dog (played by Buck) in Alaska. Joan Collins is a dance-hall girl.

THE GREAT ALASKAN MYSTERY

(Classic Cliffhangers, 1944) D: Ray Taylor, Lewis D. Collins S: Maurice Tombragel, George H. Plympton

Milburn Stone (later in Gunsmoke) stars in this 13-chapter Universal serial. Axis spies want to steal scientist Ralph Morgan's "perpetron," a matter-transmitting machine. With Marjorie Weaver, Fuzzy Knight, Martin Kosleck, Jack Ingram, and Jay Novello.

GREAT BALLS OF FIRE!

(Orion, 1989) D/S: Jim McBride S: Jack Baran P: Adam Fields

Making a movie about Jerry Lee Lewis was a great idea, but Dennis Quaid just doesn't cut it as the wild, southern piano-pounder. He seems too innocent. Winona Ryder costars as Lewis' 13-year-old second cousin (and third wife), Myra Gale. The PG-13 film ends in 1958, when the marriage scandal temporarily derailed his career. With Trey Wilson (who died in 1989) as Sam Phillips, Alec Baldwin as Lewis' cousin Jimmy Swaggart, Stephen Tobolowsky, Steve Allen (as himself), Lisa Blount, Joe Bob Briggs, and Tav Falco. Jimmy Vaughn, Mojo Nixon, and John Doe are Jerry Lee's band, and Michael St. Gerard shows up as Elvis. Actors play Alan Freed, Chuck Berry, Big Maybelle, and other real people. It was based on Myra Gale's book. Lewis himself recorded new versions of his old songs (including the hits and "Real Wild Child"). Look for the real thing on the tape Shindig Presents Jerry Lee Lewis (Rhino).

THE GREATEST STORY EVER TOLD

(MGM, 1965) D: David Lean, Jean Negulesco (both uncredited) D/S/P: George Stevens S: James Lee Barrett

The greatest Ultra Panavision 70/Cinerama and Technicolor epic ever filmed took five years to finish. It was originally 260 minutes, was cut to 195 minutes when it flopped, then was cut again, to 141 minutes. Charlton Heston is John the Baptist, and Dorothy McGuire is the Virgin Mary. Watching it for the cameo appearances by guest stars can be very rewarding. Check out Telly Savalas as Pontius Pilate, Donald Pleasence as the Devil, and John Wayne (!) as a Roman centurion. Some of the others are Claude Rains, Robert Loggia, Robert Blake, John Considine, Pat Boone, Shelley Winters, Sidney Poitier, Van Heflin, Carroll Baker, Ed Wynn, José Ferrer, Roddy McDowall, David McCallum, Victor Buono, Richard Conte, Sal Mineo, Angela Lansbury, and of course Max von Sydow as Jesus Christ. United Artists released it. Who would have thought that Martin Scorsese would try to top this over 20 years later?

THE GREAT FLAMARION

(Sinister, 1946) D: Anthony Mann S: Anne Wigton, Heintz Herald, Richard Well P: William Wilder

Erich von Stroheim stars as Flamarion, a sharpshooter in a vaudeville act. His assistant (Mary Beth Hughes) pretends to be in love with him, tricks him into killing her husband, then goes off with another man (Dan Duryea). This was one of several low-budget Republic features von Stroheim starred in before leaving the US for France.

THE GREAT IMPERSONATION

(1935) D: Alan Crosland S: Frank Wead, Eve Greene

Edward Lowe plays a disgraced Austrian baron in Africa who kills a wealthy, alcoholic Britisher (also played by Lowe), assumes the dead man's identity, and moves to his ancestral home in England, where a "ghost" screams and spies plot. Universal promoted this 64-minute film as a horror movie. Sets from The Old Dark House and Bride of Frankenstein are reused, and parts of the plot are borrowed from The Hound of the Baskervilles. The story had first been filmed in 1920 and was remade again (with Ralph Bellamy) in 1942. With Dwight Frye as a bearded madman of the bog, young Valerie Hobson as the disturbed wife (she was in The Mystery of Edwin Drood, The Werewolf of London, and Bride of Frankenstein the same year), Brandon Hurst as the butler, Spring Byington, and Nan Grey.

THE GREAT JESSE JAMES RAID

(1953) D: Reginald LeBorg S: Richard Landau P: Robert L. Lippert

The cast includes Willard Parker as Jesse James, with Jim Bannon and Wallace Ford, but this B western from Lippert is notable because it features Barbara Payton and Tom Neal. In 1951 Neal had beaten Payton's boyfriend at the time, actor Franchot Tone, giving him a concussion and a broken nose. She married Tone, but left him a few months later for Neal. That relationship didn't last. She made only one more film. In 1963 she wrote her autobiography, I'm Not Ashamed. She died in 1967, at 40. This was Neal's last film. In 1965 he was sentenced to six years in prison for manslaughter after shooting his third wife. Less than a year after his release he died.

THE GREAT LOS ANGELES EARTHQUAKE

(Vidmark, 1990) D: Larry Elikann S: William Bast, Paul Hudson P: Stratton Leopold (The Big One)

A scientist (Joanna Kerns) knows the big one is coming, but politicians cover up her report. A news leak causes mass panic, and tremors create a disaster (and the threat of a nuclear meltdown). With Dan Lauria, Joe Spano, Richard Masur, and Ed Begley Jr. This 2-part TV movie aired just months after a major San Francisco earthquake.

THE GREAT ROCK AND ROLL SWINDLE

(Warner, 1980) D/S: Julien Temple P: Jeremy Thomas, Don Boyd UK

Russ Meyer was set to direct Who Shot Bambi? (with Marianne Faithfull as Sid's mum!). He worked only four days, the Sex Pistols fell apart, and Sid Vicious died. Jonathan Kaplan was hired and fired next. The Sex Pistols' manager, Malcolm McLaren, had this put together anyway. It's "held together" by his series of "lessons" about manipulating and exploiting a band, the press, and the public. The essential parts feature Johnny Rotten and are live: "Anarchy" (with Glen Matlock), "God Save" on a boat, an excellent "Pretty Vacant," and the last song at the last show (in San Francisco), "No Fun." Another highlight is Vicious doing "My Way" onstage in Paris (it had already been seen in Mr. Mike's Mondo Video and was later recreated in Sid and Nancy). The rest is other people doing Pistols songs, Sid doing Eddie Cochran, cartoon animation, comic bits, and way too much McLaren. With train robber Ronnie Biggs in Brazil, Jess Conrad (Horrors of the Black Museum), James Aubrey (Lord of the Flies), and Nancy Spungen and Mary Millington (both now dead). Some performance footage was shot by Derek Jarman. The film was (finally) released in the US in 1992.

GREAT SCOUT AND CATHOUSE THURSDAY

(Vestron, 1974) D: Don Taylor S: Richard Shapiro P: Jules Buck, David Korda

Lee Marvin stars in this wacky, PG-rated western comedy about a whorehouse in 1908 Colorado, from AIP. With Oliver Reed as an Indian, Robert Culp, Elizabeth Ashley, Kay Lenz, Strother Martin, and Sylvia Miles. Former actor Taylor also directed sequels to Planet of the Apes and The Omen.

THE GREAT SKYCOPTER RESCUE

(MGM, 1981) D/P: Lawrence D. Foldes (Skycopter Summer)

Evil bikers take over a California town. A local DJ quits his job to become a pilot hero. Aldo Ray appears as the corrupt sheriff. With William Marshall and Russell Johnson. It was the last release from Dimension, a company co-founded in 1971 by Laurence Woolner, who had helped Roger Corman start New World.

THE GREAT SMOKEY ROADBLOCK

(1978) D/S: John Leone P: Allan F. Bodoh (The Last of the Cowboys)

Henry Fonda stars as an aging driver whose truck is repossessed while he's in the hospital. He steals it back and goes on a last cross-country run with a bunch of hookers. This PG drive-in movie features Eileen Brennan, Susan Sarandon (who coproduced it), Melanie Mayron, Robert Englund, and John Byner as a DJ. This has an unusually strong cast, compared to other films from Dimension.

THE GREAT SPY CHASE

(1964) D/P: George Lautner S: Michel Audiard, Albert Simonin Italy (Les Barbouzes)

AIP released this Cold War spy comedy. Agents from various countries, wearing disguises, try to get a scientist's secrets from his stripper widow (Mireille Darc). Lino Ventura is the French spy, and Bernard Blier costars.

THE GREAT TEXAS DYNAMITE CHASE

(1977) D: Michael Pressman S: David Kirpatrick P: David Irving

Claudia Jennings and Jocelyn Jones star as Candy and Ellie Jo, "the dynamite women," bank robbers (in cut-off jeans) on the run in this New World release. The gimmick (besides some R-rated nudity) is that they blow up a lot of things with big packs of dynamite. With former Rifleman TV series son Johnny Crawford (he's also in The Naked Ape) as Slim, a shoplifter who joins them, and Tara Strohmeier. The director later made Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles II.

THE GREED OF WILLIAM HART

(Sinister, 1948) D: Oswald Mitchell S: John Gilling P: Gilbert Church (Horror Maniacs)

Tod Slaughter, the first horror star in England, ended his feature-film career with this version of the legend of Burke and Hare, the Edinburgh body snatchers. This cut version preserves only 53 minutes of the original 79 minutes. It played in the US in 1953 under the great exploitation title Horror Maniacs. Slaughter went on to appear in some shorts and on TV, and he returned to the stage, where he had begun. He died in 1956, just before British horror movies became big business.

The Greed of William Hart, aka Horror Maniacs

THE GREEN ARCHER

(Stokey, 1940) D: James W. Horne S: Morgan B. Cox, John Cutting, Jesse A. Duffy P: Larry Darmour

This 15-chapter Columbia serial is based on an Edgar Wallace novel. Other versions were made in 1925 by Pathé and in 1960 in West Germany. It's about murders around an old castle and a ghostly archer. Victor Jory stars, with Iris Meredith and James Craven.

THE GREEN ARCHER

(Sinister, 1960) D: Jürgen Roland S: Wolfgang Menge, Wolfgang Schnitzler W. Germany (Der Grüne Bogenschütze)

Gert Frobe and Karin Dor star in this murder mystery. It's part of a series of Edgar Wallace adaptations.

THE GREEN BERETS

(Warner, 1968) D: Ray Kellogg, Mervyn LeRoy D/A: John Wayne S: James Lee Barrett P: Michael Wayne

This is the only major film made during the Vietnam War that supported US involvement. Military officials and equipment were made available for the production. David Janssen is the liberal anti-war reporter set straight by Colonel Mike Kirby (John Wayne) in the combat zone. The film was released just after Robert Kennedy was shot and just before Nixon and Agnew were picked to run on the Republican ticket. Even if you are a lifelong Republican who loves Wayne, it's too long (133 minutes) and filled with clichés. Besides Wayne and Janssen, Aldo Ray, Jim Hutton, Bruce Cabot, Raymond St. Jacques, and Jack Soo have since died (a conspiracy?). Also in the cast are Luke Askew, Irene Tsu, Jason Evers, and Richard Pryor (!?). Co-director Kellogg also made The Killer Shrews and The Giant Gila Monster! Barrett also wrote The Greatest Story Ever Told (which Wayne was in).

THE GREEN-EYED BLONDE

(1957) D: Bernard Girard S: Sally Stubblefield P: Martin Melcher

Sexy blonde Susan Oliver was 19 and making her screen debut in this "story of a teenage firebomb" from Warner Brothers. It takes place at a detention home for girls, and the plot concerns car theft, murder, and an illegitimate baby. Cornelius Gunter (from the Coasters) sings the theme song, and the score is by Leith Stevens. The producer was married to Doris Day.

THE GREEN HORNET

(Stokey, 1940) D: Ford Beebe, Ray Taylor S: George H. Plympton, Basil Dickey, Morrison C. Wood

This 13-chapter Universal serial based on a popular radio series is from the producers of the Flash Gordon serials. Gordon Jones stars as newspaper publisher Britt Reid, but the radio-series Hornet (Al Hodge) provides the voice of his masked crime-fighting alter ego. Keye Luke is Kato (a role played on TV years later by Bruce Lee), and Anne Nagel is Lenore. They have a super-fast car and a gas gun. Some chapters are "Flying Coffins," "Bullets and Ballots," and "Panic in the Zoo." Anne Gwynne and Alan Ladd have small parts. It's available on two cassettes. The immediate sequel, The Green Hornet Strikes Again (1940), stars Warren Hull as Reid, with the same major cast members, but is not available on tape.

THE GREEN MAN

(Fox, 1990) D: Elijah Moshinsky S: Malcolm Bradbury P: David Snodin UK

The owner of an English inn (Albert Finney), who drinks too much, has sex with his doctor's wife (Sarah Berger) on his 53rd birthday, after his senile father (Michael Hordern) dies. He also starts seeing ghosts, and it turns out that the inn is haunted by an evil 17th-century minister (Michael Culver). There are bat attacks, a living tree, an exorcism, and nightmares inside of nightmares. This 3-hour BBC movie debuted in the US on the Arts and Entertainment Network. It's based on a Kingsley Amis novel. With Linda Marlowe as Finney's wife, Nicky Hensen, and Nickolas Grace.

GREEN MANSIONS

(MGM, 1959) D: Mel Ferrer S: Dorothy Kingsley P: Edmund Grainger

Audrey Hepburn stars as Rima, "the bird girl," who can communicate with the creatures of the Amazon jungle. Anthony Perkins is her confused lover. This odd romantic fantasy is based on W. H. Hudson's novel. With Lee J. Cobb, Sessue Hayakawa, Henry Silva, Michael Pate, and Nehemiah Persoff. Ferrer and Hepburn were married when they made this MGM color production. After the failure of this movie and the marriage, Ferrer relocated to Europe, where he continued to act and direct.

THE GREEN PASTURES

(MGM, 1936) D: William Keighley D/S: Marc Connelly

Racial stereotypes abound as the Old Testament is seen through the eyes of southern black children. The cast includes Rex Ingram in three roles, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, and Oscar Polk. Based on Connelly's Pulitzer Prize–winning Broadway play, this Warner Brothers production was the first film with an all-black cast made by a major studio since Hallelujah (1929). The next ones were Cabin in the Sky, a musical fantasy about good and evil, and Stormy Weather, a backstage musical (both 1943).

GREEN SNAKE

(Long Shore, 1993) D/P: Tsui Hark S: Lilian Lee P: Ng See Yuen Hong Kong

Maggie Cheung and Joey Wang star as snakelike shape-shifters who decide to become sexy human women and get involved with men. A monk tries to destroy them. During a battle one becomes a giant flying snake and fights a flying dragon created from the monk's tattoo. Based on a Chinese novel already filmed several times, this was a commercial flop.

GREETINGS

(Vidmark, 1968) D/E: Brian De Palma S/P: Charles Hirsch

Nobody cared about De Niro or De Palma when this New York City underground comedy about draft dodging was released. Jonathan Warden makes a stag movie, Robert De Niro is a peeping Tom, Gerrit Graham is obsessed with the JFK assassination and conspiracy theories, and Allen Garfield is "the smut peddler." De Niro is the one who ends up being drafted and sent to Nam. There's an actual LBJ speech. It was rated X when first released by Sigma III. De Palma's sequel, Hi, Mom!, features many of the same actors and was also written by Hirsch.

GREMLINS

(Warner, 1984) D: Joe Dante S: Chris Columbus P: Mike Finnell M: Jerry Goldsmith

This PG-13 horror fantasy, full of in-jokes and irreverent comedy, was an unexpected hit. It takes place at Christmastime in a perfect looking old-fashioned American small town. Inventor Hoyt Axton buys a mysterious furry pet from Asian antique-shop owner Keye Luke for his son. When Luke's strict warnings are ignored, the cuddly creature spawns rude reptilian demons (sort of a cat/frog mixture) who trash the town and mock everything sacred to the locals. Zach Galligan and Phoebe Cates are the teen stars, with Polly Holliday, Scott Brady (in his last role), Harry Carey Jr., Dick Miller, Jackie Joseph, Corey Feldman, Judge Reinhold, Kenneth Tobey, William Schallert, and Don Steele. There are Chris Wallas FX, scenes from Invasion of the Body Snatchers and Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, and references to It's a Wonderful Life. The Goldsmith score is on Geffen. Columbus and Wallas both became directors themselves. Steven Spielberg was an executive producer and appears briefly. The hit movie spawned many imitations and a sequel.

GREMLINS 2: THE NEW BATCH

(Warner, 1990) D: Joe Dante
S: Charles Haas P: Mile Finnell

After six years, Dante returned with a bigger, wilder PG-13 sequel set in New York City. The trouble is that it made less than half of its $50 million cost. I guess it was just too much entertainment for the average viewer. Or maybe the anti–greed/big business message was hard to take from executive producer Spielberg. The new mutant Gremlins fly, talk, sing, and take over a high-rise. Galligan and Cates star again. John Glover is funny as a Donald Trump/Ted Turner composite character, and Robert Prosky is a TV horror host made up to look like Grandpa Munster. Christopher Lee is a scientist (it was promoted as his "203rd film role"), and Dick Miller and Jackie Joseph have larger roles. With Haviland Morris as Marla, Gedde Watanabe, Keye Luke, and Kathleen Freeman, and bits by John Astin, Henry Gibson, Paul Bartel, Kenneth Tobey, Page Hannah, Leonard Maltin, Belinda Balaski, Tony Randall, and Howie Mandel. Hulk Hogan, Dick Butkus, and Bubba Smith play themselves, and Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck appear. Rick Baker and Steve Wang were in charge of the FX. There are clips from Octoman, The Beast From 20,000 Fathoms, and a nudist-colony movie. The Jerry Goldsmith score is on Varèse Sarabande. Hellzapoppin-style film-breaks gags were replaced by different scenes for the video.

GREY MATTER: See THE BRAIN MACHINE

GREYSTOKE: THE LEGEND OF TARZAN, LORD OF THE APES

(Warner, 1984) D/P: Hugh Hudson, Robert Towne, Michael Austin S: "P. H. Vazak"/ Robert Towne P: Stanley S. Canter

Christopher Lee as Dr. Catheter in Gremlins II: The New Batch.

The most expensive Tarzan movie of all time, filmed in Super Techniscope, was a troubled production and a box-office flop. It's long (130 minutes) and flawed, but it does have some awesome scenes and is closest to Edgar Rice Burroughs' books. It was filmed in Cameroon and Britain. Christopher Lambert stars (for the first time in the US), and Andie MacDowell (dubbed by Glenn Close) is Jane. The supporting cast includes Ian Holm as a Belgian explorer, Sir Ralph Richardson (he's great in his last role, and he has a memorable death scene), James Fox (his second role since the 1970 film Performance), Cheryl Campbell, Ian Charleson, and Nigel Davenport. Rick Baker created the excellent apes. Robert Towne, who had written the script in 1976, wanted to direct. He used his dog's name for his screenwriting credit. The dog was nominated for an Oscar.

GRIEF

(Academy, 1993) D/S: Richard Galtzer
P: Ruth Charney

The Love Judge, a syndicated TV series, is filmed in a hotel formerly used by prostitutes. Craig Chester stars as the suicidal head writer whose partner has died of AIDS. Much of this comedy/drama is flashbacks. With Illeana Douglas, Lucy Gutteridge, and (in the fictitious TV series) Joanna Went, Paul Bartel, and Mary Woronov.

GRIEVOUS BODILY HARM

(Fries, 1988) D: Mark Joffe S: Warwick Hind P: Richard Brennan Australia

Colin Friels stars as a police detective who searches for his missing wife and goes after a psycho killer. With John Waters (not the director), Bruno Lawrence, and Shane Briant. It's 136 minutes long.

THE GRIFTERS

(HBO, 1990) D: Stephen Frears S: Donald E. Westlake P: Martin Scorsese, Robert A. Harris
M: Elmer Bernstein

Everybody cons everybody, the acting is fine, and there's some surprising sex and violence in this adaptation of a Jim Thompson novel. It concerns a bleached-blond con woman (Anjelica Huston), her estranged con-man son (John Cusack), and his new lover/partner (Annette Bening). With Pat Hingle (in a scary performance) as Bobo Justus, Stephen Tobolowsky, Sandy Baron, Henry Jones, J. T. Walsh, Jeremy Piven, and Charles Napier as a businessman who becomes a victim of one of the many no-lose scams. The soundtrack is on Varèse Sarabande.

GRIM PRAIRIE TALES

(Academy, 1990) D/S: Wayne Coe
P: Richard Hahn

The always interesting Brad Dourif is a 19th-century city slicker on the prairie at night who runs into a strange, loudmouthed trapper (James Earl Jones) with a dead man on his horse. They tell stories around a campfire. One is about disrupting a sacred Indian burial ground. Another is about a racist settler and a lynch mob. A bizarre tale concerns some kind of succubus. The last story, about a gunfighter, features a surprise cartoon nightmare (and a character wearing very out-of-place modern briefs). The biggest problem is that the scenes around the campfire are more interesting and have more tension than the stories themselves. With William Atherton, Lisa Eichhorn, and Marc McClure.

GRINDHOUSE HORRORS

(Ecco, 1992)

Most of the more than 40 trailers on this 100-minute compilation tape are from the late 60s to the early 80s. You get horror, exploitation, mondo, and kung-fu, and many are trailers you probably have not seen. Some highlights are Sweden, Heaven and Hell, Savage Island, Shogun Assassin, Deep Red, Virgin Witch, Deranged, Street Trash, The Doll Squad, Chinese Hercules, and Jungle Warriors.

THE GRISSOM GANG

(1971) D/P: Robert Aldrich S: Leon Griffiths

Although it fits in with Bloody Mama and other violent 70s movies about rural family crime in the 20s, this was an adaptation of No Orchids for Miss Blandish, a novel by James Hadley Chase, which had been filmed under that name in England in 1948. Kim Darby is a rich girl kidnapped by Ma Grissom (Irene Dailey) and her psycho sons. Scott Wilson is especially demented. With Tony Musante, Robert Lansing, Ralph Waite, Wesley Addy, and Connie Stevens. It was produced by the short-lived Cinerama.

THE GROOVE ROOM

(TZ, 1973) D/S/P: Vernon C. Becker
S: Barry E. Downes UK (Champagne Gallop; A Man with a Maid; What the Swedish Butler Saw; Tickled Pink; Teenage Tickle Girls)

This 3-D period sex comedy has been released many times with different titles over the years by AIP, Independent International, and even Troma. It has also been shown in 3-D on cable TV, so a lot of people have seen it. Ollie Soltdoft stars as Ole, a photographer and inventor in an ornate turn-of-the-century whorehouse. He seduces various women and uses some light bondage and some kind of orgasm contraption. Some of the (soft-core) sex scenes are pretty good. Diana Dors co-stars as Madame Helga, with Sue Longhurst. Jack the Ripper even shows up. It was filmed in Sweden.

THE GROOVE TUBE

(Media, 1972) D/S/P/A: Ken Shapiro S: Lane Sarasohn

Like Tunnelvision (1976), this is a sex comedy with unrelated spoofs of TV shows and commercials. It was originally rated X. Both movies were semi-underground hits before the concept became common on TV itself, with Saturday Night Live. Chevy Chase (also in Tunnelvision) has a small role (his first) as a character married to (porno star) Jennifer Welles. With Richard Belzer and Buzzy Linhart. Shapiro was later behind Night Flite, on the USA Network.

GROTESQUE

(Media, 1987) D/A: Joseph Tornatore S/A: Mikel Angel P: Mike Lane, Chuck Morrell

I saw it, but I still don't know if it's supposed to be funny or not. A group of violent, laughing, overacting psycho "punkers" kill Linda Blair's vacationing family in an isolated vacation house in the mountains. Linda escapes in the snow, but meanwhile a rubbery-faced mutant/retard/hunchback brother (who cries, "Mama! Papa! Mama! Papa!") pursues the killers. A plastic-surgeon uncle (Tab Hunter) shows up for the (huh!?) ending. With Guy Stockwell as the horror-movie makeup-expert father, Donna Wilkes (Angel), Charles Dierkop, Luana Patten, Nels Van Patten, and Robert Z'Dar (with spike hair). Blair was also the coproducer. By the director of Zebra Force.

GROUNDHOG DAY

(Columbia, 1993) D/S/P/A: Harold Ramis S: Danny Rubin P: Trevor Albert

Bill Murray stars as a cynical Pittsburgh TV weatherman who has to repeat the same day endlessly in a small Pennsylvania town. He discovers that he can do whatever he wants (and can't die) but still has romantic trouble with his producer (Andie McDowell). The experience eventually makes him a better person. This PG comic fantasy features Chris Elliott as the cameraman, Stephen Tobolowsky, Robin Duke, and Brian Doyle-Murray. Sonny and Cher's "I Got You Babe" is heard many times. The soundtrack is on Epic.

GROUND ZERO

(IVE, 1987) D/P: Michael Pattinson, Bruce Myles S: Mac Gudgeon, Jan Jardi Australia

Colin Friels stars as a TV cameraman investigating the death of his father, also a cameraman, who may have filmed too much during 50s A-bomb tests conducted by the British government in Australia. With Donald Pleasence as a crippled test survivor and Jack Thompson. This PG Columbia release is based on real events.

GROUPIES

(1970) D/P: Robert Dorfman, Peter Nevard P: Robert Weiner

The Filmore East and West provided the setting for this 16mm documentary. The Chicago Plaster Casters, Miss Pamela, and others are interviewed, along with Joe Cocker, Ten Years After, Spooky Tooth, Terry Reid, and others, who all do appropriate songs ("Good Morning, Little Schoolgirl," "Bang Bang"). It was rated X when released by Maron.

GROUP MARRIAGE

(1972) D/S: Stephanie Rothman S/P: Charles S. Swartz S: Richard Walter

There's humor and nudity in this drive-in sex comedy about a communal house. With Claudia Jennings (in her first costarring role) Victoria Vetri, Jayne Kennedy (Miss Ohio of 1970), Aimee Eccles, Zack Taylor, Jeff Pomerantz, Solomon Sturges (son of director Preston Sturges), and Milt Kamen. The music is by John Sebastian! Dimension was run by a married director and producer. Rothman had directed It's a Bikini World (1967), Student Nurses (1970), and Velvet Vampire (1971).

GROWING PAINS

(Thriller, 1980) D: Francis Megahy S: Nicholas Palmer UK

Elvira hosts this 60-minute Hammer TV movie. Barbara Kellermann and Gary Bond star as a couple who adopt a "bad seed" after their son dies.

GRUNT! THE WRESTLING MOVIE

(Starmaker, 1985) D: Allan Holzman S: Roger D. Manning P: Anthony Ranel

Greg "Magic" Schwartz as Mad Dog Joe is the star of this comedy documentary about wrestling. With Robert Glaudini, Lydie Denier, Wally George, and midgets. From New World and the director of Forbidden World.

THE GUARDIAN

(MCA, 1989) D/S: William Friedkin S: Steven Volk, Dan Greenburg P: Joe Wizan

A Druid spirit named Camilla (Jenny Seagrove) poses as a nanny so that she can sacrifice babies. She's hired by an unsuspecting wealthy young couple (Carey Lowell and Dwier Brown). There's a vicious wolf attack and a tree that kills would-be rapist bikers. When the dad attacks the tree with a chainsaw, it spews blood and screams (Steve Johnson provided the FX). It made me think of From Hell It Came. With Miguel Ferrer and Brad Hall. There are some nude-nanny scenes. This followed Friedkin's then unreleased Rampage (1987).

GUARDIAN OF HELL

(1980) D: Stefan Oblowsky P: John L. Chamblis Italy (The Other Hell)

Nuns in a convent become possessed. There's also a telekinetic baby and a mirror leading to Hell.

GUARDIAN OF THE ABYSS

(Thriller, 1980) D: Don Sharp S: Anthony Read UK

Elvira hosts this 60-minute Hammer TV program. Rosalyn Landor and Ray Lonnen star in a tale about an antique mirror that leads to Hell.

GUESS WHAT WE LEARNED IN SCHOOL TODAY?

(VGB, 1970) D/S/C/E: John G. Avildsen S: Eugene Price P: David Gil

Suburban high-school sex education is the theme of this comedy by the man who later made Rocky. The woman who wants the classes is named Mrs Lillywhitehorn. The vice-squad cop who tries to stop her is called Roger Manly. Meanwhile, frustrated wives of conservative community leaders smoke pot and have lesbian affairs. Lieutenant Manly ends up getting arrested for having sex with a black male cop who was in drag. Avildsen made this forgotten R-rated satire and the hit Joe for Cannon.

GUILTY AS CHARGED

(Columbia, 1991) D: Sam Irvin S: Charles Gale P: Randolph Gale

In this black comedy/drama, Rod Steiger is a religious fanatic whose family has been killed. He kidnaps criminals who managed to escape the death penalty, takes them to his Chicago meat-packing warehouse, and with "the will of God" kills them with his own winged, art-deco electric chair. It's an awkward concept that flirts with political issues, but Steiger must have liked the role, because he really acts (unlike some of his recent performances). A few of the condemned prisoners cry before going to the chair. Steiger's assistant and organist is Isaac Hayes, Lauren Hutton is the wife of a corrupt congressman (he's also a killer), and Heather Graham is a parole officer. With Lyman Ward, Irwin Keyes, Zelda Rubinstein, and Mitch Pileggi (from Shocker). Irwin edited an impressive horror-movie fanzine called Bizarre in the 70s. This is from IRS.

Rod Steiger in his electric chair, in Guilty as Charged.

GUILTY AS SIN

(Hollywood, 1993) D: Sidney Lumet
S: Larry Cohen P: Don Carmody

Don Johnson stars as a sexist, psycho gigolo accused of throwing his wife out of a window in their Chicago penthouse. He has an affair with his defense attorney (Rebecca De Mornay). With Stephen Lang, Jack Warden as a detective, Tom McComus, Dana Ivey, and Robert Kennedy. Who would have expected the director of The Pawnbroker to use a script by the director of It's Alive III?! This Buena Vista release was filmed in Toronto.

GUILTY PARENTS

(SW, 1933) D/S: Jack Townley

Helen (Jean Lacy) is a 20-year-old blond "on the threshold of womanhood." She's on trial in Ohio for "exterminating a vile creature." Flashbacks show how she reluctantly was initiated (stripped behind a curtain) into the drunken Fraternal Order of the Pink Elephant. Soon her boyfriend is shot during a holdup. She gives up her baby in New York City, becomes a chorus girl, and is blackmailed into setting up a dancing school to provide girls for gangsters. Helen's puritanical mother is blamed, and Helen jumps out of the courtroom window! By the director of Mummy's Boys. This vintage J. D. Kendis exploitation tape is presented here by David F. Friedman.

GUMS

(AVA, 1976) D/S/P: Robert J. Kaplan
S: Paul and Sam Cohen P: Isaac Roberts

This is a senseless, tasteless, crude porno parody of Jaws with terrible dubbing, but Brother Theodore as Captain Clitoris, the Quint character, gets to dress like a Nazi and rant uncontrollably: "Yuckata- yuckata-yuck. Cool it, you castrates! Unspeakable filth!" He also talks to his pet vulture, who has a giant spurting cock. R. Bolla, a porno actor in Italian cannibal movies, has the Richard Dreyfuss role. Instead of a shark there's a killer cocksucker mermaid, played by 70s porno star Terri Hall. Unappealing hard-core scenes last only a few seconds. Two men have sex with an inflatable doll, and two dogs are shown fucking. Hall swims around in a swimming pool/set, and in the only long sex scene she gets it on with an "Indian" woman on the beach after some abstract nude dancing. Just when you think it couldn't get any dumber, puppet characters show up, have sex, and sing (!). It was filmed in Florida and New York.

GUN BLAST

(197?) D/S: Nick Millard P: Irmgard Millard

Mr. Grant, a tough but basically nice ex-con (who looks kinda like Eddie Constantine mixed with Morley Safer), is talked into pulling off a drug heist by a woman. It takes place in Mexico and LA, and every scene has a title announcing the date and place. This is like a very low-budget film noir with a breast fetish. During sex scenes Grant kisses his new partner's breasts, and during a sex-show scene Uschi Digart massages and licks her own. This scene is supposed to be on a stage, but it looks as if Millard simply edited in a sex loop. The soundtrack is mostly flamenco guitar (just like in Ed Wood's Jailbait) plus a singer who sounds a lot like Yoko Ono. We also see a woman applying blue eye shadow and hear some very uncinematic-sounding gunshots. By the makers of Crazy Fat Ethel II.

GUN CRAZY

(Fox, 1949) D: Joseph H. Lewis S: Millard Kaufman, MacKinlay Kantor, Dalton Trumbo (uncredited)
P: Frank King, Maurice King (Deadly Is the Female)

This ahead-of-its-time sex-and-guns cult classic was inspired by the real Bonnie and Clyde and based on Kantor's story in the Saturday Evening Post. John Dall stars as Bart Tare, a small-town marksman who meets Annie Laurie Starr (Peggy Cummins) at a carnival shooting gallery. They marry, and she encourages their life of crime: "I want action!" With Berry Kroeger, Annabel Shaw, Morris Carnovsky, and Russ Tamblyn as the young, revolver-stealing Bart. The United Artists release includes some impressive, advanced camera work and dialogue like "We go together like guns and ammunition." Lewis later matched Gun Crazy with the obsessive The Big Combo (1954).

GUNCRAZY

(Academy, 1992) D: Tamra Davis S: Matthew Bright P: Zane W. Levitt, Diane Firestone

Drew Barrymore has her best role so far as Anita, a sympathetic 16-year-old "class slut" who lives in a rural California trailer with her absent hooker mom's boyfriend, Rooney (Joe Dallesandro). She corresponds with Howard (James LeGros), an impotent convict, and learns to shoot. Anita kills and burns Rooney (good gore FX) to stop the forced (offscreen) sex and says, "Here lies a pig. May he rot in hell!" Howard gets out of Chino, and the doomed couple end up on the road in a disastrous crime and accidental-murder spree. With Billy Drago as a long-haired, snake-handling preacher, Michael Ironside as a parole officer, Ione Skye, and Tracey Walter. It borrows from the 1949 film of the same name, but it's not a remake and stands up just fine on its own. Guncrazy debuted on Showtime, then played some theaters. The director (in her late 20s), who had done rock videos, made the rap comedy CB4: The Movie next.

Peggy Cummins and John Dall in Gun Crazy.

GUNFIRE

(Bongo, 1978) D: Monte Hellman S: Jerry Harvey, Douglas Venturelli P: Gianni Bozzacchi, Valerio De Paolis Italy (China 9, Liberty 37)

Railroad barons save a condemned man (Warren Oates) so that he can kill a gunman for them. With Fabio Testi, Jenny Agutter, and Sam Peckinpah. It was Hellman's last film for ten years and his fourth with Oates. The music is by Pino Donaggio. The original title refers to a traffic sign.

GUN FURY

(1953) D: Raoul Walsh S: Irving Wallace, Roy Huggins
P: Lewis J. Rachmil M: Mischa Bakaleinikoff

This 3-D Columbia western stars Rock Hudson as a rancher whose fiancée (Donna Reed) has been abducted. With Phil Carey, Leo Gordon, Neville Brand, and Lee Marvin as Blinky. Walsh, like Andre De Toth, had only one good eye, but he knew how to make a good western.

GUN GIRLS

(SW, 1953) D/S/E: Robert C. Dertano
P: Edward Frank C: William C. Thompson

A narrator tells us all about "the new teenage problem." Teddy, a (too old-looking) wise-ass blond teen ("I'm hip"), robs a guy in the alley with her friend Dora. Her boyfriend is the brother of the probation officer (who gives a speech). Joe (Timothy Ferrell) buys the stolen goods ("I'm a businessman") and plans a warehouse heist. His big mistake is dumping the beautiful blond Joy, who becomes pregnant. Obviously filmed in LA, it's supposed to be set in New York. There are lots of news headlines and a cat fight. This Eros production is very similar to The Violent Years (1956), written by Ed Wood Jr. Ferrell returned as the same character in Dertano's much wilder hard drug movie Girl Gang (SW, 1954).

GUNMEN

(Live, 1994) D: Deran Sarafian
S: Stephen Sommers P: Laurence Mark, John Davis, John Flock

An illiterate outlaw (Christopher Lambert) is busted out of a South American jail by a New York City special-forces agent (Mario Van Peebles) and they go after a missing drug-money fortune. Denis Leary is the killer hired by crippled drug lord Patrick Stewart to off them. This over-the-top film copies The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly. With Brenda Bakke (who has a sex scene), Kadeem Hardison, Sally Kirkland, and rapper Big Daddy Kane. It's from Miramax. The two stars were also in Highlander III.

GUNS

(RCA, 1990) D/S: Andy Sidaris P: Arlene Sidaris

Erik Estrada is a South American drug smuggler/gunrunner in Hawaii. The fifth in a series of brainless Sidaris sex-and-spy movies, this features "six Playboy playmates," nude oil-wrestling, and transvestite hitmen. Dona Speir costars (in her fourth Sidaris movie), with Roberta and Devin Vasquez, Cynthia Brimhall, Phyllis Elizabeth Davis (from Terminal Island), Michael Shayne, Kym Malin, Liv Lindeland, Donna Spangler, former TV-kid-show host Chuck McCann, Tony Curtis' daughter Allegra, and boxer Chu Chu Malave. Filmed in Hawaii, in Las Vegas, and at London Bridge (it's in Arizona).

GUNSLINGER

(Duravision, 1956) D/P: Roger Corman
S: Charles Griffith

When Roger Corman started his career as a director he wasn't making science-fiction or horror movies. His first film was Five Guns West (1955), and he made three more wacky westerns for ARC (the company that became AIP) in 18 months. This is his last western. It was made in 7 days (1 day over schedule) and is in color. It borrows a lot from Nicholas Ray's Johnny Guitar (1954), but then so does Once Upon a Time in the West. It opens with arty, modern 50s titles and jazz music! If you're a Corman fan who likes to see his regular troupe of actors in anything (like me), you'll love it. If you're looking for a good western, forget it! Rose Hood (Beverly Garland) becomes marshal after her husband (William Schallert) is gunned down. She guns down the killers during the funeral and sleeps in a jail cell. Erica Page (Allison Hayes) runs the local bar and uses her pathetic, lovesick barkeep (Jonathan Haze) to murder people who get in the way of her plan to get rich when the railroad arrives. "Little man, you're too stupid!" she tells him many times. Erica also hires Cane (John Ireland), a brooding killer who wears only black, and orders him to kill Rose, whom he's in love with. Rose, whom Cane calls "that chesty marshal," gets to punch out Erica during a cat fight. The set looks like a ghost town, and the cast is minimal. When three dancing girls do the same act several times we see two tables with spectators but hear what sound like hundreds of loud people. Dick Miller is with the pony express, and Bruno Ve Sota plays a businessman. Garland starred in five early Corman movies. From 1969 to 1972 she was the stepmother in the TV series My Three Sons. She owns two hotels in California.

GUNS OF THE BLACK WITCH

(Sinister, 1961) D/P: Domenico Paolella
S: Luciano Martino, Ugo Guerra Italy
(Il Terrore dei Mari)

Don Megowan stars as Jean, a heroic 17th-century French pirate who battles the evil Spanish rulers of a Caribbean island. With Silvana Pampanini and Emma Daniel. AIP released it.

THE GUTTER GIRLS

(1963) D/P: Robert Hartford-Davis S: Derek Ford
UK (The Thrill Seekers; The Yellow Teddybears)

Linda (Annette Whiteley), a boarding-school girl, becomes pregnant by a window cleaner/pop singer named Kinky. The school girls have an anti-virgin club and party with a prostitute friend who suggests that Linda go to work for her to earn money for an abortion. Hartford-Davis later made Corruption and The Bloodsuckers, both with Peter Cushing.

A GUY NAMED JOE

(MGM, 1943) D: Victor Fleming
S: Dalton Trumbo P: Everett Riskin

Spencer Tracy is a daredevil American pilot in England during WWII who's shot down and goes to Heaven, a giant military flying field run by Lionel Barrymore. His ghost is sent back to Earth to help another pilot (Van Johnson). This 2-hour MGM fantasy costars Irene Dunne and features Ward Bond, James Gleason, Barry Nelson, and Esther Williams. Happy Land and The Human Comedy are other uplifting WWII dramas from the same year. Fleming, used to big projects, had already directed The Wizard of Oz and Gone with the Wind (both 1939) and Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, with Tracy (1941). This film was remade by Steven Spielberg as Always (1989).

THE GUYVER

(New Line, 1991) D/FX: Screaming Mad George, Steve Wang S: John Purdy P: Brian Yuzna (Mutronics)

A college student (Jack Armstrong) becomes an Inframan-type armor-plated hero and fights lots of bad guys turned into monsters. This is a fun American movie based on a popular Japanese comic book by Yoshiki Takaya. Vivian Wu costars as a scientist's daughter, and Mark Hamill is a CIA agent who becomes a cockroach (!) monster. The scientist villain (the late David Gale) turns into a giant dino-monster in his underground lab for one of the many fight scenes. Michael Berryman, Jimmy Walker (who raps), Spice Williams (who also does stunts), and Peter Spollos all become monsters too. Also with Jeffrey Combs, Linnea Quigley, and first assistant director/second-unit director Tom Rainone in a fun gag scene. Wang also made Kung Fu Rascals. Episodes of the Japanese Guyver TV cartoon show are also on tape (from US Renditions).

GUYVER II: DARK HERO

(New Line, 1994) D/P/E: Steve Wang S: Nathan Long

David Hayter stars, with Kathy Christopherson as a scientist's daughter, Christopher Michael, Ann George, Veronica Reed, and lots of fighting women. Wang also directed the popular Mighty Morphin Power Rangers TV show.

GWAR LIVE FROM ANTARCTICA

(Warner, 1990) P: Ivan Purvis

Gwar is the ultimate post-nuke show band, with a monster alien singer, bloody slave roadies, and mutant Conan-type band members who engage in simulated sex, rape, and dismemberment while playing music that sounds to me like a hard-core punk Black Sabbath. One monster "comes" on the audience. It's all pretty dumb, and I don't even like the music, but I still recommend seeing Gwar, and this hour-long tape is the safe way to do it. They do 14 songs live onstage and are seen in a video for "Sick of You." It's from Metal Blade, a division of Warner Brothers!

GWAR—PHALLUS IN WONDERLAND

(Metal Blade, 1992) D: Distortion Wells

Gwar ("from Antarctica") has gotten more musical but no less juvenile and outrageous. This is a planned production with seven new songs and lots of fantasy segments. Some of them are clever, shocking, and funny. Others aren't. You get lots of monsters, guts, puke, dismemberment, and bad taste. A kid kills his mom with a skateboard. Gwar cereal comes with a crack pipe. A court case decides whether something is a fish or a penis. A TV evangelist is punished for raping boys. There's even political commentary (!) and Corporal Punishment, a comical symbol of the US.

GYMKATA

(MGM, 1985) D: Robert Clouse
S: Charlie Carner P: Fred Weintraub

A martial-arts fighter (Olympic champ Kurt Thomas) participates in an obstacle-course death game in a mythical kingdom. With Richard Norton, Conan Lee, Tadashi Yamashita, and Buck Kartalian as the khan. There are bad ninjas, a giant Viking, crazy, toothless fighters with scythes, and lots of blood. This bizarre film was made in Yugoslavia by the director of Enter the Dragon.

GYPSY ANGELS

(Vidmark, 1981) D: "Alan Smithee"

Vanna White is an Atlanta stripper (she keeps her top and G string on) who falls for a barnstorming stunt pilot (Gene Bicknell, who was an executive producer). He crashes and has amnesia. There are lots of stunt-flying scenes. With Lyle Waggoner as a Vegas preacher, Richard Roundtree as a doctor, Elizabeth Ashley, the late Peter Lawford, and Tige Andrews (who narrates the flashbacks). This was filmed in Missouri (with backing from a Pizza Hut franchise owner) and was finally released in 1994. The director hid behind a generic pseudonym.

GYPSY MOON: See ROCKY JONES

HACK 'EM HIGH

(Urban Classic, 1987) D/S/P: Gorman Bechard S: Carmine Capobianco P: Kris Covello

If you liked Psychos in Love, this is another horror spoof by the same people from Connecticut. With Debi Thibeault and Ruth Collins.

HAIL, CAESAR

(Prism, 1993) D/A: Anthony Michael Hall S: Robert Mittenthal P: Steven Paul, Barry Collier

Hall (looking ridiculous with short yellow hair) narrates the story of how he tries to impress Buffer (Bobbie Phillips), the bitchy daughter of a secret arms dealer (Nicholas Pryor), becomes the manager of the millionaire's eraser factory, and goes to jail. There's also some nonsense about his rock trio. The only bright spot in this mild PG comedy is Robert Downey Jr.'s standout manic scene. Also with Samuel L. Jackson as the mailman, Frank Gorshin, Judd Nelson, and Robert Downey Sr. as a butler. It's supposedly based on a Mark Twain novel.

HAIR

(MGM, 1979) D: Milos Forman S: Michael Weller P: Lester Persky, Michael Butler

This tame PG film adaptation of the 1967 antiwar, "age of Aquarius" Broadway musical hit is filled with familiar songs (sounding stronger than the 60s versions by lightweights like the Cowsills and the Fifth Dimension) and excellent dancing (choreographed by Twyla Tharp). John Savage stars as the Oklahoma boy who goes to Manhattan before being drafted. With Treat Williams (awkward-looking in long hair), Beverly D'Angelo, Nicholas Ray as the general, Charlotte Rae, and Annie Golden. The Czech Forman had directed Taking Off (1971) and One Flew over the Cuckoo's Nest (1975) in the US. This United Artists release is 122 minutes long. RCA released a double soundtrack album.

HAIRSPRAY

(New Line, 1988) D/S/A: John Waters P: Rachel Talalay

Waters' first feature since Polyester (1981) is a great PG (!) comedy about rock-and-roll dancing (and integration) in 1962 Baltimore. The kids all want to appear on the local (segregated) Corny Collins show (which is based on a real program). Ricki Lake stars as Tracy Turnblad, a smaller version of her huge housewife mother. Divine (who died after the premiere) plays both the mom and a male racist TV station owner. Jerry Stiller is the gag-shop-owner dad. With Sonny Bono (who became mayor of Palm Springs in 1988, then a Congressman in 1994) and Debbie Harry as the parents of Tracy's rival and Michael St. Gerard (star of the brief Elvis TV series) as her new boyfriend. Characters do the bug, read Mad magazine, and pop zits. With Ruth Brown as Motormouth Maybelle, owner of an R&B record store, Mink Stole, Pia Zadora and Ric Ocasek as beatniks, and Waters himself as a crazed shrink. The excellent soundtrack is on MCA (and includes Rachel Sweet's theme song), but some of the best dance oldies are missing (like the one by Bunker Hill!). This was Waters' last film for New Line. His next film was Cry-Baby.

HALF HUMAN

(Rhino, 1955) D: Inoshiro Honda, Kenneth G. Crane S: Takeo Murata P: Tomoyuki Tanaka Japan (Jujin Yukiotoko)

This Toho film was Honda's follow-up to Godzilla and features two of that film's stars, Akira Takarada and Momoko Kochi. It borrows ideas from King Kong and Tarzan Escapes. Villagers pray to a big "Peking man" who lives in a huge cave filled with stalactites and bats. A beautiful mountain girl wearing a miniskirt has to offer him food. A rescue party and scientists show up after some skiers disappear. The snowman ties one man up and hangs him over the side of a cliff. Evil circus people capture the monster and his weird little son. When the kid is shot daddy goes on a rampage, destroying the village. The independent DCA company got US-release rights in 1958 and did a miserable job trying to Americanize this film as Warner Brothers had done with Godzilla. They cut out all the dialogue and maybe half the movie, substituting John Carradine as a scientist who sits in a room and tells the story. Every time things get interesting we're back in that room with John telling us what's already happened and even trying to psychoanalyze the creature. Morris Ankrum does an autopsy on the body of the little creature. The real movie ends in a volcano (just like The Manster, also codirected by Crane). Much as I like Carradine, this frustrating version makes me want to see the original without him. The Snow Creature (1954) and Man Beast (1955) are less interesting American abominable-snowman movies made around the same time.

HALFWAY TO HELL

(SW, 1954) D: Robert Snyder S: Quentin Reynolds P: Kroeger Babb

Although many anti-Communist movies now seem laughable, this 62-minute documentary is a very well made, expertly edited history lesson with lots of excellent news footage mixed with some scenes from movies. It traces the history of modern Germany back to Kaiser Wilhelm II and WWI, and the history of the USSR back to the 1917 revolution, convincingly comparing Hitler and Stalin, Fascists and Communists, and showing how the population of both countries became "robots." There's footage of Czar Nicholas II, Trotsky (speaking in English), Mussolini (meeting Hitler and later hanging upside down), concentration-camp survivors, and mass graves in Poland. A theremin is heard on the soundtrack, and Reynolds also narrates. Hallmark Pictures double-billed this with Karamaja, so a lot of people saw it. The video is a David Friedman Roadshow Rarity. It's followed by a long trailer for Seeds of Destruction, with Kent Taylor as a Commie posing as a minister!

HALL OF THE MOUNTAIN KING = NIGHT OF THE HOWLING BEAST

HALLOWEEN 4: THE RETURN OF MICHAEL MYERS

(RCA/Columbia, 1988) D: Dwight H. Little S: Alan B. McElroy P: Paul Freeman

Donald Pleasence (as a scarred Dr. Loomis) returns in what should have been called Part 3. Michael Myers, who has been in and out of a coma for 10 years, is after the daughter of the original Jamie Lee Curtis character. With Ellie Cornell, Danielle Harris, Michael Pataki, Kathleen Kinmont, Beau Starr, and Sasha Jensen. John Carl Buechler did the makeup. Alan Howarth's reused score was issued on Varèse Sarabande. You'd be better off looking for Halloween (Media, 1978), Halloween II (MCA, 1981), or even the unrelated Halloween III: Season of the Witch (MCA, 1982). Executive producer Moustaka Akkad received all the rights to the Halloween series in court. John Carpenter (who directed or produced the first three) urged people not to see the others. Michael Myers, by the way, was the name of the British distributor who helped make John Carpenter's Assault on Precinct 13 a hit in the UK.

HALLOWEEN 5: THE REVENGE OF MICHAEL MYERS

(CBS/Fox, 1989) D/S: Dominique Othenin-Gerard S: Michael Jacobs P: Ramsey Thomas

In the direct sequel to Part 4, Danielle Harris stars as a 9-year-old niece of Michael Myers, who has seizures whenever he's about to kill. Donald Pleasence captures the masked killer in chains. The characters and situations are pretty stupid. With Wendy Kaplan, Donald L. Shanks, Jeffrey Landman, and Ellie Cornell and Beau Starr from Part 4. There's another Alan Howarth score and a safe-sex scene. The ending is a setup for another sequel—Halloween 6: The Curse of Michael Myers (1995), which turned out to be Donald Pleasence's last film.

HALLOWEEN NIGHT

(Atlas, 1988) D/E: Jag Mundra S: Carla Robinson P: Raj Mehrotra (Hack O'Lantern)

Two brothers and a sister have a Satanist grandfather who delivers pumpkins every Halloween. The good brother is a rookie cop. The bad one lives in the basement, lifts weights, and follows the grandfather (who killed their father). The sister has a nude bath scene. Three different hot blondes have nude scenes. I think one of them is porno star Jeannie Fine. She gets a pitchfork through her head. During a dream sequence a heavy-metal band with a female singer plays a whole song while a black girl with six arms, a dot on her forehead, and death-ray eyes dances around. (It's not as good as it sounds.) At a party a guy does a standup comedy act about centerfolds. The Mercenaries and DC La Croix play. Mayra Grant (from Star Slammer) gets stabbed. The grandfather is very strange, thanks partially to a deep, dubbed-in voice that sounds like Harvey Fierstein. Like many 80s West Coast horror videos it seems like a series of auditions for the filmmaker's friends and neighbors, who are all musicians, actors, or models.

HALLUCINATIONS IN A DERANGED MIND

(SW, 1977) D/S/P/A: Jose Mojica Marins Brazil (Delirios de um Anormal)

This amazing overkill movie includes scenes from "10" earlier movies by Marins as nightmares and flashbacks and is a good sampler of his unique career. Marins plays himself, a famous filmmaker, and his fictional character Ze de Caixo (or Coffin Joe). Tania is his perfect woman, and a shrink consults Marins for help. It turns out that Ze kills when Mojica blacks out. It includes the excellent Hell scenes from This Night I Will Possess Your Corpse, gory cannibalism scenes, acid in the face, whipping, nudity, laughing skulls, bodies used for stairs, frogs on breasts, bell-bottom pants, a drawing of Boris Karloff, and much, much more. Some b/w scenes are tinted. It's subtitled.

HAMBURGER: THE MOTION PICTURE

(Media, 1986) D: Mike Marvin S: Donald Ross P: Edward S. Feldman, Charles R. Meeker

Teens work at a fast-food restaurant. One guy has problems with an inheritance. This comedy stars Leigh McCloskey, with Dick Butkus, Chuck McCann, Debra Blee, Randi Brooks, Karen Mayo-Chandler, and Roberta Vasquez (from Playboy). It's by the director of The Wraith.

HAMMER

(1972) D: Bruce Clark S: Charles Johnson P: Al Adamson

Fred Williamson (in his first starring role) is B. J. Hammer, a dock worker turned boxer. His drug-dealing Mafia manager, Big Sid (Charles Lampkin), manipulates his career, then tells him to take a dive. Vonetta McGee (she was in Blacula the same year) is the gangster's secretary who becomes Hammer's girlfriend and is kidnapped. William Smith is a sadistic hitman. It takes Hammer a long time to wise up, take action, and listen to good LA cop Bernie Hamilton. With D'Urville Martin, Tracy King, and Leon Isaac (later Kennedy). The score is by Solomon Burke. This UA release is by the New Zealander director of Naked Angels.

HAMMERHEAD

(1968) D: David Miller S: William E. Bast, Herbert Baker P: Irving Allen UK

Vince Edwards is American secret agent Charlie Hood in this James Bond copy. Hammerhead (Peter Vaughn), the villain, collects old and valuable pornography. He's also after nuclear secrets. With Judy Geeson as a nightclub entertainer, Beverly Adams and Diana Dors as Hammerhead's mistresses, Michael Bates, Douglas Wilmer, Veronica Carlson, and Tracy Reed. A London "happening" includes a topless cellist. The Colgems soundtrack features Madeline Bell. A Columbia release.

HAMMER HORRORS

(Trailers on Tape)

This is the kind of compilation I'd like to see more of. It sticks to one theme (films made by England's Hammer studios from 1955 to 1974) and is complete and chronological when presenting trailers for movies in a series. It's 75 minutes long and consists of an intro and 28 trailers. There are trailers for all 7 Frankenstein movies, the 3 Quatermass science-fiction movies, the 4 Mummy movies, and, best of all, the 14 vampire movies (half of them star Christopher Lee). They also added trailers for The Hound of the Baskervilles, The Gorgon, and The Phantom of the Opera. Kate Bush's theme "Hammer Horror" is heard during the well-edited intros. Although all the movies were from one studio, these are American trailers made by the various companies (large and small) that released the features here.

HAMMER: THE STUDIO THAT DRIPPED BLOOD!

(BBC, 1987)

This hour-long TV documentary is a must for fans of the British studio that revitalized the horror movie in the late 50s with worldwide hits like The Curse of Frankenstein and Horror of Dracula. Narrated by Charles Gray, it includes interviews with Hammer stars Peter Cushing and Christopher Lee, and with many of the behind-the-scenes talents (such as producers Anthony Hinds, Michael Carreras, and Aida Young, writer Jimmy Sangster, and director Don Sharp). Bette Davis is shown drowning a child in a bathtub (The Nanny), Ingrid Pitt is decapitated, and Lee is shown at the New York premiere of Horror of Dracula. The only non-Hammer person interviewed is Martin Scorsese, a fan, who saw The Curse of the Werewolf at the New York Paramount. The tightly run company was at its best before it moved out of the Bray studios (actually an old house) in 1967. Eventually they seemed to run out of ideas, and production standards dropped. In 1968 the people who were once condemned for adding full-color blood and severed limbs to gothic horror received an industry award from the Queen. By the early 70s they had added nudity to horror movies, but Americans saw heavily cut versions that were badly distributed. By the 80s Bray was being used for TV commercials and rock videos.

HAMMETT

(Warner, 1982) D: Wim Wenders S: Ross Thomas, Dennis O'Flaherty, Thomas Pope P: Fred Roos, Ronald Colby, Don Guest

Frederic Forrest stars as the alcoholic mystery writer Dashiell Hammett, who's drawn into a murder case and a political conspiracy (involving Chinatown and porno movies) in 30s San Francisco. Nicolas Roeg wanted to direct this film (based on a novel by Joe Gores), but Wenders made a great-looking film (his first in the US) despite serious production problems. With Peter Boyle as a Pinkerton man, Lydia Lei, Marilu Henner, Roy Kinnear, Elisha Cook Jr., R. G. Armstrong, Sylvia Sidney, Samuel Fuller, Royal Dano, Jack Nance, Fox Harris, and Hank Worden. Wenders made The State of Things while this was on hold. Francis Ford Coppola was the executive producer for Orion, but it was finally released by Warner Brothers. It's PG. The same idea of a real-life author as a character in his own fiction was later used in Kafka and Naked Lunch.

HANDGUN

(Triboro, 1994) D/S: Whitney Ransick P: Bob Gosse

Treat Williams is a violent thief whose father (Seymour Cassell) is hiding out in a crummy New York apartment with a payroll fortune. Williams and his con man brother (Paul Shulze), the cops, and other gangsters search for him. The low-budget directoral debut is in the tradition of Reservoir Dogs, complete with choice oldies used for ironic effect on the soundtrack. With Michael Rappaport, Anna Thompson, and Angel Caban.

THE HANDMAID'S TALE

(HBO, 1989) D: Volker Schlöndorff S: Harold Pinter P: Danny Wilson M: Ryuichi Sakamoto

Women have no rights in the fascist America of the near future (called Gilead). The Old Testament rules, minorities are deported to "homelands," and gays are hanged. The remaining fertile women are rounded up, and assigned to wealthy childless couples. Natasha Richardson is a "handmaid" (breeder) to a hypocritical, self-righteous security chief (Robert Duvall) and his infertile wife (Faye Dunaway). It's based on Margaret Atwood's 1985 novel. With Aidan Quinn, Elizabeth McGovern (as a lesbian hooker), Victoria Tennant (as Aunt Lydia, who trains handmaids), Traci Lind, Blanche Baker, and David Dukes.

HANDS OF DEATH = NURSE SHERRI

THE HANDS OF ORLAC

(Sinister, 1960) D/S: Edmond T. Greville S: John Baines P: Steven Pallos, Donald Taylor M: Claude Bolling UK/France

This third version of the story about a brilliant pianist with the hands of an executed murderer was shot on the French Riviera. It adds new subplots and characters and is much better than you might expect. Mel Ferrer stars as the tormented Orlac, and Christopher Lee is in top form as Neron, a sinister magician. Dany Carrel is Li-Lang, Neron's very cute assistant. During a stage illusion, her dress disappears, and she sings in French wearing a bikini. Neron puts swords through a girl in a coffin and has devil puppets. The best scene (as in Mad Love) is when Lee masquerades as the dead killer with hook hands ("Give me back my hands!"), but there are many good moments and some excellent cinematography. Donald Pleasence, David Peel (as a pilot), and Donald Wolfit (as a surgeon) are all seen briefly. Greville had just directed the teen classic Beat Girl (also with Lee). Ferrer was in Vadim's Blood and Roses next. A 105-minute French-language version with several different actors was made at the same time. The British version is 95 minutes, and the US version is only 87.

HANDS OF STEEL

(Vestron, 1986) D/S: "Martin Dolman"/ Sergio Martino S: Elisabeth Parker, Saul Sasha Italy (Vendetta dal Futuro)

In 1997 in America, a muscular renegade cyborg who knows martial arts (Daniel Greene) is hiding out with the owner of a bar in the desert (Janet Angren). John Saxon is a mercenary-leader villain, and George Eastman is an arm-wrestling (!) villain. It was filmed in Arizona. The music is by Claudio Simonetti (from Goblin).

THE HAND THAT ROCKS THE CRADLE

(Disney, 1992) D: Curtis Hanson S: Amanda Silver P: David Madden M: Graeme Revell

Calculating, devious Rebecca De Mornay poses as a nanny and is hired to care for the newborn son and five-year-old daughter of a Seattle couple. She wants to destroy them because she had a miscarriage after her creepy gynecologist husband (John De Lancie) killed himself. She blames her employer (Annabella Sciorra), who reported that he sexually molested her. With Ernie Hudson as a mentally handicapped handyman, Matt McCoy as the husband, Madeline Zima as the daughter, and Julianne Moore as a friend. There's a clip from White Zombie. Despite some serious holes in the plot, this was a hit. The script (a USC master's thesis) was probably inspired by Fatal Attraction but also has some similarities to The Guardian. The soundtrack is on Hollywood Records. Hanson also directed Bad Influence and The Bedroom Window.

THE HANGED MAN

(1974) D: Michael Caffey S: Ken Trevey P: Andrew J. Fenady

Steve Forrest is a gunslinger who survives his hanging and becomes a mystical hero in the Old West. This ABC-TV movie, a Bing Crosby production, features Cameron Mitchell, Sharon Acker, Dean Jagger, Will Geer, Barbara Luna, and Rafael Campos.

HANG 'EM HIGH

(MGM, 1968) D: Ted Post S/P: Leonard Freeman S: Mel Goldberg M: Dominic Frontiere

The year after the three Eastwood/Leone westerns were released in the US, Eastwood starred in this home-grown imitation. Many thought it was Italian too. It's good, but Post (who had directed Eastwood in episodes of Rawhide) is no Leone. A judge (Pat Hingle) saves Jed Cooper (Eastwood) from hanging and makes him a deputy, but he goes after the men who tried to lynch him. Inger Stevens costars with Ed Begley, Arlene Golonka, James MacArthur, Charles McGraw, L. Q. Jones, Alan Hale Jr., veteran cowboy star Bob Steele, Bruce Dern, and Dennis Hopper (who loses it in a prison). The soundtrack is on UA.

HANGFIRE

(RCA, 1991) D: Peter Maris S: Brian D. Jeffries P: Brad Krevon, Steve Stabler

A serial killer, a rapist, and other cons escape on a bus from a New Mexico prison and hold a village hostage. This was advertised as being about the Gulf War! Jan-Michael Vincent as a National Guard commander and Brad Davis as a sheriff are both Nam vets. With Kim Delaney, James Tolkan as Patch, Ken Foree, George Kennedy as the warden, and Yaphet Kotto. Big, strong guys (Lou Ferrigno, Lyle Alzado, and Peter Lupis) show up too.

HANGING BY A THREAD

(1979) D: Georg Fenady S: Adrian Spies P: Irwin Allen

In one of Allen's many disaster movies (this was made for NBC-TV), sightseers have flashbacks of their lives as their train dangles over a mountain gorge. Patty Duke and Sam Groom star, with Donna Mills, Bert Convy, Cameron Mitchell, Roger Perry, and Deanna Lund.

THE HANGING OF JAKE ELLIS

(1969) D/S/P: J. Van Hearn (The Calico Queen)

Square-jawed future Russ Meyer regular Charles Napier stars as a cattle driver (and sings the theme song!) in this nudie western. With Deborah Downey (Lady Godiva Rides) and Bambi Allen. Napier also starred in House Near the Prado by Van Hearn.

THE HANGING WOMAN

(Neon, 1972) D/S: Jose Luis Merino S: Enrico Columbi P: Ramona Plana Spain/Italy (La Orgia de los Muertos; Return of the Zombies; Beyond the Living Dead)

Serge (Stelvio Rossi), the long-haired blond nephew of a count, arrives in a 19th-century village to inherit a villa. The count's widow (Dianik Zurakowska) practices black magic and conjures up a ghost, a scientist (Gerard Tichy) in the basement tries to raise the dead with electricity, and Igor (Paul Naschy) is a laughing, lurking necro voyeur who keeps ladies' underwear in his hut. Reanimated zombies eventually show up in the catacombs, and the end of this fun horror movie copies Roman Polanski's The Fearless Vampire Killers. There's some nudity, a bloody decapitation, and an autopsy scene. This version was dubbed in the UK.

HANGIN' WITH THE HOMEBOYS

(New Line, 1990) D/S: Joseph B. Vasquez P: Richard Brice

Vasquez's third feature was his first hit, thanks to some excellent actors (and some ideas borrowed from American Graffiti). After crashing a party, four very distinct characters from the South Bronx decide to drive to unfamiliar territory, Manhattan ("The Bronx is wack tonight"), for a long, aimless Friday night. They talk, drink, argue, crash a car, are arrested as subway-fare beaters, visit Show World, and feel out of place after sneaking into a pretentious downtown nightclub to try to pick up girls. The night is a turning point in the lives of some of them. John Leguizamo stars, with Doug E. Doug as a guy worried about his future, Nestor Serrano as a Puerto Rican who pretends to be Italian, and Mario Joyner as an actor. The theme is the hit "I Got the Power."

HANGMEN ALSO DIE

(1943) D/P: Fritz Lang S: John Wexley, Bertolt Brecht (uncredited)

Brian Donlevy stars as Dr. Svoboda, a Czech patriot who kills (the real) Nazi official Reinhard Heydrich in Prague in 1942. The Nazis threaten to kill 400 people unless he gives himself up. (In real life, the entire male population of the town of Lidice was killed.) James Wong Howe was the cinematographer. With Walter Brennan, Anna Lee, Gene Lockhart, Dennis O'Keefe, Jonathan Hale, and Lionel Stander. Douglas Sirk's version of the same events, Hitler's Madman, with John Carradine as Heydrich, was released the same year.

THE HANG-UP

(SW, 1969) D/S: John Hayes

Sebastian Gregory (Help Wanted Female) stars as a neurotic undercover vice cop. He goes to strip clubs, gay bars, and swingers' clubs and falls for a hippie (Sharon Matt).

HANNAH LEE

(1953) D/P: John Ireland, Lee Garmes S: McKinlay Kantor, Alfred "Rip" Von Ronkle (Outlaw Territory)

It's ranch owners vs. homesteaders in a 3-D and stereo western released by Realart. MacDonald Carey stars, with Joanne Dru and John Ireland (who were married at the time). The couple sued executive producer Jack Broder for not paying them. They were also in the 3-D Southwest Passage.

HANNIBAL BROOKS

(1969) D/P: Michael Winner S: Dick Clement, Ian La Frenais M: Frances Lai UK

Oliver Reed stars in this WWII action comedy. He and Michael J. Pollard are prisoners of war who somehow escape from Munich to Switzerland over the Alps with an elephant named Lucy. It features Karin Baal, Wolfgang Preiss, and a mostly German cast. It was Pollard's biggest role until he starred in Dirty Little Billy (1972). UA released the soundtrack.

HANSEL AND GRETEL

(UAV, 1954) D: Walter Janssen S: Gerhard F. Hummell W. Germany/Italy

Childhood Productions released this fairy-tale movie in the US in the 60s and sold a tie-in record. The Americanized version includes new songs and narration by Paul Tripp. There's a 1985 Faerie Tale Theatre version (from Fox), with Ricky Schroeder and Joan Collins, and a Cannon film made in Israel (Warner, 1987), with David Warner and Cloris Leachman as the witch.

HANUSSEN

(1955) D/A: O. W. Fischer D: George Marischka W. Germany

This film isn't available in the US. It's about a well-known clairvoyant who collaborates with the Nazis. Klaus Kinski costars. It's also known as Hitler's Astrologer. Another version, directed by Istvan Szabo and starring Klaus Maria Brandauer, was made in 1988 and has the same title.

THE HAPPENING

(1967) D: Elliot Silverstein S: Frank R. Pierson, James D. Buchanan, Ronald Austin P: Jud Kinberg

The Supremes' theme song made it to number 1, but this is a very out-of-it comedy about hippie beach-bum crooks who accidentally kidnap a Florida gangster (Anthony Quinn). George Maharis as Taurus, an overacting Michael Parks, Robert Walker Jr., and Faye Dunaway (in her film debut) as a coed are the kidnappers. With Martha Hyer in bed with Milton Berle, Oscar Homolka, Clifton James, Jack Kruschen, and Luke Askew. Presented by Sam Spiegel. The soundtrack is on Colgems. The same plot was used for The Biggest Bundle of Them All (made the same year in Europe), with Raquel Welch.

HAPPY HELL NIGHT

(1992) D/S: Brian Owens S: Ron Peterson P: Leslie Sunshine Canada/Yugoslavia

Darren McGavin saw eight teens killed during a fraternity-pledge night in 1965 when they resurrected the corpse of an evil priest named Zachary. McGavin's sons and two other guys, now in the same fraternity, break into the asylum where Zachary has been for 25 years. The creepy, bald, Nosferatu-look supernatural priest escapes and starts killing again with an ice axe. Characters go to Hell, a statue of Jesus comes alive, and there's some nudity and gore.

THE HAPPY HOOKER

(Warner, 1974) D: Nicholas Sgarro S: William Richert P: Fred Caruso

Lynn Redgrave stars as Xaviera Hollander in this tame (R-rated) comedy version of the bestselling memoirs of the famous New York madam. With Jean-Pierre Aumont, Tom Poston, Richard Lynch as a corporate crook, Nicholas Pryor, Anita Morris (seen topless), and Denise Galik. Hollander herself starred in My Pleasure Is My Business (MPI, 1974), and Samantha McClaren played her in the hard-core The Life and Times of Xaviera Hollander (1974).

THE HAPPY HOOKER GOES HOLLYWOOD

(Warner, 1979) D: Alan Roberts S: Devi Goldenberg P: Menaham Golan

Martine Beswick, looking great, is Xaviera Hollander in the third and last of the "series," which is probably the funniest. She finances her own film by setting up a whorehouse with fantasy rooms in Los Angeles. Adam West costars, with Phil Silvers, Richard Deacon, Edie Adams as a Rona Barrett type, Chris Lemmon, Dick Miller, Army Archerd, Lindsay Bloom, Tanya Boyd, Susan Lynn Kiger (from Playboy), and K. C. Winkler. West and Deacon have a scene in drag. The Cannon release was called Hollywood Blue in the UK.

THE HAPPY HOOKER GOES TO WASHINGTON

(Warner, 1977) D/P: William A. Levey S: Robert Kaufman

Joey Heatherton takes over as Xaviera Hollander, the famous madam, in a sequel by the director of Blackenstein and Slumber Party '57. She's ordered to Washington to testify before Congress. Cannon put together a pretty crazed cast. George Hamilton costars, with Ray Walston, Jack Carter, Phil Foster, Marilyn Joi, Louisa Moritz, Billy Barty, Joyce Jilson (as herself), K. C. Winkler, Pamela Zinszer (from Playboy), Lisa London, and Raven De La Croix. It was one of the few starring roles for Heatherton, whose next appearence (in a movie that was released) was in John Waters' Cry-Baby. Kaufman also wrote the hit Love at First Bite, starring Hamilton.

Joey Heatherton and George Hamilton in The Happy Hooker Goes to Washington.

HAPPY HOUR

(Avid, 1987) D/P: John De Bello S/P: J. Stephen Peace S: Constance Dillon

Rich Little (the favorite impressionist of several US presidents) and Jamie Farr (from *M*A*S*H*) are each hired by rival beer companies to obtain a special formula that makes beer addictive. Tawny Kitaen works with Farr, and Eddie Deezen also has a role in this dumb comedy. Little is awful. Devo did the theme song. Add Strange Brew (1983) and Beer (1985) for a beer-comedy triple bill. De Bello also made the Killer Tomatoes movies (three of them).

HARDBODIES

(RCA, 1984) D/S: Mark Griffiths S: Steve Green, Eric Alter P: Jeff Begun, Ken Dalton

Some middle-aged guys at the beach hire a young guy to help them score with many (often topless) girls. Originally made for Playboy TV, it was released by Columbia. With Roberta Collins as Lana, Courtney Gaines, Joyce Jameson, Elizabeth Kaitan, and Kathleen Kinmont.

HARDBODIES II

(1986) D/S: Mark Griffiths S: Curtis Wilmot P: Jeff Begun, Ken Solomon

Some Americans are making a movie on a Greek island. There's less nudity than in the first one, but it's just as dumb. With Roberta Collins, Fabiana Udenio (Bride of Re-Animator), Brenda Bakke, and James Karen. More sequels followed.

HARD-BOILED

(Fox Lorber, 1992) D: John Woo S: Barry Wong P: Linda Kuk, Terence Chang Hong Kong

Chow Yun-Fat stars as a cop called Tequila who likes jazz. Tony Leung is an emotionally scarred hitman who's really an undercover cop. There's an incredible long, nonstop, high-body-count shootout at a large hospital, the secret headquarters of an arms-smuggling operation in the near future (1997). The killers are all dressed as cops, and the heroes are disguised as gangsters. Another shootout is in a restaurant. The American tape is 127 minutes (the film was originally 130) and is dubbed or subtitled. The Criterion laserdisc includes audio commentary by Woo. Woo went to New Orleans to make Hard Target next.

HARDCASE AND FIST

(Forum, 1988) D/S/P: Tony Zarindast S: Bud Fleischer

Ted Prior is a Nam-vet LA cop who goes undercover in prison to get mobsters. He also has combat flashbacks. With Carter Wong as a martial-arts fighter and Debra Lamb.

HARD CONTRACT

(Fox, 1969) D/S: S. Lee Pogostin P: Marvin Schwartz

James Coburn stars in a drama about a hired assassin in Europe who has sex only with prostitutes, until a socialite (Lee Remick) poses as a hooker, has an affair with him, and disrupts his routine. With Burgess Meredith, Sterling Hayden, Patrick Magee, Karen Black, and Lilli Palmer. It was shot on location in Europe and released by 20th Century–Fox.

HARDCORE

(Columbia, 1978) D/S: Paul Schrader P: Buzz Feitshams

George C. Scott stars as Van Dorn, a strict Calvinist from Grand Rapids, Michigan, who searches for his runaway daughter, now appearing in porno movies (like Slave of Love) in California. He hires a detective (Peter Boyle), then teams up with a young hooker (Season Hubley) who has met his daughter. Van Dorn investigates the porno business on various levels and even pays $100 to sit through a snuff film. At one point he puts on a phony beard and mustache, poses as a porno producer, and auditions male actors in an attempt to find the one who was in a photograph. Hardcore is interesting but laughable at times. X-rated-movie magazines went out of their way to condemn it and point out that the snuff connection was farfetched. Schrader himself was raised as a Calvinist in Grand Rapids. His next film was American Gigolo. With Dick Sargent (from Bewitched), Leonard Gaines, Ed Begley Jr., Leslie Ackerman, Bibi Besch, and Serena. John Milius was the executive producer. The Jack Nitzsche soundtrack includes cuts by CSNY, Mink De Ville, and Byron Berline.

HARD DRIVIN' = THUNDER IN CAROLINA

THE HARDER THEY COME

(HBO, 1973) D/S/P: Perry Henzell S: Trevor Rhone

Roger Corman's New World picked up this Jamaican film (the first), added subtitles, and released it first to inner-city theaters. Later it became a midnight movie-cult favorite and helped popularize reggae in the US. Singer Jimmy Cliff stars as Ivan, a reggae star in Kingston. He receives only $20 for his record, starts working in the ganja business to make some money, is set up, kills some cops, and becomes a martyr. By this time his record is a big hit. Much of the story is based on Cliff's real life, and it was also inspired by Italian westerns and American black-action films. The famous Mango soundtrack LP includes many hits by Cliff, Toots and the Maytals, Desmond Dekker, and others. Some other reggae films are Rockers (1978), and Reggae Sunsplash (1980). Cliff plays a role in the comedy Club Paradise (1986) and performs several songs.

Jimmy Cliff in The Harder They Come.

HARD HUNTED

(Columbia, 1992) D/S: Andy Sidaris P: Arlene Sidaris

Tony Peck (son of Gregory), who had costarred in Brenda Starr, probably never expected to be in a spy adventure full of Playboy Playmates and cellular-phone conversations, but here he is. R. J. Moore (son of Roger) is the young villain, who's after an atomic device in a jade Buddha. Carolyn Liu and Al Leong assist him. With Donna Spier (in her sixth Sidaris movie), Roberta Vasquez, Ava Cadall as the host of a radio sex show, Becky Mullen, and Claudia Brimhall (who sings). They all wear bikinis or nothing at all. The seventh in a series, it was partially filmed in Hawaii and Arizona.

THE HARD RIDE

(Orion, 1971) D/S: Burt Topper P: Charles Hanawalt

Robert Fuller (from The Wagon Train TV series) stars as a Nam vet returning home with his (black) friend's body, in this AIP biker movie with a message. Sherry Bain costars with William Bonner, Robert Tessier, and Marshall Reed. It features the last of the Davie Allen and the Arrows soundtracks (on Paramount), with additional songs by Bill Medley and others.

HARD ROAD

(SW, 1970) D/C/E: Gary Graver
S: Richard Stetson P: Ed De Priest

Connie Nelson (from Angels Die Hard!) stars as a 17-year-old drop-out mom who becomes a receptionist for an LA rock promoter (Gary Kent), smokes pot with a rock star, has (offscreen) sex, graduates to dropping bennies and snorting crystal (cue freakout sequence), dates lots of men, and moves in with a heroin addict (John Alderman) and his girlfriend. He makes her become a hooker, and she winds up in jail and goes cold turkey. But the final, worst, most destructive thing of all is that she takes LSD! This depressing, narrated, road-to-ruin movie (in color) crams in everything from similar films from all previous decades. A doctor introduces a birth-of-a-baby sequence, and there's a VD talk with gruesome visual warnings. With Liz Renay as the platinum-blond mother in mink, William Bonner, and Mike Weldon. It's a Johnny Legend video release.

HARD-ROCK ZOMBIES

(Vestron, 1983) D/S/P: Krishna Shaw
S: David Ball

Members of a heavy-metal band are murdered by a Hitler cult, return as zombies, and attack anti-rock locals, in this horror spoof. With Annabelle Larson and Lisa Toothman.

HARD TARGET

(MCA, 1993) D: John Woo
S/A: Chuck Pfarrer P: Rob Tapert

Jean-Claude Van Damme stars as Cajun merchant seaman Chance Boudreaux in Hong Kong director Woo's first film in English. Lance Henriksen is Fouchon, a rich villain who arranges hunts (in the style of The Most Dangerous Game) with ex-servicemen as the targets. Yancy Butler is Natasha (she plays the role using a single facial expression). New Orleans is portrayed as a lawless city full of homeless people and rampant crime. The action includes chase scenes on boats, motorcycles, and horseback, and there's an impressive ending in a warehouse full of Mardi Gras floats. With Arnold Vosloo as the short-haired right-hand man of the villain, Wilford Brimley as an old Cajun, and Kasi Lemmons as a cop. Sam Raimi was the executive producer, Ted Raimi has a cameo, and Dale Ashmun is an extra. This Universal release was cut for an R rating. It has a score by Graeme Revell.

HARD TICKET TO HAWAII

(Warner, 1987) D/S: Andy Sidaris P: Arlene Sidaris

Soap-opera star Ron Moss stars in this spy story with Playboy centerfolds who take their clothes off. Blondes Dona Spier and Hope Marie Carlton battle a drug ring, and there are sumo wrestlers, transvestite spies, and a cancer-infected snake. With Cynthia Brimhall and Patty Duffek. The next Sidaris movie was Picasso Trigger.

HARD TO DIE

(New Horizons, 1990) D/P: "Arch Stanton"/Jim Wynorski S: Mark McGee, James B. Rogers (Tower of Terror)

Melissa Moore, Gail Harris, and Bridget Carney (plus Lindsay Taylor and Debra Dare) arrive at a closed office building for an inventory job at Acme Lingerie. They take showers, try on underwear, move boxes upstairs, and walk around until one (Taylor, who is one of the best-looking women in these movies) becomes possessed. There's a gun shop in the building too, so you get women in lingerie shooting each other with machine guns. Orville Ketchum seems to be a killer zombie, and Forry Ackerman has one of his largest roles ever as a professor, although he never leaves his office. Posters for Wynorski movies are on a wall. It's fun and has lots of brainless action. The video box compares it to Die Hard! This 76-minute Concorde release was filmed back to back with Sorority House Massacre II (which had much of the same cast) and has flashback footage from Slumber Party Massacre.

HARD TO KILL

(Warner, 1989) D: Bruce Malmuth S: Steve McKay P: Lee Rich, Michael Rachmill

Steven Seagal is a cop who awakens from a 7-year coma and wants revenge. His family was killed and he was left for dead after he uncovered political corruption involving an evil senator. Seagal's real-life wife, Kelly LeBrock, costars as a nurse. With Bill Sadler and Frederick Coffin. Mamuth also directed Nighthawks.

HARD TRAIL

(1969) D/S: Greg Coratio P: Maurice Smith

In his only 60s film, Lash La Rue stars as Slade, leader of the Hard Bunch gang. Gary Graver shot this nasty-sounding adult western, which is said to exist in two versions, one with more sex and nudity. With Donna Bradley, John Bloom, and Monica Gayle.

THE HARD TRUTH

(Live, 1994) D: Kristine Peterson
S: Jonathan Tydor P: Brad Southwick

Eric Roberts is an electronic expert who's blackmailed into helping to steal some mob money by a suspended cop (Michael Rooker) and his girlfriend (Lysette Anthony). It's by the director of Body Chemistry.

HARDWARE

(HBO, 1990) D/S: Richard Stanley
P: Joanne Steller, Paul Trybit UK

Dylan McDermott and John Lynch are zone-tripper scavengers in post-nuke NYC. The head of a Mark 13 killer robot they find rebuilds itself in the bunker-style loft of Stacy Travis (as a dope-smoking red-haired artist). This impressive-looking movie has good FX and was made by a 24-year-old video director. It copies ideas from many earlier movies, but the creators of a 1981 Shok comic book sued over similarities. Travis has nude scenes and is watched by a voyeur. There's Iggy Pop's voice as Angry Bob on the radio, a dwarf junk dealer, Lemmy from Motorhead as a cabdriver, and segments from Mark Pauline and Gwar videos. To avoid an X rating in theaters 12 seconds were cut. R and unrated versions are available. The Simon Boswell soundtrack is on Varèse Sarabande.

Stacy Travis in Hardware.

THE HARD WAY

(MCA, 1991) D: John Badham S: Daniel Pyne, Lem Dobbs P: Rob Cohen, William Sackheim

Michael J. Fox stars as a movie star tagging along with tough NYC cop James Woods who is after an unstoppable serial killer (Stephen Lang). The climax takes place in a theater (showing a movie with Fox on screen) and on an impressive giant moveable sign that was actually erected in Times Square. With Annabel Sciorra, LL Cool J, Christina Ricci, and Penny Marshall. From Universal.

THE HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS ON GILLIGAN'S ISLAND

(1981) D: Peter Baldwin S/P: Elroy Schwartz
S: Sherwood Schwartz P: Hap Wyman

All of the original cast returned for this NBC-TV movie, except that Constance Forslund plays Ginger. With Martin Landau as a mad scientist who creates robots of the famous basketball-playing Globetrotters, Barbara Bain, Scatman Crothers, and Rosalind Chao. It followed Rescue from Gilligan's Island (1978) and The Castaways on Gilligan's Island (1979). Since these films were made, stars Alan Hale Jr., Jim Backus, and Natalie Schafer have all died.

HARLEM ON THE PRAIRIE

(1938) D: Sam Newfield S: Fred Myton P: Jed Buell

Herb Jeffries (a onetime singer with the Duke Ellington orchestra) is the singing-cowboy hero of the first all-black western. The contemporary story is about a search for gold. With Connie Harris, Maceo Sheffield, Spencer Williams, and comedians F. E. Miller and Mantan Moreland. The 55-minute film, from Associated Features, was one of 17 (!) Newfield films released that year. (Another one was The Terror of Tiny Town, an all-midget western.) Harlem Rides the Range (1939) also stars Jeffries.

HARLEY DAVIDSON: THE AMERICAN MOTORCYCLE

(Cabin Fever, 1993)

The Harley company endorsed this tape commemorating their 90th anniversary. It has movie clips, news footage, interviews, and a soundtrack by Robby Kreiger of the Doors. Hoyt Axton narrates, and James Caan, Peter Fonda, David Crosby, Larry Hagman, Lou Reed, and some country stars appear as special hosts. It's 73 minutes long.

HARLEY DAVIDSON AND THE MARLBORO MAN

(MGM, 1991) D: Simon Wincer
S: Don Michael Paul P: Jere Henshaw

Mickey Rourke is Harley, a broken-down biker in near-future LA (1996). He teams up with "the Marlboro Man," a bearded rodeo cowboy (Don Johnson), and they rob a corrupt bank president who's responsible for their favorite bar being shut down. But they end up with a stash of an addictive new drug called crystal dream, instead of money. The critically hated comic adventure features Tom Sizemore, Chelsea Field, Vanessa Williams, Tia Carrere, Daniel Baldwin, Giancarlo Esposito, Robert Ginty, and Julius Harris. From MGM.

HARLEY'S ANGELS: See NORTHVILLE CEMETERY MASSACRE

HAROLD AND MAUDE

(Paramount, 1972) D: Hal Ashby
S/P: Colin Higgins P: Charles Mulvehill

Harold (Bud Cort), a rich 14-year-old with a Cadillac hearse, falls for 79-year-old Maude (Ruth Gordon), who lives in an old railroad car. This black comedy became an early cult movie. (Maude was partially based on actor Peter Lawford's mother.) In some of the best scenes, Harold fakes his death in various ways to shock his family. The authority and military figures are cartoonish. Vivian Pickles costars, with Cyril Cusack, Charles Tyner, and Ellen Geer. The music by Cat Stevens is from his first LP for A&M. Ashby did The Last Detail next. In 1993 Cort directed himself in Ted and Venus.

THE HARRAD EXPERIMENT

(Wizard, 1973) D: Ted Post S: Ted Cassidy, Michael Werner P: Mel Sokolow

This R-rated Cinerama adaptation of Robert Rimmer's bestselling novel about free love at a coed college was pretty boring when new but is an interesting period piece today. It stars James Whitmore, with Tippi Hedren as a "human values" teacher. Don Johnson (in his third film), Laurie Walters, Victoria Thompson, Michael Greene, Gregory Harrison, and Bruno Kirby appear naked, and Johnson has an outdoor scene where he attempts to seduce Hedren, the mother of his future real-life wife, Melanie Griffith (who is an extra here). The improvisational group Ace Trucking Company appear as themselves. Walters and Thompson both returned in the sequel, Harrad Summer (1974), available on tape as Student Union (Wizard). The soundtracks of both films are on Capitol.

HARRY AND THE HENDERSONS

(MCA, 1987) D/S/P: William Dear S: William E. Martin

Spielberg's Amblin company backed this PG friendly-Bigfoot comedy with an anti-gun message. A family rescues the monster, then keeps it at home. With John Lithgow, Melinda Dillon, Lainie Kazan, Don Ameche, and M. Emmet Walsh. The FX by Rick Baker and ILM received an Oscar. The soundtrack is on MCA. Harry (the late Kevin Peter Hall) watches The Addams Family on TV. Hall also starred in the Harry and the Hendersons TV series and in Misfits of Science.

HARRY NOVAK'S BOX OFFICE BONANZA OF SEXPLOITATION TRAILERS, Volumes I and II

(SW)

Boxoffice International was one of the most prolific companies producing and releasing soft-core adult movies. They later branched out and acquired some horror and action movies from various countries. Volume I features 60s movies like Kiss Me Quick, The Touchables, The Bloody and the Bare, Mondo Mod, Cool It, Baby, Venus in Furs, and Mantis in Lace. Volume II features 70s movies, including Please Don't Eat My Mother, The Dirty Mind of Young Sally, When Women Played Ding Dong, and The Concubines. Each tape is 100 minutes.

THE HARVEST

(Columbia, 1992) D/S: David Marconi

Miguel Ferrer (who narrates) stars as a Prozac-popping American screenwriter who investigates an unsolved murder in a Mexican beach town. He meets a blonde (Leilani Sarelle, his real-life wife) in a gay bar but wakes up missing his valuables and a kidney. With Anthony John Denison as the blond bartender/killer, Henry Silva as the local police chief, Harvey Fierstein as the producer, Tim Thomerson, and Matt Clark. With flashbacks, flashforwards, hallucinations, slo-mo sex, some bloody killings, and a surprise ending. It's not great, but it's interesting to see Ferrer in a leading role and Silva as a good guy.

HARVEY

(MCA, 1951) D: Henry Koster S: Mary Chase, Oscar Brodney P: John Beck

James Stewart stars in this adaptation of Mary Chase's Pulitzer prize–winning comedy about a gentle alcoholic named Elwood P. Dowd who talks to a 6-foot-tall, invisible rabbit. Josephine Hull as his sister (she received an Oscar), Victoria Horne, and Jesse White (great as an asylum guard) had been in the Broadway production. The cast also includes Cecil Kellaway, Peggy Dow, Wallace Ford, and Charles Drake. It's similar to some of the classic Capra films. Universal released it.

THE HAUNTED

(VC2, 1976) D/S/P: Michael De Gaetano P: Nicholas P. Nizich

An Indian woman (Anne Michelle) is accused of witchcraft during the Civil War, put on a horse (naked), and sent to die in the desert. Makes sense, right? About 100 years later the descendants of her persecutors in an Arizona ghost town think they're cursed. Aldo Ray lives with his blind, widowed sister-in-law (Virginia Mayo) and his two nephews. One of them (Jim Negele) sings sappy folk songs and falls for a British woman (Michelle, of course) who gets stuck there until her red convertible is repaired. Mayo has tasteful sex flashbacks to "when he eased into me." A phone booth is installed in the cemetery (!?), and Aldo (the real star) gets meaner and crazier. The soundtrack (!) is on Midland. The dialogue is pretentious and depressing. This is by the director of UFO: Target Earth.

THE HAUNTED

(1991) D: Robert Mandel S: Darrah Cloud P: Daniel Schneider

A Catholic wife (Sally Kirkland) is the only member of her family to notice strange things in their new house. She consults experts on demons and ghosts, as well as a priest. In one scene she floats in her bedroom. It's "based on a real story." Jeffrey De Munn, Louise Latham, Stephen Markle, Diane Baker, and Joyce Van Patten are also in this Fox-TV movie.

THE HAUNTED CASTLE

(Video Yesterday, 1921) D: F. W. Murnau S: Carl Mayer, Berthold Viertel Germany (Schloss Vogelöd)

Paul Hartmann stars in this crime story as a nobleman who entertains guests amid strange happenings. A dream sequence features a phantom bird. This silent film is 75 minutes long and has English intertitles. Murnau, who had directed a version of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde called Der Januskopf in 1920, made Nosferatu next.

HAUNTED HONEYMOON

(HBO, 1986) D/S/A: Gene Wilder S: Terence Marsh P: Susan Ruskin

Wilder and his real-life wife Gilda Radner star in a horror comedy patterned on those of the 30s and 40s. He plays a 30s radio actor (like Red Skelton in his Whistling series). With Dom DeLuise as a woman, Jonathan Pryce, and Paul L. Smith. There's a werewolf and sets that copy the silent film The Cat and the Canary. It's not very funny, but it is strange to see Radner (before she died in real life) appear as a ghost. This PG Orion release was filmed in England (as was the 1940 movie of the same name, starring Robert Montgomery).

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

(1928) D: Benjamin Christensen S: Richard Bee, Lajos Biro P: Wid Gunning

Four possible heirs to a fortune go to an old family house where they find a weird caretaker (William V. Mong), a mad doctor (Montague Love), a nurse (Thelma Todd), and a sleepwalking woman who sings. The ghosts turn out to be fake. This horror comedy, based on a play, also features Chester Conklin and Flora Finch. Cornell Woolrich wrote the intertitles. First National released it in silent and partial-sound versions. All prints are now lost. The Danish Christensen (spelled Christiansen in the US) also made Seven Footprints to Satan and The House of Horror (both 1929) with Mong and Todd. He was a director, screenwriter, and actor whose best-known film is Häxan (Witchcraft Through the Ages), made in Sweden in 1922.

HAUNTED SUMMER

(Media, 1988) D: Ivan Passer S: Lewis John Carlino P: Martin Poll UK

This movie, based on a novel by Anne Edwards, shows the young free-love-and-drugs crowd Mary Shelley (Alice Krige) was part of when she created the novel Frankenstein at a villa in Switzerland during the summer of 1816. With Philip Anglim as a bisexual Lord Byron, Eric Stoltz as Percy Bysshe Shelley, Laura Dern, Rupert Everett, and Alex Winter as Dr. John Polidori. It's from Cannon. Ken Russell's Gothic (1986) tells the same story.

HAUNTING FEAR

(Rhino, 1989) D/S/P: Fred Olen Ray

Brinke Stevens stars as a wife who has nightmares and is afraid of being buried alive, in this movie "based on" Poe's story "The Premature Burial." Her husband (Jay Richardson) has (almost-X) sex with his secretary (Delia Sheppard), and they plot to get rid of her. She returns from being "dead" in the basement, laughing while she kills. With guest stars Jan-Michael Vincent as a cop who sits in his car, Karen Black as a hypnotist, Robert Clarke as a doctor, Robert Quarry, Michael Berryman, and Hoke Howell. And talk about unholy alliances! It's a Fred Olen Ray movie acquired by Troma and released by Rhino.

THE HAUNTING OF M

(1979) D/S/P: Anna Thomas

Shelagh Gilbey is Marianna, a spinster haunted by the ghost of a young man from Victorian times. Her actress sister (Nina Pitt) helps to figure out who the ghost is and why he's there. This low-budget film was made in Scotland by a UCLA graduate.

THE HAUNTING OF MORELLA

(New Horizons, 1990) D: Jim Wynorski S: R. J. Robertson P: Roger Corman

It's bad but still pretty entertaining for a lesbian-sex/horror movie based on Poe. The tale of Lenora, possessed by her father's late wife, Morella, had previously been told in Corman's Tales of Terror (1962). Nicole Eggert (from the T. J. Hooker TV series) is Lenora (and Morella). A lesbian scene in a waterfall with tall Lana Clarkson and Maria Ford is pretty memorable. And check out the bikini underwear. With an unshaven David McCallum in dark shades as the reclusive New England father, Deborah Dutch, and Gail Thackray.

THE HAUNTING OF SARAH HARDY

(Paramount, 1989) D: Jerry London S: Thomas Baum P: Richard Rothschild

Newlywed Sela Ward is haunted by her late mother (a suicide) in the family mansion. It all turns out to involve deception and blackmail. With Morgan Fairchild as her soap-opera-actress friend, Polly Bergen as the housekeeper, Roscoe Born, and Michael Woods. It was made on the coast of Oregon and debuted on the USA Network.

THE HAUNTING OF SEACLIFF INN

(1994) D/S: Walter Klenhard S: Tom Walla P: Timothy Marx

Ally Sheedy and William R. Moses are a couple that move into an old Mendicino home to open a bed-and-breakfast. They discover that murders had occurred there a century ago and ghosts of the victims appear. With Lucinda Weist and Louise Fletcher. From USA cable.

THE HAUNTING PASSION

(1983) D: John Korty S: Michael Berk, Douglas Schwartz P: Paul Radin

Jane Seymour, married to sportscaster Gerald McRaney (from Major Dad) and living near a bayou, finds herself interested in a sexy ghost. The NBC-TV movie was billed as "an erotic ghost story." With Millie Perkins.

THE HAWK

(Academy, 1993) D: David Hayman S: Peter Ransley UK

Helen Mirren is a woman with a history of depression who suspects that her husband (George Costigan) is a serial killer who gouges eyes out. Mirren is best known in the US for her starring role as a police detective in the British series Prime Suspect and its sequels, shown on PBS.

HAWKEN'S BREED

(Starmaker, 1986) D/S/P: Charles B. Pierce P: Sandy Garrison

Peter Fonda is a frontier trapper who helps an Indian woman avenge the murder of her husband and son. (Fonda says that this movie was never finished, but it showed up on tape anyway.) With Serene Headin, Jack Elam, Sue Ane Langdon, and Bill Thurman. From the maker of the Boggy Creek movies.

HEAD

(Rhino, 1968) D/S/P: Bob Rafelson S/P: Jack Nicholson

The Monkees (Peter Tork, Micky Dolenz, Davy Jones, and Michael Nesmith) were in only one movie, released several months after their Help-inspired TV show was cancelled by NBC. It confused their young fans with its plotless, anti-establishment, drug-influenced, musical-comedy segments, as the foursome search for the meaning of life and sing about how phony the Monkees concept is! Now it's a visually fascinating period piece full of Hollywood in-jokes, fringe celebrities, clips from old movies, and Vietnam War footage. The band is seen as dandruff on Victor Mature's head. Their music is criticized by Frank Zappa. Davy is KO'd by Sonny Liston. They encounter topless dancer Carol Doda, Annette Funicello, and Terry (later Teri) Garr. A news clip of a very mean-looking California governor Ronald Reagan is pretty chilling. Also look for clips from The Black Cat and for wrestler Tiger Joe Marsh, who looks like Tor Johnson. Nicholson had just written the script for Roger Corman's The Trip. He worked on Head with Rafelson the year before he was recognized as star material in Easy Rider. Nicholson, Dennis Hopper, and Rafelson are all in Head, taking part in behind-the-scenes "it's only a movie" gags. Kubrick fans might want to see it for its references to Dr. Strangelove's Coke machine and the 2001 monolith, plus early Kubrick regular Timothy Carey, who takes acting honors in a memorable schizo-scary recurring role. This would make an interesting video double bill with The Trip, for the scenes of Mike Nesmith's bad drug trip, which are similar to Peter Fonda's horror/acid visions. It includes some beautiful solarized color photography, imaginative FX, and musical segments that would make great rock videos on their own. Monte Hellman was the editor. The songs are some of the group's best and can also be heard on Rhino's reissued soundtrack album. Rhino has also released episodes of the TV show on tape.

THE HEAD

(Sinister, 1959) D/S: Victor Trivas P: Wolf C. Hartwig W. Germany (Die Nackte und der Satan)

This is the movie that obviously inspired the American film The Brain That Wouldn't Die. Dr. Abel (French actor Michel Simon) can keep a dog's head alive using his Serum Z. The mysterious Dr. Ood (Horst Frank) arrives at the (very modern) clinic, picks up a turtle, notices the crippled, hunchbacked nurse, and quickly takes over. When Abel dies of heart disease, Ood saves his head, keeps it hooked up to tubes on a table, and makes him help in experiments to give the nurse a new body! As in the American movie, the crazed scientist wants a really sexy body, so naturally he goes to the Tam-Tam Sex Club to check some out. Seconds after the successful operation Ood offers the surprised stripper/nurse a cigarette and starts kissing her. The only reason that the respected Michel Simon agreed to play a head in a German exploitation movie was that his body and face had temporarily been partially paralyzed after he used some tainted makeup. Unable to find work, he took this undemanding role for the money, hoping the movie wouldn't cross the border. It also features Barbara Valentin, sort of a German Diana Dors, whom some will remember from Fassbinder films. When it was released in Cleveland in 1961, shrunken heads were given away free to patrons at the Hippodrome.

HEADHUNTER

(Academy, 1988) D: Francis Schaeffer
S: Len Spinelli P: Jay Davidson S. Africa

After The Believers, Angel Heart, and The Serpent and the Rainbow, all fairly big-budget voodoo movies, we got low-budget voodoo movies like this. Wayne Crawford, an exploitation star since Barracuda (1978), looks sort of like Frank Zappa's lost brother. He plays a brooding, drinking Miami cop whose wife (June Chadwick) has a female lover: "My wife is a muff diver!" Soon he's sleeping with his sympathetic partner, Kay Lenz (who should be in better movies). Meanwhile, a tribe in Nigeria is attacked by an unseen force, and a witch doctor in Miami is decapitated. More people are decapitated by a "chameleon demon" while The Hideous Sun Demon plays on TV. After a lot of boring talk the ending is absurd enough to wake you up. Crawford's possessed wife (with an Exorcist voice) rips off his car door. The sight of him driving wildly to get away with no door is hilarious. The ending involves a chainsaw fight intercut with more Sun Demon footage and a demon who looks an awful lot like the one in The Unnameable. If the "Nigerian community" of Miami looks strangely unfamiliar, it's because the movie was really shot in South Africa.

HEADLESS EYES

(Wizard, 1971) D/S: Ken Bateman P: Ronald Sullivan

A starving artist (Bo Brundin) has his eye popped out with a spoon when he tries to burglarize a Manhattan apartment. He kills people, scoops their eyes out, and makes sculptures and mobiles with them. The very low-budget oddity, made in New York City, was released in 1983. Sullivan was later known as porno director Henri Pachard.

HEADS

(Republic, 1993) D: Paul Shapiro S: Jay Stapleton
P: Jonathan Goodwill, Derek Mazur Canada

Jon Cryer (who narrates) is a young proofreader on a small-town newspaper who's trying to solve a series of decapitation murders. He reluctantly gets involved with the wild, estranged daughter (Jennifer Tilly) of his editor boss (Edward Asner) and also becomes the prime suspect. With Roddy McDowall, Earl Pastko (from Route 66) as Lloyd, and Shawn Alex Thompson. This R-rated black comedy with eccentric characters doesn't really work, but the many well-done scenes of heads and headless bodies are kind of surprising (and there's a nightmare sequence). It was made for Showtime in Manitoba.

HEALER

(1994) D/P: John G. Thomas S: Russ Reina

Tyrone Power Jr. is an ex-con working as a paramedic who learns the value of life. John R. Johnson costars. David McCallum is a drifter called the Jackal, and Turhan Bey is an old Russian immigrant.

HEAR NO EVIL

(1982) D: Harry Falk S: Tom Lazarus P: Paul Pompian

This pilot for a CBS-TV series about a San Francisco cop (Gil Gerard) who becomes deaf in a fight is no big deal, but the subplot about drug-dealing bikers is pretty good. Wings Hauser and Brion James are the main bikers, and Raven De La Croix (!) is one of their women. They have a huge, Wild Angels–style funeral procession. With Bernie Casey and Mimi Rogers.

HEAR NO EVIL

(Fox, 1992) D: Robert Greenwald
S: R. M. Badat P: Davis Matalon

In a plot that copies Wait Until Dark, Marlee Matlin is a deaf woman whose life is in danger because she unknowingly has a valuable stolen coin. D. B. Sweeney falls for her while trying to help, which leads to scenes showing how to relate to deaf people and a brief topless shot of Matlin. Martin Sheen is the corrupt police lieutenant (a role his brother Joe Estevez could have handled), and Mickey O'Malley (giving the best performance) is a reporter. Marge Redmond (from The Flying Nun) is in one scene. It's by the director of Xanadu.

HEART AND SOULS

(MCA, 1993) D: Ron Underwood S: Brent Maddock, S. S. Wilson P: Nancy Roberts, Sean Daniel

In the most complex of the many soul-transfer movies, the souls of four people who died in a San Francisco bus crash in 1959 all end up entering the body of a yuppie bankruptcy lawyer (Robert Downey Jr.), born at the instant of the crash. They take him over one at a time to complete unfinished tasks. Downey has an acting challenge as he adapts the characteristics of the various spirits. With Charles Grodin, Tom Sizemore, Alfre Woodard, and Kyra Sedgwick as the souls, and Elisabeth Shue. This PG-13 Universal release is by the director of Tremors.

HEARTBREAK HOTEL

(Vid America, 1973) D: Richard Robinson
S: B. W. Sandefur P/A: Michael Christian
(Black Vengeance; Redneck County; Poor Pretty Eddie)

Shelley Winters has been in so many obscure movies that it's no wonder few people remember this all-star disaster, made somewhere in between the more famous Cleopatra Jones and Tentacles. Producer Christian stars as Eddie, a gigolo would-be Elvis impersonator. Shelley is Birtha, a mean, alcoholic, racist, vain, jealous ex-stripper who owns a backwoods motel. Her faithful servant is big Ted Cassidy (with a facial scar). Slim Pickens is pretty funny as the yokel sheriff ("Hot dayam!") with a retarded nephew. Dub Taylor is a bartender/justice of the peace ("Goddamn Yankees are like hemorrhoids!"). They're all a living nightmare for star Leslie Uggams, as a famous TV singer unfortunate enough to have her car break down nearby. Eddie, who seems harmless at first, attempts rape. Then the terrorized woman is locked up, accused of stealing a jeep, and put on trial. If that's not distasteful enough for you, Shelley does her strip act. You've been warned. Uggams had been a regular on the TV show Sing Along with Mitch. The director made Thunder County next, followed by Women's Prison Escape (both 1974). This one is available under various titles, sometimes in boxes that might make you think it's a horror movie.

Ted "Lurch" Cassidy in Heartbreak Hotel.

HEARTBREAK HOTEL

(Touchstone, 1988) D/S: Chris Columbus
P: Debra Hill, Linda Obst

Elvis (David Keith) is kidnapped by an Ohio teen (Charlie Schlatter) in 1972. He cheers up the kid's family, and they help him return to his roots. Tuesday Weld (from Wild in the Country) is the divorced mom. Flashbacks from Elvis movies are used (the Presley estate cooperated). I worked in a Cleveland record store with a good stock of Elvis LPs at the time this movie takes place and can testify that many diehard Elvis fanatics in Ohio would have been capable of kidnapping him, no matter what the cost. Many people thought Elvis could literally perform miracles. Many still do.

HEART CONDITION

(Columbia, 1990) D/S: James D. Parriott
P: Robert Shaye

Bob Hoskins and Denzel Washington star in this action/fantasy comedy whose plot is similar to the plot of The Thing with Two Heads. A racist LA cop (Hoskins) receives a heart transplant from a murdered black lawyer (Washington) who shows up as a ghost and makes him help find the killer. With Chloe Webb, Roger E. Mosley, and Ja'net Du Bois. It's by the director of Misfits of Science. From New Line.

HEART OF DARKNESS

(Turner, 1993) D: Nicolas Roeg S: Benedict Fitzgerald P: Bob Christiansen, Rick Rosenberg

Nicolas Roeg decided to film Joseph Conrad's 1902 novel with the original setting. It's interesting to compare this with Apocalypse Now. Tim Roth stars as Marlow, who tells his story in flashback. He's sent by a Belgian trading company on a journey up the Congo River in a leaky steamboat to find Kurtz (John Malkovich), an ivory trader who has become a mad prophet and king. With Morten Faldaas (in the Dennis Hopper role), James Fox, and Iman. It was filmed in Belize and debuted on TNT. Marlow is also the narrator of Conrad's Lord Jim, filmed in 1965.

HEART OF JUSTICE

(1992) D: Bruno Barreto S: Keith Reddin P: Donald P. Borchers

A novelist (Dennis Hopper) is gunned down by the man (Dermot Mulroney) he based his last novel on. The cast of this film noir includes Eric Stoltz, Jennifer Connelly, and the late Vincent Price. Price and Connelly were also in movies that Hopper directed around the same time. This was made for TNT by the director of Dona Flor and Her Two Husbands.

HEART OF MIDNIGHT

(Virgin, 1988) D/S: Mathew Chapman
P: Andrew Gaty

Jennifer Jason Leigh stars as a troubled young woman who inherits a closed-down warehouse club from her uncle, who died of AIDS. It turns out to have been an S&M sex club with red walls, secret passages, and theme rooms. A guy who seems to be a cop (Peter Coyote) keeps showing up. This confused movie has many attempts at surrealism, lots of flashbacks, and a girl in a rubber dress chained up. With Frank Stallone as a singing cop, Steve Buscemi, and Brenda Vaccaro as the mother. It was filmed in Charleston, South Carolina. Chapman also made Strangers Kiss, a tribute to Stanley Kubrick.

HEARTS OF DARKNESS: A FILMMAKER'S JOURNEY

(Paramount, 1991) D/S: Fax Bahr, George Hickenlooper P: George Laloom, Les Mayfield

Orson Welles planned to film Joseph Conrad's Heart of Darkness in 1939. George Lucas was going to direct a contemporary version, Apocalypse Now, in 1969. Coppola started it in 1976, and it wasn't released until 1979. This excellent documentary, partially based on behind-the-scenes footage shot by Eleanor Coppola, tells the whole story of the production: filming during a civil war in the Philippines, dealing with President Marcos, using a real local tribe, Harvey Keitel being fired after one week, and Martin Sheen's heart attack. We see how they filmed the tiger scene and the decapitated heads, how the script was changed often, and how the actors improvised (including 14-year-old Larry (now Laurence) Fishburne). The Coppola kids (Sophia, Gio, and Roman) appear, and there are scenes on a French plantation never seen before and Mondo-like segments of the (actual) ritual killing of animals. It debuted on Showtime, then was shown in theaters.

HEARTS OF FIRE

(Lorimar, 1987) D/P: Richard Marquand
S: Scott Richardson, Joe Esterhaus P: Jennifer Miller, Jennifer Alward UK/Canada

Bob Dylan is retired rock star Billy Parker on his chicken farm near Pittsburgh. His 18-year-old singing girlfriend, Molly McGuire (one-hit singer Fiona Flanagan), leaves him (and her toll-booth job) and goes to the estate of British rock star James Colt (Rupert Everett). Billy follows, so we get to see Dylan jump into a crowd of jeering punks and throw a TV (and a bed) out of a window, in this really embarrassing love-triangle story. Everett sings "Tainted Love," and a blind female fan blows her brains out during a show. With Julian Glover as a butler named Alfred, Richie Havens (who sings), Ron Wood, and Ian Dury. Marquand, the director of Return of the Jedi, died during production. The soundtrack is on Columbia.

HEARTSTOPPER

(Tempe, 1989) D/S: John Russo P: Charles A. Gelini

Kevin Kindlin stars as a physician who is hanged as a vampire at Fort Pitt during the American Revolution and is resurrected in modern times. He confesses his story (in flashback) to a priest, kills members of a multiracial gang with a razor (as in Martin), and falls for Lenora (Moon Zappa!). A descendant turns out to be a masked serial killer who wants to be a vampire. Tom Savini is a cop who has flashbacks, cries, and is shown pumping up. Savini also provided the FX (surgery and autopsy scenes, an arm that grows back). Michael J. Pollard is an odd vampire expert. The constant time changes are disorienting, and the sappy love themes are a bit much, but it's an interesting enough vampire movie. Russo based the film (made in Pittsburgh) on his novel The Awakening. The vocals are by Michael J. Weldon.

HEAT

(Paramount, 1972) D/S/C: Paul Morrissey
S: John Howell P: Andy Warhol M: John Cale
(Andy Warhol's Heat)

Joe Dallesandro stars as a former child actor who's now a hustler, and Sylvia Miles is a fading minor movie star, in Morrissey's Sunset Boulevard parody. With Pat Ast, Andrea Feldman, and Ray Vestal. It was the third (and most commercial) of Morrissey's underground Dallesandro "trilogy," which includes Flesh and Trash.

HEATHERS

(Starmaker, 1989) D: Michael Lehmann
S: Daniel Waters P: Denise Di Novi

"This is Ohio. If you don't have a brewski in your hand, you might as well be wearing a dress." Winona Ryder and Christian Slater star in this great teen movie, a black comedy and murder story set in Westerburg, Ohio. Although parts are like Massacre at Central High, this has realistic teen dialogue and is right on target about peer pressure, sports, and class horrors. Shannen Doherty, Lisanne Falk, and Kim Walker are the Heathers, a trio of bitchy, perfect, have-it-all girls whom Veronica (Ryder) hangs out with until she meets the devious (and crazy) J.D. (Slater). With Penelope Milford, Glenn Shadix as a preacher, and Rene Estevez. Lehmann followed this with The Applegates. It's from New World. David Newman's soundtrack is on Varèse Sarabande.

HEAT OF PASSION

(1991) D/S/P: Rodman Flender

A young actor living in a crummy apartment (Nick Corri) falls for a psychotherapist (Sally Kirkland). He plays a rapist in a TV docudrama series (hosted by Jack Carter). There's lots of nudity and sex in this "erotic thriller" by the director of The Unborn.

HEAT STREET

(City Lights, 1987) D/S/P: Joseph Merhi
P: Richard Pepin

In this violent, direct-to-tape release, a black boxing coach (Quincy Adams), whose daughter was killed by bikers, and a white repo man (Del Zamora) team up to battle LA gangs.

HEAT WAVE

(Sinister, 1954) D/S: Ken Hughes P: Anthony Hinds UK (The House Across the Lake)

Hillary Brooke stars as a blond murderess in this early Hammer mystery, with Alex Nicol as a novelist, Paul Carpenter, and Sidney James. Lippert released this 68-minute film in the US.

HEAVEN

(Pacific Arts, 1987) D: Diane Keaton P: Joe Kelly

Here's an example of what an Oscar-winning actress can do with spare time and money. "100" people are asked what they think about Heaven, and lots of good (unidentified) old (public-domain) film clips are seen. In this unique PG-13 documentary, many of the people interviewed are very serious about what they hope to find in Heaven, but most of the clips are funny (because they're from old comedies or are just so absurd). Clips from various church and evangelist films are also used. With Don King and clips from Ron Ormond movies. I was a consultant on this movie, and I didn't get it either. Keaton also directed a Belinda Carlisle video in 1987.

HEAVEN AND EARTH

(Live, 1992) D/S: Haruki Kadokawa S: Toshido Kamata, Isao Yoshihara P: Yutaka Okada Japan

This imitation of a Kurosawa epic is about 16th-century samurai-warlord brothers. One (Takaai Enoki) is spiritual and celibate. The other (Masahiko Tsugawa) is ruthless and wants more territory. Huge battle scenes with thousands of extras are the main attraction. It's narrated by Stuart Whitman and was filmed (for $42 million) in western Canada. It's been shown (subtitled and letterboxed) on cable TV.

HEAVEN BECOMES HELL

(1989) D/S: Mickey Nivelli P: Lotte Nivelli (Jealous)

Two actors start a religion to raise the money to make an action movie. James Davies stars, with Michael Walker (as himself), Ruth Collins, and a West Indian supporting cast. This movie was made in New York City on a very low budget.

HEAVEN CAN WAIT

(Fox, 1943) D/P: Ernst Lubitsch S: Samson Raphaelson

A late-19th-century man who is considered a sinner (Don Ameche) recalls his life as he waits to enter Hell. With Gene Tierney, Laird Cregar as the Devil, Spring Byington, Marjorie Main, Charles Coburn, Allyn Joslyn, Signe Hasso, Florence Bates, Eugene Pallette, Louis Calhern, Scotty Beckett, and Dickie Moore. This 20th Century–Fox color production is based on a play by Laszlo Bus-Fekete. Defending Your Life (1991) used the same idea.

HEAVEN CAN WAIT

(Paramount, 1978) D/S/A: Warren Beatty
D/A: Buck Henry S: Elaine May

Warren Beatty stars as an LA Rams quarterback who goes to Heaven ahead of schedule and is allowed to return in the body of a murdered millionaire, in this updated remake of Here Comes Mr. Jordan (1941). This PG comedy hit was nominated for a lot of Oscars and was probably the inspiration for the many angel, ghost, and body-switch movies that followed. It was also Beatty's last hit until Bugsy (1992). With James Mason as Mr. Jordan, Julie Christie, Dyan Cannon as the unfaithful wife, Charles Grodin as her lover, Vincent Gardenia as the coach, Buck Henry, R. G. Armstrong, Hamilton Camp, and Keene Curtis.

HEAVEN HELP US

(HBO, 1985) D: Michael Dinner S: Charles Purpura P: Dan Wigutow, Mark Carliner

Kids in a Brooklyn Catholic school in 1963 are constantly threatened with Purgatory for venial sins. This comedy stars Andrew McCarthy, Kevin Dillon, Brad Dourif, Patrick Dempsey, Mary Stuart Masterson, Stephen Geoffreys, John Heard, and Wallace Shawn and Donald Sutherland as priests.

HEAVENLY BODIES!

(RM, 1963) D/S/P/A/C/E: Russ Meyer

This was the last of Meyer's plotless color nudie movies. It's only 62 minutes and played with Meyer's 10-minute short Skyscrapers and Brassieres. Both star Rochelle Kennedy. (Beware of a 1985 teen comedy with the same name, available on tape.) Lorna, Meyer's breakthrough hit, was next.

HEAVENLY CREATURES

(Mirimax, 1994) D/S: Peter Jackson S: Frances Walsh P: Jim Booth New Zealand

Pauline, a shy, impressionable New Zealand schoolgirl (Melanie Lynsky, who narrates from a diary) is greatly influenced by Juliet, an imaginative, wealthy, blond English schoolgirl (Kate Winslet), and they eventually commit a murder. This unique movie is based on a real case from the 1950s. Orson Welles is a major character in the girls' fantasy dream world, as one of many clay models that come to life, in clips from The Third Man, and portrayed by an actor. The Juliet character grew up to be best-selling mystery novelist Anne Perry, a fact not known until this movie was released. The director's fourth feature was an arthouse hit (the acting is excellent) and was the first to receive attention outside of horror fanzines in America.

THE HEAVENLY KID

(HBO, 1985) D/S: Gary Medoway
S: Martin Copeland P: Mort Engleberg

A 60s juvenile delinquent (Lewis Smith) dies in a chicken race, then is brought back 17 years later as a guardian angel for a suicidal teen wimp (Jason Gedrick). This PG-13 teen comedy from Orion features a subway Purgatory, an angel on a motorcycle, and characters taking escalators to Heaven. With Jane Kaczmarek, Richard Mulligan, and Nancy Valen. Elektra released the soundtrack, featuring various artists.

HEAVEN ONLY KNOWS

(1947) D: Albert S. Rogell S: Art Arthur, Rowland Leigh P: Seymour Nebenzel (Montana Mike)

Robert Cummings is an angel named Mike who's sent to the Old West to help a Montana saloon keeper and gambler (Brian Donlevy) save his soul. Mike isn't allowed to work any miracles, though. Marjorie Reynolds costars in this UA comedy/fantasy, with Stuart Irwin, John Litel, Edgar Kennedy, and Gerald Mohr.

HEAVEN WITH A GUN

(1969) D: Lee H. Katzin S: Richard Carr P: Frank King

Glenn Ford stars as a western preacher who is forced to reach for his guns. This is the first of several films with Barbara Hershey and David Carradine. She's Leloopa, an Indian whose father is hanged by Coke (Carradine), the henchman of evil John Anderson. The plot involves farmers vs. sheepmen. With Carolyn Jones, Noah Beery, Virginia Gregg, and Angelique Pettyjohn.

HEAVY METAL

(1981) D: Gerald Potterton S: Dan Goldberg, Len Blum P: Ivan Reitman

These 8 animated episodes based on comic strips from Heavy Metal comics are linked by an evil green monolith. A favorite segment (the first) concerns a cabdriver in New York City of the future. The science-fiction and fantasy episodes were made in various styles by animators in various countries. Reitman hired fellow Canadians John Vernon, Harold Ramis, Joe Flaherty, John Candy, and Eugene Levy for the voices. The music by Blue Oyster Cult (a great theme song), Devo ("Working in a Coal Mine"), Grand Funk, and others is on the hit Asylum soundtrack recording.

HEAVY PETTING

(Academy, 1989) D: Josh Waletzky
D/P: Obie Benz S: Pierce Rafferty

Sex in the 50s is the topic of this comic documentary. The many clips (from features and sex-ed films) are great, but only certain viewers will enjoy the semi-underground stars who are interviewed. They include David Byrne, William S. Burroughs, Allan Ginsberg, Sandra Bernhard, Ann Magnuson, Zoe Tamerlis/Lund, Josh Mostel, Spalding Gray, Laurie Anderson, and the late Abbie Hoffman. They all discuss dating and growing up in the 50s (even though some seem to have been born a little late for it). Rafferty codirected The Atomic Cafe. Rick Prelinger supplied the great archival footage.

HEAVY TRAFFIC

(AIP, 1973) D/S: Ralph Bakshi P: Steve Kranz

Bakshi's follow-up to Fritz the Cat was an X-rated (later R) AIP release mixing live action with rotoscope animation. An Italian/Jewish artist unleashes his personal furies and ends up in a cartoon. New York City is seen as a pinball machine with gangsters. The music consists of rock hits, plus some jazz and classical music. The voices were provided by Joseph Kaufman, Beverly Hope Atkinson, Jamie Farr, and Frank De Kova. Bakshi later used the same concept for Cool World.

HEIMWEH NACH ST. PAULI

(Fright, 1963) D: Werner Jacobs S: Gustav Kampendonk P: Rapid-Constantin
Germany (Homesick for St. Paul)

This is in German, and Jayne Mansfield's not in it enough, but it's pretty amusing. Freddie Quinn (a short singing star) is Jimmy Jones, "the lonesome star." His first number (in a New York TV studio) is incredible. Wearing a silver suit and surrounded by dancing girls, he sings (in English), "I've got everything—suede shoes, diamond ring, golden guitar. They're callin' me the lonesome star!" Then he does a plug for Pam macaroni. Jayne, as "Sexy Hexy"/Evelyn, sings (dubbed in German) while holding a long cigarette holder. It's all a setup for a sentimental anti-showbiz musical, though, as Jimmy hides out from comical agents who want him to do Vegas, returns home to his flower-selling family, and enjoys drinking with his buddies on the Reeperbahn. First he walks around the pier in Hoboken and sings the theme ballad. In Hamburg guest star Jayne sings about Jimmy ("I've seen sailors, whalers") and does the twist. Quinn starred in about a dozen movies.

HE KILLS NIGHT AFTER NIGHT AFTER NIGHT

(1969) D: "Lewis J. Force"/Lindsay Shonteff
S: Dail Amber P: James Mellor
UK (Night Slasher; Night After Night)

A ripper kills women in London. A cross-dressing judge is the culprit. With Jack May and Linda Marlowe.

HELGA

(1967) D/S: Erich F. Bender, Terry Van Tell P: Karl-Ludwig Ruppel, Vers Salvatore Billitteri W. Germany

Mom and Dad, the most famous old road-show childbirth film, was still playing when this more modern color version of the same idea was released. Helga (Ruth Gassman) becomes pregnant and has a baby boy. That's the plot, but the attraction was the actual childbirth scene. The US version contains some new footage and a prologue. AIP also released the sequel, Michael and Helga (1968).

HE LIVES

(Camp, 1967) D: Joseph Kane S: Don Fearheighly
P: E. Stanley Williamson (The Search for the Evil One)

I expected this obscure Hitler horror movie to be terrible, like Flesh Feast or They Saved Hitler's Brain. It's no classic, but it's not exactly "camp" either. Flashbacks reveal that Hitler's double took poison in the bunker. The dictator and his faithful Martin Bormann (the late Henry Brandon) hide out in Madrid, Buenos Aires, and finally a castle in the Andes. Lee Paterson (later a regular on One Life to Live) is the Jewish hero, Anton Becker, who survived the Holocaust as a child. He's summoned to Israel, then sent by the OAS to work undercover in the Andes. He makes up with a hateful ex-girlfriend whose father is one of the Nazis. Another (nice) ex-girlfriend turns out to be a local doctor and accidentally ruins his cover. The crazed, gray-haired Hitler gives a speech about the Fourth Reich, then passes out. Bormann hunts Becker with German shepherds, in the style of The Most Dangerous Game. Armed OAS agents hide nearby, ready to attack. There are some disorienting editing mistakes and jumps, and absurd plot turns, but the color is good, and the movie is otherwise very professionally made. Don't rent it expecting cheap laughs. It's one of the last films by Kane, whose directing career goes back to 1935 and includes hundreds of Republic westerns (many with Gene Autry and Roy Rogers), serials (The Undersea Kingdom), and episodes of Bonanza.

HELL

(1960) D/S/P: Nonuo Nakagawa S/P: Ichiro Miyagawa (Jigoku; Sinner to Hell)

All that stuff about Herschell Gordon Lewis making the first gore movies is nonsense. Here's (amazing) proof that extreme gore was done elsewhere, earlier, and better. This whole nightmarish movie is extremely well made, surreal, and sometimes beautiful. The plot concerns a student with an evil friend (the young characters all wear sunglasses) who causes a hit-and-run death, families dramatically falling apart, and revenge. Lengthy, epic scenes in Hell show crowds of screaming people drowning in blood, rows of bodies, severed hands and heads, snakes, tridents, a ring of fire, and, incredibly, a man sawed in half while his guts spill out! There's also a contrasting reincarnation sequence with a baby floating in a river and a WWII flashback. The opening credits of this Shintoho production feature sexy women (just as in James Bond credits). The music is cool jazz, plus some theremin sounds. Shigeru Amachi and Yoichi Numata star. The letterboxed color laserdisc has been released in Japan. It's not translated. Recommended!

THE HELLBENDERS

(New Line, 1966) D: Sergio Corbucci S: Ugo Liberatore, Jose G. Maesso S/P: Albert Band
M: Ennio Morricone Italy/Spain (I Crudeli)

Joseph Cotten stars as a greedy Confederate general trying to escort a coffin full of cash out of enemy territory with his sons. This violent western features Aldo Sanbrell, Norma Bengell, and Julian Mateos. Morricone used a pseudonym. Ruggiero Deodato was the second-unit director.

HELLBENT

(Raedon, 1988) D/S: Richard Casey P: Louise Jaffe

Lemmy (Phil Ward), the leader of an LA garage band called Faust, makes a deal with a bar owner/Devil named Tanas. He starts drinking cough syrup, gets into fights with the audience, drinks alcohol, takes pills, has nightmares about his girlfriend, Angel, whipping him, shoots some people, becomes involved in plans to make a snuff movie, and ends up blind, singing folk music. It's pretty amusing. A Santa on a motorcycle shoots people, and a guy wearing a derby sings "Black Betty." The music, by Trotsky Icepick, Angry Samoans, Angst, and others, is on SST.

HELLBOUND: HELLRAISER II

(Starmaker, 1988) D: Tony Randel S: Peter Atkins
P: Christopher Figg M: Christopher Young UK/US

"Two hours" after the end of Hellraiser (1987) Kristy (Ashley Laurence) wakes from a coma in an asylum. Clare Higgins also returns as the skinless wicked stepmother. Pinhead and other creatures appear, and characters climb surreal M. C. Escher–style stairs. This sequel is an interesting attempt to make a druggy horror movie, but my reaction is "Huh!?!" It features wide-eyed Imogene Boorman and scenes from Hellraiser. Clive Barker was an executive producer. It was cut for an R, but R and unrated video versions are available. New World went all out in their attempt to merchandise the various Cenobites. The score is on GNP Crescendo. Hellraiser III was next.

HELL COMES TO FROGTOWN

(Starmaker, 1987) D: Robert J. Kizer
D/S/P: Donald G. Jackson S/P: Randall Frakes

Pro wrestler "Rowdy" Roddy Piper stars as Sam Hell, chosen by females to help repopulate the post-nuke world. He's put into an exploding chastity belt and led by a scientist (Sandahl Bergman). They encounter mutant frog people in a bar (one is Nicholas Worth), William Smith as Count Sodom, and Rory Calhoun. This fun action comedy even includes Three Stooges gags. With Cec Verrill, Suzanne Solari, and Kristi Sommers. It's by the director of the notorious Demon Lover (1976). The FX are by Steve Wang (Predator). Frogtown II was the unworthy sequel.

HELL DRIVERS

(1957) D/P: Cy Endfield P: John Kruse UK

Stanley Baker stars as an ex-con who takes a job driving a truck for crooks, in this all-star movie that borrows ideas from The Wages of Fear. Herbert Lom costars, with Peggy Cummins (Gun Crazy). The cast also includes future spies and a future Dr. Who: Patrick McGoohan, Sean Connery, Jill Ireland (later married to Charles Bronson), David McCallum (married to Ireland at the time), William Hartnell (the first Dr. Who), Gordon Jackson, and Sidney James.

HELL FIRE (1972): See INVASION FROM INNER EARTH

HELLFIRE

(1986) D/S: William Murray P: Howard Foulkrod

Kenneth McGregor and Sharon Mason star in a post-nuke movie filmed in New York City and Pennsylvania. This was Mickey Shaunessy's last role.

HELLFIRE ON ICE: See SWEET SUGAR

HELLFIRE ON ICE, PART II: ESCAPE FROM HELL: See SAVAGE ISLAND

HELLGATE

(Vidmark, 1989) D: William Levey
S: Michael O'Rourke P: Anant Singh

Ron Palillo (from Welcome Back, Kotter), who was nearly 40 at the time, stars in this awful, irritating teen horror movie. See it if you want to see Horshack naked. Set in a tourist ghost town, it features zombies, a plastic bat on a wire, a monster goldfish, hateful and stupid sex jokes, naked girls with silicone breasts, a can-can show, and another Carnival of Souls ripoff. There are also lots of false scares, fog, and slow-motion scenes. Did I mention the killer with metal strips on his face due to turtle bites? Palillo was also in Levey's Committed.

HELL HIGH

(Prism, 1985) D/S/P: Douglas Grossman S: Leo Evans P: David Steinman (Raging Fury)

A biology teacher (Maureen Mooney) who witnessed a murder as a child is left for dead by student "pranksters" who drug her and force her into lesbian acts. She becomes a mystery killer on a vengeance spree. With Christopher Stryker and Karen Russell. This pretty sick movie was made in Westchester, New York.

HELLHOLE

(RCA/Columbia, 1985) D: Pierre De Mora
S: Vincent Mongol P: Billy Fine, Louis Arkoff

"Samuel Z. Arkoff presents" Judy Landers as an abused mental-hospital inmate with amnesia. Ray Sharkey is Silk, a psycho killer in leather posing as a prison aide. (Sharkey later said that he was a junkie at the time.) Mary Woronov is Dr. Fletcher, the necrophiliac-lesbian head of the hospital. Marjoe Gortner (!) is a lobotomizing doctor. With Edy Williams, Dyanne Thorne, 40s star Terry Moore (who posed in Playboy that year!), Lynn Borden and Robert Z'Dar. With the incredible cast, showers, catfights, mud fights, and glue sniffing, this should have been a sleaze classic. It's not.

A burning stunt double in Hello, Mary Lou: Prom Night II.

HELLHOLE WOMEN

(CIC, 1980) D/S/A: "Robert Griffin"/ Jesús Franco
S: Gunther Ebert P: Lulio Poura W. Germany/Spain
(Sadomania; Holle der Lust)

Ajita Wilson (a black woman who some claim used to be a man and who was a box-office draw in Europe) is Magda, the lesbian warden of a women's penitentiary. She and Robert Forster abuse inmates, feed them to crocodiles, and have organized manhunts. Ursula Buchfellner costars in this sadistic Ilsa-style movie.

HELL IS A CITY

(1960) D/S: Val Guest P: Michael Carreras UK

Stanley Baker stars as a Manchester police inspector in this Hammer film, with John Crawford as an escaped-con jewel thief and killer, Donald Pleasence, and Billie Whitelaw.

HELLMASTER

(AIP, 1990) D/S/P: Douglas Schulze P: David J. Dalton

John Saxon is a crazy professor who performs deadly government drug experiments on students on a campus in 1969. 20 years later he offers "the reward" (special drugs) to a group of deformed "soulless freaks" with crosses on their foreheads who drive around in a bus and call him Papa. A (very) small group of students end up confronting the creatures on the empty campus. Amy Raasch stars as a psychic girl. The others students are a nice guy who likes her, an asshole jock (who uses a whip!), and a crippled guy who moves around awkwardly (like Everett Sloane in The Lady from Shanghai). Luckily, this was made around Detroit so that Ron Ashton, the guitarist from the Stooges (and Destroy All Monsters) could be in it! He plays a mutant nun (!) who growls and shuffles along like a mummy! The violence is offscreen, and Saxon has only a few scenes, but some of the makeup is good (especially some mutant kids), and a few hallucination scenes are fun. I liked the coffin with a corpse in it chasing a kid down the hall. It was partially filmed (as Them) at a mental institution in Pontiac, Michigan.

HELLO, MARY LOU: PROM NIGHT II

(Virgin, 1987) D: Bruce Pittman S: Ron Oliver P: Peter Simpson Canada
(The Haunting of Hamilton High)

This is much better than Prom Night (1980), Jamie Lee Curtis' worst horror movie. It's not even a real sequel. They just changed the title in the US. The "30 years later" revenge plot has Wendy Lyon possessed by Mary Lou (Lisa Schrage). There are lots of clever FX and nods to other horror movies: "It's Linda Blairsville!" Michael Ironside is the school principal. More Prom Night movies followed. An executive producer, Ray Sager, starred in The Wizard of Gore!

HELL ON THE BATTLEGROUND

(AIP, 1988) D/S: David A. Prior P/A: Fritz Matthews

William Smith (with his shaved head) appears with the director's brother, Ted Prior, in another forgettable adventure movie.

HELL RAIDERS

(1967) D: Larry Buchanan

John Agar is in WWII Italy (actually Texas), and a demolition squad has to destroy Allied records before the Germans arrive. With Richard Webb, Joan Huntington, and Bill Thurman. It's the "missing" non-science-fiction movie in the 8-movie package Buchanan made for AIP-TV. Agar was also in Zontar, the Thing from Venus. Hell Raiders was also the name of a bad movie made in the Philippines by Ferde Grofe Jr.

HELLRAISER

(Starmaker, 1987) D/S: Clive Barker
P: Christopher Figg M: Christopher Young

Horror author Barker directed this after hating the other adaptations of his books. It's a classic, the first bloody S&M fantasy/horror hit. Four Cenobites devoted to sensual pleasure can be released from another dimension by a carved puzzle box. They disfigure themselves and tear flesh with large hooks. Uncle Frank (Sean Chapman), now a withered skeleton, unleashed them. Now he uses his sister-in-law/former lover (Clare Higgins) to revive him. She picks up men and sucks them dry. Andrew Robinson is her husband, Ashley Laurence is her stepdaughter, and Doug Bradley is Pinhead. New World had this dubbed into "American." The video is 5 minutes longer than the R-rated theatrical version. It includes an ad for merchandise (shirts, mugs . . .). The Young score is on Pro-Arte. An alternate score (not used) by the group Coil is also available. Hellbound: Hellraiser II (1988) was the first sequel.

Clive Barker and his Pinhead creation from Hellraiser.

HELLRAISER III: HELL ON EARTH

(Paramount, 1992) D: Anthony Hickox
S: Bradley Atkins P: Lawrence Mortoff

Terry Farrell stars as a novice New York City TV reporter trying to cover some local murders. The ghost of a British WWI captain (Doug Bradley) shows up in her gory front-line nightmares (as does her father, who died in Vietnam). Bradley, with his cultured English voice, is also Pinhead (a relief from Freddy Krueger), who is freed from a strange, sculptured cube. Pinhead slaughters a whole nightclub full of people. Other new Cenobites with individual gimmicks also appear. This S&M horror sequel was shot in Highpoint, North Carolina, obviously not Manhattan. With Paula Marshall and Kevin Bernhardt. Motorhead does the end theme. Tony Randel (Hellbound) was to direct but was replaced. Barker sold off the film rights but was executive producer of this Miramax release. The tape is available in R and unrated versions. Some copies come with the documentary Clive Barker: The Art of Horror (Paramount). Hellraiser: Bloodline (1996) followed.

HELLRIDERS

(TWE, 1974) D/S: James Bryant
S/P/A: Renee Harmon

Here's a biker movie with Batman and Ginger. Snake (Russ Alexander) leads a biker gang so horrible that other bikers shun them. They're always fighting, and a Bible-quoting guy with one hand keeps a naked girl on a chain at all times. When they invade a "ghost town," the only person to stand up to them is a jogging doctor (Adam West). Tina Louise (in cowgirl clothes) is in peril when her car breaks down. As usual, cycle-riding scenes take up a lot of the time. Harmon (who plays a biker woman) is (I think) Dutch. She and Bryant also made The Executioner Part 2 and she starred in Frozen Scream.

HELLROLLER

(Hollywood International, 1992)
D/C: G. J. Levinson P: Stuart Wall

A wheelchair-bound serial killer goes after women. There's nudity and gore. The cast includes Ruth Collins, Elizabeth Kaitan, Mary Woronov, Michelle Bauer, Johnny Legend, Eric Caidin, and porno star Hyapatia Lee.

HELL'S ANGELS FOREVER

(Media, 1983) D: Kevin Keating
D/S/P: Richard Chase D/P: Leon Gast
S: Sandy Alexander P: Peterson Tooke

Incredibly, this Hell's Angels propaganda documentary played in theaters and made $2 million. It was started in 1973 and took nearly 10 years to finish, with help from Jerry Garcia (an executive producer). The historical part is pretty interesting. The Angels say that the government framed Sonny Barger (who served time at Folsom Prison on drug charges) and that the Angels do not deal drugs. Biker movies are dismissed as nonsense, and real Angels are seen on the road, at their East Village headquarters, and at a party on a boat circling Manhattan. There are appearances by the Cleveland Breed, Bo Diddley, Willie Nelson, Johnny Paycheck, and Garcia. The Greatful Dead Movie is by the same filmmakers.

HELL'S BRIGADE

(1969) D: Leon Klimovsky S: José Luis Merino, Manuel Sebares Italy/Spain
(L'Urlo dei Giganti; A Bullet for Rommel)

Jack Palance stars in this WWII adventure about a commando raid on Germany.

HELL'S KITCHEN

(1939) D: Lewis Seiler S: Carne Wilbur, Fred Niblo Jr. P: Mark Hellinger

Ronald Reagan was the first adult star to be billed below the Dead End Kids. They were Billy Hallop (Tony), Leo Gorcey (Gyp), Bobby Jordan (Joey, who dies in a freezer), Huntz Hall (Bongo), Gabriel Dell (Ace), and Bernard Punsley (Ouch). Reagan plays Jim Donahue, a good-guy lawyer, and the title refers to a reform school, not the neighborhood in Manhattan. The film is a follow-up to Crime School (1938). It received an H (horrific) certificate in England. The cast includes Grant Mitchell, Stanley Fields, and Margaret Lindsay. Reagan and the kids returned in Angels Wash Their Faces, released just a month after this.

HELL SQUAD

(1958) D/S/P: Burt Topper

During WWII, five American soldiers in North Africa meet a German patrol wearing uniforms taken from dead Americans. With Wally Campo and Brandon Carroll. This was the first film by Topper, who was still working for AIP in the 70s.

HELL SQUAD

(Genesis, 1984) D/S/P: Kenneth Hartford
(Commando Squad; Commando Girls)

To rescue the kidnapped son of a diplomat, nine Las Vegas showgirls become commandos in the Middle East. With Glen Hartford, Tina Lederman, Bainbridge Scott, and Marvin Miller as the sheik. This Cannon release is memorably bad. It has lots of nudity and blood.

HELL UP IN HARLEM

(Orion, 1973) D/S/P: Larry Cohen

Even though he died in Black Caesar, Fred Williamson returns as gangster Tommy Gibbs in this quickly made sequel. This time his widower father (Julius W. Harris) joins in the action, becoming a high-living gangster with women and machine guns. Italian gangsters kidnap Gibbs' ex-wife (Gloria Hendry). The action locations include Coney Island, and there's a scuba-diving scene in the Florida Keys. It ends with Gibbs lynching the corrupt white district attorney. With D'Urville Martin (returning as the Reverend Rufus), Margaret Avery (who has a sex scene with Williamson), and Tony King. Edwin Starr sings on the Motown soundtrack and the Stylistics play at the Apollo. This AIP release ends with a setup for another sequel, which never happened.

HELP WANTED FEMALE

(SW, 1968) D: Harold Perkins

This b/w adult movie is sexy, creepy, cosmic, and funny. Jo Jo (in a wig) lures a businessman home, and after (offscreen) sex she karate-chops and robs him. Her blond roommate, Wanda, does a long, slow strip for Mr. Gregory (Jack Vorno), a paying customer in a smoking jacket with a pipe. After he takes LSD sugar cubes she asks, "You won't go ape on me, will ya, daddy?" Instead he narrates an amazing story about how he and Barbara, a blonde who likes S&M, pretend to photograph a nude model, then kill her. Later Barbara sneaks off with a college boy, so he kills her and takes her body to the beach with him to cut it up. Wanda and Jo Jo realize his story is true. Then Mr. Gregory wakes. Strange.

HELTER SKELTER

(CBS/Fox, 1976) D/P: Tom Gries S: J. P. Miller

The most famous Manson movie stars Steve Railsback, who is excellent. It's based on the book by Vincent Bugliosi (played here by George Di Cenzo) and centers on the trial. With Nancy Wolfe as Susan Atkins, Marilyn Burns (The Texas Chainsaw Massacre), Skip Homeier, Paul Mantee, and actors playing Charles "Tex" Watson, George Spahn, and other real people. It was 194 minutes (not counting commericals) when it debuted in 2 parts on CBS-TV. The tape is 119. There are fake Beatles songs. It's called Massacre in Hollywood in Europe.

THE HELTER SKELTER MURDERS

(1969) D/C/E: Frank Howard
S: J. J. Wilke Jr. P: Wade Williams

Most of this rare, fact-based, documentary-style film is b/w. No real names are used, but the real Manson is heard singing (from his ESP label album Lie), and his crazed vision of the future is dramatized. Flashbacks of the drug-devouring Manson family are seen during the courtroom proceedings.

THE HENDERSON MONSTER

(IVE, 1979) D: Waris Hussein S: Ernest Kinoy P: Robert "Buzz" Berger

Jason Miller stars as a Nobel prize–winning scientist who, while doing DNA research, develops a monster. With Christine Lahti as his assistant, Stephen Collins as her alcoholic science-fiction-writer husband, Larry Gates, David Spielberg, and Nehemiah Persoff. It was made for CBS-TV.

HENNESSY

(Cannon, 1975) D: Don Sharp
S: John Gay P: Peter Snell

Rod Steiger stars as an Irishman who plans to bomb the British Parliament on opening day, when the royal family attends, because his wife and child have been killed in Belfast. Lee Remick costars, with Richard Johnson, Trevor Howard, Peter Egan, and Eric Porter. The real Queen Elizabeth is seen in news footage. This is an AIP release by a Hammer director.

HENRY: PORTRAIT OF A SERIAL KILLER

(MPI, 1986) D/S/P: John McNaughton S: Richard Fire P: Lisa Dedmond, Steve Jones

This is excellent, one of the most disturbing and well-made films I've ever seen, and it was shot in 16mm in Chicago. The chilling but all too believable story is (loosely) based on real-life killer Henry Lee Lucas. The only film that you could maybe compare it to is In Cold Blood (1967), but the killer is never caught. The MPAA gave it an X rating, not for sex or violence (it includes both), but for "general tone." The much-delayed video is unrated. Henry (Michael Rooker) is a curly-haired, emotionless, illiterate, part-time exterminator who killed his mother and lives by the motto "It's either you or them." He's addicted to killing, knows it's easy to get away with, and carefully plans the murders, using different methods each time: "It's always the same and it's always different." His roommate is a dense, crude, impressionable drug-dealing TV addict named Ottis (Tom Towles). Both are ex-cons. Ottis' blue-eyed blond sister, Becky (Tracy Arnold) ("Did you really kill your mama?"), leaves her husband and moves in with the deadly duo, landing a job as a shampoo girl. In a film loaded with shocking scenes, the most disturbing to me was the killers watching themselves at work, repeatedly and in slow motion on video. Talk about violence as pornography! The music, cinematography, dialogue, acting, direction, and FX are all top-notch. Only the inclusion of the great song "Psycho" by the Sonics seemed a little too obvious. Since playing Henry so convincingly, Rooker has acted in major films like Mississippi Burning and JFK, and Towles became a horror-movie regular (Night of the Living Dead, 1990). McNaughton's only previous credit was a gangster documentary, Dealers in Death (MPI), narrated by Broderick Crawford.

HENRY'S NIGHT IN

(SW, 1969)

I saw this b/w invisible-man sex comedy at the Standard in Cleveland when it was still pretty new, and I still don't know who made it (there are no credits). Forman Shane, a funny guy from all those A. C. Stevens movies, stars as Henry. He obtains a magic book, mixes a formula, and becomes invisible whenever he sneezes. Spooky harp and theremin music plays whenever this happens. He leaves his nagging wife at home and spies on women neighbors, then starts having sex with them (it's dark, and they keep their eyes closed and think he's their husband or boyfriend). It's all just a clever, silly way to show naked women caressing and kissing nobody. The blonde on an exercise bike is the best. Barbara Kline costars. If this were remade today it would be about teens, would be rated R, and would debut on cable TV.

HERCULES

(MGM/UA, 1983) D/S: "Lewis Coates"/ Luigi Cozzi P: Menahem Golan

Seeing this on 42nd Street was an early-80s highlight of living in New York. Nobody in the audience could believe they had paid for what they were seeing. Lou Ferrigno (dubbed) plays Hercules. It's an amazing, hilarious, cheap-looking fantasy with cut-rate Star Wars–style FX. Hercules goes into space and down to Hell, and fights monsters, robots, and a bear! Sybil Danning is the sexy Circe! With Mirella Dangelo, Ingrid Anderson, William Berger, Brad Harris, and Rosana Podesta. Pino Donaggio did the soundtrack. Ferrigno returned in The Adventures of Hercules. Sam Raimi executive-produced a series of Hercules TV movies, followed by a weekly syndicated series, starting in 1994, starring Kevin Sorbo and featuring cameos by Anthony Quinn as Zeus.

HERCULES II: See THE ADVENTURES OF HERCULES

HERCULES AGAINST MOLOCH = THE CONQUEST OF MYCENAE

HERCULES IN NEW YORK

(MPI, 1970) D: Arthur Allan Seidelman
S/P: Aubrey Wisberg

Arnold Schwarzenegger (using the name Arnold Strong) stars in his very first film, a corny comedy for kids shot on location (mostly in Central Park). His voice had to be dubbed. After arriving on Earth from Mount Olympus, Hercules teams up with a pretzel salesman (Arnold Stang). They're both broke but suddenly have tailored suits when they meet a professor (James Karen). Taina Elg is sent by the gods to punish him. Hercules fights a man in a bear suit, wrestles for gangsters, visits the Automat, and even goes to Hell. In the best scene he rides a chariot through Times Square (where Easy Rider is playing). It took 12 years for Arnold to land another starring role (Conan). Seidelman later directed The Caller.

HERCULES IN THE HAUNTED WORLD

(Rhino, Hollywood's Best, 1961)
D/S/C: Mario Bava S: Alessandro Continenza, Duccio Tessari, Franco Prosperi P: Achille Piazzi
Italy (Ercole al Centro Della Terra)

Unless you're a fan of Italian muscleman movies, they probably all seem alike. This was Mario Bava's first feature after Black Sunday, and it's great compared to most Hercules movies, much more colorful and imaginative. A masked goddess narrates the tale of "the fiendish Lichas, a diabolical vampire" (Christopher Lee with someone else's voice). He emerges from a coffin, and the titles are shown over a revolving spiral. Lichas, who has become king, keeps his niece, Deianira, (Leonora Ruffo) in a trance. She rises from a coffin and floats. Hercules (former Mr. Universe Reg Park) and his small comic-relief friend sail to bring back a magic apple in a giant tree (guarded by condemned women in eternal darkness) to cure his love, Deianira. A talking rock monster tortures his friend. They go to Hades, where a naked woman in chains tricks them and vines scream when they bleed. There's an eclipse, and Hercules throws giant rocks when flying corpses attack. This Cinemascope film was scanned for TV.

HERCULES RETURNS

(1992) D: David Parker S: Des Mangan
P: Philip Jaroslow Australia

This is Georgio Capitani's Italian Hercules, Samson, Maciste, and Ursus Are Invincible (1964) with new (adult) comic dialogue, plus new framing footage about a revival theater when Bruce Spence is the projectionist. Alan Steel plays Hercules.

HERE COMES MR. JORDAN

(RCA, 1941) D: Alexander Hall S: Sidney Buchman, Seton I. Miller P: Everett Riskin

Robert Montgomery stars as a boxer who also plays the saxophone and flies. When his plane crashes he's sent to Heaven, but it turns out that he wasn't meant to die yet. A heavenly official, Mr. Jordan (Claude Rains), gets him a new body, that of a millionaire about to be murdered by his wife (Rita Johnson) and her boyfriend (John Emery). This Columbia release, one of Hollywood's best fantasies, was nominated for seven Oscars. The cast includes Edward Everett Horton as Messenger 3014, Evelyn Keyes, and James Gleason. Horton and Gleason returned as similar characters (with Roland Culver as Mr. Jordan) in Columbia's color musical fantasy Down to Earth (1948). Heaven Can Wait (1978) was a remake.

HERE COMES SANTA CLAUS

(Starmaker, 1984) D/S/P: Christian Gion S: Didier Kaminka France (J'ai Rencontre le Père Noël)

New World released this G-rated film before the big flop Santa Claus (1985) came out. It was shot in 3-D but shown flat. A girl and boy visit Santa's magic kingdom, where elves work and there's an ugly ogre. It was filmed in France, Finland, and Senegal.

HERE COME THE TIGERS

(UAV, 1979) D/P: Sean Cunningham S: Arch McCoy P: Stephen Miner (Manny's Orphans)

Before making Friday the 13th Cunningham made this PG Bad News Bears ripoff. It stars Richard Lincoln, James Zvanut, and Fred Lincoln (from Cunningham's Last House on the Left). This was released by AIP, then by UA.

HERE WE GO ROUND THE MULBERRY BUSH

(1968) D/P: Clive Donner S: Hunter Davies P: Larry Kramer UK

Barry Evans is a 17-year-old virgin, and Judy Geeson is the girl of his dreams. His comic adventures consist of not scoring with various girls. The cast includes Angela Scoular, Sheila White, Denholm Elliott, and Angela Pleasence. Traffic and the Spencer Davis Group provide music, produced by Simon Napier-Bell, and the SDG appear in this "mod" movie, which was considered daring at the time. The UA soundtrack has Traffic/Stevie Winwood tracks not available elsewhere. Davies wrote the book The Beatles.

THE HERITAGE OF CALIGULA: AN ORGY OF SICK MINDS = BLOODSUCKING FREAKS

HERO AND THE TERROR

(Media, 1988) D: William Tannen S: Michael Blodgett, Dennis Shryack P: Ray Wagner

Chuck Norris is "the hero" and Jack O'Halloran is 6'6" Moon, "the terror." The terror escapes from an insane asylum and hides in the vents of an LA movie theater. He snaps women's necks and keeps the bodies in a seaside restaurant. The movie is based on a novel by former actor Michael Blodgett (from Beyond the Valley of the Dolls). There's a subplot about the hero's pregnant wife (Brynn Thayer). With Steve James as the hero's partner, Billy Drago, Ron O'Neal as the mayor, Heather Blodgett, and Karen Witter (from Playboy). Cannon released it.

HER ODD TASTES

(SW, 1969) D: Don Davis S/P: Jerry Wilder

Years before Emmanuelle, Marsha Jordan stars as Capri, roaming the world to do sexual research. She talks to the camera and narrates what happened in Hong Kong (a woman shoots her up before their lesbian scene), South Africa (she's drugged and becomes the center of a Satanic orgy), Nairobi (sex at a hunting camp), and Jordan (an oily three way). At the end she admits, "Yes, I am depraved!" before fucking her bald publisher to death! This laughable soft-core movie has lots of stock footage of boats and jungle animals. It also features Asian and black women, not at all common in nudie movies. Henning Schellerup was the cinematographer. This and The Muthers are from Crest Films. Davis and Jordan returned with Marsha, the Erotic Housewife.

HEROES IN HELL

(Vestron, 1974) D/S: "Michael Wotruba"/ Aristide Massaccesi Italy (Eroi al Inferno)

Klaus Kinski (in a small role) plays a German general kidnapped by partisans. This WWII movie has a prison in a castle, gory closeups of operations, and flashbacks and dream sequences. Kinski was in the strange Death Smiles on a Murderer, by the same director, the same year.

HEROES SHED NO TEARS

(Rainbow, 1985) D/S: John Woo P: Peter Chan Hong Kong (A John Woo Film, Sunset Warrior)

Soldiers of fortune are hired by the Thai government to bring back a drug-smuggling general from the Vietnam jungle. A mercenary and his son are the main characters. This gory adventure includes torture scenes and a tribe of cannibals. Woo had been directing since the early 70s, but this was one of his first films to gain international recognition.

HEROES STAND ALONE

(MGM, 1989) D: Mark Griffiths S: Thomas McKelvey Cleaver P: Luis Llosa

Central American mercenaries, not-so-bad glasnost Soviet agents, and Cubans are all involved in this spy movie. Chad Everett is a CIA mercenary, and Bradford Dillman is the villain, a former CIA agent turned gunrunner. With Elsa Olivero, Wayne Grace, and Rick Dean. It's a pretty boring Concorde release.

HEROIC TRIO

(VSOM, 1992) D/P: Ching Siu Tung, Johnny To S: Sandy Shaw, Susanne Chan Hong Kong

A trio of Hong Kong superheroines are the main characters in this comic/action/fantasy/adventure movie. Anita Mui as Wonder Woman, Maggie Cheung as motorcycle-riding Thief Catcher, and Michelle Yeoh/Khan as Invisible Woman battle an evil cult leader who is reduced to a fighting skeleton at the end. The plot concerns baby kidnapping and cannibalism, and a flying guillotine even appears. The stars all returned in the post-nuke film The Executioners/Heroic Trio II (1993).

HE WALKED BY NIGHT

(1948) D: Alfred L. Werker, Anthony Mann (uncredited) S: John C. Higgins, Crane Wilbur P: Robert Kane

Richard Basehart is Morgan, an intelligent but psycho cop killer and thief who hides out in sewers. Scott Brady is the Hollywood cop obsessed with catching him. This Eagle Lion release is based on a true story and has Dragnet-style voice-over narration. Jack Webb even has a role (as a lab technician), and the film may have helped to inspire him to create Dragnet in 1949. The cast also includes Whit Bissell and Roy Roberts. John Alton is responsible for the impressive, documentary-style b/w cinematography. Anthony Mann directed parts of the film (without credit). It's available on Lumivision laserdisc.

HEXED

(Columbia, 1992) D/S: Alan Spencer P: Marc S. Fischer, Louis G. Friedman

Arye Gross stars as a hotel clerk who lies well (a lot) and lives in a fantasy world. He connives to have sex with a famous French model, Hedina (Claudia Christian), but she turns out to be a crazed (American) psycho killer who is being blackmailed. With lots of gags and some bad-taste humor (including a Rodney King–like beating by police). With Adrienne Shelly, R. Lee Ermey, Ray Baker, and Norman Fell. Christian has several nude scenes but used a body double.

HEY FOLKS, IT'S INTERMISSION TIME, VOLUMES I AND II

(SW)

These tapes, 100 minutes each, are the ultimate compilations for drive-in fans. They're from the 50s through the 70s and include ads for snack bars and food (Pepsi, hot dogs, Tommy's potato chips), local businesses and churches (Lancaster, Ohio; McCallister, Oklahoma), and, best of all, spook shows ("Man buried alive!"). There are also many variations on intermission countdowns, holiday greetings (with Father Time and a baby), and ads urging us to vote, fight against pay TV, or resist daylight-savings-time changes.

THE HIDDEN

(Media, 1987) D: Jack Sholder S: "Bob Hunt"/ Jim Kouf P: Robert Shaye, Gerald T. Olson

It wasn't a box-office hit, but this is a superior science-fiction/action movie. It's violent, funny, and even sentimental, and has some good stunt work. Kyle MacLachlan stars as an odd FBI agent who is really an alien sent to stop a bad alien who can assume any form (like a stripper, a dog, or a cop). Michael Nouri is the LA cop assigned to work with the agent. With Clu Gulager, Claudia Christian, and a scene in Bleecker Bob's record store. The Michael Convertino score is on Varese Sarabande.

THE HIDDEN II: THE SPAWNING

(New Line, 1993) D/S: Seth Pinsker P: Michael Meltzer, David Helperin

This crummy, talky "15 years later" sequel uses lots of the best footage from the (very good) original. Raphael Sbarge (also in Carnosaur) stars as a new good alien who finds the daughter (Kate Hodge) of the Michael Nouri character to help defeat the shape-shifting killer alien. They fall in love, and she teaches him to brush his teeth. The comic scenes of the alien as a bum slaughtering black teens are very unlike anything in the original, and the end really sucks. With (another) Michael Weldon as Beck. It debuted on the Sci-Fi Channel.

HIDDEN OBSESSION

(MCA, 1993) D: John Stewart S: David Reshan P: Tom Bradshaw, David C. Glasser (Rage)

Heather Thomas is a divorced TV-news anchor on vacation in her isolated country home. A psycho is killing strippers and is after her now. Could it be the comic-relief boss, the Elvis impersonator, or the escaped con? Or could it be Jan-Michael Vincent, the friendly deputy sheriff with a ponytail? The false scares, exaggerated thunder, lame POV stalking scenes, and romantic music help make this one to avoid, but there is a certain fascination in looking at the reconstructed faces of the two stars. It's by the director of Cartel (1989).

HIDE AND GO SHRIEK

(New Star, 1987) D: Skip Schoolnik
S: Michael Kelly P: Dimitri Villard

A psycho kills off eight teens spending the night in a furniture store for a graduation party. An escaped con is a suspect, but the killer turns out to be a transvestite. With Rebunkah Jones and Donna Baltron. R and unrated video versions of this blood-and-sex movie were released.

HIDEAWAY

(Columbia, 1995) D: Brett Leonard
S: Andrew Kevin Walker, Neil Jimenez
P: Jerry Baerwitz, Agatha Hanczakowski

Jeff Goldblum stars as an antique dealer who is brought back to life after a car accident. Even his family thinks he's going crazy because he has a mental link to the spirit of a young Satanist serial killer (Jeremy Sisto) who died by suicide. The adaptation of Dean R. Koontz's novel features some great sounds during the "tunnel of light" sequences. Alicia Silverstone is the teen daughter in peril and Christine Lahti is the wife. The entertaining and over-the-top ending takes place underneath an amusement park and involves major good vs. evil fantasy FX. With Alfred Molina as the doctor and Rae Dawn Chong as a psychic. The score is by Trevor Jones. It was shot in British Columbia.

HIDEOUT IN THE SUN

(1960) D: Lazarus L. Wolk S: Doris Chasnik P: Doris Wishman

Two brothers rob a bank and force a girl nudist to take them to a nudist colony. With Dolores Carlos and Carol Little. The first of many Wishman movies, it was made in Florida in Eastmancolor and released by Astor. Wishman was a cousin of Max Rosenberg, who cofounded Amicus in England.

HIDER IN THE HOUSE

(Vestron, 1989) D: Matthew Patrick S: Lem Dodds P: Edward Teets, Michael Taylor

Remember a 1974 TV movie called Bad Ronald? This somewhat similar movie stars blond Gary Busey. He killed his abusive parents as a child, escaped from an institution, and sometimes hides in a secret attic space in a new home. A naive voyeur, he bothers neighbor Mimi Rogers and sees her family as his own. He also kills their dog. With Michael McKean as the husband, Bruce Glover, and Rebecca Armstrong. It went directly to video in the US, but the soundtrack by Christopher Young was issued on Intrada.

HIGH ANXIETY

(Fox, 1978) D/S/P/A: Mel Brooks S: Ron Clark, Rudy De Luca, Barry Levinson

Brooks should have waited a while to make his Hitchcock spoof. Everybody got the Psycho and Birds gags, but many of the movies he parodied hadn't been in release for years and were not available on tape yet. He plays Dr. Richard Thorndyke, the new head of a private mental hospital. With Madeline Kahn, Cloris Leachman, Harvey Korman, Howard Morris, Dick Van Patten, Jack Riley, Charlie Callas, and future director Barry Levinson as the bellboy. The Asylum soundtrack includes music from Brooks' five earlier films.

HIGH-BALLIN'

(Vestron, 1979) D: Peter Carter S: Paul Edward P: John Slan US/Canada

Peter Fonda and Jerry Reed star as truckdriver friends in a PG-rated AIP action movie. Helen Shaver is a lady trucker. They all fight off villains hired to stop their operation.

HIGH DESERT KILL

(MCA, 1988) D: Harry Falk S: T. S. Cook P: Jon Epstein

Aliens arrive in New Mexico and take over some hunters. The odd feature, made for the USA Network, stars Marc Singer, Anthony Geary, Chuck Connors, and Micah Grant. Cook also wrote The China Syndrome.

HIGHLANDER

(HBO, 1986) D: Russell Mulcahy S: Gregory Widen, Peter Bellwood, Larry Ferguson
P: Peter S. Davis, William Panzer

A NYC SoHo antique dealer (Christopher Lambert), is really one of the last of a breed of immortal warriors. He has to decapitate others to gain their powers. He's shown in 16th-century Scotland learning from the immortal Ramirez (Sean Connery). Connery's voice is heard throughout this confusing fantasy, but he appears only in flashback. With Beaty Edney, Alan North, Roxanne Hart, and Clancy Brown. Queen's music is on the soundtrack, and their songs from the movie appear on their album A Kind of Magic. Stephen Hopkins was the assistant director. 20th Century–Fox cut 17 minutes before releasing it in the US, where it did poor business. It was a big hit in Europe.

HIGHLANDER II: THE QUICKENING

(RCA, 1991) D: Russell Mulcahy S: Peter Bellwood P: Peter S. Davis, William Panzer

This sequel has amazing, huge, Blade Runner–inspired sets and looks as if it must have cost more than Terminator II. (It was filmed in Argentina.) A big hit in Europe, it was released here by a tiny independent, Seymour Borde. Even if you're a fan of the original, this doesn't make any sense. (Brian Clemens cowrote the story.) It starts with absurd timeshifts and something about the rules of the planet Zeist, where a mammoth, Dune-inspired battle takes place. The plot involves Earth's ozone-layer problem. Christopher Lambert and Sean Connery return, but Lambert spends too much time as a very unconvincing old man. Virginia Madsen is an "environmental terrorist," and Michael Ironside is an enthusiastic assassin who takes over a speeding subway full of people, in the most impressive action/disaster scene. The heroes have to decapitate the villains, and all of them have long hair. Some scenes are awesome, but overall it's a mess. Even the music by Stewart Copeland (Rumble Fish) is mediocre. The tape is letterboxed. A syndicted TV series and third movie followed.

HIGHLANDER: THE FINAL DIMENSION

(Miramax, 1994) D: Andy Morahan S: Paul Ohl P: Claude Leger Canada/France/UK

In this second sequel to Highlander, MacLeod (Christopher Lambert) battles the warrior Kane (Mario Van Peebles with a nose ring), who is discovered inside a mountain in Japan by an American archaeologist (Deborah Unger, who has two roles). The sword-fighting and decapitating action shifts to the Moroccan desert, NYC, and Scotland and there are the expected time switches and flashbacks. It was filmed in five countries. Also with Mako and Raoul Trujillo. The video is a "director's cut."

HIGHLANDER: THE GATHERING

(Hemdale, 1993) D: Thomas J. Wright, Ray Austin S: Dan Gordon, Lorain Despres
P: Gary Goodman, Barry Rosen

Despite what the video box tries to make you think, this is just 2 episodes of the dull Highlander syndicated TV series, starring Adrian Paul as 400-year-old Duncan MacLeod. A kid (Stan Kirsch) and Alexander Vandernoot costar (she takes a blurry PG-13 shower). The guest villains are Richard Moll (with a metal mask) and Vanity. Christopher Lambert does appear in the first episode, and the Queen theme song is used.

HIGH NOON, PART II

(Fries, 1980) D: Jerry Jameson S: Elmore Leonard
P: Edward J. Monatgue (The Return of Will Kane)

Lee Majors stars (in the Gary Cooper role) in this "sequel" made for TV. With David Carradine as a drifter, Pernell Roberts as a bounty hunter, M. Emmet Walsh, Katherine Cannon, Tracey Walter, and Michael Pataki. The original 1952 classic is available from Republic.

HIGHPOINT

(1984) D: Peter Carter S: Richard A. Guttman P: Daniel Fine Canada

An unemployed accountant (Richard Harris) becomes a chauffeur for a rich family and gets involved with the CIA and murder. The climax takes place on top of Toronto's CN tower. With Christopher Plummer, Beverly D'Angelo, Kate Reid, Peter Donat, Saul Rubinek, and Maury Chaikin.

HIGH SCHOOL U. S. A.

(KVC, 1983) D: Rod Amateau
S: Alan Eisenstock, Larry B. Mintz

Michael J. Fox stars in this NBC-TV comedy-series pilot with lots of other 60s TV stars. See Christian Glover as the nerd son of Bob Denver! Dwayne

Hickman is a lech teacher, Tony Dow is the principal, and David Nelson is the janitor. The older this gets, the more fun it is to watch. Nancy McKeon, Todd Bridges, and Anthony Edwards are the other young stars. With Angela Cartwright, Elinor Donahue, Lauri Hendler, Dana Plato, Steve Franken, Dawn Wells, and Barry Livingston.

HIGH SPIRITS

(Media, 1988) D/S: Neil Jordan
P: Stephen Wooley, David Saunders

Peter O'Toole (who looks like a ghost but isn't) stars as a drunken Irish nobleman who fakes a haunting to attract American tourists to his rundown castle. Real ghosts (Daryl Hannah and Liam Neeson) are already there, repeating their wedding-night murder. This clumsy PG comedy/fantasy also features Steve Guttenberg, Beverly D'Angelo, Jennifer Tilly, Peter Gallagher, Donal McCann, and Ray McAnally. Mark Damon was the executive producer. It was drastically recut by Tri-Star for the US release.

HIGH STAKES

(Vidmark, 1989) D/S/P: Amos Kollek (Melanie Rose)

Sally Kirkland (with her inflated breasts) stars as a New York hooker named Bambi who tries to keep her daughter away from mobsters. Richard Lynch is her pimp, and Robert LuPone is a Wall Street stockbroker who wants her. With Maia Danziger and Kathy Bates.

HIGHWAY HELL

(Scorched Earth, 1937) P: Patrick Carlyle
(Honky Tonk Girl)

A Highway Patrol officer introduces this look at "the age of speed." Tough, whiskey-drinking women work for a fast-talking pimp named Mr. Slavik. He looks into the camera and tells us "how to pimp." They hang out at the bar of the Wagon Wheel motel and find men by standing in the road and saying, "Going my way mister?" A nude scene at a picnic is awkwardly edited into this road-show movie. Blackmail, innocent love, and drugged champagne lead to murder. Characters say, "You tart!" and "This is the modern age! Speed! Fast!" Another character (the philosophical Pop) talks to us at the end, saying, "Keep our highways clean." If you like vintage adults-only movies, this one is a must.

HIGHWAY PATROLMAN

(1992) D: Alex Cox S: Lorenzo O'Brien Mexico

Roberto Sosas stars as Officer Rojas, a new highway cop stationed in the desert. He can't fight the system. He becomes disillusioned, then corrupt, and his best friend is killed. With Bruno Bichir and Vanessa Bauche as a junkie hooker. It's in Spanish with English subtitles. The British director made Repo Man.

HIGHWAY 61

(Paramount, 1992) D/P: Bruce McDonald
S/A: Don McKeller P: Don Colin
Brunton Canada

A naive young barber (Don McKeller) living in a small town near Thunder Bay (northern Ontario) discovers a frozen body and ends up on a harrowing road trip to New Orleans with a lying, cheating, drug-dealing woman (Valerie Buhagiar) to deliver the drug-filled corpse. Meanwhile, "the Devil" (Earl Pastko) takes photos of people's souls and has them sign contracts in blood. This surefire cult movie is very funny, very cool, and full of satisfying surprises. The leads all have very theatrical, unusual faces. Pastko looks like the son of Jack Elam, and rugged-looking Peter Breck is great as a man with three singing and dancing daughters. The journey is full of real rock references and goes through St. Louis and Memphis. With sex in a graveyard, bikers, and a BTO tribute band. Jello Biafra is a border guard, and Tav Falco is a biker. A comic-book version has been published, and there's a soundtrack by Nash the Slash and others. McDonald also made Roadkill.

HIGHWAY TO HELL

(Raedon, 1989) D: B.A. Jenkins
S: Gary Kennamer P: "Max Raven"/
Brett McCormick

Nothing is shown in this boring tale of a mass murderer and rapist (Benton Jennings) who escapes from prison and goes on a killing spree. He yells and laughs hysterically, kills lots of people, and runs over a little girl. He makes a photographer (Blue Thompson, from Ozone) drive him around. Richard Henderson (usually in Italian movies) sits behind a desk most of the time, talks, and relates slow-motion flashbacks. S. F. Brownrigg is thanked at the end. It was filmed near Dallas.

HIGHWAY TO HELL

(HBO, 1990) D: Ate De Jong S: Brian Helgeland P: Mary Ann Page

In this oddball horrror comedy made in Arizona, Chad Lowe is going to elope with Kristy Swanson, but a mutant "Hell cop" grabs her and takes her to another dimension in the desert. Some of the Steve Johnson FX are top-notch, including an animated three-headed dog and literal "hand" cuffs. There's also a naked, ugly female demon, bikers, a race with all Volkswagens, and a crowd of Andy Warhols. Patrick Bergin is the "satanic mechanic," and the cast includes Richard Farnsworth, Pam Gidley, Jerry Stiller and Anne Meara (and their kids, Ben and Amy), Gilbert Gottfried, Lita Ford, Kevin Peter Hall, and Jarrett Lennon (the kid from Servants of Twilight). The Tangerine Dream music is lifted from Miracle Mile. Hemdale released it in 1992. The director's next was Drop Dead Fred.

HIGH YELLOW

(1965) D/S: Larry Buchanan

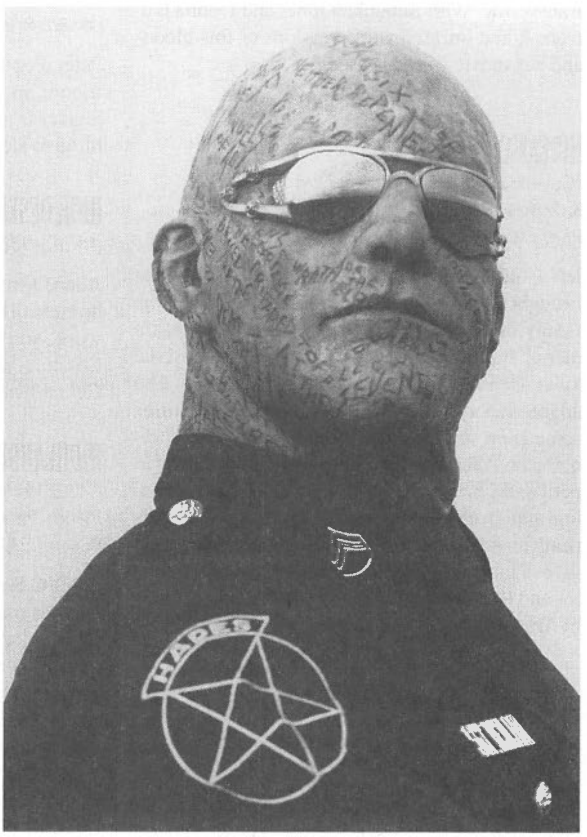
Cindy (Cynthia Hull), a light-skinned black teen, gets a job as a maid for the dysfunctional family of an oblivious Hollywood producer. She keeps a diary and befriends the wild, jive-talking teen daughter, Judy (Kay Taylor) whose brother was kicked out of the military for being a "queer boy." The Major (Bill Thurman) is a crazy, sadistic, alcoholic war-vet gardener, and Joseph (William McGhee) is a friendly servant. The depressed mother (Anne McAdams, from Common-Law Wife) stays in bed. This Dallas production shows how good Buchanan was before those AIP-TV movies. The characters are interesting and/or sympathetic, the acting is good, and the plot (including a murder) works on several levels. The instrumental theme is great, and I love the scenes at the Disco A-Go-Go, where Jody Daniels sings and the Rowdees do "Pushover." It's hard to find (thanks to the director) but recommended.



Highway to Hell

HI, HONEY! I'M DEAD

(1991) D: Alan Meyeson S: Carl
Kleinschmitt P: Paula Rudnick

A successful, handsome Chicago building developer dies and a guardian angel (Paul Rodriguez) arranges to have him return as a better person who's a penniless nobody (Curtis Armstrong, from the Revenge of the Nerds movies). He ends up being a housekeeper for his own wife (Catherine Hicks). This is a Fox-TV movie.

THE HILLS HAVE EYES, PART II

(HBO, 1983) D/S: Wes Craven
P: Barry Cahn, Peter Locke

This terrible sequel spent three years in the can. A group of young motorcycle racers (including Robert Houston as Bobby) and a blind woman

(Tamara Stafford) are stranded in the desert and attacked by a cannibal family. It features lots of flashbacks to the classic 1977 original (available from Starmaker). Every surviving character has flashbacks (even Beast, the dog!). With Michael Berryman as Pluto, Janus Blythe as Ruby (who was trying to lead a normal life), James Whitworth as Jupiter, John Bloom (from Brain of Blood) as the Reaper, and the voice of Nicholas Worth. A longer "director's cut" has been sold by collectors. The Hills Have Eyes, Part III is planned (with a different director).

HI, MOM!

(American, 1970) D/S: Brian De Palma P/E: Charles Hirsch (Confessions of a Peeping Tom)

Robert De Niro returns as Nam vet Jon Rubin in this R-rated sequel to De Palma's Greetings (1969). He rents a room on New York's Lower East Side and photographs people from his window (De Palma was already starting to use Rear Window ideas). Allen Garfield hires him to make a voyeur porno movie, but everything goes wrong (including his attempt to seduce Jennifer Salt), so he joins an underground acting group and plays the cop in a production of Be Black, Baby, where the white audience members are submitted to humiliation, searches, beatings, and arrests. He gets married, becomes an insurance saleman, and tries to settle down in a high-rise, but he can't take it and dynamites the laundry room. With Charles Durning, Paul Bartel, and Gerrit Graham. De Palma used b/w sequences, a split screen, and other "underground" techniques for his final independent political comedy. His next, Get to Know Your Rabbit, sat on the shelf at Warner Brothers for two years. This was the last of four De Niro/De Palma collaborations. It was cut years ago, after its brief theatrical run.

THE HIRED HAND

(Kartes, 1971) D/A: Peter Fonda
S: Alan Sharp P: William Hayward

After Easy Rider, Peter Fonda directed this great-looking, arty western shot by Vilmos Zsigmond. He and Warren Oates (the same year as Two-Lane Blacktop) are drifters. Each has an unusual relationship with Verna Bloom. With Severn Darden and Robert Pratt. Fonda made Idaho Transfer next.

HIRED TO KILL

(Paramount, 1989) D/S: Nico Mastorakis
D/P: Peter Rader

A soldier of fortune (Brian Thompson) and seven beautiful models go to a South American island fortress to liberate "the Brother" (José Ferrer). Oliver Reed is a sadistic secret-police chief. With George Kennedy, Michelle Moffett, and Penelope Reed. A stuntman was killed in a helicopter crash. It was filmed in Greece.

HIS NAME WAS KING

(All Seasons, 1971) D: Giancarlo Romitelli
S: Renato Savino Italy (Lo Chiamavano King)

Richard Harrison stars in this western as a man who goes after the gang who killed his brother and raped his wife. With Anne Puskin and Klaus Kinski as Ryan, the sheriff.

HIT!

(Paramount, 1973) D: Sidney J. Furie S: Alan R. Trustman P: Harry Korshak Canada

Billy Dee Williams is a federal agent out to destroy a French heroin ring after his teen daughter dies of an OD. He recruits a varied group of people who have suffered because of the drug trade and trains them in British Columbia. They all go to Marseilles to kill the gangsters. With Richard Pryor, Paul Hampton (They Came from Within), and Gwen Welles. The original release is a long 134 minutes. Williams and Pryor had been in Lady Sings the Blues, also directed by Furie.

THE HITCHCOCK CLASSICS COLLECTION

(Trailers on Tape, 1985)

Here are trailers for 20 of Alfred Hitchcock's films, from Rebecca (1940) to Topaz (1969), in chronological order. The best are the ones featuring Hitchcock himself: for Psycho (the famous long tour of the set), The Birds (a great lecture about the history of the way people treat birds), and Marnie (Hitchcock introduces each character in his new "sex mystery"). Some earlier ones are narrated by the stars, like Joan Fontaine (Suspicion), Robert Cummings (Saboteur), and, best of all, James Stewart (Rope). This tape includes Hitchcock's cameo appearance in Spellbound, Ingrid Bergman finding a shrunken head in the seldom-screened Under Capricorn, and Jerry Mathers in a space suit discovering a body in The Trouble with Harry. Sometimes the rerelease trailers are better than the originals, but the one for Rear Window (rereleased after Psycho) is disappointing and silly. Of course this is a must for Hitchcock fans.

THE HITCHER

(HBO, 1986) D: Robert Harmon S: Eric Red P: David Bombyk, Kip Ohman

C. Thomas Howell, delivering a drive-away Seville car, picks up a hitchhiker called John Ryder (Rutger Hauer) in Texas, and his life becomes a relentless nightmare. Hauer is terrifying as the seemingly supernatural killer who tells the kid, "I want you to stop me." A lot of cops are killed, and Howell is blamed and jailed. With Jennifer Jason Leigh as a waitress, Jeffrey De Munn, and Billy Green Bush. John Seale was the cinematographer. The Mark Isham soundtrack is on Silva. Red also wrote Near Dark, another excellent horror/road movie. Return of the Hitcher (1990) is an unrelated Italian movie by Umberto Lenzi.

HITCHHIKE!

(1974) D: Gordon Hesler
S: Yale M. Udoff P: Jay Benson

Cloris Leachman picks up a killer hitchhiker. Michael Brandon, Cameron Mitchell, Sherry Jackson, and Henry Darrow are featured in this ABC-TV movie. An Italian movie called Hitchhike stars David Hess as a psycho sadist.

THE HITCH-HIKER

(WPI, Sinister, 1952) D/S: Ida Lupino S/P: Collier Young

Ida Lupino was the only woman directing features in America when she made this story of a dangerous psycho (William Talman, later the DA in the Perry Mason TV series) who holds two vacationing businessmen captive in New Mexico. Frank Lovejoy and Edmond O'Brien are the men who just wanted to go fishing. Lupino also directed O'Brien in The Bigamist (1953). She and Young had been married (1948–50).

THE HITCHHIKER

(Lorimar series, 1984–91)

This HBO series, created by Lewis Chesler, was the first "R-rated" cable series. Each story of mystery or the supernatural is introduced by a hitchhiker (Nicholas Campbell) and has some nudity. Some of the better-known directors involved over the years were Paul Verhoeven, Phillip Noyce, Roger Vadim, and Mai Zetterling. Each 90-minute tape has three episodes. More tapes were released in Europe. Here are some stars of the tapes released in the US: Volume I: Harry Hamlin, Gary Busey, Karen Black, Geraldine Page; Volume II: Susan Anspach, Darren McGavin, Peter Coyote, Margot Kidder; Volume III: Willem Dafoe, Ornelia Muti, Tom Skerritt; Volume IV: Robert Vaughn, Sybil Danning, Michael O'Keefe.

THE HITCHHIKERS

(1971) D/S/P: Ferd and Beverly Sebastian

Hitchhiking movies were common in the 70s. There were also quite a few movies inspired by the Manson family. This drive-in wonder combines both. Misty Rowe (a regular on Hee Haw) is Maggie, a blond runaway who shoplifts and is raped by security guards. She ends up as a member of a Manson-type hippie cult. The leader (Noman Klar) makes the girls hitchhike and lead the drivers to others who rob them. The Sebastians did Gator Bait next.

C. Thomas Howell and Rutger Hauer in The Hitcher.

Misty Rowe in The Hitchhikers.

THE HITCHHIKER'S GUIDE TO THE GALAXY

(CBS/Fox, 1981) D/P: Alan J. W. Bell
S: Douglas Adams UK

Simon Jones stars as Arthur Dent, a Londoner who's hitchhiking around in space and time (wearing his bathrobe) with Ford Prefect, an alien (David Dixon) and Marvin, "the paranoid android." They discover the origin of mankind and the meaning of life after Earth is destroyed. This 6-part BBC science-fiction/comedy series, based on the books by Douglas Adams, is on two tapes. Hannibal released the soundtrack.

HITCHHIKE TO HELL

(Best, 1967) D/P: Irv Berwick S: John Buckley

Howard (Robert Gribbin) is a normal-looking mama's-boy psycho who picks up hitchhikers in a red laundry van and strangles (and rapes) them. The victims are mostly teen girls whom he tries to talk out of running away, but one is a gay guy and a near victim is an 11-year-old girl. At other times Howard has flashbacks, assembles model cars, and drinks lots of root beer. Despite the theme, nothing is shown. Gribbin is very convincing in his role, and there's the added attraction of Russell Johnson (yes, the professor in Gilligan's Island) as a Crescent City cop who just can't understand today's uncaring parents. With Dorothy Bennett as the mother and John Harmon as the boss. Boxoffice International released this when it was several years old.

HIT LADY

(Prism, 1974) D: Tracy Keenan Wynn S/A: Yvette Mimieux P: Aaron Spelling, Leonard Goldberg

Yvette Mimieux is an artist who moonlights as a syndicate killer in a bikini. With Clu Gulager, Dack Rambo, and Keenan Wynn (whose son directed). The plot of this ABC-TV movie is basically the same as the plot of Al Adamson's I Spit on Your Corpse (from the same year). Mimieux's next notable film was Jackson County Jail.

HITLER, DEAD OR ALIVE

(Good Times, 1942) D: Nick Grinde
S: Karl Brown, Sam Neumann
P: Ben Judell

A trio of American ex-cons go to Germany to kill Hitler for a million dollars. A scientist who offered the money tells the whole story in flashback. Ward Bond is the leader (he speaks German), Paul Fix is the brains, and Warren Hymer is the dumb one. But the Nazis are even dumber. The unlikely heroes hijack a plane, then drive a beer truck to the Dachau prison where they pretend to be guards. Eventually, after Hitler's mustache has been shaved off, he (Bob Watson) is shot by his own men, who don't recognize him! The movie is silly but serious as "dames and kids" are killed. Watson also played der Führer in The Devil with Hitler (1942), The Hitler Gang (1944), and other films. This States Rights release was produced by the founder of PRC and received a lot of publicity when first released. Judell also produced Hitler, Beast of Berlin (1939). Grinde made several Karloff movies at Columbia.

HITLER'S DAUGHTER

(Paramount, 1990) D: James A. Contner
S: Christopher Cannon, Sherman Gray
P: Richard Luke Rothschild

The daughter of Hitler, backed by modern-day Nazis, plans to start the Fourth Reich in America. She rises to power in Washington, DC. This "hard to believe they made it" USA Network movie features Kay Lenz, Veronica Cartwright, Melody Anderson, and Patrick Cassidy.

HITLER'S SON

(1977) D: Rod Amateau S: Lukas Heller, Burkhardt Driest P: Dr. Gerd Göring

The leader of a right-wing German political party (Peter Cushing) and his chauffeur (Leo Gordon) discover that Willi, an illiterate young Munich woodcarver (Bud Cort), is the son of der Führer. They eventually have to kidnap him from a mental institution, then try to prepare him to lead a new reich. Nobody wanted to release this comedy when it was new, and it's still unavailable. The cast includes Felicity Dean and Anton Diffring. It was filmed in Munich by the (American) director of The Statue (1971), High School USA (1983), and The Garbage Pail Kids Movie (1987).

THE HITLER TAPES

(Scorched Earth, 1994) D/M: Ronnie Cramer
S: David Manning P: Phillip Koss

The late Andrew Scott had his second and last leading role in this sequel to Cramer's Even Hitler Had a Girlfriend (1991). Marcus Templeton (Scott) is a hopeless voyeur who can't get it up anymore but uses phone-sex lines. He also videotapes women, then sends the tapes to the current object of his obsessions (Karen Zaczkowsky). She watches them with a mixture of disgust and fascination before she finally throws them away. There are two shower scenes and a woman with huge breasts and guns. The Alarming Trends provide the music and are seen playing outdoors. It features Sheila Ivy Traister and was made in Omaha.

THE HIT LIST

(RCA, 1988) D: William Lustig S: John Goff, Peter Brosnan P: Paul Hertzberg

Jan-Michael Vincent's child is kidnapped by mistake. Lance Henriksen is a ninja-like assassin working for mob boss Rip Torn who kills the wrong family. This violent action movie features Charles Napier as a cop and Leo Rossi. Lustig also made the Maniac Cop movies.

THE HIT LIST

(Columbia, 1993) D/P: William Webb S: Reed Steiner

Jeff Fahey stars as a former government assassin turned hitman who is hired by a lawyer (James Coburn) to protect a rich widow (Yancy Butler, who used a body double). This film noir attempt is by the director of The Banker. With Michael Beach and Randy Oglesby as cops and Jeff Korber.

HIT MAN

(1972) D/S: George Armitage P: Gene Corman

Bernie Casey stars in this remake of the Michael Caine movie Get Carter (1971). An LA criminal lawyer (in a red leisure suit) whose brother has been murdered gets involved with gangsters and the world of sex movies. Pam Grier costars as Gozeldo, who wants to become a porno star but ends up thrown into a cage with a tiger. With Lisa Moore, Tracy King, Rudy Challenger, and Don Diamond. There's a scene at the Watts Tower. The director made New World's Private Duty Nurses.

THE HITMAN

(Cannon, 1990) D: Aaron Norris S: Robert Geoffrion S/P: Don Carmody Canada

A cop (Chuck Norris) is the victim of a hit. He "comes back from the dead" on the operating table, takes a new identity, and goes undercover (with a beard) to expose Italian, French-Canadian, and Iranian drug gangs in Seattle and Vancouver. The (fake) bad guy Norris uses a sawed-off shotgun. With Michael Parks as the ex-cop villain who "kills" him, Al Waxman as a gangster, Alberta Watson, and Norris' kids. Harry Alan Towers was the executive producer for Cannon.

THE HITTER

(1979) D/S/P: Christopher Leitch
S: Ben Harris P: Gary Herman

Ron O'Neal is Otis, an ex-boxer in Baltimore who teams up with a washed-up promoter (Adolph Caesar) and starts fighting again. He had quit years before after accidentally killing a man in the ring.

With Sheila Frazier and Bill Cobbs. It was the last leading role for the former Superfly star. Gloria Jones and Taste of Honey are on the Capitol soundtrack.

HIT THE DUTCHMAN

(Vidmark, 1992) D/P: Menahem Golan
S: Joseph Goldman US/Russia

After the release of period gangster movies like Bugsy, Mobsters, and Billy Bathgate, the Israel-based 21st Century made this ridiculous movie in the former Soviet Union. Bruce Nozick stars as Prohibition-era gangster Dutch Schultz. Sally Kirkland costars as his mother, Will Kemp is Legs Diamond, and Jennifer Miller is around for sex scenes. This "borrows" elements from The Godfather, James Bond movies, and even Italian westerns. Nozick plays the same character in Killer Instinct, which was filmed back to back with this. R and unrated versions are available.

HIT THE ROAD RUNNING

(1984) D: Worth Keeter III S: Thom L. McIntyre P: Earl Owensby

Bill Bribble stars as a deputy sheriff in this 3-D action movie made in North Carolina. When Owensby stopped making movies Keeter made more in Hollywood.

HITZ

(Vidmark, 1988) D/S: William Sachs
P: Oscar L. Costo (Judgment)

Emilia Crow stars as a juvenile-court judge dealing with LA-barrio gangs in this violent mixture of social commentary, comedy, and action by the man who made Galaxina and The Incredible Melting Man. Karen Black shoots up a courtroom with a machine gun in a scene that's a highlight. With Francesco Quinn, Elliott Gould as a corrupt judge, Thalmus Rasulala, Ed Lauter, Sydney Lassick, and Cuba Gooding Jr. (Boyz n the Hood). When it was released (in 1992) new rap music was added to the soundtrack.

THE H-MAN

(RCA, 1958) D: Inishiro Honda
S: Takeshi Kimura P: Tomoyuki Tanaka
Japan (Uomini H; Bijyo to Ekitai Ningen)

This welcome, easy-to-find release is a color, cinemascope science-fiction/gangster classic. It opens with an H-bomb blast. A drug dealer, outside in the rain, disappears. Only his suit and shoes are left. Flashbacks show how a ship got too close to the nuclear test. Police try to figure out what's going on, and a scientist dissolves a frog, while boiling and bubbling red-and-blue "slime monsters" kill more people. The Tokyo Star's headlines are "STRANGE MONSTER DISSOLVES HUMANS!" and "CITY MENACED BY H-MAN MONSTER!" Fun nightclub scenes feature a Julie London–type singer who sings "The Magic Begins" and "So Deep Is My Love" in English, some wild jazz, and chorus girls. It all ends in a sewer, where the crooks had hidden a bag of heroin and a terrorized woman cowers in her slip. The FX are imaginative and well done. When Columbia released this in the US, audience members were given free "H-Man sponges." The Blob was released the same year. This was followed in 1960 by Secret of the Telegian (Sinister) and The Human Vapor (Video Gems), other Toho mutant-men movies.

HOBGOBLINS

(TWE, 1988) D/S/P: Rick Sloane

Teens fight off mutant hand-puppet creatures in this terrible Gremlins ripoff by the director of the Vice Academy series. Tom Bartlett and Paige Sullivan star.

HOCUS POCUS

(Disney, 1993) D: Kenny Ortega S: Mick Garris, Neil Cumbert P: David Kirschner, Steven Haft

Bette Midler, Sarah Jessica Parker, and Kathy Najimy are goofy 17th-century witch sisters in modern-day Salem, Massachusetts. The witches, who speak in unison, go after the teens who resurrected them in a museum on Halloween. Omri Katz, Thora Birch, and Vanessa Shaw are the kids. A boy who caused their hanging returns as a talking cat, and zombies appear. This PG comedy was a box-office flop but has good FX.

HOG WILD

(Nelson, 1980) D: Les Rose S: Andrew Peter Martin P: Claude Heroux Canada

Michael Biehn and Patti D'Arbanville star in this action comedy about nerds victimized by bikers, with Matt Craven and Tony Rosato as Bull. It's by the director of Gas.

HOLD ME, THRILL ME, KISS ME

(Live, 1992) D/S: Joel Hershman P: Travis Swords

Bud (Max Parrish) hides out in an El Monte trailer park after shooting his scheming new wife (Sean Young) and encounters strange and comic characters there. Adrienne Shelly (from Hal Hartley movies) is Danny, a nice girl who lives with her crazy-bitch sister, Saber, a dancer (porno actress Andrea Naschak, perfect for the part). There's a former Hungarian opera star and her no-good son, flashbacks, and the top-billed Young (who doesn't have much screen time) returning as a vengeful ghost. Also with Diane Ladd, and Timothy Leary (who's pretty good in a real role). The soundtrack includes tunes by the Cramps, the Pixies, the Violent Femmes, and others. The first-time director went to NYU's film school. R and unrated versions are available.

HOLLOWGATE

(City Lights, 1988) D/S: Ron Dizazzo
P: Richard Pepin, Joseph Merhi

A kid is nearly killed by his drunken father at a Halloween party, and ten years later he goes on a killing spree. Addison Randall and Katrina Avery star.

HOLLYWOOD AFTER DARK

(Sinister, 1961) (The Unholy Choice)

Tony (Jack Vorno, from Help Wanted Female) is a weary, sarcastic, tortured former underwater-demolition expert who now runs a junkyard. He falls for a burlesque stripper (Rue McClanahan), accidentally kills a man, and totally botches a payroll robbery. Like Five Minutes to Love, also from Headliner Productions (and also with McClanahan), this has pretentious, serious dialogue and eccentric characters. Things are livened up by several strippers (especially a black one in pasties) and McClanahan's topless scene. There are no credits. McClanahan (Blanche in the TV series The Golden Girls) is also in How to Succeed with Girls. She's from Oklahoma.

HOLLYWOOD BABYLON

(Neon, 1971) D/P: Van Guylder S/P: L. K. Farbella

This unique but silly adults-only movie is a ripoff of Kenneth Anger's book and pretends to be a documentary about early scandals in "the sin capitol of the universe." A cheery narrator gives historical information and introduces color re-creations (with people playing famous actors) mixed with vintage public-domain silent-movie scenes. Some of the scenes are hilarious. Uschi Digart plays a lesbian Marlene Dietrich (!), Valentino is a voyeur, von Stroheim stages a real orgy, and Clara Bow does it with five football players. There's lots of sex, drugs, and nudity. The script is very sympathetic to the victims of scandals. With Jim Gentry, Ashley Phillips, and Myron Griffin. Guylder also directed David F. Friedman's Ramrodder (1969).

The H-Man

HOLLYWOOD BOULEVARD II

(MGM, 1989) D: Steve Barnett
S: Michael Sloane, Don Pugsley, Scott Narrie P: Chris Beckman, Tom Merchant

Joe Dante and Allan Arkush's 1976 Hollywood Boulevard was clever, funny, and cheap. This sequel is cheap. Ginger Lynn Allen (star of a million porno movies, she had a bit in Young Guns II) stars as the innocent Candy, who replaces the murdered star of a low-budget movie. Eddie Deezen watches Ginger/Candy have R-rated sex with a screenwriter in front of a movie screen, in the only memorable scene. With Michelle Moffett, Maria Socas, Robert Patrick, Windsor Taylor Randolph, and Penelope Reed. Joe Bob Briggs shows up for a second, there are a lot of great explosions from other movies, and a heavy-metal band plays. Lots of past and present Corman directors (whom only a Concorde employee could maybe identify with the freeze-frame control) are in the useless ending (inspired by the great ending of the movie Candy).

HOLLYWOOD CHAINSAW HOOKERS

(Camp, 1987) D/S/P: Fred Olen Ray S: T. L. Langford

Hookers Linnea Quigley and Michelle Bauer kill the customers and duel with chainsaws in this unrated detective/horror spoof. Jay Richardson as Chandler narrates. The best joke is when a hooker covers her velvet Elvis painting so that blood won't splatter on it. With Gunnar Hansen (from The Texas Chainsaw Massacre) as the blood-cult leader, Fox Harris, and Dawn Wildsmith. The music is by the Fugitive Kind. Ray basically remade it as Beverly Hills Vamp.

HOLLYWOOD CHRONICLES

(MPI series)

Jackie Cooper narrates 13 50-minute documentary tapes. Some of special interest are: Censorship: The Unseen Cinema; The Futurists/Wizards of the FX; Poverty Row/The New Rebels; Scandal/Mysteries and Secrets; The Nightmare Factory; and Stereotypes and Minorities.

HOLLYWOOD CONFIDENTIAL

(Fang, 1948) D/P: Klayton W. Kirby
(Sidestreets of Hollywood)

Dorothy Abbott (who looks a bit like Lucille Ball) plays Dorothy Sloan, "a virgin in Hollywood" who's been sent there by her boss, the editor of a small-town newspaper, to write an exposé. She goes to a "haunted castle" where models pose in bikinis (one has a demon mask) and watches strippers dance in a club. She decides to pose, does some runway lingerie modeling, and answers some personal ads. There are flashbacks inside of flashbacks, a guy in drag who uses his falsies as an ashtray, a catfight, and lines like "Did you ever feel as if you'd swallowed an electric vibrator?" Abbott narrates, then another actress starts reading her notes and takes over the narration. This road-show movie is based on Sloan's "amazing book." The 1953 rerelease (Virgin in Hollywood) contains a 3-D sequence.

HOLLYWOOD COP

(Celebrity, 1986) D/S: Amir Shervan
P: Moshe Bibiyan, Simon Bibiyan

David Goss tries to get a kidnapped kid back from mobsters. Meanwhile we see female oil-wrestling, bikers, crazed Arabs, kung-fu fighting, and car chases. Jim Mitchum is the gang boss, Aldo Ray is Fong, the Chinese (!) owner of a health club/whorehouse, and Cameron Mitchell and Troy Donahue are cops.

HOLLYWOOD DINOSAUR CHRONICLES

(Rhino, 1987)

Doug McClure hosts this 42-minute documentary with clips from King Kong, The Lost World, and other movies with dinosaurs.

THE HOLLYWOOD GAME

(Marathon, 1977) D/S/P: David Neil Gottlieb (Game Show Models; The Hollywood Dream; Teenage Models)

Independent International released this drive-in comedy with disco music. John Vickery stars, with singer Thelma Houston, Sid Melton, Willie Bobo (who also did the soundtrack), and Dick Miller.

HOLLYWOOD GHOST STORIES

(Castle Hill, 1986) D: James Forsher

John Carradine hosts a mixture of film clips and interviews about real ghosts with William Peter Blatty, Elke Sommer, Susan Strasberg, and Robert Bloch. Also included are a 1927 interview with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, parts of The Mystic Circle Mystery (1936), with Houdini's wife, Bess, and a music-video ending, with Carradine.

HOLLYWOOD HARRY

(Media, 1985) D/P/A: Robert Forster S: Curt Allen
P: Branimar Arandjelovich (Harry's Machine)

Robert Forster stars as a clichéd divorced, alcoholic detective in this corny action comedy. His niece (his real-life daughter, Katherine) comes to live with him, and he has to find a runaway who was in a porno movie. He has a cartoon dream. Joe Spinell plays his friend Max, and Shannon Wilcox (his real-life wife at the time) also appears.

HOLLYWOOD HOT TUBS

(Vestron, 1984) D: Chuck Vincent
S: Craig McDonnell S/P: Mark Borde

A Hollywood guy gets a job repairing hot tubs. With Jewel Shepard as valley girl Crystal, future director Katt Shea as Dee Dee, Edy Williams (also in the X-rated Lady Lust the same year) as Desire, and Becky Le Beau. Shepard returned in Hollywood Hot Tubs II (IVE, 1989), with Tally Chanel, Spice Williams, and Michael Pataki.

HOLLYWOOD KNIGHTS

(Active, 1980) D/S: Floyd Mutrux P: Richard Lederer

This American Graffiti copy (by the maker of American Hot Wax) is set on Halloween night in 1965. Some teens seek revenge for the closing of Tubbies, a drive-in restaurant where they hung out. There are very dumb cops and jokes about tits, farts, and pigs. Only the black guys have pot. The cast includes Tony Danza, Fran Drescher, Robert Wuhl (who is very funny), Michelle Pfeiffer as Suzy Q, Stuart Pankin, Otis Young, Art La Fleur, Debra Feuer, and Playboy Playmate Michelle Drake. It was the first time around for Danza, Wuhl, and Pfeiffer. This Columbia release has a 60s-oldies soundtrack (on Casablanca). The only problem is that it includes some hits from 1966.

HOLLYWOOD MAN

(1976) D: Jack Starrett S/P/A: William Smith (Death Threat)

William Smith stars as a movie star and former biker who uses money from the mob to make his own biker movie. This semi-autobiographical movie features Smith's real-life wife, Michelle Marley, Mary Woronov as his girlfriend, Don Stroud as a stuntman, John Alderman, and Jennifer Billingsley. Smith had just found new fame as Falconetti on TV in Rich Man, Poor Man.

HOLLYWOOD SCREAM QUEEN HOT TUB PARTY

(Tempe, 1992) D: Jim Wynorski, Fred Olen Ray

This 50-minute compilation of movie clips features Brinke Stevens, Monique Gabrielle, Michelle Bauer, Roxanne Kernohan, Kelly Maroney, and others. Scenes are from Slumber Party Massacre, Sorority House Massacre II, Hollywood Chainsaw Hookers, Evil Toons, and Emmanuelle V.

HOLLYWOOD SHUFFLE

(Image, 1987) D/S/P/A: Robert Townsend
S/A: Keenan Ivory Wayans

Townsend basically plays himself, a black actor faced with being stereotyped in Hollywood movies. He imagines himself in scenes from movies like A Bat in Our House and Night of the Street Pimps and spoofs Rambo and Mandingo. The commercial for "Black Acting School" shows (white) instructors teaching black actors how to walk funky and speak jive. Wayans, who later used some of the same ideas for his In Living Color TV series, plays several roles. Wayans gave Townsend a cameo in his blaxploitation parody I'm Gonna Get You Sucka! (1988). With Anne-Marie Johnson, Starletta DuPois, Damon Wayans, and Steve James. Townsend followed with Eddie Murphy Raw (1987) and The Five Heartbeats (1991).

HOLLYWOOD'S NEW BLOOD

(Raedon, 1988) D/S: James Shyman P: Ron Forster

A family whose house was blown up for a movie seek revenge during a seminar at a lake. Bobby Johnson and Francine Lapensee star.

THE HOLLYWOOD STRANGLER MEETS THE SKID ROW SLASHER

(Sinister, 1973) D/C/E: "Wolfgang Schmidt"/Ray Dennis Steckler S: Christopher Edwards
P: Carol Flynn (Model Killer)

A horny photographer (Pierre Agostino) kills models. Narrator Steckler's echoing voice is heard saying things like "Die, garbage, die!" Carolyn Brandt (Steckler's real-life wife) is the bookstore owner who kills bums with a switchblade. The "story" goes back and forth between the two killers. Then they meet and fall in love. There's no dialogue but lots of blood and nudity (especially in Model Killer, a longer version). Steckler, who made his cult classics in the 60s, used a handheld 16mm camera for this one. Agostino returned in Las Vegas Serial Killer.

HOLLYWOOD UNCENSORED

(IVE, 1987) D/S: James Forsher S: Leith Adams, Barbara Myers, Beverly Stanley P: Julian Schlossberg

This light but fun documentary about censorship is divided into 2 parts. The hosts are the sons of more famous stars. A cheerful Douglas Fairbanks Jr. (last seen in Ghost Story) covers the 30s through the 50s. Peter Fonda (whose daughter Bridget is a bigger star these days) takes us up to the 80s and covers drug films. Early highlights are three great King Kong scenes that were unseen for decades, amazing (for the time) topless scenes from the European version of High School Confidential, and Ronald Reagan with Jayne Mansfield at an awards ceremony. Trailers for The Love Life of a Gorilla and Sex Madness are included, along with surprising pre-Code scenes with Barbara Stanwyck, Mae West, W. C. Fields, and tiny Shirley Temple playing a sexy adult singer. Jane Russell, Don Murray (who has made religious films and wants restrictions), Mamie Van Doren (also seen in Girls Town), and Sheree North reminisce. North is shown in a wild rock-dance segment and a famous 1953 bikini-dance short later sold through the mail. These scenes, and North herself (last seen in Maniac Cop), show why she should be better known and work more often. Fonda is seen on Hollywood Boulevard (and coping in Easy Rider). There are trailers for Cocaine Fiends, Reefer Madness, and Silent Night, Deadly Night (versions with and without Santa). Carroll Baker and Eli Wallach discuss Baby Doll ("the dirtiest film ever!"), and Martin Scorsese talks about Taxi Driver and Peeping Tom, which he first saw, uncut at New York's Fright Night show. While showing scenes from Blood Feast, Fonda yells, "Cut! Cut!" and looks away in disgust. Some of the public-domain footage may be overly familiar, but this is a very entertaining tape you'll probably wish was longer.

HOLLYWOOD VICE SQUAD

(Hollywood Home, 1986) D: Penelope Spheeris S: James J. Dogherty P: Arnold Orgolono, Sandy Howard

In this dumb action comedy from the director of Suburbia, various teams of LA cops encounter crimes. Ronny Cox, Leon Isaac Kennedy, and H. B. Haggerty are cops, Frank Gorshin is a comic gangster, Trish Van Devere is a mom looking for her hooker daughter, and Carrie Fisher busts an underage porno shoot. Robin Wright, Ben Frank, and Joey Travolta are also in the cast. It's from Roger Corman's Concorde and the producer of Vice Squad. Chris Spedding is on the soundtrack.

HOLLYWOOD ZAP

(Troma, 1986) D/S: David Cohen P: Bobbi Frank, Ben Frank

A southerner is in Hollywood searching for his father, and a former Wall Street stockbroker is searching for the ultimate video game. Ben Frank and Ivan E. Roth star in this comedy from Troma.

THE HOLY MOUNTAIN

(VSOM, 1973) D/S/A/M: Alexandro Jodorowsky Mexico

In Jodorowsky's "mescaline movie," nine disciples are on a quest to a mountain to discover the secret of immortality. They meet a master (the director) who shows them seven narrated tales of power, greed, and sex and teaches them to "destroy your illusions." This film looks more dated than the classic El Topo but has many similar images. Laughing children crucify Christ (Horacio Salinas), lots of tarantulas crawl over a screaming man, people are disemboweled, and a circus features toads playing conquistadors (a great scene). Dennis Hopper was originally cast but had a fight with the director. Jodorowsky had problems shooting in Mexico and had to finish it in America. It was an expensive flop midnight movie release (from Alan Klein's Abcko). For a while Klein would rent it only on a double bill with El Topo. Then both were withdrawn, only to show up years later on eagerly purchased bootleg videos. It's also available letterboxed on a Japanese laserdisc (with censorship dots for frontal nudity).

HOLY TERROR = ALICE, SWEET ALICE

HOLY WEDNESDAY: See FANGS

HOME BEFORE MIDNIGHT

(Lorimar, 1978) D/S/P: Peter Walker UK

A songwriter (James Aubrey, from Lord of the Flies) for a band called Bad Accident is falsely accused of raping a 14-year-old girl (Allison Elliot, who has a shower scene), and his life is ruined by her parents and the court system. Richard Todd is an attorney, and Mick Jagger's lookalike brother Chris is the lead singer. The music is by the real band Jigsaw. Walker made the horror film The Comeback (with Jack Jones) the same year.

HOMEBOYS II: CRACK CITY

(AIP, 1989) D/S: Daniel Matmor P: Joe Paradise, H. Richard Garcia, Karen Burns

Brian Paul Stewart stars as David, a nice suburban guy who's forced to live with relatives in West Harlem, where he starts selling coke with his Mohawk-hair cousin. Parts of this movie are extremely ridiculous, but it's not boring. Characters are complex (a serious black radical, a killer American Indian priest, a Fagin-like Hispanic criminal). At one point David pretends to be gay to catch a leather-clad killer, and Delia Sheppard shows up as a dominatrix in a topless S&M nightclub. It all ends with homeless people fighting back and a quote from President Reagan. The music by Yuval Ron is very interesting and uses lots of phasing. This film has nothing to do with Homeboy (1988), Homeboys (1992), or even Homeboyz (1992). It may have been shot in Boston.

HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS

(Vidmark, 1972) D: John Llewellyn Moxey S: Joseph Stefano P: Paul Junger Witt

A dying man (Walter Brennan, in his last role) summons his four daughters, who blame him for the death of their mother, and tells them that his second wife (Julie Harris) is trying to poison him. The dreary, cheap-looking old-dark-house murder mystery set at Christmas is an ABC-TV movie. It's like a mixture of Dark Shadows and Bergman's Cries and Whispers, with excess thunder and lightning and zoom-lens "shocks." Jessica Walter, Sally Field, Jill Hayworth, and Eleanor Parker are the daughters. It has no relation to the 1995 Jodie Foster movie.

HOME MOVIES

(Vestron, 1979) D/P: Brian De Palma S: Robert Harders P: Jack Temchin, Gil Adler (The Maestro)

De Palma was teaching a film class at Sarah Lawrence when he made this comedy about filmmaking written by students, who also served as crew members and acted. Top-billed Kirk Douglas (who had been in De Palma's The Fury) guest stars as "the Maestro," a film instructor who encourages Keith Gordon to make a film. With Nancy Allen, Gerrit Graham, Vincent Gardenia, and Captain Haggerty. The Pino Donaggio soundtrack was released by Varèse Sarabande. De Palma married Allen in 1979 (it didn't last). Gordon took his role seriously. He went on to write Static and direct The Chocolate War. United Artists released this.

HOMER

(1970) D: John Trent S: Claude Harz P: Terence Dene

Don Scardino (later in Squirm and Cruising) stars as a Wisconsin farmboy with a motorcycle and a rock band. His parents try to make him cut his hair, he wrecks his father's car, he loses his virginity (with Tisa Farrow), and his best friend dies in Nam. Eventually he leaves town with some hippies. Alex Nicol is also in this GP-rated National General release. The Cotillion soundtrack features tracks by the Byrds, Cream, Led Zeppelin, and Buffalo Springfield.

HOME SWEET HOME

(1980) D: Nettie Pena S: Thomas Bush

Bodybuilder Jake Steinfeld plays a psycho bodybuilder who escapes from an asylum on Thanksgiving. He laughs while he kills people in an isolated house. Steinfeld is known as "the trainer to the stars." The soundtrack was on MSR.

HOMETOWN USA

(Vestron, 1979) D: Max Baer Jr. S/P: Jesse Vint P: Roger Cameras

The last of three movies directed by Baer (Jethro in the TV series The Beverly Hillbillies) is a teen comedy set in the late 50s. It copies American Graffiti and stars Gary Springer, Brian Kerwin, and Sally Kirkland.

HOMEWORK

(Kit Parker, 1979) D/P: James Beshears S: Maurice Peterson, Don Safran (Growing Pains)

Joan Collins has an affair with her son's 16-year-old friend (Michael Morgan). With Lee Purcell, Wings Hauser as Rock, a coke-sniffing rock star, Carrie Snodgress, Betty Thomas, and Mel Wells. It was released in 1982 by Jensen Farley, who added new scenes and a nude body double for Collins. Annie Ample, Michelle Bauer, and Barbara Peckinpaugh appear topless in dream or nightmare scenes.

HOMEWRECKER

(Paramount, 1991) D/S: Fred Walton S: Eric Harlacher P: Robert M. Rolsky (Programmed for Murder)

Robby Benson is not convincing as a brilliant, troubled scientist who develops a Star Wars–type defense-system robot. He retreats to his remote, high-tech vacation home, reprograms the computer (with the voice of Kate Jackson), and calls it Lucy. The jealous Lucy, with threatening mobile metal arms and hands, falls for the childlike scientist and eventually tries to kill his wife (Sydney Walsh, from To Die For) and little girl (Sarah Rose Karr) with knives, scissors, and gas. The first movie to debut on the Sci-Fi Channel, it was filmed around Portland, Oregon, by the director of April Fool's Day.

HOMICIDAL IMPULSE

(LIVE, 1992) D/S: David Tausik

Scott Valentine stars as an assistant DA who is seduced by his intern (Vanessa Angel) and drugged. Her uncle is the corrupt DA (Charles Napier). This R or unrated "erotic thriller" from Concorde features murder by acid, electric knife, and poker. Talia Shire is also in the cast.

HONDO

(1952) D: John Farrow S: James Edward Grant P: Robert Fellows

John Wayne stars as a cavalry scout in this 3-D Warner Brothers film, adapted from a story by Louis L'Amour. He was also the executive producer. The cast includes Geraldine Page (in her film debut), Ward Bond, Michael Pate, James Arness, Rodolfo Acosta, Lee Aaker, and Leo Gordon. The film was shot in Carmargo, Mexico. A 1967 TV series was based on it.

HONEYBABY

(UAV, 1974) D: Michael Schultz S: Brian Phelan P: Jack Jordan (Honeybaby, Honeybaby)

Diana Sands is Laura Lewis, a UN interpreter who wins a trip on a TV game show and unknowingly transports a microdot with secret information to Beruit. Calvin Lockhart costars as a soldier of fortune. Cabaret star Bricktop also appears. Apparently this comic/action/spy movie wasn't completed as planned, so a prologue was added with a teen cousin smoking pot and telling the story. By the time it was released Sands had died of cancer.

HONEY, I BLEW UP THE KID

(Disney, 1992) D: Randal Kleiser S: Thom Eberhardt, Peter Elbling, Garry Goodrow P: Dawn Steel, Edward S. Feldman

I never thought Disney would rip off The Amazing Colossal Man, substituting a baby, but this PG comedy sequel to Honey, I Shrunk the Kids even includes scenes in Las Vegas, as in that 50s AIP hit. The FX are a lot better than Bert I. Gordon's, though. A two-year-old (played by the identical twins Daniel and Joshua Shalikar) becomes 7 feet tall, then a towering giant, because of his absentminded inventor dad (Rick Moranis). Bad-guy scientist John Shea wants the baby for experiments. With Marcia Strassman, Robert Oliveri, Keri Russell as a babysitter, Lloyd Bridges, Kenneth Tobey, and Tom Rainone's hands. Novelist Kit Reed won a settlement because of the script's similarity to her story "The Attack of the Giant Baby" (1975).

HONEY, I SHRUNK THE KIDS

(Disney, 1989) D: Joe Johnson S: Ed Naha, Tom Schulman P: Penny Finkelman Cox

This hit PG fantasy is based on a story by horror directors Stuart Gordon and Brian Yuzna. Yuzna was an executive producer. Rick Moranis invents a shrinking-ray machine that accidentally makes his kids (Amy O'Neill and Robert Oliveri) and two neighbor kids smaller than ants. They end up in the backyard fighting scary giant bugs and tame an ant to help them. With Marcia Strassman, Matt Frewer, Kimmy Robertson (from Twin Peaks), and Kristine Sutherland. Filmed in Mexico. A sequel followed.

HONEYMOON ACADEMY

(HBO, 1988) D/S: Gene Quintano S: Jerry Lazarus P: Tony Anthony (For Better or for Worse)

The title has nothing to do with this PG-13 Romancing the Stone–inspired comic adventure starring Kim Cattrall as a secret agent in Spain. With Robert Hays, Christopher Lee (in a small role), and Leigh Taylor-Young.

HONEYMOON IN VEGAS

(New Line, 1992) D/S: Andrew Bergman P: Mike Lobell

Card shark James Caan wins Sarah Jessica Parker from private eye Nicolas Cage in a poker game just as they're about to get married. This romantic comedy features a whole convention of Elvis impersonators, many Elvis songs, and a troupe of skydiving Elvises. Part of the film takes place in Hawaii. Some scenes parody James Bond movies, Chinatown, and Wild at Heart. Noriyuki "Pat" Morita, Anne Bancroft, Seymour Cassel, and Peter Boyle are also in the cast. Rob Reiner was the executive producer. The Epic soundtrack consists of cover versions of Elvis hits.

HONEYMOON MURDERS and HONEYMOON MURDERS II

(Cinevue/Postal, 1990) D/S/P: Steve Postal S/P: Gail Postal

The Postals churned out 10 (!) features in Bostwick, Florida, in 6 months! Each is overlong and talk-filled. In these two, Maurice S. Postal stars as a silly-looking monster who kills newlyweds. The Postals sold them by mail order. They never paid for their ad in Psychotronic Video magazine.

HONEYMOON OF TERROR

(SW, 1961) D/S/P: Peter Perry P: Basil C. Bradbury

A happy, playful honeymoon couple go to Vegas, then to deserted Thunder Island. He stupidly leaves cute, blond Marion (Dwan Marlow) alone and goes for supplies. She thinks about swimming ("Heck, yes!"), then sunbathes topless, attracting a club-footed logger who "went loco" and "lives like an animal." He chases her around (to bongo music) for the rest of the movie. This short (less than an hour) b/w film is from Sonney Amusement. The tape is a Frank Henenlotter Sexy Shocker. Perry also made Mondo Mod (1967) and edited Al Adamson movies.

HONKY

(Unicorn, 1971) D: William A. Graham S/P: Will Chaney P: Ron Roth

Brenda Sykes (Cleopatra Jones, Black Gunn) a midwestern high-school student from a well-off black family, has a romance with a poor white guy (John Nielson) with racist parents. After everybody criticizes them they sell some pot (and smoke it) to raise money to leave for California, which leads to a life of crime and disastrous results. With William Marshall as her doctor father, Marion Ross as his mother, John Hillerman, Matt Clark, Lincoln Kilpatrick, and Maia Danziger. Quincy Jones wrote the score, and Billy Preston sings. It was filmed in Kansas City and released by Jack A. Harris (The Blob).

HONKY TONK NIGHTS

(Tapeworm, 1978) D: Charles Webb S/P: Arthur Chang

Carol Doda is famous (at least to tourists in San Francisco) for being a top-heavy topless dancer and owning her own club. In this movie without an audience she plays a small-time Dolly Parton–inspired country singer billed as "Belle Barnes and Her 44s." When she shows up at a club run by a depressed Georgina Spelvin, the drunken patrons just yell, "Take it off!" Her guitarist/lover (Ramblin' Jack Elliot) writes a new arrangement for her song "You've Got to Change to Be a Star" ("nobody wants you the way you are"), and she is finally taken seriously as a singer. A rival singer, played by Serena (a better actress than Doda), gets to lip-sync "One More Drunk for the Road" and stab a lecherous old man in the face with a fork. Subplots fill up time with chase scenes, fights, and racing motorcycles. Spelvin and Serena, both major porno movie stars at the time, have brief nude scenes. So does Chris Cassidy, a lesser-known porno actress. The only real sex scene is performed outdoors by unknowns. Ramblin' Jack Elliot, a disciple of Woody Guthrie, was a pretty popular folk star until Bob Dylan came along. He should have done more acting in better movies. The biggest surprise for me, in this pretty dull movie, was an appearance by the wonderful San Francisco–based Hot Licks (without Dan Hicks) doing a number.

HONOR AND GLORY

(Imperial, 1992) D/P: "Godfrey Hall"/ Godfrey Ho S: Herb Borkland

Donna Jason stars as a TV reporter trying to expose a psycho martial-arts master and corporate

THE HOODLUM

(Sinister, 1951) D: Max Nosseck S: Sam Neuman, Nat Tanchuck P: Maurice Kosloff

Lawrence Tierney stars as Vincent Lubeck, a hateful ex-con whose life begins and ends in the city dump. He causes the suicide of his brother's fiancéé, worries his mother to death, and escapes in a hearse after a bank heist. With Allene Roberts, Marjorie Riordan, Lisa Golm, Gene Roth, and Edward Tierney (Lawrence's brother) as the brother. This Eagle Lion production (released by United Artists) is very cheap-looking, but Tierney, who later was frequently in trouble with the law, is fascinating. Nosseck also directed Tierney in Kill or Be Killed.

THE HOODLUM PRIEST

(1961) D: Irvin Kershner S/P/A: Don Murray S: Joseph Landon P: Walter Wood

Murray plays (real) St. Louis priest Father Charles Dismas Clark. He tries to help a young ex-con (Keir Dullea, in his film debut) reform, but he's fired from his job, shoots a man during a robbery, and goes to the gas chamber. With Larry Gates, Cindi Wood (the producer's wife), and Logan Ramsey. Kershner had directed Stakeout on Dope Street (1958) and The Young Captives (1959). Haskell Wexler was the cinematographer. Murray returned to the same theme when he directed The Cross and the Switchblade in 1972.

HOODLUMS: See GANGSTERS

HOOK

(RCA, 1991) D: Steven Spielberg S: Jim V. Hart, Malia Scotch Marmo P: Kathleen Kennedy, Frank Marshall, Gerald R. Molen

It's reassuring to know that everything Spielberg makes isn't a smash hit. This "$80 million" PG movie based on J. M. Barrie's play and book was a box-office flop. Robin Williams stars as a corporate raider who can't remember his childhood. When his children are kidnapped he must go to Never-Never Land, remember his past, and "become" Peter Pan again to rescue them. Charlie Korsmo (from Dick Tracy) and Caroline Goodall are the kids. The cast includes Dustin Hoffman as Captain Hook, Julia Roberts as Tinkerbell, Bob Hoskins, Maggie Smith, Phil Collins, and David Crosby and Glenn Close as pirates. There's a theatrical-looking pirate ship and mermaids. "The Lost Boys" have hip haircuts and use skateboards. ILM did the FX. John Williams wrote the score. This TriStar release is 142 minutes long and is rated PG.

THE HOOKER CULT MURDERS = THE PYX

HOORAY FOR HORRORWOOD!

THE HORN BLOWS AT MIDNIGHT

(1945) D: Raoul Walsh S: Sam Hellerman, James V. Kern P: Mark Hellinger

This is the fantasy/comedy that Jack Benny always joked about on his TV show. He's a trumpeter with a New York City radio orchestra who becomes an angel and is ordered to arrive on Earth at midnight and herald the end of the planet. Alexis Smith, Allyn Joslyn, John Alexander, and Guy Kibbee are angels too. It all turns out to be a dream. The cast also includes Dolores Moran, Reginald Gardiner, Franklin Pangborn, Margaret Dumont, Mike Mazurki, Jack Norton, and little Robert Blake. Franz Waxman wrote the music for this Warner Brothers film.

HORRIBLE HONEYS

(Trailers on Tape, 1988)

Every trailer on this 78-minute tape is for a horror or exploitation movie starring a woman. Some are grouped according to key words in titles, like Bride, Daughter, Girl, Woman (Voodoo, Wasp, Leech, Snake, Cobra, 50 Ft.) and She (Creature, Freak, Monster, Demons). Those are followed by female juvenile-delinquent, horror/science-fiction, and exploitation trailers. Besides the many obvious titles, some highlights are Devil Girl from Mars, Female Jungle (Mansfield and Tierney), Berserk (with a spike in Michael Gough's head), a road-show exploitation-release trailer for Ingmar Bergman's film Monika, here called Monika: The Story of a Bad Girl (music by Les Baxter), Ultra Violet in Dinah East! (a transsexual movie), and Night of

(Goodtimes, 1986) D: David Bergman

John Zacherle, the famous TV horror host from Philadelphia (and New York City) recreates his funny 50s character on an interesting dungeon set and shows a pretty great public-domain selection of choice trailers, scenes from old horror and science-fiction movies, bloopers, outtakes, and rare 50s TV clips. Some titles are King of the Zombies, Spider Baby, Flash Gordon (the TV series), Tales of Frankenstein (a Brit-ish TV series), Killers from Space, and Abbott and Costello Meet Frankenstein. It's 110 minutes.

HORROR FARM: See DADDY'S DEADLY DARLINGS

HORROR HOUSE ON HIGHWAY 5

(Simitar, 1985) D/S: Richard Casey

First of all, this obscure video made around Hollywood is stupid, very bad, and boring. A guy in a Nixon mask kills people, and a "Dr. Mabuse" (who thinks maggots are in his brain) and a retarded guy kidnap and drug female students. Characters wander endlessly through hallways in a house and discover bodies. The only reason somebody out there might want to see it is that writer Richard Meltzer (in a standout performance) plays a drunk driver who dies in a fight.

THE HORROR OF IT ALL

(MPI, 1983) D/S/P: Gene Feldman S/P: Suzette Winter

José Ferrer hosts this 60-minute history of pre-70s horror movies, which uses interviews, stills, and public-domain film clips. Directors Roger Corman, Rouben Mamoulian, Curtis Harrington, and Herman Cohen, writer Robert Bloch, and actors John Carradine, Dana Andrews, Gloria Stuart, and Martine Beswick are heard and/or seen in new interviews.

THE HORROR SHOW

(MGM, 1989) D: James Isaac S: Allyn Warner, Leslie Bohem P: Sean S. Cunningham

Brion James stars as laughing Max Jenke, a mass murderer who's sent to the electric chair but returns to terrorize the cop (Lance Henriksen) who captured him. This failed attempt to create another Freddy Krueger was copied in the same year's Shocker by Cunningham's former partner Wes Craven. James and Henriksen are fine, but many of the FX, which try to outdo those in Nightmare on Elm Street movies, are mediocre or stupid (like the turkey scene). With Rita Taggart, Dedee Pfeiffer, Matt Clark, Alvy Moore, and Lawrence Tierney as the warden. This was known as House III in Europe (where it's longer), but it's better than any of the movies in the series. The Horror Show (1979) is a compilation tape, with Anthony Perkins looking at "60 years of Universal movie monsters."

THE HORRORS OF BURKE AND HARE

(Starmaker, 1971) D: Vernon Sewell S: Ernie Bradford P: Guido Coen UK (Burke and Hare)

Grave-robbers Burke and Hare do their thing in Edinburgh. The story had already been filmed many times. Harry Andrews stars as Dr. Knox, with Derren Nesbit, Yootha Joyce, and Yutte Stensgaard. It's a black comedy with sex and nudity. The theme is by the Scaffold. New World released it in the US.

HORRORS OF SPIDER ISLAND

(SW, 1959) D/S: "Jamie Nolan"/Fritz Bottger P: Wolfgang Hatwig W. Germany (Ein Toter Hing im Netz)

A plane full of American dancers (one has a southern accent) crashes (offscreen), and they end up on an island. Some men arrive, the women dance in flower bikinis, love blossoms, and jealousy results in a catfight. Meanwhile, their talent scout (Alex D'Arcy, or his double) is bitten by a spider and becomes a monster with a hairy face and claws. The closeups of his face are scary, but the editing is awful and the whole movie is confusing. With Barbara Valentin as Babs: "Her legs are worth their weight in gold." This print is called It's Hot in Paradise, the original Pacemaker US-release title. I first saw this famous rarity in Paris. The French-dubbed version had closeup scenes of all the women skinny-dipping (seen here only in a brief long shot). It was filmed in Yugoslavia and is part of the Frank Henenlotter Sexy Shocker series.

HORRORS OF THE RED PLANET = THE WIZARD OF MARS

THE HORSEPLAYER

(Republic, 1990) D/S: Kurt Voss S/P: Larry Ratner S: David Birke

Brad Dourif stars as Bud, an on-the-edge, reclusive racetrack fanatic who's on parole. He works nights for Vic Tayback (in his last role) in a liquor store's walk-in refrigerator (wearing a fur coat and ski mask). Sammi Davis seduces him, and her sarcastic, alcoholic artist "brother" (Michael Harris) chooses him to model for a series of violent paintings. Bud hates art (for good reason), though. Parts of this low-budget movie are like A Bucket of Blood. Davis and Voss (Border Radio) were married in real life. He also made Genuine Risk. The soundtrack is by the Pixies.

HOSPITAL OF HORROR = NURSE SHERRI

HOSTAGE

(RCA, 1987) D: Hanro Mohr, Percival Rubens S: Norman Winski, Michael Leighton P: Thys Heyns, Paul Raleigh S. Africa (Colt; Flight 802)

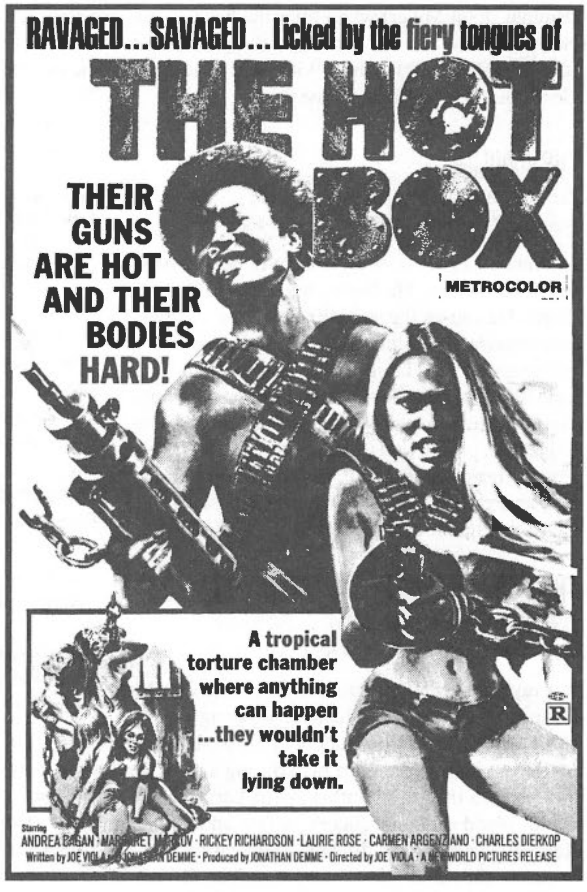
Wings Hauser, as the Nam-vet mercenary-commando hero, saves kidnapped Nancy Locke, as his girlfriend. This Delta Force copy is set on a train in Uganda taken over by Arab terrorists. With Karen Black as a porno star with a gay agent and Kevin McCarthy.



HOSTAGE TOWER

(Embassy, 1980) D: Claudio Guzman S: Robert Carrington P: Burt Nodella, Peter Snell

Peter Fonda stars in this CBS-TV adaptation of an Alistair MacLean tale about a master criminal (Keir Dullea) who captures the Eiffel Tower and holds hostages there, including the US president's mother. With Billy Dee Williams, Rachel Roberts (in her last role), Maud Adams, Celia Johnson, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and Britt Ekland. It was made (partially in Paris) by the director of Linda Lovelace for President.

HOSTILE TAKEOVER

(IVE, 1988) D: George Mihalka S: Stephen Zoller, Michael A. Gilbert P: George Flak Canada (Office Party)

In this black comedy, a hydroelectric-plant worker (David Warner) snaps and takes hostages. With Michael Ironside, Kate Vernon, and Jayne Eastwood.

THE HOT BOX

(VGB, 1972) D: Joe Viola S/P: Jonathon Demme

Four Peace Corps nurses are kidnapped and jailed in the Philippines. In a typical 70s drive-in plot, they become jungle revolutionaries fighting against the corrupt government. Margaret Markov stars, with Andrea Cagan, Charles Dierkop, and Laurie Rose. This New World release has lots of topless scenes. Viola and Demme also made Angels, Hard as They Come.

HOT CAR GIRL

(1958) D: Bernard Kowalski S: Leo Gordon P: Gene Corman

Duke (Richard Bakalyan) hates cops, steals car parts, drinks too much, talks jive, and ends up wanted for murder and hiding out at Bronson Canyon. Peg (June Kenny) is the tough girl who helps the juvenile delinquents strip cars. Janice (Jana Lund) is the rich girl who races in her convertible and goes to jail after a motorcycle cop is killed. This is pretty strong for a 50s teen movie. Characters are bashed, smashed, and killed, and sex is implied. Bruno Ve Sota runs the junkyard, and Ed Nelson is a cop. There's a jazzy Cal Tjader score. Roger Corman was the executive producer. Kowalski made Night of the Blood Beast the same year.

HOT CHILD IN THE CITY

(Paramount, 1987) D: John Florea S: George Goldsmith P: Giovanna Nigro-Chacon

Leah Ayres-Hamilton stars as the younger sister of Shari Shattuck, a Hollywood record-company executive who is murdered. She begins to assume her sister's personality as she searches for the killer. The music is by Billy Idol, Nick Glider, Lou Reed, and Fun Boy Three.

HOT CHOCOLATE

(Live, 1992) D: Josée Dayan S: Ginny Cerrella, Maryedith Burrell

Bo Derek, a rich Texan who's in France to buy a chocolate factory, falls for the owner's assistant (Robert Hays). Bo keeps her clothes on in this "romantic comedy." It features Howard Hesseman and a midget bartender.

HOT DOG: THE MOVIE

(1984) D: Peter Markle S: Mike Marvin P: Edward S. Feldman

David Naughton is a "Manhattan punk" in this ski comedy with Shannon Tweed, Playboy Playmate Crystal Smith, and a slasher. "Hot-dogging" is choreographed skiing. This was followed by Hamburger.

HOTEL EROTICA = SLAUGHTER HOTEL (minus 21 minutes!)

THE HOTEL NEW HAMPSHIRE

(1984) D/S: Tony Richardson P: Neil Hartley

A very odd family manage to get by, in this adaptation of John Irving's novel set in Vienna, New York City, and New England. Jodie Foster, Nastassja Kinski (who wears a bear suit), and Rob Lowe are the older kids, and there's a little sister who doesn't grow. Rape and incest figure in this comedy/drama. Beau Bridges and Lisa Banes are the parents. With Amanda Plummer, Seth Green, Joely Richardson, Wallace Shawn as Freud (not Sigmund), Matthew Modine, Wilford Brimley, and Anita Morris. Orion released it to confused audiences.

HOTEL OKLAHOMA

(1990) D/S: Bobby Houston S: Lisa Sutton P: Terry Kahn, Ed Elbert, Gregory Vanger

This is a women's-prison movie with comedy and a lesbian-love-triangle murder. There's no nudity, but all the usual clichés are here. Kristen Cloke is the innocent sent up. With David Keith, Ray Sharkey, Karen Black (who was also in Houston's Bad Manners) as a crazy inmate, and Deborah May as the warden. It was filmed at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary.

HOTEL ROOM

(Worldvision, 1992) D: David Lynch, James Signorelli S: Barry Gifford, Jay McInerney P: Deepak Nayar

Lynch was the executive producer of this limited (and limited-appeal) HBO series. Each of the 3 odd stories takes place in a different year in the same room of a New York City hotel. They move very slowly and don't have much of a payoff, but what would you expect from Lynch? In 1969 Harry Dean Stanton and Freddie Jones (who doesn't show up in a mirror) are in the room with a hooker (Glenne Headly). Chelsea Field, Deborah Unger, and Mariska Hargitay are all former conquests of a director (Griffin Dunne) in Signorelli's contemporary segment. Crispin Glover (naturally) dominates Lynch's 1936 story, and Alicia Witt plays his wife.

HOT HEIR

(1984) D: Worth Keeter III S: Thom McIntyre P: Earl Owensby (The Great Balloon Chase)

Diane Beatty and Ron Campbell star in this adventure movie about hot-air balloons, filmed in Shelby, North Carolina.

HOT ICE

(Night Flite, 1977) D/S/P/A: "A. C. Stevens"/ Stephen Apostolof S: Ed Wood Jr.

Ed Wood Jr. was the assistant director of this, the last of A. C. Stevens' nudie movies. Wood died in 1978, was rediscovered for his earlier films like Plan 9 from Outer Space and Glen or Glenda, and, incredibly, was the subject of a major motion picture, Tim Burton's Ed Wood (1994).

HOT MOVES

(Vestron, 1984) D/P: Jim Sotos S: Larry Anderson, Peter Foldy

An overweight virgin uses a telescope to watch girls on the beach, in another Animal House copy. He sees Jill Schoelen, Monique Gabrielle, and Deborah Richter.

HOT ON THE TRAIL: See FUGITIVE GIRLS

HOT POTATO

(Warner, 1976) D/S: Oscar Williams P: Fred Weintraub, Paul Heller

Jim Kelly (Enter the Dragon) is a martial-arts fighter who tries to rescue an ambassador's daughter in Thailand. With Irene Tsu, Sam Hiona, and George Memmoli. Producer Weintraub later had this remade as Force: Five (1981). Williams had directed The Final Comedown.

H.O.T.S.

(Vestron, 1979) D: Gerald Seth Sindell S: Cheri Caffaro, Joan Buchanan P: W. Terry Davis, Don Schain, Gerald Seth Sindell (T&A Academy)

The title of this sex comedy (written by the star of the Ginger movies!) means "Honey, O'Hara, Teri, and Sam." With Susan Lynn Kiger and K. C. Winkler (from Playboy), Lindsay Bloom, Sandy Johnson, Pamela Jean Bryant, Angela Aames, Lisa London, Danny Bonaduce, and Dick Bakalyan. It has topless football, topless parachuters, and topless chess games. Other H.O.T.S. tapes are unrelated, retitled films.

H.O.T.S. II: See SWINGING CHEERLEADERS

HOT SHOTS!

(Fox, 1991) D/S: Jim Abrahams S: Pat Proft P: Bill Badalato

Charlie Sheen is ace flyer "Topper" Harley, in this PG-13 spoof of Top Gun (and the Reagan era). Cary Elwes costars, with Valeria Golino, Lloyd Bridges, Jon Cryer, Kristy Swanson, and Efrem Zimbalist Jr. Other movies, including $9\frac{1}{2}$ Weeks, An Officer and a Gentleman, The Fabulous Baker Boys, and Dances with Wolves, are ridiculed too, and actors play Elvis, the Pope, Saddam Hussein, Liberace, and Bogart. This was released just after Naked Gun $2\frac{1}{2}$, by Abrahams' ex-partner David Zucker. It was a big hit.

HOT SHOTS! PART DEUX

(Fox, 1993) D/S: Jim Abrahams S: Pat Proft P: Bill Badalato

The same main cast (Sheen, Bridges, Golino) return in a pretty stupid spoof of Rambo movies and others, including Star Wars and The Wizard of Oz. Sheen is sent to Iraq with CIA agent Golino to rescue hostages from Saddam Hussein. With Rambo regular Richard Crenna, Brenda Bakke, and Miguel Ferrer. Martin Sheen shows up in an Apocalypse Now spoof, the president (Bridges) throws up in the lap of the Japanese prime minister, and they even make fun of Buddhist monks. 20th Century–Fox released this PG-13 film.

THE HOT SPOT

(Orion, 1990) D: Dennis Hopper S: Nona Tyson, Charles Williams P: Paul Lewis

The third movie directed by Hopper in three years is based on a 1952 novel Hell Hath No Fury, by Williams. Don Johnson stars as a con man and drifter working as a car salesman in Taylor, Texas. He becomes involved with his boss's wife (Virginia Madsen, who used a body double) and Jennifer Connelly (who has a topless scene). It's way too long (130 minutes), but some parts are inspired by David Lynch and are fairly extreme for an R rating. With Charles Martin Smith, Jack Nance, Barry Corbin, William Sadler, and Debra Cole. The Jack Nitzsche blues soundtrack (on Antilles) includes Miles Davis, John Lee Hooker, Taj Mahal, and others.

H.O.T.S.

HOT TARGET

(1985) D/S: Denis Lewiston P: John Barnett, Brian Cook New Zealand (Restless)

Rich, blond Simone Griffeth, the wife of a British tycoon, is seduced by a thief who's planning to rob her home. This film noir copies Body Heat and has some nudity. A Crown International release.

HOTTER AFTER DARK

(SW, 1967)

A voyeur detective named Mike Mallonen narrates this really cheap-looking adult movie with some of the worst acting ever. He "watches" sex scenes with dubbed-in groans (the men keep their underwear on) from a closet. In one scene he starts making out with a maid who turns out to be a man in drag. When a woman takes a shower her panties appear. There are no production credits for this b/w film.

HOT TO TROT!

(Warner, 1988) D: Michael Dinner S: Stephen Neigher, Hugh Gilbert P: Steve Tisch

Bobcat Goldthwait stars opposite a talking horse (with the voice of John Candy). Who would have thought that the Francis the Talking Mule/Mr. Ed idea would resurface yet again? Goldthwait hated this PG comedy so much that he directed himself in Shakes the Clown. With Dabney Coleman, Virginia Madsen, Jim Meltzer, Cindy Pickett, Mary Gross, and the voice of Burgess Meredith.

HOT UNDER THE COLLAR

(HBO, 1992) D/P/A: Richard Gabai

Richard Gabai disguises himself as a nun to save his hypnotized girlfriend (Angela Visser) from a convent. With Burt Ward. By the director of Virgin High.

THE HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES

(Paramount, 1983) D: Douglas Hickox S: Charles Pogue P: Otto Plaschkes UK

Ian Richardson stars as Sherlock Holmes, and Donald Churchill is Dr. John Watson, in this British TV movie shown on HBO. The cast includes Denholm Elliott, Brian Blessed, Ronald Lacey, Eleanor Bron, and Edward Judd. Nicholas Clay plays three roles. Richardson was also in The Sign of the Four the same year. A 1982 BBC version of The Hound of the Baskervilles stars Tom Baker. A 1988 version stars Jeremy Brett and is part of the Granada TV Sherlock Holmes series. Earlier versions starred Basil Rathbone (1941), Peter Cushing (1959), Stewart Granger (1972), and Peter Cook (1977).

HOUR OF THE ASSASSIN

(MGM, 1986) D/P: Luis Llosa S: Matt Leipzig

Ex–Green Beret Erik Estrada is in South America, hired by the military for an assassination plot. Robert Vaughn is the CIA man trying to stop him. Released by Corman's Concorde, it was filmed in Peru.

HOUR OF THE PIG

(1993) D/S: Leslie Megahey P: David M. Thompson France/UK

In medieval Europe even animals could be accused of crimes and tried in court. Colin Firth stars as a Parisian defense lawyer working in a village who defends a pig owned by Gypsies that is accused of killing a boy. With Donald Pleasence as a local prosecuting attorney, Amina Annabi, Ian Holm, Nicol Williamson, Lysette Anthony, and Michael Gough.

HOUR OF THE WOLF

(MGM/UA, 1967) D/S: Ingmar Bergman Sweden (Vargtimmen)

Max von Sydow stars as a brooding artist on a secluded island haunted by demons in his imagination that become real. There's a bird man, and a woman's face comes off. Liv Ullmann is his wife, and Ingrid Thulin is his mistress. This moody film was copied by Oliver Stone for his first movie, Seizure. The cinematography is by Sven Nykvist. It's the second film in a Bergman trilogy starting with Persona (1966) and ending with Shame (1968).

THE HOURS AND TIMES

(Fox Lorber, 1991) D/S: Christopher Munch UK

This 'what if' story shows John Lennon (Ian Hart) and the Beatles' homosexual manager, Brian Epstein (David Angus), on a 1963 vacation together in Barcelona. It's b/w and less than an hour long. Hart returned as Lennon in Backbeat.

HOUSE

(Starmaker, 1986) D: Steve Miner S: Ethan Wiley P: Sean S. Cunningham

A Nam-vet horror writer (William Katt) moves into a haunted house that he has inherited and works on a book about his war experiences. He has to arm himself to kill a slime monster, a zombie fish, zombies, and various rubber creatures. With George Wendt, Richard Moll as a tortured Nam-vet ghost, and Kay Lenz. This silly Poltergeist parody is based on a story by Fred Dekker. Miner had been working with Cunningham as an editor since Last House on the Left. This New World release includes a clip from Don't Look in the Basement.

HOUSE II: THE SECOND STORY

(Starmaker, 1987) D/S: Ethan Wiley P: Sean S. Cunningham

Arye Gross and Lar Park Lincoln move into a house once owned by their great-great-grandfather. They dig up the 170-year-old corpse (Royal Dano) and are sent to a ghost town, then to a primeval jungle to face a baby dino and a caterpillar/dog. With Gregory Walcott, Mitzi Kapture, and Devin Devasquez (from Playboy). A Varèse Sarabande album was released, with Harry Manfredini's score for both films. House III became Horror Show in the US. New World released this.

HOUSE IV: HOME DEADLY HOME

(New Line, 1990) D: Lewis Abernathy S: Geoff Miller, Deidre Higgens P: Sean S. Cunningham

Terry Treas inherits an isolated haunted house from her husband (played by William Katt, from the first movie) after a car crash kills him and cripples their daughter. Treas sees blood everywhere and is naked in a blood shower. Bungling comic villains work for an evil dwarf who runs a toxic-waste plant. Flashback dreams (with Katt) are repeated. There's too much talking, not enough sense, and bad, silly FX. With Denny Dillon, Ned Romero, and Kane Hodder.

HOUSEBOAT HORROR

(1987) D: Kendal Flanigan D/S/P: Ollie Martin Australia

People making rock videos near a remote lake are killed off by a scarred, bald psycho who was burned on a movie set. Alan Dale and Christine Jeston star. The cast is mostly Australian TV soap stars. It was shot with a Betacam and was Australia's first direct-to-video slasher movie.

THE HOUSE BY THE CEMETERY

(Vestron, 1981) D/S: Lucio Fulci S: Dardano Sacchetti, Giorgio Mariuzzo P: Fabrizio De Angelis Italy (Quella Villa Accanto al Cimitero)

A family moves into a house near Boston. Dr. Freudstein, an ancient cannibal, is in the basement, and there's a little-girl ghost who tries to warn the family. Fulci regular Catriona/Katherine MacColl stars as the mom. With Dagmar Lassander and Paolo Malco. This unrated movie has gore, blood, decapitations, a giant bat, and maggots. It's pretty entertaining. The son character is copied from The Shining. It was partially shot on location in the US.

THE HOUSE BY THE RIVER

(1950) D: Fritz Lang S: Mel Dinelli P: Howard Welsch

